Lon Mahoney Takes Life Sunday By Drinking Poison

A routine army investigation was made in the suicide of Lon Mahoney, soldier from Fort Bragg, North Carolina.

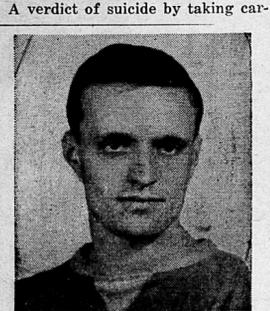

The purpose of the army board was to substantiate the reported death of Mahoney.

Three Lieutenants from Chanute field made the investigation that must be made in any death that occurs in the personnel of the army.

A report of the death will be forwarded to Fort Bragg, Mahoney's camp.

The mystery-shrouded suicide of Lon Mahoney was cleared Tuesday by a statement by Mrs. Violet Burness, sister-in-law of Mahoney.

In her statement at the office of the State's Attorney, Mrs. Burness said that the gunshot wounds that were found on the body of the deceased were self-inflicted. The wounds were incurred when Mahoney, in an act to gain sympathy, shot himself with a rifle. According to the statement made, Mahoney was attempting to gain the sympathy of his wife who was separated from him.

A verdict of suicide by taking carbolic acid was returned by the coroner's jury at the inquest that was held at the McMullin Funeral Home Monday afternoon. In the testimony of the attending physician who was called to the home of Dwain Atteberry where Mahoney committed suicide, it was found that Mahoney was in a dying condition. He died several minutes after he had been carried into the house.

In the testimony of Lena Atteberry, she stated that Mahoney came to their house around 4 o'clock and sat on the front porch with the Atteberys. He asked for a drink and was taken to the kitchen. After returning to the front porch again Mahoney went back into the kitchen, presumably for another drink of water. A few seconds after he had returned to the kitchen he was heard falling to the floor and crying out. Rushing into the house Mr. and Mrs. Atteberry found Mahoney on the floor. He was carried to the front lawn where he was attended by a local doctor. The acid had been poured into a glass that was found beside the empty bottle that had contained the poison.

In their testimony, Mr. and Mrs. Atteberry mentioned that Mahoney had never mentioned that he was contemplating suicide.

Mrs. Augusta Mahoney, wife of Lon Mahoney, in her testimony to the coroner's jury stated that her husband had several times said he was going to kill himself and at one time had attempted to do so. He took an overdose of sleeping medicine.

She testified that she and her husband had not been living together since the first of the year and that he had enlisted in the army. She is employed at the shoe factory.

This was Mahoney's first visit home since he had enlisted in the army and was going back but had to notify the camp that because of a nervous disorder he would not be able to return immediately. He had been under the care of a physician. Mahoney had related to several people that he had been shot in a "gun" fight. Five conflicting stories had been told by him regarding the ten day old wounds and all of the stories were investigated and found to be false.

The police investigated the story that he had been shot at Charleston but found the story false.

According to the reports of the rumors that were prevalent, after word had been heard that there were gunshot wounds on his body, a doctor had treated his wounds and had not reported them to the police. According to the opinion of the several lawyers, there is no law, either Federal or local, on the statutes that require any doctor to report such wounds to the authorities.

The doctor that attended Mahoney prior to his death had been his family physician and he was told by Mahoney that he had accidentally shot himself while shooting his rifle at the river. The wound was slight and needed little attention.

Lon Mahoney was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mort Mahoney and was born August 27, 1914 in Sullivan. He was married to Augusta Burt-chard, November 30, 1936. He is survived by his wife and daughter, Patty, and his parents; one sister, Mrs. Olive Reed of Lincoln and a brother, Kenneth, at home.

Mahoney volunteered for army service under the selective service act and left Sullivan March 17 for the induction station and at the time of his death he was a member of Battery B, 14th Battalion, 5th Field Artillery, stationed at Fort Bragg, North Carolina.

Funeral services were held at three-thirty Tuesday afternoon at the McMullin Funeral Home, conducted by the Reverend C. E. Barnett with interment in Campfield cemetery. Virgil Storm sang, accompanied by Mrs. Eleanor Dazey.

Appropriations For City Expenses Passed By Council

The City Council, at its meeting Monday evening, had three important matters before it, passing the usual resolution granting to the American Legion permission to sponsor a carnival from June 30th to July 5th, the presentation of the annual appropriation ordinance, and a discussion of the widening and improvement of Jackson street, which may now be a dead issue. W. H. White and L. P. Dickerson appeared before the council on behalf of the American Legion, and were assured of the usual privileges of the street and concessions for the big celebration planned for the Fourth of July, the license fee being remitted.

The street widening project planned for Jackson street, which called for extensive improvements by the division of highways and a drainage project to have been paid for by the city from its share of state motor fuel tax funds, was abandoned, according to a report of Commissioner Lindley based on information received from district engineers for highway department. He said that he was informed that the state has decided not to construct the improvement at this time, and that the District Engineer will approve any reasonable plan of the city to use the motor fuel tax funds for other city street purposes.

Commissioner Lindley said that he was also informed that the estimate for the drainage project on Jackson street, first tentatively fixed at $7,500, has been raised by the engineers who made the survey for the city, to about $15,000. He had been informed that the engineer for the city would present his report of the estimated cost at the meeting Monday evening, but it was not received.

