Carlyle.-The body of an identified man was brought here in a mail bag. He was killed several miles cast of Carlyle by the fast mail train on the Baltimore & Ohio South-western railroad. The body was muti-lated, and it was necessary to use a mail pouch to hold it. A card with the name Leo Seancy, issued by the Missouri Deaf and Dumb asylum, was found in the clothing.

Elgin. - After wandering through fields and woods for thirty-six hours without food or drink, during which time a posse searched the country for him, Alfred, the nineteen-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Yurs, was found sitting on the bank of a pond near here. His parents live on a farm near East Plato, six miles west of El gin.

Neenah, Wis.—Sixteen deaths prob-bly will result from a miles-minute passenger train at Neenah, crashing into a party of thirty-one merry young people loaded upon a hayrack. A big billbeard along the rallway tracks obscured the view from the loy comotive, as well as from the wagor. Twelve persons on the hayrack were instantly killed, one has since died and three out of eight others in-jured are believed to be fatally hurt. Nine of the thirty-one persons aboard the wagon escaped without a scratch and so did both horses. Nobody on the train suffered except from a mo-mentary severe jar. Neonah, Wis .- Sixteen deaths prob mentary severe jar.

Collision at Grade Crossing

Contaion at Grace Crossing. The collision occurred on the Chi-cago & Northwestern railway at the Commercial street crossing here. Train No. 121, northbound, whirled through the wagon load of people at a 45-degree angle. This was owing to the fact that the highway crossing is diagonal. The victims were returning from the Peter Hanson farm, where they had gone to attend the celebration of a wedding anniversary. All but two who were Chicago men, were resi dents of Menasha.

The dead are: James Cheslock John Drill, Chicago; Mabel Finn, Gus tav Finn, John Hart, Steven Lisek Dominick Ommiechinski, Mabel Renz Joseph Sienyo, John Schedick, Frank Sisgardt, Joseph Schedick, Isabelle Buchowski.

The injured: Phillip Mott, Chicago: Benjamin Dunbrowski, Antone Kur-moslai, Myron Olson, Anna Sodalski, John Suchowski, Amanda Syring, Herman Syring.

Bodies Overturn Shanty

Inters of fair ability are out of a job is because they do not want to visit, because they are lopking for hat will fit the eds of a church than trying to fit themselves to the needs of a church. It is true that a good many men do not know how to call, they do not know how to behave when they get into a house, they do not like it and will shirk it every chance they get. Yot calling is the secret of success in almost every, par-lak today--not the same kind of call-ing in all places, but some kind in every place--and if our seminaries had wisdom they would fit their stu-dents to do their work in the best way, in the only way in which it can be done in the commy at least. Give one years to semon-making and three years to making gentlemen in the truest sense of that word. Thus send out men who can adapt themselves to the needs of the place where they are called, and can thus serve human souls, who, being as they are, want to be better. When pinned right down to action When pinned right down to action, no building owner wants a cheap job on his house. If cheap work is ac-cepted by the owner, it is usually be-cause he is incompetent to judge. In-fertor workmanship and materials a little under the best grades look all right to him, and a poorly built job goes through; but inferiority is bound to show up later on. show up later on.

Most architects are loyally and ener Most architects are loyally and ener-getically trying to get good work on every building they design, whether a $3,000 house or a $3,000,000 office building. est, conscientious methods of doing business are as much in the interests of architecture as in their own. There is no excuse for cheap work. Every inferior job is occupying space which would be better utilized by a building of enduring comparison. It endangers surrounding buildings, de-preciates the entire architectural pro-fession and contracting trade by con-veying false bless of cost to building veying false ideas of cost to building owners, and hurts reputations of architects, builders and owners. The fireplace must be planned for in building the house, or it must be done without. It is almost impossible, at least it is very expensive, to put one in as an after-thought after the building is otherwise completed.

