Can serve you as well here in Sullivan, as we can in Decatur, because of lack of proper equipment to make a really scientific test.

Be prudent, and see us in Decatur.

WHY HE ADVERTISES HIS CURE FOR APPENDICITIS

Dr. G. F. Dougherty, Neoga, Ill., says:—

"After an active practice of more than a quarter of a century in one continuous location I decided I would remain no longer in the thralldom of an antiquated system of so-called ethica, inconsistent with modern age.

I began the twentieth century according to the dictates of my conscience by letting the people know through the columns of the press that I was giving an unusually effective medical aid in specific classes of internal diseases—appendicitis, disease of the liver, stomach and bowel disturbances.

To cut a long story short, I have treated more patients (and successfully) within a period of any one year since I have made my professional capability publicly known than during the entire time that I was hiding my "light under the so-called ethical bushel."

I believe too, that I am able to do far greater good in a year now than in twenty years of so-called ethical practice, because I was called upon to attend all kinds of cases and my experience was general, whereas now my patients come to me exclusively for one class of disease.

I make no apology to the so-called "ethical" class for advertising. Nam doing that which is proper, and consistent with modern conditions. My time is fully occupied now, and my practice extends throughout all parts of the state.

I obtain my patients by respectable, legitimate advertisements, and of the recommendations of one cured person to another.

If you readers, could spend one hour sitting by my desk and reading the reports of progress and cures which come in large numbers daily from my patients, you could not possibly want any better evidence as to the efficacy of my method of treating appendicitis and other internal diseases without an operation.

If any local medical man tells you it is improper for me to advertise, do not argue with him; just draw your own conclusions, bearing in mind that I am a licensed and registered medical practitioner of the state of Illinois, which state is generally conceded to have rules of testing the reputational proficiency and as strict as, or more rigid, than any other state in the union.

I, therefore, commend myself and my treatment to your attention, giving you assurance that your case, if entrusted to my professional care, shall have the careful attention which it deserves.

Patients will please remember that my dates are taken far in advance and it is better to secure a date before coming.—Shelby County Leader, July 3, 1913.

IRVING SHUMAN

Irving, son of Charles and Mary Shuman, was born in Moultrie county, September 16, 1882.

He acquired a common school education, which he has improved upon by hard work and the gathering of practical knowledge in his business engagements.

At sixteen years of age he entered the State Bank of Sullivan and at the age of twenty-one was elected cashier, and at twenty-three a director in the bank and assisted in bringing about the reorganization of the First National Bank.

For several years he has been director of the Sullivan Elevator Company, grain elevators of central Illinois.

He was president of group seven of the Illinois Banker's Association, comprising the counties of Sangamon, Macon, Christian, Shelby, Montgomery and Moultrie, 1911-1912. In 1912 he was appointed president of the Illinois banker's association and a member of the state banker's committee, an agricultural and vocational association and designated along with B. F. Harris and Wm. G. Eden to act in connection with a committee of educators in drafting bills to be submitted to the legislature for agricultural and vocational education in our public schools. Irving Shuman is a thirty-second degree Mason, and a member of the grand chapter of Royal Arch Masons of this state.

He is a member of the Presbyterian church. In 1904 he was married to Miss Pearl Thomson; they are the parents of two very interesting little daughters. For several years the family have lived on and operated a farm near Sullivan.

In 1911 he began to interest the people in Woodrow Wilson, and help bring about the nomination, and was elected a delegate from the 19th congressional district to the national convention in Baltimore, and was connected with the western headquarters of the national committee from date of opening, associating with Joseph N. Davis, manager of the western campaign, and elected vice chairman of the Illinois finance committee.

WYMAN PARK SITE SELECTED

About Two-thirds of Bequest is Spent for the Land.

The selection of a park site under the provision of the Wyman will has been a subject of interest to the residents of Sullivan and this vicinity for several months.

Early in the season it was decided by the council to hold an election to get the wishes of the people in reference to the matter. The election was held Friday of last week. Four sites propositions were named on the ballot.

The Titus tract two propositions, one of forty acres for $18,000. Another condition of nearly the same body of land $14,000.00.

The Old Fair Ground site for $15,000.00.

The Bush Patterson site at $12,500. Ashbrook-Steele-Shuman proposition at $7,000.00.

The result of the election was as follows: Titus park site, 123; the Old Fair Ground site, 283; the Patterson park site, 225; the Ashbrook-Steele-Shuman site, 174.

No tract receiving a majority of all the votes cast the selection was left to the city council.

At the meeting of the council Monday evening too much other business and the absence of alderman Thompson called for a recess until the next evening, when a bigger crowd was present than on the previous evening. But the city officials did not make their appearance until 9 p. m.

They had been engaged in a private caucus but reached no conclusion on the park site question, and no decision had been reached. The first act of the council after coming in was a motion to adjourn by C. F. McClure and seconded by Blackwell. The motion was lost. Alderman Enterline presented a resolution, for again submitting the question to the people, naming but two of the sites on the ticket. The motion did not meet with a second.

After some warm discussions another recess was taken until Wednesday evening. At that session Alderman Thompson offered a resolution providing for the selection of a combination to make the park site, the proposition including 38.35 acres of the Titus land, and 1.65 acres belonging to Mrs. D. L. Enslow and C. H. Monroe, the last two pieces for the sum of $3,000.00. Total for the combination $18,340.00.

The resolution was seconded by McClure. Aldermen Thompson, McClure and Blackwell voted yes. Enterline, Ellis and Lowe voted nay. The mayor untied the vote by voting for the affirmative.

The park site accepted includes 1.65 acres at the north end of Washington street owned by Charles H. Monroe of this city and David L. Enslow of Pontiac, at $3,000, and the Titus land of 38.35 acres at $400 an acre, making the cost of the site a little over $18,000.

The edge of the park is to lie along the west line of Worth street pavement. Mr. Titus had held out for $450 an acre if the council decided to take the land from the pavement west, and if they left him 260 feet on the west side of the pavement it would cost them $400, but at last he made this new offer letting them have it clear to the pavement for $400 an acre. Starting 260 feet west of the pavement it would have cost them $330 per acre. Taking the latter proposition would have meant that the ground next to the pavement would have been sold for lots and residence would have hid the park from view.

Accepted Good Position.

H. J. Wehner has accepted the position of head salesman with Sechuck, clothier, in Decatur. It is the largest clothing store in the city of Decatur, and they can well pay a handsome salary for a competent and good salesman for the business as Mr. Wehner.

Mr. Wehner came to Sullivan twenty years ago from Weidon, DeWitt county and put in a stock of clothing in Sullivan. After a short time he took in Ben Sheridan as a partner then later purchased his interests. After going out of the clothing business, he was manager of Rork's broom corn business several years.

For five years he was book keeper for the Illinois Bridge and Iron Works.

The last engagement in Sullivan was that of general manager of the business of the Sullivan Dry Goods Co.

Mr. Wehner was a prominent figure in the Sullivan band throughout the time he lived in Sullivan. He had the management of the Hollingsworth band when there was twenty-five pieces in the band. Mr. Wehner and C. F. McClure are all of that big band left in Sullivan that still take an active part in the music.

Mr. Wehner is the present manager of the band and will be missed.

Mr. Wehner is a good citizen and competent business man, and Sullivan loses a good family when they leave. Mr. Wehner began his work last Monday.

IN MEMORIAM.

At the meeting of the Board of Supervisors of Moultrie County held September 10, 1913, the following resolutions of sympathy and respect to the memory of Warren M. Fleming, late sheriff of Moultrie County, Illinois, were unanimously adopted upon a rising vote of the board.

Whereas, Warren M. Fleming, Sheriff of Moultrie County, Illinois, was on the 5th day of September A. D. 1913, suddenly taken from our midst, while in the performance of his official duties, and whereas, our Heavenly Father, who in his infinite wisdom doeth all things wisely and well, has decreed that our beloved sheriff depart this life, thereby depriving Moultrie county of a most honored official, we, ever mindful of his omnipotence, deeply deploring the loss of our honored official, bow to the inevitable. He will be missed.

Resolved, that in the death of Warren M. Fleming, the county has lost a valuable official, the community an honored citizen and his family a devoted husband and father. He was conspicuous in the performance of his duty, and in his private life, a man of high character, loyal in friendship, which endeared him to all. Words seem but empty sounds in attempting to do justice in full measure to his good qualities and the domestic and social ties which bound him to his fellow-men. We can only face this sad reality with uncovered heads, and in silence feel what speech can never express.

Resolved, that the untimely taking off of Warren M. Fleming, while in the performance of his official duties, is deeply deplored by the county as well as by his family and personal friends. This sad future session of the Board of Supervisors of Moultrie county will be addressed by his absence. He was honored and revered by all members for his kindly disposition and nobility of soul that adorned his character in all his relations with associates and friends.

