

Augustine OPTICIAN Quits Sullivan

We have recently made important additions to our eye-testing equipment. We can not bring this equipment to Sullivan and we ask you to come to our home offices in Decatur, where for more than 18 years we have been fitting good eye glasses.

NO TRAVELING OPTICIAN
Can serve you as well, here in Sullivan, as we can in Decatur, because of lack of proper equipment to make a really scientific test.

Be prudent, and see us in Decatur.

Underground Water for Farm Use

"Underground Waters for Farm Use," a popular report of the United States Geological Survey, has again been reprinted to meet the wide demand from all farming and suburban sections of the country. A copy can now be obtained free, on application to the Director, United States Geological Survey, Washington, D. C.

This Water Supply Paper (No. 255) explains in simple language the habits of flow of underground waters through different kinds of rocks and soils, and calls attention to the dangerous character of many wells whose waters are supposed to be pure and wholesome. Water from limestone rock especially, it is stated, is apt to contain germs of typhoid or other disease, due to the fact that surface waters may find their way directly into underground channels which have been cut out through the dissolution of the lime.

Methods of protection from sub-surface drainage in farming districts are discussed in the report, well-drilling methods and cost, types of cubs and well casings with which wells should be fitted, etc. The report embraces only about 50 pages, but is well illustrated with photographs and diagrams.

Modern Photography.

Your family and friends want pictures of you as they are accustomed to see you—pictures with your natural, conventional expression.

Such portraits are a pleasure for us to make and for you to have made. Drop in and have a chat—you will hardly know you are being photographed. This is modern photography—the result is a natural, intimate likeness.

We also have one of the few Cirkut cameras in this part of Illinois; there is never a group too large for us to photograph.

Ask to see some of the Cirkut pictures.

SUPERVISORS SELECTIONS

The Roads as Planned by the Board Met Approval of Citizens

The Moultrie county board of supervisors at an adjourned meeting completed the selection of the line of proposed 92 miles of state aid good roads to be built through Moultrie county.

These lines of proposed good roads will all start from Sullivan and extend north, east, south and west from the city through the county. One line will start at the north end of Worth street and extend north and to Lovington, thence to the county line near Hammond. This perhaps will be the first state aid good road to be built.

Another line beginning at the city limits seven miles to the Shelby Co. line. These two roads running north and south will directly connect Hammond, Lovington, Sullivan and Windsor, and at the county line on the north near Hammond, this road will connect with state aid good road through Piatt county, and on the south at the Shelby county line it will connect with a similar road through Shelby county.

Another line of road will extend through the south part of the county connecting Gays and Mattoon on the east with Windsor on the west, where it will connect with a road running south from Sullivan and will thus connect Sullivan with Terre Haute, Paris, Charleston and Mattoon on the east and with Shelbyville and on to St. Louis on the west.

A third line will commence at the foot of the hard road east of Sullivan near the Masonic home, and extend southeast to Arthur and the Piatt county line.

A fourth road will begin at the foot of Jackson street on the west and extend west from Sullivan past the county line and west to two miles south of Bethany. Here this road will branch, one leading into Bethany, and the other running west to the Macon county line.

Besides these roads running out from Sullivan other short lines will extend between Arthur and Lovington, on to Lake City connecting with the short line to Dalton City.

These complete the number of miles required for Moultrie county and by careful calculation, at the present rate, it will require 46 years to complete the building of all these proposed lines, but most of them will be completed in much less time.

F. I. C. Club Meeting.

The Friends in Council were entertained by Mrs. B. F. Pedro in her home Monday afternoon. This was the first meeting of the club for the year and was president's day. An interesting program, consisting of readings and music was rendered, after which refreshments were served by Mrs. Pedro, the president of the club. Mrs. Carrie Smyser of Los Angeles, California, one of the original organizers of the club delivered a very interesting address.

Miss Lu'a Clark, of Kirksville, furnished the music and Mrs. J. A. Sabin gave the reading.

Birthday Dinner.

Thursday, Oct. 2nd, being the birthday of both Mrs. A. H. Witherup and sister-in-law, Mrs. A. T. Jenkins, Mrs. Jenkins' daughters planned to celebrate both anniversaries together. Miss Freda Jenkins assisted by Mrs. Roscoe Poland, prepared a 6 o'clock dinner at the Jenkins home. Those present were:

A. T. Jenkins and wife, Mrs. A. H. Witherup, Miss Freda Jenkins, Mrs. Roscoe Poland, Mr. and Mrs. Z. B. Whitfield and three sons, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jenkins and two sons, and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Jenkins.

Both ladies received several presents. A pleasant evening was spent.

To The Voters of Moultrie Co.

At the request of a number of voters, I announce as a candidate for sheriff of Moultrie county on the Progressive ticket to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the late Warren M. Fleming.

I have never before asked for office and I will abide willingly by the decision of the voters.

Yours Respectfully
SCOTT HARRIS.

Sullivan High School.

We publish this week a list of the pupils that are coming from the rural districts and nearby villages to attend the Sullivan high school for the ensuing year.

The young people are working hard and seem more enthused than ever with the work this year.

The high school started out with an enrollment of 25 higher than last year.

Superintendent Finley commands the respect of the pupils and patrons, and his success is being highly commended.

The superintendent is courteous and pleasant, his quiet unassuming way is affecting the children, and the boisterousness is no longer so annoying. Children are good critics; as the teacher, so is the school.

Rhodes Scholarship at Oxford

President Edmund J. James of the University of Illinois, announces that an examination for an Oxford Rhodes scholarship will be held Tuesday, October 14, and Wednesday, October 15, 1913, at the Northwestern Building, corner of Lake and Dearborn streets, Chicago.

A Rhodes scholarship is appointed for a period of three years and receives the sum of fifteen hundred dollars each year. A Rhodes scholarship at Oxford is therefore a prize of greater money value than any scholarship or fellowship at any American university.

The candidates for a Rhodes scholarship must be an unmarried male citizen of the United States with at least five years residence; must by the first of October 1913 have passed his eighteenth but not his twenty-fourth birthday; and must have completed at least his freshman year at some recognized degree-granting university or college.

Candidates are expected to send written application at once to President Edmund J. James, Urbana, Illinois. All candidates will register in person between eight and ten a. m. October 14, at the place of examination. The examination will begin at ten a. m.

Birthday Surprise

Sunday, Oct. 5, being W. T. Murray's 64th birthday, the children had a surprise on him. All were present but one, Earl, of Decatur. Those present were:

C. E. Murray and family of near Bruce; W. F. Murray and family of near Sullivan; John Richardson and family of Decatur; Mrs. Earl Murray and children of Decatur; C. R. Murray and wife of Decatur and three at home, Hugh, Elmer and Gertrude. There were 12 grandchildren present, six boys and six girls.

Mr. Murray received several nice presents and all enjoyed a feast at the noon hour.

Apple Prospects.

Members of the horticultural department of the University of Illinois think that the orchard yields in Illinois for this year will equal that of last year in spite of the extreme dry weather that has prevailed throughout the state. This is the third successive year that Illinois has had a good apple crop and this, too, is a remarkable fact. The early apples were better this year than those of last year, while winter apples are perhaps not quite so good, but on the whole the prospects are that the present crop will equal if not exceed that of last year.

Birchfield House.

