9:30 Bible School. By a small margin of 20 points we won in three month's contests with Lovington. That is better than losing by 20 points. Both schools have made splendid gains by the contest.

Last Sunday we had 239 in attendance with an offering of $22.78. I heard some prophets say, "Watch 'em drop next Sunday." Well it might happen, but we hope not.

We have received another challenge from the plucky school at Lovington. You can say next Sunday what we shall do about it.

The July Housekeeper.

While perhaps it cannot be said that THE HOUSEKEEPER for July makes midsummer hot days, it can at least be shown that the airy freshness of the pages puts the blistering heat to shame by teaching so many ways in which it can be overcome. The abundant fiction pages offer amusement for an afternoon in the hammock. Lillian Bell tells some new facts about satisfactory summer sanitation, the fashion plates show airy garments, but best of all, mayhap, are the household and cookery pages, for we must eat, whether at home or picnic, and just how to make the table appetizing is very worthwhile knowledge. THE HOUSEKEEPER CORPORATION, Minneapolis, Minn. Seven cents a year.

Soreness of the muscles, whether induced by violent exercise or injury, is quickly relieved by free application of Chamberlain's Liniment. This liniment is equally valuable for muscular rheumatism, and always affords quick relief. Sold by All Dealers.

A RIGHT THING.

A meeting of the Democratic County Central Committee of Moultrie County was held at the court house in Sullivan, Illinois on the 25th day of June 1910, for the purpose of determining whether it was advisable to call a Primary to endorse a Moultrie County man for the Legislature, and at the meeting the question was fully discussed, and it was the unanimous opinion of all of the Committee-men present that it was desirable that a primary be held to determine who should receive the endorsement of the Democrats of Moultrie County as a candidate for the Legislature; and at said meeting the following Resolutions were unanimously adopted, and a Committee was appointed consisting of F. J. Thompson, Chairman of the County Central Committee, S. A. York from Lowe Township, George Reuss from Marrowbone Township and Homer Shepherd from Lovington Township, to arrange for the Primary.

WHEREAS, it is the opinion of the DEMOCRATIC COUNTY CENTRAL COMMITTEE of the County of Moultrie and State of Illinois, that the Democratic nomination for STATE REPRESENTATIVE ought in justice to be given to a Moultrie County man; AND WHEREAS it is the opinion of the County Central Committee that in order to secure the nomination of a man from Moultrie County, it is necessary that the democrats of Moultrie County unite upon and present to the Democratic voters of this Senatorial District but one candidate; AND WHEREAS it has been represented to the County Central Committee that there are several persons who desire to become candidates from Moultrie County;

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, that it is now the wish and desire of the Democratic County Central Committee of the County of Moultrie and State of Illinois, that a primary be held to determine who shall receive the endorsement of the Democratic voters of Moultrie County, and that the person receiving the largest vote in said primary be recommended as the choice of Moultrie County Democrats.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that a committee of three be appointed to act with the chairman and arrange for said Primary, and that said Committee consult with prospective candidates and obtain the approval of a majority of the County Central Committee before the plan is finally adopted.

BE IT RESOLVED by the Democratic County Central Committee of Moultrie County, Illinois, that the Democrats of Moultrie County feel that Moultrie County is entitled to the Candidate for the Legislature this year; that we believe it is Moultrie County's turn by right, and that as but one Democrat can be elected in this Senatorial District, and as Moultrie County has not had a member of the Legislature since we have been in this Senatorial District; we ask the Democrats of Piatt and Champaign Counties to endorse the nomination of a Candidate from Moultrie County this year, and that a copy of this resolution be transmitted to the County Central Committee of Piatt and Champaign Counties.

A LETTER TO VOTERS.

Sullivan, Ill., June 27, 1910. To Voters of Moultrie County:

The Democratic Committee met in Sullivan Saturday, June 25, for the purpose of discussing the idea of holding a county primary to be held in advance of the regular primary in September, and to give the voters of this county an opportunity to select a candidate for legislature, his name to be presented to the entire district at the regular September primary. No doubt this was caused to be made from the articles that appear in the Lovington Reporter of June 24, which suggested that if Moultrie County would go united for some one candidate to Champaign and Piatt counties they would nominate a Moultrie county man, otherwise they would not.

Ex-Senator P. Schaffer of Champaign, was present at the meeting and pledged his support to the Moultrie county man. He also pledges the support of T. M. Lyman of Champaign county who is no doubt one of the strongest democratic in his county, and with these two men supporting the Moultrie county candidate, he should be elected.

The committee will call a special primary, the date of which is not set, some time in August perhaps. At which time the Democratic voters should choose a man, who can lead the united forces of Moultrie to Piatt and Champaign counties.

This no doubt is the best thing for the Democratic party of this county, and the committee saw it in that manner, and I think every candidate that wishes to represent Moultrie county in the next legislature should take the same view of it, and use all the energy he may possess to obtain the end.

I want to go on record as being strongly in favor of such a primary for in my opinion, it is the only manner in which to accomplish that for which we have so long sought, a Democratic representative from Moultrie county. And being a candidate for the Democratic nomination for legislature, in this district, I am willing to submit my candidacy to the wisdom of the voters of this district and to the Moultrie county primary.

A. E. Eden.

G. A. Eield's Sanction.

Sullivan, Illinois, June 29th, 1910

To the Democrats of Moultrie County
The Democratic county committee met in Sullivan Saturday, June 25th, for the purpose of devising some plan for holding a special primary in advance of the regular primary to be held September 15th and give the Democrats of Moultrie county a chance to select one candidate for the Legislature. His name to be represented as the only candidate for the Legislature from Moultrie county at the September primary. This, in my opinion is the best thing for the Democrats in this county, and as I am one of the candidates for the nomination for Legislature in this the 24th district, I wish to state that I am heartily in favor of such a primary.

Geo. A. Fields.

The summer term is a most helpful course not only for teachers but for pupils of the seventh and eighth grade or high school. It has been the means of getting pupils interested in their school work so that they will get more meaning from what they study.

When boards of directors are willing to give $50, $60, $70 and even $75 per month for teachers in country schools as some are doing this year, it shows they are wanting something more.

Will you make a point to speak of any pupil you know who would profit by the course. Send the names and addresses of such to the county superintendent.

The tuition is $5.00 for any part or all of the first three weeks. There is no discount except to those who do not intend teaching in the county this year.

The usual rate of $1.75 per week or $1.75 for single study will be given to others who desire it. Institute week one dollar to those not holding certificates or who have not paid examination fee within this year.

Bring any modern text books you may have. Emphasis will be placed upon the seventh year work as that is the work to be taught the coming year in the advanced work in rural schools.

All teachers who do not hold certificates in this county will be expected to write on examination at south side school building in Sullivan, Monday, July 11. There will be no examination at the close of Normal.

Unless a teacher is very low in grades the work may be made up at the summer school. The examination will begin promptly at 8:15 a. m. and close at 5 p. m.

The Women's Board of Mission have recently been doing some very fine missionary work. They have just shipped a box to China. The contents of the box was dolls, doll clothing, material for dressing the dolls, writing paper, books, tablets, pencils and many other things too numerous to mention. The shipment value on the box was $20, although the value of the contents was much more. A few days ago a thank offering was taken up for the foreign missions which amounted to $30. The next meeting of the society will be at Miss Snie McPheeters the first Thursday in July. This is but a small part of the work did by the ladies aid of the M. E. church.

C. O. Patterson's Sanction.

Having decided to become a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the Legislature from this senatorial district, I wish to state that I heartily endorse the action of the Democratic County Central Committee in arranging for a special primary to be held in advance of the regular primary to determine who shall receive the endorsement of the Democrats of Moultrie county, and I hereby pledge myself to submit my candidacy to said primary, and agree to be bound by the decision of the Democrat voters at said primary.

As a candidate for the nomination, I believe that it is right that the democratic voters of Moultrie county should have a right to say who should be their choice for this office and I am willing to submit the matter to the voters and abide by their decision.

Washington, D. C.—The second session of the Sixty-first congress died a natural death at 11 o'clock Saturday night, when the vice-president and Speaker Cannon simultaneously banged their gavels and announced that dissolution had taken place.

The senate passed sedately away to the accompaniment of tradition, custom, precedent and dignity, while the house, as always, expired with singing, laughter, quips, jokes, and the usual boisterousness. The two varieties of demise become more accentuated as the years roll around.

The closing scenes in the senate were quiet and scattered. After meeting at 10 o'clock and drolling along for two hours, Mr. Hale sought to ring in a recess, but the desire to talk was so great that he grew disgusted and gave it up. Later in the afternoon baseball fever broke out, and Mr. Hale forced a recess until 9 o'clock in order that everybody might see the horsehide fly. Five minutes later Vice-President Sherman and a party of friends were whirling in an auto toward the ball park. Racing after them were Senators Crane, Scott and other devotees of the game. When the senate reconvened set speeches by Senators Simmons and Stone, while away the time. Before the oratory began all the "unobjection" house bills were taken up and passed.

Stone is Aggrieved. Senator Stone became much aggrieved when his bill to permit a dam across the James river failed. He waited to talk it on as an amendment to the general dam bill, but was out taking a drink of lemonade when it went through. Returning a minute later Mr. Stone inquired of the chair, "What has become of that dam bill?" "That dam bill has passed," replied Mr. Sherman in loud tones. Whereupon everybody laughed. Senator Owen attempted to make a few inspiring dissertations on his bill to establish a bureau of public health, which has been opposed as a "doctors' trust," but Mr. Hale was obdurate and determined there should be no more speech-making at this session.

Shortly after 10 o'clock President Taft came hustling up to the senate and took possession of the room set apart for his use. All the cabinet ministers in the city were also present and spent some time visiting on the floor. Secret service men threw out the customary cordon around that portion of the building.

The Taft smile was nothing compared to the expansive grin decorating the president's face. He was much tickled at the apparent success of his legislative program, and did not care who knew it. He exchanged greetings and passed joking remarks with many senators of both parties who drifted out to present their salutations. He has never been seen in better humor than on this, his second annual visitation to the senate.

