DEMOCRATIC VICTORY.

The Entire Democratic Ticket Elected in Moultr Kit I County. Some Surprises. The Car it-

Moultrie County went solidly |democratic at the election last Tuesday, stronger than before for eight years, for during that time the republica elected the county judge and coroner.

The majorities ranged from 5 to 473. Isaac I won out in the race for judge by a majority of 5 over E. E. Hutchinson; Cash W. Green was elected county clerk by a majority of 392 over William Stables. W. M. Fleming."The Man from Lowe", for sheriff counted out 385 in the majority over [W.D. Kinkade; Geo. Daugherty was elected for treasurer by a majority of 472 over his opponent, John R. Pogue; Van D. Roughton sailed in with a mafority of 471 over the opposing candidate, E. S. Jones, for superintendant of schools; Dr. W. E. Scarborough won out with a majority of 177 for coroner ahead of C. Enterline.

JOHN BALLARD

John Ballard, a well known farmer siding southwest of Arthur, died at 30 o'clock Saturday night after an liness of three weeks with inflamaion of the stomach and bowels.

Funeral services were conducted rem the Methodist church in Cadwell Monday afternoon by Dr. W. H. Stedman, of Champaign. Interment as made in the cemetery here. Mr. Ballard was a little past fiftye years old. He was born in Virgnia and came to Illinois when a boy h his lather the late George Ballard. His mother is still living, also his wife, seven children, five sisters and four brothers. It was reported that Mr. Ballard's illness was caused by drinking a quantity of wood alcohol but Dr. C. V. Eads the attending physician states emphatically that this is not the case. The beginning of his illness was however partly the result of taking a mixture containing a large amount of morphine, which clogged the bowels and aggravated the infla mation trouble.—Arthur Graphic.

AMERICAN PRESERVES STOICAL ATTITUDE AS HE HEARS JURY'S VERDICT.

VERDICT IN 29 MINUTES

Counsel for Physician Convicted of Charge He Slew His Actress Wife, Belie Elmore, Announces Appeal Will Be Taken.

London, Eng.-"Guilty," was the ver dict returned by the jury against Dr. H. H. Crippen, the American charged with the murder of his actress wife Belle Elmore Crippen, at the conclu sion of one of England's most sensa tional trials. The penalty is death by hanging.

The jury was out 29 minutes. Cripen received the verdict with stoicism He bore the same self-assurance which had marked him at many critical points in the trial..

A new record was established for English justice.

The verdict was a surprise, in view of the favorable aspect put upon part of the charge to the jury delivered by Lord Chief Justice Alverstone.

The justice had said no doubt must exist in the minds of the jurors over the identity of the body found in the cellar of Crippen's home. The ver dict showed no such doubt existed. Counsel for Crippen announced an appeal would be taken. Miss Ethel Clare Leneve, for whose love Crippen killed his wife last May, will be placed on trial Tuesday, charged with being an accessory after the fact.

The date for Crippen's execution was set for either November 14 or November 15. It is possible his appeal will not have been passed by that

HAT SHAPES REMODELING PRINCESS GOWN

WOMEN GROW MORE EXACTING AS SEASONS PASS.

Many Demand Millinery That Follows Style Features of Season, but Embodies Original and ... Unusual Ideas.

So many hats must be made for so many women, who grow more and more exacting as the seasons pass! The majority of them want something which is popular, something to which they have become accustomed. Others demand millinery that follows the style features of the season, but em-bodies original and unusual ideas; and a small coterie wants the entirely new things, wishing to be the first to exploit them.

The charming model, covered with velvet and trimmed with a pair of glorious wings, is not difficult to make -quite within range of the average milliner. But, when one considers that such wings bring $12 to $15 a pair and soar to $25 when made of rare feath-ers, it will be conceded that distinction is expensive again. This model may be copied with good effect using less expensive wings. The crown is large and round and the drooping brim bends out to a blunt point at the front.

THE NEWEST IN HOSIERY

Stockings Beaded Across the Instep and Up the Ankles are Most Novel.

The newest hosiery shows many charming effects. Stockings beaded across the instep and up the ankles are perhaps the most novel, while oth ers embroidered in vinelike designs appear more graceful than those with the pattern scattered indiscriminately in an all-over or loose pattern.

A design describing a circle just above the instep is new, and there are innumerable drop-stitch weaves. The colors are unusually varied and can be found to match any gown. Some are of a most beautiful changeable effect in silk, while others are so closed by embroidered that they have a two toned effect without being actually woven in that way.

Plain stockings, of lisle, silk or gauze, still hold their popularity with women of conservative taste for all except elaborate occasions or for home use with dainty house gowns or lounging robes.

HOW TO RELINE A JACKET

Simple Process is Explained So Any Woman, Handy With Needle, Can Do It.

