OFFICE IN COURT BLDG.

SUPREME COURT

SHOULD DO NOT UP LIVING EVEN AS RECORD THIS TERM

The supreme court of the United States began its October term at Washington last Monday. There are a total of 30 cases, the biggest burden of litigation it has ever experienced.

The first cases taken up related to the interstate commerce act. One, the litigation over the Chicago terminal business, is styled the "Interstate Commerce Commission vs The Chicago Great Western Railroad Co. The question at issue is the constitutionality of an order by the commission, directing a reduction in the charge made on cars entering Chicago terminal. A similar case is up from St. Louis.

The Southern Pacific case in which the main point is the fixing of power of the Interstate Commerce Commission. The road maintaining that an order requiring the Southern Pacific and Oregon and California to reduce their rates in the Willamette valley was void in that the Hepburn law delegated legislative and judicial authority forbidden by the constitution. This was certified from the circuit court of the northern district of California. A case involving the question is docketed from Missouri.

A case attempting to prevent an alleged combine in tobacco cases where the combine's total capitalization is nearly $400,000,000, are interesting cases and the most important precedents ever set by the government under the Sherman anti-trust law.

The famous Shipp case, the litigation arising from the lynching of a negro rapist, at Chattanooga after his execution had been stayed by an order of the U. S. supreme court.

Among the other cases are the "Lone Wolf" case of Oklahoma in connection with the Indian lands.

Revival to be Continued

The special meetings at the Christian church are to be continued to follow the national convention of the Christian churches at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania. Evangelists Herrington and wife cannot return on account of other engagements, but Mrs. J. E. Powell of Wabash, Ind., one of the leading singers of the Christian brotherhood, will be here to assist the pastor, J. W. Walters. The meetings will be continued Sunday, October 24.

NOTICE TO PUBLIC

Leaves are forbidden to be burned inside of the city limits after sundown. By order of H. C. SHIREY, Mayor. 41-2 J. F. LAWSON, Health Officer.

ORPHANS REMOVED

SHELBYVILLE WILL HAVE BUILDING WHICH WILL BE FOR ORPHANS

Shelbyville, Ill., Oct. 12.—The Middlesworth Orphan's Home, a branch of the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society, established in the city when Abram Middlesworth donated his residence for that purpose ten years ago, is to be sold, and discontinued at this point.

A. B. Juby of Potomac, Vermillion county, has decided 450 acres of farmland worth $150 an acre and a new building worth $10,000 on condition that the society, of which Henry W. Thurston is superintendent, erects another cottage. To secure these two new buildings, as well as an endowment of $60,000. Mr. Middlesworth has given his consent to the sale of the Shelbyville property, allowing the proceeds to be used toward the building of the new cottage at Potomac.

The property here consists of four acres of land within the city limits, a larger building, and a smaller cottage. Since the home was established here an average of thirty-five boys have been cared for, temporarily being taken in and kept until good homes could be procured for them.

The removal of the institution from the city will be a matter of regret to hundreds who have been interested in it.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM D. JONES

William D. Jones died in St. Louis Monday of a wound inflicted by the shaft of a buggy.

October 31 Mr. Jones was walking across a street in St. Louis, when some fellows, driving a rapid motor against him, striking him in the side with a buggy shaft, the shaft went through the wall of the chest into the lung. He lived, but in agony, until Monday, October 11, when he died.

Mr. Jones was 65 years old and leaves a wife and seven children. He was a veteran, a member of the 21st Illinois. Mr. Jones was well known here, as he had spent most of his life in this county. He is survived by a brother, G. V. Jones, and sister, Miss Margaret Jones of Sullivan, an only sister in Wichita, Kansas, besides a number of other relatives in the county. Mrs. Frank Shipman and Harry Jones of this place attended the funeral in St. Louis, Wednesday.

A JAPANESE PRODUCTION.

Several months ago Ed Steele had a picture taken of his little son who at that time was four months of age. The child was dressed in boy's attire and standing by a medicine case on the porch, near was a box upside down on which was some printing. Mrs. Steele was crouched behind the case holding the child in position, her clothing just making a line at one end of the case.

This picture, which contains other interesting features, was placed on post cards. Mr. Steele mailed one to his brother who is in the U. S. navy near Tokio, Japan. On receiving the card, his brother took it to some Japanese artists and had an enlarged picture near two feet square made from it, and mailed to his brother in Sullivan. The picture is very interesting and attractive. It hardly seems possible that such a production could have been obtained from a post card, and a poor photograph at that.

Halloween Social

The members of Rhoda Revue lodge No. 167, O. O. F. will give a masquerade Halloween social Friday, October 29, to their friends, at their hall in the I. O. O. F. building. A prize will be given the best disguised person present. Pumpkin pie, doughnuts and coffee will be served. Everyone cordial y invited. Admission twenty-five cents.

Wagoner Church

Rev. M. B. Moffitt of Paris, Ill., will conduct services at the Wagoner church, Saturday at 2:30 p. m. and Sunday following at 11 a. m.

DELIVERY REFUSED

SHELBYVILLE WILL HAVE BUILDING WHICH WILL BE FOR ORPHANS

Shelbyville, Ill., Oct. 12.—Another move in the complicated broomcorn deal between S. J. Lilly of Findlay and the Merkle-Wiley Broomcorn Company, was made Saturday, when Oscar T. Merkle, of Paris, president of the company which purchased the brush of Lilly some weeks ago, reprieved the broomcorn, which consists of eighty acres, and is valued at about $3,500, from Mr. Lilly and J. B. Dazey.

Dazey, who is president of the Findlay National bank, got into the deal October 5, when Lilly gave him a mortgage on the brush, which was still in the field. Two days later the mortgage was foreclosed, and the reprieve suit of Saturday was the next move.