Mayor Miller pointed out that almost three months had elapsed since the engineer was appointed and that the city had agreed to pay him three percent of the estimated cost for preliminary plans, and an additional three percent for supervision of construction of the Jackson street sewer, and that the cost, it was said, at that time, would not exceed $7,500. He said that the work should have been done sooner, and that the report should have been filed several weeks ago, and he pointed out that the increase in the figures of the estimate would greatly increase the amount that the engineer would be entitled to under his agreement, even though his work might be of no value to the city.

The annual appropriation ordinance for the fiscal year commencing May 19, 1941 and ending May 9, 1942, was presented and filed with the clerk for one week for public inspection, and will come up for passage next Monday evening. The amounts appropriated for the various purposes are the same as last year, and although, in many instances, they are much higher than will be required, it was pointed out that the appropriation ordinance does not effect taxation, and always exceeds the amounts actually levied.

The following amounts are appropriated for the various departments:

Fees and Salaries	$8,500
Water and Sewer (not raised by taxation)	10,000
Principal and interest	Water & Sewer Revenue bonds
Printing and publishing	300
Greenhill Cemetery	2,000
Streets & Alleys	3,000
Wyman Park	2,500
Electric Department	(not raised by taxation) 75,000
Fire Protection	3,000
Fire Hydrant rentals	8,100
Public Library	3,000
Oiling streets	7,000
Contingent expenses	(not raised by taxation) 5,000

It is said that the total appropriation is almost ten times as much as the actual tax revenue of the city, and that the difference is represented by revenues from licenses, and income of the electric and water and sewer departments, Greenhill cemetery and other sources. The appropriation is usually made sufficiently high, also, to meet unforeseen emergencies.

EDITORIALLY SPEAKING

The Cross Roads . . . . .

About nine years old, overalld and tousel headed, the boy, with wide open eyes, watched the officer that was questioning him. With the ease of a practiced mind, the questions that were put to him were easily evaded.

Occasionally the boy wiped a dirty hand across an equally dirty face seemingly trying to find an answer to a question that would trap him in one of the stories that he had told.

A cut on one of his bare feet attracted the attention of the boy. Questions went unanswered during the scrutiny of the open wound that had not seen the least hint of first aid. With boyish ability the conversation was directed to the cut on his foot—sympathy was wanted.

This grimy boy had been taken into custody in an effort to learn where he had stolen an automobile tire. Before the boy had left he had mentioned five various places where he had picked up the tire. He had only one tire but still he had taken it from different places. He didn't seem to grasp that his story was falling apart and that he was incriminating himself and his guilt was becoming more evident.

Never once in the questioning did the boy seem worried, neither did he seem to recognize the following consequences.

The point here is that it was not so much the fact that the boy had stolen a tire but the fact that he did not recognize right from wrong. He was guilty and seemed to know it and his only defense was a juvenile barrier built on lies that were so evident.

The question arises as to why do not young people discover that there is a right and wrong. It is true that the degree of being right is determined by the laws that are constructed through the demands of the society in which one lives. What is right in one place may not be right in another. But on the other hand the society in which this boy was born is not so complex or changing that any understanding of right or wrong will not be constant.

The failure in the youth as represented in the case just mentioned is so typical of all those cases that come before the attention of those who are interested in the youth of today. They have no recognition of the rights of others or the limitations of their own rights.

The obvious question arises as to where should the blame for this failure be placed.

The first training that a young person gets is in the home. The first years of a person's life are the most important. The training that a youth gets in this first stage is usually the one that is the most lasting.

The more complex laws of the society that the youth has been thrust in are explained to a finer degree in the home than at any other stage in his life.

If the training that he should receive at home fails then the school is called upon to perform a miracle . . . the undoing of what has been done in a period of seven years.

This task that occasionally the schools have to perform is an unfair proposition from the start to finish.

A boy steals a tire . . . he does not recognize the seriousness of the act . . . perhaps he goes unchallenged . . . later as he gets older the acts that he does increase in seriousness with his age . . . at this point the youth realizes the seriousness of his crime . . . it might be that the crossroads are reached before he gets to this point . . . he has two alternatives of getting back or going on until he finally reaches an institution . . . someone must take an interest in him . . . give him some encouragement to recognize his responsibilities to the society in which he lives . . .

Taxes In The Headlines . . . . .

The problem of taxation today has three sides to it. First, our tax rates must be adequate to produce necessary revenue. Second, the burden must be distributed so as to fall equitably on all classes of taxpayers. Third, we must not unnecessarily imperil our standard of living and our productive capacity by excessively burdening either industry or the individual.

One criticism of the new tax bill is that it places far too great a burden on the middle-income groups—those who earn from $5,000 to $15,000 a year. The bill would force these groups to pay for a percentage of government expenditures which is out of all proportion to their size or financial capacity. And, as now proposed, it would not place anything like a commensurate tax load on taxpayers in the lower income groups.

The proposed bill has also been severely criticized for the staggering taxes it would levy against industry. What this country needs is production—and still more production. Any tax bill which takes too high a percentage of the earnings industry must use for expansion and to attract new investment, will have a deleterious effect on production.

Criticism is increasing because of the refusal of lawmakers and government bureaus to make cuts in non-defense expenditures which would reduce new tax demands. There must be "sacrifices" by tax eaters as well as taxpayers.

