OLD BRITISH WARSHIP COMES FOR CARGO

THAT OLD HIGH HAT

Headpiece Did Duty as a Bank, and Did It Well.

Convivia! Gentleman Had Not Intended It for the Purpose, and Flash of Memory Made Him Richer by Neat Amount.

Misers' hoards have been found in all kinds of queer places. The experience of Postmaster Habelton of Marysville, Mich., proves that a man may bank money against his will and be made right glad after many days. The postmaster made a trip to Port Huron to do some purchasing. That was months ago. He took a $100 bill along to meet the proposed outlay. After he had named everything he needed and the articles were being wrapped up he looked for the $100 bill—and looked in vain.

Search everywhere was made, in garments and along the street to the point where the postmaster had left the interurban car and then the car itself. No trace of the bill was found and the police department and the sheriff were notified of the loss. It made things a little inconvenient for Mr. Hazelton, because every man can't lose $100 without having his finances thrown out of adjustment. After things had been arranged to smooth over the loss the postmaster placed a pencil in his vest pocket one day, and noted its disappearance. He investigated and found a hole. In the search something crinkled. It was the $100 bill. As the postmaster had adjusted himself to the loss he called the situation "an absolute find of $100."

Mortimer Sheridan of Brooklyn placed a $500 bill in the lining of his high silk hat one night while with a jolly birthday party. The next day he was short the amount and absolutely forgot about the high-hat incident. After worrying a bit about it he concluded to accept the loss philosophically and say nothing to anyone. Time went on. Sheridan only wore the hat at state occasions, and these did not often come to him. The hat did him very nicely for five years longer. For his daughter's wedding his wife persuaded him to buy a new hat more in the mode. The youth who delivered the new high hat, Mr. Sheridan lingered until he attracted attention. Finally he said: "If you haven't any use for that old high hat, Mr. Sheridan, I'd like to take it along with me. I sell all the old hats we get at the store to a second-hand man."

"Sure, you can have it," answered Sheridan. "It's been a good hat to me in a general way, but every time I've looked at it since I lost $500 a few years ago I remember I had it on that unlucky night. So, it's better out of my sight." "Well, wife, how do you like my new beaver?" asked Sheridan. The youth had left. In the conversation that followed Mrs. Sheridan learned of the disposition of the old hat. "Did you look in the lining of it?" she asked archly. "I read the other day of a man who always put his spare change there so his wife would not know where to find it when he got home. But Mrs. Sheridan had only reached the word "lining" before Mr. Sheridan's recant memory brought the incident back in a great flood of recollection. Wherever the remembrance of it had been stored up only the scientists may say, but at any rate it came to the owner of the old and the new hat with an overwhelming rush. Without taking the trouble to remove his new high hat he bolted out of the house in chase of his old one.

He caught the startled youth by the arm three blocks down the avenue and wrenched the old beaver from his grip. Tearing the cover from the box, he brought forth the hat he had used as a bank and plunged his hand in the lining. Withdrawing it his gladdened eye beheld the $500 bill clutched between his fingers. "Here, son, here's $10 for you," he said to the open-mouthed youth, "and you can't have the hat now. It's been too good a bank. I'm going to keep it for luck." And that hat still hangs on the Sheridan hall rack.—New York Sun.

Companions in Misfortune. Two men sat at the same table in a restaurant of the cheaper sort in Berlin. They were strangers to each other, but not too proud to talk. "Hard times," said one, putting down regretfully his empty beer glass. "Very hard times," said the other as he speared with his fork the last morsel of sausage. "I have seen better days." "And I."

"Only a year ago, too." "Just about that." "I mean in my business." "Precisely. My business is gone clean to the devil." "The same with mine." "And what is your business, may I ask?" "I am a dancing master—a professor of the fox trot and allied arts—and you?" "I am a professor of international law."

Two Fine Birds.

At a dinner given in India recently by the sergeants of the regiment (the arms of which contain an elephant and "Primus Indus") to the sergeants of the relieving regiment whose badge consists of an eagle, Mickey, the talkative, was asked to give a toast. "B'hoys," he said, "rise." All rose, but Mickey seemed at a loss for a speech. "Go it, Micky," said some, encouragingly.

