Waive Hearing

Charles Whitney and Harry St Clair, who were recently arrested at Sullivan and lodged in the Moultrie county jail tor making an assault on a C & E. I. train crew, were taken to Shelbyville and placed in the county jail by Sheriff Crook Monday afternoon and arraigned before Police Magistrate Tallman Tuesday morning, where they waived their preliminary hearing. They were remanded to the jail. The men claim that the conductor of the train demanded anything they might have on their person in payment for their ride, and threatened to throw them off if they didn't pay it. They claim the train was running thirty-five miles an hour and to have been ejected from it would probably have meant severe injury or death. They were charged with as sault with deadly weapons.

Sullivan Wins.

Sullivan rudely shattered the green and gold hope of a football victory last Saturday, for the Moultrie county eleven took home an II to o game and handed Matteon's aggregation it sixth consecutive defeat. The Mate toon bunch simply was outplayed in the finer points of the game, with luck breaking for the visitors at the critical times.

The Sullivan defense was strong, but the Mattoon lines and ends play ed the best holding game of the season. The local defense outshone the offense for the first time, and the work of the line generally was highly pleasing.

The backfield had few chances to assert its offensive tactics, for the ball was in Sullivan's possession most of Saturday afternoon. Once or twice Hartley tore through for some fair gains, but the other attempts were fruitless, and the contest was not in much doubt after the first quarter. - Mattoon Journal.

"Well, then, what do you want? W; y have you brought me here?"
"Why didst thou come? There was no force used: thou didst come of thise own will—thine own will, which is the will of the Bedy, hazoor!"
"Oh, damnation! Why d'you insist on beating round the bush forever? You know well why I came. Now, what do you want?"
"My lord, I move, it seems, in the ways of error. A little time ago the words of the Voice were made known to thee in a far land; thou didst answer, coming to this country. A few days agone I myself did repeat to you the message of the Bell; thou didst awear thou wouldst not answer, yet art thou here in Kuttarpur. Am I to be blamed for taking this force atterned.

"Is that what you wanted to tell me, Saligh Singh?"

"What else? Am I to believe thee a madman, weary of life, that thou shouldst venture hither with a heart ehouldst venture hither with a heart hardened against the Will of the Body? I seek but to serve thee in thus daring thy displeasure. Why shouldst thou come to Bharuta at all if thou dost not intend to undergo the Ordeal of the Gateway? Am I a fool or—I say it in all respect, my lord—art thou?"

"From the look of things, I fancy the opithet fits us both Salig Singh. You refuse to take my word for it that I know nothing of your infamous Gateway and have no intention of ever approaching it, that I have not a drop of Indian blood in me and am in no way related to or connected with Har Dyal Rutton, who is dead—"

"I may not believe what I know to be untrue."

"You'll have to learn to recognize the truth, I'm afraid. For the final time I tell you that I am David Am-ber, a citizen of the United States of personal business.

The Rajput inclined his head submissively. "Then is my duty all but done, hazoor. Thrice hath the warning been given thee. There be still four-andtwenty hours in which, it may be, thou shalt learn to see clearly. My ford, I ask of thee a single favor. Wilt thou follow me?" He motioned toward the arched entrance to the passageway.

"Follow thee?" Amber at length dropped into Urdu, unconsciously adopting the easier form of communication now that, he felt, the issue be-tween them was plain, that the Rajput labored under no further misunder

"What?"

"My life be forfelt if thou dost not return unharmed to the resthouse ere sunrise. Wilt thou come?"

chall come to thee, upon my honor."

Curlosity triumphed. Amber knew that he had exacted the most honored pledge known in Rajputana. His aprehensions were at rest; nothing ould touch him now—until he had de could touch him now—until ne man defined to the bungalow. Then, he divised, it was to be open war—himself sad Labertouche pitted against the rength of the greatest conspiracy in India since the days of '57. on in India since the days of '57. at for the present, no pledge of any ret had been exacted of him.

CHAPTER XV.

From a High Place.

