Typographic errors are one of the chief bane of a newspaper man's existence. For instance, the story is told of an editor who wrote a "puff" for the belle of a ball staid; "Her dainty feet were incased in shoes that might have been taken for fairy boots," but the blundering compositor made it read: "Her dirty feet were incased in shoes that might have been taken for ferryboats." NEW BONNET TOO MUCH A clergyman in another town had been much annoyed by the way members of the congregation had been looking around to take stock of late comers. After enduring it for a time he said on entering the reading desk one Sunday: "Brethren, I regret to see that your attention is called away from your religious duties by your natural desire to see who comes in behind you. I propose henceforth to save you the trouble by naming each person who may enter and hope that the services will then be allowed to proceed without interruption." He then began: "Dearly beloved," but paused half way, to interpolate "Mr. Stubbins with his wife and daughter." Mr. Stubbins looked rather surprised but the minister with perfect gravity, resumed his exhortation. Presently he again paused "Mr. Curtis and William Diggle." The abashed congregation kept their eyes studiously bent on their books, the service continued in the most orderly manner, the pastor interrupting himself every now and then to name some new comer. At last he said still with the most perfect gravity: "Mrs. Symons in a new bonnet." In a moment he felt his mistake, but it was too late. Every feminine head in the congregation had turned around.

A BUSINESS PROPRIETOR. Prudent business men and women never enter into any contract, without first ascertaining whether the parties they are contracting with are financially responsible. An insurance policy is a CONTRACT, and as much care should be exercised in this as in any other contract. BE SURE THE COMPANY IS RELIABLE BEFORE INSURING WITH THEM. The following is copied from a recent issue of the Chicago Record-Herald: "An annual statement in which more than the ordinary interest is taken is that of the Fireman's Fund of San Francisco, which reports remarkably good figures this year. Less than four years ago the company was the heaviest sufferer in the San Francisco conflagration as a result of which it paid and settled losses of $11,132,000. The way in which its stockholders and officers met the emergency greatly strengthened the company in the field, as a result of which its assets are already larger than they were at the beginning of the fire conflagration year. They are now $7,431,401, an increase of $979,189 in 1909. The reserves are $3,180,066, a gain of $238,164 for the year, while the net surplus was increased by $805,217, and now stands at $2,014,856. The company had a good year in underwriting and also did well on its investments." The above company is represented in Sullivan by John E. Jennings, who will be pleased to insure your residence, household goods, business buildings or stock of goods. GROUND HOG DAY Coming down from remote ages the tradition which clings to the ground hog, also known as the woodchuck, and in Europe as the marmot, did come in for its annual observance Wednesday. Centuries ago some amateur naturalist living in a German first declared that if the marmot came out of its burrow on the second day of February and saw its shadow it would immediately return to its hibernating lair and there remain for six weeks during which time cold and disagreeable weather would prevail. But if the day was cloudy and no shadow cast, the marmot would frisk about in the enjoyment of its release from its winter confinement, and an early spring was assured. This tradition has come across the water with many another, and from the marmot has been transferred to the ground hog, its nearest American representative.

So it happened that Wednesday morning was fair and the sun shone another spell of cold weather will follow.

A SCHEME THAT DID NOT WORK

The whiskey interests hoped to be able to say in Decatur as they have in other places that the Law cannot be enforced therefore better license regulations. As one walks the streets of Decatur and sees the various soft drink joints closed and locked, and calls upon the county treasure and sees the large fund that has been collected from these fellows in fines, and visits the county jail and converses with those who are peering out through the grates as criminals for having violated the law, if he had the impression before that the law could not be enforced his opinion would likely undergo a violent change, and the good people of Decatur are jubilant and rejoicing that the law can be enforced and they are now entering into their campaign for a continued dry city with constantly growing enthusiasm. Great credit for the results accomplished are due to Wm. E. Redmond, the State's Attorney of the county, who, under conditions, that would have discouraged a less determined man, has pressed the prosecutions of the men who were defended by a strong array of legal talent, and the people of Decatur are to be congratulated in having a State's Attorney who not only has the desire but the ability to secure the enforcement of the law.—Illinois Issue.

Ballroom Dances in Limelight.

It has been left to Poons, India, to discover a ballroom novelty. This is the employment of limelight in certain dances. The most fascinating effects are easily gained by turning out all lights and switching on different colored limelights over the heads of the dancers. Thus a waltz danced in imitation moonlight is said to be a thing to dream of and the cotillon with rainbow colored lights is ravishing.

W. A. RADFORD EDITOR

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 194 Fifth Ave., Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

I always like to see even a small house well built. When a man is investing in a house, either as a home for himself or as a renting investment, it has always seemed to me that a good, thoroughly constructed, substantial house is the best kind to build. A very little extra in the first cost makes all the difference between a mere shack which will tumble down in a few years and a house of the same size construction in a way to endure for generations. The difference in the ease of heating the two houses is all on the side of the well-built structure, and the extra rent, if it is to be rented, and its freedom from repair, if it is to be lived in by the owner, will very soon make up for the added expense at the start.

