JUNIORS' BANQUET

THE JUNIORS OF THE SULLIVAN HIGH SCHOOL ENTERTAIN THE SENIORS AND INSTRUCTORS.

The principal festivity attendant upon the graduation of the senior class from the Sullivan high school was given Friday night of last week, when according to custom, the junior class tendered a reception and banquet to the seniors in the K. P. hall.

About 8 p. m. the guests, consisting of the seniors and members of the high school faculty, began to arrive and were received by the juniors.

The auditorium room, where the reception was held, was made attractive with potted plants and cut flowers, while overhead was intertwined paper bands of violet and white, the senior colors, and old gold and purple, the colors of the juniors.

The banquet was served in the banquet hall. The table decorations were beautiful, artistic and appropriately arranged. Four tables were set, the center decoration of each was reflectors on which were placed crystal vases filled with white roses. Wood violets were promiscuously arranged upon the tables, while a festoon drapery of violets graced the sides of the tables. Artistic nut cups shaped and tinted like a violet and place cards with a spray of violets completed the table decorations.

The nut cups and place cards were designed by Miss Alma Simons, a member of the junior class, and who displays a strong artistic skill.

The committee in charge of the decorations and other arrangements were the principal of the high school Miss Essie Chamberlain, and the juniors.

Several toasts were given just before the banquet was served, with Olive Gaddis the toastmaster. "We miss you in a thousand different ways," by Miss Grace Harshman, response Mack Booze, "Everybody gives us good advice." "Take me out to the ball game," to the football boys, by Miss Helen King; response, "I was a gridiron hero too," by Roy Patterson; "May the hinges of friendship never grow rusty," by Miss Rose Hoke to the teachers, response, "Keep a little feeling in your heart for me," Mr. Wickersham, instructor. "And a little bit more," by Miss Gladys Hudson.

A class poem by Clarence Roberts entitled, "Gad, Sir; What, sir; A Poet Here." Next in order was a four course supper. The first course was mint sherbet, the second course was chicken patties, mashed potatoes, spring peas, radishes, olives, shrimp salad, hot rolls and honey; third course, salted nuts, cheese wafers, waldorf salad and the last course consisted of hot chocolate with whipped cream, cake and mints.

After the supper an entertainment was given in the auditorium room, consisting of vocal music by the "Girls' Glee Club," solo Miss Fern Wright and music by the orchestra. Two pantomime plays, "A Bachelor's Pipe Dream" and "Entertaining Hei-Beaux" and a shadow circus in which all the company took part.

The orchestra furnished music during the banquet hour.

The graduating class is composed of the following:

Residence Burned.

A house that was located on South Main street and occupied by Francis Chaney and wife was destroyed by fire about 2 o'clock Tuesday morning, but the most of Mr. Chaney's household goods were saved. Mr. and Mrs. Chaney had left about noon the day before to visit friends in Peoria.

It is the opinion of a number of persons who were at the scene of the fire that it was incendiary. A mattress that was taken to Scott Wilburn's barn was saturated with coal oil and a skeleton key was found in one of the doors.

Mr. Chaney is a barber by trade, and employed in the Lindsay barber shop.

The house was the property of Mrs. Sarah Denton of Decatur, and was insured for about $600. The signal gave wrong ward, two instead of one, which delayed the fire company in getting to the fire promptly.

Interesting Meeting.

They extended to Mrs. Charles Patterson a vote of thanks for her hospitality.

MARRIAGE

WOOD—BIRCHFIELD

Miss Bessie Birchfield daughter of Mrs. A. M. Birchfield once of Sullivan and Earl E. Wood, were married Sunday April 24, at Decatur. Only a few of the most intimate relatives were present. The bride was attired in pure white carrying white roses while the groom wore the usual black. They left for Chicago on their honeymoon where they are thinking of residing.

Bessie will be remembered as one of the twins and has been in the employment of the Linn & Scrugg dry good store for the past six years and is highly respected and loved by all who knew her. She will be missed on account of her pleasant smiles and winning way by which she has gained many friends, in a business as well as a social way.

All join in wishing her a happy life as she deserves, and all the store regrets losing one that will be missed so much.

Semi-Solition.
Half the secret of happiness is to forget the unpleasant things. The other half is not to be found out.—Lila.

CAZIER'S PLACE.

John Cazier has this week opened a new restaurant on Main street. For several days he has had a force of men at work repairing and arranging the room, which now presents an elegant appearance. A new 16x16 foot kitchen has been built to the east end of the room. The walls have been papered with an attractive paper, wood work all re-painted. A stairway has been placed in one corner which gives access to the second floor where Mr. Cazier and wife will reside.

A nice new lenolium graces the floor. The furnishings are fine; a twenty foot back bar or counter, with mirrors, an elegant piece of walnut furniture is on the south side of the room. A counter of cherry faces this, where lunches will be served. A glass front tobacco case 10x6 feet is in the southwest corner of the room. A candy kitchen will be on the north side of the room, over the shelving is a beautiful large mirror.

At Cazier's Place—

Will be served short order lunches and to be convinced, that they are high grade in location—surroundings—service and cuisine step in, you will be pleased.

Another Go—

His cigars will top your dander, an enjoyment that is worthy of the day. Besides he has a fine line of all grades and kinds of tobacco.

Candy Purity—

Will be found in the candy kitchen, nothing but the best ingredients used. Generous blocks of savory sweetness that the candy eater will enjoy. Everybody wants good candies; here they are.

Oh, Yes—

If you are wanting home-made, pies, just such as mother baked, CAZIER sells them. He has many other things too numerous to mention.

Remember the Place—

Cazier's East Side of Square, three doors south of Cummin's hardware store, Sullivan, Illinois.

Usurious Notes.

Charging that several notes which bore her signature and upon which judgment has been confessed April 7, were usurious, and that one of them had been fully satisfied, yet had been placed in judgment by the grantee, J. E. Dazey of the Findlay National bank, for the purpose of cheating and defrauding her. Mrs. Cordelia Farney, of Sullivan, made a successful plea before Judge A. M. Rose in the circuit court to have the judgment stayed, as well as to stay the execution of a levy on her Moultrie county real estate until she could be heard in court.