The critics of the new tax measure include government experts as well as private citizens. They should be listened to—and Congress should take all the time needed to frame a tax law that is in accord with the emergency of the time.

Transformation . . . . .

During the winter months the town is pretty well crowded with shoppers and visitors. As the spring months come on and there are crops to be put out and the business of the farm becomes more urgent the size of the crowds in town tend to diminish until during the height of the planting season the trading period is from six o'clock on until the stores close.

During the season of planting and plowing until the time the corn has been laid by, about the 4th of July, most of the trading will be done on Saturday evening until eleven o'clock.

After the corn has been laid by and between that time and the beginning of harvest time farmers remain out in the fields running their business of farming.

After the seasons have been completed and the heavy demanding work has been completed on the farm, then the farmer can transact his business in town. He can spend more time during the regular hours of the business day in town.

It is surprising just how dependent the town is upon the farmer and his trade. The seasons that keep those men in the fields emphasize this point very keenly.

One of the merchants remarked that during the season that the farmer was in the fields the Saturday nights that are so important began at eight-thirty and continued until eleven. During the other times the weekly Saturday nights and the heavy trading began as usual, six-thirty and ceased at nine o'clock.

It is very obvious just how an important part the farmers play in the city of Sullivan.

The Strategy to Defeat American

By WALTER LIPPMANN

While we are debating whether we mean to do what we have said we are going to do, Hitler is acting rapidly to outwit us and to block us. We have announced that we shall manufacture weapons and help get them delivered to the British Isles. The great objective of Hitler's campaign in the Mediterranean is to defeat this policy before we actually decide to make it effective.

Knowing that the combined industrial power of Britain and America and their combined naval power are sufficient to neutralize the German Navy and to prevent the German Army and air force from winning the war, Hitler is moving with all possible speed to offset the American intervention by obtaining the use of French, Italian, and Japanese sea power. Our power is naval power. The purpose of the Mediterranean campaign is to get possession of the French empire, to liberate the Italian fleet, and to induce Japan to enter the World War. Then, when we do decide to do what we have said we shall do, he confidently expects that he will have in his hands the ships and the strategic bases to checkmate us.

The conquest of the Mediterranean is the only way open to Hitler who lacks a navy, to conquer the French empire. As long as the British fleet is in the Mediterranean, Hitler can never be sure that his agents and his dupes in Vichy can really compel the French empire to obey his orders and serve him effectively. But if he can drive the British out of the Mediterranean, he can capture the French Navy, and he can establish himself in force in the French ports on the Atlantic.

At the same time, if he drives the British out of the Mediterranean, he makes what is left of the Italian Navy—and there is a good deal left—available for commerce raiding in the Atlantic or in the Indian Ocean. Finally, if he drives the British out of the Mediterranean, takes Suez and the entrance to the Red Sea, he may persuade Japan to attack Singapore from the east while he threatens to attack it from the west.

This general strategical plan has a very fair prospect of success if the British have to fight alone both in the Atlantic and in the Mediterranean. Their naval forces and their merchant shipping are not sufficient to serve the British Isles and the Middle East and the Far East. Undoubtedly the residue of truth in all the rumors that have been spread abroad recently is that unless the British know promptly whether we are going to intervene in the Atlantic, they may have to take the very grave decision of concentrating their forces for the final defense of the British Isles. If the British did not have to take this decision, there is no doubt whatever that the French empire would go over lock, stock, and barrel to Hitler, and with it Spain and Portugal. After that, and with Japan more than ever incited to action, the protection of the Western Hemisphere would be for us a desperate defensive.

The success of this campaign depends upon a gamble—but a very sound gamble from Hitler's point of view—that we shall not use our naval power to defeat it before it is too late. The British are not yet driven out of the Mediterranean, the French empire is not yet joined to the Axis, the French nation is not yet the ally of Nazism. The combined sea power of Britain and the United States is still greatly superior to that which Hitler can muster; it is quite capable of winning the battle of the Atlantic not only in the sense of seeing that munitions are delivered to Britain but in the larger sense of seeing to it that Hitler does not get the French, the Spanish, the Portuguese bases and the French fleet and the use of the Italian fleet. The combined naval power of Britain and America is sufficient now to hold the control of the Atlantic and keep the Axis landlocked in Europe. But if the British have to give up the Mediterranean, and the French empire and fleet are captured, the situation will be very serious indeed.

What is happening to France is a conclusive demonstration of what the defeat of Britain would mean to the United States.

Those Americans who innocently advise the British to make peace with Hitler ought to realize from the example of France that what they are advocating is something that is a deadly danger to America. For the only kind of British government that can make peace with Hitler is a British government on the Vichy model, and such a government could only hope to get concession from a victorious Hitler if it collaborated with him against the last free government left on earth. Since the Western Hemisphere is the greatest prize of empire that there is, it is obvious that the collaboration of Hitler with a British Darlan must be carried out at the expense of the Americas.

MOULTRIE LISTED AMONG COUNTIES WITH SURPLUS CORN SUPPLIES

Moultrie is one of the 37 "surplus" counties of the state in point of prospective corn supplies available for feed May 1 to October 1, according to survey results announced last week by the U. I. agricultural extension. Farm advisers throughout Illinois cooperated with the University in classifying the counties.