At last he gave the toast: "B'hoys, here's to the two finest birds that I ever flew, the eagle and the lilliphant."

One They Appreciated.

"That last thing you sent in was good," said the editor; "we all enjoyed reading it very much." "Well, in that case," said the youthful poet, "I take back what I said in the letter I wrote to you yesterday about my determination never to send you any of my work again." The editor slowly shook his head. "Don't do that," he murmured; "why, that letter is what I referred to!"—Stray Stories.

Borrowed Finery.

The wedding party was moving down the aisle, and as the bride passed a woman friend sitting with her husband whispered: "She's wearing a veil loaned by her grandmother. Isn't it a beauty?" "It certainly is," replied her husband, "but just look at the white waistcoat the bridegroom is wearing. He borrowed that from me."

'Twas Ever Thus.

The One—What a lovely dress! And such a perfect fit, too!
The Other—Yes; but it is nothing to the fit my husband will have when he sees the bill.

BROUGHT HOME TROPHIES

Aunt Mary Had Gathered Many "Curiosities" During Her Morning Stroll on Golf Links.

It was at St. Andrews in Scotland, the home of golf, where the links stretch along over the moors by the sea, and dear, quiet Aunt Mary had gone up from London to visit a golfing family of nephews and nieces. At tea the first afternoon someone managed to stop talking golf long enough to ask, "Well, Aunt Mary, how did you pass the morning?" "Oh, I enjoyed myself immensely, my dear. I went for a walk on the moor."

"A good many people seemed to be about, and some of them called out to me in a most energetic manner. But I didn't take any notice of them. And, oh, my dear, I found such a number of curious little round things. I brought them home to ask you what they are."

Hereupon Aunt Mary opened her work bag and produced 24 golf balls. —Youth's Companion.

Make No Mistake.

He was an urchin of the streets, but did not lack wits. One day he saw a well-dressed woman with a benevolent face coming along. At once he dropped in a miserable heap on the curbstone and began to sob pathetically. The kind lady paused beside him. "What are you crying for, my boy?" she asked, gently. Stiffing his sobs with ease, the youngster looked up and replied: "Dunno. What have you got?"

Considerate.

"I see you're teaching your wife to play golf. Is she an apt pupil?" "Oh, she doesn't care for the game at all. I'm merely teaching her the rudiments, so I can discuss the game with her when I come home from the links."

Difference of Opinion.

He—You are the idol of my heart.
She—That's all right; but I don't intend to have any idle business in this family.

BIG CHIEFS MEET IN GLACIER PARK

GENERAL VON HOETZENDORF

Many-Tail-Feathers, chief of the Blackfoot Indians, and John J. Fitzgerald, chairman of the house appropriations committee and a big chief of Tammany Hall, in Glacier National park, Montana, near which is the Blackfoot reservation. The appropriations committee, which under the new reclamation extension law now has the say of how much money is to be expended on reclamation projects, has been touring the West inspecting this work.

Gen. Conrad von Hoetzendorf, chief of the Austro-Hungarian headquarters staff, studying the plan of the campaign against Italy. He designed the fortifications on the Austro-Italian frontier.

Polliteness Personified.

Not long ago a popular Massachusetts avenue tailor, who tips the beam near the 200-pound mark, attempted to force his way through a line of automobiles which was moving around the Circle and south into Meridian street, reports the Indianapolis Star. Incidentally this tailor is of a rather nervous temperament and is easily embarrassed when public attention is directed toward him. He dashed across the street ahead of a large car as fast as his avoirdupois and short legs would permit and stepped in front of a small machine. The car struck him with a thud, wheezed and came to a stop, while the tailor rolled in the dust. Scrambling to his feet and without regaining his hat, which had rolled to the curb, the avenue merchant turned to the driver of the little puffing machine and exclaimed in his excitement: "I beg pardon, sir!" and went hastily on his way.