Many women, otherwise clever with dle, think it difficult to reline the needle, think it dimcuit to reline a jacket. It is in reality simple. Rip out one-half of the jacket lining for a pattern, cut a complete lining by this, leaving the other half attached to the jacket for a guide. Sew the lining to-gether, leaving the underarm seams open. Now baste in one-half, fitting it smoothly along the fronts and bot Elderly Woman Burns to Death. tom of the jacket; then rip out the Centralia.—Mrs. Lucy Tompkins, $5 other half of the old lining and baste in the same way:

Sew the new liuing all around bottom, neck, and fronts. Any fulness will go into the armholes and underarm seams, which should be sewed last of all. Cut the sleeves from the old lining and attach at the top and bottom, finishing the armhole first. Be sure to have the lining larger than the sleeves, so as to allow plenty of room at the elbow.

Wicker Furniture. Wicker furniture, such as chairs, tahies, couches and the like, are to be had now in almost any color of en-amel paint. If it is desired to carry out a certain color scheme in bed or sitting-rooms, these painted articles are a very pretty addition. They are to be found in several light shades, of blue, pink, purple and the like, and in the more substantial dark colors, such as green and brown.

Discarded Frocks Can Be Worked Over Into Prevailing Styles Very Easily.

The princess gown is now so largely a thing of the past that women who have frocks of this character on their have frocks of this character on them, hands, or, rather, in their wardrobes, are casting about for ways of remodeling them in accordance with the prevailing styles. Here are two good suggestions, each worked out in the case of an actual gown.

In the first case, there was a front skirt panel which extended a little above the fitted waist line. The great object, of course, was to give the ap-pearance of a belt where no belt was; and this was achieved by the introduc tion of a large ribbon rosette at each side, with a loose fold of ribbon to match, connecting them at the back. The gown then seemed equipped with a girdle which was only broken at the front panel.

In the other frock, the situation was complicated by the fact that the prin-cess effect extended upward in bib fashion, and yet was too high to agree with even the present empire styles. The problem was solved by slashing the gown at the belt in a wide oblong, leaving only the front, as if it were a skirt panel, and then introducing a shirred oblong of the same material as the deep yoke on the blouse. the gown seemed transformed to a tunic frock, built over the yoke material. A strap of the skirt fabric, which had been cut out, was applied over the shirred material to complete this

AEROPLANE CURLS LATEST

Hairdressers Are Showing Unusua Novelty—Curi--Curis Are Small

The latest comers in the world of fashion which the hairdressers are showing are the aeroplane curls to tuck beneath the laces of the new breakfast cap or under the frills of the Theatre Bravolet.

The curls are much smaller and fluffler than those which have been worn during the past year, and they are pinned lightly at either side of the face just to show beneath the lace ruffle which edges the cap.

Chantecler curls they are called in Paris, and are worn not only under the cap, but in a cluster at the back of the neck,

They are, however, the only faise hair which seems to be popular, and it is said that even these will be carded after the feminine world has got used to the idea of going about showing the shape of their heads instead of wearing a haystack.

When you buy the curls be sure that they exactly match your own hair, for if they vary ever so little they look false and spoil entirely the effect they are suposed to give.

PRETTY SILK VOILE WAIST

This pretty waist is of nile-green silk voile trimmed with bands of beautiful English embroidery set in by fagoting. The sleeves are made with fine tucks and trimmed to correspond. The little guimpe is of white lace.

The Shallow Yoke.

It is not so very long ago that the deep yoke of heavy lace was a feature of many of the most effective costumes. This season it is the shallow yoke, and that alone, which will be modish, and frequently this little yoke, to make it less conspicuous, will be veiled with chiffon. Many collarless waists will be worn all through the winter. Waists finished with a turn-down collar of satin or suede will be very fashionable. It is a great mis-take, however, for a woman whose throat is not white and pretty to have the neck of her frock finished in this way. Net yokes and high stock collars are also fashionable and especially when they are cream white, finished with a piping of black or Painley satin. Sleeves are all more or less simple. The coat sleeves are long and straight, with the exception of the "more dressy" tailor-mades where the three-quarter-length sleeve is seen, finished with a rather elab

SYNOPSIS.