Mrs. Sarah Bean, Phillips has purchased the Birchfield House. It has been repaired, repainted and refurnished with new furnishings. Persons wishing board, meals, rooms, or board and rooms will find everything in first class order and good service. Give her a trial. A splendid place for farmers to get their dinners when in town.

OBITUARIES.

ISAAC NEWTON GIBBS.
N. Gibbs died in Mattoon Saturday at the age of 73 years and 7 months. His death was due to cancer of the bowels. He had been in failing health several months, but was not in a serious condition until Wednesday of last week.

He was married to Sarah Elizabeth Munson, daughter of J. H. Munson, December 11, 1862. They were the parents of one daughter, who died in infancy.

Mr. Gibbs conducted a livery barn in Mattoon a number of years and was extensively engaged in buying and shipping horses and mules. Mr. and Mrs. Gibbs celebrated their golden wedding last December.

He is survived by his wife one brother and one sister.

The funeral was held in the Presbyterian church in Mattoon, Monday at 10 a. m. The remains were interred in Dodge Grove cemetery.

MRS. ROBERT HUDSON

Nancy L. Bragg was born November 18, 1871, in Moultrie county, Illinois. She lived with her parents, Lewis and Martha Bragg on the farm. In September, 1889 she was united in marriage to R. W. Hudson. Of this union there are five living children, three boys and two girls, Grover, Robert, Effie, Leonard, and Frank. In September 1898 she, with her husband, joined the Christian church at Wilburn Creek, and was baptized by Rev. L. N. Lovejoy. She has an affectionate wife, a true helpmate to her husband, a kind and loving mother, whose chief aim was to bring her children up in the way they should go. The last two years of her life she was sick most of the time. The last day she was able to be up was the sixth day of July. She has been suffering patiently and died October 4th, 1913, at St. Mary's hospital in Decatur. She leaves a husband and five children, her mother and two brothers to mourn her loss.

To the Voters.

The fact that the duties of the office of sheriff makes it impossible for me to see personally all the voters of the county, does not mean that I do not wish to have the nomination for sheriff, but in getting the witnesses for circuit court and attending to the office of sheriff I will not have the time to see each voter personally; to those I am unable to see, I wish to state that I feel that I should have the nomination for sheriff because of the fact that I have or will have given by the time a successor is elected and qualified about three and one-half months time, I will have learned the duties of the office and will be able to handle the business of the office for the short term. The salary of the coroner is $11.00 for each inquest held. The salary of sheriff is $1200 per year. In my term as coroner the office has paid me about $400 for 3 years, so for salary considerations, if no other, I want the office for it pays more in one year than the office of coroner would pay in 3 terms of 4 years each. My resignation as coroner and the holding of an election to elect a successor does not add one penny to the cost of holding an election for sheriff so I feel free to ask the voters for their support. There will be no favoritism or partiality shown in case of my election but the office will be run absolutely free and untrammelled of any boss, bosses, set or cliques. I respectfully submit my candidacy and ask your support.

Dr. O. M. Williamson.

Dr. O. M. Williamson authorizes us to announce, this week, his candidacy for the nomination for the short term for coroner of Moultrie county, subject to the decision of the democratic party at the primary set for November 12, 1913.

Dr. O. M. Williamson came a stranger to Moultrie county four years ago. Since coming here he has established a good practice and gained many friends. He is in every way well adapted to the office he aspires to. If nominated and elected he will make a good officer.

Neoga Physician Does Great Work

The citizens of Neoga and surrounding country are justly proud of the labors of Dr. G. F. Dougherty, their fellow townsman, who, after years in investigation and scientific study of the therapeutic action of remedies, was able to blend those agents and formulate a perfect system of internal medicine by which the cure of appendicitis is assured. We are sure that after a very careful examination the patient receives his treatment, returns to his home and is not confined for weeks to his bed.

Hundreds of cures have been made in and near Neoga. Hundreds coming, others are writing for his treatment, while many are asking him to visit their homes in various parts of the state. The latter request he is unable to grant as his time is fully taken.

Dr. Dougherty is a reliable physician, having resided in Neoga, Ill., for the last 35 years. He has a very extensive practice and is considered the leading physician in this part of the state.—Shelbyville Democrat.

Mattoon, Ill., March 12, 1912.

I had been suffering with appendicitis for two or three years and had been advised to have an operation performed. I heard of Dr. G. F. Dougherty, of Neoga, Ill. I consulted him; after a very thorough examination he gave me his treatment. I returned home. After taking two months I was cured and have had no return of trouble. I can fully recommend Dr. Dougherty's treatment.

FRAN

BY JOHN BRECKENRIDGE ELLIS

SYNOPSIS.

Fran arrives at Hamilton, Gregory's home in Littleburg, but finds him absent conducting the choir at a camp meeting. She repairs thither in search of him, laughs during the service and is asked to leave. Abbott Ashton, superintendent of schools, escorts Fran from the tent. He tells her Gregory is a wealthy man, deeply interested in charity work, and a pillar of the church. Ashton becomes greatly interested in Fran and while taking leave of her, holds her hand and is seen by Sophira Clinton, sister of Robert Clinton, chairman of the school board. Fran tells Gregory she wants a home with him. Grace Neils, Gregory's private secretary, takes a violent dislike to Fran and advises her to go away at once. Fran hints at a twenty-year-old secret and Gregory in agitation asks Grace to leave the room. Fran relates the story of how Gregory married a young girl at Springfield while attending college and then deserted her. Fran is the child of that marriage. Gregory had married his present wife three years before the death of Fran's mother. Fran takes a liking to Mrs. Gregory. Gregory explains that Fran is the daughter of a very dear friend who is dead. Fran agrees to the story. Mrs. Gregory insists on her making her home with them and takes Fran into her arms. It is decided that Fran must go to school. Grace shows persistent interest in Gregory's story of his dead friend and hints that Fran may be an impostor. Fran declares that the secretary must go. Grace begins nagging tactics in an effort to drive Fran from the Gregory home, but Mrs. Gregory, standing in her friendship, Fran is ordered before Superintendent Ashton to be punished for insubordination in school. Chairman Clinton is present. The affair ends in Fran leaving the school in company of the two men to the amusement of the scandal-mongers of the town. Ashton, while taking a walk alone at midnight, finds Fran on a bridge telling her fortune by cards. She tells Abbott that she is the famous lion tamer, Fran Noire. She tried to secure life and sought a home. Grace tells of seeing Fran come home after midnight with a man, the names of which she does not give and surprises the rest from Abbott.

unjust light. She isn't to be judged like other people."

"Oh," murmured Grace, "then you think there is more than one standard of right? I don't. There's one God and one right. No, I cannot consent; what might satisfy Mrs. Gregory might not seem best to me. No, professor, if you feel that you cannot explain what I saw, last night, I shall feel obliged to tell Mr. Gregory as soon as the choir practice ends."

"Didn't Fran refuse to tell?" Abbott temporized.

"Yes," was the skillful response; "but her reticence must have been to save you, for the girl never seems ashamed of anything she does. I imagine she hated to get you into trouble."

"Miss Grace, you have heard Mrs. Gregory say that she trusts me—and she is Fran's guardian. I ask you to do the same."

"I must consider my conscience." That answer closed all argument.

"You had better tell her," said Mrs. Gregory, "for she is determined to know."

