Robert Ely of Mattoon was killed nstantly last Friday morning at Sandford, Ind. Mr. Ely was engineer of the night express that leaves Mattoon about midnight.

The train was running at a very high speed and ran into a switch that had been left open by the crew of a west bound freight train in charge of Conductor Taylor, it having passed that point but a short time before.

Sandford has been out of service for some time, and at the time of the accident was undergoing repairs by the regular repair gang of the St. Louis division. The switches, usually worked by the man in the tower, were being thrown by hand, orders to that effect having been received by all train crews on the east end of the division. The switch had been properly thrown for the passing of trains until a west bound freight in churge of conductor Taylor, passed that point, and it is the crew of this train which is held responsible for the wreck by the officials of the division.

Robert Ely would have been fortyfive years of age the 18th day of next October. He was the son of B. F. Ely, deceased, and wife, Mrs. Jane Hostetter Ely, and a nephew of Hen ry, Samuel and James Hostetter living near Bruce.- He spent the greater portion of his life in Gays and with his uncles near Bruce. pent sixteen years in the service of the Big Four. He had been twice married. He is survived by a daughter, Cora Ely, by the first union the last wife and one little child; his mother, two brothers, Ed and Ber of Mattoon; three sisters, Mrs. Ida Aldridge of Mattoon, Mrs. Hannah Hart of Charleston, and Mrs. Bessie Scott of Chicago.

Robert Ely was a man of sterling th, even when a boy growing in oy about the stores in Gays. Th merchants often remarked, "Bob Ely is a noble boy and we are safe in trusting all we are worth with Bob, I am safe in giving him access to my money drawers." His parents were poor and he was obliged to shift for himself. He never lacked friends or work. His established character and reputation took him through; he will and industry was his watchword.

The funeral services were conduct eb at the residence in Mattoon Sunday afternoon and the temalus laid to rest in Dodge cemetery.

A Drunk from Gays.

Ben Robinson was brought to Suite livan Thursday and surrendered to the sheriff by Constable J. C. Mallors and Fred Hetherington.

In an intoxicated condition he came to Gays Wednesday evening and having a shot gun, fixed across the street. He was arrested and taken before Justice of the Peace A. W. Treat and fined $100 and cost Not being able to pay the fine he was brought to Sullivan.

The story opens with the introduction of John Stephens, adventurer, a Massa-chusetts man marooned by authorities at valparaiso, Chile. Being interested in mining operations in Bolivia, he was desounced by Chile as an insurrectionist and as a consequence was hiding. At his hotel his attention was attracted by an Englishman and a young woman from a drunken officer. He was thanked by er. Stephens met a motley crew, to which he was assigned. He gave them final instructions. They boarded the vessel supposed to be the Esmeralda, through strategy. Capt. Stephens gave directions for the departure of the craft. He entered the caban and discovered the English woman and her maid. Stephens quickly learned the was Lord Darlington's private yacht, the lords wife and maid being abourd. He explained the situation to her lady-ship. Then First Mate Tuttle laid bare the plot, saying that the Sea Queen had been tage to the Antarctic circle. Tuttle explained that the Donna Isabel was lost in 1753. He had founds it frozen in a huge case of ice on an island and contained much gold.

change in the man speaking held me breathless; his cant, his usually cily method of utterance had merged into an earnestness full of fascination.

"Well, that was about all, sir," his voice sinking back into commonplace "In two hours we were out o' sight, an' feelin' our way through a blindin' snow squall. But it was such a rum thing, discoverin' them islands out there all uncharted, with that queer ghost ship perchin' on 'em, that I wrote down the latitude an' longitude an' the hooker's name in my log-book. We was about three weeks makin' the West Falklands, where I shipped a few more hands, an' then bore away north for home."

He drew a plug of tobacco from out his coat-tail pocket, cut off what he needed, and stowed it away in his cheek. He ran his inyers thin hair, and resumed:

'About 18 months later I was back with the ol' Betsy in the South Pacific. One night, with the moon shincific. One night, with the moon shin-in', hardly a ripple anywhere, my mate run her nose onto a rock, a couple o' hundred miles south o' Eas-ter island, an' in less than 20 minutes the bark had gone down like a stone. We made Easter island in the boats without much trouble, but it wa'n't so easy to get away. I had six weeks of it before I got a chance, an' then I shipped afore the mast on a sandalwood trader. De Nova here was mate, an' finally, huntin' goods to peddle among the islanders, we sailed into Valparaiso, an' the most of us shipped Well, by that time I wasn't thinkin' very often about that ice-ship down in the Antar'tic; I was hustlin' for some sort o' berth to take me back to the States. But one night, down in Rodrigues' back room, where I hung out, I got to talkin' with a gambler named Francisco—the same smooth duck who introduced himself as De Castillo to you, sir. He was an educated man, an' seemed to like to He seemed mighty interested, although he wasn't never given to seafarin', an' asked me a whole pile o' fool questions. Finally he wanted to meet me. again alone the next day.

"Well, having nothin better to do, I was there when he came, an' he showed up with a queer-lookin', big, ol' took, the cover half ripped off, under his arm. Then he made me tell him that yarn over again, and describe the ship jest exactly as I remembered it. Then, when I'd got through, an' told him everything I could dig out o' my memory, he opened up that book o' his on the table, an' damme, sir, if he didn't show me a picture of that same ol' hooker, plain as life, only everything was trim an' shipshape on board, with the masts up an' the sails drawin'. The name was printed underneath, too—Donna Isabel. Cadiz.

"That book he showed me was printed in Spanish-not just like what you see to-day, sir, but the letterin' all rough, as though it had been cut out o' wood, but the fellow showed me the date when it was printed, an' it read 'Seville, 1779,' plain enough. Francisco wrote out in Euglish what he said was printed there about this Donna Isabel; an' there it is, sir, in his own handlwritin'."