The selection of the mantel is some thing deserving careful consideration. Wood mantels will naturally be chosen for the dwelling house of average it, because the trim of the cost, because the trim of the winnows and doors is made of wood, and the mantel made of the same material and finished in the same color will harmonize with the general decora-tive scheme of the room far better than one made of any other material.

Most architects want mantels made from their own special designs and expressing their own individuality; but this will cost more than a mante selected from the catalogue of some manufacturer who makes a specialty of mantels and who effects a consid-

Were it possible nowadays to obtain only those clumsy and ugly patterns which were found in the best catalogues a dozen years or so ago, there might be some necessity for having specially designed mantels in you house; but the same evidence of the progress of good faith is to be found in the present-day factory mantels that will be found in up-to-date furniing to a cabinet maker and having him make our tables chairs, bedsteads, or chiffoniers to order. Instead, we visit the furniture store, where we find in stock, or will be shown photo-graphs of them in the catalogues, artistic and well-made furniture of every period style, as well as in the mod-ern so-called "new art" or "craftsman" type. The design shown herewith has been selected as a worthy example of some of these points already brought out. Although of compara-tively small size, the plans and speci-fications for this design call for an exeptionally well-built structure. been grouped under the head of ma-tional monuments, and none of these is more wonderful than the little-inown Devil's Tower, in northern Wyoming. The Devil's Tower is a gigantic rock, 1,250 feet high, rising sheer from the level plain. No doubt it is the product of long ages of wind and wa-ter erosion. It can be seen for hun-dreds of miles on all sides, as it is in a plains country. The rock wonld be dreas of miles on all sides, as it is in a plains country. The rock would be remarkable even if it were in a bro-ken and rugged country, but rising as it does from the open prairie, and standing like a lone sentinel amid the vast and allent plains, its weird ef-fect is incalculably heightened.

The Sloux, Cheyennes and Crowi who made the country surroundin the Devil's Tower, their huntin ground in early days, have many less ends about this strange rock. I later years, when the venturesom white me has an to much across the later years, when the venturesom white men began to push across th northern plains, they utilized th Devil's Tower as a guide post. Th landmark, looming up on the prairie served to enlighten many as sm grant as to his whereabouts. Under the act of 1906, giving th government the right to set aside a such natural curiosities for the band fit of the people, the Devil's Towe ments created. The Devil's Towe monument consists of about 1,00 acres, and preserves for all time thi landmark. The tower is in charge of the nearest general land office, which is at Cheyenne. Probably it will by many miles from a rairond and few people visit it in the course of a year. Those who make the trip, which is usually done from the little northern Wyoming town of Sundance, feel amply repaid for their visit.

As one approaches the Devil's Tow-er his amasement and awe increase. It seems incredible that any forces of n.ture could have carved the solitary monument that rears its head so far above the brown plains. The sides of the tower rise sheer from the ground giving it an almost organ-like appear-ance. The rock presents the same ap-pearance from every side, and to scale it seems to be an impossibility. It is used that a few mean every said that a few years ago a man and woman successfully negotiated the as-cent of the Devil's Tower, but they were compelled to drive iron spikes in the face of the cliff and mount by such artificial aids. To ascend the tower without the use of some such s would be an impossibility. means would be an impossibility. It is not unlikely that, in the course of a year or two the government will send an official/expedition to the top of the Devil's Tower monument, and that stairways and ladders to the sum-mit will be constructed. Surveys have been made and it is not impos-sible to build a series of ladders and stairways by which the venturesome may reach the top of the rock. may reach the top of the rock. The Indian legends concerning the Devil's Tower are many. The plain tribes all regarded the rock with su-perstitious are and the medicine men ascribed its construction to the pow-ers of darkness. Probably this view has been echoed by the white men in christening the rock the Devil's Tower. the been endowed by the white ment in christening the rock the Devil's Tower. Indian legends add not a little to the interest mirrounding the Devil's Tower. Occasionally the rock is vis-tited by Indians from adjoining reser-vations, the Crows and Cheyemess be-ing located about 200 miles westward, while the Slour stop at the tower every year on their way from their agencies in the Dakotas to attend the Crow Indian fair at Crow agency. R. M. Harshman joined the Stude-baker special train at Chicago, arriving in Detroit on Thursday where he spent two days inspecting the E-M.F of Mr Flanders, the great automobile manufacturer. He speaks in glowing terms of the trip and especially of the hospitality of the Studebaker corporation.