President Signs Bills. Settling down to business the president signed all the few straggling bills that came floating in. In each instance he inquired of the cabinet minister most nearly interested in the legislation if the message was satisfactory and in due form. As the spectacled-faced clocks indicated four minutes of grace before dissolution Senator Money offered the formal resolution thanking Vice-President Sherman for the impartial and efficient manner in which he has managed the business of the senate. This was adopted without a dissenting vote. Mr. Sherman briefly responded.

Speaker Cannon before adjourning the lower house said that he bore no malice toward any member and wished each one a pleasant vacation.

Instantly following the conclusion of his speech Mr. Sherman thumped his gavel and declared the session adjourned without a day. A scene of confusion and almost frolicsome confusion for the senate followed. A few of the systematic senators tossed papers from their desks and cleaned house for the recess, while others rushed about, gossiping and bidding their fellows good-by.

SANGAMON COUNTY JURY INDICTS FIVE

BROWNE, WILSON, TRAUT, HIRSCHMEIER AND JOHNSON FACE BRIBERY CHARGE

FURNITURE MEN IN NET

True Bills Result of Fish Bill and Furnishing Contract Probe—Sut One Lawmaker Testified to "Jack-pot" Split-Up.

Springfield, Ill.—The Sangamon county grand jury returned these indictments in the legislative bribery probe:

Conspiracy to bribe—Representative Lee O'Neill Browne, Representative Robert E. Wilson, Frank J. Traut and Louis D. Hirschmeier.

Bribery—A. B. Johnston, and perjury, A. B. Johnston.

Browne and Wilson are indicted on the general "jack-pot" proposition. There are three counts each in the conspiracy indictments, two in the perjury indictment against Johnston, and 12 in the bribery indictment against Johnston.

Browne and Wilson also are indicted on the general fish fund "jack-pot."

All the indictments except those against Johnston are in connection with the "jack-pot" investigation regarding the fund raised among the fishermen to defeat the state fish commission's bill regarding the size of seines and making other regulations.

A. B. Johnston was the local representative of the Ford & Johnson company of Chicago, to whom the contract was awarded by the commission appointed for that purpose, to furnish new desks and chairs for the senate chamber and the house of representatives.

Hearing on Three Weeks.

The grand jury had been hearing evidence on the fish "jack-pot" for three weeks.

The names of 14 witnesses appear on the back of the indictment. Included in the list are Representative Beckemeyer, Attorney Charles A. Gridley of Virginia, Nat Cohen, fish commissioner; T. K. Condit, cashier of the First National bank of Beardstown, where a part of the fish "jack-pot" was deposited, and the following fishermen, who contributed to the fund: John Dixon, Peoria; Daniel Yeck, J. D. McLean of Meredosia; J. P. Atwater, Havana; Otto Schweyer and Fred Schweyer of Beardstown; Henry Lemm of Pekin, R. O. Lord, Charles Cole and E. E. Caldwell of Havana.

Charge Follows Long Inquiry.

The charge of conspiracy against the four defendants is the result of the investigation of the fund collected to kill senate bill No. 118, which restricted the mesh of seines and nets to be used by fishermen on Illinois rivers to a certain size. Representative Beckemeyer is the only legislator who has testified that he received a portion of the "jack-pot" money from Representative Wilson. State's Attorney Burke, however, expects to have Link and White in Springfield as witnesses when the case is tried.

San Antonio, Texas.—Not fewer than 25,000 bales of southwest Texas cotton will this year go to Eastern and foreign markets through Port San Antonio, recently established at Aransas Pass.

The channel connecting Port San Antonio with the government jetties will be completed by the time the first cotton comes on the market, and a temporary wharf will be built for the accommodation of vessels. Permanent wharves and warehouses will be constructed during the coming winter.

RELIEF MEASURE PASSED

Bills for $61,500 and $4,300 Respectively Forwarded to President for Signature.

Washington, D. C.—The bill for the relief of former Assistant Treasurer Akins, permitting the transfer to his credit of $61,500 on the books of the United States treasury has been passed by the senate.

The bill appropriating $4,300 for the relief of Frank Wyman, former postmaster, also was passed. The latter bill provides for the payment of the amount direct to Wyman. Both bills will now go to the president for his signature.

Beef Campaign Changed.

Chicago.—Efforts will be made by the federal department of justice to bring indictments against the packers as individuals instead of by corporation in the next investigation undertaken by the government.

Mexico Wants More Troops.

Galveston, Tex.—Requests from Mexico for better protection of the Texas and Arizona borders resulted in the issuance of orders for three troops of cavalry to be in readiness to start for the Rio Grande valley.

NEWS OF ILLINOIS

Chicago.—Conrad Hengst, twenty years old, 3329 North Leavitt street, was drowned while swimming in a North side amusement park. His body was recovered an hour later in 20 feet of water. According to the information obtained by the police, Hengst, with his brother Albert, went to the park. Albert left shortly before noon, leaving his brother swimming. An hour later he returned, and, not finding his brother in the water, went to the locker and found it locked. He summoned an attendant, who, after an hour's search, recovered the body. It is believed that Hengst was seized with cramps.

Springfield.—The grand jury will meet after a week's rest prepared to resume the inquiry into charges of bribery in the state legislature. It is expected that first attention will be given the fish bill angle of the probe. It is not unlikely at least two indictments charging conspiracy to commit the felony of bribery will be returned early in the week. State's Attorney Burke, who has been spending the past week at his cottage at Lake Matanzas, near Havana, will arrive in the city thoroughly rested after the arduous work of the past six weeks in connection with the legislative inquiry.

Chicago.—Towns and villages in northwestern Illinois will be invaded by half a dozen suffragettes for the purpose of arousing enthusiasm in the woman suffrage movement. The party will visit the various towns in an automobile. The start will be made from Rockford. Among the passengers of the automobile will be a woman physician, a woman lawyer and justice of the peace, a woman public official and a woman clergyman. The party includes Mrs. Catherine Waugh McCulloch, Rev. Katie Hughes, Miss Helen Todd, deputy state factory inspector, and Miss Jennie F. W. Johnson.

Springfield.—The supreme court of Illinois denied the motion of attorneys for Newton C. Dougherty for a writ of superseades and admittance to bail pending the decision of his appeal case by the court. Dougherty, who was superintendent of schools of Peoria, is serving a term in the Joliet penitentiary for forgery and embezzlement of school funds.

Pontiac.—Frank Martin, a banker of Iroquois, his wife and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Alice Martin, were seriously injured when an automobile which he was driving got beyond his control. The machine dashed over the bank of a 12-foot ditch and turned over, hurling the occupants into the water. Two small children of the Martins escaped injury.

Bloomington.—The proposed strike of the electric linemen of the Illinois Traction system was formally called and all union men were notified to cease work. The men demand more wages and extra allowance for overtime.

Joliet.—While attempting to rescue Lena, her eleven-year-old sister, from drowning here, Hulda Wild was dragged to the bottom of a deep quarry hole and both girls were rescued with difficulty by Joseph Schwartz, a boy companion.

Rockford.—A. C. Deming's dry goods store was looted by silk thieves. Twelve hundred yards of black silk valued at $1,000 formed the booty of the thieves.

Moline.—Because Rev. Edwin G. Brown, pastor of the local Unitarian church, made radical assertions at the Unitarian conference recently held in Chicago the members of his church have declined to accept his services for another year. Mr. Brown's statement in Chicago that all women are liars acted as an electric shock, and the women of the congregation were only waiting for the chance offered at the annual meeting. Mr. Brown was a candidate for re-election, but the nays secured a majority of one ballot. The pastor was somewhat unpopular with the men, he having classed them as liars also, though the latter assertion was made one day later than the statement regarding the women.

Spring Valley.—Bills growing out of the Cherry mine disaster have suffered a severe pruning at the hands of the Bureau county board of supervisors. Coroner Malm for inquests on 250 bodies was allowed $1,000. His bill was $2,750. W. I. Kendall, deputy coroner and foreman, whose bill was $500, was given $100. An identifier of the dead bodies, whose bill was $70, was not allowed anything. Miss Harriet Phelps, official reporter, claimed $500 and was allowed $60, and Miss Grace Rogers, State's Attorney Eckert's stenographer, had her bill for $300 rejected entirely. The members of the coroner's jury, dissatisfied with the allowances made, have engaged attorneys to enter suit against the county.

Sterling.—A drove of hogs mutilated and killed Charles Anderson, a farmer. His body was found. Both arms had been eaten off by the animals.

Chicago.—Seven thousand Chicago Catholics celebrated two important church events at services which, in succession, lasted an entire day. Archbishop Quigley officiated at both. He laid the corner-stone of the new St. Mel's church at Washington boulevard and Forty-third avenue and he dedicated the Church of the Immaculate Conception at Bonfield and Thirty-first streets.

Bloomington.—Delirious from an attack of measles, Henry Shaver ended his life by giving into a well. His wife and five children also are sick with measles.

SYNOPSIS.