The passageway was long and dark and given to sudden curves and angles, penetrating, it seemed, the very bowels of the Raj Mahal. It ended unexpectedly in a low arch through which the two men passed into an open courtyard, apparently given over entirely to stables. Despite the lateness of the hour it was tenanted by several wideawake syces, dancing attendance upon a pair of blooded stablions of the stud royal, who saddled, bridled and hooded, pawed and champed impatiently in the center of the yard, making it seho with the ringing of iron on stone and the jingling of their silver curb-chains.

gling of their silver curb-chains. Salig Singh paused, with a wave of his hand calling Amber's attention to the superb brutes.

"Thou canst see, hazoer, that all is prepared!"
"For what?"

But Salig Singh merely smiled enig-matically, and shaking a patient head, matically, and shaking a patient nead, passed on.

A second arch gave upon a corridor which led upwards and presently changed into a steep flight of steps, of ancient storm worn smooth and grooved with the traffic of generations of maked feet. At the top they turned aside and passed through a heavy door which Sailg Singh unlocked with a private key into a wast vacent. a private key, into a vast, vacant room, with a lofty ceiling supported by huge, unwieldy pillars of stone, sculptured with all the loves and wars of Hindu mythology. At one end the fittul, cerie flare of a great bronze brasier revealed the huge proportions of an income through with brasier revealed the huge proportions of an ivory throne, gorgeous with gems and cloth of gold, standing upon a dafe and finnied by two motionless figures which at first sight Amber took to be pieces of statuary. But they quickened, saluting with a single movement and a finsh of steel, as the maharana drew nearer, and so proved themselves troopers of the state, standing guard with naked swords.

"There is no need, perhaps, to tell thee, hazoor," Salig Singh muttered, bending to Amber's ear, "that sitting upon this throne, in this Hall of Audience, for generations thy forefathers ruled this land, making and administering its laws, meting out justice, honored of all men—and served, my lord, for generations by my forebears, the faithful stewards of thy house; even as I would prove faithful."

the faithful stewards of thy house; even as I would prove faithful."
"Interesting," Amber interrupted, brusquely, "if true. Is this what you wanted to show me?"
"Nay, hazoor, not this alone. Come."
The rajput led him out of the hall by way of a small doorway behind the throne, and after a little turning and twisting through tortuous passages they beam to accord again and so they began to ascend again, and so went on up, ever upwards, the flight of steps broken by other corridors, other apartments, other galleries and gardens, until at length they emerged dens, until at length they emerged into a garden laid out in the very topmost court of all—the loftlest spot in all Kuttarpur.

It was a very beautiful garden, a jungle of exotic plants and shrubs threaded by narrow walks that led to secluded nooks and unsuspected pleasaunces, and lighted by low-swung festoons of dim lamps, many-colored. "My lord," said the maharana, pausing, "If thou wilt wait here for a little, permitting me to excuse myself—?"

permitting me to excuse myself—?"
"All right," Amber told him toler-

Salig Singh quietly effaced himself, and the American watched him go with an inward chuckle. "I presume I'll have to pay for my impudence in the end," he thought; "but it's costing Salig Singh a good deal to hold him-self in." He moved away from the cistern, idling down a path in a direction opposite that taken by Salig Singh.

An abrupt turn brought him to the outer wall, and he stopped to gaze, leaning upon the low marble balustrade.

Amber turned away to rejoin Salig Singh by the cistern. But the rajput was not there; and, presently, another path tempting him to unlawful exploration, he yielded and sauntered aim lessly away. A sudden corner cloaked with foliage brought him to a little open space, a patch of lawn over which a canopy had been raised. Be neath this, a woman sat alone. He halted, thunderstruck.

Simultaneously, with a soft swish of draperies, a clash of jeweled brace-lets, duli and musical, and a flash of coruscating color, the woman stood before him, young, slender, graceful, garbed in indescribable splendor—and veiled.

For the space of three long breaths the Virginian hesitated, unspeakably amazed. Though she were veiled, it were deep dishonor for a woman of a rajput's household to be seen by a stranger. It seemed inexplicable that Salig Singh should have unwittingly left him in any place where he might encounter an inmate of the zenana Yet the maharana must have known.