As our country grows older and becomes more thickly populated it will, without doubt, follow more and more the examples set by England and will profit by the experience of our cousins on the other side. Our ordinary frame construction is not used at all any more over there. Everything is brick, stone, tile or cement. The advantages of this are clearly demonstrated by the last annual report of the fire insurance board. In England last year the fire loss per capita was 54 cents. Compare with this the fire loss last year in the United States, which reached the astonishing total of $2.48 for every man, woman and child in the country. This simply goes to show the great advantage, from the fire-proof standpoint, of building even our smaller houses in a thoroughly substantial and fire-resisting manner. Of all materials developed during recent times for building, concrete blocks have done most to bring substantial masonry almost within the reach of all. At a cost barely 20 per cent in excess of the most cheaply constructed frame cottage, the design can be carried out in cement blocks and finished up in a first-class way, making a house that will last for years without deteriorating very much in value. The accompanying design is a very good example of this kind of a home. Who would not be pleased to live in a snug, trim little house of this kind?

staircase and yellow pine upstairs. The interior of the walls should be furred, lathed and plastered in the approved style and are very nice when finished with a sand-finish plaster coat. This sand-finish plaster is to be tinted with plain water colors, no wall paper being used. The tinted sand-finish plaster is considerably more satisfactory than plain-colored wall paper, as with it there are no seams to show.

The cost of this house, constructed as indicated in the foregoing, is estimated at $2,900. This includes the Foot basement, or cellar, under the entire house, having first-class cement floor and foundation walls, made to be thoroughly waterproof. This is done by applying a hot tar coat to the outside of the wall, finishing the inside with Portland cement and water. There are also numerous special waterproofing substances on the market that can be used in making the concrete block walls thoroughly damp proof.

It is simple in arrangement, 24 feet square with a simple gable roof, the gable end fronting the street. Rock-face concrete blocks are used for the foundation and first story walls as far up as the top of the first story windows. Above this light-colored pressed brick is used. A slate roof is very appropriate on a house of this kind and the extra expense of it would probably be worth while. The interior arrangement of this house conforms in spirit with the ex-

SCRATCHED SO SHE COULD NOT SLEEP

"I write to tell you how thankful I am for the wonderful Cuticura Remedies. My little niece had eczema for five years, and when her mother died I took care of the child. It was all over her face and body, also on her head. She scratched so that she could not sleep nights. I used Cuticura Soap to wash her with and then applied Cuticura Ointment. I did not use quite half the Cuticura Soap and Ointment, together with Cuticura Resolvent, when you could see a change and they cured her nicely. Now she is eleven years old and has never been bothered with eczema since. My friends think it is just great the way the baby was cured by Cuticura. I send you a picture taken when she was about 18 months old.

"She was taken with the eczema when two years old. She was covered with big sores and her mother had all the best doctors and tried all kinds of salves and medicines without effect until we used Cuticura Remedies. Mrs. H. Kierman, 633 Quincy St., Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 27, 1909."

Her Idea of Discipline.

One day recently, just after the opening of the Baltimore schools, the teacher of a primary class had occasion right at the start to enforce discipline. "Here, young man!" she exclaimed, indicating a pupil whose name she did not yet know. "I saw you laughing just now. That won't do." "No laughing in this school!"

"I was only thinking about something my aunt said," said the youngster sheepishly. "Well, don't let that happen in school again," said the teacher sternly. —Sunday Magazine of the Cleveland Leader.

One of the judges. A newly qualified judge in one of the small towns of Tennessee was trying one of his first criminal cases. The accused was an old dorky who had been in court before on a similar charge and was then acquitted. "Well, Tom," began the judge, "I see you're in trouble again."

"Yes, sah," replied the dorky, "the last time, judge, you was my lawyer." "Where is your lawyer this time?" asked the judge. "I ain't got no lawyer this time," answered Tom. "I'm going to tell the truth."

Rather Tall. "That," said Senator Tillman of an opponent's argument, "is an amusing exaggeration." He smiled. "In fact," he continued, "it is as bad an exaggeration as the story about Ben Johnson's height. They said of Ben, you know, the candidate for sheriff, that when he made a stump speech, instead of getting a stump ready for him to mount, they would, because he was so tall, dig a hole for him to stand in."

HARD TO DROP BUT MANY DROP IT.

A young Calif. wife talks about coffee: "It was hard to drop Mocha and Java and give Postum a trial, but my nerves were so shattered that I was a nervous wreck and of course that means all kinds of ails. "At first I thought bicycle riding caused it and I gave it up, but my condition remained unchanged. I did not want to acknowledge coffee caused the trouble for I was very fond of it. At that time a friend came to live with us, and I noticed that after he had been with us a week he would not drink his coffee any more. I asked him the reason. He replied, 'I have not had a headache since I left off drinking coffee, some months ago, till last week, when I began again, here at your table. I don't see how anyone can like coffee, anyway, after drinking Postum!' "I said nothing, but at once ordered a package of Postum. That was five months ago, and we have drank no coffee since, except on two occasions when we had company, and the result each time was that my husband could not sleep, but lay awake and tossed and talked half the night. We were convinced that coffee caused his suffering, so he returned to Postum, convinced that coffee was an enemy, instead of a friend, and he is troubled no more with insomnia. "I, myself, have gained 8 pounds in weight, and my nerves have ceased to quiver. It seems so easy now to quit coffee that caused our aches and ails and take up Postum." Read the little book "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason." Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.