The story opens with the introduction of John Stephens, an American-born man marooned by authorities at Valparaiso, Chile. Being interested in mining operations in Bolivia, he was determined to go to that country as an instructor and as a consequence was hiding. At his hotel his attention was attracted by an Englishman and a young woman. Stephens rescued the young woman from a drunken officer. He was thanked by her. Admiral of the Peruvian navy confronted Stephens and told him that war had been declared between Chile and Peru and offered him the office of captain. He desired that that night the Esmeralda, a Chilean vessel, should be captured. Stephens accepted the commission. Stephens met a motley crew, to which he was assigned. He gave them the instructions. They boarded the vessel. They successfully captured the vessel supposed to be the Esmeralda through strategy. Capt. Stephens gave directions for the departure of the craft. He entered the cabin and discovered the English woman and her maid. Stephens quickly learned the wrong vessel had been captured. It was Lord Darlington's private yacht, the lord's wife and maid being aboard. Stephens explained the situation to her. She then First Mate Tuttle laid bare the plot, saying that the Sea Queen had been taken in order to go to the Antarctic circle. Tuttle explained that on a former voyage he had learned that the Donna Isabel was lost in 1788. He had found it frozen in a bay, and that on an island and contained much gold. Stephens consented to be the captain of the expedition. He told Lady Darlington she was greatly alarmed, but expressed confidence in him. The Sea Queen encountered a vessel in the fog. Stephens attempted to communicate. This caused a fierce struggle and he was overcome. Tuttle finally squaring the situation. The Sea Queen headed south again. Under Tuttle's guidance the vessel made progress toward its goal. De Nova, the mate, told Stephens that he believed Tuttle, now acting as skipper, insane because of his queer ideas. Stephens was awakened by crashing of glass. He saw Tuttle in the grip of a spasm of religious mania and overcame him. He shot upon regaining his senses was taken ill. Tuttle committed suicide by shooting. Upon vote of the crew Stephens assumed the leadership and the men decided to continue the treasure hunt, the islands being supposed to be only 200 miles distant. Tuttle was buried in the sea. Lady Darlington announcing the service. Stephens, awaking from sleep saw the ghost, supposed to have formed the basis for Tuttle's religious mania. Upon advice of Lady Darlington, Stephens started to probe the ghost. He came upon Lieut. Sanchez, the drunken officer he had buried in Chile. He found that at Sanchez's inspiration, Engineer McKnight giving up the quest, Stephens announced that the Sea Queen was at the spot where Tuttle's quest was supposed to be. The crew was anxious to go on in further search. De Nova and Stephens conquered them in a fist fight. Lady Darlington thanked him. The Sea Queen started northward.

CHAPTER XIX.—Continued.

"They've had enough," I said, breathing hard. "Go back on the bridge, De Nova. Now, you lads, get busy. If one of you soldiers, or talks back to me again, he'll go to his bunk for the rest of this voyage. Get up, Anderson, and stop that growling! You fellows may as well learn first as last that I am commanding the Sea Queen, and that we are homeward bound."

Within the space of five minutes I had the whole gang at it, a profane, snuffing crew enough, yet carrying out my orders after a fashion, and sufficiently cowed to be obedient. At last I dispatched the starboard watch below, and leaving De Nova in charge of the bridge, started back to the companion. To my surprise Lady Darlington, half protected, in the open door of the chart-house.

"What in the world are you doing here in all this snow and blow?" I questioned.

"Waiting for you," she explained, her eyes glowing. "I could not go to the cabin until I knew you had really won. Is it true that we are homeward bound?"

"Yes," I answered, not altogether mappy over her evident pleasure. "The Sea Queen has attained her farthest southing. Are you glad?"

"Glad!" Her gloved hands sought mine. "In all my life I was never happier."

These impulsive words, natural as they were, nevertheless hurt me, and perhaps my face exhibited it. Her eyes fell.

"You cannot know how much I have suffered on this voyage," she said, regretfully. "Only a woman could. My heart cries out for relief, but it is not because I wish to lose any friendship formed on board."

"Yet that is what being homeward bound must inevitably mean."

Her long lashes were uplifted, disclosing the depths of those gray eyes.

"Not with me, Mr. Stephens; I am not a woman to forget."

CHAPTER XX.

On which the Yacht Meets Disaster. I have been endeavoring to recall in sequence the occurrences of the three days and nights following our turning northward, but it is all chaos, vague, confused—an expanse of sleepless hours, raging seas, snow, sleet, and ice, in the midst of which we battled for life in as desperately terrific a fight as men ever waged against nature. I can see and feel it all clearly enough, yet the incidents are so commingled that the separate days and nights appear one continuous event, without beginning or end. I hear the ceaseless howl of the wind, the growl of grinding ice, the smiting of tons of water, the threshing of loosened canvas, the rattle of blocks aloft, the thousand noises emitted by the struggling fabric under foot. I see the swirl of snow; the crested seas, boiling in madness; the gleam of pursuing ice-fields; the towering pinnacles of giant bergs overhanging our mast-heads; the flying clouds, and the settling down about us of the ghostly frost fog. I feel the wild plunge down into the hollow; the sickening, staggering effort to climb up; the dizzy balancing upon the crest, and that awful drop again into the hell below!

No man on board will ever know how we made it; how we ever found passage through those wind-lashed channels; how we ever kept upright under the pounding of that sea; how the Sea Queen ever shook her trembling decks free from the tons of ice and water, and rose staggering to the crest. Once our engines broke, and for two hours we rolled helplessly, while McKnight and the Chilean tinker at the damaged machinery, and the great waves buried us, and smashed the charthouse, into fragments. Once the rudder-chains became fouled with ice, and we swung into the trough of the sea hurled over until our lower yards trailed in the water and half the yacht shivered beneath the smother, we hanging on for our lives, drenched and buffeted by the waves. The jib-boom snapped like a pipestem, and a huge, ugly hole was ripped out of the forward bulwarks. Up to the neck in icy water we chopped away the raffle, and flung it overboard. Gustafson, shrieking wildly for help, went with the litter, while his mates bore Symes below groaning from a broken leg.

Merciful heavens, how that ice came down, pursuing us like the very Fiend! Once it pressed so closely against our quarter that the sea, rebounding from off its front, boarded us, sweeping aft like a vast wall. It caught Dade opening the companion door, hurled him smothering backward and flooded the cabin a foot deep in icy water. Yet we held to it, our eyes aching, our limbs frozen, our olivans stiff with ice, the exposed flesh of our faces one festering frostbite, bruised by the shocks, half dead from fatigue, dizzy from the battle. But it was no seamanship which saved us; it was a merciful Providence, for at times the smother was so thick we ran into it blindly, not daring to broach to with all that ice after us, driven by the wind, and not knowing what was ten yards ahead, or ten yards behind.

During all that time I scarcely left the deck, although De Nova served his watch on the bridge in the flying spray. Dade fed me as best he could, and what brief snatches of sleep I caught were on the divan in the cabin, my icy clothes drying on my body. I saw nothing of the women; there was no time, no opportunity. I doubt if either could have kept upright amid the awful pitching of the yacht, for I was obliged myself to creep from one hand-grasp to another. So I saw nothing of the ladies, but Dade succeeded in taking them food—cold provender, for the galley was wave-lashed, the cook driven below—although how the lad ever managed it is a mystery, and he reported that Celeste clung to her bunk, sick and frightened, but that Lady Darlington was about and dressed whenever the went in.

"Some time during the third day the wind had blown itself out, or else we had been driven beyond the sweep of it. Anyhow, it died down into faint puffs, but the sea remained heavy, the fog thickening as the gale ceased. This curfew, coupled with the sparse light there, was, left the decks so dark that we attempted little clearing up, merely pointing the yacht's nose more directly northward at half-speed, trusting the Almighty to furnish us with clear water. Indeed, there was nothing else to do with that ice-pack back of us, and the fierce seas pounding our poop. Besides, I had come to the end of my endurance, and when De Nova came limping forward, hanging to the life-line, to take his watch, I crept below more dead than alive, and clawed my way across the cabin. Lady Darlington stood braced in her doorway, yet for the life of me I could not speak, although I tried my head nodded on my shoulders, and I fell forward across my bunk, asleep before I even struck the mattress. Dade said she made him pull off my boots and loosen my muffler, standing over him until it was done.

It was not sleep—it was more like death, for I never stirred or knew anything. I lay exactly as I felt, utterly insensible to either noise or motion. It was Dade's vigorous shaking that finally aroused me, nor did he desist until he had me sitting up in the bunk, my eyes wide open.

"What time is it, Dade?"

"Two o'clock, sir."

"Morning?"

"No, sir, afternoon; but the fog is that thick outside you can't see your own nose."

"Then I've been asleep for six hours. Why didn't you call me earlier?"

"Mr. De Nova told me to let you lie, sir; I guess the lady asked him to do it."

I had pulled on my boots, and was standing up, gazing out through the door into the cabin, where Dade still remained, watching to see that I did not go back to sleep again. Suddenly there came a tremendous shock which sent me sprawling forward, and flung Dade headlong against the wall. As I struck the deck a thunderous crash and roar sounded forward; the stern of the vessel seemed to spring upward into the air, sliding us both down against the front of the cabin. Instantly there followed two muffled reports, accompanied by a further up-titling of the stern. Everything loose came tumbling down upon us, and as I pulled myself to my knees, I found the deck slanting upward like the steep side of a hill.

"Oh, Lord, sir, what's been done?"

"We've hit something hard; ice, likely. Jump, now, and help me get out the women."

The awful, sickening poise of the stricken boat, swinging stern-up to the motion of the waves, was enough to shatter the courage of any man, and I could read speechless terror in Dade's face. Yet the lad stayed with me, and together we clambered up the incline of the deck, gripping at the table to help us. The door of the after-cabin was either locked or had become stuck; I did not wait to learn which, but burst it open with a swift, heavy kick. The light streamed in upon a scene of chaos—overturned furniture and broken glass. Celeste lay in one corner screaming hysterically; Lady Darlington was upon her knees, holding herself partially erect by clasping the brass rail of the bed.

"Quick!" I cried, before either could speak. "Gather up all the warm clothing you can reach. We must get on deck. Here, let me help you!"

We were scarcely a minute at the task; and the four of us, laden with apparel, slid and scrambled down the slope of cabin floor to the companion-steps. Here I caught Lady Darlington more closely to me, helping her climb the inverted stairs. Her face was pale, her eyes fearless.

"What is it? What has happened?"

"I hardly know myself; only that we have hit something and are badly damaged."

It was like night on deck, the enveloping fog so dense that a human form was indistinguishable five feet away. Fortunately but little wind stirred, and the sea had gone down. I could distinguish De Nova's voice as he sang out a sharp order. I followed my hands, and halted. A dim smudge leaned over the rail above, and peered down.

"Was zat you, monsieur?"

"Ay, with the women. What is it, De Nova, a total smash?"

"By gar, uff! Ze whole bow cave in; ze deck crüsh' to ze main-hatch; ze after-bulkhead was ze only sing w'at hold us up. Sacre, it not hold long."