The trouble started some weeks ago, when an agent of the Merkle-Wiley company contracted for the brush, giving Mr. Lilly a check to bid the bargain, at the latter's request. Immediate presentation of the check at the bank disclosed the fact that the agent had as yet made no provision for paying it, and it is said that Lilly found in this an excuse to repudiate the contract, having learned that broom corn was selling at a higher price than he had asked for his crop.

HARD TIME SOCIAL.

Miss Lucy Williams gave a Hard Time social to about twenty of her friends at the home of Geo. A. Sentel Wednesday evening. Some of the number must have had a hard time dancing and romping about for cast off and discarded garments.

Miss Ida McClure won first prize in the contest.

The evening was spent in laying games, social chat, etc. Refreshments, consisting of sandwiches, coffee, pickles, doughnuts, fruits and candies were served.

Those present enjoyed the occasion very much.

MORE NEW HOUSES

Thursday Hagerman & Harshman laid the foundation for a two-story, five room brick, modern residence for L. R. Harshman. It is on the Harmonic Home road, just east of George Miller's residence.

They also laid the foundation of a one and one-half, eight room house on the same day for Mrs. Sarah Cain. It is built on the south end of her lots in sunnyside, across the street from S. T. Fleming's. The property is rented.

The same carpenters will get Harvey Baugher's five room residence enclosed this week.

POULTRY SHOW.

The members of the poultry association are already getting busy to their poultry show which will be held sometime in January. They are going to make their exhibit on a ground floor, and are offering premiums that will be an inducement to poultry raisers to try for B-sides. A box of this kind will be a big advertisement for dealers and raisers of good birds.

GATEWAY BOB SEATTLE FAIR

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 12.—Charged with being in a conspiracy with some of their superiors to steal admission money, every gateman of the Alaska Yukon Pacific exposition was discharged Saturday. It is said $28,000 had been accumulated and placed in a bank to be divided later.

Miss Elizabeth Kern, who is teaching near Lake City, spent Sunday in Sullivan.

As the state has lost out in the case against J. C. Thomas on the sale of patent medicine, the attorneys have decided to let the other two cases stand until they appeal this one to the higher courts. Further action will be based on the verdict rendered there.

In the case in circuit court which Leoy Craig brought against Hancock to get pay for a load of watermelons which the latter rejected on account of the small size, the complainant was allowed $8.

"VANDA" EPIC AND THE GIBBS

The announcement that "Vanda" Enos and Her... appeared at the opera house, Wednesday, October 13, is one which has been well received around town and from the interest manifested at this time, it is safe to predict that the... will be the event of the season in our circles and an event long remembered by those who seek to be entertained by plays of unusual merit and by a program such as has been well received in all the large cities.

There is no really satisfactory attraction of this nature should you come to Sullivan often. The town is prepared to give the people and tourists that is going to be the... the most interesting, and the location of the city such as to be easily accessible for attractions of this calibre.

Miss Enos, who is well known to be the greatest violin player of the age, if not of all time, is supported by an exceptionally able company, which includes Lulu Estlin, soprano, Nina Marie Youman and Orline Derr. Miss Solomon is the same soprano who was heard in New York last season and who was well discussed at the time in Musician, the Saturday Evening Post and other publications.

The seats will go on sale with in the next day or two, and those who prefer the choice locations would do well to be on hand early.

Some who grow sunflowers for chickens advocate gathering the heads and thrashing off the seed and storing it for winter use.

Corn stalks on the ground over winter will decay more quickly than when allowed to stand and flat on the ground they will hold the soil from erosion on sloping or hilly land.

Save the painful process of dehorning by preventing the horns from growing upon the calves. This can be done by clipping the hair of the little knobs and applying a preventive.

In large gardens and on fine estates the fashion of the day runs to coloring—planting out broad masses of simple flowers where the carefully studied effect is intended to be in the so-called natural style.

In pruning raspberries first observe how many canes there are in the hill and cut out all over three or four. The number of main canes should be governed by their size and the number and strength of their laterals.

There are few farmers who could not profitably keep a few sheep. The difficulties that stand in the way can be easily overcome and it is well worth while to make the effort when one considers the benefits from sheep.

On one farm where pure bred poultry is the pride of the poultry yard and where the heavy laying strain is the prime object greater layers can be produced and the flock can still be among the top notchers as pure breeds.

Many varieties, especially of the south and have done well in the peach-growing sections of the north. Among these will readily be recalled Alberts, Thurber, Belle of Georgia and others. But quite as many of them have been disappointing.

A corn is too fattening to feed to the hens in any great quantity. It causes a large number of ailments, such as liver troubles and digestive derangements, resulting in loss and low egg yields. Gluten, meat, beet scraps, wheat bran and hulled oats should be fed regularly to promote health and egg production.

If at all possible, get the droves of pigs out on a field of clover or cowpeas. The hog by nature is a grazing animal, and it will make the most economical gains when allowed to forage for a part of its living. Hogging of peas and clover also has the advantage of fertilizing the land and spreading it evenly over the surface.

The earlier ground is plowed for fall wheat the better, as it allows more time for the soil to settle before seeding time. Soil in which wheat and all other grasses are sown must be worked down very fine and compact in order that a large per cent of the seeds may germinate.

There is no difference in the whipping of small cows and large ones. When any difference is experienced it is due to other factors and not the method of getting the cream. Cream for whipping purposes should contain at least 20 per cent butter fat. The best results are obtained with cream containing 25 to 40 per cent butter fat.

THE B-HORROROUS TRIP
A short time ago a newspaper patch related that a citizen of...

It is something out of the ordinary for people to choose the tracks or the yards of railways as lodgings. And yet the incident was not so very exceptional.

"Oh, yes there is," answered the railway president. "There is something a great deal more dangerous. That is trespassing on a railway's property. It I remember correctly over ten people are killed while trespassing on the property of American railways to one that is killed while riding on the trains."

The merchant thought this could not be correct. The newspapers, he remarked, constantly were filled with harrowing stories of wrecks in which numerous travelers lost their lives.