Mrs. Farney's motion, which was presented by her attorney, W. E. Whitfield, was supported by a lengthy affidavit touching on three notes held by Dazey, another given him but transferred to Dr. A. W. Atkins, and still another transferred to C. E. Coventry, assistant cashier of the Dazey Banking institution. Judgment has been confessed on all of them, and attorney's fees had been added.

SYNOPSIS.

The story opens with the introduction of John Stephens, adventurer, a Massachusetts man marooned by authorities at Valparaiso, Chile. Being interested in mining operations in Bolivia, he was denounced by Chile as an insurrectionist and as a consequence was hiding. At his hotel his attention was attracted by an Englishman and a young woman. Stephens rescued the young woman from a drunken officer. He was thanked by her. Admiral of the Peruvian navy confronted Stephens, told him that war had been declared between Chile and Peru and offered him the office of captain. He desired that that night the Esmeralda, a Chilean vessel, should be captured. Stephens accepted the commission. Stephens met a motley crew, to which he was assigned. He gave them final instructions. They boarded the vessel. They successfully captured the vessel supposed to be the Esmeralda, through strategy. Capt. Stephens gave directions for the departure of the craft. He entered the cabin and discovered the English woman and her maid. Stephens quickly learned the wrong vessel had been captured. It was Lord Darlington's private yacht, the lord's wife and maid being aboard. He explained the situation to her ladyship. Then First Mate Tuttle laid bare the plot, saying that the Sea Queen had been taken in order to go to the Antarctic circle. Tuttle explained that on a former voyage he had learned that the Donna Isabel was lost in 1783. He had found it frozen in a huge mass of ice on an island and contained much gold. Stephens consented to be the captain of the expedition. He told Lady Darlington. She was greatly alarmed, but expressed confidence in him. The Sea Queen encountered a vessel in the fog. Stephens attempted to communicate.

"Lay your hands on me again," I threatened, sternly, "and I'll floor you to the deck. I'll take that grin off your face, De Nova, if you attempt any interference with me now."

He understood quickly enough what I meant, and evidently had no relish for attacking me alone, for with one swift, searching glance into the fog, he leaped down the steps and ran hastily aft. I knew he was seeking the backing of Tuttle, and armed myself with a belaying pin, peering eagerly meanwhile for the near-by sail, and cursing the fellow at the wheel for not holding her up to the point directed. They came up together, two steps at a time, Tuttle in his shirt sleeves, and, as they attained the bridge, Bill Anderson swung himself out of the hatch and started after them. I backed away, the ugly iron pin grasped in my hand.

"You'd better keep back," I warned, threateningly. "I'm ready to brain the first man who attempts to touch me."

Tuttle stopped, his jaw quivering savagely, his eyes on mine.

"Will you promise to keep quiet, sir, and let us get away out of this?"

"Damn you, no!" stubbornly, all my senses leaving me at sight of his hateful face. "I'll speak that ship yonder if I have to fight the crew of you single-handed."

"Then fight, you cockerel, an' be damned to you!" roared Anderson; and he pressed past the two of them and sprang at me.

It was hot, swift work, while it lasted. I struck twice, laying open the big brute's scalp, and dropping him so his head hung dangling down over the deck, his body huddled against the rail. I aimed to do as well with Tuttle, but the descending pin landed on his uplifted arm, and before I could draw back for another blow, the fellow at the wheel released the spokes and jumped at my back, throttling me with his hands as the weight of his body crushed me to the planks. Grasping the rail I half tore myself loose, rising to one knee, and struck him twice madly in the face; but others of the crew came tumbling on top of us, pinning me helplessly down. It was all the work of a breathless moment, and as I lay there, the knee of a negro crunching into my chest, I saw De Nova spring to the wheel and whirl it hard down, while Tuttle, his left arm dangling, his teeth set from pain, began jangling the bells in the engine-room. Scarcely had the echo reached us when a strange voice hailed sharply from out the dense fog:

"Steamer, ahoy! What vessel is that?"

Tuttle's nasal voice answered: "Steam yacht Cormorant, Panama to Easter Island, for pleasure. Who are you?"

"H. M. S. Victory, on cruise. Stand by, while we send a boat."

A deep oath sprang to Tuttle's lips, his fingers convulsively gripping the rail. Then he appeared to rally, the very intensity of his fear making a new man out of him.

They were certainly expeditious enough in my case, dragging me bumping down the steps, and flinging me in between table and bench with a violence that made me groan. I caught the glimmer of a steel barrel in De Nova's hand as he drew close the sliding door.

"It was not nice sing to do, Mons. Stephens," he said, not ill-naturedly, "but, by gar, out ze farisly row it was going to be done, for I shoot ze pistol very good."

"That's all right, De Nova," I replied, realizing my complete defeat and holding no personal grudge against him. "I can't blame you, I've made my play, and have had enough. May I sit up?"

He nodded carelessly, dropping the revolver back into his jacket pocket, yet with his black eyes fastened shrewdly on my face.

"'Is ze bes' way to talk, monsieur,' pausing to listen to the mingled sounds without. 'Sacre, I wonder w'at ze devil was up now!'"

We both sat, breathing hard from our late exertions, listening anxiously, yet with vastly differing emotions, hope animating me that this was to prove a capture, or, at least, that some chance discovery by the officer visiting us would result in the release of the women below. But De Nova was in an agony of apprehension, the full peril of his position clear before him. We heard the bare feet of the hurrying sailors patter along the deck, the strident voice of Tuttle issuing a few final commands, and the faint sound of oars in the water alongside. The officer came slowly up the ladder, and my heart sank as I heard him laugh carelessly to the mate's greeting. I could distinguish the sound of his voice, but not the words uttered, and in some way it impressed me with the thought that the fellow was young, a midshipman, possibly, who would prove mere putty under Tuttle's expert handling. The two went down the companion-steps together in apparently amiable conversation, and we could hear the low murmur of voices as the crew hung over the rail jesting with the men-o-war's men in the boat below. My eyes met De Nova's in the semi-darkness, and he grinned, showing his teeth.

"Nossing ver' dangerous, monsieur," he said, easily. "Ze ol' fox he fool zat kid."