He took the paper out of his inner coat pocket and spread it open on the table before us. De Nova and Anderson leaned forward eagerly to looffat it, but Tuttle shoved it along

Read it out loud, sir," he said, his voice trembing. The writing was not clear, and I held it up to the light.

"Galleon Donna Isabel, ship-rigged, 950 tons, Amador, Master, built 1730, horsel port Cadiz. Sailed Guayaquil for Valencia, June 11, 1753; crow num-women; carried treasure, in gold ingots and pleces of eight, valued at 3,000,000 pesos, consigned by Candamo, presidente, to department of the west, receipted for by Salvatore, government agent. Spoken by ship Conquistador, Sanchez, master, July 16, 1753, 80 degrees 20 minutes west and 47 degrees 15 minutes south; all well. Lost at sea; no report."

I put down the paper, and looked across at Tuttle; he sat motionless, his head in his hands. I confess the tale had affected me strangely, and I could not doubt that the man honestly believed every word he had uttered. Yet it was far too marvelous ever to be true; too impossible; too wildly romantic. It must have been a hallucination, an optical illusion born from a mirage of fog and sun in those frozen seas. Over 3,000,000 pesos, locked within the eternal ice for 126 years! Over 3,000,000 pesos, guarded by the dead for a century amid that grim desolation of crested sea! God! it was simply unthinkable, and I even ventured to smile at the credulity of the men about me; yet I did it with hear me talk, an' among other sea yarns I happened to tell him this one. What if it was all true? I felt the set jaws and lips parched and dry. blood boiling up through my veins, every extremity tingling with the of it. Over 3,000,000 pesos! Merciful mother! it was the ransom of a king; it was the temptation of hell! I know not how I controlled my voice so as to question calmly, for, even as I first spoke, I noticed how my hands trembled where they rested on the outspread map.

"Is that all?"

Tuttle nodded his head, uplifting his eyes questioningly to mine.

"That's the whole of it, sir. What do you think?"

"That's more than I know, Mr. Tuttle. Perhaps you dreamed, perhaps Francisco lied. I should have liked to see that book "

I bent lower over the chart, staring at the red cross,

"What was it you men wanted me for?"

"To operate the steamer, sir; the rest of us aboard only understand sailin' vessels."

"Yes, of course; but why did you happen to choose a steamer for the job? There were plenty of sailing craft lying in the harbor easier to steal than this yacht."

"Very true, but it happened to be steam power we wanted. Here is about how we figured it, sir., First place, we had to get away quickly out of those portions of the sea where they'd be most likely to hunt for us We're outlaws, an' every ship sailin we're outlaws, an' every ship sailin' under a fiag is an enemy. Well, sir, what chance would a sailin' vessel have in such a chase? We needed somethin' that would show 'em a clean pair o' heels—somethin' that would give 'em a run for their money. That's what this yacht can do; she's nokin' it now at sixtees? pokin' it now at sixte "Yes; you've got the advantage," I bered 32, passengers 17, including five | confessed, "so long as your coal lasts But you can't put in anywhere for a new supply—what then?"

He turned partially about, winked at De Nova; the fellow grinned back at him, but burst in eagerly:

"Oh, we're not quite so green as all zat, Mons. Stephens, an' I t'ink we got zis t'ing plan' out jus' 'bout right. We steam so till we get maybe far 'nough south w'ere zey quit look for us. How it be 130 degrees west an' 40 degrees south? Nobody t'ink we go zere—non, non. We got coal plenty for zat, an' zen have bunch left. I know; I try it. No more need push her eize after we leave ze Ferdandez-we be well ahead zen. Zen we rig up ze schooner sails, an' make ze next t'ousan' mile wizout burn' a poun'. You see how it do? Ze danjaire was not, for in zat ocean we meet nossing but maybe ze whale ship."

"You understand what he mean sir?" went on Tuttle, as the creole paused for breath. "Once well ahead we can fall back on canvas, and save the coal. But we'll need the steam power down there to hold her off an' on by the island while we do the job. It's a mighty nasty bit o' water, an' a sailin' vessel is apt to get pinched in the ice. But with a steamer we can hold her to it, however the wind

I looked at the fellow with greater respect. Evidently he had considered every angle of the desperate game he was playing.

"Your scheme certainly sounds reasonable enough," I admitted, almost reluctantly. "And the chances are you will get there all right. But suppose you do; suppose you discover this mysterious island; suppose you find there the galleon as you say; sup-pose you even succeed in getting aboard, and into possession of the treasure—what then? Don't you know you're bound to be caught the minute you come out of the Antarctic into any ocean patrolled by the fleets of the world? You have committed piracy—a crime against the nations and the civilized world will unite to hunt you down."

"That's another reason why we had to have a steamer," he explained, calmly. "You just remarked that they'd be lookin, for the Sea Queen to come back. Well, let em look; they won't never see her, sir. Once we get that gold under hatches, an' back as far as that rock they call Dough erty island-an' that's only a run; o' maybe 500 miles—I'll engage to make over this here Sea Queen so that her own captain wouldn't know her 50 feet away. How? 'I'd strip the en-gines out o' her, h'ist the stack overboard, tear down the bridge an' wheel house, rig her as a barkentine, change every line o' paint fore an' att, an' then wreck her somewhere along the east Patagonian coast, or maybe the Falklands. It would be nothin' but a bloomin' whaler gone ashore, an' afore anybody finds out different, we'll be scattered to bell an back."

I was obliged to acknowledge to myself that it was not an impossible plan. Eliminating the chance of ac-cident or some unusually bad luck, success appeared not only possible but probable.

ut probable. "Did you think all that out yourself,

Mr. Tuttle?"
"Well, Francisco suggested considerable, but we did it together." "Where is he? on board?"
The mate laughed, his eyes ex pressive of contempt.