Amber made as treesolute. . . . Amber made an irresolute movement, as if to go. But it was to:

Though in time the flercest paroxysm of her passion passed and her sobs diminished in violence, she clung heavily to him and made no re-sistance when he lifted her in his arms. The error was fatal; he had designed to get her on her feet and designed to get her on her feet and then stand away. But no sconer had he raised her and succeeded in disengaging his hands, than soft, round arms were clasped tightly about his neck and her face—if possible, more ravishing in tears than when first he had seen it—pillowed on his breast. And for the first time she spoke coherently.

A denial stuck in Amber's threat. The words would not come, nor would they, he believed, have served his purpose could he have commanded them. If he had found no argument wherewith to persuade Salig Singh, he found none wherewith to refute the claim of this golden-faced woman who recognized him for her husband. He was wholly dismeyed and aghast. But while he lingured in indecision, staring in the woman's face, her look of petulance was replaced by one of divine forgiveness and compassion. And she gave him no time to think or to avoid her; in a twinkling she had thrown herself upon him again, was in his arms and crushing her lips upon his.

Aho, Lalji! was ever a woman at loss for words to voice her happiness?" And nestling to tim she laughed quietly, with a note as tender and sweet as the cooling of a wood-dove to its mate.

"Nay, but there is a mistake." He recovered the power of speech tardily,

"It is so, then!" she cut him short. And his arms were suddenly empty, to his huge relief. "Indeed, they had warned me that thou wouldst tell this story and deny me-why, I know not ss it be that thou art unworthy of thy lineage, a coward and a weak-ing!" Her small foot stamped angri-ly and on every limb of her round body bracelets and anklets clashed and shimmered. "And so thou hast and shimmered. "And so thou hast returned only to forswear me and thy kingdom, O thou of little spirit!" The scarlet lips curled and the eyes grew cold and hard with contempt. "If that he so, tell me, why hast thou returned at all? To die? For that thou must surely come to, if it be in thy mind to defy the behests of the Veice, thou king without a kingdom!.

Why, then, art thou here, rather than running to hide in some far place, thinking to escape with thy worthless life—worthless even to thee, who art too graven to make a man's use of it—from the Vengeance of the Body?

"Good God! you don't mean that!
Surely that custom has pershed!"
"Thou shouldst know that it dieth not. What to us women in whose bodies runs the blood of royalty, is an edict of your English government? What the Sirker itself to us is Khandawar?" She laughed bitterly. "I am Rohilla, a daughter of kings; my dishonor may be purged only by flame. The proprietor of the most prominent hotel in the town of S—, Ky, is a man of a very economical nature, in fact he is an extremist in this fenture. He has a six-year-old, red-headed son that didn't inherit his father's economical disposition. Recently the son was very much in need of a five-cent plece for sods water purposes. He went into the diningrom, where he was free from observation, and removed his shoe strings and placed them in his hip pocket for future reference. Returning to the office he approached his father and said:

His father glanced down at his son's shoes, then turning around approached the office safe and opened it in silence. He took out the cash box and raising the lid extracted a pair of new shoe strings, which he handed to his son without a word. The youngster took the strings with a crestfallen air and then to the amusement of the onlookers exclaimed:

The judge inquired whether the prisoner had counsel, and finding that he had not, requested a distinguished attorney who was in the room to represent the young man at the bar. The case was short. The prisoner had been employed as a clerk, and had stolen money. The evidence was conclusive; there was nothing worth speaking of for the defense, and the young man was soon sentenced to five years' imprisonment.

Five years later, or a little less, for sentences are reduced by good behavior, the same at torney was calling on one of his most important clients and saw the same young man at a desk in the office. International Exposition.

A habel of noise is churning the atmosphere of the scene of the greatest of all Live Stock Expositions at Chicago. Preparation is being made on a stupendous scale for the largest display of horses, cattle, hogs and sheep since the inception of that magnificent enterprise. An army of mechanics and laborers is on the ground seting the gigantic stage on which the show will be presented to the people to $5.25, stock cows and heifers $2,50 of the North American continent. If the largest list of entries on record warrants such prediction, the 1911 International will throw its forerunners in the shade and each of them was credited with having marked a climax.