"Does anyone appear as this man's counsel?" asked the judge.

There was a silence when he had finished, until, with lips tightly pressed together, a look of strange intelligence blended with a haughty reserve upon the handsome features, a young man stepped forward with a firm tread and kindly eye to plead for the erring friendless.

He was a stranger, but at the first sentence there was silence. The splendor of his genius entranced, convinced.

The man who could find a friend was acquitted.

"May God bless you, sir," he said.

"I want no thanks," replied the stranger.

"I believe you are unknown to me."

"Man, I will refresh your memory. Twenty years ago this day you struck a broken hearted little boy away from his dear mother's coffin. I was that boy."

The man turned livid.

"Have you rescued me then to take my life?"

"No; I have a sweeter revenge, I have saved the life of a man whose brutality has rankled in my breast for the last twenty years. Go, then, and remember the tears of a friendless child."

The man bowed his head in shame and went from the presence of magnanimity as grand to him as it was incomprehensible.

The Family Had no Guest Chamber
Some years ago, on a broiling, stifling August day, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, president of the International Woman Suffrage Alliance was left of a South Dakota train at a siding where there wasn't even a station—just a platform. She was the only person on the platform.

After a while a lumber wagon drove up, and a countless man asked if she were the speaker. He was a neighbor of the people who were going to entertain her, and had come after her as an accompanist to them.

They drove seven miles in the pariah dust without a canopy between them and the smothering sun. The house where she was to be entertained consisted of one room on the ground floor and a half-story containing a chamber under the eaves. When she arrived there was no one there. The wife and four children were at work with the husband and the hired man in the fields. She had been sent to that family to be entertained because it was the most prosperous in the neighborhood; the only one prosperous enough to keep a hired man.

For dinner that night they had bread, watermelon, a white and dreadful butter and a weak and dreadful tea; and from the artless remarks of the children the visitor realized that the tea and butter had been added in her honor. After supper the man went to bed, but the woman harnessed a span to the farm wagon and drove the speaker, the school-teacher and the four children five miles through black-out night to the little country school house where Mrs. Catt asked the men to let the women vote.

When they reached home again the lecturer was ushered into the one bedroom. There were four beds in it under the eaves. In two of them slept the four children, in the other the parents, and the fourth was to be occupied by the visitor and the teacher who boarded there.

THE B-HORROROUS TRIP

A short time ago a newspaper patch related that a citizen of...

It is something out of the ordinary for people to choose the tracks or the yards of railways as lodgings. And yet the incident was not so very exceptional.

"Oh, yes there is," answered the railway president. "There is something a great deal more dangerous. That is trespassing on a railway's property. It I remember correctly over ten people are killed while trespassing on the property of American railways to one that is killed while riding on the trains."

The merchant thought this could not be correct. The newspapers, he remarked, constantly were filled with harrowing stories of wrecks in which numerous travelers lost their lives.

"Does anyone appear as this man's counsel?" asked the judge.

There was a silence when he had finished, until, with lips tightly pressed together, a look of strange intelligence blended with a haughty reserve upon the handsome features, a young man stepped forward with a firm tread and kindly eye to plead for the erring friendless.

He was a stranger, but at the first sentence there was silence. The splendor of his genius entranced, convinced.

The man who could find a friend was acquitted.

"May God bless you, sir," he said.

"I want no thanks," replied the stranger.

"I believe you are unknown to me."

"Man, I will refresh your memory. Twenty years ago this day you struck a broken hearted little boy away from his dear mother's coffin. I was that boy."

The man turned livid.

"Have you rescued me then to take my life?"

"No; I have a sweeter revenge, I have saved the life of a man whose brutality has rankled in my breast for the last twenty years. Go, then, and remember the tears of a friendless child."

The man bowed his head in shame and went from the presence of magnanimity as grand to him as it was incomprehensible.

The Family Had no Guest Chamber
Some years ago, on a broiling, stifling August day, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, president of the International Woman Suffrage Alliance was left of a South Dakota train at a siding where there wasn't even a station—just a platform. She was the only person on the platform.

After a while a lumber wagon drove up, and a countless man asked if she were the speaker. He was a neighbor of the people who were going to entertain her, and had come after her as an accompanist to them.

They drove seven miles in the pariah dust without a canopy between them and the smothering sun. The house where she was to be entertained consisted of one room on the ground floor and a half-story containing a chamber under the eaves. When she arrived there was no one there. The wife and four children were at work with the husband and the hired man in the fields. She had been sent to that family to be entertained because it was the most prosperous in the neighborhood; the only one prosperous enough to keep a hired man.

For dinner that night they had bread, watermelon, a white and dreadful butter and a weak and dreadful tea; and from the artless remarks of the children the visitor realized that the tea and butter had been added in her honor. After supper the man went to bed, but the woman harnessed a span to the farm wagon and drove the speaker, the school-teacher and the four children five miles through black-out night to the little country school house where Mrs. Catt asked the men to let the women vote.

When they reached home again the lecturer was ushered into the one bedroom. There were four beds in it under the eaves. In two of them slept the four children, in the other the parents, and the fourth was to be occupied by the visitor and the teacher who boarded there.

Her Dearest Wish

TO ALLING WOMEN

A Little Sound Advice Will Help Many Sufferers in Sullivan
No woman can be healthy and well if the kidneys are sick. Poisons that pass off the secretions when the kidneys are well are retained in the body when the kidneys are sick.

When suffering so, try Doan's Kidney Pills, a remedy that cures all kidney troubles. You will get better, and health will return when the kidneys are well. Let a Sullivan woman tell you about Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. L. H. Hapner, Sullivan, Ill., says: "I take pleasure in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills, knowing from my own experience that they deserve the endorsement of all who use them. I suffered a great deal from kidney trouble for several years. It began with severe headaches and pains in the small of my back and I often felt languid and devoid of energy. My kidneys were also weak and caused much annoyance. I at length procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at Hall's Pharmacy and began their use. They removed all the pain in a short time and I now feel well. It required less than three boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills to bring about this great change."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., New York sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

New Ideas for Evening Gowns
Evening gowns are cut with long trains, draped tails, fishwife overskirts and serpiced debus caught under deep pinnacles.

