CLAIMS ON ILLINOIS FOOT-BALL HONORS.

The claims of Kewanee and Danville to the state scholastic football honors are disputed by the Sullivan High School team in a letter written by the manager of the Sullivan team to the manager of the Danville team. Also the record of the Sullivan team, with a direct challenge to any who think they have a better gridiron outfit, is added to the dispute, Following is the letter:

"Sullivan, Illinois, Nov. 20-Glen Henry, Faculty Manager Danville High School Football Team, Dear Sir: Yours of recent date relating to game with Sallivan High and declining the same at hand. In reply we beg leave with those who seek the things that are to differ with you as to our not being contenders for the downstate championship, and must insist that we be considered in the running. We have played teams equally as strong as Danville this year—namely, Pana and Decatur—either of which teams we believe can beat Danville. Danville played Taylorville a 5 to o game in favor of Danville, and we beat Taylor ville 29 to o. we notice further that you played Watseka Nov. 18.

The fact is we believe you are atraid to meet us on your grounds or ours. If you will play us at Sullivan Thanksgiving day we will give you $100 for your expense money. We have played nine high schools and defeated nine, and also beat Charleston Normal Seconds 12 to o, making ten straight wins. We play Clinton next Saturday, and would like to finish the season by playing any teau claiming the downstate championship on Thanksgiving day. The folowing are the scores of our games:

"Sullivan, 12; Arcela o. "Sullivan, 15; Lovington, 5. "Sullivan, 29; Matto in, o. "Sullivan, 5; Decatur, o, "Sullivan, 6; Pana, o. "Sultivan, 12; Charleston Normal

"Sullivan, 28; Newman, o. "Sullivan, 11; Mattoon, o. "Sullivan, 6; Pana. 5.

"Sullivan, 29; Tayrorville, 2. "Had we played a weak team like Watseka we might have run up a larger total ourselves, but we have tried to play good teams, and at that have a total of 155 to our opponents

12. If you are not attain of us and have a vacant Thanksgiving date—and this applies to all downstate championship claimers—we would like very much to play you on that

"If this challenge is not a by the downstate championship conby the downstate champions of the tenders we will accept a game with Oak Park at Sullivan or Chicago for the state championship. Yours for Sullivan High championship.

The Way to Kathlapur.

Gall and wormwood in his mouth, more bitter than remorse, Amber became conscious. Or perhaps it were more truly to say that he struggled but of unconsciousness, dragging his ago back by main will-power from the deep oblivion of drugged slumber. One by one his faculties fought their way past the barrier, until he was fully sentient, save that his memory frowsed. His head was hot and heavy, ds eyes burned in their sockets like alls of live charcoal, a dulled bus-ing sounded in his ears, his very ing sounded in his ears, his very teart felt sore and numb; he was as one who wakes from svil dreams to the blackness of foreknown despair. Guddenly he raised himself upon and called huskily for the charpoy and called huskily for the khansamah. Promptly the squat white figure that he remembered ap-peared in the doorway. "Bring lights," Amber ordered, peremptorily. "Bring ights quickly—and water." And when the man had returned with a lamp, which he put on the table, Amber selzed the red earthenware water-jug and drained it greedly. Returning it, mpty, to the brown hands, he mo-loned to the man to wait, while he consulted his watch. It had run down. He thrust it back into his pocket and inquired: "What's o'clock?"

"Eight in the evening, sahib." Amber gasped and stared. "Eight the L. Let me think. Go and pring me food and a brandy-peg—or, hold on! Bring a bottle of sods water and a glass only."

The khansamah withdrew. Amber bil back with his shoulders to the wall and stared unwinking at the lamp. He distinctly remembered unessing before going to bed; he now and himself fully clothed. He felt pocket, and found the emerald ging there, instead of in its chamois Then it had not been a night-

He had a bottle of brandy which and never been uncorked, in his trav-ling kit. Rising, he found it and incted the cork narrowly to make pure it had not been tampered with; then he drew it.

The khansamah returned with the dass and an unopened bottle of Schweppe's, and prepared the drink der eyes that watched him narrowly. While Amber drank he laid ce for him at the table. When he left the room a second time the Vir-ginian produced his automatic pistol d satisfied himself that it remained loaded and in good working order.

In the course of a few minutes the mative reappeared with a tray of food and pot of coffee. These arranged, he stood by the chair, ready to serve the guest. Then he found himself sooking into the muzzle of Amber's eapon, and became apparently rigid with terror.

"Make no outcry, dog, and tell me no lies, if you value your contemptible life. Why did you drug me at whose Instance?

But Amber sat bolt upright, his eyes widening and his jaw dropping. "Dhola——!" he seald, and brought his teeth together with an audible click, staring at the Chansamah as if he were a recrudescence of prehistoric mammal. He caught a motion of the head and a wave of the hand toward the window, warning him that there might be an sdropper turking without, and admirably to the emergency.

"My lord, hear me!" protested the man in an extremity of fright, "These be the words of truth. If otherwise, let my head be forfeit. . . . Early in the morning you returned from the lake, heavy with sleep, and so soundly have you slept since that hour that no effort of mine could rouse you, though many came to the door, making inquiry. I am Ram Lal, a true man, and no trafficker in drugs and potions."