I attempted no response, my mind already sufficiently heavy from apprehension. Oh, for just a word, merely an opportunity to cry out our story before it was forever too late! De Nova must have felt the struggle within me, for he stretched his legs across the narrow passage leading to the door, and I saw his hand thrust into his coat pocket. Underneath his general veneer he was one to act upon occasion, absolutely careless of the result. So I waited in silence, my teeth set hard, my hands clenched, as the last vestige of hope oozed slowly out of me. They were scarcely ten minutes below, coming up chatting in rare good fellowship, the officer clinging to the rail, his feet on the ladder, while he completed some story he had been relating with much gusto. Then we heard plainly the dip of oars, growing gradually fainter in the distance, feet pattered on the deck planks, Tuttle's voice sounded from the bridge, and the vessel began throbbing to the steady chug of the screws. We were safely under way again, pressing our sharp bow into the fog-bank. Unable to control my weakness, I buried my face in my hands.

I do not know how long we sat there motionless, De Nova staring blankly at the vapor sweeping past the window, and I with head lowered in depression. It was Tuttle himself, with one arm in an improvised sling, who slid open the door of the chart-house and looked in upon us.

"This is your watch yet, De Nova," he said, shortly, "and I need to doctor up my arm a bit. You're a dam' hard hitter, Mr. Stephens, no trace of anger in his voice, "but that's about the last chance you'll have to kick up a shindy on this vessel. You'll go below, sir, an' stay there, unless we happen to need you."

I stepped forth onto the open deck in obedience to his gesture.

"Then I am no longer even in pretended command, but merely your prisoner."

"Call it whatever suits you best," he returned, grimly. "The result will be the same in any case. Well, De Nova, what are you waitin' for?"

"I sink maybe you say w'at was it ze navy man wanted?"

Tuttle's solemn countenance broke into the semblance of a grin.

"Plug tobacco," he announced, sucking his lips with sudden enjoyment of the joke. "Gave me the scare of my life, but that's all it amounted to. Been out cruisin' for three months, an' the crew ready to mutiny for smokin' and chewin'." Nice, sociable little-chap they sent over, too."

CHAPTER XIII.

In Which We Sail Due South.

As I sank down into the recesses of a cushioned chair in the cabin, my spirits at lowest ebb, I glanced up at the telltale compass—we were already headed due south.

Those days and nights following, while serving to bear us continually deeper into the immense expanse of water that concealed the mystery awaiting us in the great South sea, contained little of incident directly relating to this narrative. Day following day that same wide circle of the sky came down to unite with the circle of the waters. It was almost as though we remained motionless, "a painted ship upon a painted ocean"; only the figures on the paper, the pins on the chart, the sharp stem cleaving the waves asunder, and the oily wake astern leaving us aware of steady progression through this trackless desert of the sea.

We passed somewhat to the westward of Juan Fernandez, so far out that only with a glass from the foretop could the distant peaks be dimly deciphered in blue, misty blots against the sky. Already Tuttle had banked the fires, and spread the Sea Queen's canvas, reaching to the westward to get the most possible out of the fresh breeze. The Sea Queen changed motive power and appearance as if by magic, the square yards hiding the jauntness of her keel, and concealing the rake of her masts, the white sails billowing out before the wind, sending her swooping forward through the water like a great bird, leaning over until at times her lee rail was all awash with white foam and her forward decks glistening with spume.

Tuttle drove her recklessly, holding on in spite of crackling wood and sails threatening to tear loose from the bolt-eyes, taking shrewd advantage of each slant of wind, and lowering canvas only when danger was deadly. He had come into his own, he was at home, and the rejuvenated Sea Queen leaped forward at his will, as though endowed with fresh life. He seemed to understand her moods, her caprices, as though he had sailed her in every sea, and I watched him test her, loosening a rope here, tightening another there, striving to discover her good and bad qualities, until my admiration for his seamanship almost overbalanced my growing detestation of him otherwise.

Lady Darlington became positively afraid of him, dreading his approach, shrinking from his address, yet not daring to withdraw wholly from his presence. His sole topic of conversation was psychomancy, and every time she endeavored to lead him to some more pleasant subject he would return with dogmatic persistence to that one rather dismal theme. His blatant self-conceit saved him from realizing her utter weariness, and he never seemed to tire of his own unctuous, nasal tones. Heavens, but the fellow was an insufferable bore. Celeste would slip away unobserved, but her mistress and myself had no means of escape. I remained quietly below for three days and even then was not released by any formal word of mouth. I simply became so tired of the senseless imprisonment that I mounted to the deck, taking Lady Darlington with me determined to be confined to the cabin no longer except by physical force. De Nova was upon the bridge when we emerged from the companion, but he merely glanced at us curiously. Tuttle, coming aft a little later, retained sense enough to remain silent. The three days passed below had thrown me much into the society of both mistress and maid, although the frank intimacy of that first conversation with Lady Darlington was never resumed. There seemed an intangible barrier of reserve between us, although we talked freely enough regarding our situation, the peculiarities of Tuttle, and the constantly changing wonders of the deep. It was as if neither of us quite dared to probe beneath the surface, opening up once more the depths each endeavored to conceal; rather were we content to drift as the tide ran.

I saw comparatively little of De Nova, the second officer, during this period, and gained an impression that he was endeavoring to avoid meeting me. Yet I ran across him twice in company with Celeste, once in the cabin, and again in the narrow deck space overhanging the stern, and began to hope vaguely that the girl was winning him over to our interests.

With the others I sought to approach I made no progress. McKnight seldom showed his nose above deck, and then only to smoke in sullen silence, seated gloomily on the edge of the main hatch or to the lee of the chart-house. Olsen was undoubtedly honest enough, yet without intelligence, his eyes those of a faithful dog. The Chilean, a smooth-faced young fellow wonderfully deficient in chin, I learned had been assigned as assistant to the cook, and was thus kept too busy in side the galley even to be approached. Indeed, so far I had not seen his face on board the ship.

CHAPTER XIV.

In Which De Nova Speaks.