Picture gowns of brocade, moire and shot silk, trimmed with bullion and silver lace, are in great demand. New York women are taking up rather gloriously the new garter sash that ties the skirt in around the ankles. It was invented for the aeroplane not the ball-room, where it is sure to take its place nevertheless. For fashions are quite as illogical and inconsequent this season as ever, and the styles of the seven-teen-eighties and the eighteen-seventies would along amiable firm-in-arm in this year of grace, almost hundred and nine.

Boycott Put on Islands
British cocoa firms have decided not to use any more cocoa from the Portuguese islands of Sao Thome and Principe because of the ill treatment of the natives laboring on the plantations.

Re-Coled in Fifty-Five Seconds. A new kind of boot is about to be put on the market, the sole and heel of which, when worn out, can be dis-carded and new leather put in their place. The inventor claims that a pair of boots can be soled and heeled in 55 seconds, saving 25 per cent on the cost of ordinary boot repairing.

Dignity of British Courts. Judge Bacon, addressing a solicitor at the close of a case in the White-hall county court recently said: "I do not wish to suggest any improvement in the dress or attire of solicitors, but I really do not think it is proper for a black gown to be on such a light coat." The solicitor bowed in acknowledgment to the judge whose objection was well founded on any judicial precedents.—Law Journal.

Negative Virtues. Beware of making your moral stable one of the negative virtues. It is good to abstain, and teach others to abstain, from all that is sinful or harmful. But making a business of it leads to emaciation of character, unless one feeds largely also on the more nutritious diet of active sympathetic benevolence.—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Water at a Cent a Pitcher. The spectacle of water being re-vealed in the public streets can be seen almost any weekday at St. Day in Cornwall. In all probability there is no other case of the kind in Eng-land. The charge for the water is a cent per pitcher. The water is ob-tained from what is known as Nogu-s Shoot, about half a mile from the vil-lage, where there is an abundant supply of pure water.

The Backslider. "Go long with you!" said Brother Dickey to one of his backsliding, though penitent, brethren. "You say you want to be a angel, but if you had wings ten foot long you'd be too heavy for fly!"—Atlanta Constitution.

Editorial Frankness. Some "eds." have a double meaning which their originators do not intend to give them. For instance, in the window of a certain clothing store there is displayed, in the midst of a large array of clothes, this sign: "Un-called for garments."

These Are Others. We should not be too hard on that dastard party who traded his wife for a keg of beer, however. Remember, here may be men in Atlanta who would trade their wives for near-beer.—Washington Herald.

Timber the Ore Mined Here. One of the most curious mines in the world is in Tongking, China, where, in a sand formation at a depth of from 12 to 20 feet there is a deposit of stumps of trees. The Chinese work this mine for the timber, which is found in good condition, and is used in making coffins and troughs and for carving and other purposes.

As to Advice. "What arter confuses me," said Uncle Eben, "is dat after I gits a lot of advice I's got to go around an' git a lot mo' advice 'bout which advice I's g'lester take."

Local society women are discussing the coming engagement of "Vanda Enos and Her Girls" at the Titus opera house October 20, and the sug-gestion has been made that the club women and social leaders should ar-range a reception for her upon her arrival, but her representative, when in the city yesterday, stated that the "jumps" made by the company re-cently had been so long that he feared Miss Enos would prefer a few hours rest to social pleasure.

Miss Enos has heretofore confined her tours to cities and for the first time this season she is visiting what is known as the one-night stand circuit. Her visit to this place is more a matter of sentiment than business, and is explained by the fact that Ered G. Conrad her manager, and the management of the local opera house have been closely associated in a business way for many years. "I like the cities," said Miss Enos re-cently, "and I like the smaller places. The applause of New Yorkers is dear to me, yet the hearty hand shake of the banker or minister of a small town is equally to be prized. I find more real joy in playing for folks who are sincere and frank in their praise than for those who would veil their compliments in different lan-guages. Frankness seems to be a trait which is found only in the smaller cities for I have seldom met with it in New York, Chicago, Lon-don or Paris, excepting in the rare instances where my art permitted me to form personal friendships."

Miss Enos is supported this season by an exceptionally strong company, Lina Hatfield Solomon is the prima donna of the organization and Nina Marie Youman was engaged especial-ly for this tour. Orline Dorr is Miss Enos' accompanist.

For a clear head and a strong mind, Dr. Witt's Little Early Bitters, the great liver pill. Sold by all druggists.

SYNOPSIS

The story opens with the shipwreck of the steamer on which Miss Genevieve Leslie, an Englishman, and Tom Blake, a rugged American, were passengers. The three were tossed upon an uninhabited island and were the only ones not drowned. Blake recovered from a fracture of his leg, but Leslie, because of his roughness, became a hero as preserver of the helpless pair. The Englishman was saved on the beach of the island. Blake started to return to the ship to recover what was left. Blake returned safely. Winthrop wanted his last match on a cigarette, for which he was moved by Blake. The next morning they discovered the ship's cabin. All three constructed huts to shield themselves from the sun. They then fastened on coconuts, the only procurable food. Leslie answered a shout for help, but detected his roughness. Led by Blake they established a home in some cliffs. Blake found a fresh water spring. Miss Leslie, food and important questions they planned their campaign.

Blake and Miss Leslie turned to stare at the grove of animals now facing them between them and the border of the tall grass. Miss Leslie was the first to speak. "They can't be cattle, Mr. Winthrop. There are some with stripes. I do believe they're zebras!"