"I was taking a walk to rest my mind," Abbott said slowly, proceeding as if he would have liked to fight his ground inch by inch, "and it was rather late. I was strolling about Littleburg. At last I found myself at the new bridge that leads to the camp-meeting grounds, when ahead of me, there was—I saw Fran. I was much surprised to find her out there, alone."

"I can understand that," said Mrs. Gregory, "for I should have been surprised myself."

Mrs. Gregory turned upon Grace. "Let him go on!" she said with a flash that petrified the secretary.

"When I came up to the bridge, she was sitting there, with some cards—all alone. She had some superstition about trying fortunes on a new bridge at midnight, and that explains the lateness of the hour. So I persuaded her to come home, and that is all."

Mrs. Gregory breathed with relief. "What an odd little darling!" she murmured, smiling.

"What kind of fortune was she telling?" Grace asked.

"Whatever kind the new bridge would give her."

"Oh, then the cards stood for people, didn't they? And the card you dropped in the yard was your card, of course."

"Of course."

"And did Fran have a card to represent herself, perhaps?"

"I have told you the story," said Abbott, rising.

"That means she did. Then she wanted to know if you and she would."

Mrs. Gregory, I have always felt that Fran has deceived us about her age! She is older than she pretends to be!"

"I believe this concludes our bargain," said Abbott, rising.

Mrs. Gregory was calm. "Miss Grace, Fran told me long ago that she is eighteen years old; she came as a little girl, because she thought we would take her in more readily, if we believed her a mere child."

"Does Mr. Gregory know that?"

"I haven't told him; I don't know whether Fran has or not."

"You haven't told him!" Grace was speechless. "You knew it, and haven't told him? What ought I to do?"

"You ought to keep your promise," Abbott retorted hotly.

"Sitting on that bridge at midnight, alone, telling people's fortunes by cards. Professor Ashton—Mrs. Gregory!" Grace exclaimed, with one of those flashes of inspiration peculiar to her sex, "that Fran is a show-girl!"

Mrs. Gregory rose, and spoke through her mother's ear-trumpet: "Shall we go home, now?"

"That Fran," repeated Grace, "is a show-girl! She is eighteen or nineteen years old, and she is a show-girl!"

"Wouldn't it be best for you to ask her?"

"Ask her? Her? No, I ask you!" "Let me push the chair," said Abbott, stepping to Mrs. Gregory's side. He read in the troubled face that she had known this secret, also.

CHAPTER XIII.

Alliance With Abbott.

For the most part, that was a silent walk to Hamilton Gregory's. Abbott Ashton pushed the wheel-chair, and it was only Mrs. Jefferson, ignorant of what had taken place, who commented on the bright moon, and the relief of rose-scented breezes after the musty auditorium of Walnut Street church.

"They were bent and determined on Fran going to choir practice," the old lady told Abbott, "so Lucy and I went along to encourage her, for they say she has a fine voice, and they want all the good singing they can have at Uncle Tobe Fuller's funeral. I despise big doings at funerals, but I expect to go, and as I can't hear the solos, nor the preacher working up feelings, all I'll have to do will be to sit and look at the coffin."

"Mother," said Mrs. Gregory, "you are not cheerful tonight."

"No," the other responded, "I think it's from sitting so long by the White Sepulcher."

Mrs. Gregory spoke into the trumpet, with real distress—"Mother, mother! Abbott won't understand you; he doesn't know you are using a figure of speech."

"Yes," said the old lady, "number thirteen, if there's anything unlucky in figures."

Abbott effected diversion. "Mrs. Gregory, I'm glad Miss Noir agreed to say nothing about her discoveries, for the only harm in them is what people might imagine. I was pretty uneasy, at first, of course I knew that if she felt she ought to tell it, she would. I never knew anybody so conscientious."

There was a pause, then Mrs. Gregory responded, "She will not tell."

Abbott had seen them safely into the house, and had reached the gate on his departure, when Fran came running up. In pleased surprise he opened the gate for her, but she stopped in the outside shadow, and he paused within the yard.

"Fran!" he exclaimed with pleasure. "Is the practice ended?"

"She made no response."

"Fran, what's the matter?" Silence.

Abbott was both perplexed and hurt. "Remember what we said on the new bridge," he urged; "we're friends while we're together and after we part!"

"Somebody ought to burn that new bridge," said Fran, in a muffled tone; "it's no good making wishes come true."

"Why do you say that? Aren't we the best of friends?"

Fran collected herself, and spoke with cool distinctness: "I have a pretty hard fight, Mr. Ashton, and it's necessary to know who's on my side, and who isn't. I may not come out ahead; but I'm not going to lose out from taking a foe for a friend."

"Which you will kindly explain?"

"You are Grace Noir's friend—that explains it."

"I am your friend, too, Fran."

"My friend, too!" she echoed bitterly. "Oh, thanks—also!"

Abbott came through the gate, and tried to read her face. "Does the fact that I am her friend condemn me?"

"No—just classifies you. You couldn't be her friend if you were not a mirror in which she sees herself, her conscience is so sure, that she hasn't use for anything but a faithful reflector of her opinions."

"Her friends are mere puppets, it appears," Abbott said, smiling. "But that's rather to her credit, isn't it?"

Would you mind to explain your imagination of her character?"

His jesting tone made her impatient. "I don't think her character has ever had a chance to develop; she's too fixed on thinking herself what she isn't. Her opinion of what she ought to be is so sure, that she has never discovered what she really is. And you can't possibly hold a secret from her, if you're her friend; she takes it from you as one snatches a toy from a little child."

Abbott was still amused. "Has she emptied me of all she wants?"

"Yes. You have given her strong weapons against me, and you may be sure she'll use them to her advantage."

"Fran, step back into the light—let me see your face; are you in earnest? Your eyes are smoldering—Oh, Fran, those eyes! What weapons have I given her?"

Fran set her back against the fence, and looked at him darkly. "The secret of my age, and the secret of my past."

"I told her neither."

"As soon as you and Mrs. Gregory wheeled away Mrs. Jefferson," said Fran, "I went right down from the choir loft, and straight over to her. I looked her in the eye, and I asked what you had been telling about me. Why, you told her everything, even that I was trying to find out whether you and I would ever—would ever get married! I might as well say it, it came out enough from her—and you told! Nobody else knew. And you dropped your King of Hearts over the fence—you told her that! And when we were standing there at the gate, you even tried—but no, I'll leave you and Mrs. Gregory to discuss such subjects. Here we are at the same gate, but I guess there's not much danger, now!"

"Fran!" cried Abbott, with burning cheeks, "I didn't tell her, upon my honor I didn't. I had to admit dropping the card, to keep her from thinking you out here at midnight with a stranger. She saw us in the shadow, and guessed—that other. I didn't tell her anything about your age. I didn't mention the carnival company."

Fran's concentrated tones grew milder: "But Mrs. Gregory has known about the show all this time. She would die before she'd tell on me."

"I never told, Fran. I'm not going to say that again; but you shall believe me."

"Of course, Abbott. But it just proves what I said, about her emptying her friends, about taking their secrets from them even without their knowing she's doing it. I said to her, sharp and quick, 'What have you been saying about me, Miss Noir?' She said—I understand from Professor Ashton that you are not a young girl at all, but a masquerader of at least eighteen years. I answered—'Being a masquerader of at least thirty-five, you should have found that out, yourself.' I hardly think she's thirty-five; it wasn't a fair blow, but you have to fight Indians in the brush. Then your friend said, 'Professor Ashton informs me that you are a circus-girl. Don't you think you've strayed too far from the tent?' she asked. I said—'Oh, I brought the show with me; Professor Ashton is my advance advertising agent.' Then she said that if I'd leave, Mr. Gregory need never know."