Resolved, that we hereby extend to the bereaved family our heartfelt sympathy in this, their sad bereavement. Were it possible we would gladly contribute to the alleviation of their woe, which may be assuaged but not removed.

Resolved, that these resolutions be spread upon the records of this board, that a copy be sent to the bereaved family and that a copy be furnished each of the newspapers of Moultrie county for publication.

FRAN

SYNOPSIS.

Fran arrives at Hamilton Gregory's home in Littleburg, but finds him absent conducting the choir at a camp meeting. She repairs thither in search of him, finding during the service that he has just left. Abbott Ashton, superintendent of schools, escorts Fran from the tent. He tells her Gregory is a wealthy man, deeply interested in charity work, and a pillar of the church. Ashton becomes greatly interested in Fran and while taking leave of her, holds her hand and is seen by Sapphira Clinton, sister of Robert Clinton, chairman of the school board. Fran tells Gregory she wants a home with him. Grace Noir, Gregory's private secretary, takes a violent dislike to Fran and advises her to go away at once. Fran hints at a twenty-year-old secret, and Gregory in indignation asks Grace to leave the room. Fran relates the story of how Gregory married a young girl at Springfield while attending college, and that Mrs. Gregory's mother on her making her home with them and takes her to her arms. The breach between Fran and Grace widens. It is decided that Fran must go to school. Grace shows persistent interest in Gregory's story of his dead friend and hints that Fran may be an impostor. She threatens to marry Bob Clinton and leave Gregory's service, much to the latter's dismay. Fran declares that the secretary must go. Grace begins nagging Fran in an effort to drive Fran from the Gregory home, but Mrs. Gregory remains staunch in her friendship.

CHAPTER X.—Continued.

Miss Sapphira was highly gratified. "I wish you'd talked this reasonable at first. It's always what people don't see that the most harm comes of. I'll give a little tea out here on the veranda, and the worst talkers in town will be in these chairs when you bring Fran away from Abbott's office. And I'll explain it all to 'em, and they'll know Abbott is all right, just as I've always known."

"Get Miss Grace to come," Bob said sheepishly. "She doesn't like Fran, and she'll be glad to know Abbott is doing his duty by her. Later, I'll drop in and have a bite with you."

This, then, was Bob's "idea," that no stone might be left unturned to hide the perfect innocence of the superintendent. He had known Abbott Ashton as a bare-legged urchin running on errands for his widowed mother. He had watched him through studious years, had believed in his future career—and no, no bold adventures, though adopted into Hamilton Gregory's home, should be allowed to spoil Abbott's chances of success.

In his official character as chairman of the board, Robert Clinton marched with dignity into the superintendent's office, meaning to bear away the wilted Fran before the eyes of woman. Abbott Ashton saw him enter with a sense of relief. The young man could not understand why he had held Fran's hand, that night on the foot-bridge. Not only had the sentiment of that hour passed away, but the interview Fran had forced upon him at the close of a recent school-day, had inspired him with actual hostility. It seemed the irony of fate that a mere child, a stranger, should, because of senseless gossip, endanger his chances of reappointment—a reappointment which he felt certain was the best possible means of advancement. Why had he held Fran's little hand? He had never dreamed of holding Grace's—ah, there was a hand, indeed!

"Has she been sent down?" Bob asked, in the hoarse undertone of a fellow-conspirator.

"No," Abbott was eager to prove his innocence. "I haven't seen a sign of her, but I'm looking every minute—glad you're here."

Confidences were impracticable, because of a tanned-headed, ink-stained pupil who gloomed in a corner.

"Why, hello, there, Jakey!" cried Clinton, disconcerted; he had hoped that Fran's subjugation might take place without witnesses. "What are you doing here, hey?"

"Waiting to be whipped," was the defiant rejoinder.

"Tell the professor you're sorry for what you've done; so you can run along," said the chairman of the board piously.

"Now, I ain't sorry," returned Jakey, hands in pockets. Then bethinking himself—"But I ain't done nothin'."

Abbott said regretfully, "He'll have to be whipped."

Clinton nodded, and sat down solemnly, breathing hard. Abbott was restlessly pacing the floor, and Bob was staring at him unwinkingly, when the door opened and in came Fran.

Fran walked up to Abbott hesitatingly, and spoke with the indistinctness of awed humility. "You are to punish me," she explained, "by making me work out this original proposition"—showing the book—"and you are to keep me here till I get it."

Abbott asked sternly, "Did Miss Bull send me this message?"

"She is named that," Fran murmured, her eyes fastened on the open page.

From the yard came the shouts of children, breaking the bonds of learning for a wider freedom. Abbott, gazing severely on this slip of a girl, found her decidedly commonplace in appearance. How the moonlight must have bewitched him! He rejoiced that Robert Clinton was there to witness his indifference.

"This is the problem," Fran said, with exceeding primness, pronouncing the word as if it were too large for her, and holding up the book with a slender finger placed upon certain italicized words.

"Let me see it," said Abbott, with professional dryness. He grasped the book to read the proposition. His hand was against hers, but she did not draw away, for had she done so, how could he have found the place?

Fran, with uplifted eyes, spoke in the plaintive accents of a five-year-old child: "Right there, sir . . . it's awful hard."

Robert Clinton cleared his throat and produced a sound bursting with accumulated 'h's and r's—his warning passed unheeded.

Never before had Abbott had so much of Fran. The capillaries of his skin, as her hand quivered warmly against his, seemed drawing her in; and as she escaped from her splendid black orbs, she entered his brain by the avenue of his own thirsty eyes. What was the use to tell himself that she was commonplace, that his position was in danger because of her? Suddenly her hair fell slantwise past the corners of her eyes, making a triangle of smooth white skin to the roots of the hair, and it seemed good, just because it was Fran's way and not after a machine-turned fashion; Fran was done by hand, there was no doubt of that.

"Sit there," Abbott said, gravely pointing. She obeyed without a word, leaving the geometry as hostage in the teacher's hand. When seated at a discreet distance, she looked over at Bob Clinton. He hastily drew on his spectacles, that he might look old.

Abbott volunteered, "This is Mr. Clinton, President of the Board."

"I know," said Fran, staring at her pencil and paper, "he's at the head of the show, and watches when the wild animals are tamed."

Clinton drew forth a newspaper, and opened it deliberately.

Fran scribbled for some time, then looked over at him again. "Did you get it?" she asked, with mild interest.

"Did, get—what?" he returned, with puzzled frown.

"Oh, I don't know what it is," said Fran with humility; "the name of it's 'Religion.'"

"If I were you," Clinton returned, flushing, "I'd be ashamed to refer to the night you disgraced yourself by laughing in the tent."

"Fran," Abbott interposed severely, "attend to your work."

Fran bent her head over the desk, but was not long silent. "I don't like a-b-c and d-e-f," she observed with more energy than she had hitherto displayed. "They're equal to each other, but I don't know why, and I don't care, because it doesn't seem to matter. Nothing interests me unless it has something to do with living. These angles and lines are nothing to me; what I care for is this time I'm wasting, sitting in a stuffy old room, while the good big world is enjoying itself just outside the window." She started up impetuously.

"Sit down!" Abbott commanded.

"Fran!" exclaimed Robert Clinton, stamping his foot, "sit down!"

Fran sank back upon the bench.

"I suspect," said Abbott mildly, "that they have put you in classes too far advanced. We must try you in another room."

"But I don't want to be tried in rooms," Fran explained, "I want to be tried in acts—deeds. Until I came here, I'd never been to school a day in my life, and I want to be a confidential tone. I agreed to attend because I imagined school ought to have some connection with life—something in it mixed up with love and friendship and justice and mercy. Wasn't I silly! I even believed—just fancy!—that you might really teach me something about religion. But, no! it's all books, nothing but books."

"Fran," Abbott reasoned, "if we put you in a room where you can understand the things we try to teach, if we make you thorough—"

"I don't want to be thorough," she explained, "I want to be happy. I guess all that schools were meant to do is to teach folks what's in books, and how to stand in a straight line. The children in Class A, or Class B have their minds sheared and pruned to look alike, but I don't want my brain after anybody's pattern."

"You'll regret this, Miss," declared Clinton, in a threatening tone. "You sit down. Do you want the name of being expelled?"

"I don't care very much about the names of things," said Fran coolly; "there are lots of respectable names that hide wickedness." Her tone changed: "But yonder's another wild animal for you to train; did you come to see him beaten?" She darted to the corner, and seated herself beside Jakey.

"Say, now," Bob remonstrated, pulling his mustache deprecatingly, "everybody knows I wouldn't see a dog hurt if it could be helped. I'm Jakey's friend, and I'd be yours, Fran—honestly—if I could. But how's a school to be run without authority? You ain't reasonable. All we want of you is to be biddable."

"And you!" cried Fran to Abbott, beginning to give way to high pressure, "I thought you were a school-teacher, not just, but also—a something very nice, also a teacher. But not you. Teacher's all you are, just rules and regulations and authority and chalk and a-b-c and d-e-f."