I grasped the entire situation instantly, realizing the desperate need of haste, of cool, intelligent command.

"Send a man down here to help Dade, tote up provisions. Jump lively, now; get biscuits and canned goods, my lads, and whatever blankets you can find. Hustle for your lives! Now, De Nova, reach over, and help the women up—easy; that's right."

"I held tightly to my lady, clinging to the rail, as I crept across. The black, shapeless figures of several men, whose faces I could not distinguish in the gloom, were clambering about the longboat.

"Everything fitted?"

"Ay, ay, sir."

"What have you got?"

"Oars; mast, canvas, and fresh water."

I reached forward to assure myself that the rudder had been properly shipped, and the plugs securely driven in.

"All right; here come the provisions. Dump them in anywhere, lads. Yes, go back for another load, but for God's sake hurry! De Nova, help me stow the women; gently, but quickly now. Stand by, all of you. Here is the rest of the provender. Now tumble in, lads, and let fall. Ease her off, ease her off, you fools!"

The black smudge dropped down, and leaning far over the slanting rail I could see it strike the water and ride free. The sudden, wrecked hull beneath me rose and fell with a heavy, sickening motion which brought the heart up into my throat.

"Are those all the living men left, Mr. De Nova?" I called down, for the first time realizing how few they were.

"Zey was all I know."

Another voice spoke, gruff from excitement.

"The fellows for'ard had no chance, sir; all alive are here."

I swung over the side, and shot down the line into the boat.

"Cast off, then. Oars, men! the yacht is going under."

With a single sweep of the hastily piled blades we were beyond sight of the plunging hull, yet we had not taken half a dozen strokes before we were tossed roughly by a sudden convulsion of the sea.

"My God, she's gone!" shouted a voice forward.

All I could distinguish within the boat were the two women next me at the stern—Celeste, with her face buried in her arms, and my lady staring into the icy fog.

Tolstoy's Plea for Justice. Justice demands that you should take from people no more than you give them. But there is a way of weighing your work and the work of others of which you avail yourself; besides, you may at any time be incapacitated for work, and you will have to make use of the work of other people. Therefore try to give more than you take so as not to be unjust.

Strong Plea for the Infants. Mrs. Julia Ward Howe testified the other day before the Massachusetts legislative committee which is investigating the milk situation. While giving her testimony she refused the chair offered by the committee and remained standing at the head of the witness table. In making her plea for pure milk Mrs. Howe said: "There are several parties to the milk situation, and I think the principal party is the child in the cradle. There is no substitute for milk in rearing children. It is a matter of life and death and should not take long to settle. I do want that those who produce this important food should have suitable compensation. I stand for justice to all parties and mercy to one, the infant."

WHEREIN LAY HER WEAKNESS

Minister's Object Lesson Should Have Convinced Janet She Was Not Meant for Preacher.

A carping old Scotch woman said to her pastor one day: "Dear me, ministers mak' muckle adse about their hard work, but what's two bits o' sermons in the week tak' mak' up? I cul dae it masil!"

"Weel, Janet," said the minister, "let's hear ye."

"Come awa' wi' a text, then," quoth she.

He repeated, with emphasis: "It is better to dwell in the corner of the housetop than with a brawling woman and in a wide house."

Janet fired up instantly.

"What's that you say, sir? Dae ye intend anything personal?"

"Stop, stop!" broke in her pastor. "You wudd never do for a meenister."

"An' what for no?" asked she, sharply.

"Because, Janet, you come over soon tae the application."

GETTING RICH RAPIDLY ENOUGH.

"He doesn't believe in trusts." "He doesn't need to. He owns a summer resort hotel."

SKIN HUMOR 25 YEARS

"Cuticura did wonders for me. For twenty-five years I suffered agony from a terrible humor, completely covering my head, neck and shoulders, so even to my wife, I became an object of dread. At large expense I consulted the most able doctors far and near. Their treatment was of no avail, nor was that of the — Hospital, during six months' efforts. I suffered on and concluded there was no help for me this side of the grave. Then I heard of some one who had been cured by Cuticura Remedies and thought that a trial could do no harm. In a surprisingly short time I was completely cured. S. P. Keyes, 147 Congress St., Boston, Mass., Oct. 12, '09."

Face Covered with Pimples

"I congratulate Cuticura upon my speedy recovery from pimples which covered my face. I used Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent for tea days, and my face cleared and I am perfectly well. I had tried doctors for several months but got no results. Wm. J. Sadler, 1614 Susquehanna Ave., Philadelphia, May 1, 1909."

His Approach Heralded.

The pet cat, wearing a bright red ribbon around his neck, was chatting democratically with a stray cat, on the back verandah. "I wonder what's the matter with me, Maltese," said the pet cat; "I can't stalk a mouse successfully to save my lives."

"No wonder," said the stray cat, disdainfully. "If all your neckties are as loud as that you're wearing."

Hard Task, Indeed!

Little Helen was at the seaside with her aunt, and in the house where they were staying was a telephone. One day she heard her mother talking from the city, and she was so terrified that she burst into tears.

"Oh, auntie, auntie!" she sobbed, "how shall we ever get mamma out of that little hole?"

Think of Last Summer—

You can remember days when the heat inside your kitchen was so great you could hardly bear it. With the right stove you would have made a better hostess. Save your health. Don't put up with the drudgery of a coal range. You can have a clean, cool, pleasant kitchen. The does away with all drudgery of cooking. Why should you be a slave to a coal range when you can have an Oil Cook-Stove that is cheaper than coal, cleaner than coal, doesn't "smell," doesn't smoke, lights no ashes, and doesn't heat the kitchen. With one of these stoves you can boil, bake or roast the most elaborate dinner. You can change from a slow to a quick fire, or the other way about, by simply turning a wick. Apply a match, and instantly the heat from an intense blue flame shoots upward through the turquoise-blue enamel chimneys to the bottom of pot, kettle or oven—but nowhere else. The stove has every convenience that can be thought of: Cabinet Top with shelf for keeping food and dishes hot, drop shelves to hold coffee or teapots, towel rack; in fact every convenience possible.

The nickel finish, with the bright blue of the chimneys, makes the stove ornamental and attractive.

AS THE "DUKE OF DURHAM"

American Dealer Sat in Chair Once Occupied by Hero of Waterloo

The late Mr. Washington Duke, of Durham, North Carolina, at home known as "Uncle Wash," who manufactured tobacco products, so extensively for a quarter of a century, used to tell a quaint little story on himself. "The first time I traveled abroad," he said, "I visited Brussels and went to see all its sights. In one of the public buildings I found an ordinary looking armchair carefully rolled off and with a chain across its front. Being tired with a hard morning of tramping, I stepped over the fence, let down the chain and, with a big sigh of relief, dropped into this chair. The only one I had seen in the building. A guard in lace and buttons was on me at once.

"No sitting in that chair!" he blustered. "See the card on the back? That's the Wellington once occupied that chair!" "Well, and what of it?" I returned, cool as a cucumber. "That Duke of Durham, and alive at that!" "This settled the matter. Down to the floor went that stinky, brushing the dust from my American shoes with his handkerchief of real European title. A way-up English title catches them every time. I had my rest out in that solid old chair of the Waterloo hero."—The Wasp.

BOYS' STATE FAIR SCHOOL

The first annual session of the Boy's State Fair School to be held on the State Fair Grounds, Springfield, Illinois, from September 30 to October 8.

AIM to offer a well selected body of young men the means for systematic observation and study, under the direction of competent instructors, of the great agriculture, mechanical and education exhibits at the State Fair, and through said agency more fully inform and interest the residents of the respective counties in the resources of Illinois, and the achievements of her citizens as demonstrated by the displays on exhibition.

WHO MAY ATTEND. Each county in the State may send two boys, one to represent the rural schools, and one the city schools.

HOW CHOSEN. A committee consisting of the county superintendent, the President of the County Farmers' Institute, and a third person to be selected by them, preferable, a city superintendent or high school principal, will decide upon the character of the test by which the selections are to be made, and will give a certificate to the two boys who meet the test. The Commission suggests that one part of the test may be an essay by the candidate, setting forth the objects of the exposition and what he expects to get out of and will get out of a week's attendance upon the State Fair School. No boy shall be selected who is under fifteen years of age.

EQUIPMENT. A tent will be provided with cots for sleeping, with chairs and tables for study. Each boy will be expected to provide himself with sheets, towels, soap, and to pay for his meals. An effort is being made by the Commission to secure free transportation for all the members of the school. A further announcement will be made on the matter.

ORGANIZATION OF THE SCHOOL. The school will be under the control of a Director charged with complete responsibility and authority for arranging the program of study, for assigning the boys to their classes, for keeping a record of attendance, study and deportment, and for arranging the hours and classes for the various instructors. Every boy who attends the school is under the immediate authority and control of this Director.

An assistant director will be appointed in each Congressional District by the member of the State Board of Agriculture representing said district, provided that no county shall have more than one assistant director. This assistant director must be engaged in school work. He will assist in getting the names of the boys as soon as they have been selected by the county committee in his district, and in ranging for their transportation to and from the Fair, and will act as a general helper and adviser of the boys from his district during the session of the school. He will be an assistant to the Director and will be subordinate to him in a general management of the school.

OBSERVATION AND STUDY. The forenoon of each day will be given over to observation, study, and class work, the evenings to attendance upon illustrated lectures to be given on the Fair Grounds. The afternoons will be free for general visitation and observation of the various exhibits on the State Fair Grounds.

INSTRUCTION AND INSTRUCTORS. The school will be formed into groups for the observation and study of the various classes of live stock, farm products, machinery, and other displays and exhibition. Each of these groups will be under the direction of a competent instructor to be furnished by the State University. The names of the instructors will be given later.

RECORDS AND REPORTS. Each boy will be required to keep a record of each day's observation and instruction. This record will be passed upon by the instructors and Directors. Every member of the school will be expected to prepare from his week's observation and study a report suitable to give to his school, and to the County Farmers' Institute, also to furnish a statement of the same for the home papers. A copy of said report to be filed with the Secretary of the Commission in charge.