"The more reason for getting rid of her."

that I'm an impostor. But I told her no tickets are going to be returned. I said—'This show absolutely takes place, rain or shine.'"

"Fran," said Abbott in distress, "I want to talk this over—come here in the yard where you're not so conspicuous."

"Show-girls ought to be conspicuous. No, sir, I stay right here in the glaring moonlight. It doesn't call for darkness to tell me anything that is on your mind, Professor."

"Fran, you can't hold me responsible for what Mrs. Gregory guessed. I tell you, she guessed everything. I was trying to defend you—suddenly she saw through it all. I don't know how it was—maybe Mrs. Gregory can explain, as she's a woman. You shall not deem me capable of adding an atom to your difficulties. You shall feel that I'm your friend while we're together and after we part. You must believe me when I tell you that I need your smile." His voice trembled with sudden tenderness.

She looked at him searchingly, then her face relaxed to the eve of revolution. "Who have you been trying to get a glimpse of, all the times you parade the street in front of our house?"

Abbott declared, "You!" In mute appeal he held out his hand.

"You're a weak brother, but here—And she slipped her hand into his. "If she'd been in conversation with me, I wouldn't have let her have any presents. It takes talent to keep from telling what you know, but genius to keep the other fellow from guessing. What I hate about it, is, that the very next time you fall into her hands, you'll be at her mercy. If I told you a scheme I've been devising, she'd take it from you in broad daylight. She can always prove she's right, because she has the verse for it—and to deny her is to deny inspiration. And if she had her way—she thinks I'm a sort of dissipation—there'd be a national prohibition of Fran."

"If there were a national prohibition of Fran, I'd be the first to smuggle you in somehow, little Nonpareil. Isn't it something for me to have taken you on trust as I have, from the very beginning?"

His brown eyes were so earnest that Fran stepped into the shadow. "It's more than something, Abbott. Your trust is about all I have. It's just like me to be wanting more than I have. I'm going to confide in you my scheme. Let's talk it over in whispers." They put their heads together.

"Tomorrow, Grace Noir is going to the city with Bob Clinton to select music for the choir—he doesn't know any more about music than poor Uncle Tobe Fuller, but you see, he's still alive. It will be the first day she's been off the place since I came. While she's away, I mean to make my grand effort."

"At what, Little Wonder?"

"At driving her away for good. I'm going to offer myself as secretary, and with her out of sight, I'm hoping to win the day."

"But she's been his secretary for five years—is it reasonable he'd give her up? And would it be honorable for you to work against her in that way? Besides, Fran, she is really necessary to Mr. Gregory's great charity enterprises."

"The more reason for getting rid of her."

MAKES HARD WORK HARDER

A bad back makes a day's work twice as hard. Backache usually comes from weak kidneys, and if backaches, dizziness or urinary disorders are added, don't wait—get help before the kidney disease takes a grip—before dropsy, gravel or Bright's disease sets in. Doan's Kidney Pills have brought new life and new strength to thousands of working men and women. Used and recommended the world over.

AN ELMER CASE

Q. I. Farmed, 1123 Sixth Ave., Chicago, Ill., says: "My business required me to travel and the constant use of my back and kidneys was a terrible backache and was often laid up for months. I couldn't turn in bed without pain. I lost flesh. Three doctors treated me, but I got no relief. Finally I took Doan's Kidney Pills and five boxes cured me. I have since enjoyed good health."

Over a cigarette and an iced drink at the Knickerbock club in New York a certain clubman said to a friend the other day:
"Well, where did you spend the summer?"
"Bad Nauheim," was the reply.
"And you?"
"Naughty Newport," he answered.

Carbine for Cavalry.
A proposition to convert the new Springfield rifle into a carbine for the use of the mounted service is being considered by the ordnance officers of the army. The plan is to shorten the barrel of the rifle four inches, and by so doing to reduce its weight by two pounds, thus making it much easier to handle by the mounted troops. The sights also are to be adjusted to meet the shortening of the barrel. The decrease in the muzzle velocity, it is claimed, will not be so great as to interfere with its effectiveness up to a range of 1,500 yards. The ordnance department had been asked to make a report on the proposition, and the cavalry board will take it up and include it in its report on the reorganization of the cavalry and on the new equipment.

"Oh," Grace exclaimed, disagreeably surprised. "I did not know that you play cards, Professor Ashton. Do you also attend the dances? Surely you haven't been dancing and playing cards very long?"

"Not for a great while," responded Abbott, with the obstinacy of a good conscience wrongfully accused.

"Only since Fran came, I am sure," she said, feeling him escaping. She looked at him with something like scorn, inspired by righteous indignation that such as he could be influenced by Fran. That look wrought havoc with the halo he had so long bloated at, as it swung above her head.

"Does that mean," he inquired, with a steady look, "that you imagine Fran has led me into bad habits?"

"I trust the habits are not fixed," rather contemptuously. "I hardly think you mean to desert the church, and lose your position at school, for the sake of—of that Fran."

"I hardly think so, either," returned Abbott. "And now I'd better go to my school work."

"Fran is imprudent," said Mrs. Gregory, in distress, "but her heart is pure gold. I don't know what all this means, but when I have had a talk with her—"

"Don't go, Professor Ashton," interposed Grace, as he started up, "until you advise me. Shall I tell Mr. Gregory? Or shall I conceal it on the assurance that it will never happen again?"

Abbott seated himself with sudden genuineness. "Conceal it, Miss Grace, conceal it!" he urged.

"If you will frankly explain what happened—here before Mrs. Gregory, so she can have the real truth, we will never betray the secret. But if you cannot tell everything, I shall feel it my duty—I don't know how Mrs. Gregory feels about it—but I must tell Mr. Gregory."

"I would rather wait," said Mrs. Gregory, "and talk to Fran. She will promise me anything. I trust you, Abbott; I know you would never lead my little girl into wrong-doing. Leave it all to me. I will have a good talk with Fran."

"And," said Abbott eagerly, "if we both solemnly promise—"

Grace bit her lip. His "we" condemned him.

"I don't ask you to hide the affair on my account," he said, holding up his head. "I don't want Fran put in an

NEWS OF ILLINOIS

ITEMS OF GENERAL STATE INTEREST FRESH FROM THE TELEGRAPH.

YOUNG WOMEN FIGHT BLAZE Girls Form Bucket Brigade in Winnebago and Save Business District From Being Destroyed by Fire.

Rockford.—A bucket brigade of young women saved the business district of Winnebago, near here, from being destroyed by fire. The fire was confined to two buildings by the exertion of practically the entire male population, who were kept supplied with buckets of water by lines of women. The Rockford fire fighting apparatus made a ten-mile cross-country run and arrived in time to aid in saving the town.

Pontiac.—William Tock, prominent Dwight citizen, was run down about two and half miles north of Dwight by the auto in which he had been riding and instantly killed. Tock with George Hollenback and John Hahn were returning from Wilmington in auto, the party were stopped by tire trouble. Tock left party purposing to walk into Dwight. Completing repairs party resumed trip unknowingly running down Tock in highway. His body was found later by a farmer passing by.