"Even so!" said Amber, ironic "But if, on taking thought, I find you've lied to me. . . Go now and hold yourself fortunate in this, that I am not a man of hasty judgand nod toward the table.

From the khansamah's quarters came an occasional clash of crockery and pattering of naked feet. Outside, in the compound, the sepoys were chattering volubly; their words were indistinguishable, but from their constantly increasing animation Amber inferred that they were keenly relishing the tonic of discussion. He being the topic of discussion. He be-came sure of this when, at length, his curiosity aroused, he went to the window and peered out between the wooden slats of the blind. The little company was squatting in a circle round the fire, and a bottle was pass-ing from hand to hand.

He turned back, puzzled, to find the khansamah calmiy seated at the table and enjoying one of Amber's choicest

"Thank God," he said, with profound motion, "for a civilized smoke!" "Labertouche!" cried Amber.

The pseudo-khansamah rose, bowed formally, and shook hands with con-siderable cordiality. "It's good to see you whole and sound," he said. "I had to wait until Ram Nath's work began to show results. He's out there, you know, keeping the bottle moving: a don't believe those damned sepoys will bother us much, now, but we've got no time at all to spare. Now tell me what you have to tell, omitting nothing of the slightest consequence.

Amber dropped into a chair, and the Englishman sat near to him. "I say, thank God for you, Labertouche! You don't know how I've needed you."

"I can fancy. I've had a ripping time of it myself. Sorry I couldn't communicate with you safely before you left Calcutta. But we've not a minute to waste. Get into your yarn, please; explanations later, if we can Inhaling with deep enjoyment, he narrowed his dark eyes, listening intently to Amber's concise narrative of his experiences since their parting before the stall of Dhola Baksh in the Machua bazar. Not once was he in-terrupted by word or sign from Labertouche; and even when the tale was told the latter said nothing, but dropped his gaze abstractedly to the smoldering stump of his elgarette.

"And you?" demanded the Virginian.
"Have pity, Labertouche! Can't you see I'm being eaten alive by curios-

Labertouche eyed him blankly for an instant. "Oh!" he said, with an effort freeing his mind from an in tense concentration of thought. "I' What's there to tell? I've been at work. That's all. . . . I was jostled off to one side when the row started in the bazar, and so lost you There was then nothing to do but strike back to the hotel and wait for a clew. You can figure my relief when you dropped out of that ticca-ghari! gave you the word to go on to Dareeling, intending to join you en route. But you know why that jaunt never came off. I found out my mistake before morning, wired you, and left Calcutta before you, by the same train that conveyed the maharana of Khap dawar. Fortunately enough we had Ram Nath already on the ground, working up another case—I'll tell you about it some time. He's one of our best men-a native, but loyal to the core, and wrapped up in his work. He'd contrived to get a billet as tongawallah to the Kuttapur bunia who ha the dak-service contract. I myself had arranged to have the telegraph babu here transferred, and myself appointed in his place. So I was able to attach myself to the 'tail' of the maharana without exciting comment Miss Farrell came by the same train. but Salig Singh was in too great a hurry to get home to pay any attention to her, and I, knowing you'd be along, arranged that tonga accident with Ram Nath. He bribed his broth-er tonga-wallah to bring it about."

"Thank you," said Amber, from his heart.

Labertouche impatiently waved the interruption aside. "I looked for you at the telegraph office this morning, but of course when you didn't appear I knew something was up. So I con-cocted a message to you for an ex-cuse, came down, engaged the khansamah in conversation (I think he had some idea I was an an othing of that sort."

"And that means—"
"That this infernal conspiracy is scheduled to come to a head tonight as you must have inferred, my dear fellow; this is the last night of your probation. The cutting off of Khanda-war from all British India is a bold move and shows Salig Singh's confidence. It means simply: "Governmental interference not desired. Hands off." He knows well that we've spies here, that enough has leaked out, unavoidably, to bring an army corps down on his back within twenty-four hours, if he permitted even the most innocent-seeming message to get out of Amber whistled with dismay. "And

"I'm going to find out for myself what's towards Kathlapur" "You're going there—alone?" "You're going there-

"Not exactly: I shall have company gentleman of the Mohammedan persuasion is going to change places with me for the night. No; he doesn't know it yet, but I have reason to be-lieve that he got an R. S. V. P. for the festive occasion and intends to put in the man who passes through the Gateway in his name is to be quietly eliminated before he can betray anything —in other words, as soon as he has been put through the 'ordeal,' as they call it, for the sake of appearances and the moral effect upon the Hindu race at large. Now I think you understand."

"I think I do, thanks," Amber re-turned dryly, "You're quite right, as I said before. So I'm off to the residency. But how to get through that tle time as it took him to step back-wards from Amber Labertouche had resumed his temporarily discarded masquerade. Instantaneously it was the khansamah who confronted the Virginian—the native with head and shoulders submissively bended, as one who awaits an order.

Amber, surprised, stared, started to speak, received a sign, and was silent, the excuse for Labertouche's sudden change of attitude heing sufficiently apparent in an uproas which had been raised without the seast warning is the compound. The advent of a run ning horse seemed to have been responsible for it, for the clatter of oofs as the animal was checked ab ruptly in mid-stride was followed by a clamour of drunken cries, shricks of alarm, and protests on the part of the sepoys disturbed in the midst of their carouse. Over all this there rang the voice of an Englishman swearing good, round, honest British oaths.