SHE OBJECTED TO THE CAMERA

This interesting snapshot was made in Newport, R. I., just as Mrs. R. Z. Wilson was receiving from a newspaper photographer a plate he had exposed on her and which she demanded be given her. Owing to the complaints of society folk in the fashionable resort, each newspaper photographer making pictures there is followed by a policeman whose duty is to walk between the camera and the intended subject.

Hey, Skinnay, Come on over!

WASH FROCKS HAVE THEIR DAY

Plainer in Design and More Elaborate in Material with Accessories an Accomplished Fact in Smartness. Voile the all-popular Fabric

New York, July 26—Wash frocks are not what they used to be. Indeed, you have to rub your eyes and look twice to believe such altogether smart garments were ever intended to touch the water. The nets, the voiles, the Swisses, and even the linens, have that mysterious something called chic in their make-up that gives them etree wherever the one piece silk dress may go.

Skirts Overlap Waists and Vice Versa. The treatment of the waistline is one of the most important features of the frocks that the big stores are showing us. Invariably, the skirt comes up and finishes with a heading at the girdle, or the waist extends into a peplum and covers the skirt. This overlapping of waist and skirt offers a welcome relief from more pronounced joinings and is in itself a trimming for the dress.

One of the New Figured Voiles in an Afternoon Dress, with a Smart Satin Hat and Japanese Parasol

There are skirts with slightly raised waistlines and plain inclined-a-half headings; others with wide girdles below the heading, and, again, the skirt is shired or corded, with the heading extended above. The peplums, too, are treated in different ways. Many are made with the new normal waistlines. Usually, with the peplum idea, the waist has a vest, leaving an open space in the peplum in front. At the waistline, there are double lines of shirring, a crushed girdle, a belt of the material, or one of the new fancy belts of patent leather and white kid.

The Popularity of Voile. It has been said, and with truth, that this is a voile season. As in silk, taffeta is the favored weave, so in wash materials voile predominates. The loose, cross-mesh lends itself readily to the quaint styles of the 1915 season. Whole windows of the large stores are given up to frocks of voile; the Avenue throngs with people who wear it, and the lesser stores on the side streets contribute their share to its popularity in exclusive models for a chosen few of New York's select society.

One model of unusual merit is a symphony in pink and white, standing on the spacious third floor of an Avenue store. The pink is a delicate salmon shade, printed in bars and embroidered in big coin dots in every fourth square. This material is used for the waist cut surplice fashion, and for the skirt that comes up over the waist with a heading, while the collar and cuffs are white voile, edged with a pleating of the pink and white.

Pockets a Feature in Misses' Skirts. If misses' skirts are properly pocketed, they are smart this season. Indeed, pockets in their newly-found popularity have outgrown skirts and extend into straps on the belts and even into suspenders on the blouse. They are real pockets, conveniently placed squarely over the hip, that a girl can put her hands into and swagger down the street like her big brother—pockets that are big enough to hold the knick-knacks of the handbag, and last, but not the least important, pretty enough in shape to trim the skirt.

They appear on the rough-and-ready skirt of linen, washable corduroy and cotton gabardine. There are some charming models in soft blue and rose linens, with suspender pockets; sports skirts of corduroy have pockets that button over the belt—big, roomy affairs—at the sides that will be the pride and joy of some girl's life.

Plings in Linens. One of the smartest ways of finishing the linen skirts is with pipings. A store that makes a specialty of junior dresses is featuring a rose linen piped in white. The skirt is made with the large patch pockets at the side that extend into suspenders, on the waist. The skirt, suspenders, pockets and cuffs are of the rose linen, while the waist is white Swiss. The pocket is outlined with a piping of white that accentuates its shape and adds to the style.

Midsummer Hats of Satin. Satin hats are an innovation of the midseason. Large shapes are favored in these, and trimmings are unique and original. A broad-brimmed white satin has a flat bow inserted in slits in the front of the crown; a black satin has white velvet birds pasted flat on the crown, and still another white satin has a crown of wool made in four sections, each section embroidered in a different color. The last suggests the cap of the jockey set down on the top of a satin hat, with the coloring even more brilliant.