An elaborate scheme of interior decoration has been designed and artisons will work overtime during the next three weeks carrying it into effect. New facilities for the conveninice of visitors are being installed and neither pains nor expense spared

The spacious grounds will be tastefully decorated and brilliantly illuminated, the night setting of the exterior being an added feature. The interio of the monarch pavilion will clerk in the office to do great present a series of surprises when ready for occupation by the equine and bovine contenders for honors.

A TINY BIT OF GROUND.

What May Be Done With a Plot Twen ty by Fifty Feet.

A space 20 by 50 feet may under intensive culture be made to yield fresh vegetables for a small family through half the year. With 40 by 50 feet or 50 by 100 there can be a garden spelling riotous plenty.

Have the spading done as early as possible, use thoroughly rotted manure and supplement it with some good commercial fertilizer, either broadcasted and raked in or put in hills or drills.

It is a waste of seed, strength and time to plant a garden in poor soil. The seed will come up, the spindling plants will be harden to work than if they were luxuriant, and the resultant crop will be mostly conspicuous by its absence. So, if it be impossible to more, make small rich beds, four feet wide and as long as the manure holds out, and sow them crosswise with things as radishes, lettuce, cress parsley, beets and onions. Make the rows a foot to eighteen inches apart or sow the radishes broadcast. Let tuce also yields more for broadcast sowing. Pull out the thriftiest as soon as edible and leave the rest to grow. Radish tops make excellent greens, something better flavored than mus tard. By sowing thickly you can have

Say the garden is 40 by 50 feet, this is something what the planting of it should be: Dwarf early peas, medium early and late peas, beets, early and later; beans in succession, including bush limas; carrots, radishes, tomatoes, cucumbers, peppers. Do not adventure upon corn unless it be sweet corn planted on the pea space as a sec-ond crop, to come in just before frest. Make an asparagus bed all across one end of the plot, setting two-year-old roots and fertilizing the bed heavily in early summer just after cutting ceases.

Peas are so hardy they may be planted before snow is past, provided, of course, the ground is right when they go in. Make it fine and light, the seed at least three inches deep, then tramp the earth over them. setting the feet so one track touches the other. A quart of seed will sow a hundred feet of drill the proper thickness. An ounce of beet seed will sow the same row length.—Circle Mag-

Didn't Want to Go Too Far,

Joseph Jefferson had a favorite story concerning a small boy whose cherished buildog got into frequent fights. After one such encounter troubled Jimmy sought the aid of the late family physician.

"Why, yes, I can fix your dog up," said this gentieman, kindly, "but I thought your family had accepted Christian Science. Why don't you try one of your own healers? Don't you think they could have him?" think they could cure him?"

think they could cure him?

"Yes, sir," hesitated the lad, nervously stepping from one foot to another, "we have, an' they could, an' I would only—only I'm afraid they'll take all the fight out of him, that's

One of the most sensational developments of the season has been the rise of a young New York dry goods clerb to the honor of being hailed as the world. This lad is John J. Hayes of New York, winner of the Marathon race in the Olympic games in London. Hayes need not work for his living during the remainder of his life unles he absolutely insists on so doing. He is the candy kid of Uncle Sam's family of good boys. Twice thirteen, or twen ty-six, is Hayes' lucky number. He wore No. 26 in the race, covered twen-ty-six miles from Windsor castle to the finish line in the stadium, and some day he will be twenty-six years old if

When Queen Alexandra presented Hayes with a gold cup at the stadium the lad was so nervous and excited that he slipped and almost fell head-long down the steps of the royal box.

Javelin throwing is a new form of sport that is gaining many followers in the United States. This is a peculiar instance of the transplanting to American soil of a pastine first developed among the barbarians of central Africa. There are two official ways of hurling the javelin. One is the free style, and the other provides that the thrower must grasp the spear in the middle. A Danish athlete now holds the world's javelin throwing record.

young fellows to his home, and we were made very welcome by mother and sister. There was what you might call a fourth member of the family. It was a black and tan dog and never was there a more intelligen animal. 'It seemed as if he could de everything but talk.