What now occurred came upon us with such suddenness that I find it difficult to relate the incidents in detail. We must have been below the fiftieth degree of south latitude, and about 135 degrees west, with the wind strong and occasionally puffing up into squalls, bearing flakes of snow which stung exposed flesh and left a thin mantle of white along the decks. It was Tuttle's watch below, and as I paused in the protection of the companionway looking forward, while I got my pipe going, I could see De Nova on the bridge, wrapped up like a mummy, and crouching well down behind the tarpaulins. All about was a wild sea scene, never to be looked upon amid any other stretch of waters on the globe—a dull, dead picture of utter desolation, of madly racing waves, of green, sullen sea, of pale blue sky, the very frost in the air apparent; a cold, drear expanse of monotonous distance wherever the eye looked—a desert of water below, a void of air above. Big Bill Anderson, his head still bound up where I had cracked him, slouched in the doorway of the chart-house, staring aft, and a moment later De Nova came lumbering down the steps from the bridge and spoke with him for some earnestly. The boatswain finally went forward, clinging to lifeline to keep footing on the slippery deck, and the second officer claved along the weather-rail until he reached the companion

LINK CONFESSES ALL

LEGISLATOR, INDICTED AS PERJURER, BARES ALL TO GRAND JURY.

HIS TRUE BILL DISMISSED

Sensational Developments Come in Legislative Scandal After True Bills Are Found by Grand Jury Against Browne, Wilson and Link.

Chicago.—Confession No. 3 in the legislative bribery series was made Saturday before the special grand jury by Representative Michael S. Link of Mitchell. Aghast at the indictment for perjury voted against him Friday, Link went before the jurors and testified that he had bartered his vote on United States senator.

The barriers of silence and denial which the jurors for two days had vainly tried to pierce were shattered and, with husky voice, Link unfolded a story that corroborates all essential details of the confession made by Representatives Charles A. White of O'Fallon and H. J. C. Beckemeyer of Carlyle. The bribes which Link testified he had received as a member of the Forty-sixth general assembly were:

The sum of $1,000 for voting for William Lorimer for United States senator, payment being made in St. Louis by Lee O'Neill Browne, minority leader of the house.

The sum of $900 as his share in the legislative "jack pot," or general corruption fund, payment being made by Representative Robert E. Wilson July 15, 1909, in St. Louis.

Three Indictments Returned. Late Friday the special grand jury returned three indictments in the legislative bribery scandal as follows:

Representative Lee O'Neill Browne of Ottawa, leader of the Democratic minority in the house; accused of bribery on June 16 last in the alleged payment of $850 to Representative Charles A. White at the Briggs house in Chicago for White's vote on a contract and for his vote for William Lorimer as United States senator.

Representative Robert E. Wilson of Chicago, Democrat; accused of falsely testifying before the Cook county grand jury that he did not pay $900 each to Representative White and H. J. C. Beckemeyer at the Southern hotel in St. Louis on July 15 last as their respective shares in the legislative "jack pot."

Representative Michael S. Link of Mitchell, Democrat; accused of falsely testifying under oath before the grand jury that he was not in the Southern hotel at St. Louis on the day when Representatives White, Beckemeyer and Wilson testified he was present, being the occasion when White and Beckemeyer alleged the "jack pot" of $900 apiece was distributed by Wilson as the deputized agent of Representative Browne.

Penalties as provided by statute are imprisonment in the state penitentiary for from one to fourteen years on conviction for perjury and from one to five years' imprisonment in the penitentiary on conviction for bribery.

Ball in all three cases was fixed at $15,000 each. Clauses were ordered issued at once.

Link Makes "Clean Breast."

In immediate sequence to Legislator Link's "clean breast" of his bribe taking, the indictment accusing him of perjury was "nolled" by Judge Kersten on the request of State's Attorney Wayman, who in explanation informed the jurist that the defendant had retracted and thereby purged himself.

The move left Link in the same classification as White and Beckemeyer as beneficiaries of leniency, none of the three being under indictment. For the first time in three days Link left the criminal court building unattended by a detective and was allowed to go to his residence after promising to return if needed.

Link Outlines Agreement. Link was hurried to the grand jury rooms early in the morning by the secret elevator from the offices of State's Attorney Wayman after he had made a preliminary confession to Wayman and had been told that if he would tell all he would be given immunity on the perjury indictment.

Link's confession touched directly on the Lorimer purchase of the senatorial seat and uncovered new angles of the state-wide corruption in which it is charged Democratic assemblymen sold their political birthrights.

New names of legislators who were interested in the Lorimer senatorial election also have been learned through the confessions of Link and Beckemeyer, whose stories corroborate in detail the original confession of Representative White.

Bomb to Browne and Wilson. Link's confession came as a bombshell to Browne and Wilson, the men who it is alleged distributed the senatorial election bribes and the "jack pot" money, so far as these moneys appertained to the Democratic end of the bipartisan deal.

Browne and Wilson appeared at the criminal court building to furnish bonds on their indictments, returned Friday evening, just as the news of Link's confession came from the grand jury chambers.

Both plainly were worried, but Wilson seemed less concerned than the Ottawa legislator.

Both Browne and Wilson presented the same bondsmen, as follows:

"Johnnie" Powers, alderman of the Nineteenth ward, former state senator.

John J. Brennan, alderman of the Eighteenth ward.

In addition to these two Wilson's bond was signed by his brother-in-law, Francis J. Casey.

Tells of Primary Bribe Offer.

Second only in importance to the indictments themselves was the unexpected and volunteered statement by Representative Joseph S. Clark that he had been offered a $500 bribe to vote against the direct primary bill in the Forty-fifth general assembly.

His statement came in an outburst of wrath when, following the indictments of his fellow legislators, he was again questioned by Assistant State's Attorney Arnold as to matters he had testified to before the grand jury.

"Twenty-five $20 bills were counted out before me in my room," said Mr. Clark, "and I was told they were mine if I would agree to vote against the pending direct primary bill. I refused and voted for the bill, as the records will show."

First Public Declaration.

This statement, advanced by Clark to demonstrate his claim of probity at Springfield, is the first public declaration that bribery was attempted in 1907 to defeat direct primary legislation.

"Yes," said Mr. Clark after he had emerged from this ordeal with Assistant State's Attorney Arnold, "I did say that I had been offered a bribe to vote against the direct primary bill in 1907, but I do not care to have that statement published. The matter is now old and I merely mentioned it to show how I could have made money had I been so disposed at Springfield while a member of the legislature."

Lorimer Has Nothing to Say.