Abbott crimsoned. Was she right? Was he not something very nice plus his vocation? He found himself desperately wishing that she might think so.

"Don't You See That You Are Holding Up Ignorance as a Virtue?"

Fran, after one long glowing look at him, turned to the lad in disgrace, and placed her hand upon his stubborn arm. "Have you a mother?" she asked wistfully.

"Yeh," mumbled the lad, astonished at finding himself addressed, not as an ink-stained hulk of humanity, but as an understanding soul.

"I haven't," said Fran softly, talking to him as if unconscious of the presence of two listening men, "but I had one, a few years ago—and, oh, it seems so long since she died, Jakey—three years is a pretty long time to be without a mother. And you can't think what a fault-blinded, spoilingest, canniest mother she was. I'm glad yours is living, for you still have the chance to make her proud and happy."

No matter how fine I may turn out—do you reckon I'll ever be admired by anybody, Jakey? Huh! I guess not. But if I were, mother wouldn't be here to enjoy it. Won't you tell Professor Ashton that you are sorry?"

"Fran," Abbott began.

Fran made a mouth at him. "I don't belong to your school any more," she informed him. "Mr. School Director can tell you the name of what he can do to me; he'll find it classified under the E's."

After this explosion, she turned again to the lad: "I saw you punch that boy, Jakey, and I heard you say you didn't, and yet it was a good punch. What made you deny it? Punctures aren't bad ideas. If I could strike out like you did, I'd wait till I saw a man bullying a weaker one, and I'd stand up to him." Fran leaped impulsively to her feet, and doubled her arm—and I'd let her land! Punching's a good thing, and, oh, how it's needed. . . . Except at school—you mustn't do anything human here, you must be an oyster at school."

"Aw-right," said Jakey, with a glimmering of comprehension. He seemed coming to life, as if sap were trickling from winter-congealment.

Bob Clinton, too, felt the fresh breeze or early spring in his face. He removed his spectacles.

"The first thing I know," Fran said, resuming her private conversation with Jakey, "I had a mother, but no father—not that he was dead, oh, bless you, he was alive enough—but before my birth he deserted mother. Uncle turned us out of the house. Did we starve, that deserted mother and her little baby? I don't look starved, do I? Pshaw! If a woman without a cent to her name, and ten pounds in her arms can make good, what about a big strong boy like you with a mother to smile every time he hits the mark? Tell these gentlemen you're sorry for punching that boy."

"Sorr," muttered Jakey shamefacedly.

"I am glad to hear it," Abbott exclaimed heartily. "You can take your cap to go, Jakey."

"Lemme stay," Jakey pleaded, not budging an inch.

Fran lifted her face above the tumbled head to look at Abbott; she sucked in her cheeks and made a triumphant oval of her mouth. Then she seemed to forget the young man's presence.

"But when mother died, real trouble began. It was always hard work, while she lived, but hard work isn't trouble, la, no, trouble's just an empty heart! Well, sir, when I read about how good Mr. Hamilton Gregory is, and how much he gives away—to folks he never sees—here I came. But I don't seem to belong to anybody, Jakey, I'm outside of everything. But you have a home and a mother, Jakey, and a place in the world, so I say 'Hurrah!' because you belong to somebody, and, best of all, you're not a girl, but a boy to strike out straight from the shoulder."

Jakey was dissolved; tears burst forth from his eyes.

One may shout oneself hoarse at the delivery of a speech which, if terved upon printed page, would never prompt the reader to cast his hat to the telling. No mere print under bold headlines did Abbott read, but rather the changing lights and shadows in great black eyes. It was marvelous how Fran could project past experiences upon the screen of the listener's perception. At her, "When mother died," Abbott saw the girl weeping beside the death-bed. When she sighed, "I don't belong to anybody," the school director felt like crying: "Then belong to me!"

Fran now completed her work. She rose from the immovable Jakey and came over to Abbott Ashton, with meekly folded hands.

He found the magic of the moonlight-hour returning. She had mellowed—glowed—softened—womanized—Abbott could not find the word for it. She quivered with an exquisite-ness not to be defined—a something in hair, or flesh, or glory of eye, or softness of lips, altogether lacking in his physical being, but eagerly desired by Professor Ashton," she spoke seriously. "I have been horrid. I might have known that school is merely a place where young people crawl into books to worm themselves from lid to lid, swallowing all that comes in the way. But I'd never been to school, and I imagined it a place where a child was helped to develop itself. I thought teachers were trying to show the pupils the best way to be what they were going to be. I've been disappointed, but that's not your fault; you are just a system. If a boy is to be a blacksmith after he's grown, and if a girl in the same class is to be a music teacher, or a milliner, both must learn about a-b-c and d-e-f. So I'm going away for good, because, of course, I couldn't afford to waste my time in this house."

"But, Fran," Abbott exclaimed impulsively, "don't you see that you are holding up ignorance as a virtue? Can you afford to despise knowledge in this civilized age? You should want to know facts just because—well, just because they are facts."

"But I don't seem to, at all," Fran responded mildly. "No, I'm not making fun of education when I find fault with your school, any more than I show irreverence to my mother's God when I question what some people call 'religion.' It's the connection to life that makes facts of any value to me; and it's only in its connection to life that I'd give a pin for all the religion on earth."

"I don't understand," Abbott faltered. She unfolded her hands and held them up in a quaint little gesture of aspiration. "No, because it isn't in a book. I feel lost—so out in space. I only ask for a place in the universe—to belong to somebody. . . ."

"But," said Abbott, "you already belong to somebody, since Mr. Gregory has taken you into his home and he is one of the best men that ever—"

"Oh, let's go home," cried Fran impatiently. "Let's all of us skip out of this chummy old basement-smelly place, and breathe the pure air of life."

She darted toward the door, then looked back. Sadness had vanished from her face, to give place to a sudden glow. The late afternoon sun shone full upon her, and she held her lashes apart, quite unblinded by its intensity. She seemed suddenly illumined, not only from without, but from within.

Abbott seized his hat, Robert Clinton had already snatched up his. Jakey squeezed his cap in an agitated hand. All four hurried out into the hall as if moved by the same spring.

Unluckily, as they passed the hall window, Fran looked out. Her eyes were caught by a group seated on the veranda of the Clinton boarding house. There were Miss Sapphira Clinton, Miss Grace Noir, and several mothers, sipping afternoon tea. In an instant, Fran had grasped the plot. That cloud of witnesses was banked against the green weather-boarding, to behold her ignominy.

"Mr. Clinton," said Fran, all sweetness, all allurements. "I am going to ask of you a first favor. I left my hat up in Miss Bull's room and—"

"I will get it," said Abbott promptly. (TO BE CONTINUED.)

YOUR MIND ON YOUR WORK

Man Who Makes Good is One Who Can Shut Out of Mind All but One Thing.

The man who makes good is the man who can shut out of his mind all but one thing. An unsuccessful principal of a school once said that every teacher ought to be able to do three things at once. Of course, he was wrong. The teacher who does one thing at a time and does it well is giving the pupil the best possible object lesson in concentration. We have to learn to think clearly amid distracting noises, to go forward on a straight and narrow way without diversions and excursions that waste our time and our substance, and to keep at work regardless of the "tired" feeling, the "spring" feeling, and whether the fishing is good or not. When the soft breeze comes in at the window we stiffen the moral fiber against its allurements. We must pin our attention firmly to the turgid and dry geometry of a legal brief, or the scribbled figures of the daybook, or the busy system of a mercantile establishment, and let every other thought await its turn at the end of office hours. You may have heard a great lawyer in action in a crowded courtroom. What was the secret of his power? It was that he would not let the jury's attention or the witness' tongue wander from the relevant facts. He kept insistently to the straight line that is the shortest distance from point to point. He curiously dismissed all that was superfluous, immaterial and calculated to blur the salient outlines of the matter in controversy.

Anesthetized Rejection Slip.

Elizabeth Jordan said that with all the manuscripts the late Margaret E. Sangster had occasion to return, not one ever carried a headache with it.

She saw everyone who wanted to see her, receiving all callers. She was greatly interested in young writers. And when they had no writing gift, tactfully she would set them going on in some other direction. Perhaps some woman who had brought her poor little efforts to Mrs. Sangster could bake sweetmeats, though she couldn't write. Then would Mrs. Sangster work around among the club women she knew until she got sufficient orders for sweetmeats to give that woman employment.—Christian Herald

THE DOCTOR'S GIFT

Food Worth Its Weight in Gold.

We usually expect the doctor to put us on some kind of penance and give us bitter medicines.

A Penn. doctor brought a patient something entirely different and the results are truly interesting.

"Two years ago," writes the patient, "I was a frequent victim of acute indigestion and biliousness, being allowed to eat very few things. One day our family doctor brought me a small package, saying he had found something for me to eat."

"He said it was a food called Grape-Nuts and even as its golden color might suggest it was worth its weight in gold. I was sick and tired, trying one thing after another to no avail, but consented to try this new food."