Archibald Terhune, a popular young bachelor of London, is suddenly aroused from the almiess and indolent life he leads, by Lies startling news from the law firm of Barnes, Wiloughby & Son, that he is the helt to a sheep farm in Australia bringing in an income of $20,000 a year. The bequest comes from an aunt, Mrs. Georgiana James of Essex. She makes him her helf on condition that he marry within ten days or forfeit the legacy to a third cousin living in America. The story opens at Castle Wyckoff, where Lord Vincent and his wife, ataunch friends of Terhune, are discussing plans to find Terhune, are discussing plans to find Terhune as wife within the allotted time. It seems that Lady Vincent is one of seven persons named Agatha, all whom have been close sgirlhood chums. She decides to invite two of them to a party at the castle and have Archie there as one of the guests. Archie accepts the invitation and the Vincents discuss his prospects in all their varied bearings. He listens to their descriptions of the two Agatha's and decides that the sixth shall be his choice. Agatha first and Agatha sixth strikes Archie as a handpainted beauty. Agatha First is a breesy American girl. Only eight days remain for Archie to secure a bride. Lady Vincent tells her husband that Agatha the Sixth already cares for Archie.

CHAPTER III.-Continued.

She looked at me with an infinite kindness in her eyes.
"Dear Freddy!" she replied. "can't you see that wouldn't do at all? Archibald must prove he loves her, really loves her, before he can know that!"

"But I think he does," I expostulat

ed; "I really believe he cares for her! He's always said he couldn't forget about her, ever since that time we were all here together, when you pre-tended to be Miss Marsh."

"I haven't a doubt of it," she replied. "If I had, do you think I would have invited the poor girl here to be made sport of? Merely for the sordid purpose of providing your friend with a chance to win a fortune? As if the thing were a kind of game of chance, and she the prize for the man lucky enough to guess right!"

As she said this my wife blushed charmingly, and there was a kind of indignation in her tone. I gaped at her. I didn't see what there was to get so mad about.

"So that's what you did it for? Because you wanted to help Agatha Sixth?" I said slowly, with a feeling that I did not yet quite know my I'm always learning something new, it seems to me, about the un-selfishness and sweetness of her char-

"Mainly," she replied. "I've been Agatha Sixth's confidente a long time, and have known of her attachment for your friend ever since the first Castle Wyckhoff house party."

"And had long ago resolved to make her cause your own should a chance of furthering it present itself!"I cried with new enthusiasm for her loyalty and devotion to her friends, "good fellow that you are!"

"Don't," said Dearest; "I've just done my hair!" And I laughed as I heard this new variation of an old

"But still," I said, "I don't see why if they both love each other and you know that they both love each other— I don't see why we can't tell Arch about it, just to hurry things along and put the poor old boy out of his

"Because he must prove that he loves her, first!" said Agatha, in tones of decision. "He must, indeed, Freddy. It's imperative that he should. He's an old dear, of course, but at the same time he's too egotistical for any-thing—too concelled for words! Me thinks every girl be meets is in love with him! And for that reason the pursuit, the wooing, must be entirely on his side and fostered by us with the greatest care. It would ruin Agatha Sixth's chances of happiness, suppose she should marry him, if he were to hear by any means whatever that she cared for him, before he tells her he cares for her. And as likely as not, it would break off the match. Men are that way!"

"I suppose you're right," I sighed, "but it seems hard."

"Suppose?" questioned my wife.

"I know," I corrected myself hastily.
"You should," she said. "Do you think you would have liked it," her eyes suddenly grew very large and swam in tears, "if any one had told you that I cared, before you'd proposed?"

"No," I said, taking out the fresh handkerchief I had just stowed away in the pocket of my dinner coat, and I knelt down beside her.

"Then don't you think it would be very unkind of us to rob her of the "Murder," I whispered, and pressed the handkerchief to her eyes. "We were so happy—are so happy our selves"—she murmured in my ear. "I want them to be, too, so don't let's say a word to spoil it, to take it from them; Freddy, dear!"

"ra die first," I told her, and we were silent a long time while the rooks in the beeches outside our open windows, like an army of little old maids in black, scolded and gossiped about us. But inexplicably enough, I about us. But inexplicably enough, I never felt the discomfort of kneeling so long, though there wasn't so much as a rug between my knees and the hardwood floor.

CHAPTER IV.

It was on the morning following that our match-making schemes took a more decisive turn, and the situation which I had resolved to let strictly alone began of itself to develop in a way that really seemed crucial, or I had better say, final.

Dearest and I were playing a fast game of tennis on the court down by the lodge, which was in better condition than the ones nearer the castle, and were hard at it, with the satisfyng consciousness that things were going well with our loverers pervading every stroke. We had observed with pleasure on the evening previous that Archibald had done nothing but de-vote himself to Agatha Sixth, and had brought his devotion in public to a well-managed termination by inviting the girl out for a stroll on the terrace "to see the moon!" Happy excuse for seeing each other! Time-honored and time-worn, but as good as new to each fresh pair of lovers! And from this moonlight walk Agatha had augured, and I had hoped, great things.

Then again early that morning we had seen them depart for a drive to the village, where it seemed young Miss Lawrence had an errand. I don't know that I have mentioned before that Lawrence was Agatha Sixth's las name, just as Endicott was Agatha First's. I have grown so used to referring to them as Arch and I were accustomed to do in the days when there was a necessity for keeping identities a secret beyond the knowledge of their first names, that I'd almost forgotten they had any other.