"Stand aside, you hounds!" Amber turned pale. "That's Far rell's voice!" he cried, guessing at the truth.

"You Can Figure My Relief When You Dropped Out of That Ticca

"But the risk!" man in Kathiapur since day before

"And I? What am I to do?"

"Your place is at Miss Farrell's side. No; you'd be only a hindrance to me. Get that out of your thoughts. Three years ago I found time to make pretty thorough exploration of Kathlapur, and, being blessed with an excellent memory, I shall be quite at home.

Amber made a gesture of surrender 'Of course you're right," he said You're always right, confound you!

"Exactly," agreed Labertouche, niling. "I'm only here to help you miling. escape to the residency. Raikes Colonel Farrell have already been advised to make preparations for a siege or for instant flight, if I give the word. They need you far more than I shall. It would be simple madness for you to venture to Kathiapur tonight. The case is clear enough for you to see the folly of doing anything of the sort."

"It may be clear to you . . ." "See here," said Labertouche, with pardonable impatience; "I'm presuming that you know enough of indian history to be aware that the Rutton dynasty in Khandawar is the proudest and noblest in India; it has descended in right line from the sun There's not a living Hindu but will acknowledge its supremacy, be he however ambitious. That makes it plain, or ought to, why Har Dyal Rutton, the last male of his line, was— and is—considered the natural, the in-evitable, leader of the second mutiny. It devolved upon Salig Singh to produce him; Salig Singh promised and -is on the point of failure. I can't ged the khansa-if think he had called upon to pay, but it's safe to as-ant of the ofter sums that it'll be something everlant.

The din subsided as Farrell gained the veranda. His feet rang heavily on Labertouche chuckled grimly. "It's the boards, and a second later he the day's work, my boy. I'm not sure thrust the door violently open and I shan't enjoy it. Besides, I mustn't hang back where my subordinates booted, spurred, his keen old face have not feared to go. We've had a livid, a riding whip dangling from one wrist, a revolver in the other hand.

He wheeled on the threshold and lifted his weapon, then, with a gasp of amazement, dropped it. "By heaven, sir!" he cried, "that's odd! Those damned sepoys tried to prevent my seeing you and now they've cleared out, every mother's son of them!"

Amber stepped to his side; to his own bewilderment, the compound was deserted: there was not a sepoy in

"So much the better," he said, quick-ly, the first to recover. "What's wrong, "Wrong!" Farrell stumbled over to the table and into a chair, panting. "Everything's wrong! What's gone wrong with you, that we haven't been able to find you all day?" "I've been lying there," Amber told him, nodding to the charpoy, "drugged, What's happened? Is Miss Farrell—" "Sophia!" The Political lifted his hand to his eyes and let it fall, with an effect of confusion. "In the name of charity tell me you know where she

"You don't mean-"She's gone, Amber-gune. She's disappeared, vanished, been spirited away! Don't you understand me? She's been kidnaped!"

In dumb torment, Amber heard a swift, sharp hiss of breath as pregnant with meaning as a spoken word and turned to meet Labertouche's eyes, and to see that the same thought was in both their minds. Salig Singh had found the way to lure Amber to Kathiapur. No spoken word was needed: their understanding was implicit on the in-stant. Indeed, the secret agent dared not speak, lest he be overheard by an eavesdropper and so be the cause of his own betrayal. With a flutter of

For himself, his path of duty lay clear that a labor wision; like Labor the Virginian's vision; like Laber . He had no more doubt that So-a had been conveyed thither than had of Farrell's presence before

He thought swiftly of Dulla Dad's parting admonition: "You shall find but one way to Kathiapur."
"Well, sir? Well?" Exasperated by

"Well, sir? Well?" Exasperated by his silence the Political sprang to his feet and brought the riding-crop against his leg with a smack like a gun-shot. "Have you nothing to eay? Don't you realise what it means when a white woman disappears to the land a white woman disappears in this land of devila? Good God! you stand there, doing nothing, saying nothing, like a man with a heart of stone!"

"Speak French," Amber interposed quietly. He continued in that tongue, his tone so steady and imperative that it brought the half-frantic Englishman to his senses. "Speak French. You must know that we're spied upon every instant; every word we speak is overheard, probably. Tell me what happened—how it happened—and keer

"You're right; I beg your pardon." Parrell collected himself. "There's little enough to go on. . . You disappointed us this morning. During the day we got word from a secret but trustworthy source to look out for trouble from the native side. Nevertheless, Raikes and I were obliged, by reason of our position, represent-ing Government, to attend the banquet in honor of the coronation tomorrow. We called in young Clarkson—the missionary, you know—to stay in the house during our absence. When we returned the Residency was deserted only we found Clarkson bound, gagged, and nearly dead of suffocation in a closet. He could tell us nothing had been set upon from behind. Not a servant remained. . . But, by the way, your man Doggott came in by the evening dak-tonga."

"Where's Raikes?"
"Gone to the palace to threaten Salig Singh with an army corps."
"You know the telegraph wires are cut?" "Yes, but how-" "Never mind how I know—the story's too long. The thing to do is to get troops here without a day's de-

But how?"