"Well! It surpassed my doctor's fondest anticipation and every day since then I have blessed the good doctor and the inventor of Grape-Nuts."

"I noticed improvement at once and in a month's time my former spells of indigestion had disappeared. In two months I felt like a new man. My mind was much clearer and keener, my body took on the vitality of youth, and this condition has continued."

Backache Warns You

Backache is one of Nature's warnings of kidney weakness. Kidney disease kills thousands every year.

Don't neglect a bad back. If your back is lame—if it hurts to stoop or lift—if there is irregularity of the secretions—suspect your kidneys. If you suffer headaches, dizziness and are tired, nervous and worn-out, you have further proof.

Use Doan's Kidney Pills, a fine remedy for bad backs and weak kidneys.

EXTENSIVE LIGHT FIXTURE

Lamps Are Suspended and Counterbalanced in Novel Manner by Invention of an Idaho Man.

The Scientific American in describing and illustrating an invention of F. Garrecht of Idaho City, Idaho, says: The invention refers particularly to suspended electric light fixtures, and the objects are to provide a fixture in which the electric lights are suspended and counterbalanced in a novel manner; to provide for the easy adjustment of the lights to a higher or lower position; to provide for housing and concealing the wires in the extensible elements; and to provide a fixture in which elements are adapted to be produced in ornamental form.

WIND RUNS LIGHTING PLANT

House, Barn and Yard Illuminated From Power Costing Nothing—Capacity of Six Amperes.

What is probably the smallest farm lighting plant in the country has been installed on the farm of a dairyman near Foyette, Wis. This tiny plant supplies current for 24 lamps and is operated entirely by the farm windmill, at a total cost of a few cents a year for lubricating oil.

The farm consists of about 100 acres and is devoted to stock raising and dairying. The power windmill is 12 feet in diameter, with a vertical shaft extending down the tower; attached to it are the power pulleys, etc. In addition to driving the electric light dynamo this mill is used to operate a drill press, grindstone, corn sheller, small saw, washing machine, grain elevator and feed grinder.

The dynamo is located in a small building at the base of the windmill tower. This dynamo has a capacity of six amperes at 25 volts, or 0.2 kilowatts when driven at full speed of 450 revolutions a minute. The variations in speed, due to irregularities in the wind, are overcome by a small automatic switch placed in the circuit between the generator and the storage batteries, which prevents any accidents to the apparatus by "breaking" the circuit when a certain range of speed has been passed.

The tiny plant illuminates the home, the yards and the barn buildings. All the lamps receive their current from the storage battery, the charging of which is the dynamo's only function. The entire plant, including windmill, generator, battery, wiring, lamps, etc., could be duplicated for not more than $250.—Philadelphia Record.

BABY'S CRIB RUN ON CABLE

Electric Scheme Does Away With Wheeling Carriage When Youngster Demands Action.

Running a baby's crib back and forth from end to end of a large porch on an electrically operated cableway, is a scheme designed by John G. Barnwell, superintendent of the municipal public utility plants of Yorkville, S. C., to do away with the necessity of wheeling a carriage when the baby demands action, says the Popular Mechanic.

The crib is hung from a suspension cable by means of wheels, as shown in the illustrations, the 30-foot cable being stretched taut by means of a turn-buckle. An endless cable, connected by friction gearing to a small electric motor of the type used to run sewing machines, hauls the crib back and forth on the suspension cable. At each end of the line is a stop, which the crib engages on its arrival, thus causing the reversing gears of the driving mechanism to act and start the crib back again to the other end of the line, this action continuing as long as the motor is allowed to run. The motor is attached to an electric socket by a flexible connection in the usual way.

For Sixteen Years, Restored To Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Moretown, Vermont.—"I was troubled with pains and irregularities for sixteen years, and was thin, weak and nervous. When I would lie down it would seem as if I was going right down out of sight into some dark hole, and the window curtains had faces that would peek out at me, and when I was out of doors it would seem as if something was going to happen. My blood was poor, my circulation was so bad I would be like a dead person at times. I had female weakness badly, my abdomen was sore and I had awful pains.

"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used the Sanative Wash and they certainly did wonders for me. My troubles disappeared and I am able to work hard every day."—Mrs. W. F. SAWYER, River View Farm, Moretown, Vermont.

Another Case. Gifford, Iowa.—"I was troubled with female weakness, also with displacement. I had very severe and steady headache, also pain in back and was very thin and tired all the time. ## WATERY BLISTERS ON FACE Smithville, Ind.—"Six months ago our baby girl, one year old, had a few red pimples come on her face which gradually spread causing her face to become very irritated and a fiery red color. The pimples on the child's face were at first small watery blisters, just a small blotch on the skin. She kept scratching at this until in a few days her whole cheeks were fiery red color and instead of the little blisters the skin was cracked and scaly looking and seemed to itch and burn very much.

"We used a number of remedies which seemed to give relief for a short time then leave her face worse than ever. Finally we got a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment. I washed the child's face with very warm water and Cuticura Soap, then applied the Cuticura Ointment very lightly. After doing this about three times a day the itching and burning seemed entirely gone in two days' time. Inside of two weeks' time her face seemed well. That was eight months ago and there has been no return of the trouble." (Signed) Mrs. A. K. WOODEN, Nov. 4, 1912. Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 23-p. ## KEY WAS UNDER DOOR MAT

Important Information for Which Conductor of Indianapolis Car Held the Passengers.

The South East street car was hurrying on its way toward the end of the line. Near the ten hundred block the single line branches out into a switch. The cars slow up and the passengers, generally known personally by the conductor, often have time to exchange pleasantries as the cars pass. A German woman was on the car coming downtown the other day. As the car slid on the switch and started to pass the other she got up excitedly and waved toward the car headed for the end of the line.

"Oh, Charlie! Oh, Charlie!" she shouted at a youth on the other car, evidently her son, on his way home. Charlie did not catch the signal at first, and the cars gathered speed.

"Charlie! Charlie!" came the voice, this time more insistent. Then Charlie looked around and saw the other car going off the switch, with the woman still waving excitedly.

The motorman was aroused by this time and, thinking that the summons was urgent, stopped the car and Charlie jumped off and made a bee-line for mother.

She met him at the door. "I just wanted to say that the key is under the mat at the back door!" she yelled. And Charlie jumped off, waved at his conductor and caught his car amid the cheers of the other passengers.—Indianapolis News.

ALL WANT TO NAME THE BABY

Advice Heaped in Profession on Keepers of Big City's Zoological Gardens.

"The arrival of a baby animal or bird of any kind from a hippopotamus to a canary at either of the city zoos gives people all over town a chance to spread themselves in the matter of names," said a New York park keeper.

"Everybody wants the honor of naming the baby. Letters come from all parts of the city, and from the surrounding country, suggesting names that the writers think appropriate. Patriotism runs high among our correspondents. If they had their way half the animals in the park would be called 'Abe' Lincoln, and a large part of the other half 'Teddy' Roosevelt. Regardless of the sex of the youngster, these two presidential appellations are urged upon us.

"Classical and Scriptural names also have their advocates. Hercules and Plato in particular are proposed.

"Of all the ladies of antiquity Niobe seems to have first call. Once in a while a writer of a sentimental turn of mind suggests a more modern romantic name. Out of consideration for the animal fancy names are taboo to start with. To call a beast of the jungle Violet or Queenie is enough to shame the most docile of infants into a reversion to type."

Interesting Beginning. A fair graduate was conversing with a young gentleman who had been presented to her after the commencement exercises.

"Well," she sighed happily. "I am an A B now. Of course you have a degree?"

"Yes," he replied, "but I am only a B."

The fair grad pondered. The degree was puzzling.

"Bachelor," he said.—New York Times.

World's Greatest Power Dam.

In ante-bellum days Robert E. Lee stood on the limestone bluffs commanding the Des Moines rapids of the Mississippi river and in a moment of inspiration suggested the idea of harnessing the Father of Waters, both for better navigation and the power that could be secured.

Whatever might have been in Lee's mind, when he suggested the harnessing of the Father of Waters, it is going to be more than realized in furnishing power for innumerable factories in the Mississippi valley.

In 1897 an unknown writer of a Buffalo paper described how power could be generated from the Niagara Falls and be transmitted by wire for light and power as far as Albany.

Attest: CASH W. GREEN, clerk. It was moved by Mr. Neff and seconded by Mr. Ray that a reading of the record of the proceedings of the regular meeting of the board held June 9th and 10th, 1913, and also of the special meeting the date of August 26 and 27 and September 3d and 4th, 1913, be deferred for future consideration.

The chairman called the attention of the board to the death of Warren M. Fleming, sheriff of Moultrie county, who met with a sudden and untimely death on the evening of Sept. 5th, 1913, and suggested that there be a committee appointed to draft and report to the board suitable resolutions of sympathy and respect to the memory of our late county official, and there being no objections, the chairman appointed Messrs. Morrison, Scowles and Martin as such committee and requested that the committee make its reports at this meeting of the board.