The best part of the thing was that although they had only two miles to aithough they had only two miles to go, the pair had not yet returned. And it was now high noon. Dearest couldn't get over it, and frisked and hopped so, I had to beg her to remember that she was playing tennis and not "cup and ball."

"Forty love!" I called across the net, serving my fast serve that I seldom use against my wife, in my pre occupation as my thoughts would per sist in dwelling upon Arch and his love affair rather than upon the game. "I say, do you think they can have

"That's too good to hope for!" returned Agatha, though she was not so successful with the ball. "Game!" I cried, as it smashed into the net. But for once Dearest was not vexed with me for winning. With a smile so abstracted and clairvoyant as to make me guess at once the tenor of her thoughts, she picked up the ball and wandered back to the service line.

"Ready!" she called, but instead of serving, suddenly let her racquet fall clattering to the ground.
"Wilfred!" she cried, as if a happy thought had struck her, "do you sup pose he will ask her today?"

"More than likely!" I answered exuberantly, and then, coming close up to the net, "but I say, sweetheart, aren't you going to play any more? "O, yes!" she cried, starting and stooping quickly to recover her racquet. "Of course I am! I was only just thinking—"

"So was I! But don't let's any more, or we can't play the game!" So we succeeded in putting all thought of the two out of our heads and fell to playing some pretty fast tennis.

Agatha First, I may explain, in the meantime was playing golf all by herself down on the course by the river. Dearest had offered her the escort of young Leslie Freer, the rector's son, who lived down in the village, but she would have none of him, to my dismay. In fact I had begun to feel conscience-stricken almost for fear we were neglecting the poor girl in our absorption in our other two guests, but Dearest had reassured me by saying she thought Agatha First was the kind of girl who preferred out-of-door exercise and her own company to any number of young men.

I had just succeeded in making the chance to tell him so herself when he score of a hotily contested game asks her, and him of the joy of hear. "deuce" again, when the dog cart in at all, Wilfred." "Game, set," I replied. "Wonderful good tennis, Dear est," and dropping our racquets, we went to speak to Arch.

I wouldn't have told Dearest for the world, of course, but the truth was that in spite of my praise of her playing, I had let her beat.

"Couldn't you find a groom to to the cart down for you?" I inquir rather indignantly as Terhune came a halt in the road. "Lazy beggars, those grooms!"

"The butler told me you pe were down here playing tennis," said Arch, "and I was in such a hurry to see you I brought it down mys Thought I'd walk back with y

"But I don't know! What's the trou ble, Arch? Tell us!"

"Yes, tell us!" urged my wife.
"Well, you see," began the old boy, and he mopped his brow with his handkerchief in an anxious way that made me feel quite sorry for him, "you see the way of it was, I v and asked her all right, but—" see the way of it was, I went

"But what! What did she say?" cried Dearest and I together. "For heaven's sake!" I added, still stammered, "get it out!"

"She said," he replied grandly. "that she cared for me."

"Then what on earth are you put ting on such a long face about?" I roared, and Dearest asked him anxously what was wrong about that.

"Why, the trouble is," he told us getting more and more serious, "that in spite of that admission she won't give me a definite answer until a month from now!"

"But she can't wait that long!" expostulated, as if Terhune himself were to blame for this complication. "Don't you see that if you're not actu-ally and for a fact engaged by the end of this week you might as well not be engaged at all, at least as far as your aunt's property is concerned "I know," he said. "Nobody see that any plainer than I do. That's why I'm so upset. What can have pos sessed the girl, do you suppose? I didn't think she was the triffing

"Nonsense," declared my wife, autho itatively, "a little coquetry in the right place is perfectly admissible! place is perfectly admissible! She didn't want to make it too easy for you, that's all. Very feminine, and quite delightful of her, I call it!"

"That's all very well," replied Terhune with some heat, "and proper enough I dare say! But think what that same coquetry may cost me! And you could see as he said it that he already beheld in his mind's eye that third cousin of his aunt's sitting on the veranda of the house on his aunt's property in Australia, with his feet on the railing.

"Well, if that's all you care about!

If you're only interested in getting that silly old fortune of your aunt's, I hope, yes, I positively hope, that she will keep you waiting until it is too late!" said Dearest unexpectedly.

Terhune stared in surprise at this point of view and I own I couldn't help siding with him a little.

"But my dear girl," he protested how can I help being interested in it? A fortune's a fortune, and besides, isn't it for her, too, that I want it, as well as myself? And then, you know, how absurd it is if she's going to accept me anyway, as I'm rather sure she is, that she can't say so in time to get me a fortune as well as a wife?"