"Take Raikes, Clarkson, and Dog-gott and ride like hell to Badshah Junction. Telegraph from there. The four of you ought to be able to fight your way through."

"But, man, my daughter!" "I know where to find her or think I do. No matter which, I'll find her and bring her back to you safely, or die trying. You spoke just now of a secret but trustworthy source of in-formation: I work with it this night. I can't mention names—you know why; but that source was in this room ten minutes ago. He's gone after your daughter now. I follow. No-l go alone. It's the only way. I know how you feel about it, but believe me, the thing for you to do is to find some way to summon British troops. Now the quicker you go, the quicker I'm off. I can't—daren't move while you're here." Farrell eyed him strangely. "Til go," he said after a pause. "But . . . why can't I—"

"There are just two white men living, Colonel Farrell, who can go where I am going to look for your daughter tonight. I'm one of them. The other —you know who."
"One of us is mad," said Farrell

The Virginian followed him to the doorway. Farrell's horse, a docile, well-trained animal, had come to the edge of the veranda to wait for his master. Otherwise the compound was as empty as the night was quiet. Mounting, the Political waved a silent farewell and spurred off toward the city. Amber passed back through the bungalow to the bund.

He lifted his voice and called: "Ohe Dulla Dad!"

There came a soft shuffle of feet on the stones behind him, and the stunt-ed, white-clad figure of Dulla Dad stood at his side, making respectful obeisance. "Hazoor!"

"You damned spying scoundrel!" Amber cried, enraged. "You've been waiting there by the window, listen-

Pearls in Cocoanuts.

Few people know that the cocoanuts of the Malay peninsula sometimes produce pearls that are highly prized by the natives. The stones are not unlike the pearls of the mullusks and are similar in composition to the oyster pearls, having calcium carbonate and little organic matter. These concre tions form just beneath the stem, and a pure white pearl brings a high price, as it is supposed by the natives to as it is supposed by the natives to pos-sess some kind of a charm. Cases have been known where the cocoanut pearl has been sold as a mollusk product, but such instances are rare

WILL MAKE A MAGNIFICENT EX-HIBIT OF GRAINS AND GRASSES, VEGETABLES AND FRUIT.

A carload of grain in straw, grass and other of the products of Western Canada arrived at Chicago the other day, and is now installed in the um, where the United States and and irrigation exposition is under way. Those who are interested in the "Back to the land movement" will find in the Canadian exhibit one of the best displays of the agricultural products of Western Canada that has ever been made. There are repre-sentative men there, who will be pleased to give the fullest information regarding the country.

The exhibit shows what can be done on the free grant lands of that country and most of the grain was produced on the farms of former residents of the United States who have taken advantage of the homestead lands of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and

The vegetable exhibit will attract a great deal of attention, and some marvelous potatoes, carrots, turnips, cabbage and cauliflower are shown. It is true that the homestead area is being rapidly taken up and the bulk of that now to be had lies north of the Saskatchewan river in a por-tion of the country known as the park country. Here there is a large quantity of open prairie interspersed by beautiful groves of poplar and willow. Water is in abundance, hay is plentiful and consequently fodder for animals is right at hand. Those who have taken advantage of farming in these districts and watched the efforts of those in the prairie proper feel-that they have the advantage of their brother, who is not able to secure fuel and the other conveniences of the park district on his own farm.

The crop conditions throughout Western Canada the past year have been generally good, and some won-derful crop yields of wheat, oats and barley are recorded. The Canadian Government, under whose auspices the exhibit spoken of is being made, is preparing reports on crops in the different Western Canada districts, and while these will not be ready for distribution at the land show commencing on the 18th of November and closing on Dec. 8th, application made to the Canadian Government agent nearest you will bring them to you as soon as they are published.

In the opinion of legions of reliable American people the most stubiora constipation imaginable can be cured by a brief use of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepain. You may not have heard of it before, but do not doubt its merits on that account, or because it has not been blatantly advertised. It has sold very successfully on word of mouth recommendation. though Stricken Blind Over Twenty Years Ago He Since Editorially Directed His Two Big Daily Newspapers.

Charleston, S. C.-Joseph Pulitzer, editor and proprietor of the New York World and the St. Louis Post Dispatch, died recently on board his racht, Liberty, in the harbor here. He had been ill only about 48 hours and until just before he died it was be-lieved that the illness was only a slight indisposition. His passing re-moved one of the greatest newspa-pers publishers of the age.

Late one afternoon 22 years ago Joseph Pulitzer, then but forty-t years old, was leaning on the rail of a vacht as the boat was standing out of the Bosphorus and into the Black sea, looking toward the setting sun through eyes which for years had been strained, when he was stricken blind.

And for the last 20 years almost up to the moment of his death—he has been in constant touch with the morning and evening editions of his New York World and his Post-Dispatch of St. Louis, personally during his short and infrequent visits to Manhattan and by telegraph or cable while cruising here and abroad on his yacht.