By facilitating the movement of surplus corn into deficit areas, the survey was designed to further the national "food for defense" programs. With present supported prices, the more rapidly some of the available corn can be converted into needed livestock and dairy products.

The 37 counties with plenty of corn for other areas in the state are: Bureau, Cass, Champaign, Christian, Coles, DeKalb, DeWitt, Douglas, Ford, Grundy, Henderson, Iroquois, Kankakee, Kendall, Knox, LaSalle, Lee, Livingston, Logan, McDonough, McLean, Macon, Marshall, Mason, Menard, Mercer, Moultrie, Piatt, Putnam, Sangamon, Stark, Tazewell, Vermilion, Warren, Whiteside, Will and Woodford.

The 18 counties with "ample" supplies will have local surplus and deficit areas, but no great amount of corn available for long-distance shipping.

There are 28 counties with "deficit" supplies, and 19 with "marginal" supplies—indicating that the needs for feed and the supplies are almost equal.

In order to facilitate the movement of surplus corn into counties and areas where it is needed, officials have supplied all counties with instructions regarding the procedure for redeeming corn under government loan and for selling corn by the CCC from steel bins and local elevators.

'Round The Square

Perhaps one of the most interesting trips of the week was spent with an insurance adjuster for crop damages and losses . . . he was adjusting a loss for one of the farmers near here who had been damaged in the recent hail storm.

One wonders just what an adjuster would do here in the off season . . . that is when there are no crops out that could be damaged . . . this man works for several companies and travels with the seasons . . . cotton in the south . . . citrus fruits in the south and works north as the seasons progress . . . he is now working in the corn, wheat, oats and bean crops of this territory and will later go on north . . .

It is interesting to watch these men work . . . all are well trained having attended agricultural schools and experimental stations that are maintained by the different states. After a loss has been reported to the companies the local agents call for an adjuster. He goes to the field and if it happens to be wheat he will look for stalks that have been damaged by hail . . . he discovers this by a very simple test . . . any stalk of wheat that has been damaged by hail will hold erect if pulled out straight . . . if the break in the stalk has been caused by fly or other causes it will not straighten out and stand erect . . . he stated that this test never fails . . . he takes counts from the sides of the field and from the middle in order that an average count will be made . . . then one hundred stalks are inspected to determine the percentage of damage that has been occurred . . . the adjuster can also determine just how much damage there is by fly, rust or smut.

Different tactics are used on the corn fields . . . there are stalk damage and leaf damage. This is rather important because a great deal of damage can be done to the leaves without definitely injuring the yield. The adjuster explained that each leaf has a definite purpose in the growing process. As the plant matures the leaves serve to pull up a part of the plant . . . similar to the action of a telescope. In the stalk, from the time of the first young shoot to almost maturity the ear of corn is hidden . . . and at certain intervals it will shoot out . . . so it is easily seen that any damage to the stalk will cause damage to the ear of corn and to the yield . . . this is one of the most complicated and interesting processes in the life history of the corn plant . . . there can also be damage to the silks . . . if they are damaged too before they have served their purpose of pollination then there will be reduction to the yield.

He further explained that the hardest loss to determine is in beans . . . beans can be torn down to the ground level and in a short time new shoots will appear at the level of the ground . . . he stated that he had seen fields that appeared completely destroyed and later they would grow and there would be a good crop from that field . . . although it was a very complicated but interesting trip to the fields.

NO DEDUCTIONS FOR AAA SOYBEAN OVER-PRODUCTION

Farmers who have planted more soybeans than they harvested for grain last year will be able to harvest their additional acreage without AAA payment deduction, according to a new ruling explained by Earle H. Cruik, chairman of the Moultrie County Agricultural Conservation Committee.

This change has been made in the AAA program to avoid undue depletion of vegetable oil stocks and to insure ample supplies for defense as well as normal requirements. The new ruling does not permit the classification of all soybeans for grain as non-depleting. In making the 1941 classification, the acreage of soybeans harvested in 1940 will be classified as depleting. The County Committee, however, can set a different acreage if the 1940 acreage is not representative. Any acreage above the 1940 harvested acreage will not be counted against the general soil depleting allotment.

For example, a farmer harvested 20 acres of soybeans for grain in 1940 and planted 30 acres this year. Twenty of his 30 acres will be counted as soil depleting. He may harvest the additional 10 acres without payment deduction. The purpose of the change is to permit harvesting soybeans as grain without penalty. The extra soybeans which the farmer ordinarily would have had to cut as hay or plow under to obtain full payment need not be cut for hay or plowed under this year.

Sullivan Guards To Get Three Day Pass In July

Camp Forrest, Tenn. June 17, 1941

Dear Glen:

I think that the first thing that I should do is to apologize for not writing last week. I don't know whether anyone will believe me or not but I just didn't get time.

Last week was really a busy one we went on two hikes and stayed over night on one of them. On last Monday, June 9, we were awakened at 5:15 on an alert call or a call to arms. It was a practice to see how fast we could move out if the time came when we had to move on a minute's notice. It was surprising how quickly all of the men were ready to move out with full packs and all field equipment.

We got up and dressed, ate breakfast, rolled packs and were ready to go in a little more than half an hour so you can imagine how everyone had to pitch in. We hiked for about six miles and stayed out for dinner. There was also a field inspection after we arrived at the bivouac or camping area. We started back as soon as we ate and rolled our packs. It really was a good experience and now we know what to expect the next time something like this happens.