"Come, now!" I put in, "that does eem reasonable, doesn't it, Dearest?" "I thought you understood better than that, Wilfred," she said, with a look almost of severity at me, and to Terhune. "I see you must be chastened still further, Archibald," she told him. until you learn what true love is! Disinterested, unselfish love!"

Health.

The body has rights, and we have duties toward it. The body is the life-long companion of the mind, and it cannot be unimportant how it treated.

One unbridled passion is enough to lestroy the beauty of life. One excess if it does no more, can mar the grace and harmony of the whole. "He that striveth for the mastery must be tem-perate in all things."

The duty of a wise care for health is bigger than merely adding to our personal happiness. To a large extent it determines the efficiency of our lives. Many a man learns after it is too late that he would have been fit for better and more work if he had always preserved the sane and sensi-ble bearing toward the laws of health and life which experience teaches No one in these days has any excuse for ignorance of the common prac-tical rules of health. There are a good many popular books on the sub-ject.—Hugh Black.

MISHAP TO "JACK AND JILL"

Certain Familiar Mother Goose Rhyn le Revised by Copy Read In Newspaper Office.

Good nonsense grows out of good nonsense. A writer in the Chicago Tribune imagines what a "copy-reader" in a newspaper office would do with a certain familiar Mother Goose rhyme. The copy-reader, who has had a reporter's training, and has learned to write everything alike, sits down for a few moments, and revises "Jack and Jill" somewhat as follows: Jack, aged seven, son of Peter Jones, 298 Spring street, and Jill, aged six, daughter of Mrs. Abigail Thompson,

Jack, who was carrying the pail, had started on the return trip, accom-panied by the little girl, when he stumbled, as is supposed, over some obstacle in his path, and fell, his head striking the ground with great vio-lence. Doctor Slack, who was at once summoned, pronounced the lad's in-jury to be a fracture of the anterior portion of the cranium, and ordered his immediate removal to Blessington

And Jill, who had fallen at the same time, either through excessive fright or in consequence of having stumbled over the same obstacle, but had received no serious injury, went home unassisted.

TEACHES ART OF SWIMMING

Apparatus Invented by California Man Makes Children Proficient Without Ald of Water.

An apparatus to teach swimming without water has been invented by a California man. The principle lies in the fact that it will teach the proper stroke because no other is possible, and when this movement has become a habit the pupil will strike out in the correct way as soon as he or she hits the water. The novice lies on a padded support, which extends to her knees. She grasps a pair of pulleys above her head, and attached to these pulleys are cables. The cable in her right hand is fastened to her left ankle and that in her left hand to her right ankle.

out with the same motion. When the force of this movement is spent her legs are drawn up again by a strong elastic cable, also fastened to the ankles and attached to the apparatus above her head. The support on which the "swimmer" lies is extended far enough out to prevent her arms going below the level of her body, and auxiliary support limits the downward movement of her lega-four or five inches long and connected by a thinner strip. Bend these wings near their centers till what was or iginally the top of one becomes lower side, thus forming a pair of blades like the propeller of a boat or of an airship, for that matter. Then take a stick about eight inches long and from an eighth to a quar-ter of an inch thick and nail the wings to one end of it. This done, hold the device with the wings up and then stick between the palms of the hand. Give it a twirl or two with the last motion shooting it forth into the air and you will be surprised to see it sail straight forward for a distance of from 20 to 30 feet before it begins to descend an inch.

REASON FOR PETER'S TEARS

Wire From Bale of Hay Caught In Mouth of Hippopotamus Caused Big Animal to Weep.

Peter cried steadily for nearly a veek, and the keepers at the Bronx zoo in New York could not imagine what was the matter with him. Peter could not tell them, because he had never learned to speak English, and he was only a nippopotanta.

He just stood in his big cage and let would not eat, and all he would do was open his mouth so wide that you might have shoved a bale of hay into it. It was a bale of hay that had caused all the trouble. When, at last, the keepers looked down into the back of Peter's great red mouth they saw that an iron wire that had been used for baling hay had been jabbed into the flesh and was sticking there. It was no wonder that Peter cried and could not eat. The keepers fixed the hippo's jaws open, and then one of the men reached in and tied a cord to the wire. It took three men to pull it out, but they did it, and then Peter went to work on the dinners that he had not been eating.

The Spots Disappeared. Mrs. Dolan lived in a district which was not as favorable for the outdoor ousehold experiments recommended by the Ladies' Helper as it might have been. This fact Mrs. Dolan was rapidly assimilating, and in a manner not so uncommon as it might be she blamed the estimable periodical for her difficulties. "I wisht I had a holt o' that woman that runs the 'Handy Hints' depart-ment," she remarked to her husband one morning after an early excursion into the back yard, whence she returned in high dudgeon.