A communication from W. W. Kenny, secretary of the State Association of Supervisors, Commissioners and County Clerks, calling attention to the fact that the annual convention of said association will be held at Morris on October 28, 29 and 30, and requesting the board to appoint three members and the clerk as delegates to attend the convention, was read by the clerk.

The clerk also read a communication from Geo. W. Anderson, county clerk, extending to the board, on behalf of the county of Grundy, an invitation to attend the annual convention of supervisors, county commissioners and county clerks to be held in the city of Morris on October 28, 29 and 30, 1913.

On motion board adjourned until to-morrow morning for committee work.

Wednesday morning, Sept. 10, 1913. Board met this morning at 8 o'clock pursuant to adjournment. Present, the same members of board as on the first day of the session. Absent none.

Backward, turn backward, oh time in your flight, and give us a girl whose skirts are not tight. Give us a girl whose charms, though a few, are not exposed by too much peek-a-boo. Give us a girl, no matter what age, who won't use the streets as a vaudeville stage. Give us a girl not too sharply in view. Dress her in skirts the sun can't shine through.

Christian Church Pastor.

Sunday, October 14, terminated Rev. W. B. Hopper's contract with the Sullivan Christian church. He has done very effectual work, since he took up the work with the congregation. He has worked arduously, patiently, and persevered until every phase of the work is in a good condition.

His sermons have been soul inspiring, instructive and interesting. The Bible is taught clearly and in plain language.

The Bible school with Dr. Bushart, superintendent, and the advisement of Rev. Hopper, is growing.

The prayer meeting is interesting many and the audience is good.

A large endeavor society has been organized.

Every department is enthused and doing excellent work.

Rev. Hopper has been engaged by the congregation again at an increase of $200 in the annual salary. The engagement this time is indefinite, the limit of the time being when either party wishes a change.

A revival meeting will be conducted by Rev. Hopper in the Christian church in October.

It is due Mrs. Hopper to say she is universally liked and respected by the congregation.

1913 GREATEST ILLINOIS FAIR

Will Be Held at Springfield, Ill., October 3 to 11.

WILL ECLIPSE FORMER FAIRS

Much to See and Learn in All Branches of Home and Farm—Exhibits Show Great Variety—Safety and Comfort of Visitors Assured.

The time is fast approaching for the meeting of the Illinois State fair of 1913.

The prospects for this, the greatest of all annual expositions, to eclipse all its former efforts are very promising.

The completion of the great barns in which to house the horses, the sheep and the swine, the greatest of their kind in the country, will be a pleasing surprise, not only for the exhibitors, but the visitors as well.

No addition to the already well equipped plant has made such a showing on the state fair grounds as has these wonderful buildings, not only from an utility standpoint, but from an architectural point as well.

It is with pardonable pride that the Illinois state board of agriculture presents these to the public inspection, and invites every citizen of this state and all other states to the fair of 1913.

There is no class of people who cannot attend it with profit to themselves.

It is the greatest laboratory for the observation and study of the best of its kind, in every department of agriculture and all kindred interests that is to be found in this or any other country.

The labor-saving devices of the world will be there, representatives well schooled in their mechanism and uses, will be there ready to give you any information you may desire.

It is a great post graduate school for the rapid absorption of useful knowledge for the already well educated farmer, as well as primary school for those who have not had the advantage of scientific agricultural education.

Here you may see the finished products from the hands of experts, not only in the products of the soil, in the cereals, the grasses and the tubers, and the cultural plants and flowers, but in the culinary and apary departments and in the textile department, where housewife as well as maiden may revel with pleasure and profit.

One of the greatest exhibitions of the horses, cattle, sheep and swine as well as poultry will be there.

Every labor-saving device that has cheapened the production of the necessities of life, and raised the calling of the agriculturist from a position of drudgery and hard labor, to that of independence and dignity, will be there.

Without the application of modern methods no attractive return can be realized from money and labor invested in farming. But by the application of such knowledge in any of these departments of agriculture no more useful, happy nor profitable vocation can be found.

And it is our desire that every citizen may have the benefit of the object lessons to be learned in this great exposition. It is well worthy of the labor, time and expense. The state board of agriculture urges upon all our people to come and learn.

Visited University of Illinois.

A number of us visited the University of Illinois recently, making the trip in two automobiles. We arrived in Champaign-Urbana at 11 a. m.

We went to the park and ate our lunch in the shade of the trees. We then visited the University grounds. Here are located a number of colleges and many fine buildings. The Illinois Experiment Station is being used in connection with the college of agriculture.

We saw corn, alfalfa and clover growing on experiment plots, each of which had been treated differently. The corn on some plots was of a dark green color while on others it was badly colored.

In another part were the plots on which experiments were being made with alfalfa. Alfalfa which had received no treatment was of a sickly color, small and uneven. The plot on which the best alfalfa was growing, had had crop residues and a cover crop turned under and had received an application of phosphorus and lime. On this plot the alfalfa was about two feet in height, of a dark green color and very heavy.

We also saw plots on which experiments were being carried on with oats, wheat and rye.

We next visited the dairy barn. The record milk and butter-fat producing cows are kept here. Near this the stock judging building is being erected.

The next places visited were the experiment farms south of town. Here are three round barns, two of which have silos in the center. In one of the barns are kept the farm implements and horses. The other two are dairy barns. In the basement are the stalls and feed boxes for the cattle. To the larger barn is joined a shed in which the calves are kept. To this barn are two silos, one in the center and one joining on the outside. These lots are so graded that a team may drive in upon the upper floor of the barn. In the larger of the dairy barns were about one hundred tons of alfalfa hay.

One farm of twenty acres is set apart from the rest as a dairy farm. All that is produced is fed to the dairy cows and no more cows are kept than can be fed on produce grown. The object being to produce as many pounds of milk per acre as possible.

The feed for all of the stock is weighed and a record kept of the amount that each is fed.

The purpose of the Agriculture Experiment Station is to find the best method of farming, and of all the things in any way connected with the farm.

AIRCRAFT LOST IN STORM, 13 DOWN

NEW DIRIGIBLE ZEPPELIN, L-1, STRUCK BY HURRICANE AND WRECKED.

SEVEN AERONAUTS RESCUED

Capt. von Metzling and Lieut. Hanne Among Those Reported Dead—Ship Pounded to Pieces by Wind and Waves.

Berlin.—The worst of the numerous disasters which have overtaken Germany's airship fleet happened when the new navy Zeppelin, L-1 was wrecked while on a voyage from the mainland to Helgoland, 28 miles away. Thirteen of the crew of 20 were drowned. This is the twelfth accident to befall the Zeppelin airships, and the first to be accompanied with loss of life.

According to the incomplete reports which have been received, the big ship floated for about an hour and then buckled in the middle before she sank.

Twenty on Doomed Ship. The officers of the airship were Commander Hanne and Lieutenants Maltzahn, Wendt and Grimm, and Quartermaster Zimmerer and 15 men. Commander Hanne and Capt. von Metzling, who was aboard, are among those reported drowned.

From reports received here it appears the L-1 ran into a storm of hurricane proportions, 18 miles north of Helgoland, which, together with a sudden drop in temperature and the severe cold, caused the gas to condense and the weight of the crew, which was larger than the airship is capable of sustaining in bad weather, forced the ship down into the water where the high waves quickly put the motors out of commission. The ship was completely disabled and the cabins were submerged, so that the men who were in them were caught like rats in a trap.

Torpedo Boats to Rescue. According to other reports, the ship had been cruising at an altitude of 5,000 feet and was theoretically keeping out of gun range of the maneuvering fleet below. This caused a loss of 2,400 cubic meters of gas through condensation by the cold. The crew discharged the water ballast of 1,000 pounds in vain efforts to check the dirigible, but she fell into the water at considerable speed. Torpedo boats rushed out at full speed and found huge waves sweeping over the aluminum frame work of the airship, which had broken in two. Men from the torpedo boats made the life line fast to the exhausted men, of whom seven were rescued.

SENATORS FINALLY VOTE ON TARIFF ACT

PARTY LEADERS REACH FINAL AGREEMENT ON WILSON BILL

MANY CHANGES WERE MADE

Attempts to Restore Duty on Wool and Sugar Are Defeated—Norris in Losing Fight to Amend Income Tax Feature.

Washington.—The senate finally adopted the Democratic tariff bill. Democratic lines in the senate stood solidly against the final onslaught of the tariff fight. With party leaders urging their colleagues on to approval of the bill, the ranks closed up against the anti-free wool and anti-free sugar forces and defeated all amendments to the bill as fast as they came to the vote.

Attempts to restore a duty on raw wool and to raise the duty on woolen manufactured goods made in successive amendments by Senators La Follette, Catron and Penrose, were defeated without the loss of a party vote.