Of late years he has spent most of his days aboard his palatial yacht, surrounded by a corps of readers and secretaries, who read the newspapers to him carefully and then carried out his orders. It was an ordinary oc-currence for him to wake up his staff shoard the yacht at two or three o'clock in the morning to aid him in ome work he had suddenly thought

Prior to his debut as a newspaper man in 1870 Mr. Pulitzer had, for five years, worked in various capaci-ties. Going to St. Louis at the close of the Civil war, after having been mustered out of the First New York cavalry after a year's service, he obtained his first employment as a jeckhand on a ferryboat.

Afterward he did manual work on the levee, then became a hostler in the Benton barracks, and later became a waiter in a cafe.

Following this he had a place as coachman, and through part of the cholera epidemic in the latter sixtles he was a grave digger.

PHYSICIAN ADVISES CUTICURA REMEDIES

Four years ago I had places break out on my wrist and on my shin which would itch and burn by spells, and scratching them would not seem to give any relief. When the trouble first began, my wrist and shin itched like poises. I would scratch those places until they would bleed before I could get any relief. Afterwards the places would scale over, and the flesh underneath would look red and feverish. Sometimes it would begin to itch until it would waken me from my sleep, and I would have to go through the scratching ordeal again.

Our physician pronounced it "dry eczema." I used an ointment which the doctor gave me, but it did no good Then he advised me to try the Cuti-cura Remedies. As this trouble has been in our family for years, and is considered hereditary, I felt anxious to try to head it off. I got the Cuti-cura Soap, Ointment and Pills, and they seemed to be just what I needed.

"The disease was making great headway on my system until I got the Cuticura Remedies which have cleared my skin of the great pest. From the time the eczema healed four years ago, until now, I have never felt any of its pest, and I am thankful to the Cuticura Soap and Ointment which certainly cured me. I always use the Cuticura Soap for toilet, and I hope other sufferers from skin diseases will use the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. (Signed) Irven Hutchison, Three Rivers, Mich., Mar. 16, 1911. #### Reduced Rate to International

This year the railroads have been more generous than in the past, and have granted visitors to the International Live Stock Exposition, which will be held from December 2 to 9. greatly reduced rates.

Through the courtesy of the lines forming the Central Passenger Association, a fare-and-a-half round trip rate was granted visitors to this exposition on the certificate plan, from all territory within its boundaries except such points where the regular fare amounts to less than $1,00. To secure this rate, the passenger must inform the agent that he intends to visit the International Live Stock Exposition, and request a certificate at the time he purchases his ticket. These certificates will be issued from November 20th to December 4th, inclusive, which will be honored for purchase of return ticket until December 13th.

The lines forming the South Eastern Passenger Association have concurred in the action of the Central Association, and visitors from territory south and southeast of the Ohio river will be given the benefit of a fare-and-a-half certificate plan rate.

Advantage should be taken of these unusually low rates, for you cannot afford to miss such an opportunity to visit the World's Greatest Live Stock Show with its magnificent array of pure-bred animals; its splendid educational exhibits and brilliant evening entertainments, where you can see, contending for final honors the choicest products of the European markets pitted against the blue-ribbon winners of this continent. You are given an opportunity to meet and greet the foremost live stock men of the world, and to attend any of the thirty or more National Live Stock Breeders' Conventions that will be held there during the week of the show, where the problems of breeding raising and feeding will be discussed, which should prove of incatculable value to every stockman and farmer.

Shorn of Her Crown of Beauty, Losses in Love and Marriage, Hair is certainly most necessary to woman Who could love and marry a bald-headed woman? What charms could one array to offset such a disfigurement?

A woman's goal is usually love and marriage. Her crowning giory is her hair. The loss of her hair mars her beauty, happiness and success. Yet, right here in Sullivan there are hundreds of women who are neglecting or injuring their hair to such an extent that it is only a matter of time whe it will be utterly ruised.

Many women destroy the beauty of their hair through thoughtlessness or ignorance of certain facts. They use curling irons overeated, or to excess, which destroys the nattural cil of the hair, causing it to split, break or come out. They do not shampoo their hair often enough, or 200 often. They use dients positively harmful to the scalp and hair

As a result of such treatment, dandruff is ereated, the hair loosens, loses color, falls out, and baldness commences, unless proper and prompt precautions are taken in time Then again, microbes and certain diseases bring about unbankthy scalp and hair con-druff and diseased scalp and hair if she will but use the right remedy. We have that emedy, and we will positively guarantee that we will either cure dradruff and baldness or it will not cost the user enything.

That's a pretty strong statement, but we will back it and prove it with our own money. We will return your money if you do not find that Rexail "93" Hair Tonic is an entirely satisfactory remedy that will promot hair growth and overcome scalp and hair troubles; that it will grow hair even on bald heads, unless all life in the hair roots has been extinguished, the folicles closed, and the scalp is glazed and shiny. It gets its name from the fact that it grew hair in 93 out of 100 cases, where it received a thoroughly hard, impartial, and practical test.

We want you to try Rexall "98" Hair Tonic at our risk. You surely cannot lose anything by doing so, while you have every thing to gain. You had better think this over, and then come in and see us about this offer. You will be repaid for your visit to our store. Remember, you can get Rexali Remedies in this community only at our store—The Rexall Store. A. G. Barrum, Sullivan, Illinois.

Hanging on the Wall.