On the 1st of a certain August th bank had been in busin bank had been in business twent, years. Joe had been with it that love It was also his birthday and the car, he was to set out on his annual two weeks' vacation. He, with two dry goods men, had purchased a power launch, and the trio were to make a trip along the north shore of Lon Island. The dog would have gor with them except for the fact that he had run a needle into his foot and could only hobble about. Joe had been carrying $10,000 life insurance for two years past. Before going on the trip he secured $15,000 in accident insur ance. The two others took out $10,000 each. They started away gayly enough and we heard nothing from them for a week; then came the news that there had been an accident and that our pay-ing teller had been drowned.-It was some time before we got the particulars, and then it appeared that while the launch was making for Huntington bay and was within half a mile of the shore and running slowly in a on lookout in the bows, while one of the men was cooking supper and the other attending to the machinery. The collision hurled Vaugn overboard. He made a great splash and called out, but he was neither picked up, nor did he succeed in catching hold of log or Three months after Vaugn's death.

his body having not been found, the black and tan dog was missing. Some one had stolen him. As a matter of fact, it was a private detective who did the stealing. The deg was sent up to a farm in Connecticut, and when al most a year had passed the detective quest. He had learned many things n a few mouths that were unknown to us who had known Joe for twenty years. One of these was that the teller had made a study of geology; another that he had an itching to become a prospector and discoverer; a third that he had a cousin in Mexico who was a rich mine owner and was in correspondence with him. This latter fact was not known to mother or daughter. The detective headed for Mexico. He did not know where the cousin was lo-cated, but he intended to spend five years if necessary to find out. He did not know the cousin's name, but he de pended upon luck to ascertain it. knew that Vaugn would disguise him-self, and there had been no photograph of him for years, but he would depe upon the dog. It is doubtful if any de tective ever started out facing a hard proposition. At the end of three He had cautiously inquired for an American who was a stranger to the country, and he had found scores of them. He had inquired for American mine owners and had found scores more. The dog was with him day and dog. He had changed masters, was well used and seemed to be content, but some day the detective's case would depend on the canine's nose. After the third month he got some elight encouragement. After the fourth he believed that he was on Vaugn's trail, but it was five months and over before the climax came. One evening the detective was eating dinner in a restaurant in a Mexican city. The dog had been left locked in his room. He sat down to a table where there were four gentlemen, and after a glance at them he began his meal. He had learned that day that the man he wanted, or a man sup-posed to be he, was prospecting in the mountains 200 miles away. When the dinner was half over a chambermaid upstairs entered the detective's room in the line of duty, and no sooner was the door opened than the dog slipped out and ran downstairs. His nose led him to the dining room, and the head waiter sought to keep him out. There was a scuffle to attract attention, and then the dog rushed across the room to one of the gentlemen at the detec tive's table and indulged in the mos extravagant antics. He was repulse again and again, but he persisted. It was patent to all that the black and tan had found an old master. After s little the man rose up in confusion and went to his room, the dog still froick-ing around him, and when the detec tive knocked on the door it was opened by the paying teller, with the remark by the paying teller, with the remark:

"Well, I suppose you want me? Glad to see my dog again, but he shouldn't have given me away."

Joe was brought back to get a ten year sentence and to cover the mother and sister with disgrace, and he is yet in prison. When the bank president expressed his surprise that he had not carried away funds belonging to the bank, the teller reddened up and in in jured tones replied:

"Mr. Blank, I never thought of it. I was with you twenty years, and I am no thief."