A last stand by the anti-free sugar forces led by Senator Ransdell of Louisiana, Democrat, held the attention of the senate, but the votes of Senators Ransdell and Thornton had been long conceded to the Republicans upon the sugar issue.

Among the amendments defeated was that of Senator Norris for a heavy tax on inheritances. This was beaten, 58 to 12.

Two attempts by Senator La Follette to obtain the adoption of substitutes for the Democratic wool tariff failed by strict party votes.

The debate over the Senator Norris inheritance tax amendment brought strong condemnation from him and from other senators of the alleged laxity with which the taxation and revenue laws deal with large fortunes and incomes.

The Norris amendment was beaten, 57 to 12.

Changes in the bill made by the senate are: Income tax exemptions reduced to $3,000, with allowance of $1,000 for husband or wife and $1,000 for two or more children.

Tax on cotton futures of 50 cents a bale, effective after Sept. 1, 1914.

Cattle and wheat added to free list as well as meats and flour.

Meat importations being required to stand United States inspection.

Bananas taxed one-tenth of a cent a pound.

Brandy fortifying pure sweet wines, heretofore free, taxed $1.10 a gallon.

House anti-dumping provisions requiring goods to be sold in the United States as cheaply as in home state of producers stricken out and the prohibition of convict-made and child labor goods modified.

Creation of a joint committee to revise administration features.

House provisions for a counter-vailing duty on wood pulp stricken out.

Free art provision of house bill made more restrictive.

The average rates of duty cut from 30 per cent in the house to 25 per cent, the free list being vastly extended.

Peters Goes to Congress. Portland, Me.—Speaker John A. Peters of Hillsboro (Rep.) was chosen to fill the vacancy in the Third congressional district by a plurality of 553 over Mayor William A. Pattangall (Dem.) of Waterville, with Edward M. Lawrence of Lubec a poor third in the race.

Attorney Jerome Acquitted. Coaticook, Quebec.—William Travers Jerome was acquitted of the charge of having gambled on the station property of the Grand Trunk railway here while waiting for the immigration authorities to pass on the case of Harry K. Thaw.

Haul Safe in Stolen Wagon. Chicago.—Thieves loaded the 1,200-pound safe of Doehl & Decker, restaurant owners, into a stolen wagon and drove by a police station in taking it away. The safe contained $250.

CENSORS GOWNS OF COEDS

Dean of the University of Illinois issued an Order Forbidding the Slashed Skirt on the Campus.

Champaign.—The slashed skirt on the University of Illinois campus will be restricted, according to the order issued from the offices of the dean of women of that institution. Educators believe many coeds have had vacations at fashionable summer resorts, and that they saw many strange things, including the slashed skirt, draped from the waist and clinging as close as ever. But they cannot come back to their university and spring the styles on the campus unless the skirt has been approved by the board of censorship.

Virden.—Bishop Ryan of Alton made the following appointments in St. Catherine's church in this city: Rev. Father Quinn transferred to Auburn; Rev. Father Dwire, formerly of Jacksonville, in charge at Virden until October 1, and Rev. Father Masterson of New Douglas in charge at Virden after October 1.

Springfield.—Employment agencies in Illinois are no longer guilty of supplying the white slave market, according to Richard J. Knight of Chicago, state inspector of employment agencies. Knight has spent the month, since his appointment to this position by Governor Dunne, in making a thorough investigation of employment agencies in the principal cities of the state, aided by his four deputies.

Chicago.—Meetings of the Illinois senate welfare commission will be resumed in Chicago about October 15. Lieut. Gov. O'Hara, chairman of the commission, announced.

"During the summer there has been opportunity for the 'wheat' to become separated from the 'chaff' of the facts we brought out in our previous hearings," said Mr. O'Hara, "and I believe the public has realized that from our efforts, unscientific as they doubtless were, has come a great deal of good. Closing tango-dancing places, barring tight and performers who mingled with patrons in cabaret restaurants, were direct results of the commission's hearings."

Newman.—Roses Cornwell, twenty-one years old, living in this township, won the trophy as the champion corn raiser of the state of Illinois and the United States. A meeting is to be held in Tuscola soon, attended by Governor Dunne and other state officers, at which the state trophy will be awarded. Mr. Cornwell will hold the trophy until some one improves the record he has made, which is a fraction more than 150 bushels on one acre. The United States board of agriculture gave Mr. Cornwell a diploma designating him as the champion corn grower of the United States.

SEEK RIGHT PATH

With God as Companion, the Highway of Life Will Be Safely Traversed.

We are pilgrims of the broad highway of life. We are going somewhere. Where? Life is not a stroll or promenade. It is not a going out with gay companions to saunter through the meadows of a summer evening. It is a journey having a definite end.

Our relation to or connection with every thing in this life is affected by our knowledge or belief concerning its end.

The interest we take in a visit to friends is affected by the thought of its termination and the parting. If we have a companion upon whom death has set its seal, all our thoughts concerning him are colored by the shadow of the approaching end.

Our conversation and manner toward him are influenced by our knowledge that the end draweth nigh. Were this same friend in buoyant health and vigor, how different would be our thoughts and actions toward him.

The end of things makes a difference about how we feel and act.

If in a journey to some distant point we found our means of conveyance uncomfortable and our companions disagreeable, would it not lessen our concern about the aggravation of the journey? If we knew that at the end we would obtain our heart's greatest desire? Or if, on the other hand, everything connected with the journey was of the most pleasant and delightful nature, the companions those that we loved best, and the country through which we passed the most lovely that eye could feast upon, would not our delight in the journey be diminished, if we knew that at the end we were to meet face to face some great sorrow?

Greatest of All Questions. If we are so sensibly affected by the end or the results of our little earthly journeys, is it not wise to give thought to the direction our steps are tending on the broad highway of life?

Life as a highway is not meant to indicate a road leading in a particular direction. It is a figurative term to denote all the exigencies of human life as a whole in which each individual having no continuing city or permanent abiding place is seeking one to come.

We are of necessity going somewhere and the important query is, where?

Jolomon, the wisest man, thought this an important matter or he would not have said: "Ponder the path of thy feet."

The obvious teaching of the wise man's injunction is that there are paths leading in a wrong direction, and reaching an undesirable end, and that such paths are to be avoided. Ponder, weigh well and reflect and seriously meditate upon the direction in which thy feet are tending. There are many paths. The broad highway of life is but a conjunction of innumerable avenues, along which men, women and children are journeying.

Child of sorrow and tears, ponder well the path of thy feet!

And there are paths of folly and sin—paths of darkness and terror—paths of despair and death. At the beginning some of these paths appear pleasant and inviting and are entered with gaiety and songs—places of amusement and fountains of pleasure are open at every hand, but they are only gilded saloons of folly and vice. The fountains of pleasure become broken cisterns which can hold no water; and the amusements, though they thrill and exhilarate for a time, become like the delirium of fever, that in the end scorches and wastes like fire.

Turn Into Right Path. These are not safe paths, and he who finds himself walking therein should carefully reflect on the end whither they tend and turn his steps therefrom before it is too late.

But in the journey of life there are paths of safety and delight—ways of pleasantness and peace; fountains of honor and hope; avenues of triumph and truth; highways of holiness and happiness.

One of the sweetest and most blessed experiences on the broad highway of life is the meeting with some fellow traveler who proves to be a friend, true, honest, loyal and brave, and whose hand is ever ready in difficult places to aid us or be aided; his voice cheering and comforting us as we walk together either in the sunshine or in the shade.

The way is often long and often we pass through desolate places which call loudly for sympathy and cheer of loving comrades. How blessed are the friendships that cheer us on life's journey.

And there is one friend that every one may have. The friend that sticketh closer than a brother. With him as a companion we cannot mistake the right road, for his feet never trod a wrong way. Take hold of his hand and in due time all your hoping and dreaming will be realized by reaching a glorious beyond.

"Here we have no continuing city, but seek one to come."

Habits to Cultivate. Be frugal, not mean; prudent, not sly; active in business, but not its slave. There are also four other habits which are essentially necessary to the happy management of temporal concerns: these are punctuality, accuracy, steadiness and neatness.—Markham

PREPARING FOR THE FAIR VISITORS

Springfield Commercial Association to Find Rooms.

PLAN INFORMATION BUREAU

Attendance at the Illinois State Exposition This Year is Expected to Be Larger Than Ever Before.

Springfield.—The listing of private houses in which state fair visitors may find rooms with or without board, has already been started by the Springfield Commercial association.

Last year during fair week the information bureau which the commercial association conducted found rooms for from one night to a week for thousands of out-of-town visitors to the fair. A tent was erected in the courthouse park and here the association kept a corps of clerks and boys busy each day and most of each night, the clerks finding in which section of the city the applicants wished to go and explaining the accommodations that could be offered there, and the boys conducting the applications to places it was thought would prove satisfactory. The same plan will be followed this year.