We went on another hike on Friday of last week and again covered around four or five miles. I guess they are just getting us toughened up for the big maneuver which starts sometime the last of July or the first of August.

We are expecting another alert call this week and it wouldn't surprise me if it came tonight or early in the morning for we are scheduled for a hike tomorrow and that would be as good a way as any to get us started. All of the fellows have their packs rolled this time for they know what to expect.

Well from what we know so far half of each organization will be permitted to visit home over the Fourth of July for a three day period. Their three day pass will start on Thursday evening as far as is known. It's too bad that all of the fellows from Sullivan cannot come home at one time for those left behind will be awfully disappointed and I don't blame them. All of us have our fingers crossed that we will be one of the one-half.

We have one consolation though and that is that those that do not get to go home on the Fourth will get to go for three days the week after so all will get to visit home before the big maneuvers start.

We had some more visitors this week and we sure were glad to see them. They were Mr. Moon and girl friend and Paul Moon's girl friend. I do not know their names so hope that they will pardon me for this time anyway. They were all from Bethany. Besides these there were my folks, Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Holzmueller and daughter Elsie and Mike Conlin, my sister's boy friend. I sure was surprised to see the folks on Friday evening for I did not expect them until Saturday morning. I can't say that I wasn't glad to see them there earlier than expected though.

Well, Glen and all, I guess I will close and call it a day for I am pretty tired after yesterday. Will try and write again next week.

Oscar W. Holzmueller.

"Too Many Girls" Begins on June 23 At Opera

The gay capers which were paced by catchy Rodgers-Hart tunes to give New York's Broadway one of its outstanding musical plays, "Too Many Girls," will be seen on a St. Louis stage for the first time at the open-air Municipal Opera in Forest park, week beginning Monday night, June 23, through Sunday, June 29.

"Too Many Girls" has brought to the stage and screen the campus of dear old Pottawatomie College of Stop Gap, New Mexico. It also brought additional fame to the song and lyric writers of such hits as "The Connecticut Yankee," "I Married An Angel," "On Your Toes," "The Boys From Syracuse," "Babes in Arms" and "Pal Joey."

Some of the lilting numbers are the peppy title song; a pair of delightful love tunes, "Nearer and Nearer," "Love Never Went to College"; fiery "Spic and Spanish"; romantic "I Didn't Know What Time It Was," and the hilarious "Give It Back to the Indians."

The plot centers around a madcap heiress and her four-man bodyguards, a quartet of all-American football stars, who keep under cover after being hired by the girl's father to keep her out of trouble while she attends his old alma mater, Pottawatomie. But trouble ensues when one of pseudo detectives falls in love with the client's daughter to provide plenty of deep abdominal guffaws.

For youth, gaiety, and song in typical carefree college atmosphere, the plot of "Too Many Girls" is an exact carbon copy.

Municipal Opera has engaged a world of youthful talent for the principal roles, all popular on either the screen or stage. Margaret Adams, who has sung in musical shows in New York and Australia, will have as her first Municipal Opera engagement the leading feminine role of the heiress in "Too Many Girls."

Other singing, dancing and comedy stars of wide fame who are coming to the outdoor theater for the first time are Frankie Thomas, Joan Edwards, Don Harden, Betty Bruce, Jack Williams, Rico de Sierra. The regulars in the cast will be Donald Burr, Maryon Dale, Joseph Macaulay, Ruth Urban and Jack Donohue.

The sparkling, collegiate musical play also will provide a feast of sensational dancing by chorus and principals in the modern tempo, including an authentic conga.

The week of June 30 will present Rudolf Frimco's "Firefly" with Rosemarie Brancato returning for the role of Nina.

3-C Enrollees Receive Defense Training

James J. McEntee, Director of the Civilian Conservation Corps, today announced that a recent survey disclosed that on May 1 approximately 7,893 young men and war veterans enrolled in Illinois CCC camps were receiving training related directly or indirectly to national defense.

He stated that all junior enrollees receive job training and basic CCC training which is of the greatest value to them whether they are called to duty under the Selective Service law or obtain jobs in national defense industries. The job training includes truck driving, tractor operation, surveying, drafting, etc.

Of the 7,893 men enrolled in the 29 Illinois camps in April, 798 were taking special national defense vocational training courses in camp or in nearby trade schools in cooperation with state vocational training authorities. Another 40 men were taking full-time vocational courses at the CCC cooks and bakers school and the central motor repair shop located in the state.

"All enrollees in the Illinois camps are receiving training of marked value in national defense," Mr. McEntee said. "Those taking the vocational courses also receive training while working on the regular CCC projects. All of them likewise take a required first-aid program and junior enrollees take daily setting up exercises to improve their posture and to strengthen muscles that are not developed in the course of ordinary work."

"They have all learned something about living in military camp surroundings, and daily contact with men of widely varied temperaments."

"The specific objective of the CCC training plan is to build strong, healthy bodies, to train men to work, live and play together, to teach good work habits, to help enrollees to discover his particular occupational talents, and to teach young men to become responsible citizens."

"Many of the vocational courses now expanded as part of the national defense training program have been given for years in the CCC, either on the work projects, or in after-work classes. This training continues to be carried on."