"Get down!" commanded Blake. "They're all wild game. Those big ox-like fellows to the left or the zebras are all dead. Wheel! wouldn't we be in it if we owned that water hole? I'll bet I'd have one of those fat beasts inside three days!"

"How should I enjoy a juicy steak!" murmured Miss Leslie.

"Ray or jerked," questioned Blake.

"What is jerked?"

"Dried."

"Oh, no, I mean broiled just and inside!"

"I prefer mine quite rare," added Winthrop.

"That's the way you'll get it, damned rare—But your garden, Miss Jenny! Without fire, we'll have the choice of raw or jerked," answered J. J.

"Hector!"

"Jerked meat is all right. You cut your game in strips."

"With a 'pointed!' laughed Miss Leslie.

Blake stared at her grimly. "That's so. You've got it back on me. Butcher a beef with a pointed knife! Have to take it raw, and degeneration 'at that."

"Hector!"

"I'm sure I can't see, but I remember, it seemed to me that there was a fish-like glimmer."

"Silica? Say, that would cut meat. But where in—where in Florida are the bananas?"

"I'm sure I can't see. I remember that I have seen them in other tropical places, you know."

"Meanwhile I prefer coconuts, until we have a fire to broil our steaks," remarked Miss Leslie.

"Ditto, Miss Jenny, I don't have the nuts and no meat. I'm a vegetarian now, but my mouth ain't watering for something else. Look at all those chops and steaks and stews running around out there!"

"They are making for the grass," observed Winthrop. "Hector, what's that?"

"Miss Jenny, what's so much without the shells. We'll eat right here."

There were only a few nuts left. They were drained and cracked and scooped out, one after another. The last nut was cracked open, across the middle.

"Hello," said Blake, "the lower part of this will do for a bowl. Miss Jenny, when you've done, the cream, put it in your pocket. Say, Win, have you got the battle and keys and?"

"All safe—everything."

"Are you sure, Mr. Winthrop?" asked Miss Leslie. "Men's pockets seem so open. Twice I've had to pick up Mr. Blake's jacket."

"Locket," echoed Blake.

"The ivory locket, which may be curious, Mr. Blake, but I assure you, I do not look inside, though."

"Let me see it," said Blake.

Startled by his tone and look, Miss Leslie caught an oval shaped object from the side pocket of the coat, and thrust it into Blake's outstretched hand. For a moment he stared at it, unable to believe his eyes; then he leaped up, with a yell that sent the droves of zebras and antelope flying into the tall grass.

"Oh, oh!" screamed Miss Leslie. "Is it a snake? Are you bitten?"

"Bitten?—Yes, by John B. Percorn! Must have been fussy drunk to put it in my coat. Always carry it in my foil pocket. What a blasted infernal idiot I've been! Kick me, Win—kick me hard!"

"I say, Blake, what is it? I don't quite take you. If you would only—"

"Fire!—fire! Can't you see? We've got all hell beat! Look here!"

He snatched open the lid of the supposed locket, and before either of his companions could realize what he would be about, was focusing the lens of a surveyor's magnifying-glass upon the back of Winthrop's hand.

The Englishman jerked the hand away. "What's that?"

"Owl! That's an owl!"

Blake shook the glass in that he widened faces.

"Look here!" he shouted. "Here's fire; there's water; there's bread; eggs and beefsteak! Here's where we're on the back trail. We'll smoke out that leopard in short order!"

"You don't mean to say, Blake—"

"No, I mean to get that worry out of your mind with Miss Jenny on the point, while I engineer the deal. Fall in!"

The day was still fresh when they found themselves back at the foot of the cliff. Here arose a heated debate between the men. Winthrop, stung by Blake's jeering words, insisted upon sharing the attack, though with a great enthusiasm. Much to Blake's surprise, Miss Leslie came to the support of the Englishman.

"But, Mr. Blake," she argued, "you say it will be perfectly safe for us here. It's so, it will be safe for myself alone."

"I can play this game without him."

"No doubt. Yet if, as you say, you expect to keep on the leopard with a torch, would it not be well to have Mr. Winthrop at hand with other torches, should yours burn out?"

"Yes, if I thought he'd be at hand after the first scare."

Winthrop started off almost on a run. At that moment he might have faced the leopard single-handed. Blake chuckled as he swung away after his victim. Within ten paces, however, he passed to call back over his shoulder: "Get around the point, Miss Jenny, and if you want something to do, try broiling the coconut fiber."

Miss Leslie made no response; but she stood for some time gazing after the two men. There was so much that was characteristic even in this rear view. For all his anger and his haste, the Englishman bore himself with an air of well-bred nicety. His trim, erect figure needed only a fresh suit to be irreproachable. On the other hand, he was a careless observer, at first glance, might have mistaken Blake, with his fannel shirt and shouldered club, for a hulking navvy. But there was nothing of the navvy in his swinging stride or in the resolute poise of his head as he came up with Winthrop.

Though the girl was not given to reflection, the contrast between the two could not impress her. How well her countryman—coarse, uncultured, but full of brute strength and courage—fitted in with these primitive surroundings. Whereas Winthrop—and herself!

She fell into a kind of disquieted brown study. Her eyes had an odd look, both startled and meditative—such a look as might be expected of one who for the first time is peering beneath the surface of things, and sees the naked realities of life, the real values, based on massing conventions. It may have been that she was seeking to ponder the meaning of her own existence—that she had caught a glimpse of the vanity and wastefulness, the utter futility of her life. At these leaping and tumbling down the path, all singing and blinded, Blake fired the big train of grass, and the broad-ruffed trunk, instead of being shocked—dreadfully shocked! The wretched creature writhed and leaped about till it plunged into the pool. When it sought to crawl out, all black and hideous, Blake went up and killed it with his club—crushed its skull—ugh!"

"But why should you do so about it?" she asked. "Was it not the beast's life against ours?"

"But so horrible a death!"