A physician, of Portland, Oregon, has views about food. He says:

"I have always believed that the duty of the physician does not cease with treating the sick, but that we owe it to humanity to teach them how to protect their health, especially by hygienic and dietetic laws.

With such a feeling as to my duty I take great pleasure in saying to the public that in my own experience and also from personal observation I have found no food equal to Grape-Nuts. and that I find there is almost no limit to the great benefits this food will bring when used in all cases of sickness and convalescence.

"It is my experience that no physical condition forbids the use of Grape-Nuts. To persons in health there is nothing so nourishing and acceptable to the stomach, especially at break-fast, to start the machinery of the human system on the day's work. "In cases of indigestion I know that a complete breakfast can be made of Grape-Nuts and cream and I think it is not advisable to overload the stomach at the morning meal. I also know the great value of Grape-Nuts when the stomach is too weak to digest other

Curing Catarrh. ACCEPT OUR ADVICE AND TRY THIS REM-EDY AT OUR RISK

Catarrh is a disease of the mucons membrance. The mucous membran e is, one may say, the interior lining of the body. Catarrh therefore may exist in any part of the system.

When the catarrhal poison attacks the mucous membrance, inflammation and congestion are produced and nature fails to throw off the accumlated poisons. The organ which had been afflicted ceases to perform its proper function as nature intended it should. The result is, complication upon complication, which may lead to other even more seriour afflictions

We honestly believe Rexall Mucu-Tone will do wonders toward overcoming catarrh. It is made from the prescription of an eminent physician who made a long study of catarrh, and his great success with this remedy was an enviable one.

We want you if you are a sufferer from catarrh in any form; to give Rexall Mucu-Tone a thorough trial. Use it with regularity and persistency for a reasonable time, then it you are not satisfied, come back and tell us, and without question or formality we will hand back to you every cent you paid us. Brood sows on the average farm may be almost entirely supported by waste products. And those same waste products form the best sort of balanced ration. Skim milk, butter milk, windfall apples, parings, a run in the orchard, with shade, and after the litters are weaned and growing sicely, a run in the stubble to clean up every kernel of grain, and in the clover fields after hay has been cut.

Sow some rye for fall green forage for the poultry. It lasts until snow comes and is there in the spring for early picking. It makes fine pasture for the turkeys even if at quite a distance from the house. It disinfects the soil and is a good crop to sow on the poultry runs this month to rid the soil of impurities.

Train the colts, don't break them Many a good horse has been spoiled by breaking him when a colt. Get his mouth accustomed to the bit be-fore a harness is put on him. Be gentle and patient and you can make a good horse out of almost any colt.

The best medicine for poultry is good care. Cleanliness, light, warmth, dry houses, sound feet and pure water are better than the whole list of remedies. These are the "ounces of sprevention" that save the "pounds of the country".

Unless free from lice, no flock will thrive as it ought, and the owner should help the chicks rid themselves of these pests by providing proper dust baths and occasionally dusting them himself with insect-powder.

It is a good plan to give the young pigs a good start along early in life. Very many make the inistake of crimping the pigs, thereby expecting to get more lean meat. The muscles row when the pigs grow.

There are yet a few dairymen who think they can judge a cow by her conformation. To satisfy yourself, keep the accurate record of every cow in the herd and see how form and per-

A poultry house need not be artificlally heated to be warm enough for the hens to be comfortable and lay eggs, but it should be built very tight and snug, so as to exclude all drafts of cold air.

It is easier to make a man a better dairy feeder by suggestion than by command. That's why the test association is so valuable. When he sees how it helps he is a willing learner.

Mulch dahlias, cannas, caladiums and like plants with coarse manure and deluge with water. If water cannot be had, withhold the manure, as manure alone is drying.

Eggs and meat are the foundation of the poultry busines. Let us aim for this standard more, then we will have better "standard breed" and more profitable poultry.

The safest rule is to commence Teeding in good season if the pastures begin to fail and not wait until the cows actually begin to fail in milk

To supply good food for the dairy It is necessary to exercise fore-thought and plan for the fall season which is sure to come every year.

Many horses have sore shoulders because their owners try to fit their horses into their collars rather than getting collars to fit their horses.

Cows that are expected to return a profit must have liberal ratiops of the kinds of food adapted to their needs. They must have dry, comfortable and well ventilated sleeping places and be kept free from excitement caused by exposure and neglect. The practice of allowing the dairy 'herd to run over the farm and be herded by dogs and children and compelled to eat frosty clover and forage cannot be made to return a profit, even though they may consume waste fodders and they, may consume waste fodders and Saving the best ewes is not the only thing. He must not in-breed, but must buy the best sire he can find, not only in blood-lines, but also in individuali-ty, a ram that looks like a sire, with strong head, well-sprung ribs, and large heart girth, a ram with a strong bone, two good ends and a good, straight back. The breeder must not consider his pocketbook.