The service is entirely free, both to the persons having rooms to let and to the persons seeking rooms. It is the desire of Secretary Snape of the association that any person who cares to take a roomer or two during the week file their names and addresses at once that the work of tabulating them may be begun. The attendance at the state fair this year is expected to be larger than any other year.

Reports of Charities Body.

The state charities commission in its report for the year 1912, issued, devotes much space, urging reforms in the system of treating mental and nervous diseases.

The commission recommends the establishment in all large centers of population of psychopathic hospitals for the care and treatment of the acute insanities where the commitment shall be purely voluntary.

It favors the present state hospitals being made colonies for the strictly chronic class. By this plan the commission says the man in the first stages will seek hospital care, and a larger number will be cured or prevented from deteriorating into incurables. The medical and scientific service by this method would be centered in the staffs of the psychopathic hospitals, while work of the present state hospitals would be directed towards the re-education and training of the insane in occupations and industries that would retard their degeneration, physically and mentally, and at the same time contribute to their support. Under the present arrangement, the report says, the time of the superintendent and medical staff must of necessity be given to the acute service. They are not fitted or trained in the re-educational work which, while making rapid progress in our institutions, is not all that it would be, if specialized men and women were put in charge of it.

The commission says that the psychopathic hospitals should be equipped to look after the patient after he has gone out a convalescent.

The first hospital of this character should be erected in Cook county. In this recommendation the commission follows those made repeatedly in past years by it and its predecessors, the state board of charities.

The commission again assails the jail system and urges legislation that will give some central authority power to compel changes to make jail buildings safe, well ventilated, free from disease and contaminating influence upon their inmates. The commission asks for the abolition of all fees in connection with the operation of the jail and condemns the present methods of feeding prisoners. "This method of feeding, says the report, should be abolished in the interest of decency, humanity and public economy."

Prisoners should be employed at useful, gainful occupations. Idleness breeds crime in jail as surely as it does outside jail. The penal colony idea meets with favor. It places in the proper environment the man who has been sentenced to serve time for a misdemeanor and separated him from the daily ebb and flow of jail population. The proposition to place such colonies in the country where prisoners may be given a variety of employment has many advocates.

Presentation to F. W. Potter.

Former State Superintendent of Insurance Frew W. Potter received a testimonial of the esteem in which he is held by the employees of the office. The man in the office presented him with a beautiful gold-mounted fountain pen, inscribed with the words: "Fred W. Potter, Insurance Superintendent, 1907-1913." The ladies employed in the office gave Mr. Potter a brass desk clock. Mr. Potter leaves the latter part of September for Chicago, where he takes charge of the Illinois branch of the Association of Legal Reserve Life Insurance companies, with offices in the La Salle hotel.

Puts Convicts on Honor System.

Forty-five convicts, dressed in civilian clothes, boarded an electric car under the state penitentiary walls and started for Dixon, where, for three months, they will be employed on road construction, unguarded and with only their word of honor as assurance that they will not attempt an escape.

T. F. Keegan, who will superintend the road work, and Charles Hardin, who will act as night watchman, were in charge of the men. They left their revolvers and loaded canes in the prison offices. Warden Allen and Deputy Warden Walsh accompanied the "honor prisoners" on the first day of the "outing."

The forty-five who are to inaugurate the new Illinois convict road law were chosen from the good behavior men at the prison. They were up before sunrise, dressed in civilian clothes, made inside the prison walls, and carrying the khaki suits they will wear on the roads, marched in a silent line to the car.

"I told them they could talk and joke all they liked," said Warden Allen, "but it's pretty hard for a man to raise a smile when he's been behind the walls for several years. A few days out of doors will cheer them up."

Tents and camp equipment preceded the convicts to Dixon. Camp will be pitched each night wherever the gang of prisoners find themselves.

Dairies to Be Inspected.

Inspectors under the direction of the state board of health will subject Springfield's outside sources of milk supply to a rigid examination. The state board will make the investigation because the jurisdiction of the city board of health ends at the corporate limits. The examinations will extend to the dairies and farms in several surrounding counties from which local milk men are daily supplied. A mild outbreak of typhoid fever in the city is the specific reason for the inspection.

MAKE GOOD CROQUET GROUND

Really Ideal Foundation Can Be Made by Use of Concrete—Necessitates Much Hard Work.

(By EBEN E. REXFORD.)

Most croquet grounds are anything but satisfactory to the person who takes delight in the game that admits of skillful play. Where the ground is rough as to surface, indefinite as to boundary, and with arches that tip in all directions there is little chance for fine playing.

But on a ground with perfectly level surface, boundary so clearly defined that there can be no chance for dispute in "bringing in the ball" and arches that set so firmly that they cannot be displaced by the impact of a ball and can be depended on as to the amount of resistance they will give to a ball driven against them, the game takes on a new fascination and becomes one of skill.

A really ideal croquet ground can be made by the use of cement. It will necessitate considerable hard work, but the boys who like to play croquet will not let that prevent them from providing themselves with a fine ground if they set about it in earnest.

The first thing to do is to excavate the soil to the depth of about eight inches. Stake out the ground, and go at it as though you meant business. Wheel away the soil as fast as it is dug up. When the excavation is complete mix your concrete for the bottom course.

This should be made of coarse sand or gravel and cement in the proportion of six parts sand to one part cement. Mix the two while dry, and then add water enough to make it of the consistency of soft mud.

Only a small quantity should be mixed at a time, as the mixture "sets" or hardens very rapidly. Apply to the depth of six inches, pounding it down well as you go along.

When you get to the places where the arches are to stand, set iron sockets to receive them in the concrete, letting about an inch and a half extend above it to bring the tops of them even with the finishing coat.

Do not allow the concrete to dry rapidly. Sprinkle frequently, or shade if the sun is hot.

The finishing coat should be made of clear, sharp sand three parts, and one part cement. Mix as for concrete, and use enough water to make it soft enough to run when poured over the first coat. Smooth it with a trowel and level it with a "straight edge," to make sure that there are no inequalities of surface.

These directions, carefully followed, will give you a ground upon which you can "calculate" your play almost as well as the billiard table.

Of course you will have no cushion to reckon with, but there will be ample chance for very skillful playing in a great many ways, and you will find that the game becomes far more attractive than it is possible for it to be when played on the ordinary playground.

In selecting the location for the croquet ground, I would advise having it at one side of the home grounds and somewhat screened from the road or street, as it detracts from the pleasure of it to have it so exposed to the view of the passer-by that it becomes almost public property.

Most croquet grounds and tennis grounds are lacking in one important feature so far as the lookers-on at these games are concerned, and that is comfortable seats provided with shade.

The boys of the family can make seats at very small expense, and not only get much pleasure out of the making of them, but a good deal of good experience in the handling of tools, which will be beneficial in other undertakings.

These seats can be made by setting four posts—preferably cedar, unpeeled—a sufficient depth in the ground to make them firm. I would suggest two feet for the width and six feet for the length.

Let the front post stand about six feet above the ground, and the rear ones about five and a half. This will give a little slope to the roof.

At a convenient height from the ground nail stout strips of wood around the frame-work formed by the poles, on which to make the seat, which can be of boards or slats or canvas.

For the roof of the seats fasten strips of wood to the posts, both lengthwise and crosswise, letting them project at least about a foot or more in all directions so that ample shade may be secured.

Then tack on lath or strips of thin wood in such a manner as to form a support for the vines that will be trained over them.

The best vine to train over these seats is the wild cucumber and the morning glory. Both of these are of very rapid growth and easy culture. By midsummer the plants will have reached the roof and covered it.

HANDY OUTFIT FOR CAMPERS

Materials Needed Are Piece of Canvas, Blanket and Seventy-Five Feet of Strong Sash Cord.

A piece of canvas, unbleached muslin, a blanket, or any other piece of goods, and 75 feet of strong sash cord are all the materials necessary. No sewing is required and the outfit can be erected in a few minutes. It is light and can be carried anywhere, writes V. W. Killick of Los Angeles, Cal., in Popular Mechanics.

Select two trees, or two poles, and tie the end of the rope to one of these; then run the rope around the other three times, draw it taut and rub the end back to the first support and fasten it. Thus two parallel cords at any desired height will be formed between the two supports.

Spread out the cloth on the ground under the two ropes so that the side of the material to form the inner part of the hammock is uppermost. Lift one side of the goods and place the edge over one of the cords far enough to overlap about one-third the entire length of the material. Lift the opposite side and turn its edge over in a like manner and both edges will overlap in the center, as shown in the sketch, which also illustrates the way to make up a stretcher quickly. The weight of the body on the edges causes friction enough to prevent the cloth from slipping.

Two sticks of wood are placed between the parallel ropes at the ends of the cloth to hold them apart as in a hammock. Place a pillow at one end and enter, being careful not to disturb the overlapped edges of the cloth.