"Not much, he hadn't the nerve He's a schemer all right, but a blame coward."

"But suppose he gets to talking back there in Valparaiso?" It was big Bill Anderson who an swered me, disgusted with our long controversy.

"Oh, to hell wid Francisco!" he broke in, gruffly. "It's w'at you're goin' to do we want to know. Francisco'll hold his gaff well enough. He expects a bit of the swag, an', besides, I let him know what was comin' to him if he let his tongue wag. I had him right, let me tell ye. An', damme, Mr. Stephens," the bully in him breaking all bounds, "if it ain't comin' the same way to any other duffer who goes back on us this trip. That's what talks!" He jerked his sheath-knife from his belt, and, with one fierce lunge, drove it half to the hilt into the table, his brute eyes scowling threateningly into mine.

The entire situation seemed to un roll before me like a panorama as I stood there, hastily making up my mind for action. I was affoat on the high seas, absolutely powerless to re-sist the set purpose of these men surrounding me, all rendered desperate by greed. Much as I despised Anderson I comprehended that his threat was no idle one; nor did'I possess a single comrade on board who would stand at my back. I was utterly alone; nay worse even than alone—with two women dependent upon me. If I outwardly agreed with these rascals, and thus retained semblance of command over them, I might possibly preserve all our lives; I could, at least for the the present, protect the women from insult, perhaps from danger.

"Well, Mr. Tuttle," I said, quietly, "I may as well return you my an swer one time as another. I don't give a tinker's damn for Anderson's threats, and I don't altogether put much faith in your yarn. his Fact — that in addressing Mrs. Pinkham you are con-This Fact—that in addressing Mrs. Finkham you are confiding your private ills to a woman—a woman whose experience with women's diseases covers twenty-five years.

The present Mrs. Pinkham, daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, was for years under her direction, and has ever since her decease continued to advise women.

Many women suffer in silence and drift along from bad to worse, knowing well that they ought to have immediate assistance, but a natural modesty causes them to shrink from exposing themselves to the questions and probable examinations of even their family physician. Such questioning and examination is unnecessary. Without cost you can consult a woman whose knowledge from actual experience is great.

MRS. PINKHAM'S STANDING INVITATION:

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established this confidence between Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America which has never been broken. Never has she published a testi-monial or used a letter without the written consent of the writer, and never has the company allowed these confidential letters to get out of their possession, as the hundreds of thousands of them in their files will attest.

Out of the vast volume of experience which Mrs. Pinkham has to draw from, it is more than possible that she has gained the very knowledge needed in your case. She asks nothing in return except your good will, and her advice has helped thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, should be glad to take advantage of this generous offer of assistance. tolerated by this court. I'll have to fine you one dollar." "It appeared from the evidence that Mr. Rung, who is a stereotyper, sat down to luncheon with Edward Snider, a fellow employe. The piece de resist-ance of Rung's luncheon consisted of limburger cheese, and Snider, who regards himself as something of a wag, had made certain remarks about the cheese, reflecting particularly on its odor. Thereupon Mr. Rung smeared a piece of the cheese over the humorous Snider's countenance.

"This," said Rung, as he stepped up to pay his fine, "is the kind of justice that smells to heaven."

Springfield.—The war department notified Adjutant General Dickson of the Illinois National Guard that the combined regular and militia artillery encampment at Sparta, Wis., will be held on July 11-21. General Dickson notified the three Illinois batteries to prepare to participate in the practice which will be at pieces exclusively. The department also notified him that the maneuvers of infantry and cavalry at Indianapolis, Ind., will be on September 21-30. At ind., will be on September 21-30. At least one illinois regiment will par-ticipate in these maneuvers.

Chicago.—Discouraged over the failure of all his efforts to es-cape trial on a charge of robbery, "Eddle" English, the paroled convict arrested a few days ago on the eve of a general blackmail crusade against wealthy Chicagoans, attempted sui-cide in his cell in the county jail. Guards found him hanging from his cell door, suspended by a rope made from bed sheets. He was cut down in an apparent unconscious condition. After being revived, the prisoner attacked the guards, and was subdued after a struggle.

Springfield.—Arguments were heard by the supreme court on objections of property owners in the south park district to the award of $70,000 made by the Cook county court. The constitutionality of the act of 1907, granting two or more municipalities the right to unite to construct public improvements, was attacked in the case of Loeffler vs. the city of Chi-cago. The improvement involved is the joint sewer construction by Cicero and Chicago. The Federal Improvement company has the contract, aggregating more than $300,000.

Chicago. — While searching for her mother Jennie Cheaulos, six-teen months old, 1421 West Adams street, climbed from a chair to a window ledge and fell from the second floor of the home to the pavement, fracturing her skull. Hunting her child, the mother found her uncon-scious on the sidewalk. With the little girl clasped in her arms, the frantic woman ran several blocks to the Jefferson Park hospital, crying: "Save my baby." Three surgeons worked over the child until death came an hour later.

Belleville.-Louis Watchmann and Philip Watchmann, brothers, were fined $500 and costs each and sentenced to serve six months in sentenced to serve six months in jail by Judge Hay of the county court here. The men were convicted by a jury a week ago on charges of being "white slavers." These are the first convictions ever had in southern Illinois under the "white slave traffic" law, which became effective last July. The hysthers were convicted as a convicted of the sentence The brothers were convicted of so-liciting girls in East St. Louis for Chicago resorts.

Chicago. — Joseph Denusse, 1105 Marshfield avenue, a rabbi, is dead, having been accidentally asphyxiated in his home by gas escaping from a gas stove. His daughter Mary found her father dead in a chair where he apparently had been reading. Gas flowing from one of the burners of the stove filled the house. The daughter summoned neighbors and the police of the Maxwell street station were called. The police are satisfied that death was accidental.