"I was not the only guest of Mr. Flanders, says Mr. Harshman, "In fact, I was one of the party of dealers from this section who were person ally invited to go to Detroit and inspect the facilities the company have for turning out Flanders "20" and E.M.F "30" cars.

"I understand the Studebaker corporation is spending over $75,000 in entertaining all its dealers in a similar fashion. Special trains are run from various sections of the country to Detroit and back, and every item of the dealers's expense is paid from the time he leaves home until he returns. The object, of course, is to show their manufacturing facilities and how they produce quality cars. Mr. Ftanders told me that one object he had in mind in bringing me to Detroit was to convince me that the Studebaker corporation actually will be able to procure in the coming season the 50,000 cars it has promised its dealers. During the past twelve months, as everybody knows, we have been unable to get more than one car for every four we could have soldnevertheless the company was turning out 100 cars per day. I was ermitted to look over the records at Detroit, so I know that I got my full quota. In short, we were not the only ones who were in a similar position, there are many others.

"I confess that until my visit to Detroit I was just a little skeptic of the ability of my company to build 50,000 automobiles in twelve months. I had expressed that skepticism in a letter to Mr. Flanders personally and his response was "come and see." And he provided a special train of such sumptuous appointments and one not surpassed by those on which railway magnates travel on their inspection tours. There was every comfort that heart could desire-and the stomach was not overlooked. We Coles Wednesday night, being called had a royal good time at Detroit. We spent one day in the big plant No. 1, where E-M-F "30" cars are made; and then we spent a day in a still larger one, plant No. 3, where Flanders "zo" car is made from the pig iron to the complete, fully equipped year, because this car is now th most popular car in America and ite wonderful performance in road contests and hill climbing is increasing its popularity daily." Mr, Harshman was enthusiastic in his description of Detroit, which is the world's greatest automobile center as well as one of the most beautifactories, and enjoying the hospitality ful cities in America. We devoted several hours to driving about the several parks and boulevards of Detroit, and our trip to Mr. Flauder's home and back was over thirty two miles of road, part of which over the beautiful Bloomfield Hills, Few places in America have more charms than this. And what with the sight see ing and charming hospitality of Mr. Flanders and his little wife to say nothing of the trip there and back on the luxurious special train, I felt more like a millionaire, who had been on a pleasant vacation, than one who had been on a business trip."

Our grandfa-thers and great-grandfathers did their hunting with them and used them in our two victorious wars with England. They were always good weapons and are now, if they are equipped with a good stock and a good lock. They could do fine service. Any man who was any sort of a marksman could de effective work with them in their day. This fact was well illustrated in an incident that happened several years ago near Richmond. The story was rinted in some of the leading news much interest. "There was an old farmer residing is

In the train he got into conversation with a small party into conversation with a small party convenience, who expressed much in-entiemen, who expressed much in-st in his old rifle, and the farmer torest in his old rine, and the farmer told of some rather extraordinary feats of marksmanship that he had performed with it.

"Finally he was persuaded to give an exhibition of his skill with the old relic, and a trial came off at Rocketts in the presence of a few gentlemen. The old fintlock was fired seven times and only missed the mark once. At first the old man fired it at some small objects—to get his hand steady, so he aid. Then the old fellow handed to his son, who had every faith in his father's skill, a large potato and sta-tioned him at fifty yards distance, holding the potato between his thumb and forefinger.