RECORDS AND REPORTS. As it is a school for serious observation and study, it will be organized and controlled as such. Each student must give full and prompt obedience to the regulations. The hours for study, for lectures for meals, and for going to bed will be fixed by the authorities in control and enforced by them. No boy shall be selected who will not agree to submit cheerfully to such rules.

PHYSICAL DIRECTOR. The Commission will appoint a competent physical director in order that the health of the boys may be carefully looked after.

CHICAGO AND THE UNITED STATES ARMY TOURNAMENT JULY 4-14, 1910.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL

Railroad from points in Illinois. Chicago's coming days Fourth Celebration and United States Military Tournament, to be held in Grant Park on Lake Front—no charge for admission and free seats to the number of 20,000—has lately assumed proportions that command national interest. Aside from being the inaugural celebration whose purpose is to turn the flood of patriotic excitement on our national birthday into rational channels, the Military Tournament is attracting almost equal attention since it now develops that it will be the largest and most elaborate staged by Uncle Sam for any city and will comprise a comprehensive exhibition of every branch of the regular army in action.

Independence Day in Chicago will be inaugurated by a monster historical and patriotic pageant in the morning. Numerous floats will be shown illustrating momentous events in our history and also the various patriotic elements which have become a part and portion of our nation. This pageant or parade will in all probability be the largest and most elaborate given in any city and many of the floats will require weeks of work in construction. Men and women appropriately costumed will ride on the floats and every detail will be historically correct so that the parade will be a remarkable history lesson in itself.

SHOW THE WAY THINGS ARE MADE

Nearly Every Industry Will Have a Working Exhibit.

AT OHIO VALLEY EXPOSITION

Money Coining Machinery, Miniature Coal Mine, Loom On Which Cloth Is Produced, Candy and Breakfast Food Factories, Electrical Exhibits, Model Dairy and Many Others Will Be in Actual Operation.

Cincinnati, O. — (Special.) — Not only will the products of the industries of the Ohio Valley and the South be shown at the Ohio Valley Exposition, to be held in Cincinnati from Aug. 29 to Sept. 24, but the actual hum of those industries will be heard throughout the vast acres of buildings that will be utilized to display the resources of these two sections, brought together under one common roof, as it were.

The day of the exposition at which only finished articles are displayed is gone, so far as the general public is concerned. In order to interest the masses of today it is necessary to "show" them. They are more interested in viewing the way a thing is made than in seeing it in its finished state. Consequently, exhibitors at the Ohio Valley Exposition are preparing a series of "working exhibits" that will prove a revelation to the habitual exposition visitor and a source of unalloyed joy and interest to the man, woman and child who wants to be shown.

Nearly every industry that will be represented in the Exposition will have a working exhibit. One of the first of these to apply for space was a Cleveland worsted mill, which desired space in which to display its finished products and also an area on which to erect a loom on which the cloth produced by the firm might be woven in plain sight of the visitors.

This exhibit will be located on one of the most prominent aisles of the Exposition, and is certain to attract a great deal of attention. One Cincinnati firm has contracted for space upon which to erect a model candy factory, this plant being devoted to the making of the finest grades of chocolate and will be run in connection with the exhibit of a candy manufacturing firm, thereby showing the evolution of the candy from the pod to the dimly lighted parlor on Sunday night when the shiny gives her the box and then rushes to take a piece on the plea that "she does not care for candy."

South Bend, Ind., will send a hollow concrete block manufacturing plant; Niagara Falls is after space for a place on which to manufacture and give away samples of a certain brand of breakfast food; from the South comes a positive clamor for room on which to erect miniature sawmills, turpentine stills, wood pulp manufacturing plants and the like, all giving here to the word "industrial" as applied to the Exposition.

However, this is not the limit. There are the electrical, mechanical, and other exhibits, including a miniature model of the utility of the electrical and of the Edison storage battery for battery streetcars; a model dairy in which the cows are milked by electricity and the latest food prepared through the various processes in most sanitary and up-to-date manner; the installation of the Moore light, which is said to rival daylight, and with which tests will be made in the matter of matching colors as against the illumination of other forms of light; harvesting machinery in operation; road-building models performing on road as they; a model shoe factory, and a number of other "live" exhibits equally interesting and convincing.

The original plans for the Exposition were drawn up as being necessary to increase the amount of floor space several times, as great has been the demand for exhibition. All of which indicates that the Ohio Valley will be glad she has an exposition, and the South will be highly delighted with the opportunities of showing her wares under such favorable conditions and to so many hundreds of thousands of people who heretofore have been in the dark regarding the resources of Dixieland.

For the Scandalmonger. The Orleans museum has just been enriched with a curious relic of the past which some workmen in making excavations in the city came across. It is a stone representing a grinning figure, showing the teeth, the countenance being repellent enough. In this way the loquacious woman, the scandalmonger, was brought to her senses. The stone, suspended by a chain, was placed round her neck, and so accoutred she was compelled to walk round the town in which she lived. The stone is supposed to date about the sixteenth century.

HERE IS THE PROOF That the best body-building and strengthening tonic for Delicate Children is Vinol. My 9 year old daughter was weak, pale, and had no appetite. I gave her Vinol, and she began to thrive at once. She gained rapidly in weight, color and strength. Mrs. W. H. GILMORE, Durand, Mich. My two children, who were puny and ailing, rapidly gained flesh and strength when I began to give them Vinol. I proved that Vinol is a splendid tonic for delicate children. Mrs. C. ALLEN, New Bedford, Mass. Vinol builds up healthy flesh and makes thin little limbs round and plump. Children love to take it. We return people's money without question if Vinol does not accomplish all we claim for it. Try it, please. SAM B. HALL, Druggist, Sullivan.

Monster Tourney. Largest grand stand ever constructed being erected at the Grand Park Chicago, for U. S. Army Tournament, July 4 to 14. This stand will seat 40,000 people and will be larger by 10,000 seats than the one now being constructed in San Francisco for the Jeffries-Johnson fight which occurs on the same day that the Tournament stand will be used for the first time. It will require 1,000,000 feet of lumber to erect this stand and the estimated cost is $25,000. They will be built around the great arena 400 by 600 feet in which the daily afternoon and evening exhibition of the army are to be given. A remarkable feature of these stands is that they will be portable and will be so erected that they can be taken up after the Tournament and reconstructed in some other city. The contract for the stands has been awarded to a Cleveland firm which makes a specialty of handling stands for large public celebrations. It was this firm which built the stands and bleachers for the Hudson-Fulton celebration in New York City and also the Founders' Week Celebration in Philadelphia and the Homecoming tendered to the Wright brothers by Dayton, Ohio.

DANGER IN LICKING STAMPS. Practice Has Been Known to Cause Acute Inflammation of the Tongue.

Do the people who fear of the contagious ones who refuse to lick a postage stamp as "cranks" know that there is a defined disease known as "the postage stamp tongue"? This is an acute inflammation of the tongue, directly traced to the germs to be found on the gummed side of stamp or envelope. Other and more serious diseases have been caused by this habit that is so universal and seems so harmless. One throat specialist in a hospital declares that many chronic affections of the throat are found among persons who have as their livelihood the addressing and stamping of envelopes. Bad skin diseases have been known to follow this habit, and it has even caused pulmonary troubles. It is after all but a habit, and a bad one. It takes no more time and is quite as easy to moisten the stamp with a damp sponge or rag. Where many letters must be stamped and sealed there are good patent inventions by which the sponge is kept moist.

TAKE A FARM HOME WITH YOU-- YOU CAN DO IT.. WE'LL SHOW YOU HOW

Come over and take a look at some rich, black corn land—just the same soil as that of the Illinois corn belt, which you know costs $200.00 per acre and more.

But STRAUS CORN FARMS cost only $130.00 to $160.00 per acre.

We have an automobile waiting at the door, and we want to take you for a trip over the country—some of the Farm Homes we will make you "sit up."

We have big farms and little farms--20 acres or 1000 acres--fine improvements and modest improvements--but the soil! When you look for soil, just take the spade out from under the seat of the automobile and dig anywhere you please. You will think you are on better and richer corn land than there is in Illinois--and that is saying a great deal, for everyone knows the splendid quality of Central Illinois soil.

We don't claim to have anything better--what we do have is The Same Soil at $50.00 to $100.00 Less Cost Per Acre--that's the point we are offering for your "thinking over."

And while you are "thinking over" this matter, tell us to send you one of our ADVANCE CATALOGUES. It contains photographs and descriptions of a number of our choice Farm Homes.

And come over and see us next week if you can.

Since the First Fourth

I HAVE no written record to prove that the makers of the first Fourth of July were given to boasting about their possessions. If they were in the habit of writing letters to their English cousins, in which they casually referred to the fact that they owned a territory of over 297,000 square miles, or some five times as large as all England and Wales, neither Poor Richard nor any of the other dear old chroniclers made note of the fact.

But inasmuch as the colonists felt big enough and strong enough and rich enough to pitch into Great Britain, and, not only did pitch into her, but beat her after a fair fight, it would look to an unbiased person today as if the forefathers of the firecrackers had a pretty good opinion of themselves and of what they had in hand. It is quite likely that after the unpleasantness known as the Revolution, when the country was striding ahead with its commerce, was selling its cotton and its tobacco to every one that wore clothes or used the weed, they felt they had more reason to pat themselves on the back for the marvelous growth they showed before the eighteenth century was done.

But just supposing one of the framers of the Declaration could read over a few statistics and observe a few events that are at hand today! If you told him that since his day the country—his country—has increased more than ten times in area, more than 80 times in population, and more than a thousand times in wealth, how would he take the news? Would he still assert, as some of our friends among the oldest inhabitants are prone to do, that the "good old days were best," or would he not be more likely to sally forth in search of the beads and make a peremptory demand for your incarceration as a dangerous lunatic?