A cooks and bakers school is operated at Decatur, Illinois, with an enrollment of 25 men selected from camps in the area. Courses cover practical kitchen work, mess management, menu planning, food purchasing and bookkeeping necessary for mess stewardship.

The CCC central motor repair shop at Springfield has 6 enrolled mechanics. They work with skill, receiving practical experience in all types of automotive maintenance and repair. This includes automotive assembly and disassembly, motor repair, ignition, fuel systems, body and chassis repair, use and care of tools, operation of lathes and drills, battery work, and store-room operation.

Enrollees in 24 of the 29 Illinois camps are studying national defense vocational subjects in 32 individual classes. The subjects are auto mechanics, metalwork, electricity and woodworking. The camps offering national defense training vocational courses and the number of enrollees are listed on the following chart:

Home Heating Study Expanded at U. of I.

Because of pioneering research started nearly 25 years ago at the University of Illinois, thousands of American homes are heated more efficiently and economically today. Homes of the future will be even more comfortable because the research not only is continuing, but is being expanded.

It is no arm-chair theorizing. Nor is it done with models. Heating plants in homes are studied in winter operation. Equipment is studied in the laboratory under controlled conditions. Summer research is preparing the way for expansion of winter heating into year-around home air conditioning by the addition of summer cooling.

Study of warm-air heating has gone on every winter since 1924 in a typical 10-room frame house, the university-operated Research Residence, erected at the campus by the National Warm Air Heating and Air Conditioning association.

The study of steam and hot-water heating of small homes was given impetus during the winter when a typical six-room brick veneer modern small home was built at the university by the Institute of Boiler and Radiator Manufacturers.

26 Business Researches At U. of I. Listed by U. S.

Twenty-six business research projects recently completed or now under way at the University of Illinois College of Commerce are listed in the first U. S. Department of Commerce survey of such university activities throughout the nation.

The university's business research projects are listed in 15 of the 28 fields into which the survey is divided. The number of fields is exceeded only by the University of California, and equalled only by the University of Pennsylvania and Duke University.

Of the 26 University of Illinois projects, 22 were scheduled to be completed by the end of 1940. Fifteen of the projects are those of faculty members, and 11 those of graduate students.

Congressional Trends

BY RALPH YOUNG
Supplied through courtesy of Congressman William H. Wheat 19th District, Illinois

United States' participation in the European war seems to have moved into the dreaded "shooting" phase, despite the fact that the American public is still overwhelmingly against involvement to that extent.

The sinking of the American freighter Robin Moor midway between Africa and South America by an Italian or German submarine, with the probable loss of 35 passengers and crew members, has stirred up much additional war sentiment in administration circles. It is possible that when all the facts are learned about this "incident", it may prove to be a parallel case to the sinking of the Lusitania and many other American ships by German unrestricted submarine warfare and which hailed our entry into World War 1 on April 6, 1917.

Two other naval contacts one of which involved a form of "shooting" have also been reported by a couple newspaper columnists high in FDR's confidence. One involved the dropping of three depth bombs at or near a German submarine in the North Atlantic and the other was when one of our patrol ships happened to get in the line of fire between German and British surface craft. These "incidents" were reported by Joe Alsop and Robert Kitner. Alsop is Mr. Roosevelt's cousin and both lads almost always are able to scoop other Washington newsmen for that reason. Incidentally, it was not revealed what happened to the German submarine—whether the depth charges got it or not.

These three "incidents" may be sufficient to cause the administration to either demand a regular declaration of war against the Axis or enter into an undeclared one. Congress does not know what the administration's reaction is going to be, but fears the worst. Its long been hinted that FDR has only been waiting for an excuse of this sort for full and complete military and naval alliance with Great Britain.

Public Wants No War
Aside from a relatively small group in Congress and certain factions elsewhere, there is no popular demand for war in this country. If anything sentiment of the general public against war is stronger now than ever before.

This is not only disclosed by all the leading national polls of public opinion, but by the huge volume of mail members of Congress are receiving from their home districts urging them to use all their efforts to keep the country out of war, or at least the shooting phase of it.

On the other hand the administration seems more determined than ever to speed more and more aid to Britain regardless of risks encountered. Thus both the administration and the public are torn between incompatible desires. Almost everyone wants to see the dictators defeated.

Meanwhile, the administration apparently believes it was retained in power by the electorate last November mostly because of its promised foreign policy to keep us out of war which was approved by the majority of the people or at least a majority of those who voted. In-as-much as that foreign policy has changed and the term, "short of war" is no longer used, it seems inclined to go the limit in helping defeat the Axis powers, and of course, the ultimate limit can mean only one thing—full military and naval collaboration with the British.

We apparently have the naval participation now and it appears the military partnership is in the making for two divisions (one army and one marine) have been given priority on becoming fully equipped with our newest and latest weapons. It is surmised here that these two divisions are being prepared for action outside the United States, Martinique and the Cape Verde Islands are mentioned as the possible destination of these troops. Both are deemed highly dangerous to the security of this country in the light of recent diplomatic events.

Congress feels it is setting on a powder keg not knowing what minute the fuse will be touched off. That is the basic reason why there was only one dissenting vote in the House last week against the $9,800,000,000 appropriation for the army's activities in the fiscal year 1942. Incidentally, the one member that voted against the appropriation is a member of the American Labor party and represents a district in New York City.