The rifle cracked, and the potato was split into several pieces. Another shot was made at the bowl of a pipe which the boy was smoking, and the bowl was smashed. Several other shots were made at various objects, but in trying to hit a copper cent that was tossed in the air the marksman made a miss. He was considerably mortified at this and laid the blame on a bystander who sneezed loudly at the crit-ical moment, but made another at-

The suit of Tinch Tudor of Mattoon vs. Hart Phipps was tried again in Treat's court, Wednesday, The suit grew out of a horse trade. Phipps, sometime ago, traded Tudor a horse for a Jack and $25,00. After the trade Phipps ascertained that the Jack was blind, took it to Tudor's stable, left it and took the horse home with him. The horse was replevined, and has been in the constable's charge even since. The justice decided that the trade should stand as originally made. The trial was attended by a large crowd. this the fact that I had the pleasure of meeting personally the important heads of departments in the enormous organization, and you will understand that I now feel as if I was indeed one of the family. Perhaps the most pleasant part of the whole time was the evening I spent at Mr. Flander's home ou Green Lake. There Mr. Flanders owns about 1,200 acres of beautiful rolling hills and lakeside property. In fact, his property completely surrounds Green Lake. There he likes to think he is a farmer, and there he gets his recreation and relaxation from the arduous duties of managing the largest antomobile factory in the world.

"To know Mr. Flanders at his home one could not imagine he is the administrator of a concern doing a business of over $50,000,000 a year. He is a true American of the New England type and to meet him once is to know him under all conditions, I was pleased to find that he was so thoroughly conversant with all my own affairs and was anxious to help me out in my little difficulties.

"We are going to give you as many automobiles as you will be able to sell," said Mr. Flanders,

As Amber left the room Labertouche sutinguished the lamp, shut and ooked the door, and followed, oatch-ing Amber by the arm and guiding im through pitch darkness to the head of the stairs. "Don't talk," he whilepered; "trust me." They de-sended an interminable fight of these, passed down a long, echoing porridor, and again descended. From the foot of the second flight Labers outles shunted Amber round through what seemed a veritable mane of pas-tently at home. At length: "Now to ahead!" was breathed in Amber's sar and at the same time his arm was released. "He obeyed blindly, stumbling down and of nearly every other race in the world besides. Like a fat, tawdry moth in his gar-ments of solled pink, a babu lottered past, with never a sidelong glance for the loaferish figure in the shad-owed doorway; and the latter seemed himself absorbed in the family of Bu-rasians who were shrilly squabbling with the keeper of vegetable stall ad-jacent. But presently he wearled of their noise, yawned, thrust both hands deep in his pockets and stumbled away. The basar scoepted him as a brother, unquestioning, and he picked his way through it with an egse that argued nothing but absolute familiar-ity with his surroundings. But always you may be sure, he had the gleam of pink satin in the corner of his eye. I in time broad Machus basar street treceived them—Pink Satin and the sallorman out for a night of it. And now Pink Satih began to stroll more sedately, manifesting a livelier inter-set in the sights of the wayside. "Come, then," he grumbled, "if you must---" A voice cried out bahind Amber---"Heh!"---more a squal than a cry. Intuitively, as at a signal of danger, he lenged asids. Simultaneously momething like a beam of light sped past his head. The goldsmith uttered one dreadful, choking scream, and went to his knees. For as many as three seconds he swayed back and forth, his features terribly contorted, his thin old hands plucking at the handle of a broadbladed dagger which had transfixed his throat. Then he tumbled forward on his face, kicking. There followed a single instant of suspense and horror, then 's mad rush of feet as the street stampeded into the shop. Voices clamored to the skites. Somehow the lights went out. Amber started to fight his vay out. As he struggled on, making little headway through the press, a hand grasped his arm and drew him as-other way. CHAPTER X. Maharana of Khandawar. Both hand and voice might well have been Labertouche's: Amber be-lieved they were. And the darkness randored visual identification impossi-ble. No shadow of doubt troubled him as he yielded to the urgent hand, and permitted himself to be dragged. more than led, through the reeking, milling mob, whose numbers seemed each instant augmented. He had thought dully to find it s difficult matter to worm through and escape, but somehow his guide seemed to have little trouble. Ever since that huife had flown past his check, his instinct of self-preservation had been dominated by a serane confidence that Pink Satin was at hand to steep him in safety away from the braw! He thanked his stars for Labertouche—for the hand that clasped his arm and the voice that suck guardedly in his ear. Mather, by the light of the street, he discovered that his gratitude had been premature and misplaced. His guide had fallen a pace behind and was shouldering him along with al-most frantic energy; but a giance aside showed Amber, in Labertouche's stead, a chunky little Gurkha in the fatigue uniform of his regiment of the Sritish army of India. Pink Satin was nowhere in sight, and it was im-mediately apparent that an attempt to find him among the teeming hum-dreds before the goldsmith's stall would be as futtle as foolish—if not fati. Yet Amber's impulse was to wait, and he failered—something which seemed to 'exaperate the gurkhs, who fairly danced with ex-cutement and impatience.