Velvet Combines with Hemp and Chip. Velvet is one of the fads in summer hats. However, it is seldom used alone. This season, it combines with hemp and chip. One particularly attractive hat has a wide soft brim of white hemp, with the low, close-fitting crown of black velvet finished at the front with a swirl of black velvet. This is held at the center with a pin stuck through diagonally. The head of the pin is a flower cut out of a flat piece of wood and painted in color. And, so it goes, each hat is a story in itself, absolutely different from its neighbor.

Big Tractor Farming Demonstration

Bloomington, Illinois, August 23 to 28, 1915

This gigantic Demonstration of tractor plowing will be the greatest agricultural event ever held in Illinois and the Middle West 60 Tractors will give practical demonstrations, providing an unparalleled opportunity to study the leading makes and types of farm tractors in actual operation under conditions as nearly similar to those which prevail on average farms as it is possible to arrange.

Every progressive farmer and his family—especially his boys—should witness this great event.

Come and see the big "steel horses" as well as the smaller ones at work in the field. See them plow from two to ten furrows at a time.

All of the leading makes of tractors and gang plows will be there. Several are of the newest type, operating self-lift plows, making them strictly one-man outfits. Some are four-wheeled; some have but one drive wheel; some lay their own track; every imaginable type of tractor and engine gang plow will be demonstrated.

HEAR the farm machinery talks and lectures by: I. W. Dickerson, Farm Power Machinery Expert, University of Illinois; F. M. White, head of the Agricultural Engineering Department, University of Wisconsin; H. H. Musselman, President American Society of Agricultural Engineers, and other eminent authorities on farm power equipment. Hon. Carl Vrooman, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., will attend the Demonstration and speak on the "New Agriculture."

SEE the "farming with dynamite" demonstrations which will include stump shooting, ditch digging, subsoiling and tree planting.

Special Entertainment Features. The City of Bloomington is planning to royally entertain visitors. One of the entertainment features will be Venetian Night on the lake at beautiful Miller Park, which will consist of an illuminated Water Parade of thirty or more floats, a wonderful display of fireworks, band concert by the famous Bloomington Band of fifty pieces, etc.

THE MIDDLE WEST TRACTOR FARMING DEMONSTRATION

THE CHANCE OF A LIFETIME

to get a First Class Farm in the Corn Belt on Liberal Payment Plan

We have a large tract of first class corn, wheat, oats, clover, and blue grass land, well located, in this county near County seat, well tiled and in cultivation, producing splendid crops, that we are dividing up into smaller farms and offering for sale, at reasonable prices and on such terms that anyone, having a small amount to make the first payment, and any hustle, can soon own a farm of his own. You cannot afford to buy the high priced lands where the top notch has been reached, neither can you afford to rent when you have such an opportunity. We can sell you a farm with or without improvements. This is the chance of a lifetime, and if you are interested, write us full particulars as to how you are situated and what you want and we can help you to get a home. Should possession be wanted next year, you must act soon, for the renting season is soon here on account of wheat sowing.

In making a study of the advertising columns of our exchanges, we find but few patrons among the hardware and furniture dealers. Does this mean that these two lines have surrendered to the mail order monopoly, or does it mean that the mail order monopoly has thrived because the hardware and furniture dealers have been indifferent about their advertising. It is very evident that the mail order houses do an enormous business in hardware and furniture. N. B. Most local papers refuse mail order advertising, which is, no doubt, appreciated by the home merchant.—Altamont News.

Much Adler-i-ka Used in Sullivan. It is reported by Frank McCall that one Adler-i-ka is sold in Sullivan. People have found out that ONE SPOONFUL of this stupor-buckhorn bark and gingerale mixture relieves almost ANY CASE of constipation, sour, or gassy stomach. It is so simple that it is used so easily in appendicitis. ONE MINUTE after you take it the greenish mumble and pass out. It is perfectly safe to use and cannot grip. adv
