RECLAMATION WORK.
Reclamation is one of the greatest problems for the future of the West and therefore the future of the nation. MUST COOPERATE TO CHECK POULTRY FLU
Liberal Feeding And Sanitary Transportation Will Help Control the Disease.

If they will follow the recommendations of authorities on poultry health, Moultrie county farmers and poultrymen can do much to overcome the epidemic of so-called "Canadian flu" which has played havoc with the poultry markets in the last three weeks.

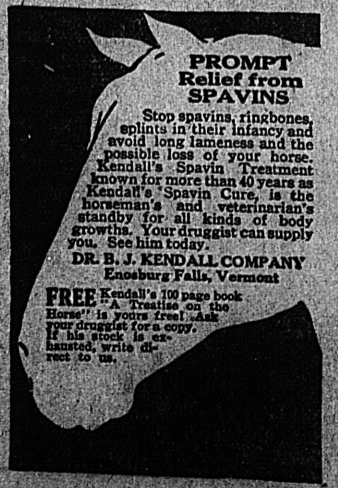

Directors of the Illinois Poultry and Egg Shippers' Association believe that Illinois was placed on the embargo list was largely because of promiscuous shipments out of Chicago, made up of rejects from the West and Northwest.

Game & Fish News
C. F. Mansfield Jr.
Secretary of the Federated Sportsmen of Illinois

Mr. Mansfield, Chief Game and Fish Warden, after a conference with representatives of leading sportsmen organizations, sent a request to the St. Louis Post Dispatch, The Chicago Tribune, Sears, Roebuck and Company and The Herald Examiner radio stations, to farmers to distribute feed for quail during this period when it is impossible for these birds to obtain food on account of the heavy ice covering all woods and other natural feed.

Sportsmen have long claimed that they were real conservationists and that they were always in the lead during emergencies such as this. Here is an opportunity to show whether this is really true.

Every warden sportsman and farmer who takes up in this worthy cause should write to the Secretary of the Federated Sportsmen at Springfield, telling how many covies were fed, and if any were found frozen before feed could be taken to them this should be reported also.

It is practically hopeless," Mr. Little asserted, "to expect the same economy and efficiency to be practiced in state and local governments on the whole, that is practiced by private corporations, where the object is primarily one of profit to the owners and stockholders."

Another feature of importance is that the trolley voltage adopted for the Detroit & Ironton railroad electrification, is 22,000 volts, 25 cycles, alternating current, a trolley voltage twice as high as any previously used in this country.

Illinois Central System Says That Railroads Strive to Merit Public Confidence

Nearly five years have elapsed since the railroads began to operate under the terms of the Transportation Act of 1920. During all of this time the railroads have been on trial. The Transportation Act has been on trial. The public has been waiting to determine whether the new system would work, whether the railroads under it would be able to improve their facilities and service and establish themselves for the future.

For the first three years business conditions were unsettled, and the new system of regulation could not be said to have had a fair trial under normal conditions. In the two years that have just ended, conditions generally have been more nearly stable. Business has increased, prosperity has returned, and there has been an unprecedented demand for transportation service.

With their improved facilities, the railroads have handled in the last two years the greatest volume of traffic ever known, and they have done so in a most satisfactory manner, with practically no shortage of facilities. By every test of operating efficiency, the railroads in these two years have improved immensely the character of their service to the public.

The railroads, however, cannot stop where they are. They must continue to keep pace with the growth of business. Their capacity is a limitation upon the country's prosperity, and they must grow if our greater population of the future is to have its full measure of prosperity.

The railroads have proved their confidence in the continued fairness of the public by making extensive investments for better service. By the result of the November election the public has indicated that it has confidence in the railroads. The railroads are going to strive to retain that confidence as their most valuable asset.

In the improvements scheduled for 1925, the Illinois Central System, as usual, will be found in the front rank of progressive American railroads.

Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.
C. H. MARKHAM,
President, Illinois Central System.

FORD CO. BUILDING LARGE LOCOMOTIVE

Henry Ford is doing the unusual thing again. This time he is building the largest and most powerful electric locomotive in the world which, when completed, will be used on the Detroit & Ironton Railway.

The super engine, which is now under construction in the power house at the Highland Park Plant of the Ford Motor Company, presents a most important development in the electrification of steam railroads.

The locomotive is not only novel in electrical design, but embodies many new and important ideas in mechanical designs. In size it will be prodigious. It will weigh 340 tons, will be 117 feet long, fifteen feet high and ten feet wide.

One of the unique features of this great electric motive unit is that it carries its own converter station. This eliminates establishment of substation along the route, a practice at present general in railroad electrification.