After hanging the hammock bed stretch another rope between the supports, about two feet above the parallel lines. A sheet of canvas or waterproof material is thrown over this rope and the hanging edges are weighted or staked to the ground, lines of cord first being attached to the corners. One of the illustrations shows the finished bed and cover.

Typewriter is One Who Typewrites on Typewriter—Second Refers to Miss Betty Botter.

A reader submits this tongue twister:

"Dear Sir: A typewriter is one who typewrites on the typewriter, and the typewriter is a machine on which the typewriter who typewrites on the typewriter typewrites. Now, the typewriter who typewrites on the typewriter until there is no more typewriting to be typewritten by the typewriter on the typewriter on which the typewriter typewrites."

His second, which refers to a young woman called Betty, is as follows:

"Betty Botter bought some butter, but she said this butter's bitter. If I put it in my batter it will make my batter bitter, but a bit o' better butter would make my batter better; so she bought a bit o' better butter than the bitter butter, and it made her bitter better, so 'twas better Betty Botter bought a bit o' better butter."

TABOGA ISLAND PORTO BELLO

1—Remains of One of the Spanish Forts at Porto Bello. 2—Native Village on Taboga Island.

"Down verdure-clad slopes and terracing reaches
Where orange and mango and pineapple grow,
One wanders through Eden to ocean-washed beaches—
An Eden that only the sun-children know."

Thus James S. Gilbert, the late lamented poet of Panama, wrote of Taboga Island. It was so enticing that I determined to be one of the sun-children for a day or two and so steamed away in a little launch twelve miles out into the Pacific to that beauty spot. It is all that Mr. Gilbert called it, and more, and it is no wonder that the sanitarium, established there by the French canal company and reopened by the Americans, is so well patronized. If you are a canal employe—white—and have been ill, the doctor may be kind enough to send you over to Taboga for two weeks to recuperate. If you are a mere visitor you can put up at the unpretentious little hotel conducted by William Jones, the American six-footer who looks like a miner and dances like a cotillon leader. In either case you will be fortunate, for you will find those "verdure-clad slopes" gorgeous with flowers and alive with brilliant birds, and the "ocean-washed beaches," the finest places in the world for a swim.

You can sail about the pretty bays with the native fishermen, or you can climb up the hills where the boys are vociferously driving the kine home to be milked, or you can merely lie in the shade and dream dreams of the Spanish galleons and the buccaners. A more delightful place for rest and the repair of shattered nerves would be hard to find.

Taboga has a history, too, small as it is. De Luque, the second bishop of Panama, looked upon the island, saw that it was good and established there his country residence. In fact he maintained a household there the year round, for, like many another churchman of the old days, he did not adhere closely to the rule of celibacy. His memory is preserved by a bathing place in a stream that runs down the mountain side, called the Bishop's Pool. It was reserved for the use of him and his retinue. Above it is the Family Pool, for women and children, and still higher up is the Pool of the Letters, for the men. The last one derives its name from the inscription "J. P. B., Ohio" carved on a nearby rock. This is a reminder that in 1852 the Fourth Infantry, U. S. A., crossed the isthmus en route for garrison duty in California, having sailed from New York on the United States mail steamer Ohio.

Cholera was prevalent at the time in Panama and the American soldiers and the sailors from the Ohio were attacked by the disease, about eighty of them dying. Some of the sick were left on Taboga Island to recover, and evidently one of them did recover sufficiently to climb up to the bathing pool and leave the record that is a mystery to the native inhabitants of this day. Incidentally U. S. Grant, then a captain, was with the Fourth Infantry on that trip.

If you climb up the hill, following this stream most of the way, you will come to a place at the summit of a pass called Las Cruces. There, set in cement, are three small crosses commemorating the most exciting incident in the island's history. According to a Spanish work written early in the last century, a shipload of Peruvian pirates came sailing up the coast in 1515, and decided Taboga was a good place to loot. They landed and drove the small Spanish garrison out of the village and up the mountain. But in the pass the soldiers rallied, the inhabitants came to their assistance and there, says the chronicler, a most bloody combat raged for hours. Finally the pirates were routed and fled to their ship, leaving three men dead on the field of battle!

The isthmus reeks with history, some of the most interesting passages of which have to do with Porto Bello. But the visitor who goes there with mind full of the mighty fights and great trade of the old Spanish days will be woefully disappointed by the town as it now is. Romance, commerce, everything attractive has fled long ago from that place and Porto Bello is nothing but a dirty, immoral little village, full of low cantinas, slatternly natives and mangy curs. At each side of the town is the ruin of a Spanish fort, its picturesque marred by fishermen's nets and the local washing hung up to dry.

Thus the work of man has decayed, but Nature is as kind as ever to Porto Bello. Its bottle-shaped harbor is one of the prettiest to be found, with promontories guarding the entrance, beautiful hills on both sides and entrancing little rivers meandering down from the mountains and through the jungle into its upper end. One hill opposite the town boasts the remains of three unusually interesting Spanish forts. One is at the water's edge, another several hundred yards up the slope, and these two were once connected by a covered stone stairway the ruins of which still provide the easiest means of ascending. On the summit of the hill is the third fort, a mighty square tower surrounded by a deep moat. The walls are almost intact but the roof has fallen in and the fortress is full of trees and shrubbery.

With these three forts, two others protecting the harbor entrance, the two at the ends of the town and another just above it, Porto Bello might well seem to have been impregnable, yet it was taken twice by the English. Sir Francis Drake planned to capture it in 1596, but just as his ships were about to begin the attack Drake died and was buried in the mouth of the harbor. Dispirited by the loss of their leader, the English sailed away, but Capt. William Parker took up the project in 1602. With two ships he got past the first forts at night and after a desperate fight captured and sacked the city, carrying off 10,000 ducts' worth of plunder.

The second taking of Porto Bello was the first notable exploit of Henry Morgan, the famous buccaneer, as an independent commander of a fleet. Sailing into what is now Colon harbor, he took his men up a river in canoes, landed at a place called Estera Longa Lemos and marching through the jungle, attacked the city from the rear. First capturing the castle above the town, he shut the garrison in one room and blew them and the fort to pieces with gunpowder. The governor, the citizens and the rest of the soldiers, surprised and terror-stricken, were soon driven into one of the other forts and for hours they bravely withstood the assaults of the buccaneers until, as Esquemeling tells us, Captain Morgan began to despair of the whole success of the enterprise. Finally he had a number of ladders made and forced the priests and nuns whom he had captured to set them up against the walls. Many of these poor creatures were killed by the defenders, but at last the ladders were placed and the buccaneers swarmed up them carrying fireballs and pots of powder which they kindled and hurled among the Spaniards. The garrison surrendered at discretion, but the gallant governor defended himself so obstinately that the English were forced to kill him. Morgan remained in Porto Bello several weeks, plundering the place and torturing the citizens to induce them to reveal the hiding places of their riches.

Though an important place in the transshipment of gold from the west coast of South America, Porto Bello never was a large town, but for several weeks each year it was very populous. This was at the time of the annual fair, when the galleons from Spain were in the harbor waiting for the mule trains to bring the gold from Panama. Then merchants and adventurers from all that part of the world gathered in the village and trade was brisk in the big building now called the custom house, whose ruined walls still are standing. Merchandising, drinking and fighting divided the time until the galleons set sail for Spain with their golden cargoes.

The Cure for Appendicitis was not Accidentally Discovered.

The treatment for the cure of APPENDICITIS and other INTERNAL DISEASES formulated and perfected years ago by Dr. G. F. Dougherty, of Neoga, Ill., was not an accident.

It is a cure for APPENDICITIS gradually worked out by the use of chemical formulas. It is the chemical blending of certain medicinal agents into compatible compounds in such a form and quantity until a cure is perfected for APPENDICITIS and other INTERNAL DISEASES.

His extraordinary chemical findings for this unusual procedure in the treatment of APPENDICITIS has awakened much medical interest. Many physicians are sending to him patients not only for APPENDICITIS, but also for his treatment for STOMACH, LIVER and BOWEL DISEASES, as well as gall stone conditions.

After a series of chemical and clinical researches covering a long period of years in the chemical laboratories, he was able to announce the results of his labors, which has made a startling impression in the medical circles. It will no doubt have a good influence in retarding the often unnecessary surgical procedures of today.

Years ago he was able to cure this old disease (APPENDICITIS) now under a new name. His cure for appendicitis has long been tested by hundreds of patients in Central Illinois and in adjoining states. More than 300 patients have recently tested the merits of this cure and are spreading its worth, while patients continue to come from various parts of the country.

Dr. Dougherty has been in the present location all his professional life. He does not travel. 35 years ago he laid the foundation for this treatment. He has his own laboratory and is fully equipped with all modern inventions for the examination and diagnosis of Internal Diseases.

He has his Special Chemist, Microscopist and Pathologist, and after an exhaustive examination, if your case proves to be APPENDICITIS, or some other Internal Disease, you receive your treatment and return home and take the cure. You must secure a date before coming. Many dates are taken in advance.—Exchange.