Senator Lorimer was told of the indictments while in the office of his new bank, the La Salle National, in the Rookery building.

H. J. C. Beckemeyer.

"Browne and Wilson have been indicted," he was told, "and so was Link."

"What," exclaimed the senator, "who in heaven's name were the witnesses who appeared before the grand jury in Browne's and Wilson's case?"

"The two men who confessed," he was told.

"Humph," said the senator, "they were the only witnesses, were they, against these men? Well, of course, I have nothing to say."

Attorney General Stead and State's Attorney Wayman were in close conference for two hours, the understanding being that they were considering the question of jurisdiction, and perhaps the question of immunity for White and Beckemeyer, whose confessions led to the indictments.

NEWS NUGGETS FROM ILLINOIS

Chicago.—Mrs. Margaret Potter Black, who under the pen name of Margaret Horton Potter, has written several well-known novels, has been declared insane and committed to a sanitarium. The judgment was pronounced at a private hearing held by Judge Williams, a county judge, sitting in the county court several days ago. Mrs. Black is a daughter of the late Orrin W. Potter and wife of Attorney John D. Black, a son of Gen. John C. Black, a member of the United States civil service commission. The hearing was held by a commission on insanity at the home of Mrs. Black, 735 Lincoln Park boulevard, March 5. The first witness was Dr. R. D. McArthur. He testified that her physical condition was fairly good. He also made the following statement: "She has been a subject of alcohol, opium and morphine in excessive quantities and that impaired her nervous system."

Springfield.—Alterations in voucher figures, wide discrepancies between voucher figures and corresponding checks, duplications in payments of bills against the city, and many vouchers and other records missing, are some of the disclosures made by City Controller Frank Simmons as a result of his cursory examination of the records of his office after finding something wrong with the city's financial accounts. Acting upon information laid before them, members of the council in special session instructed the finance committee, which was given charge of the investigation, to go back in the records 15 years. Expert accountants will be put to work at once to carry out these instructions.

Rockford.—That sensational newspaper, with their exaggerated stories of crime and accounts of prize fights, are the cause of criminal ideas was the charge made by Mrs. Alfred Bayless of Macomb at the opening session of the eleventh annual meeting of the Illinois Congress of Mothers here. "One of the things we should do for the 'gutter-snipes' is to persuade the newspapers to give less highly spiced accounts of prize fights and murders," declared Mrs. Bayless. "The villains of the newspapers are the heroes of the underworld."

Elgin.—The Elgin physicians have boosted prices and whether the patient recovers or dies, he or his heirs will pay more than was asked for the same services before. The Physicians' club decided that its members are not as well paid as doctors in neighboring cities and voted to give the members a raise. Every time the doctor comes now it will cost two dollars. The old price was $1.50. The new prices correspond to those of the Fox River Medical society, the fees of which are regulated by the state association.

Yorkville.—One man drowned and two companions narrowly escaped drowning when a boat, caught in a current, was carried over the Yorkville dam in Fox river at Yorkville. The drowned man was Peter Laudwine, a bricklayer, 349 Claim street, Aurora. His companions, Samuel Moreau, brother of Martin Moreau, a sergeant of police in Aurora, and Joseph Miller, an Aurora saloonkeeper, were thrown clear of the craft and into shallow water, but Laudwine was caught beneath the boat.

Chicago.—Arthur Burrage Farwell, secretary of the Hyde Park Protective association, in his annual report declared that "blind pigs" have made their appearance in large numbers in Hyde Park again. In his address Mr. Farwell declared that many prosecutions will follow shortly. The annual election of officers took place, the following named to serve for the coming year: William H. Brintall, president; Arthur Farwell, secretary; Robert Johns, vice-president; John B. Lord, treasurer.

Chicago.—The freight handlers' troubles practically are over. Employees of four roads—the Monon, Chicago & Eastern Illinois, Great Western and Chicago & Rock Island—signed contracts for an advance of two cents an hour and five dollars a month for monthly men. Despite this the freight handlers' district council voted to call a strike vote for an increase for monthly men of ten per cent. The district council ordered all back to work pending a final settlement.

Chicago.—For the third time in as many months an automobile valued at $3,000, belonging to Dr. T. H. Schiller, 4701 Woodlawn avenue, was stolen from in front of his home. The physician reported the robbery to the detective bureau and several men were instructed to watch for the machine. On two other occasions the car was stolen as it was standing near the physician's home. Each time it was recovered several miles from where it had been taken.

Paxton.—John Swords and Mrs. Martha Van Buskirk, aged respectively sixty-nine and ninety-three years, were united in marriage here.

Chicago.—Freight handlers employed on Chicago railroads, who have caused uneasiness by their demands for higher wages, modified their original demands. At a meeting of the union it was decided to insist upon a ten per cent increase for all classes of work. If the roads shall refuse to treat with the men on this basis of compensation it was decided to arrange for a vote on the question of striking immediately.

Quincy.—Rev. Abraham T. Stone, aged ninety-four, is dead. He was a pioneer resident, having located here 65 years ago.

30,000 Homeless in Fire. Kobe, Japan.—Reports received Friday from Aomori, northern Japan, partially destroyed by fire, say 8,000 houses and all public buildings were burned. Thirty thousand persons are homeless.

Large Fire at Colfax. Colfax, Ill.—The business district of Colfax was threatened by a fire which destroyed nearly a block of buildings Saturday night. The loss is estimated at $20,000.

Cyclist Killed in Car Crash. South Bend, Ind.—Driving his motorcycle into a street car in an effort to dodge a bicycle going in the opposite direction, Eber A. Lon was instantly killed Saturday.

AN INTOLERABLE ITCHING

"Just about two years ago, some form of humor appeared on my scalp. The beginning was a slight itching but it grew steadily worse until, when I combed my hair, the scalp became raw and the ends of the comb-teeth would be wet with blood. Most of the time there was an intolerable itching, in a painful, burning way, very much as a bad, raw burn, if deep, will itch and smart when first beginning to heal. Combing my hair was positive torture. My hair was long and tangled terribly because of the blood and scabs. This continued growing worse and over half my hair fell out. I was in despair, really afraid of becoming totally bald.