"I'm sure Mr. Blake would have preferred to shoot the creature had he a gun. Having nothing else than fire, I think it was all very brave of him. Now we are sure of water and food. Had we not best be going?"

"It was to fetch you that Blake sent me."

Winthrop spoke with perceptible stiffness. He was charmed not only by her commendation of Blake, but by the indifference with which she had met his agitation.

They started at once, Miss Leslie in the lead. As they rounded the point she caught sight of the smoke still rising from the cliff. A little later she noticed the valleys which were streaming down out of the sky from all quarters other than seaward. Their focal point seemed to be the trees at the foot of the cliff. A nearer view showed that they were alighting in the thorn bushes on the south border of the wood.

Of Blake there was nothing to be seen until Miss Leslie, still in the lead, pushed in among the trees. There they found him crouched beside a small fire, near the edge of the pool. He did not look up. His eyes were riveted in a hungry stare upon several pieces of flesh, suspended over the flames on spits of green twigs.

"Hello!" he sang out, as he heard their footsteps. "Just in time, Miss Jenny. Your broiled steak'll be ready in short order."

"Oh, hold on a second. I'm simply ravenous!" she exclaimed, between impatience and delight.

Winthrop was hardly less keen; yet his hunger did not altogether blunt his curiosity.

"I say, Blake," he inquired, "where did you get the meat?"

"I got it from the leopard. This ain't no kidding business. The stuff was brought here by the leopard. Here you are, Miss Jenny. Chew it up on the stick."

Though Winthrop had his suspicions, he took the piece of half-burned flesh which Blake handed him in turn and fell to eating without further question. As Blake had promised, the leopard proved far other than a tender morsel, however, but it was a most appetizing flavor. The repast ended when there was nothing left to devour. Blake threw away his empty spit and rose to stretch. He waited for Miss Leslie to swallow her last mouthful and then began to chuckle.

"What's that?" asked Winthrop.

Blake looked at him solemnly.

"Well now, that was downright mean of me, he drawled. "After you think them to laugh at it!"

"Robbing who?"

"The buzzards!"

"You've fed us on leopard meat. It's a disgusting!"

"I found it delicious. How about you, Miss Jenny?"

Miss Leslie did not know whether to laugh or to give way to a feeling of nausea. She did neither.

"Can we not find the spring of which you spoke?" she asked. "I am thirsty."

"Well, I guess the fire is about burning," assented Blake. "Come on; we'll get it."

The cleft now had a far different aspect from what it had presented on their first visit. The largest of the trees, though scorched about the base, still stood with unwithered foliage, little harmed by the fire. But many of their small companions had been killed and partly destroyed by the heat and flames from the burning brush. In places the fire was yet smoldering.

"Navigators," His Farm.

A story which almost parallels that told of Capt. Gray, the sailor-farmer of Tiddy Pond, who is said to carry a compass on his pole to run the furrows straight, comes from Cranberry Isles. One sea captain, who enjoys the proud distinction of owning one of the very few horses on the island, got alarmed for fear that he would lose his bearings in the recent smoke and on the precarious accounts of sober citizens took theinnacle from a vessel and strapped it alongside the seat of his horse. In the event, the weather became so thick that he would have been benighted had he not navigated by the stars. He reported that he should not be able to tell to starboard or port, instead the more conventional standards, the usual journey.

"I love you," said Blake, when it grows from the tree.

Such Women

We know of no other medicine which has been so successful in relieving the suffering of women or secured so many genuine testimonials as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

In almost every community you will find women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Almost every woman you meet has either been benefited by it, or knows some one who has.

In the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., are files containing over one million one hundred thousand letters from women seeking health, in which many openly state over their own signatures that they have regained their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has saved many women from surgical operations.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is made exclusively from roots and herbs, and is perfectly harmless.

The reason why it is so successful is because it contains ingredients which act directly upon the female organism, restoring it to healthy and normal activity.

Thousands of unsolicited and genuine testimonials such as the following prove the efficiency of this simple remedy.

Miss Leslie, Minn. "I was a great sufferer from female troubles which caused a weakness and broken down condition of the system. I read so much of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for other suffering women. I felt sure it would help me, and I must say that it worked wonderfully. Within three months I was a perfectly well woman."

I want this letter made public to show the benefits to be derived from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Mrs. John G. Holden, 2115 Second St. North, Minneapolis, Minn.

Woman who are suffering from those distressing ailments peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

The cement house commends itself to the home builder on account of its imperishable nature. It requires no paint and no repairs. When once constructed in a proper way it is a permanent building, improving with age like good wine. Concrete house construction has had its battles and won against opposition, and throughout the country there are many thousands of beautiful examples of this form of construction. The home builder delights in originality. There is undoubtedly a great fascination in being able to mold such a thoroughly plastic material as cement mortar into any desired form, or even to shape it by hand and produce creatable work. It was naturally hard for architects to depart from beaten paths, but gradually they have entered this new field. And now that we have entered upon an era of concrete construction, and that, too, with a vim that is typically American, we cannot expect designers to throw aside tradition all at once. That will take time. Nevertheless, they are coming to recognize concrete as a material that will afford abundant opportunity for originality and individuality, and accordingly bold incursions structure possesses that mysterious something that pleases the eye. The plan calls for a house 22 feet 8 inches wide, and 22 feet 4 inches long. The porches of ample dimensions, 22 feet 8 inches long by 7 feet wide. Entrance is had to a hall from which a wide stairway leads to have been made into this field with creditable results. In looking about for inspiration, we may turn to a number of sources. There are the familiar styles of colonial and other types which have shown excellent examples. The bungalow, also, has been produced in this form in many charming styles.