Surely if truth is stranger than fiction figures are stranger still when measuring the vast strides that our country has taken since the Fourth of July, 1776. What one of the signers dreamed that in 1803, or less than 30 years after his ink dried upon that historic document, the United States would acquire a territory of 875,000 square miles, or nearly three times the size of all the 13 original states put together. But that was what we got when we bought Louisiana for $15,000,000. In 1819, when we took in Florida, we added more than 70,000 square miles to our area; in 1845 we took in Texas with its vast domain of 389,000 square miles; and within three years thereafter had absorbed Oregon and the Mexican concession, adding in round numbers 800,000 square miles more.

Every once in a little while Uncle Sam seemed to grow territorially hungry, and would lurch off a promising fragment of the continent. The Gadsden purchase of 36,000 square miles was made in 1853; Alaska was bought for $7,200,000 in 1867, adding nearly 600,000 square miles to our map, and in 1897 we took in the Hawaiian Islands to prove that we were not discriminating against the Pacific ocean in the matter of our favor. Then all in a bunch, during the days of 1898 and 1899 we took in Porto Rico, Guam and the Philippines, and a few of the Samoan Islands. The Sandwich Islands were scarcely worth mentioning for they added only a wee mite to our real estate holdings—6,740 square miles, to be exact—and Porto Rico with its 3,600, and little Guam with its 175 might be left out altogether and we'd hardly notice that we had lost them.

The Philippines totaled about 143,000 square miles, and you'll hardly be able to suppress a smile when you are informed that the Samoan "islands" that we took over in 1899 had the enormous area of 73 square miles. But even at that there's plenty of room upon those little ocean dots for cable houses, dry docks and coaling stations. A few thousand tons of coal stored at any one of those places may at some time in the future save the American battleship fleet and give it the power to overcome a foe in the far east. Thus, all told, when you add up the various breakfasts, luncheons, and dinners of new land that our uncle has enjoyed since 1776 we get the tidy showing of 2,936,731 square miles.

This new territory cost the United States treasury exactly $87,039,768, or about $30 a square mile. Add what we've bought to what we had during the Revolution, and you get a total of a little more than 3,000,000 square miles of territory.

The government figure experts, who ought to be the best on earth, for they get more pay than any other statisticians on the globe, calculate that the total wealth of the United States today is over $110,000,000,000. They have come to the conclusion, after going over acres and acres of numerals that every man, woman and child in the United States has $34.72. If you have not as much as that you should go to Washington and demand the difference from Maj. O. P. Austin, chief of the bureau of statistics. If every one who has more than $34.72 should go to Major Austin and "whack up" with him to the extent of every penny they have above that sum, he could make an exact distribution of our national wealth and everybody might be satisfied—for a minute. The calculation of what every one in a country ought to be worth is the estimation of what is known as the "per capita wealth."

According to the bureau of statistics' reckoning, you and I are worth a good deal more than we were in the days when the country was young. In 1800, or at the time when they have the first record of per capita wealth, the citizens of the United States were only worth $5 apiece. The gain in per capita wealth has not always been steady during the decades. Certain census years showed us poorer than during the previous ten years, but most of the time we have been getting along nicely, thank you. In 1810 we were worth $7.59 a head, 1820 had fallen to $6.94; in 1830 we were even a little poorer at $6.79, but in 1840 had jumped to $10.91.

In the middle of the century we had advanced to $12.02 apiece, and from that time on there were no more bargain drops or reductions whatever. But while we are talking of what we are worth per capita, it might not be amiss to mention the fact that every one of us here in the United States has also a debt per capita. In 1800 the per capita debt was $15.63, or more than three times as much as the worth per capita. Now, thank goodness and the statisticians, we seem to be well out of the financial woods, for each and all of us has a per capita debt of only $10.76, or considerably less than one-third of what we own. With a showing like that we may be pardoned if we take the day off and go celebrate.

The biggest figures that the government has compiled this year are probably found in the freight records. They are so colossal that they really mean nothing to any one outside of the railroad business, and perhaps not so very much to the railway expert except by way of comparison. Last year the railroads hauled 336,601,390, 103 tons of freight one mile. We cannot easily compare that showing with the amount of freight hauled during colonial days, for during colonial days railroad freight was not known. Possibly there were figures compiled showing how many pounds of freight were carried by the coastwise vessels or the ships that plied between American and English, Dutch, French, and Portuguese ports. If these figures were prepared, however, they have been lost in the dust of time and the world has been too busy to hunt for them.

In the year 1800 the United States coined all of $317,600 worth of gold. That was going quite a bit, one must acknowledge. Last year we converted $131,688,632; the silver coinage record was $224,294; last year it was $12,391,777.

More than $96,000,000 worth of gold was taken from our territory last year. In 1810 when the gold mining business was in its cradle, the production was $2,463, and even that amount is not vouched for as absolutely accurate.

In 1820 the pig iron production of the entire country was estimated at 20,000 tons; last year it was about 16,000,000.

In the year 1810 there were said to be 359 newspapers in the country, as compared with 21,320 at the present time. The records do not attempt to tell what kind of newspapers the editors printed 100 years ago, nor do they give any sworn statements of circulation.

The war department spent $2,560,000 in 1800 as against more than $175,000,000 last year.

The navy expended $3,448,000 in 1800, as compared with $118,000,000 last year, while the pension roll of the two years was $64,131 and $153,892,467.

Cotton consumed in 1800 amounted to 18,829 bales; now we use 4,500,000 bales.

We are consuming more than 6,000,000,000 pounds of sugar a year just now; in 1800, the first recorded year, the consumption for the 12 months was 631,000,000 pounds. Almost equally enormous and unfathomable figures are produced to show the annual value of the stock products of the country.

Of farm animals there were produced for the market last year $4,525,259,000.

Half a century ago, when the statisticians first began to busy themselves about such things, the record was $544,150,000, showing that the farmer has been doing his duty by his country and his family as well as by the manufacturer, the miner, and the railroad man.

The postoffice has grown from an institution with 903 branches in 1800 to nearly 70,000 today.

The salaries paid public school teachers have increased from $37,000,000 in 1870, to $197,000,000 this year, and the number of telegrams sent over the wires has jumped from 9,000,000 40 years ago to 90,000,000, or thereabouts, this year.

These figures, while eloquent, give but a faint idea of what has happened in our material welfare department within the space of 134 Fourths of July. With airplanes floating, or about to float, above the cities; with messages to Mars almost released and answered, with radium ready to revolutionize the scientific world—why is it not fair to presume that before 134 more anniversaries occur the United States will show even more marvelous progress in the world of nations?

Words That Are Out of Style.

Most old English words have fallen from their high estate and are now banned in the best society, at any rate in Mayfair and Belgravia. Of these is the Saxon word "lady," which we are told is derived from "loaf-giver."

In 1910 we speak of a "woman" and the word "lady" has become almost a term of reproach. A young single woman is a girl—pronounced "gyrl"—as the name "young lady" is reserved for barmaids, shop hands and telephone operators.

Then the word "dress" used to describe the outer garment of our mothers and grandmothers, but "gowns" and "frocks" are worn by women of the twentieth century. Also we may talk of "relations," but not of "relatives;" and the most venerable of rooster must be called a "chicken," as the word "fowl" has sunk almost to the level of low language.—Queen.

People of Other Planets.

Calculations as to the size required for human beings on the other planets vary widely according to the basis of reckoning. According to those based upon the attraction of gravity, Jupiter should be peopled by pygmies of 28 inches. Wolfus, on the other hand, argued that Goliath himself would be accounted decidedly undersized upon that planet. He worked from the feebleness of the sun's light there, which would demand that the pupil of the eye should be much more dilatable. Since the pupil stands in constant proportion to the ball of the eye, and that to the entire body, said Wolfus, a little calculation shows that an average Jovian must be nearly thirteen feet seven inches tall—not quite four inches shorter than Og, King of Bashan, according to the measure of his bedstead given in Deuteronomy.

Male Fashions in 1850.

Male fashions of 60 years ago had other discomforts besides long hair. Trousers were tight and buttoned under the foot with broad straps. Every man who aspired to be well dressed wore his coat so high in the collar that the back of the hat rested upon it. This fashion was so prevalent that, according to Sir Algernon West, "every hat had a crescent of cloth on the back of the brim to prevent the rubbing of the beaver, or imitation beaver, of which the hat was made, for silk hats were not then invented." And from the same authority we learn that "opera hats were unknown, and in the evening a folding chapeau bras was always carried under the arm. Nobody but an apothecary or a solicitor would have dreamed of leaving his hat in the hall of the house where he was calling or dining."

NOTES FROM MEADOWBROOK FARM

By William Pitt

Never use poor seed.
Plant only potatoes that are sound.
No horse can thrive on musty bran, oats or corn.
Cooked meat is much better to give the very young turkeys.
Sweet clover is a good indicator of soil that will grow alfalfa.
Weeds reduce the physical condition of the soil to a poorer state.
With prices at the $10 mark, the hog has become a respected farm animal.
Now that the chicks are hatched, comes the difficult part of raising them.

Make it a rule to caress the colt after performing well what was required of him.
Among the things by which time can be saved by using larger machinery the grain drill stands first.
Few annual flowers will grow so easily and give the wealth of bloom for so long a season as the nasturtiums.

Buy only the best and never sell good stock, except when you have a surplus or when the birds are too old for profit.

Free range for hogs does not mean that they should be allowed to run in the highways and through the neighbors' fields.

Every inclosure for the hog should be perfectly tight, and with the excellent wire fences that are now manufactured it is an easy matter.

The essentials of a good summer hog pasture are, first, a good hog-tight fence; next comes a good stand of grass, clover or other good forage plants.

While the interest in good roads seems to be general throughout the country it is not active because concentration of effort is necessary to secure them.

It is as impossible to tell by looking at a cow the amount of milk she will give in a year as it is to tell the amount of butter fat present in milk by looking at it.

You can have pure bred flock of chickens just as well as not. If you have not the hens to lay the eggs secure eggs from a pure breed and hatch and raise the kind you like best.

Mangels are the most economical beet to grow for milk production; but many breeders, in forcing cows for extreme records, prefer table beets, because the cows will eat a larger quantity.

With some varieties of apples, like Ben Davis, Bordeaux cannot safely be used just after the blossoms fall because of the russeting and disfigurement of the fruit which almost surely results.