Commodity Prices Advance
The rising trend in market prices of commodities including livestock and grains, particularly corn and hogs, to the best levels in four years is highly encouraging to mid-west farmers, but rather discouraging to wage earner consumers of those products. With live hogs well above the $9 level on the Chicago market and the country station price on corn standing around 65 to 70 cents per bushel, a profitable ration has again been established.

Based on Chicago prices for corn and hogs the feeding ration now stands a little better than 12 to 1; that is, 12 bushels of corn have about an equal money value to 100 pounds of live hog. Farmers generally figure they can make a little money on a 10 to 1 ration, but of course, 12 to 1 is far better.

In contrast to its program of a few years ago of killing off 5,000,000 little pigs when millions were going hungry, the department of agriculture is now urging farmers to raise more hogs on the theory we will not only have to feed ourselves more abundantly but England too. There is plenty of corn to do this.

The Commodity Credit Corporation owns around 51,000,000 bushels of corn in terminal and sub-terminal storage, 34,000,000 bushels in country elevators and 125,000,000 in steel bins. Besides that there is around 300,000,000 bushels stored on farms under government loans from the 1938, 1939 and 1940 crops which can be taken out of seal at between 61 and 65 cents per bushel.

All told there is approximately 500,000,000 bushels of old corn under government ownership or loan available for immediate feeding of livestock. And with at least fair prospects for the oncoming crop all signs point to adequate corn supplies for feeding operations in the corn belt for at least the next 12 months and probably longer.

During the past few weeks the government has purchased 140,000,000 pounds of lard and 130,000,000 of pork products, exclusive of other large purchases for the army and navy. These lard and pork purchases were distributed to state relief organizations, the Red Cross and the British. That put quite a dent in cold storage stocks and indications are they will soon be still further reduced.

All this means that the corn belt farmer is at least beginning to get something out of the defense program besides taxes. However, his profits are apt to prove transitory for the administration has said that no one is going to get rich out of the defense program, and if they do happen to get away with any big money they'll not keep it long when the tax man finds it out.

It would seem wise in the face of that announced policy of the certainty that next year's taxes are going to be increased tremendously for farmers to proceed cautiously. It does not appear to be good business for farmers to expand their corn and livestock production too much—at least not to the extent they did during and after the last world war.

HIT ANSWERS DEMAND FOR COMEDY!

As the girl who knows all the answers, beautiful Joan Bennett comes to the Grand Theatre screen on Wednesday and Thursday, June 25-26 with Franchot Tone in Columbia's newest love-and-laugh farce, "She Knew All the Answers." Proving that Wall Street may know its stocks and blondes but a brunette like Joan Bennett is something else again. The hectic new hit was directed by Richard Wallace from a popular magazine story by June Allen. Joan Hubbard, Eve Arden and William Tracy are important members of the supporting cast.

Miss Bennett appears as a night club performer who, literally and figuratively, goes to work on Wall Street. Determined to win a letter of recommendation from the broker-guardian of a millionaire playboy whom she is determined to marry, she talks her way into a job as switchboard operator in the financier's dignified offices. Knowing less than nothing about switchboards, she manages in practically no time at all to panic not only the office but the Stock Exchange as well!

Mr. Tone is seen as the all-work-and-no-playboy whose office is disrupted, whose conservative aplomb and impressive stock manipulations are completely smashed by the bewildered antics of the beautiful brunette. In "She Knew All the Answers," too, Tone is said to provide an engaging and delightful characterization as he slowly, inevitably, and hilariously moves from stiff-necked austerity to unconventional romance.

Hubbard appears as the playboy responsible for it all; Miss Arden is seen as Joan's wisecracking roommate, and young Tracy, in what is said to be his finest performance to date, is seen as the office boy who regards the new switchboard operator with unconcealed affection.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

FIRST JERUSALEM CONFERENCE ON WORLD MISSIONS

LESSON TEXT—Acts 15:6-21. GOLDEN TEXT—But we believe that through the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ we shall be saved, even as they.—Acts 15:11.

The conference on missions in Jerusalem was not the result of an appeal to a ruling church organization for a decision, but rather a gathering of the believers from Antioch with those in Jerusalem to confer regarding a serious difference of opinion. The earliest converts to Christianity were Jews, who had come by the way of Judaism into their new faith in Christ. But now, through the preaching of Paul and Barnabas, certain Gentiles had believed in Christ. Their new-found joy was soon clouded by a theological problem. Certain teachers from Judea (Acts 15:1) declared that the Gentiles were not saved unless they came into the Christian faith the way of the fulfillment of the Jewish law. Paul and Barnabas at once realized that this was

I. The Vital Question—Is Salvation by Grace or Works? (vv. 7-11; see also vv. 1-5).

Paul and his fellow workers had rightly apprehended God's plan of salvation apart from works of the law. Paul realized that the entire future of the gospel ministry was in a sense dependent on the solution of this problem. Christianity is the only religious faith in the world that presents justification by grace as the way of redemption; all others follow (more or less) the path of salvation by works.

The question now was: Shall works of the law be mingled with grace—can Jesus Christ alone save men, or is salvation through Jesus Christ plus something else?