Second Floor Plan. The second floor. There is a wide grided entrance to a large living room. One of the first attractions

Concrete house construction in its most economic form is presented in the hollow block. False work is expensive. The good block made, intel-llectually, the design displayed herewith shows a structure in which the block has been employed to good advantage. It is a house nobly in appearance, thoroughly up to date and possessing that style so desirable in a home. The first story wall and the foundation are built of blocks, while the second story is of cement plaster finish followed by panel effects. The exterior chimney also adds much to the appearance. Such a house as this will always be a source of delight to its occupants and always be valuable simply because of its individuality. There has been no radical departure from set forms and that greets the eye in this room is a great fireplace. Back of the living room, seen through a grided doorway, is the dining-room. The kitchen and pantry are easily accessible from the dining-room. On the second floor are three bedrooms and a bathroom. Each is provided with a closet.

GETTING CLOSE TO THE TRUTH

Mandarin's Ladies May Be Said to Have Made a Mighty Good Guess.

Judge Mary Cooper of Beloit, Kan., is the only woman probate judge in the United States. She performs more marriages than any Kansas minister. This is because she always omits the word "obey" from the ceremony—an omission that pleases the Kansas girls.

Judge Cooper believes in the capable and strong woman—she thinks that the day of clinging, helpless women is past. She said in a recent interview:

"In the strong and independent woman's hands, in the fighting woman's hands, our future rests. There is no more than a little trail in the episode that a Chinese missionary once related to me.

"This missionary was taking tea with a missionary's wife, whose wife was of course a female missionary. The Chinese ladies examined her, looking at her hair, her teeth and so on, but her feet especially amazed them.

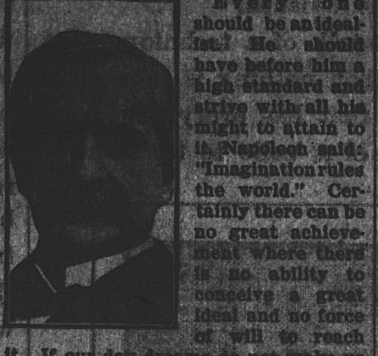

"Why, one cried, you can walk and run as well as a man!"

"Yes, to be sure," said the missionary.

"Can you ride a horse and swim, too?"

An Ideal Christian

By REV. A. C. BROWN, D. D., Pastor of the Chicago Ave. (Black) Church, Chicago.

Every one should be an idealist. He should have before him a high standard and strive with all his might to attain to it. Napoleon said: "Imagination rules the world." Certainly there can be no great achievement where there is no ability to conceive a great ideal and no force of will to reach it. If our day dreams do not make us content simply with reverie they may stir us to heroic action. Castles in the air may become solid structures.

The words of our text give us a picture of the ideal Christian, and bring out very clearly six features of his life:

I. Fullness.—He should be "filled with the knowledge of his will in all wisdom and spiritual understanding." It is not the knowledge of astronomy, botany, philosophy or geology that develops Christian character, though these are important. Yet a man may know all sciences and history and still be a bad man. And if he has simply an intellectual grasp of God's will it may not transform his character, but if he is filled with the knowledge of that will such fullness will make him wise and spiritual. We learn God's will from the Bible, and hence the importance of persistent Bible study. A Christian can afford to miss breakfast, dinner or supper rather than to neglect his Bible. Starving the body is not so fatal as starving the soul.

II. A Worthy Walk.—"That ye might walk worthy of the Lord unto all pleasing." There is nothing that pleases Christ more than seeing his people in their daily life maintaining a standard worthy of him. This does not mean that we are to be worthy Christians only in crises and emergencies. Walking is the daily hum-drum of life. We should run with patience the race that is set before us and strive to be the first to reach the goal so as to receive the victor's crown. We may mount up on wings as eagles, but such running and flying are not tests of character like everyday drudgery. "He that is faithful in little is faithful also in much."

III. Fruitfulness.—"Fruitful in every good work." A life that is full of the knowledge of God, and has a walk worthy of Christ, is certain to be fruitful. Such a life cannot fail to bear good fruit, and there is nothing artificial about it. It is not fruit hung upon the life, but growing out of it. The abundant life produces such fruit. "Fruitful in every good work" means much fruit rather than great fruit. "Herein is my Father glorified that ye bear much fruit." We may be too ambitious to bear big fruit. "Do good unto all men."

IV. Growth.—"Increase in the knowledge of God." "In" should be rendered "with," and then we have the true meaning, growing by means of the knowledge of God. It is the knowledge of God that makes us grow. Christians are dwarfs because they know so little of God. To think God's thoughts is to grow intellectually, and to know and love God's will is to grow spiritually. It must be enough to make angels weep to see Christians many years old who are infants in size, simple, because they have not learned more of God.

V. Power.—"Strengthened with all might according to his glorious power." The power is not inherent. It comes from God, and the measure of it is not our ability, but his ability. In our weakness we may have the strength of his might.

Barney Barnato committed suicide by throwing himself into the sea. He says that his great fortune was dissipated, but he could not bear the thought of becoming again a poor man. The sea of failure broke his heart. I wish I could have stood beside him on the deck of the vessel, behind the mainmast and whispered to him of God who in Christ would give him strength to endure, not with melancholy and moroseness, but with fullness. Under the heaviest burdens we may sing. In the darkest night we may shout his praise. When Susannah Wesley was dying she said to her weeping children at the bedside: "When I am gone sing to God a hymn of praise." And when her spirit departed the children with trembling voices and weeping eyes, sang their song of praise for a mother glorified with Christ. The ideal Christian is the man who can be sorrowful and yet rejoice, cast down and yet lifted up, in darkness while light is in his, patient and long-suffering with joy.

VI. Gratitude.—"Giving thanks to the Father which hath made us meet to be partakers of the inheritance of the saints in light." We thank God not simply for the inheritance which is inescapable, undesired and that is left not away, but for the fitness to enjoy it. Going to heaven, with the place would be a great calamity, Christ is preparing a place for us, while the Holy Spirit through Christ is preparing us for the place. "Thanks be to God for heaven. Thanks be to God who will carry for the preparation of heart which makes heaven ours."