When properly used millet is one of the most palatable forage crops of the whole list, and furthermore when one or two simple precautions are taken it is as safe as any other kind of hay or forage.

The period of incubation for pheasant eggs does not differ greatly from that of common fowls, though it is slightly longer, 25 as compared with 21 days. The eggs are usually set under a Cochin bantam hen.

The reason why hogs so eagerly devour coal ashes, rotten wood and such material, is because they do not have, while in close confinement, the material their systems require. At large they root it out of the ground.

After all, it is hen fruit that is the most reliable crop, and it gets too little attention on the majority of farms. The time is coming soon when eggs and poultry will be one of the principal sources of income to those who own small or medium-sized farms.

The time is not far distant when this country will be compelled to make available every form of fertility that will enrich the soil. The people of India, of China, and of Egypt were long ago compelled to make use of the fertility which in this country is thrown into the rivers, lakes and harbors through town and city sewers. If those eastern people had not made such use of fertility starvation would have ensued.

Make the quarters comfortable.
Do not allow weeds in the yard.
The manure should be on the land doing good.
The more lice you have the less chicks you will raise.
Unsprayed orchards fail to hold their leaves late enough.
It pays to cultivate the orchard but it does not pay to do it poorly.
A spoonful of feed for from a dozen to twenty chicks is enough at one time.

Choose the breed of cows you like and stick to that breed without change.
A disastrous mistake many make with chicks is to feed a lot of soft and sloppy feeds.
A colt should be made acquainted with the harness for some time before a harness is put on him.
For a person or a horse to learn new things the first lessons should be short, with long resting spells between.

Success in growing chicks, or any other young animal, depends largely upon frequent feeding on small amounts.

A pint of crude carbolic acid mixed with a gallon of kerosene makes an excellent spray for poultry houses, and it is cheap.

In selecting a brood sow watch the herd at feeding time. The thricest and fattest always get to the trough first, and these are the ones to buy.

Keep shade trees in the permanent pasture in groups rather than scattered individual trees. The shade will be cooler and less ground will be taken up.

Whatever other industries a town may have there is always room for a good creamery if there is a sufficient number of cows in the adjoining territory.

There is no danger of the market being glutted with poultry products and the person who intelligently increases a flock will be on the winning side next year.

The dairy cow is a wonderful medium for the proper disposal of farm growth crops. She is a complete factory. Her only demand is that you give her a "square deal."

A well fenced hog pasture, or several small ones, is not only an excellent place for making hogs do their best in warm weather, but is also a good pasture for calves or other small animals.

It is immaterial about the size of the window and also about the kind of windows for a cow stable. One can use the kind that best suits his fancy. The important thing is to get sufficient light in the stable.

Soy beans may be planted from early spring until midsummer. If wanted for grain, plant at corn-planting time. For hay, they may be planted later, and if a catch crop is desired, they may be planted still later.

It is a very difficult thing to have the sheep carry its fleece, over the summer season and into the second year, owing to the tendencies to shed wool from various influences that annoy and derange the vigor and general health of the animal.

Economy in fencing never begins in the choice of poor wire. There is great difference in the value of different grades. Take some trouble and pay an extra price to get the best. The use of light-gauge wire is often the most expensive course in the end.

One cause of the idea, which still prevails to a great extent in the city, that much of the comb honey is adulterated, is the fact that there are perhaps hundreds of different flowers which produce honey, no two of which are of exactly the same flavor, and varying also in color.

Raspberries and blackberries should be cultivated rather shallow between the rows, with horse and cultivator, and weeds around the plants cut out with the hoe until July, when a heavy mulch should be placed between the rows, of some material that will prevent the evaporation of the moisture.

Here is a list of the most essential tools: Hoe, garden rake, four-tined fork, long-handled shovel, spade, dibber, wheelbarrow, garden line, seed-drill, double-wheel hoe with its attachments and weeder; to these we might add plant protectors, trowel, watering-pot and sprayer. These for the small garden; the large market gardens require a still larger equipment of horse-tools, etc.

Contrary to the general idea of duck eggs, those from the Runners are of the very best quality and are superior to hen eggs for staple and fancy edible use. They are much larger than hen eggs, two of them being fully the equal to three of the hen's product, and are of such a mild, delicate flavor that a brisk demand has been created for them in cities at an advance from 5 to 20 cents per dozen over hen eggs.

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chicago, Ill. — "I want to tell you what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. I was so sick that two of the best doctors in Chicago said I would die if I did not have an operation. WOMAN ELECTED JUSTICE

Mrs. Mary Phares of Clinton, Second of Her Sex to Hold Illinois Office.

Bloomington, Ill.—Illinois' second woman justice of the peace, Mrs. Mary Phares of Clinton, whose campaign was started as a joke, and who did not know she was a candidate until notified of her election, has qualified for the position and hung out her shingle. She is now ready to deal with any malefactor who may be haled before her, or will serve papers, etc., for whomsoever may apply. She is diligently reading up in law and in the statutes which relate to the duties of justice of the peace and now that she has the job, proposes to go the limit and learn everything about the position that can be unearthed.

"It was started in fun," said Justice Phares, when asked about her new post. "Last winter, Attorney L. O. Williams casually remarked, in my hearing, that he was going to see that I was elected justice of the peace, when the first vacancy on the board appeared. He said he thought I knew as much about weighing evidence and deciding controversies as the average masculine justice. I supposed he was joking and laughingly told him to go ahead and that it was all right with me.

"The subject never entered my mind again until the night of the election, when I was astounded by the information that I had been elected. I received 52 votes. You must consider this a good showing, as I did absolutely no electioneering. Mr. Williams quietly spread the word around among his acquaintances and admonished them to say nothing about it. My name was written on the ballot and even the election judges did not know what was up, until they commenced to count after the polls had closed.

"I was at home all day, while the election was in progress, little dreaming that I was being elected justice of the peace. If ever an office came unsought, this one did. I have since been busy thanking my friends for their remembrance. Perhaps if I had conducted a campaign, I would have polled more votes, but I am satisfied and will try to be a just judge for all the people.

"It will appear a little odd, at first, to give up household duties and officiate at trials. I may even be called upon to marry people. I will have to brush up on the marrying code. I ought to do a rushing business, as brides will not object to me kissing them, as in the case of some of the masculine justices that I know of."

Justice Phares is a widow, her husband, the late Frank Phares, having been a well-known and prominent citizen of Clinton. Mrs. Phares is unusually well educated, is highly intellectual and well read and her friends believe that she will be a fearless justice.

Disappointments of Our Lives

By REV. F. R. MARSH
Pastor First Congregational Church
Houston, Texas

What we see, largely determines what we are. The books we read and the sights we witness furnish much of the foodstuff out of which character is made. Indeed, we say broadly: "Seeing is believing," and limit the field of man's activities to the boundaries of his horizon.

It is not without significance that the children of Israel, dying from fever caused by the fiery serpents, were told that everyone who looked should live. Surely the principle is of wider application than this isolated incident. It can be truly said that only those who look really live. Here is a blind man. He never had the incentive to work that comes to every man at the sight of thousands of his fellows thronging our city's streets, intent upon their business. Standing on some mountain peak, he never saw the crimson bars falling behind the king of day; never knew the glory of God as skies with sun and stars and constellations unfold his mighty acts; never felt the inspiration when the night was passed and on the morning sky clusters of purple cloud began to ripen in the crimson dawn—that man does not know nature, nor life nor God. Vision has value.

Years have passed. You have not been living on the tower. You have plunged in the valleys. You have waded deep waters. You have scaled steep heights. Sometimes it has been hard, God knows. Down the high ways of the years you have come struggling, crying, cursing, sometimes praying, but the ideal has not been realized. Disappointment means the failure of one of two parties to keep an appointment. The vision has failed.

Here is where a prophet on a tower is needed. He can see some things which you can not. You, in the depths below! You, in the darkness behind! You, disappointed at the appointed place, hear what the Lord God says to Habakkuk on the tower: "The vision is yet for an appointed time. . . though it tarry, wait for it, because it will surely come."

Life's disappointments are a universal experience. Some disappointments must succeed the certain delusions of youth. The man higher up has spoken a word to us and our cherished plans have crumbled like a jig saw puzzle. Joys we have sought are crowded back into the future. Stern reality has driven beyond today into that vast tomorrow blessings that seemed almost within our grasp. It is equally true of the moral life. In the darkness of some depression we have had a vision of what we might be, of what we ought to be and of what we said: "By the grace of God, we will be."

But we haven't. At least I hope we have not attained that ideal. I say "hope so," because it means, not that we have made wonderful progress, but that the vision was too insignificant to have lasting value.

The disappointments of life, be they in secular business, Christian work or Christian character, may produce one of two results. One is despair. Hope deferred makes the heart sick. Disappointments are like eggs, which, brooded over and hatched, produce the serpents of despair. When a man begins to ask: "What's the use?" he ought to stop and find out.

The other effect of disappointment may be to call up reserves of strength and new battalions of energy.

Within the past year three notable biographies have been published of an actor, a soldier and a reporter. Richard Mansfield, autocrat, of haughty spirit, at the beginning of his career was offered an important part in a play. He fainted because he had beta two days without food, which he was too poor to buy, and was immediately dismissed. Disappointment of poverty. Tecumseh Sherman, forty years old, wrote: "I look upon myself as a dead cock in the pit, not worthy of further notice." Disappointed ambition! A little English boy, whose father was dead, whose mother had abandoned him, ran away from the poor house, drifted to America, fought as a confederate soldier at Shiloh and eventually crowned disappointments with the laurels of success. His real name was John Rowlands; the world knows him, by the grace of the queen of England, as Sir Henry M. Stanley.

Think of the disappointments of these men and a host of others who have endured as seeing an invisible vision. Paul wrote: "We are troubled on every side, yet not distressed." We are perplexed, but not altogether without help. Persecuted but not forsaken. Cast down, but not destroyed.

This means that with a vision to be attained, there must also be added a vision to secure attainment. This means that with an ideal there must also be added a force to realize that ideal.