the gurkhs halted Amber with an im-parative gesture. "The police, sahib, the polical" he breathed, with an expressive group of his hand toward the cross street. "Let us wait here till they pass." And in evident panic he crowded Amber into the deep and gloomy recess af-forded by a door overhung by a bal-copy.

applausively. "It was a gallant fight," he com-mented, "but like all good things hath had its soul. By lord is overcome. Is my lord still minded for battle or for peach? Dare I, his servant, give or-ders for his release, or--". Here Amber interrupted; stung by the bitter trony, he told the speaker in fluent idlomatic Hindustani precise-ly what he might expect if his "lord" over got the shadow of a chance to lay hands upon him. The sring calling hunch followed iay hands upon him. The grim cackling lough followed his words, a mocking eche, and was his only answer. But for all his de-fiance, he presently heard orders is-sued to take him up and bear him to another chamber.

He was alone, for all he could say to the output of the was astonished; its had not been disarmed. A flood of lamplight leaped through this shadow, long and gigantic upon the floor of earth and a wavell of stone. He wheeled about, alert as a cat: and the sight of his pistol hung stood at ease, with folded arms, in an open doorway. Over his shoulder was visible the bare brown arm held aloft the lamp. De does not shoot down in cold blood a man who makes no aggressive move, and he who stood in the door-way endured impassively the mute threat of the pistol. Above fix sight his eyes met Amber's with a level and unwavering glance, shining out or a

Advance Showing of Furs

T is a trifle early to talk about FURS, but we make our purchases early in order to get the BEST things in the market. We are so enthusiastic over our elegant selection that we want to show them now. We want you to know and see that we have the stuff to show and we are striving to make it worth your while to inspect our goods before going elsewhere to buy. We carry no "trashy," imperfect seconds or imitations of standard goods to mislead. We are a QUALITY STORE, A POPULAR PRICE STORE, A DEPENDABLE MERCHANDISE STORE. We sell no goods but what we stand back of and our prices are as low, when quality is considered, as any house on earth, and in many cases lower. Our goods are here where you can examine them before you purchase. We are not posing as "Good Fellows" and asking you to trade with us just because we are here and need your help and that you ought to help us to make a hving. NO, NOT THAT. We are no charitable institution We are here to demonstrate to you that we've got the RIGHT GOODS at the RIGHT PRICES and can and do actually SAVE YOU MONEY on the big end of all goods offered you by out-of-town and catalogue concerns who are in no better position to give away goods than we are. Come and let us at least show you our merchandise.

If weak, you need Cardul, the woman's tonic. Cardui is made from gentle herbs. acts in a natural manner. and has no bad results, as some of the strong drugs sometimes used. As a medicine-a tonic-for weak, tired, worn-out women, Cardui has been a popular success for over 50 years.