"The way pictures are hung makes such a lot of difference in the appear ance of a room," said an interior dec-orator a few days ago. "That fact is thrust upon me nearly every day. I go into some parlors where the piotures are hung so high that all per-spective is lost, and the ceiling seems to be hopelessly high. Other folks hang theirs so low that it hurts your spine to look at them, in addition to straining your eyes, spoiling the beauty of the room and taking from the value of the picture.

"All pictures should not be hung on the same level, as they so often are, yet all should be as nearly on the level with the eyes as possible. If equare and oblong pictures are alter nated irregularly with round and oval ones the best possible effect is gained."

We are expecting not less than 200 n the Bible School next Sunday, and want 150 of them to have their Bibles along, as we want to go over the line with the last point on the rorr front rank standard. It's up to you now. We came mighty close last Sundayust missed it a little, but next Sunday it's going to be different, for we confidently expect you to be there with your Bible, an offering, a smile and a will to learn. Be a booster. The knockers are all dead, and they never counted anyhow. Boost-and the crowd boosts with you; knockand you knock alone. You will be equally welcome at all of the services. for they all need your help.

J. W. KILBORN, Pastor. PRESBYTERIAN.

We had a most excellent audience last Sunnay morning, as well as a fine Sunday School. The evening crowd was fairly good too, Still some might be in the night service who are not. Let us rally to this most important service.

... Next Sunday the pastor will preach on "The Garment of Praise." The evening service at 7:30 o'clock.

Our prayer meetings are growing. Let us make them a great power in the life of our church. Come out Wednesday night.

We extend a most cordial invitation to all our services.

OBITUARY.

MRS, ROSCOE BARNES.

Pearl Adaline Bean was born in Sullivan. June 11, 1892. Married to Roscoe Barnes, January 24, 1909. To this union was born a daughter, who is now two years of age. Mrs. Barnes died Thursday, November 23, at 6:30

Her suffering had its origin in the head. No doubt the citizens of Sullivan recall Addie's sad experience the ed a miracle. She has complained much of pains in her head ever since, but the past summer it has been more serious. Her last sickness was of eleven days' duration, and unconscious most of the time. Mrs. Baines was the youngest daughter of Mrs. Sarah E. Bean and James W. Bean.

She is survived by husband, daughter, mother, sister Myrta, and father, besides a host of friends.

Addie was a good woman and made cere sympathy of a large acquaint ance.

The funeral discourse by Rev. A.T. Cory will be preached Saturday at the home of the mother, Mrs. Sarah E. Beau. The interment will be in Greenhill cemetery. Andrew Corbin, undertaker.

CARD OF THANKS.

We extend our heartfelt thanks to all for their many kind acts, remembrances and assistance during the sickness and our sad bereavement in the death of our darling Addie.

Pure Ideals Would Eliminate Divorce

By Roy, HERRERY MCCONNELL Party Charles 1812

TEXT—And the Lord said unto Mose 'Wherefore theu criest unto me? Specto the children of Israel that they groward."

In the Christian life there is little promised that is easy. Men are continually being put to the test. Often men are placed in hard places, where the burden is found to be heavy. Moses was now carrying a heavy burden. He had led the children of Israel from bondage to freedom. Now it looked as though they would be taken back to bondage again. The thought of this was weighing heavily on Moses, and he cried unto God. The answer was: "Speak thou unto the children of Israel that they go forward." Because of the passing years the words have not lost their meaning. But in a larger sense they are being applied today.

The message of God to men is "Forward." It would be a shame for the present generation to be in the same degree of enlightenment as the generation that has just passed. We today have the accumulated thought which has led to the degree of enlightenment. As we have found so much the responsibility is laid upon us to move forward so that we by our lives will not retard the march of civilization. The Christian should ever have his or her face forward ready to march at any and all times.

We are placed into such a beautiful world one would think it would be hard for the children of men not to think of God. But we are forced to believe that there are many people who think very little of him who has given so much for us to enjoy. The great, broad fields bearing their precious fruits, the precious stones found in the bowels of the earth, the great forests furnishing the timbers for our great buildings and ships, the great mountain peaks.

All these things should remind us

All these things should remind us of God and his goodness and cause us to think much of him. The beauty of the sunrise and the glory of the setting thereof, the beauty of the stars, the songs of the birds, the lightning flash, all reveal to us the greatness of God. How strange that men can pass on with so little thought of God, who has been so kind and good.

has been so kind and good.

The question we hear often is, "How much will you give?" By that ques tion we mean how much will I get We are very anxious about how much we will get. Ought it not be how much can I give? In this way see how much we can help the world onward. Suppose that the Apostle Paul had asked how much he was to have received for each journey he under-took. Would we have the privilege of reading of the church at Phillippi, Corinth and many other places? If Martin Luther had asked how much he was to receive for the work he was doing would we be honoring him today? The fact is this, that the men and women who accomplished most for the world have been most unsel fish. They have put themselves into the great work and their influence has lived.

Too many people are not familiar with the Bible. This will apply to both those who belong to our churches and those who have not yet identified themselves with the church. There is a great lack in our knowledge of the Bible, If the Bible is our guide through this life, surely we ought to become familiar with that which we depend upon. Mr. Moody used to say, "look out in nature and see the hand of Good. Look into the Bible and see God face to face." Some time taght to be given each day to reading the Bible, not that we ought to see how much we can cover at a glance, but how much we can understand of its contents.