The writer speaks of the impos of the spring wheat crop of W. Canada. He might also have a of the spring wheat crop of Western Canada. He might also have spoken of the importance of the eat crop and also of the winter wheat crop, as well as barley. Winter wheat crop, as well as barley. Winter wheat during the past few years has been a great success, and experiments have above that it can be grown with success in almost any portion of the three provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. But apart from this, the spring wheat crop is the one generally grown, and all who know anything of grain, anyone who has had anything to do with markets, knows or has heard of the high character of this coreal and the splendid yields that are annually produced. Reproducing from this article:—

"In a land of such great sweep, and

"In a land of such great sweep, and of such difference in soil and climate, there are many resources, but none are at present of the same overwhelming importance as the spring wheat crop. In the interminable prairie stretches of the northwest provinces it is the one absorbing topic of interest and of conversation during its growing and its harvesting, for upon its success or failure hangs the weal or woe of a large part of the Dominion. Its influence extends far down into the United States, drawing thousands of farmers northwards with the into the United States, drawing thousands of farmers northwards with the lure of cheap lands, but likewise be youd the great lakes, even to the easy going maritime provinces, calling the flower of their young men to its opportunities. Development in these prairie provinces goes on at high pressure for everything hangs on the outcome of spring wheat. Success has emboldened the raisers of this one all-important crop, and each year there emboldened the raisers of this one all-important crop, and each year there is further incursion into those north-ern fields that only a short time ago-were regarded as Arctic wastes. The Canadian Northwest seems to be one-of those modern agricultural examples set forth to drive the final pail in the coffin of that ancient Matthusian de-husion that population tends to outrun the means of subsistence, since the only fear now among Canadian econ-omists is as to the danger of over-stocking the wheat market. Only stocking the wheat market. Only about two and one-half per cent of possible arable lands in the northwest provinces is now under cultivation, and this year the crop promises to be close to 200,000,000 bushels, so that your imagination and your arithmetic can easily supply the answer as to the possible or even probable outcome." During the months of July and Au gust the weather was unfavourable and the production of a 200 million yield of wheat will not likely be realized, but even with this, the threshing reports coming to hand show that the crop will be a splendidly paying one.

ans and motor car seen skimming over Well, that's George the boulevards? Well, that's George Vineyard's tricar. To let you in on the secret early, a tricar is a fancy name for a three-wheeled motor cycle. George built his tricar in leisure hours back of his house at 2253 Gill-ham road, says the Kanaas City Star. George is nifty at several things, he says, doing expert electrical work when busy professionsily, cooffice when he's hungry and lieing a bachedor all of the time.

The sources for the mechaniam are summed up about like this: Orient-Merkie-Indian, Cadiliac-Blue Bird-Singer, the last being a gallant touch when you recall that Mr. Vineyard is a bachelor. The engine is one or four-horsepower taken from an Orient buckboard. There is no transmission on Mr. Vineyard's tricar, the machine always runs on high speed. It is geared to run about thirty-five miles an hour. The handle bars are made from gas pipe; the threttle and sparker are regulated by levers near the driver's seat. FIVE TREES ARE REMARKABLE Soffar, Found in Flubia and So Produces Whisting Sound-"Cow Tree" Gives Milk.

The "whistling tree," or scacle fis-tula, is found in Nubla and the Sou-dan. The Arabs call it "soffer." or pipe, because of the whistling sound that it proferes, and the specific name of "flatula," a word also mean-ing pipe or flute, has been given it for the same reason.

inse of "installa," a word also meaning pipe or flute, has been given it for the same reason.

Insects infest the tree, and deposit their eggs in its shoots. A gati-like excreacence, about an inch and a half in diameter, is produced at the base of the shoots, and when the larvae have emerged from circular holes in the sides of the shoots, the holes, played upon by the wind, produce a whistling sound equal to that produced by a sweet-toned flute.

The "cow tree" is so called because it yields an abundant supply of milk. To obtain the milk, deep including a manual to the fluid flows into vessels placed ready to receive it. This vegetable milk is white, somewhat viscid, and has an agreeable flavor; and an analysis of it shows that it is very much like the milk of a cow in its much like the milk of a cow in its composition. The cow tree grows on the slope of the mountain chain bordering on Venezuela.