"Sometimes the pain was so great that, when partially awake, I would scratch the worst places so that my finger-tips would be bloody. I could not sleep well and, after being asleep a short time, that awful stinging pain—would commence and then I would wake up nearly wild with the torture. A neighbor said it must be salt rheum. Having used Cuticura Soap merely as a toilet soap before, I now decided to order a set of the Cuticura Remedies—Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills. I used them according to directions for perhaps six weeks, then left off, as the disease seemed to be eradicated, but toward spring, eighteen months ago, there was a slight return of the scalp humor. I commenced the Cuticura treatment at once, so had very little trouble. On my scalp I used about one half a cake of Cuticura Soap and half a box of Cuticura Ointment in all. The first time I took six or seven bottles of Cuticura Pills and the last time three bottles—neither an expensive or tedious treatment. Since then I have had no scalp trouble of any kind. Standing up, with my hair unbound, it comes to my knees and had it not been for Cuticura I should doubtless be wholly bald.

"This is a voluntary, unsolicited testimonial and I take pleasure in writing it, hoping my experience may help someone else. Miss Lillian Brown, R. F. D. 1, Liberty, Me., Oct. 29, 1909."

Sartorial Frankness. Some "ads." have a double meaning which their originators do not intend to give them. For instance, in the window of a certain clothing store there is displayed, in the midst of a large array of clothes, this sign: "Un-called for garments."

BEGINNING OF THE IRON AGE

Excellent Reason for Believing it Originated in Central Europe—Its Use in China.

The iron age is commonly believed to have begun in Africa and Asia. The latest investigations prove that it was not worked in Egypt until the ninth century before the Christian era; or in Libya until 450 B. C.; that the Semites adopted its use still later, and that it has been known in Uganda only with the last five or six centuries. In China iron is mentioned in 400 B. C. Bronze weapons were employed in China until 100 A. D., and in Japan until 700 A. D.

According to a Mr. Ridgeway, who has investigated this subject, the metallurgy of iron must have originated in central Europe, especially in Noricum, which approximately represented modern Austria and Batavia. Only at Hallstatt and in Bosnia and Transylvania, from which countries the Achaeans and Dorians are supposed to have migrated to Greece, are found evidences of a gradual introduction of iron, at first as an ornament applied to the bronze, which it ultimately displaced. Everwhere else iron was introduced suddenly, a fact which implies a foreign origin.

Meteoric iron was known in Egypt in remote antiquity, but not doubt it was worked as flints were worked, by cutting or chipping, and was not smelted. In other words, it was the metallurgy, not the knowledge of iron, that originated in central Europe.

It gave immediate relief and she was able to walk about in three days. I am sure it saved her life." Sold by Sam B. Hall, Druggist.

THE PROPER IDEA IN READING

How to Get the Best from the Authors Who Have Enriched the World's Literature.

It was Oliver Wendell Holmes, was it not, who owned up to his preference for reading in books to reading through them? "When I set out to read through a book," the Autocrat wrote, "I always felt that I had a task before me—but when I read in a book it was the page or the paragraph that I wanted, and which left its impression and became a part of my intellectual furniture." If we were only franker, most of us would confess to being like Holmes in this matter of our reading. To be sure, we have an old-fashioned disinclination to set down a book in the middle of it; we feel it our duty to finish whatever we have once begun at the beginning; yet if we yield to our New England conscience herein, we are only deterred from beginning very many books. And by "beginning" books I mean neither reading straight through their tedious opening pages, nor hastening, like a woman, to learn by the concluding chapter how it all "turns out." Open your book in the very thick of it; that is the true way of getting at its soul.—The Atlantic.

Re-Soled in Fifty-Five Seconds. A new kind of boot is about to be put on the market, the sole and heel of which, when worn out, can be unscrewed and new leather put in their place. The inventor claims that a pair of boots can be soled and heeled in 55 seconds, saving 25 per cent. on the cost of ordinary boot repairing.

Men and Women. When a man is left with a lot of motherless children on his hands, he usually scatters them among his relatives. If it is the woman who is left with fatherless little ones, she keeps them together and earns a living besides. Women develop great energy when left without a man. In fact, all the widows we know are getting along a great deal better than the married women.—Atchison Globe.

Life Should Not Be All Work. Life is a spectacle and has a lot of fun in the changes of scenes if you watch out. Do not take your work too seriously. Do it the best you know how, then shut the desk and go off and make merry.

Oak, Granite and Iron. Privations, sacrifices, incessant toil by day and intense study by night... often fashion great Americans out of rough hearts of oak encased in frames of granite mold and dominated by an iron will.

SAT IN VICTORIA'S PRESENCE

But Two Men, Calling on Official Business, Have Been Known to Do So.

Few men were ever allowed to sit in the presence of Queen Victoria—in fact, it is said that probably not more than two ever enjoyed that privilege when they called formally or on official business, and these two were Gladstone and Sir James Alexander Grant, M. D., of Ottawa. During one of his journeys to England he was called to the royal palace to see the queen, who was not in very good health. The visitor was ushered into the presence of her majesty, who was seated. Unfortunately for the distinguished physician, it was a little difficult for him to hear and understand his hostess, so he went nearer and drew a stool close by her side and seated himself upon it, thus being able to hear her voice perfectly. It was an unconventional act in a royal presence and may have been termed unceremonious, but the delightful physician apologized later and explained why he had sat down before England's queen.

AS THE "DUKE OF DURHAM"

American Dealer Sat in Chair Once Occupied by Hero of Waterloo.

The late Mr. Washington Duke, of Durham, North Carolina, at home known as "Uncle Wash," who manufactured tobacco products so extensively for a quarter of a century, used to tell a quaint little story on himself. "The first time I traveled abroad," he said, "I visited Brussels and went to see all its sights. In one of the public buildings I found an ordinary looking armchair carefully railed off and with a chain across its front. Being tired with a hard morning of tramping, I stepped over the fence, let down the chain and, with a big sigh of relief, dropped into this chair, the only one I had seen in the building. A guard in lace and buttons was on me at once. "No sitting in that chair!" he barked. "See the card on the back? The Duke of Wellington once occupied that chair!" "Well, and what of it?" I returned, cool as a cucumber. "I'm Duke of Durham, and alive at that!" "This settled the matter. Down to the floor went that stinky, brushing the dust from my American shoes with his handkerchief of real European title. A way-up English title catches them every time. I had my rest out in that solid old chair of the Waterloo hero."—The Wasp.