Chicago.—Max Hirsch, a salesman living at 1401. Wells street, is recovering from arsenic poison, taken, it is said, with suicidal intent. The motive for his act is a puzzle to the police, he having declared to physicians that he took the poison through fear of arrest for forging a check on the North Avenue State bank. Investigation, however, dis-proved this, officials declaring he had passed no check on that bank.

Chicago.—Chicago machinists have presented a new wage scale to the employers, calling for an ad-vance of 25 to 45 cents a day. The number of men involved is said to be several thousand. The Chicago Metal Trades' association, whose members conduct open shops, has taken no action. According to the employers the new wage scale asked for is already paid by the members of the associa-tion.

Springfield.—Rober Scholes, prose-cuting attorney of Peoria county, appeared in the supreme court and asked leave to file charges against Arthur Kiethley, a Peoria lawyer, who was disbarred in 1906. Kiethley is charged with contempt of court. It is alleged that he has continued to practice law.

Danville.—Two piers of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois railroad bridge at Clinton, Ind., over the Wabash river, were shattered by a dynamite explosion which shook the town and broke many windows. Railroad officials know no motive for the deed. Trains are being detoured.

Mount Vernon.-The Bonny bank has been organized here with a capital of $25,000. J. H. Crosnoe is president, Jacob W. Wayland vice-president and E. M. Dare cashier.

Bariow was elected by 355 majority. Samuel Beals was second, with Joseph Schaffer third. In the aldermanic contests in the seven wards there were only two contests. In the Second ward Michael F. Smith was elected over J. H. Poma. John P. Mathieu in the Seventh. The other candidates had no opposition. The bond issue for the city water mains carried by a large majority.

FLORIDA'S MOST SUCCESSFUL FARM COLONY:

By Clement Yore.

T have just returned from a tour over the state of Florida. I left Chicago on the seth of March and nowhere did I nee breparations for spring planting or activity upon the farms until I arrived in Florida on the morning of the 8th.

I went through Florida, and I saw as I looked from the car windows the fields green with growing crops and men and women working in those fields in the very lightest of summer apparel.

I was on a mission of inspection to the Subank-Coals colory, located in Marion County, Florida. Mind you, this colony is hut 30 days old, and it is not reasonable to suppose that one touid see much development there, but this is what I found.

I learned from the officials in charge of the colony that the land was more than three-quarters sold, that the settlers and prospective settlers were arriving at, the ratio of from 20 to 30 a day. I went out to the colony on the line of the new relivous, and which has been built especially to penetrate through the heart of this colony, and which connects with the Seaboard Air Line and the Atlantic Coast line at Ocala.

Upon both sides of this relivad as I rade through the colony, I saw fields in cultivation, new houses built and being built, men busily engaged in clearing the land to make it ready for the plow, and I talked with many of these settlers and found a universal endorsement, both of the soil-and the possibilities of this great colony.

talked with many of these settlers and found a universal endorsement, both of the soil-and the possibilities of this great colony.

I saw many spots in Florida in the course of my three weeks' stay in that state, and I saw why it is that upon just a few acres of ground one can earn an independent living, with half the toil necessary in the ordinary pursuits of life, but in all of my travels I am very frank to say that I believe I liked the Burbank-Ocala colony better than any spot I saw in Florida.

Burbank-Ocala colony is building very fast, and it is almost impossible in so short a space to tell how great is this progress.

The land ites in the center of Marion County, which is the banner county of the state. It is touched upon both sides by great railroad systems, and with excellent transportation through the heart of the colony with a railroad which connects with these systems, while the Ocklawahs river runs the entire length of the eastern border of the colony, thus affording water transportation with the sea.

Civilization and Missions.

There is a question that is larger than government or trade, and that is the moral well-being of the vast mil-lions who have come under the protection of modern governments. The representative of the Christian religion must have his place side by side with the man of government and trade, and for generations that representative must be supplied in the person of the foreign missionary from America and Europe. Civilization can only be per-Europe. Civilization can only be permanent and continue a blessing to any people if, in ... addition "to promoting their material well-being, it also stands for an orderly individual liberty, for the growth of intelligence and for equal justice in the administration of law. Christianity alone meets these fundamental requirements. The change of sentiment in favor of "the foreign missionary in a single generation has been remarkable. tion has been remarkable.

"I have always cautioned friends to whom I have spoken about Postum, to follow directions in making it, for unless it is bolled fifteen or twenty minutes, it is quite tasteless. On the other hand, when properly made, it is very delicious. I want to thank you for the benefits we have derived from

COUNTY TREASURER

We are authorized to animum WILLIAM L. HANCOU ullivan as a candidate for th for County Treasurer of Moultrie a Co subject to the decision of the den primary, September 15.

After a hundred and thirtyfour years of struggle, the assistant secretary of the streasurey has made a report to the house committee on expendstures that there is no law on the statue books by which a subordinate In any of the various sub-treasuries of the United States can be punished for making away with the funds. If he combines with two or more individuals he can be held for conspiracy, but as long as he steals singly and alone, he is a pure patriot and the money is his. This is certainly an astonishing statement and shows how our laws are made to object not to affirm. The moment it is broached, the entire legal talent of the country is devoted to showing how a law cannot be enforced. Even the supreme court can disbar a man, but it cannot punish him for evading its commands and practicing law, in spite of the inhibition. And the supreme court itself has rendered a decision]wnich practically puts it out of business. All this comes from the habit of the legal fraternity in turning their whole attention to objections. 7 The trusts and the monopolies take is a friendly chap and like to advantage of this, and they hire the best legal talent to show them how to evade the statues, and thus, the law is used on side to delay the execution of justice, and on the other side to prevert it. In vain we pile statue on statue and regulation upon regulation. The trusts override all the safeguards that legislatures can put up, and the courts with their fatal tendency towards detays and their equally fatal habit for elephants have been known of looking for flaws and obstacles are supine while the combinations go boldly ahead and rob the people as they please. Daily Thought.