Chicago.—Archbishop Quigley was guest of honor and principal speaker at a meeting of La Salle general assembly, Knights of Columbus, which was held at Hotel La Salle under the auspices of members of the fourth degree. The archbishop has been chosen as the special director of the pope at the church extension session of the Catholic church to be held at Boston October 19, and the work of this meeting and its results in church work was discussed by the archbishop.

Joliet.—Because he gave up his boyish ambition to go to the city and become a stenographer after graduating from a business college, Werner Kremler, aged twenty-one, of Jackson township, became owner of a 100-acre farm costing $37,000. Kremler increased the yield of his father's farm 40 per cent. last year through scientific methods and received all profits over the previous year. His father then gave him the balance to make the purchase.

Springfield.—Wards confined in the eighteen state charitable institutions no longer will be paraded for the edification of the idle curious or exploited as an attraction for Sunday excursionists. Under a rule put into effect by the state board of administration the strictest guard will be maintained at all state charitable institutions to keep out all who are not directly interested in the welfare of the inmates.

Springfield.—A man's hat, brought up on the elevator from the shale bin at the plant of the Springfield Paving Brick company, led to an investigation which resulted in the finding of the body of John Moline, an employe of the plant, in the bin. It is not known when or how Moline happened to fall into the bin, but he had been dead several hours. He died of suffocation. Moline was twenty years old and unmarried.

Xenia.—The annual reunion of the old soldiers was held here with a large attendance. Postmaster John H. Henson of this city made the address of welcome. Benson Wood of Effingham and State's Attorney Thomas S. Williams of Louisville made addresses. Col. Randolph Smith of Flora and other speakers addressed the old soldiers.

Pontiac.—Dale Rawlins, a reformatory inmate who has been considered a trusty, escaped. Rawlins with other trusties, was painting the superintendent's house. While Officer Francis, in charge of the prisoners, was on the opposite side of the residence Rawlins disappeared. He had only been an inmate at the reformatory for two months.

Belleville.—Rev. Father Anthony Kuhls, pastor of St. Ignatius' Catholic church at Paderborn, fourteen miles from Belleville, was driving an automobile near the Illinois Central station in Belleville when his machine struck a man. The man threw an arm about the lamp and saved himself from being run over.

Taylorville.—Thomas Jefferson Minnie and Olive Mason were married in this county sixty-one years ago. They have lived ever since in Christian county. One year ago they celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary at the home of their son, Joe Minnie, in South Fork township.

Joliet.—John Kraft, indicted on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of Herman Muhstfeld, appeared before the grand jury and was released under $5,000 bonds.

Joliet.—J. C. O'Connell pleaded guilty before Judge Cooper in the circuit court here and was sentenced from one to twenty years in prison.

Joliet.—Explosion at the new Joliet plant of the Coal Products company, which furnishes gas to Joliet, Aurora, Elgin and 30 other nearby cities wrecked one of the large coal holders and forced nearly a hundred workmen to run for safety to nearby hills. Forty-five minutes after the fire had started in overheated hopper and mounted to the coal holder, the big structure 150 feet high, tumbled down on the ovens. At the first shout of alarm, Joe Dougherty, master mechanic, cut the belt that feeds the coal, thereby saving much property and many lives.

God Appointed Labor for the Training of the Individual in Morals.

Let us consider the moral uses of work. It acquaints man with nature, and gives him a liberal education. Man's knowledge of himself and the world in which he lives, comes from his work. Working with the soil for food, man discovered the beginning of agriculture. Working with a forked stick, he invented his plow. Carrying his burden across the rivers, he thought out his boat. Stopping under his load, he mastered the horse, and made him bear his burden. Working with wild roots, man found the grape and apple. Working in stones, he wrought out his house. All the fine arts, all the knowledge, came from the daily task. It is work that instructs man and disciplines him in the great university of daily life. There is a culture to be found in the school of toil.

Work Means Training. God has appointed work for the training of the individual in morals. Men speak of business as a sphere of temptation and testing; but it is also a drill room in which youth may be taught all the fundamental moral qualities. Our Lord himself was trained for his mission as a great religious teacher in a handicraft. He became the world's greatest reformer, and his preparatory school was a carpenter shop. He developed all the root moral qualities that blossomed into the higher spiritualities in the years of his toil, until the age of thirty. In his association with men he developed sympathy with them; and an exquisite gentleness and tenderness toward poor and weak. The beginning of power over men is in sensitiveness and sympathy. Influence is possibly only from personal experience of the failings, privileges, ambitions, disappointments, and successes of our fellow-men. No self-centered man can develop sympathy with his fellow. To break down the walls of prejudice and develop a knowledge of one's self and one's companions, is to develop the primary moral qualities essential to the highest character. God enters every child in the school of work, that he may become a Christian.

Tasks Are as We Make Them. Nothing is more certain than that we make our task beautiful or menial by the spirit we put into it. There are two ways in which a house may be approached. The contractor's view is one, and the owner's view is another. The builder toils for his money. He has no particular enthusiasm for the structure, ever thinking of the gold named as his wage. How different the owner's attitude! To him the walls and ceilings are as the walls of heaven. They are covered with pure ideals, holy affections, and the solemn love and prayer that happiness and beauty will fill that home. There is no decorator like the heart. The soul can breathe the spirit of beauty into any task. Remember how Fra Angelico painted upon his knees, and borrowed a divine luster for his canvas. Remember how Milton, lifting his sightless eyes towards the sky, saw the heavens open, and Christ standing at the right hand of God; and from his vision brought a splendor to his solemn poem. The time has come when we must practice the art of carrying our work up to the higher spiritual level. Once, when the cathedral was dedicated, the priests fell upon their knees in solemn worship. In the future we shall learn to enter a shop or store or factory in the spirit of the reverence of our great Master, who said, "My Father worketh hitherto, and I work." We shall then know what it is to be diligent in business, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord.—Rev. A. H. Lucas, D.D.

Afflictions Appointed. "He performeth the thing that is appointed for me."—Job 23:14. The trials of time were appointed in eternity. He that chose us into eternal life, ordained the path by which we were to reach it. Nothing ever happens to us by chance. Our little trials, our great troubles, our heavy crosses, and our painful losses, are all a part of God's plan. Nor were they appointed for us merely in the exercise of divine sovereignty, but because our God saw them to be necessary, and intended to make them real blessings to us. Every cross is a mercy, every loss a gain, every trouble a covenant blessing, every trial a seed of joy. We shall be better in future for what we suffer now. If we sow in tears, we shall reap in joy. A wet spring will introduce a glorious harvest. Many of our present tears will crystallize into pearls, and will be an ornament to us in glory. And not only so, but the same love that ordained our trials, ordained our strength to bear them.—Rev. Jos. Smith.

Good Deed Will Flourish. We can furnish nothing in this life, but we may make a beginning and beneath a noble example. Thus character is the true antiseptic of society—the good deed leaves an indelible stamp; it lives on and on, and while the frame moulders and disappears, the great worker lives forever in the memory of his. "Death," says the philosopher, "is a co-mingling of Eternity with Time. In the death of a good man, Eternity is seen looking through Time."—Samuel Smiles.

WOMAN A GREAT SUFFERER

Talk How She Was Restored To Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Grayville, Ill.—"I was a great sufferer of female complaints for a year and I got nothing that helped me until I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was irregular and had cramps so bad that I had to go to bed. Now I have better health than I have had for years and I cannot speak too highly of your medicine."—Mrs. JESSIE SCHAEF, 415 Main St., Grayville, Ill.