Now, with this added help, though the vision tarry, wait for it. Do not discard the ideal. Do not even cramp the ideal to fit the real. Grow to its dimensions. Do not shirk the task to fit your past efforts. Redouble your efforts. Be absolutely sure you have the right idea before you make it your ideal.

Then, though it tarry, your disappointment will prove heaven's appointment for a future day and God will be on thir

CORN PLANTING IS OVER

THAT CANADIAN TRIP SHOULD NOW BE TAKEN.

If you had intended going to Canada for the purpose of purchasing land on which to establish a home and accompanying some land company, whose holdings you proposed to look over or to go up on your own account to select one hundred and sixty acres of land free, you should delay no longer. Corn-planting is over, your wheat crop is well ahead, and you have a few weeks' time before you are required in the fields again. Now make your intended trip. Reports at hand show that the crop prospects in Canada were never better than they are today. The cool weather has not affected the crop, but if anything, it has been a benefit. There has been plenty of moisture and those who have had their land properly prepared look upon this year as likely to be one of the best they have had. A great many are going up this season who expect to pay two or three dollars an acre more than they were asked to pay last year. Others who wish to homestead are prepared to go farther from the line of railway than would have been necessary last year. Still it is worth it. So it will be with you. Next year lands will be higher-priced and homesteads less accessible. There is a wonderful tide of immigration to Central Canada now. It is expected that one hundred and fifty thousand new settlers from the United States will be numbered by the end of the present year, an increase of fifty per cent over last year. In addition to this there will be upwards of one hundred thousand from the old country, which does not include those who may come from the northern countries of the Continent. These all intend to settle upon the land. The reader does not require an answer to the questions, "Why do they do it?" "Why are they going there in such large numbers?" Western Canada is no longer an experiment. The fact that one hundred and fifty million bushels of wheat were raised there last year as against ninety-five millions the year previous, shows that the tiller of the soil in Central Canada is making money and it is safe to say that he is making more money than can be made anywhere else on the Continent in the growing of grains. He gets good prices, he has a sure and a heavy crop, he enjoys splendid railway privileges, and he has also the advantages of schools and churches and such other social life as may be found anywhere. It is difficult to say what district is the best. Some are preferred to others because there are friends already established. The Grand Trunk Pacific, on its way across the Continent, is opening up a splendid tract of land, which is being taken up rapidly. The other railways—the Canadian Pacific and Canadian Northern—are extending branch lines into parts inaccessible a couple of years ago. With a perfect network of railways covering a large area of the agricultural lands it is not difficult to secure a location. Any agent of the Canadian Government will be pleased to render you assistance by advice and suggestion, and a good plan is to write or call upon him. The Government has located these agents at convenient points throughout the States, and their offices are well-equipped with a full supply of maps and literature.

From the Greek. It is said of the inhabitants of Iasus off Caria that when a certain harper was performing the people who were listening heard the bell for the opening of the fish market, and rushed off, with the exception of one man who was a little deaf. The harper, coming up, addressed him thus: "My good sir, I am much flattered by your staying to hear me when all the rest ran off at the sound of a bell." "What?" said he, "has the fish-bell rung? Then I'm off too. Good-by."—Strabo.

DANGER SIGNALS.

Sick kidneys give unmistakable signals of distress. Too frequent or scanty urinary passages, backache, headache and dizzy spells tell of disordered kidneys. Neglect of these warnings may prove fatal. Begin using Doan's Kidney Pills. They cure sick kidneys.

Mrs. M. A. Gambelin, Russellville, Ark., says: "I was in such bad shape from kidney disease that I gave up hope of my recovery. I could rest neither night or day, the pains in my back nearly driving me frantic. There were decided dropsical symptoms such as swelling of my feet and ankles and my heart palpitated violently. After doctoring without benefit, I began with Doan's Kidney Pills and when I had used two boxes I was as well as ever." Remember the name—Doan's. For sale by all dealers. 50 cents a box. JUNGLE AMENITIES.

Elephant—Say, Hippo, close that submarine opening of yours or the water will rush in and sink you. Hippopotamus—Oh, lock up your trunk and put a strap round it if you don't want to have it busted.

The Crucial Test. At an adjourned town council meeting in the north, a member casually mentioned that a person could not enjoy or even distinguish between drinks in the dark. A worthy ballie denied this and offered to bet that, blindfolded, he could name any drink given him. The bet being accepted and the ballie blindfolded, the test commenced. The ballie drank everything submitted, smacking his lips and correctly named the drink until the taker was in despair. Then "try him w' water," whispered a councillor, and the hint was taken. Slip—smack—slip—a shake of the head—"I cannot just mind the name o' this, but I mind o' tasting it when I was a wee laddie."—London Chronicle.

Coming in Relays. Twins were born to Mrs. O'Brien. When the first one was born the nurse called Jimmy and said: "Tell your aunt to come right over. The stork has brought you a little brother." The aunt could not come over immediately. In a half hour the nurse called Jimmy again and said: "Run over and tell auntie the stork has brought you another brother." Jimmy ran to his aunt's house and said: "Auntie, the stork has brought another brother. I wonder how many he will bring before night."

Awful Prospect. One day recently a clergyman was performing a marriage ceremony at the parsonage in the presence of his little son. The boy listened very attentively while his father pronounced the couple husband and wife, then going to his mother he said: "Mamma, when a man marries a woman, must he live with her?" "Yes, dear," his mother replied. The boy was thoughtful for a moment and then said: "Mamma, must papa live with all the women he has married?"

Give a man health and a course to steer, and he'll never stop to trouble about whether he's happy or not.—G. Bernard Shaw.

Not Sisters
Now and again you see two women passing down the street who look like sisters. You are astonished to learn that they are mother and daughter, and you realize that a woman at forty or forty-five ought to be at her finest and fairest. Why isn't it so? The general health of woman is so intimately associated with the local health of the essentially feminine organs that there can be no red cheeks and round form where there is female weakness.

Women who have suffered from this trouble have found prompt relief and cure in the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It gives vigor and vitality to the organs of womanhood. It clears the complexion, brightens the eyes and reddens the cheeks.

No alcohol, or habit-forming drugs is contained in "Favorite Prescription." Any sick woman may consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. Every letter is held as sacredly confidential, and answered in a plain envelope. Address World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Pres., Buffalo, N. Y.

Off in His Pronunciation

"I am still having no end of trouble with my pronunciation," said the rugged man who has accumulated a big fortune without having much improved his education. "That is, I ain't having any trouble with it myself, but I'm making a lot of trouble for other people."

"As far as I'm concerned I don't mind much how I pronounce my words as long as I'm understood, but it makes an awful difference to my children, especially my oldest daughter. 'Why, father,' she says, 'what do you suppose people will think of us with you pronouncing words as you do?'"

"You see, since the children were old enough to know anything we've always had plenty of money, and so they've had all the what you call advantages, and they know how to pronounce and all that, and they can hold their end up with the best of them. Now, you know, the children's mother and I have been married for quite some time, and I don't want to butt my family affairs in onto your notice, but I don't mind saying to you that I think mother is the greatest and noblest and finest woman that ever lived, and you might not think it of a tough old chap like me, but I like to call her pretty names."

"Her name, I might as well tell you, because I've got to tell you, to understand what I'm going to say, is Mary; but I like sometimes to call her something else. Sometimes I call her Lucy, I rather like Lucy, and instead of calling her Mary I've called her sometimes Lucy for weeks at a time, with her smiling at me kind o' dubious, as if I was making a fool of myself, but saying nothing. And Agnes, I always sort of liked Agnes, and once I called her Agnes for six weeks. And then another name I always did like was Pauline, and once for about four months I didn't call her anything but Pauline, and I've called her by a lot of names like that, just as they happened to strike my fancy."

"Foolish this may seem to you, just as it always did to her, but I never saw any harm in it. I like to give her these pretty names just as I like to give her pretty clothes. I like to have everything about her pretty; I'd give my hat and all I've got to make her happy. I don't know what I'd done or where I'd got without her, and she's all the world to me, and I love to give her all the pretty things I can; but I guess I can't give her any more pretty names."

"Last week I ran across the name of Beatrice. That's a pretty name, don't you think? Beatrice? And I started right away calling the lady Beatrice, but this time I ran up against my oldest daughter."

"Of course I pronounced Beatrice Bee-a-triss; what other way could there be? I never heard any other, but the first time I said it my oldest daughter happened to be around and 'Bee-a-triss?' she said. 'Why, father, what do you mean by saying dreadful things like that?'"

"'Dreadful!' I says. 'Why, what's the matter with Beatrice? Isn't Beatrice a pretty name?'"

"'Why, father,' says my oldest daughter, 'you mustn't say things like that; you mustn't say Bee-a-triss, it's Bay-ah-tree-chay!'"

"'What?' I says, 'Bay-ah-chee-tray?'"

"'No, no, no!' says daughter, 'not Bay-ah-chee-tray. It's Bay-ah-tree-chay!'"

"'And I tried it again and got it Bay-ah-chee-tree, and Bay-ah-tree-chee, and Bay-ah-tree-key, and various other things, and finally I got it Bay-ah-tree-chay.'"

"'Now, that's right,' says daughter, 'it's Bay-ah-tree-chay. Never say Bee-a-triss.'"

"I said it again and got it right again this time, Bay-ah-tree-chay; and as I said it I happened to look around where mother was, and there she sat smiling at me."

"'Well, it was sort of ridiculous, wasn't it? Certainly it was. Lucy was all right enough, and Agnes and Pauline, but fancy my going up to her and saying: 'Well, Bay-a-tree-chay,' and then going on and trying to say something sensible or loving after that.'"

"'Why, of course, it wouldn't do, and we both knew that, and so, do you know, I've cut out the fancy names altogether? Dropped 'em entirely, and I think she's rather pleased with that. She always laughed at me for it, but I am inclined to think that deep down in her heart she never really fancied my calling her by any name but her own.'"

"'So there's one little reform worked by my oldest daughter being so particular about pronunciation.'"