This $1000.00 Cup for an ear of Corn

Made by Tiffany. Nearly 3 ft. high—in solid gold and silver. Actual contract price $1,000. To be awarded at the National Corn Exposition, Omaha, Dec. 9 to 14, 1909.

to the man, woman or child producing the best ear of corn grown this year in the United States. Open to everybody belonging to the Association—Nothing to buy or sell. The purpose of the contest is to improve the quality of the millions of bushels of corn used in making Kellogg's Toasted Corn Flakes. Many people think the perfection of corn flavor has been reached in Toasted Corn Flakes. Perhaps it has. If you don't know how good Kellogg's—the genuine Toasted Corn Flakes—are, try it. Then you'll see how hard a task we are giving ourselves to improve it, and the only way we can improve it is by the betterment of the corn itself.

Professor Holden, of the Iowa State College, the greatest authority on corn in the world, will award the prize at the National Corn Exposition, to be held at Omaha, Neb., Dec. 9th to 14th, 1909. Two simple rules will govern the plan, and they are: that you send your best ear of corn to the National Corn Exposition, Omaha, Neb., before November 27, 1909, and that you are a member of the National Corn Association—full particulars regarding which can be had by writing to National Corn Exposition, Omaha, Neb. Tie a tag securely to your specimen and word it: "For the Kellogg Trophy Contest," and write your name and address plainly. If you are judged the best, you will get the trophy for 1910. If you succeed again next year or the year following, the trophy will become your property for all time.

EASY TOTAL LOSS OF HAIR

Seemed Imminent—Scalp Was Very Scaly and Hair Came Out by Handfuls—Scalp Now Clear and New Hair Grown by Cuticura.

"About two years ago I was troubled with my head being scaly. Shortly after that I had an attack of typhoid fever and I was out of the hospital possibly two months when I first noticed the loss of hair, my scalp being still scaly. I started to use dandruff cures to no effect whatever. I had actually lost hope of saving any hair at all. I could brush it off my coat by the handful. I was afraid to comb it. But after using two cakes of Cuticura Soap and nearly a box of Cuticura Ointment, the change was surprising. My scalp is now clear and healthy as could be and my hair thicker than ever, whereas I had my mind made up to be bald. W. F. Steese, 5812 Broad St., Pittsburg, Penn., May 7 and 21, 1908."

VANDA ENOS GIRLS

AN EVENING OF MUSIC, SONG AND STORY RECITAL

Vanda Enos is an artist with a message, a message not only of supreme beauty, but of compelling power. To her the power has been given, as it has to few, to translate into tones the greatest inspirations of the past masters of her instrument.

There is something fascinating, something inspiring in her wonderful exhibition of power under control. To analyze the achievements of Vanda Enos is like applying the spectrum to a sunbeam that pierces a cloud to gladden the heart.

It is all well enough to talk of the "masters" and their achievements; to honor is both a right and a pleasure, but none of them play the violin as she plays it.

All that is heard is music, music so pure and beautiful that the senses are ravished.

What will it avail to talk of a technique that is so sure and perfect that nothing is impossible to it, to talk of a tone that has everything from the richness and warmth of a 'cello to the faintest harmonic known to the violin. To dwell upon the grace and humor that is put into certain phrases, while passion, sorrow and even tragic bigness sounds out from others, what shall all this avail when all these things are but means toward one lovely end, the presenting of music, music, music!

Miss Vanda Enos is an artist and her playing is the feature of the entertainment. She has wonderful command of her bow and her technique is astonishing as well as marvelous. —Brooklyn Eagle.

Miss Vanda Enos is by far the most accomplished artist ever seen in Worcester. The pure tones, remarkable bowing and wizard technique enchant and delight beyond expression. —Worcester Telegram.

The performances of Miss Vanda Enos was a treat. She is a most gifted young lady. Her marvelous technique, sure tone and dazzling bow work was a revelation. She plays music as it is seldom heard. —Possaic News.

Burglars broke in the store of J. N. Armantrout Tuesday night and took a number of pairs of shoes and other goods, amounting to between $25 and $30 worth. They also entered

W. L. Wallace's hardware store and got $15 or $20, mostly cash. The other little towns around had better be on the look out as there are a number of other places that have been robbed in the last week. It is supposed that the thieves entered Wallace's hardware store first and took the contents of the cash drawer, amounting to $16.64. They got in by prying open the front door. At Armantrout's store the doors were too securely locked for forcing an entrance and they took a parcel out of the door. Armantrout conducts a general merchandise store. From the stock they took thirty-five pairs of shoes, good quality, embracing patent leathers, vict kids and tan bucks, sixteen pairs of cottonade pants, twelve to fourteen pairs of corduroy pants and a gold watch.

That Lame Back Means Kidney Disease

And to Relieve the Lame and Aching Back, You Must First Relieve the Kidneys

There is no question about that at all—for the lame and aching back is caused by a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder. It is only common sense, any way—that you must cure a condition by removing the cause of the condition. And lame and aching back are not by any means the only symptoms of derangement of the kidneys and bladder. There are a multitude of well-known and unmistakable indications of a more or less dangerous condition. Some of these are, for instance: Extreme and unnatural lassitude and weakness, nervous irritability, heart irregularity, "nerves on edge," sleeplessness and inability to secure rest, sending sensation and sediment in the urine, inflammation of the bladder and passages, etc.

DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills are an exceptionally meritorious remedy for any and all affections or diseased conditions of these organs. These Pills operate directly and promptly—and their beneficial results are at once felt.

They regulate, purify, and effectively build and restore the kidneys, bladder and liver, to perfect and healthy condition—even in some of the most advanced cases.

E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago, Ill., want every man and woman who have the least suspicion that they are afflicted with kidney and bladder diseases to at once write them, and a trial box of these Pills will be sent free by return mail postage.