Every noble life leaves the fiber of it interwoven forever in the works of the world.—Ruskin.

A Word to Mr. Bryan.

Mr. Bryan told the Chicago News paper Club the other day that "If the newspapers of this country did their outy to the public there is not a wrong that could last one year in the United States."

In their clumsy, imperfect way a great many newspapers are trying to do their duty to the public, and it Mr. Bryan is so minded he can be of very great assistance to them He ould not forget that is he his had always done his duty there might be fewer public wrongs to

When Mr. Bryan insisted on being a candidate for President again in 19os he made it certain that Mr. Taft would be elected President, that the old patnership between Privilege and and the Government would continue in Congress, and that the tariff would be revised by the friends of its abuses Mr. Bryant put his personal ambition above his duty, and the country is paying for it. In 1896 when Mr. Bryant and his friends awang the Democra; c party to free silver at 16 to 11 they made the triumph of Hannism certain and checked for many years the work of curbing the trusts and corporation In 1900 when Mr. Bryan insisted that the Democratic platform must again indorse free silver he gave Hannaism and all its evils whew lease of power. More than this, he made the Democratic party impotent as an Opposition. It was discredited and it remained discredited.

In 1904 Mr. Bryan's lukewarm support of Parker helped to increase the tremendous majority that turned Theodore Roosevelt's head and led him to substitute government by denunciation for government by law. His subsequent indorsement of Mr. Roosevelt's method and policies weakened the force of the Democratic Opposition in Congress and contributed mightily to the reign of terror that brought on the Roosevelt panie in 1907. Morally Mr. Bryan was less responsible for the extravagance the turbuience, and the lawlessness of the Roosevelt, Administration than was Mr. Roosevelt himself. As the leader of the great Opposition he failed to do his duty. and this failure was due laagely to ridiculous belief that as a candidatd for President in 1908 he would be able to poll the vote of the Western Roosevelt fanatics. In calling Mr. Bryan's attention to this record The Wo d is infuere d by no hostility. We wish imerely to warh Mr. Bryan against mistakes of the past and point the way to a higher standard of duty. If Mr. Bryan will now sink personal ambition, stop exploring dead issues, avoid socialistic policies, help unite and harmonize the Democratic party, use all his efforts to assist in nominating the strongest and most available Democratic candidate for President in 1912, there will be few-er abuses or government to complain about hencforth. There is no better agency in fighting public wrong than a strong aggressive political party that will battle intelligently and uncompromisingly for bublic right. NEW YORK WORLD.

In olden times great men existed at the expense of others. Alexander and Napoleon were great by despising ordinary humankind. That will be no more. Greatness will be pure, moral, intellectual. THE PROPER IDEA IN READING

How to Get the Best from the A thore Who Have Enriched the World's Literature.

It was Oliver Wendell Hol it not, who owned up to his preference for reading in books to reading through them? "When I set out to read through a book," the Autocrat wrote, "I always felt that I had a task before me—but when I read in a book it was the page or the paragraph that I wanted, and which left its impression and became a part of my intellectual furniture." If we were only franker, most of us would confess to being like Holmes in this matter of our reading. To be sure, we have an old-fashioned disinclination to set down a book in the middle of it; we feel it our duty to finish whatever we have once begun at the beginning; yet if we yield to our New England conscience herein, we are only deterred from beginning very many books. And by "beginning" books I mean neither reading straight through their tedious opening pages, nor hastening, like a woman, to learn by the concluding chapter how it all "turns out." Open your book in the very thick of it; that is the true way of getting at its soul

The Duration of Dreams,

Something regarding the duration of dreams can be gathered from this experience of a man who, on sitting down for a dental operation, took gas and dreamed. He saw himself finish his work, go to the club, leave for the station, run for the train and miss it. He returned to his club and re-clined on a settee in the library. There he passed a miserable, restless night, getting gradually colder and colder as the fire died down, and with a pain gradually growing about his head and face from the hardness of his couch Five o'clock in the morning came, and the steward roused him to say that the club must now be closed. The sleeper got up feeling very stiff—to find that the steward was his dentist, and that the night's adventures had lasted exactly 42 seconds.

RIVER PILOT IN HIS YOUTH

Did His First Literary Work in No -Sad Events That Clouded His Later Years—A Clean Life Record.

Redding, Conn.-Mark Twain (Sam uel Langhorne Clemens) died pain-lessly at 6:30 o'clock Thursday of angina pectoris. He lapsed into come at 3 p. m. and never recovered consciousness. He was buried with sim-ple funeral services at Elmira, N. Y.;

Sunday afternoon. Samuel Langhorne Clemens, America's foremost humorist and known the world over as "Mark Twain," was born in the little town of Hannibal, Mo., in November 30, 1835.

His father, John Marshall Glemens, came from an old Virginia family, and with his young wife, Elizabeth Lamp ton, a descendant of the early settlers of Kentucky, he joined the sturdy band of pioneers who pushed over the Alleghanies in the early part of the last century and settled along the banks of the Mississippi river,

In the uncouth environment of the then little frontier town of Hannibal the famous author spent his boyhood days. Here he fished, hunted and lounged along the river banks with his sturdy companions, living a healthy outdoor existence, which undoubtedly accounted for his long life, in the face of his many afflictions.

He attended the little school, but not being of a very studious disposition, he learned far more from conwith the rough companions whom he immortalized in later years as "Huckleberry Finn" and "Tom Sawyer," and others of their type.