Case of Mrs. Tully. Chicago, Ill.—"I take pleasure in writing to thank you for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I suffered with such awful periodic pains, and had a displacement, and received no benefit from the doctors. I was advised to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and am now as well as ever."—Mrs. WILLIAM TULLY, 2032 Ogden Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Worms Know Her Song. Mrs. B. A. Hitchcock of Canaan, an officer of the Litchfield County Equal Franchise league, has made the following statement in a letter to a local newspaper:

"I tamed half a dozen angle dogs or worms, and got them so that they would come up out of the earth and eat out of my hand. I fed them pumpkins and bran mash, but they thrive best on sauerkraut. It took me some time to tame them so that they knew my knock on the earth above them from the tap of an old hen's bill. I rap softly three times and whistle 'Oh, Promise Me,' and up come the angleworms. One day I discovered that the biggest, fattest angleworm was cross-eyed."—Winsted (Conn.) Dispatch to the New York World.

RASH ITCHED AND BURNED

400 South Hermitage Ave., Chicago, Ill.—"I was attacked with a breaking out on the inside of my arms. It was a small rash or pimples and it itched and burned, especially at night, so that before I knew it I had made myself sore. I had to wear the finest kind of cotton underwear, no woolen at all, because the least thing irritated it and made it much worse. The rash itched and smarted until at times I got no sleep at all. "I had this trouble and took treatments for about one year, but they only gave me relief while taking them. Then I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and I got relief right away. In three months I was a well man again." (Signed) H. W. Foley, Nov. 5, 1912. Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."—Adv.

Unanswerable. Simeon Ford, New York's well-known humorist, said whimsically the other day, apropos of the death of J. Pierpont Morgan: "We learn from Mr. Morgan's life that wealth does not bring happiness. We know already that poverty doesn't bring it, either. What on earth then is a man to do?"—Argonaut.

LOSING APPETITE FOR NUTS

Writer Remembers the Passing of the Ancient Fondness That Made Winter Evenings a Joy.

The old butternut, a very rich and fragrant nut of the olden time, has almost disappeared. Very few people of the present generation have ever tasted a butternut. The black walnut is becoming fewer, and in a generation hence it will hardly be known. And yet it is a precious nut, full of goodness and rare taste. Those old pans of cracked walnuts, in the long winter evenings, made up a family joy that has never been surpassed. The hickory nuts, especially the good old shellbarks, figured prominently in those nutty days, and the chestnuts, too, including the hazel nuts and beech nuts; but they are all growing scarcer, and have sadly strayed away from the human heart.

The pecan is becoming the great American nut. There are thousands of trees cultivated in the south, and the nut has become commercially important. Trees are reported bearing $200 to $500 worth of nuts per acre. It is a rich nut, but quite too hard for the novice to pick out the kernels. There are, however, machines that do the work perfectly. But, after all, for rich, well-flavored and grand mouthfuls of nuts, give us the English walnut.—Ohio State Journal.

KEEP THEIR HEADS STEADY

Australian Statesman Asserts Women Prevent Conditions of Political Turbulence.

The prime minister of Australia, where the women have suffrage on equal terms with men, was interviewed while on a visit to London on the results of woman suffrage in his country. He is quoted as saying:

"Women's suffrage steadies political feeling. In democratic countries turbulence is always a danger. Well, in a time of political excitement men will let themselves loose. Women won't. They don't want hysterics. They don't want earthquakes. They are the domestic economists, and they have to calculate the needs of their households pretty closely every week. This is why economic questions are more carefully studied now and why you get steadier, more sober, more wholesome opinion on all questions connected with the home."

Possibly no stronger conclusion can be deduced from the eleven years' experience of woman suffrage in Australia than the fact that its national parliament, by unanimous vote, adopted a resolution declaring its entire success and calling upon the parliament of Great Britain to enfranchise women.—New York Evening Post.

Against a Stone Wall. "My poor man, you are the picture of dejection," sympathetically declared the prison visitor. "And a framed picture, at that," added the convict.—Buffalo Express.

Every line in a newspaper costs its publisher something. If it is to benefit some individual, he may fairly expect to pay something. You do not go into a grocery store and ask the proprietor to hand you out ten pounds of sugar for nothing, even though the grocer may be a personal friend and even though the gift might not be a large one.

If the beneficiary of advertising does not pay for it, the proprietor has to settle the bill. Nevertheless many people cannot seem to learn that a newspaper pays its expenses by renting space, and that it is just as much entitled to collect rent for every day that space is occupied as you are for a house you rent to a tenant.

Most newspapers expect to treat religious and philanthropic enterprises liberally, yet in spite of this, many of these enterprises expect the newspapers to give them space rent free, while they carry their job printing to some other shop. The place for them to look for support is the place they patronize.

A man riding in a caboose was thrown violently against the stove and had the bridge of his nose broken. He sued the railroad company for $2,000 damages and for interfering with the symmetry and utility of the aforesaid nose. The company put in a counter-claim of $2,000 for surgical services, claiming that the nose was more symmetrical after being broken than before, and proved this by many witnesses. The man then claimed that he could not sneeze without crying after being hurt, but again the company put in a counter-claim that the man was an auctioneer and that the louder he cried the more pay he could get for his services. The man then claimed that when he blew his nose it whistled so that he scared the horses on the streets; whereupon the jury gave him a verdict of $1 and recommended the railroad company to let him whistle for the dollar.

By GENE SHEAR.

"I heard you calling your son Joseph early this morning," remarked Mrs. Bottin, taking a chair in the kitchen, "and I want to say that if he is as hard to get out of bed as my Oscar I don't envy you your job."

"Hard!" echoed Mrs. Flunkitt, wearily. "Hard! I only hope the neighbors on the next street don't hear me calling him. Why, actually, I'm almost afraid at times to go up to his room to pull him out of bed, for fear I'll find he's given up the ghost completely. I can't see some mornings how any person could fail to notice the noise I make unless he was dead."

"We ought to have it like a woman who lived in my home town," said Mrs. Bottin, reminiscingly. "That mother certainly was one lucky woman! Her name was Siler."

"The Silers lived in a little four-room cottage—all on one floor, with the attic extending over the whole—and there was a mighty big family of 'em, too. There didn't seem to be room for all the young ones downstairs, so they laid boards on the rafters, or joists, or whatever you call 'em, and made beds for two or three of the boys up in the attic."

"Their oldest boy, Peter, slept up there, and he was a sleepy head if ever there was one."

"You went up into that attic by a ladder in a closet in the middle room, and in the summer Peter always kept his cot closest to that ladder. But when winter came along he moved right over the kitchen. He didn't mind the racket of getting breakfast for such a mob of youngsters; he could have slept serenely through a fire, a flood and an earthquake all in one. His mother used to have her hands full—she couldn't climb that ladder to yank him out of bed as easily as you do your Joseph.

"One winter morning Peter hopped out of bed, late, as usual, and put his foot down between two boards that had slipped apart, so he punched a hole through the kitchen ceiling. His mother asked him and asked him to fix the hole, which spoiled the ceiling, but neither Peter nor his father ever seemed to find the time."

"One morning Mrs. Siler had an idea; it occurred to her after a full hour of trying to get Peter to get out of bed and come down and eat his breakfast so that he might not be late again in going to work."