How was such a serious question to be settled? Should argument and strife be permitted to go on until the stronger party prevailed? Better judgment indicated the desirability of a friendly discussion and a joint decision with the believers at Jerusalem. This was

II. The Christian Solution—Council Rather Than Controversy (vv. 6, 7, 12-18).

There may be times when it becomes the duty of the Christian worker to take an uncompromising stand for the truth of God and refuse to be moved, come what may. But certainly there should be no such spirit in dealing with differing interpretations of Scripture on the part of sincere and earnest Christian brethren. How much would be gained in the Church today if, instead of magnifying differences and permitting personal desires and ambitions to intervene, men were willing to sit down in the spirit of Christ around the tables of Christian council and brotherhood, presided over and directed by the Holy Spirit (see Acts 15:28).

Observe the full measure of liberty in discussion, the attentive listening to the messages of the brethren. Note also that there were no secret sessions of a "steering committee" and no "steamroller" tactics.

The whole question was honestly and carefully considered by the council at Jerusalem, with the result that there was a vindication of the preachers of God's grace.

James finally spoke, giving the conclusion to which the Holy Spirit had led the conference (see v. 28). Here for all the future we have

III. The God-Given Answer—Salvation Is by Grace (vv. 19-21; see also vv. 22-35).

In his epistle to the Ephesians (Eph. 2:8, 9), Paul succinctly states this truth: "By grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God: not of works, lest any man should boast." The teaching of Scripture is very plain on this point, and we do well to receive it in all its beauty and grace.

Let us observe, however, that the decision in Jerusalem, while it laid no further burden on these Gentile believers (v. 28), did quite properly require of them that, as those who had been saved by grace, they must "walk in newness of life" (Rom. 6:4) which they had in Christ. Paul had the same thought in mind when he supplemented Ephesians 2:8 and 9 with verse 10, declaring that God has ordained that we should walk "in good works."

There are two opposite tendencies (both of which are wrong) in this matter, which consistently hurt the Christian church. The one which we have already stressed tries to mix works with grace, making salvation either entirely or partially by works. Sad to say, some who have sought to avoid this error have gone to the opposite extreme and have done violence to God's plan of salvation by making "grace an excuse for sin, using their freedom from law as a justification of lawlessness. We are God's "workmanship," created in Christ Jesus unto good works" (Eph. 2:10).

Bradford-Lane Wedding Held At Oregon Church

When Miss Mildred Bradford of Oregon went to the altar of the Methodist church in Oregon Saturday at 4 o'clock to become the bride of Charles K. Lane, farm foreman for the California Packing corporation at Rochelle, she wore a wedding dress of white starched chiffon, chenille embroidered in leaf design and fashioned with a sweetheart neckline, long sleeves, and a long train.

The bride is the elder of the Clare Bradfords' two daughters, and her father gave her in marriage. The Reverend Paul E. Turk read the service in which Miss Bradford exchanged marriage vows with the son of C. A. Lane of Sullivan.

Miss Bradford's bridal veil fell to fingertip length from a tiara of seed pearls. She carried a white Bible, with stephanotis florets knotted in the shower of white satin ribbons. Her pearl necklace was a gift from her bridegroom.

Rainbow Colors
The bride's attendants were dressed in chiffon and lace dresses in rainbow colors, designed with basque waists and full skirts. Miss Jane Bradford, as her sister's maid of honor, chose pink and carried a colonial bouquet of flowers to match her gown.

The bridesmaids, the Misses Helen Thomas of Mt. Morris and Romona Butler, were attired in yellow and blue, respectively. Their sweethearts' bouquets with net blushers, and their colonial bouquets matched their dresses.

Willard Schweitzer of DeKalb served Mr. Lane as best man. Ushers were Loren and LaVerne Bradford, brothers of the bride, Elmer Leeds, cousin of the bridegroom and Orris Lane, brother of the groom.

Palms, white gladioli and white tapers decorated the altar for the single ring ceremony. Before the ceremony, the Misses Louise and Wilma Lane, sisters of the bridegroom played a 15-minute prelude on the organ and piano. Their recital included Godard's "Berceuse," Grieg's "Ich Liebe Dich," Bohn's "Calm as the Night," D'Hardelot's "Because" and Cadman's "At Dawning." The bride's brother, Richard Bradford, sang as solos, De Koven's "O Promise Me" and "I Love You Truly," (Carry Jacobs Bond). The traditional "Bridal Chorus" from Wagner's "Lohengrin" announced the approach of the bridal party, and the Franz-Liszt "Liebestraum" was played softly during the ceremony.

Reception at Church
At the reception in the church parlors, following the ceremony, the tea table was decorated with flowers in rainbow colors and white tapers in crystal holders. Mrs. Carl Anderson of Oregon, and Mrs. G. S. Stephens of St. Paul, Minn., aunt of the bride, poured. The three-tiered wedding cake was served from a side table by Mrs. Paul Turk.

After the reception, Mr. Lane and his bride left on a short motor trip. For traveling the new Mrs. Lane wore a redingote ensemble of brown cable net with white trim and brown and white accessories.

Mrs. Lane formerly attended the Aledo schools, and was graduated from Oregon high school. In 1940, she was graduated from Northern Illinois State Teachers' college at DeKalb, and for the past year, has been teaching home economics in the Malta high school.

Mr. Lane was graduated from Sullivan high school, received his bachelor of science degree from the University of Illinois four years ago, and is now employed as farm foreman for the California Packing corporation midwest division in Rochelle.

After June 15, the couple will be at home at 327 13th street, Rochelle.