At the age of twelve his meas school education was brought to sudden close by the death of his fa-

His older brother, Orion S. Clemens, was the proprietor of a printing shop in the village, and young Sam Clemens began his journalistic career there as a "printer's devil." In the course of a few years he learned the trade as a compositor, and in 1853 he left his native town and began a wandering existence. He journeyed from place to place, working at his trade in New York and the principal cities of the middle west.

But while he gained a vast amount of experience during his travels, which proved of the greatest value in the preparation of some of his works in later years, this period was rather un profitable from a financial standpoint. and he was finally compelled to return to his home along the banks of the great river, in rather straitened circumstances.

Becomes River Pilot

The life of a steamboat pilot had always appealed to his youthful imagination, and now that he had grown to manhood, he resolved to realize his ambition. He was fortunate enough to become a pupil of Horace Bixby, and he was soon guiding the awkward river craft along the tortuous channel of the muddy stream.

The idea of his becoming an author had never entered his mind at that time, but he absorbed enough of the pilot life to enable him to describe the difficulties encountered in guiding a boat along the great river in his "Life on the Mississippi River," which he wrote many years later.

At the outbreak of the Civil war steamboating came to a standstill, and young Clemens enlisted in the Confed erate army. A soldier's life, however was not to his liking, and after a few weeks' service he joined his brother Orion, who had received an appointment as secretary of the Territory of Nevada. He acted as secretary to his brother, but as his duties were almost nothing and his salary even less, he spent most of his time in the mining camps. His experiences in this section are depicted in his "Roughing It," and "The Jumping Frog."

First Literary Work.

In 1862 he began his first regular literary work on the staff of the Virginia City Enterprise. He wrote a column daily, dealing with the political situation in the state, that attracted wide attention. These articles he signed with the nom de plume "Mark Twain," which he had heard sung out on the Mississippi steamers to let the pilot know that the sounding showed two fathoms of water.

He resigned his position at Virginia City and went to California, where he worked on the Sacramento Union; but after a brief period, he left his desk and went to Hawaii to write up the sugar interests. His work was very successful, and on his return to Callfornia he delivered a number of lectures, which netted him considerable

In March of 1867, Twain published his first book, "The Jumping Frog of Calaveras County." The book made quite a stir in that part of the country, but only 4,000 copies were sold. It attracted the attention, however, of was founded by "Mark Twain" in New York, and which represented one of his life-long ambitions, was forced to the editor of the Alta California, who sent the author out as a newspaper correspondent on a steamboat excur sion to southern Europe and the Orient.

His letters were published from time to time, and in 1869 the author re-vised them and published them in book form under the title of "The In-nocents Abroad." This work made 'Mark Twain" famous, and compelled his recognition as America's foremos humorist. In the first 16 months, 85, 000 volumes were sold, and many more subsequently. This was a record sale for those days.

It was on his trip in the Mediter-ranean that Mark Twain met Olivia L. Langdon of Elmira, N. Y. They fell in love with each other, and in 1870 were married. Their married life was one of perfect harmony and four children blessed their union.

Mr. Clemens resided in Buffalo for a year after his marriage, and was nominally the editor of the Buffalo Express. In 1871 he joined the literary colony at Hartford, Conn., where he lived for a great many years, and where he did the greater part of the work that has made his name

Colonel Roosevelt Lectures on This Subject in Paris.

BIG AUDIENCE IN SORBONNE

Bavanta, Professore and Students Hear the Ex-President's Views on the Responsibilities of the Individual—Hits at Race Sulcide in France.

Paris, April 23.—Savants, professors of students of the University of this crowded the assembly half of the urbonne this afternoon to hear Col edore Roosevelt lecture on "Citi zenship in a Republic. It was an appreciative audience and the lecturer was frequently applauded. Mr. Roosevelt said:

Foundations of Our Republic. This was the most famous univer city of medieval Europe at a time when no one dreamed that there was a new world to discover. Its services to the cause of human knowledge already stretched far back into the remote past at the time when my fore fathers, three centuries ago, when among the sparse bands of traders plowmen, wood choppers and fisher folk, who, in a hard struggle with the iron unfriendliness of the Indian haunted land, were laying the founda tions of what has now become the giant republic of the west. To conquer a continent, to tame the shaggy roughness of wild nature means grim warfare; and the generations engaged in it cannot keep, still less add the stores of garnered wisdom which were therein, and which are still in the hands of their brethren who dwell in the old land. To conquer the wilderness means to wrest victory from the same hostile forces with which mankind struggled in the immemorial infancy of our race. The primeval conditions must be met by primeval qualities which are incompatible with the retention of much patible with the retention of much that has been painfully acquired by humanity as through the ages it has striven upward toward civilization. In conditions so primitive there can be but a primitive culture.

Building the Higher Life. As the country grows, its people, who have won success in so many lines, turn back to try to recover the pos-sessions of the mind and the spirit, which perforce their fathers threw aside in order better to wager the first rough battles for the continent their children inherit. The leaders of children inherit. The leaders of thought and of action grope their way forward to a new life, realizing sometimes dimly, sometimes clear-sightedly, that the life of material gain, whether for a nation or an individual, is of value only as a foundation, only as there is added to it the uplift that comes from devotion to lattice ideals. comes from devotion to loftier ideals. The new life thus sought can in part be developed afresh from what is round about in the new world; but it can be developed in full only by freely drawing upon the treasure houses of the old world, upon the treasures stored in the ancient abodes of wisdom and learning, such as this where I speak today.