"After everybody was gone that morning Peter's mother went in and managed somehow to climb the ladder into the attic. There she moved Peter's cot directly over the hole he had made."

"Next morning she called the young man once, then again, and then the third time. Peter didn't make the slightest sound. Then his mother went and got the broom, climbed up on a chair and began to poke with the broom handle at the bottom of Peter's bed. It was only a cot bed, you remember, and so it was too thin to protect him from that sort of attack. At about the fourth or fifth poke Peter yelled like a Comanche Indian and leaped out of bed. In three minutes he was downstairs, too."

"From that time on it was never very much of a job to get Peter up in the morning. A few pokes would do it nicely. Peter did move the cot away from the hole, but his mother went up into the attic and nailed the legs of the cot down, so it had to stay over the hole."

"Then Peter tried to take the beds that belonged to the other boys, but they combined against him and stopped that. Then he wanted to fix the hole, but his mother told him that the only way she'd have it fixed would be to have it framed so that the ragged edges wouldn't show quite so bad."

"Peter didn't care particularly for that sort of treatment, but he saw it would be no use to argue with Mrs. Siler; she was so determined. He took to getting up bright and early every morning, rain or shine, and when he got to being first at the store his boss liked it so well he raised Peter's wages."

"Hum!" said Mrs. Flunkitt, enviously. "I wish some would come an earthquake or something and make a hole under my Joe's bed."

HOME TOWN HELPS

CITIES LAID OUT BY EXPERTS

Plans Made for the Future as Well as the Present, by Men Whose Life Work It Is.

As an organized art, city planning is a new thing. It had its birth in the last generation, when mills, factories, and workshops threatened with extinction the life, health, and beauty of the towns, writes Frederick G. Howe in Harper's Magazine. Like the city itself, it is a product of the industrial revolution. It is a by-product of machine industry and steam transportation. Individual rulers planned capital cities in ancient Babylon, Greece, and Rome, as did the merchant princes of the medieval Italian and Hanseatic towns. Paris was planned in a commanding way by Louis XIV, who laid its present foundations. The first and third Napoleons projected great boulevards and avenues, beautified the banks of the Seine with embankments and bridges, erected monuments, arches, and open spaces, and made Paris the capital of the modern world. The kings of Bavaria and Saxony laid out Munich and Dresden in the same big-visioned way.

These cities were the individual creations of ambitious rulers, eager to give expression to their power. Modern city planning is a democratic movement, although it found its first organized expression in monarchical Germany, in which country, in a few years' time, it has attained the rank of a profession. Today there is scarcely a large town in Germany that is not being built according to an official plan, worked out by experts trained to the profession and often after competition. They plan the city from center to circumference, and for future generations rather than for today.

RURAL SECTIONS LAG BEHIND

Writer Makes Statement That Conditions in Cities Are Better Than in the Country.

Forty years ago the American city was regarded as hopeless. Crowded tenements, dirty alleys, haunts of vice and cesspools of disease were accepted as inevitable results of dense populations. Epidemics were expected and when they came and killed their thousands they were looked upon as necessary evils. But science found the microbes and the civic conscience found the joy in public service.

Thus in a third of a century a miracle was wrought and today the city shows up better in the health and sanity and defective statistics than the country. The pressing problems of better living are found in the rural sections. There is much to do in the way of sanitation and ventilation, of pure water and more sunshine. There is a noble gain to be made in giving more variety and interest to country life. The lonesomeness can be changed and the change means a wonderful uplift in the average of the new generation.

Of course, the cities are far from perfection—but they are also far from their conditions of 40 years ago, and city people have seen and learned. Soon they will be scattered throughout the rural regions. Why not take with them a purpose to use their knowledge wisely?—Philadelphia Ledger.

Improving Village Life.

A writer in the Survey discovers the average village to be a fruitful field for investigation leading to improvement in administration, health, sanitation, social conditions, physical conditions and so on. After summing up the various lacks in village life he makes a suggestion for betterment that offers some possible measure of relief. "Cannot the state organize its villages," he inquires, "strive into active life, make them keep awake, clean and efficient? Cannot each commonwealth standardize village improvement in all particulars—create a village reference bureau if need be? Inasmuch as the village is the recruiting station for the city, the earlier the state teaches its citizens the modern lessons of efficient and enlightened self-government and progressive social action, the easier will be the task when the larger units of government are concerned. And the gain will be that of all the citizens of the state, even those of the entire nation."

Habit of Kissing.

Kissing is out of style. Nobody does it now but sweethearts, young children and teachers. The first blow was struck by the medical profession. In families where proper respect is paid to hygiene children are cautioned against promiscuous kissing, according to Health Culture.

In society a woman is not kissed twice in a season. When an old friend is greeted and she advances with her lips the victim turns her face, and the carous falls askance. Possibly the very woman who is opposed to the practice takes the initiative, but her lips never meet lips.

She may kiss within a fraction of your mouth—kiss your chin, your cheek or your forehead; kiss your eyes into raptures, or kiss your hair—but she has no day training, socially, she will never kiss your mouth.

PRODUCE FOR MARKET

Several Important Points in Proper Preparation.

Farmer Never Loses by Honestly Packed Farm Truck—Each Package Should Be Filled With the Same Grade Throughout.

(By A. B. SHAW.)

Packing is equally as important as any of the other operations involved in the preparation of fruits and vegetables for market. There are several important points in connection with this work worthy of consideration, probably the most important of which is honesty. "Every grower's pack should be as good as his bond." Customers want honestly packed goods and they are usually willing to pay good prices for them. A grower never loses by placing honestly packed produce on any market, be it at home or abroad.

Each package should be filled with the same grade throughout. If this is done the top may be "faced." "Facing" is the arrangement of from one to three layers of fruit on the top, thus increasing the attractiveness of the package. This is an honest and perfectly legitimate practice provided the entire contents are fruits of the same grade as those placed on top. "Seconds" and inferior grades should never be "faced" with "prime" specimens. "There is neither cash or character in this practice." A few seconds or culls scattered in with a lot of fancy specimens gives the buyer an opportunity to discriminate against the whole package and ruins the reputation of the grower as an honest packer.

Produce should be cool and dry before being packed. Heat and moisture promote decay. Conditions of this kind should be guarded against, for decay means loss. Allow all fruit and vegetables to cool in the packing house, and have them dry before packing. They will keep longer and present a better appearance at the time of sale if handled in this way. So much of the success in marketing farm products depends upon the packing, that growers cannot be too particular in seeing that this work is done in such a way as to show their produce to best advantage when put on sale. While it is of the utmost importance that each package be filled with the same grade throughout, it is equally as important that it be done carefully. With the softer varieties of fruit and vegetables, such as peaches, plums, tomatoes and egg plant, that are usually put in small packages, each specimen should be placed by hand. This not only makes the pack more attractive, but it lessens the liability of damages resulting from bruises. Produce of a firm nature, as apples, potatoes, etc., will not bruise so readily, and as a result it is not so necessary to handle each individual specimen in packing.

SUMMER RATION FOR HORSES

Feeding Ear or Shelled Corn Would Be More Desirable Than Grinding—One Good Combination.

If corn must be fed to the horses, grinding it will not pay, unless the horses have poor teeth, in which case it might be advisable. Feeding the ear or shelled corn would be the more desirable method of feeding.