The "cloth tree" is found at Ota-The "cloth tree" is found at Ota-helts in the South Sea. The bark is taken off in long strips and put to soak over night in running water. The soaking softens it, so that the inner fiber may be easily separated from the rest of the bark. The fibers are put together in lengths of about eleven or twelve yards, and the lengths are placed side by side until they are at least twelve inches in width, and two or three layers of fibers are put one upon another.

The fibers adhere together in one piece, and the material thus formed is beaten upon a smooth piece of wood until it becomes as thin as musilin. It is then bleached in the air for a time, when it is ready to be

The "atinging tree" of Queensland is pleasing to the eye but dangerous to the touch. Its effects are curious; it bauses great pain to the persus or animal that has the misfortune to get stung by it, but it leaves no wound, no mark of any kind. And for months afterwards the part stung is painful in rainy weather, or when in any way, it gets wet. Frequently is painth in rainy weather, or when in any way, it gets wet. Frequently it is necessary to shoot horses and dogs that have been stung by the tree so maddening is its effect upon them. The "angry tree" grows in Nevada eastern California and Arizona. TEXT-Be ye angry and sin net.

It is a great thing to know how to get real angry without making a fool of one's self. Not everybody knows how to do it. It is an accomplished art, the ability to get mad like a gentleman. To know when to get angry is a criterion of character. It is an accomplishment which is not learned in the schools. It is acquired in the relentless training of practical experience.

It is not a sin to get angry. Any man with half an ounce of ginger in his system ought to get angry occasionally. Temper is the impress of God upon the soul. It is the mark of personality and intellectual stamina. The scriptures say that God is angry with the wicked every day. Jeaus got angry, Can you not see him standing at the temple door? Can you not see the market scenes which were enacted there? Can you not see his, eyes kindle? Can you not see his illumined countenance blaze fierce and glorious? Can you not see the miraculous energy of his personality as he cast out all them that sold and bought in the temple and said unto them: 'My house shall be called a house of prayer, but ye have made it a den of thieves.'

Christianity is something more than a religion of love. Jesus said: 'I came It is not a sin to get angry. Any a religion of love. Jesus said: 'I came a religion of love. Jesus said: I came not to send peace, but a sword. Passivity may be all right for weakings, but action is the birthright of heroes. The man who tries to be sweet with everybody will find some day that he is nothing but a lemon. It is very easy, however, to get angry foolishly. Sometimes it is not. It may be proper at times for a man to get angry with the janitor. It may be proper at times for a man to get angry with the umpire. It may be proper at times for a man to get angry with the family upstairs. But it is never, never proper for a man to get angry with his wife. There is many a man who will say There is many a man who will say nasy things to his wife that he would nasy things to his wife that he would not think of saying to his chauffeur. Temper is good. A bad temper is what you have made of a good thing. A rife is a good thing in good hands. But when it has become rusted and out of repair it is going to explode some day in the hands of some cheerful idiot who did not know it was loaded. If your temper gets the best of you what you need is to go off to the repair shop and be made over. These fits of temper, this sour disposition, this iceberg atmosphere, this spiteful spirit are as contrary to the Christian as light is opposed to dark-

Tell me, what do you get mad about? That is the practical question. A man calls you a liar and you retort in similar language. But men are making God a liar every day and you do not get angry. Wherever there are wrongs to be righted, wherever there are evils to be trampled under foot, wherever there is justice to be meted out, wherever there is iniquity in high places or low, there is your opportunity to show of what stuff you are made.

Somebody treads on your corn and you get mad at him. This very night a courtly and attractive son of perdi-tion will lure a girl in her teens to one of the winerooms of this prodigal city. He will give to her a drink that will inflame every passion and deaden every moral sense. He will lead her forth to her ruin and laugh like a devil over the havor he has wrought. If you are going to get angry, in God's name get angry at something worth while. We are in the clety which is fond of wine and joy rides and clandestine flirtations. A society that is rotten to the core. Gilded resorts or doubtful character flaunt their disregard of high morality. Flends in human shape are stalking the streets and outrages are com-mitted at our very doors. There is a time to be angry. There is a time for Christian men to speak out, and that time is now. When the good peo-ple wake from their lethargy and begin to tackle something that is really worth their mettle, then shall right be triumphant and justice win the

The Law of Love.