It is a mistake for any nation merely to copy another; but it is an even greater mistake, it is a proof of weakness in any nation, not to be anxious to learn from another, and willing and able to adapt that learning to the new national conditions and make it fruitnational conditions and make it truitful and productive therein. It is for us of the new world to sit at the feet of the Gamaliel of the old; then if we have the right stuff in us, we can show that Paul, in his turn, can become a teacher as well as a scholar.

Today, I shall speak to you on the subject of individual citizenship, the one subject of vital importance to you, my hearers, and to me and my coun trymen, because you and we are citizens of great democratic republics. A democratic republic such an effort to realize in its full sense government by, of, and for the people—represents the most gigantic of all possible social experiments, the of all possible social experiments, the one fraught with greatest possibilities alike for good and for evil.

Great Lesson of France. France has taught many lessons to other nations; surely one of the most important is the lesson her whole history teaches, that a high artistic and literary development is compatible with notable leadership in arms and with notable leadership in arms and statescraft. The brilliant gallantry of the French soldier has for many conturies been proverbial, and during these same centuries at every court in Europe the free missons of fashion have treated the French tongue as their common speech; while every artist and man of letters, and every man of science able to appreciate that many velous instrument of precision, French prose, has turned towards France for aid and inspiration. How long the leadership in arms and letters has lasted is curiously illustrated by the fact that the earliest masterplece in modern tongue is the splendid French epic, which tells of Roland's doom and the Charm is Everessian. statescraft. Need of Individual Character.

Let those who have, keep, let those who have not, strive to attain a high standard of cultivation and scholarship. Yet let us remember that these stand second to certain other things. There is need of a sound body, and even more need of a sound mind. But above mind and above body stands character, the sum of those qualities. character, the sum of those qualities character, the sum of those qualities which we mean when we speak of a man's force and courage, of his good faith and sense of honor. I believe in exercise of the body, always provided that we keep in mind that physical development is a means and not an end. I believe, of course, in giving to sail the people a good education. But all the people a good education. But the education must contain much be-sides book-learning in order to be really good. We must ever remember that no keenness, and subtleness of intellect, no polish, no eleverness in any way make up for the lack of great solid qualities—self-restraint, selftery, common sense, the power of accepting individual responsibility and yet, of acting in conjunction with others. Courage and resolution; these are the qualities which mark a mas terful people. Without them no peo ple can control itself or save itself from being controlled from the outside. I speak to a brilliant assemblage: I speak in a great university which represents the flower of the highest intellectual development; I pay all homage to intellect; and to elaborate and specialized training of the intellect; and yet I know I shall have the assent of all you present when I add that more important still are the commonplace, every-day qualities and vir-

The Evils of Sterility. In the next place the good man should be both a strong and a brave man; that is, he should be able to fight, he should be able to serve his country as a soldier if the need arises There are well-meaning philosophers who declaim against the unrighteous they lay all their emphasis upon the unrighteousness. War is a dreadful thing, and unjust; war is a crime against humanity. But it is such a crime because it is unjust, not because it is war. The choice must ever be in favor of righteousness, and this whether the alternative be peace or whether the alternative be war. The question must not be merely, is there to be peace or war? The question must be, is the right to prevail? Are the great laws of righteousness once more to be fulfilled? And the answer from a strong and virile people must be, "Yes," whatever the cost. Every honorable effort should always be made by the individual in private life to keep out of a brawl, to keep out of trouble; but no self-respecting indi-vidual, no self-respecting nation, can or ought to submit to wrong.

Finally, even more important than ability to work, even more important than ability to fight at need, is it to remember that the chief of blessings for any nation is that it shall leave its seed to inherit the land. It was the crown of blessings in Biblical times, and it is the crown of blessings now. The greatest of all curses is the curse of sterility, and the severest of all condemnations should be that visited upon wilful sterility. The first es-sential in any civilization is that the man and the woman shall be father and mother of healthy children, so that the race shall increase and not decrease. If this is not so, if through no fault of society there is failure to increase, it is a great misfortune. If the failure is due to deliberate and wilful fault, then it is not merely a misfortune, it is one of those crimes of ease and self-indulgence, of shrink ing from pain and effort and risk which in the long run nature punishes more heavily than any other.

Idle Achievements.

If we of the great republics, if we the free people who claim to have emancipated ourselves from the thraldom of wrong and error, bring down on our heads the curse that comes wilfully barren, then it will be an idle waste of breath to prattle of our achievements, to boast of all that we have done. No refinement of life, no delicacy of taste, no material progress, no sordid heaping up of riches, no sensuous development of art and literature, can in any way compensate for the loss of the great fundamental virtues; and of the great fundamental virtues, the greatest is the race's power to perpetuate the

If the man works for evil, then the more successful he is, the more he should be despised and condemned by all upright and farseeing men. To judge a man merely by success is an abhorrent wrong; and if the people at large habitually so judge men, if they grow to condone wickedness because the wicked man triumnha, they show their insplitty to umphs, they show their inability to understand that in the last analysis trace institutions rest upon the character of citizenship and that by such admiration of evil they prove themselves unfit for liberty.

The idea of True Liberty.