For the Scandalmonger. The Orleans museum has just been enriched with a curious relic of the past which some workmen in making excavations in the city came across. It is a stone representing a grinning figure, showing the teeth, the countenance being repellent enough. In this way the loquacious woman, the scandalmonger, was brought to her senses. The stone, suspended by a chain, was placed round her neck, and so accoutred she was compelled to walk round the town in which she lived. The stone is supposed to date about the sixteenth century.

WARREN TOPPAN, Lynn, Mass. Cured of severe compound cold and cough by Vinol. Vinol is certainly a wonderful medicine. Mr. Toppan is one of Lynn's most prominent and highly respected merchants, whose word is as good as his bond. GENERAL NEWS.

A press dispatch from Washington announced that John D. Rockefeller had abandoned the idea of securing a national charter for his proposed foundation. Starr J. Murphy, personal counsel for Mr. Rockefeller, and speaking for the Standard Oil president, said the statement was entirely without foundation. Mr. Murphy also said that Mr. Rockefeller had nothing to do with the "Economic and General Foundation," for which a charter is being sought from the New York legislature for "an aged man of wealth," said to have $2,500,000 to spend on charity.

Edward VII., king of Great Britain and Ireland and emperor of India, is dead. His illness, which lasted less than a week, became serious only three days ago. The king returned to England from a vacation on the continent ten days ago in the best of health. He had reigned nine years. He was sixty-nine years old. The Prince of Wales succeeded to the crown immediately, according to the laws of the kingdom, without official ceremony. He will take the oath of office before the privy council and will be proclaimed king as George V. His first official act was to dispatch to the lord mayor the announcement of his father's death, in pursuance of custom.

More than half of the male population of Palos, Ala., is believed to have perished as the result of the explosion in mine No. 3 of the Palos Coal and Coke company. About 200 men—45 white and 150 negroes—are thought to have been killed. Eleven bodies have been found.

Representative Lee O'Neill Browne of Ottawa, Ill., Democratic leader of the lower house of the legislature, was indicted by the special grand jury at Chicago on a charge of bribing Charles A. White, Democratic member from O'Fallon, Ill., to vote for William Lorimer for United States senator. The specific charge mentioned in each of the 11 counts of the indictment is that Browne paid White $850 at the Briggs house, in Chicago, on June 16, 1909, as part of a total bribe of $1,000. At the same time the grand jury returned indictments charging perjury against Representative Robert E. Wilson of Chicago and Michael S. Link of Mitchell. They are accused of having perjured themselves in testifying before the grand jury that they had not participated in the alleged "jack-pot" distribution at St. Louis, which was one of the features of the White "confession" on which the Browne indictment is based.

The horror of the great earthquake at Cartago, Costa Rica, is growing by leaps and bounds. The loss of life, at first estimated at 500, is now placed, according to the latest news from the ruined city, at not less than 1,000, and it may largely exceed that figure. Hundreds were seriously injured in the collapse of buildings. The property loss will amount to many millions of dollars.

William Randolph Hearst entered suit in the federal court against Henry Watterson individually, for $100,000, and the Courier-Journal for the same sum. The suit against Mr. Watterson is based on his editorial which, according to the petition, applauded the attack made on Mr. Hearst by Mayor Gaynor at the Press banquet in New York and "accepting as proven Gaynor's charges."

Fire, caused by an older child playing with matches, resulted in the loss of two lives at DeMilling, Mich. The home of Matt Servis was destroyed and a three-year-old girl and an infant were burned to death. The parents were absent.

J. C. Beckmeyer of Carlyle.

A large part of Cartago, Costa Rica, was destroyed by a powerful seismic movement. Details are very meager, as the telegraph wires have been leveled between San Jose and Cartago. "It was not a fair or truthful statement," exclaimed Secretary Ballinger during the Ballinger-Pinchot investigation, referring to a sentence in former Secretary Garfield's letter to the president last November, which read: "He (Ballinger) directed the reclamation service to prepare lists for restoring the withdrawn lands, but to do so slowly in order not to attract public attention."

Striking employees of the Columbus (O.) Railway and Light company voted to accept an agreement for peace proposed by Mayor Marshall, under which four discharged union men are to be given the option of returning to work at wages equivalent to their former pay or accepting employment under the city administration.

President Taft gave a vigorous denunciation of William J. Bryan for the letters of criticism of the appointment of Gov. Charles E. Hughes of New York as associate justice of the United States Supreme court. Mr. Taft decried the "cant of the demagogue" and the "disposition of public journals" to make unjust charges against men in public life. "All I am speaking for is justice and a square deal," he said, "not especially for myself, for, indeed, I am in a position where I can get along better than some of the rest without it. But I am appealing for justice in dealing with all classes." Mr. Taft was speaking at a luncheon given by the Business Men's league in St. Louis.

To the disappointment of the several hundred people who used physical force, cajolery and friendship to pry their ways into the criminal courtroom, Mrs. Logan D. Swope went on the witness stand and, generally speaking, calmly gave a synopsis of the Swope tragedies. With Mrs. Swope's testimony in the state rested its case.

Grand jury investigation of the legislative bribery scandal was temporarily halted at Chicago by the absence of State's Attorney Wayman, who went forth supposedly in search of evidence to corroborate the story of Representative Charles A. White.

MONARCH'S LONG AND BUSY LIFE

Edward VII. as Prince of Wales and King of England.

IN PUBLIC EYE SINCE BIRTH

No man Better Known or More Popular—Will Be Long Remembered as Diplomat—His Fondness for the Turf.

Edward VII., king of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and of all the British Dominions beyond the Seas, emperor of India, as his full royal title reads, was born in Buckingham palace, London, on November 9, 1841, and was the second child and first son of Queen Victoria and the Prince Consort Albert. He was christened Albert Edward, and at his very birth was given an imposing list of titles. He was at once created prince of Wales and by virtue of that dignity he became also knight of the garter. As heir apparent to the British throne he succeeded to the title

Kingsley. In order to give him a taste of college life, he was sent for one session to the University of Edinburgh, for one year to Oxford and for four terms to Cambridge. During these years he acquired a wide general knowledge of the arts and sciences and became quite proficient in modern languages.