Rotato growers who "feed" their potatoes well, and give them good care, and select the best potatoes for planting do not need to change their seed stock every few years in order to maintain the yield, because by so doing they maintain the yielding power in the potatoes they already have.

Every thinking farmer knows that there are certain essentials that can-not be neglected at any season of the year if the cows are kept in condition to give milk, and that if any or all of these essentials are neglected there is sure to be a falling away in the milk yield.

In making a kerosene "emulsion" of any kind for the eradication of lice, mites, flies, etc., great care must be taken to see that the combination is surely emulsified or serious results may follow and more hide be "eradicated" than anything else.

Two things that deserve constant attention at this time are the bits and the blankets. Never allow a frosty bit to come in contact with the horse's mouth and never leave the team without being well and com-fortably blanketed.

For the average dairyman it is cheaper to raise his own cows than to buy them. Besides, if he has good cows to begin with he can more wise-ly select the calves because of an intimate knowledge of the work of the mothers.

The black rot of tomatoes is a difficult disease to control. Applications of Bordeaux Mixture, if begun when the tomatoes are just forming and continued until they are fairly well grown; will prevent the disease.

A hen should be fed some grain that she doesn't have to scratch for. Although exercise is necessary to keep her in good health, she needs time to rest and dust herself in the middle of the day.

Some hens are born layers, others acquire the laying habit, others get credit for being good layers when they are not. The trap nest picks them out and leaves no guess work.

Do not run the risk of perpetuating weak characteristics in your herd by breeding animals that are uncertain. The progeny is sure to inherit all the fruits of the parents.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building for the readers of this paper. Radford, No. 194 Fifth Ave., Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

With the approach of cold weather there is one feature of home building that comes into new prominence. We hear the qusetion asked, "How is the house heated?" or, more often, "Is this a warm house?" These are important questions; not more important now, it is true, than in the hot summer weather, for even then the home builder looks forward to the wintry days and provides against them by proper construction; but now that cold weather is upon us the ques-tion of adequate heating seems to be more present and absorbing.

With modern heating equipment there is probably no form of dwelling that cannot be adequately heated. Some, however, are very difficult to heat and require a much larger heating plant and much more coal than they should. This is due sometimes to faulty construction, sometimes to to faulty construction, sometimes to unwise design.

In the first place every home builder should know that there is no money so well spent as that put into insulating felts and high grade sheathing papers; which, combined with thorogeneous construction, sometimes to unwise the sheathing sheathing papers; which, combined with thorogeneous construction, sometimes to unwise the sheathing sheathi ough construction in other ways, will go very far toward making a resi-dence frost proof. A house so made can be kept thoroughly warm with from one-third to one-half the amount of coal required to heat the same structure if not properly insulated and Insulating paper does not cost very much and it should be used freely.

The entire exterior walls should be covered between the rough sheathing and the clapbeards and care should be little more than the ordinary unmatched boarding. Very often large knotheles in such boarding are alknotheles in such boarding are arlowed to go unnoticed; but this is a grave mistake. Much cold can find its

The bathroom is also on this floor and finds itself directly above the kitchen. This brings all the plumbing together and makes quite a saving in this factor of the expense. It is in matters of this kind that the experienced house designer can save a good deal of money for his clients. Too often not enough thought is given matters of this kind, but there is no doubt but that substantial savings may be accomplished in the construction of any house by hav-ing it properly designed.

Make Use of Your Gifts

Text.—And he said, leave us not. I pray thes, for an much as then knowest how we are to encamp in the wilderness, and hou mayest be with us instead of eyes.— Num. 10:21.

What more glorious use can be made of knowledge, influence, and personal strength than to turn them to the help of the needy? If your vision is penetrating and clear, what nobler service can you render then to "be eyes" for those who may not see afar? If your hand has strength and counting, to what better use may it.