The good citizen will demand liberty for himself, and as a matter of pride he will see to it that others receive the liberty which he thus claims as his own. Probably the best test of true love of liberty in any country is the way in which minorities are treated in that country. Not only should there be complete liberty in matters of religion and opinion, but complete liberty for each man to lead his life as he desires, provided only that in so doing he does not wrong his neighbor. Persecution is bad be cause it is persecution, and without reference to which side happens at the moment to be the persecutor and which the persecuted. Class hatred is bad in just the same way, and without any regard to the individual who, at given time, substitutes loyalty to a class for loyalty to the nation, or substitutes hatred of men because they happen to come in a certain social category, for judgment awarded them ecording to their conduct. Remem ber always that the same measure of demnation should be extended to the arrogance which would look down upon or crush any man because he is poor, and to the envy and hatre which would destroy a man because he is wealthy. The overbearing bru-tality of the man of wealth or power, and the envious and hateful malice directed against wealth or power, are really at root merely different maniestations of the same quality, merely the two sides of the same shield,

The man who, if born to wealth and power, exploits and ruing his less ortunate brethren is at heart the same as the greedy and violent dema gogue who excites those who have not property to plunder those have. Of one man in especial, beyond anyone else, the citizens of a rehave. public should beware, and that is of the man who appeals to them to support him on the ground that he hostile to other citizens of the republic, that he will secure for those who elect him, in one shape or another, profit at the expense of other citizens of the republic. It makes no differ-ence whether he appeals, to class hatred or class interest, the man who makes such an appeal should-always be presumed to make it for the sake of furthering his own interest. The very thing that an intelligent self-respecting member of and democratic community should not do is to reward any public man because that public man says he will get the private citizen something to which this private citizen is not entitled, or will gratify some emotion or animos-ity which this private citizen ought not to possess. If a public man tries to get your vote by saying that he will do something wrong in your interest, you can be absolutely certain that if ever it becomes worth his while he will do something wrong against your inter-

The ancient friendship between France and the United States has been, on the whole, a sincere and disinterested friendship. A calamity to you would be a sorrow to us. But it would be more than that. Nearly everybody in Washington wanted to attend the dedication ceremonies, but the "hall of ambassadors" seats only 800 people. So Mr. Barrett arranged for a reception in the evening in honor of President and Mrs. Taft and Mr. and Mrs. Carnegie. Invitations were sent to members of the diplomatic corps and to official and resident society, and the reception proved to be one of the most brilliant affairs of the season. The Marine band was there, playing a repertoire

Growth of the Bureau.

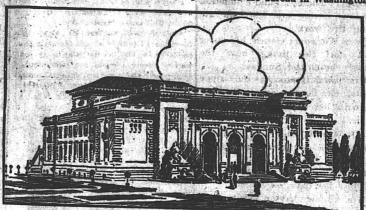

As most people are aware, the institution known as the International Bureau of the American Republics, or the Pan-American bureau, as it is usually called, is a sort of common head-quarters and clearing house for in-formation, maintained jointly by all the American nations from the great lakes to Cape Horn. It was the outgrowth of the first Pan-American con ference, which was held in Washington in 1882, and it is maintained by a common fund to which all of the indendent nations of the three Americas

Several of the South American countries proceeded on this basis. and there was something like $50,000 on hand when the congress of the United States declared for a more pretentious building and appropriated $200,000 instead of merely its share of the $125,000. Soon after Andrew Carnegie came forward and offered to do nate the whole sum needed for a building and a much finer building than had previously been thought of. He

Beauties of the Marble Building. With three-quarters of a million dollars provided by Mr. Carnegie for a building, the Pan-American bureau was enabled to devote $250,000 on hand to the purchase of a site, and a most admirable tract of several acres was secured in an ideal location south of the White House and overlooking the Potomac river. Here a surpass ingly beautiful marble palace has been reared from the prize designs submitted in a competition which was entered by architects in all parts of the country, and, indeed, of the continent There is a distinct touch of the Spanish in the architecture, markedly in the introduction of a tile roof and the provision of a "patio" or inner court, such as constitutes the most distinctive feature of the typical Latin-Amer ican mansion. The whole architectural policy in the case of this building has been to provide a structure more sug gestive of a palatial residence than s public office structure.

The "patio," or picturesque court yard, is protected from the sun by an overhanging roof and cooled by the waters falling from a beautiful, marble fountain. On all hands are tropical plants, while the quaint pavement, white stucco and low doors suggest the Spanish at-mosphere. Much space in the rooms which open from this "patio" is given over to the Columbus Memorial il-

NEVER SAW SUCH FINE WHEAT ANYWHERE

Gust. Anderson of Maidstone, S was formerly of Minnesota and has been in Central Canada three years been in Central Canada three years.

On January 16, 1910, he writes:
"Arriving fifteen miles from Maidstone, I bought a couple of steers from a rancher, as my capital was not large, and with the two oxen I brought with me, I broke 25 acres which I put in drop in 1908 and had to clear some brush. I carned $45,00 by breaking fifteen acres for a neighbor and durfifteen acres for a neighbor and du ing the summer I put up hay a hauled timber and put up houses for other settlers. Notwithstanding a heavy frost on August 12th, I had 2216 bushels of wheat per acre and 60 bushels of oats. Off 35 acres of wheat in 1909, I got 27 bushels of wheat per acre and 1,300 bushels of cats off 20 acres. I never saw such fine wheat anywhere. We have plenty of rain between May and August and after August seldom any but dry warm days. Water can be had at from 20 to 40 feet and plenty of grass for cat

The evidence of Mr. Anderson is given because it is encouraging to the man of small means who is desirous of bettering his condition. It shows what can be done, and there is really but small limit to the man with push and energy to become wealthy on Canadian lands. And the grain that he raises is good. A press dispatch

The quality of the wheat continues to be the feature of the deliveries. In the total of 3,378 cars in the February the total or 3,375 cars in the February inspections there were 2,347 of high grade stuff, a percentage of 34.28. For January the percentage was 32.31, and for the six months it/was 88.8. This is an unusually high average, and it demonstrates beyond the shadow of a demonstrates beyond the shadow of a doubt that the farmers in this part of the Dominion still know how to grow first-class wheat. The crop of 1908 was considered good enough, and its average of contract wheat was only 70 per cent. Good weather throughout the season was an important factor of course in insuring the tant factor, of course, in insuring the high quality of the grain, and it is not likely that atmospheric influences of so favorable a character will be en-countered for a long time to come. The best that can be expect a fair average for a term of years will be maintained.