In 1860 the prince made a tour of the United States and Canada and the next year he joined the British army at Curragh camp, Ireland. In 1862 he set out on his travels again, this time visiting Jerusalem and other places of biblical interest.

Edward's public life began in February, 1863, when, as heir to the throne, he took his seat in the house of lords. On March 10 of the same year he married Princess Alexandra Caroline Mary Charlotte Louise Julia, the eldest daughter of King Christian IX. of Denmark. Her beauty, grace and charming manners at once gave her a popularity in Great Britain that has continued unaltered throughout her life as princess and queen. In 1875-76 the prince made an extended tour through the Indian empire and was received everywhere with lavish and magnificent hospitality.

During the long years of his principality Edward's public duties consisted solely in the office of representing the royal family at all manner of public events, and he performed these duties well. But the deadly monotony of such a life was too much for the his advice and example had a steady effect on all Europe. He looked with amused tolerance on the vagaries and extravagances of his nephew, the emperor of Germany, but occasionally that ruler exasperated him to such an extent that he could not refrain from giving him some stern advice. Such admonition was not received by William in a submissive spirit, and once in a while there were sensational rumors that the peaceful relations between the two countries were about to be ruptured.

The development of the king's character in his later years was especially gratifying to the nation. In addition to the love of his people, which he had always had, he gained their admiration and respect. They had the utmost confidence in his good judgment, as was amply exemplified during the late crisis over the budget, and they were always sure he would do the right thing at the right time.

To Edward and Alexandra were born six children. The first, Prince Albert, duke of Clarence, died in 1892, aged twenty-eight years. The second, George Frederick Ernest Albert, born on June 3, 1865, succeeds to the throne. The other children are: Princess Louise Victoria, married to the duke of Fife; Princess Victoria Alexandra; Princess Maude Charlotte, married to Prince Charles of Denmark, and Prince Alexander John, who died the day after his birth in 1871.

The role of the new queen, Mary, will play at the new court has been the subject of considerable speculation. As prince and princess of Wales the new king and queen lived such retired lives that it is difficult to form an opinion, but it is almost safe to assume that the court will be far less brilliant than it was under King Edward. The latter attached the fullest weight and dignity to the ceremonial of the kingly office, and all state functions under his reign were invested with the pomp and magnificence he considered befitting the court of a great empire. Further, he attracted to his court a brilliant array of wealthy social figures, in which American heiresses married to English aristocracy played a prominent part.

It is certain great changes will be seen in the constitution of the court circle, as well as among the actual officials and dignitaries of the court. Queen Mary is credited with great strength of character and is likely to exert far more influence on the court surroundings than did Queen Alexandra. She is deeply religious and has a love for charitable work connected with the church, while King George, so far as is known, is more fond of country life and pursuits than of courtly pomp.

Hence there is a general belief that the new court will be of a simpler and more austere type and that many of those who heretofore exercised a paramount influence in the court life will be obliged to seek comparative retirement.

Edward VII. was an enthusiastic lover of horses and the most noted royal turfman of the world. Horse racing as a sport owes much to him. He maintained a large racing stable and competed at all the larger programs held in England. His track ambition was achieved in 1909, when his horse Minoru won the English Derby, defeating Sir Martin, an American colt. As Prince of Wales he had twice won the Derby, but as king he was successful last year for the first time.

King Edward's interest in horses was not confined to races. He maintained two establishments where he raised high-class horses and by accepting offices in breeders' societies and offering prizes at shows encouraged the raising of improved stock. While the world was anxiously awaiting news of the king's condition shortly before his death occurred, his 2-year-old filly, Witch, was winning the spring plate at Kempton park. As the horse flashed under the wire the band played "God Save the King" and the crowd, rising to its feet, caught up the song and swelled it to a great chorus. It was an impressive demonstration and will long be remembered.

CHURCHMAN'S STOMACH WEAK

Rev. Lapley Suffered Twelve Years From It—How He Conquered It; You Also Can, Free.

Through an announcement that he saw in his local paper the Rev. J. D. Lapley of Avondale Station, Birmingham, Ala., learned that he could obtain a free trial bottle of a remedy for the cure of indigestion, acid, gas, and all the troubles that come from a weak stomach. He was interested because he suffered from such digestive troubles for years. The remedy was Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Mr. Lapley, who is a minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and a member of the Central Alabama Conference, took the free bottle with the result that he was very speedily cured. It is the gentlest, mildest, best tasting, most effective laxative tonic you ever tried. Druggists will sell you the regular bottles at 50 cents or $1, and results are guaranteed. A picture of Mrs. Northrup, of Quincy, Ill., a cured patient, is presented herewith. If there is anything about your case that you don't understand write the doctor and he will advise you. Finding of Fresh-Water Eel.
 The straits of Messina are channels of immense depth, through which a wild form of whirling eddies have the effect of bringing up from the depths below many marine creatures which are rarely seen except in the deep sea trawls. It was here that the fresh-water eel was first discovered; an incident which threw a blase of light on the life history of a very mysterious fish.—London Daily Telegraph.

THE LATE KING EDWARD VII.

of duke of Cornwall and its emoluments, and as heir to the crown of Scotland he became great steward of Scotland, duke of Rothesay, earl of Carrick, baron of Renfrew and lord of the isles. On September 10, 1849, he was created earl of Dublin, this title being conferred on him and his heirs in perpetuity. Among the other titles and commands held by Edward were duke of Saxony, colonel of the Tenth hussars, colonel-in-chief of the Rifle brigade, field marshal of the British army and field marshal of the German army.

The prince received a most elaborate, broad and carefully planned education. At first he was under the charge of four private tutors, and subsequently his education was directed vigorous man, and he found relaxation in amusements that frequently gave rise to scandals and that gave the world a wrong impression of his real character. He was especially fond of the theater and among his boon companions for years were actresses and actors. Also he developed a great liking for Paris and often visited that gay capital incognito.

But all this, as has been said, was only his relaxation, and after coming to the throne his conduct always was so circumspect that not the most captious critic could find any fault with it. As a diplomat Edward was unexcelled among the monarchs of Europe. His influence was always thrown to the side of international peace where compatible with national honor, and