The consecrated Christian brings to the lowlest duties the lottlest motives. His consecration to Christ carries with it consecration to the service of his brother men. The law of Christ is the law of love. We fulfill it in doing well our part of the world's work as well as in direct acts of sympathy and burden bearing. The holy man is the more energetic in business on account of the fullness of divine life in his heart. As Christ came into the world to do the Father's will so he sends us into the world. will, so he sends us into the world to do his own will, which is always to do his own will, which is always the Father's will. Business becomes ministry when it is inspired by fidelity to Christ. The salvation of society; the redemption of business, the subordination of power to principle and love, can only come through the law of love, which is the law of Christ.

GERMANY'S GREAT MONUMENT

Colossal Memorial Nearing Comple tion is Built to Commemorate the Leipzig, Germany.—Perhaps most colossal monument in all Germany is nearing completion here. Leipzig was the scene of three note-worthy battles—two in the Thirty Years' War and one in the Napoleonic wars. The monument is to commemo rate the battles between the French under Napoleon and an allied army of Austrians, Russians, Prussians and Swedes. The monument will be dedi-cated in October, 1913, on the battle's centenary.

In the accompanying illustration the monument is shown as it will appear when completed. Some of the gigan-tic carvings—one of them forty feet high—are already in place. Even in-

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREEM OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper? On account of his thic experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 178 West Jackson boulevard, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

The expression, a two-story bungs low, which we often hear, is a mis low, which we often hear, is a mis-nomer. Properly speaking, a bunga-low in but one story high and is cov-ered with a roof having very little pitch to it. But we are always im-proving things. It would be utterly impossible for the bungalow design to travel across the continent from Cali-fornia as far east as Chicago without receiving the inventive attentions of the western sons of our down-east Yankee ancestors.

Yankee ancestors.

In this plan we have a dwelling of modest dimensions, being 25 feet from front to rear and 32 feed in width, with a four-foot extension to make room for a pantry. In this way we get three splendid rooms on the first floor and they are well arranged for both convenience and looks.

Pantries were never properly built until this outside attachment was hit until this outside attachment was hit upon. It was born of necessity, like many other valuable inventions, and improved upon as occasion demanded. Pantries are intended for the storage of food both cooked and otherwise Naturally pantries should be kept as cool as possible and they should be well ventilated at all times. Light is a necessity and convenience is very important, for the pantry is visited many times during the preparation of rach meal; and meals come along regcach meal; and meals come along regularly three times a day in most healthy families. You can't have a cool pantry and have it built in the body of the house along with the other rooms, especially in a furnace-heated house.

In one little house where a pantry attachment like this was built on the space below was made into a cold fruit room. The main cellar wall was fruit room. The main cenar wan was carried across solid and straight except for a doorway, and a good heavy door was hung in the opening. The that is quite new is the stairway built around the big chimney. It not only looks well from the large living room, but it occupies the least important corner of the house and it lands you upstairs in the middle of the hall in close proximity to the doors leading into the different rooms. Under this stair are the steps leading to the cellar, so that space is economized to the best advantage. best advantage.

The material for the walls is coment preferably run in molds with provision made for dead air spaces, on the hollow wall principle. This makes the warmest house because it prevents dampness. And it is the cheapest construction if you take leasting qualities into consideration.

A massive effect is given by the heavy loggia piers, and this loggia, by the way, is considered one of the most attractive parts of the whole house.

houses. The estimated cost of this attractive and sturdy little dwelling is $2.500

Then in the matter of light, what a change; we have here 14 windows for four rooms and one stairway, which certainly looks like a liberal allow-ance even for these times of extravagant ideas.

It has taken us a long time to learn that we can build an elegant small house as well as an elegant large house, and we are just commercing to put our knowledge to some practical use. Such cottages as this are becoming common in the more enterprising suburbs of the larger cities and the indications are that they will continue to grow in popularity, for they meet the requirements of flat dwellers who have become heartly sick of living in gungeons.