atar? If your hand has strength and cunning, to what better use may it be turned than lifting the burdens of the weak and teaching the unskilled how best to accomplish their task? If you have wealth you have possession of a power for good which is nearly omnipotent, if rightly applied. What more worthy aim can lead men and women of wealth than that and women of wealth than that through their help the poor may catch visions of the highest and holiest life? If we have the gift of prophecy, we must use it for the instruction of the ignorant, if we retain it. To besitate is ingloriously to fail; selfishly to keep for ourselves what God has in-tended shall serve his children, is to lose life with all its opportunities of good. Hobab's knowledge and influence never were more precious to him than when, having refused the appeal to enrich himself, he accepted the op-portunity to assist others. As the new dangers arose, and he helped Moses meet them and conquer them, his own mind and soul grew imperial. By the number, magnitude, and stress of the responsibilities of others, he was de-veloped into his own worthiest life. When a great Italian commander was defeated he issued his immortal appeal: "Soldiers, I am without money and without reward. I have nothing to offer you but cold and hunger, and rags and hardship. Let him loves his country follow me." with that summons to self-denial and patriotism he gathered to his side the choicest souls of his generation. The men who followed in response to that appeal became courageous heroes themselves. When our Lord turned and said to the multitude, "The Son of man hath not to where to lay his head," and invited them to follow him, he was calling to men and women who had counted the cost, and were ready to surrender themselves to the cause of purity, truth, and human helpfulness. The way of life is narrow; the gate to it is narrow; the narrowness of the way and the gate are its glory. Narrowness of the way demands energy, high purpose and noble perseverance. There is no other way. To invite a great soul to a broad path is to invite him to smallness, to the cessation of growth and impotence. The cry has been heard in every age, "Would God it were easier to be good!" "And would God it were easier to redeem the earth!" But that is a mistaken cry. When the ten spies returned from Canaan murmuring because of the obstacles to their conquest, their murmuring was an evidence of weakness of character; but the cry of Ca-leb and Joshua was, "Up, let us con-quer these glants, and take their wailed cities." That was the token of the greatness of the two.

Jesus Christ did not come primarily to change the circumstances that should make life easy, but to give a new incentive and lofty inspiration that would enable men to meet life's circumstances as they are. He never promised his friends that the path of duty should be free from danger. In the spirit of the Spartan mother who charged her soldier son, "Come home with your shield or on it," Christ says to his disciples, "Take the field and save humanity, cost what it may." It is always true that the choice of the broad path of personal ease and com-fort, instead of the narrow path of duty leads to the loss of self-respect, the world's esteem, and true success. Sir Henry Stanley describes bravery as a requisite for those who push into the African forest, and says: "The bigger the work the greater the joy of doing it. The whole-hearted striving and wrestling with difficulty to lay hold with a firm grip and level head and the calm resolution of the mon-ster, and tugging and toiling and westling at it today, tomorrow, and the next, until it is done—is the soldier's creed of forward, ever forward; it is a man's faith that for this task he was born." When McKay wrote from Uganda in Africa to the home church, he said, "For our work at this station we want the best men in England; not a man who can be easily spared, but the man who can-not be spared." Christianity from the beginning has grown upon tasks that were so great as to require the consecration of all its power. "O, pray not for easy lives, pray to be stronger men; do not pray for power equal to your tasks; then the doing of your work shall be miracle, but you shall be a miracle; every day you shall wonder at yourself, at the richness of the life which has come to you by the grace of God."

The main reason why men are so quickly swept off their feet by passion, why gambling and lust and drink are so strong, is because God has not been what are called the rough sheathing boards for the entarior walls should be good matched lumber. What "a Million for Tubercules from Red Cross Seals" will do in pr viding some of the 275,000 beds he ed at once in the United States f consumptives, is explained in a rebulletin of the National Association bulletin of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tabberculosis. There is just about one bed for every ten indigent consumptives, and if all tuberculosis persons in the country are counted, both rich and poor, hardly one for every 25 or 30. If sufficient hospital accommendations are provided only for those who are too poor to pay the full price for their treatment, fully 275,000 more beds in special institutions for tuberculosis would be needed at once. The immense outlay necessary to provide and maintain so many beds in hospitals, make it imperative, the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis deand Prevention of Tuberculosis clares, that such institutions be ere ed from public money, either mu cipal, county or state. Women Understand That Not H

A few days ago, in a somewhat squalid neighborhood, a house caught fire. The dames shot quickly through the litter on the floor and the untidy array of clothing on the walls, A woman talking with a neighbor san screaming to the house and without an instant's hesitation sprang through the smoking doorway into what already seemed an inferno. A moment later seemed an inferno. A moment later she staggered out, her hands and face blackened and blistered and her clothing on fire. In her arms she bore her baby, safe from harm.

The afternoon papers came out with the story, printed under headlines extolling this mother's heroism. Men read it on street cars, and as their eyes gleamed with the stirring of the spirit which leaps to greet noble deeds they said: "That woman dared to do what most men would be afraid to do." But the mothers who read it at home did not think that way. Perhaps the danger to the baby, the wrecking of the home and the burns the woman suffered brought moisture to their eyes, but to them the act was not one of heroism—it was simply what any natural mother, no matter how timid, would do under the same circumstances.—Cleveland Leader.

REST AND PEACE

Upon Distracted Households When Cuticura Enters.

Sleep for skin tortured babies and rest for tired, fretted mothers is found in a hot bath with Cuticura Soap and a gentle anointing with Cuticura Ointment.