We are reminded every day how important it is to live pure. If the pure life was the ideal, how much wrongdoing would be corrected. If the cou-ple standing at the marriage altar would have the pure life as their ideal would it not lessen the number of divorces? Would we not have better homes? Would there not be fewer children to care for in the homes of charity? If the pure life was ideal would we not have better so ciety? How our churches would be filled with devoted men and women who are anxious to worship Godmen and women who would be anx ious to take a class in the Sunday school and faithfully each Sunday stand before their classes teaching the things of purity and God! Realiz ing that the greatest of all things are the things which can be given for the sake of those who are here by our side, the opportunity for labor is great and the field is wide.

"I am a literary man whose nervous energy is a great part of my stock in trade, and ordinarily I have little patience with breakfast foods and the extravagant claims made of them. But I cannot withhold my acknowledgment of the debt that I owe to Grate-Nuts food.

"I discovered long ago that the very bulkiness of the ordinary diet was not calculated to give one a clear head, the power of sustained, accurate thinking. I always felt heavy and sluggish in mind as well as body after eating the ordinary meal, which diverted the blood from the brain to the digestive apparatus.

"I tried foods easy of digestion, but found them usually deficient in nutriment. I experimented with many breakfast foods and they, too, proved unsatisfactory, till I reached Grape-Nuts. And then the problem was solved.

"Grape-Nuts agreed with me perfectly from the beginning, satisfying my hunger and supplying the nutriment that so many other prepared foods lock

"You see, at home Thanksgiving is such a chummy, big-hearted and happy day that I just couldn't stand it not to manifest a little good fellowship. Mr. Graham and I would have wept over the turkey, I'm sure."

The big lounging room of the ren dezvous was practically deserted when Helen Graham and her husband made their way out on the Haymarket.

"What a change from the crowds in July!" remarked Helen.

"All the better for our advertise-ment." said Graham. "There won't be many applicants. I thought you wanted two guests?"

"I do, but I put one down on the add, so that they will not come in crowds. A single person is more likely to be lonesome, anyway," she fin-

"I'll bet you put Gray up to sending a man and a woman," chided Bob Graham as he assisted his wife up the

And Hugh Gray, the man behind window D, was waiting for Margery Bonner. He had selected her as one of the guests for Mrs. Graham's Thanksgiving dinner. She had been calling for her mail only during the last three weks, but Gray had discovered her charm the very first time her big blue eyes seemed to coax him for

Bob Dexter looked at the trio of happy faces in the glow of the fire; the yellow corn was puffing into fluffy balls and the fragrance of freshroasted corn permeated the room. The picture stamped itself indelibly on Dexter's mind, especially the profile of the girl beside him. Her delicate face was clear cut like a cameo among the shadows. She glanced around and met the unguarded look in his eyes and a flush not caused by the fire mounted her cheeks. By way of cov-ering his embarrassment she handed

care. In the American their restant, HOW THE FARM HORSES SHOULD BE CARED FOR DURING THE WINTER

Draft Horse in Winter Condition

By J. L. EDMONDS

University of Illinois.

This is the time of year when much interest is taken in questions relative to wintering horse stock. This is particularly true this year of account of the high price and scarcity of hay. Idle work horses must be kept sound and healthy. Young stock will need extra care. The efficiency of team power the following spring depends largely upon the method of wintering. It is false economy to winter work horses so cheaply that they are not able to do a full day's work with a little hardening to it. There never has been any money in doing colts so poorly that they weigh less in the spring than in the fall.

Shelter for horses need not be ex pensive to be satisfactory. Dry cold is good for a horse but rain and mud no top sapping on his vitality. With possibly the exception of weanlings and mares due to foal early, most horses will come out better if win-tered in an open shed with a well drained lot or tough sod field to exer cise over, than if wintered in a warm barn with insufficient exercise. cold and exercise may make them eat a little more feed but it can be of a cheaper grade. In a well built upen shed ventilation, light and drainage take care of themselves. A horse fed and grown after the manner of a show steer may be nice to look at but is not of much use to work. One of the big Illinois breeders of draft borses finds it useful to have a few light legs, colts, running with his draft bred stuff to keep them exer-cised a little better than they would be of their own accord.

With respect to rations, good practice has to be our main guide. Mature geldings and open mares may be brought through in good shape on bright oat straw and corn stover with a few ears of corn added. Corn planted thickly in the drill and cut with a corn binder makes excellent feed when properly cured. With all of this roughage that a horse will eat and two pounds of bran a day most horses will come through in fine

Although not absolutely ne ed, the bran so used will pay for it self. Some Illinois horse breeder speak very highly of sorghum; & makes a great abundance of roughage which is palatable to horses because they enjoy anything sweet. Coltrand broad mares cannot be wintered cheaply and well without some legum; hay. Mixed clover and timothy to good from the standpoint of efficiency and safety. Clover of good quality is satisfactory if judgment is used in feeding the same of satisfactory if judgment is used in feeding it. The same is true of al-falfa—treuble often arises when mares are allowed to gorge them selves on it. Stalk fields are a poor place for any kind of a horse when they get muddy and the corn stalks half rotten. This generally happens before the winter is very far ad-

So far silage cannot be conside a safe feed for horses of any kind when it is fed in amounts sufficient to form an appreciable part of a horse's ration. The chances are that silage made from well-matured corn and free from mold would be safe. Silage, lowever, is liable to spoil or to con tain a few moldy spots. The horse's stomach seems extremely sensitive to mold found on spoiled silage. At least six sudden deaths were reported to the station last winter where-hors were fed silage or had gained access to troughs containing it. Oats are ration of the average brood mare and colts, but should not be omitted entirely even with a legume hay.