Crushed corn and cob meal is not as good because of the cost of crushing, and the amount of food value secured from the cob is so small that it does not make up for the energy required to digest so much crude fiber.

A combination of corn, bran and a little oil meal make a good summer ration for horses. Feeding a 1,000-pound horse about ten pounds of corn and three pounds of bran per day would be equivalent to 14 pounds of oats, although it contains a little more carbohydrates and less protein, thus making a little wider ration. A small amount of oil meal would offset this, however.

Bulky Food for Hens.

Hens need bulky food. Clover or alfalfa hay cut in half inch lengths helps to make an ideal ration. If cooked and mixed with bran it makes an excellent breakfast. Clover and alfalfa not only promote digestion but also largely assist in supplying the elements necessary for the albumen.

Can Handle Hogs.

The dairyman can handle hogs to splendid advantage. That's one reason why he is able to make such a good profit. It is due to the side lines.

Rest for Horses.

Unless the farm horses have a chance for proper rest at night they soon become weak and lose weight.

'THE ROAD OF GOOD SERVICE'

The Cure for Appendicitis was not Accidentally Discovered.

The treatment for the cure of APPENDICITIS and other INTERNAL DISEASES formulated and perfected years ago by Dr. G. F. Dougherty, of Neoga, Ill., was not an accident.

It is a cure for APPENDICITIS gradually worked out by the use of chemical formulas. It is the chemical blending of certain medicinal agents into compatible compounds in such a form and quantity until a cure is perfected for APPENDICITIS and other INTERNAL DISEASES.

His extraordinary chemical findings for this unusual procedure in the treatment of APPENDICITIS has awakened much medical interest. Many physicians are sending to him patients not only for his cure for APPENDICITIS, but also for his treatment for STOMACH, LIVER and BOWEL DISEASES, as well as gall stone conditions.

After a series of chemical and clinical researches covering a long period of years in the chemical laboratories, he was able to announce the results of his labors, which has made a startling impression in the medical circles. It will no doubt have a good influence in retarding the often unnecessary surgical procedures of today.

Years ago he was able to cure this old disease (APPENDICITIS) now under a new name. His cure for appendicitis has long been tested by hundreds of patients in Central Illinois and in adjoining states. More than 300 patients have recently tested the merits of this cure and are spreading its worth, while patients continue to come from various parts of the country.

Dr. Dougherty has been in the present location all his professional life. He does not travel. 35 years ago he laid the foundation for this treatment. He has his own laboratory and is fully equipped with all modern inventions for the examination and diagnosis of Internal Diseases.

He has his Special Chemist, Microscopist and Pathologist, and after an exhaustive examination, if your case proves to be APPENDICITIS, or some other Internal Disease, you receive your treatment and return home and take the cure. You must secure a date before coming. Many dates are taken in advance.—Exchange.—Adv.

AROUND THE COUNTY

Chico. Mrs. Ruth Curry visited in Chicago this week. Ernest Higdon, of Eureka, filled Rev. Zerby's appointment at the Christian church, Sunday. The ladies of the M. E. church gave a chicken fry, Saturday night. They cleared $15.00. Mrs. Lawrence Hamilton and children returned home, Monday, after a week's visit in Decatur. Robert Custer and wife spent Sunday with E. C. Harrison and wife. Mrs. John Bolin is on the sick list. Newt Standford and wife of St. Elmo intend to move in with J. C. Mallory and keep house for him. Wm. Jackson and wife are visiting in St. Louis this week. Ray Wallace attended the State Fair, Wednesday and Thursday. George Kimbrough and wife, spent Friday with Homer Boyds. Miss Josie Hortensine entertained the young ladies Bible class of the Christian church, Saturday afternoon. There were about twenty present. All reported a good time. Ward Garrett and family visited their uncle, A. F. Burwell and family, in Springfield, part of this week and attended the State Fair. Avoid Sedative Cough Medicines. If you want to contribute directly to the occurrence of capillary bronchitis and pneumonia use cough medicines that contain codine, morphine, heroin and other sedatives when you have a cough or cold. An expectorant like Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is what is needed. That cleans out the culture base or breeding places for the germs of pneumonia and other germ diseases. That is why pneumonia never results from a cold when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is used. It has a world wide reputation for its cure. It contains no morphine or other sedative. For sale by Sam B. Hall and all dealers. Adv.

Allenville. Mrs. May Glover of Mattoon is visiting her mother, Mrs. Maggie Martin, this week. Fred Sosa and family visited at N. S. Legrande's, over Sunday. A. T. Shafer and son, Aaron, are laying the brick work for H. H. Hoskins' store. J. B. Tabor and wife were shopping in Mattoon, Monday. John Christy and wife are spending this week at the state fair. Mrs. H. H. Hoskins and son, Ralph, and Mrs. Amanda Burwell, were Sullivan visitors, Saturday. Chronic Dyspepsia. The following unsolicited testimonial should certainly be sufficient to give hope and courage to persons afflicted with chronic dyspepsia: "I have been a chronic dyspeptic for years, and of all the medicines I have taken, Chamberlain's Tablets have done me more good than anything else," says W. G. Mattison, No. 7 Sherman St., Hornellville, N. Y. For sale by Sam B. Hall and all dealers. Adv.

Elsie Hilliard visited, Saturday night, with Goldie Marshall. Mrs. Grover Graven returned, Saturday of last week, from a weeks visit with her sister's family, Rev. Peas at Towerhill. Charley Clark and family of Findlay, spent Friday and Saturday with D. Bolin and wife. There will be a chicken fry Saturday night at the U. S. church. Everybody is cordially invited. John Bragg and family and Will Ray and wife, of Cushman, attended the funeral of Mrs. Nancy Hudson, Monday. Geo. Monroe, Mrs. Martha Bragg and son, Ed, E. Short and wife and Mrs. Lizzie Hampton of Sullivan; Dave Hiller and wife, and Abe Hiller and family of Bethany, attended the funeral of Mrs. Hudson. Wednesday, October 1st being the thirty-seventh birthday of James Pearce, thirty-five of his friends gave him a complete surprise by arriving at his home en masse at 5:30 with baskets of victuals for a sumptuous supper, James Pearce and Walter Henderson went hunting on that particular evening and arriving home ate found that his wife's plans for a surprise on him had materialized before he was aware of the fact that another year had rolled by. James did not feel well next day. It is a question whether it was the hunting expedition, surprise or indigestion that caused him to feel indisposed. TAKE IT IN TIME Just as Scores of Sullivan People Have Done Before. Waiting doesn't pay. If you neglect kidney troubles, urinary troubles often follow. Act in time by curing the kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills are especially for weakened kidneys. Many people in this locality recommend them. Here's one Arcola case. Mrs. John Stevens, S. Oak St., Arcola, Ill., says: "I suffered for a year or more from a severe pain in my left side just over my hip. I had attacks of dizziness and was devoid of energy and ambition. The kidney secretions were unnatural and I did not sleep well. As time passed, I got worse, but did not know the exact cause of the suffering. One day I read about Doan's Kidney Pills and decided to give them a trial. I got a box. By the time I had taken half the contents, I was greatly relieved and I continued to improve. Two and a half boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills completely cured me. During the past three years I have been entirely free from kidney complaint. I publicly recommended Doan's Kidney Pills when they cured me and many people who have seen my statement have questioned me about my experience. I have always praised Doan's Kidney Pills."