Watering should be so arranged that the horse can be his own boss in winter. When he is hard worked this would never do.

Winter is a good time to get a colused to being handled. The chances are great than his feet will at least need being leveled; on the average farm this is best done with a rasp Where there are a great many feet to be trimmed, a long-handled chisel and mallet will be found more expe dient even if the work is not quite so well done. Stuff running in the open needs little grooming.

TREE PLANTING FOR THE TOWN STREETS By LOUIS BRANDT.

Instructor in Landscape Gardening,
University of Illinois.

It has often been said that the morals and culture of the citizens of any city or town may be accurately judged by examining the condition of its community. like the face of a human are as an open book to him who reads the character of the possessor. And es belong to the co as street tre nity, the condition and control of these indicate to a marked degree the relative character and plane of the community.

So important and so varied are the things to be considered in street tree planting that it is unquestionably a problem to place in the hands of a trained official. It is impossible to get good results if the street tre planting is left to individuals. We will have as many ideas concerning street planting as there are owners.

mally we find certain portion Occa of a city having lovely trees, properly placed. We admire those sections and wish the whole city was so planted. Then again we find sections where the trees are planted ten to fifteen feet apart, and are nothing more sticks covered with foliage. They must have light, and they must grow; but since they have no room to de-telop side branches they shoot straight oming tall and spindling. handle this work.

This brings, into consideration the matter of spacing, a thing of which the ordinary person knows but little. The spacing should vary according to the size and maturity of the species selected. The gingko, huckleberry are catalpa, for instance, should be planted about 30 feet apart, while the American elm should be planted 60 feet apart. Between these two come such trees as the sugar maple, oriental plane tree and red oak 45 feet apart; about 40 feet apart; the pin oak and American linden about 38 feet apart; and the European linden, horse-chest nut and sweet gum about 35 feet apart.

Again we find the larger percentage of the street trees, especially here in the middle west, to be rapid growing, soft wooded, short lived trees like the box elder, Carolina poplar and silver maple. They were planted in the early days for the purpose of getting shade quickly. However, had the early set tlers planted hard wooded, long lived rees at the same time they would have grown along quietly, and when of sufficient size the short lived trees could have been removed.

All of this discussion, and I have touched on but a few points, brings us to the following conclusions. That street trees are the greatest individ city; that street trees give character to a city; that the condition of the street trees indicates the relative standard of every other phase of com munity life; that, without street tree a city having the finest buildings and roads possible would be a mighty poor place in which to live; that there are a great many factors to be considered in the selection and planting of street trees; that the ordinary citizen doe not know these factors, as witness by the grave mistakes prevalent most of our cities; that planting left to individual citizens can only result in a motley arrangement devoid of unity, and that usually quick growers will be selected without regard for the future, etc.; and last, but not least we must conclude that the qu street tree planting is of vital impor-

AN OLD FRENCH "CASTLE"

Fort Niagara at the Mouth of the Niagara River Has Interesting History.

Buffalo, N. Y.—No place in Am Buffalo, N. Y.—No place in America possesses more interesting history than old Fort Niagara at the mouth of the Niagara river. The story of the possession by the Indians, then the French, British and Americans each in succession, and then by the British again and finally by the Americans, is intensely interesting. Many of the old buildings are still in an excellent state of preservation and are in constant. old buildings are still in an excellent state of preservation and are in constant use by the present occupants of Fort Niagara. The building shown in the filustration is the old French "mess" house or "castle," as it is now called. It was begun by the French in 1725 and anished in 1726. It is said to be the oldest existing masonry work west of Albany. Its dimensions work west of Albany. Its dimensions as planned by the French were 105x47 feet. The brick used in laying the

It is the tradition that the "castle," which is a very strong building, was erected by stratagem. A considerable, though not powerful, body of French troops had arrived at the point. Their force was inferior to the surrounding Indians. The French obtained consent of the Indians to build a wigwam and induced them with some of their own officers to engage in an extensive hunt. The materials had been made ready and while the Indians were absent the French built the "castle." When the hunting party returned at night the French had advanced so far with the work as to cover their faces and to defend themselves against the savages in case of any

How a Physician Removes One From the Throat of a

Chicago.—The modern physician is not obliged to guess at what is the matter with a Man's stomach or his bronchial tubes; if the proper instru-ments are at his disposal he can see for himself what the trouble is quite as well as if it were on the outer surface of the body. If his patient has swallowed a button or a pin the prac-titioner can see just where it is with a simple instrument, and can have it under his eye while he is extracting it.

Devices by which the interior cavities of the body could be seen were invented, if not actually used, over a century ago, but none could be really successful before the infroduction of the electric light. Now improvements that are really marvelous are in the hands of the better surgeons and the
