AUGUSTINE'S

Optical Methods are in strict accordance with the latest developments in Optical Science.

Why Take Chances

With the traveling optician, who cannot carry the suitable equipment for properly testing your eyes?

COME TO AUGUSTINE, for 15 years Doctor's Leading Optician. His glasses will please you. His factory, on the premises, insures prompt deliveries.

MR. RUSSELL H. OPLINGER will be pleased to meet his old Sullivan friends.

The Youth's Companion in 1914.

Seven college presidents and a number of college instructors, including ex-President Taft, will contribute to the Youth's Companion during 1914.

Then there is Gene Stratton Porter, whose stories of Indiana woods and swamps have made her famous, and Kate Douglas Wiggin, who never wrote a dull line in her life, and Mrs. Burton Harrison, who remembers when conversation was really an art as practiced in Washington and in the manor house of Virginia. And this is just a beginning of the list.

If you know the Companion, you have a pretty clear idea of what is in store for next year's readers. If you do not know, ask us to send you sample copies—for instance, those containing the opening chapters of Arthur Stanwood Pierce's fine serial, "His Father's Son." Full announcement for 1914 will be sent with the sample copies.

For the year's subscription of $2.00 there is included The Companion Practical Home Calendar for 1914, and all the issues of the paper for the remaining weeks of 1913, dating from the time the subscription is received.

Phenomenal Work by Specialist.

His cure for appendicitis without an operation has long ago proved a success. Many patients in Mattoon and surrounding country have proved the worth of his cure. Patients from all parts of the country are going to Dr. G. F. Dougherty, Neoga, Ill., this specialist does not travel. His time is fully taken in his office. You must secure a date. Many dates are taken in advance.

The following is one of the many hundred testimonials on file in his office.

Effingham, Ill., Oct. 10, 1912.
Dr. G. F. Dougherty,
Neoga, Illinois,
Dear Doctor:

Mother is feeling fine, eats good, sleeps good, and looks good in the face; she can not feel that trouble in her side. Her side does not hurt her any more. Will she need another month's treatment, if so can you send it by mail or must she come? If you want her to come say what day she can see you. Please answer at once.

Scientific Problems.

"Much energy is not utilized. There ought to be some way of conserving the rays of the sun."

"Yes; and look at all the energy that goes to waste in chewing gum. If we could only harness the gum chewers, eh?"

Quick Composition.

Bishop Heber, while on a visit to his father-in-law, Dean Stanley, wrote "From Greenland's Icy Mountains," in fifteen minutes, making only one correction, the change of "savage" for "heathens" in the second verse.

SPECIAL ELECTION

Sheriff and Coroner to be Chosen Next Tuesday.

An important election will be held in Moultrie county, Tuesday, December 2. A sheriff and coroner are to be elected for the special term. The unexpired time to be filled is one year.

It is very important that every voter attend the election. Much depends on the issue.

Moultrie county needs a sheriff that is not afraid to break into any place of ill repute. Dr. Scarborough has done good work for the county, while he has served as sheriff, and there is no doubt but what he will continue breaking up the evils that have beset the town and community.

Politics must be cleaned, political leaders will come from the best classes of people, if the voters will take an interest in public affairs and acquaint themselves with the men asking for public offices.

Why go to the expense of calling a special grand jury and holding court if the indicted are not convicted and punished?

It is each voter's business to study the conditions, and know the candidate. The democratic party is today trying to eliminate some so-called democrats from the party. It will take clean politics to overcome some of the wretched conditions.

Our officials today have cornered some of the rottenness that has been going on in our town. Scarborough and his deputies are working along the right course; give them a chance to show what they can do.

Be at the polls next Tuesday; do not neglect your duty.

President Waters on The Chicago Stock Show.

President H. J. Waters of the Kansas Agricultural College, on a recent occasion expressed himself as follows:

"The International Live Stock Exposition, which will this year be held from November 29th to December 6, is the court of last resort in all matters pertaining to the improvement of live stock. It is the place where all controversies regarding superior merit are settled for the year, and as such contributes more to live stock improvement than any other single agency in America. As an object lesson it is unequalled on the continent. As a means of awakening interest in improved live stock, it and similar shows are indispensable. It is liberal education in live stock production for any farmer, breeder or student to attend the International."

Ornamental Street Lights.

The village of Keewatin, Minn., with a population of but seven hundred, has one of the handsomest systems of ornamental street lighting to be found anywhere. It is believed that this is the smallest installation of ornamental street lighting. The progress spirit in this little town as evidenced by the installation of a Great White Way in its business section is to be heartily commended. Twenty powerful lamps of ornamental luminous arc type, have been installed on alternate sides of the main street, making that thoroughfare almost as light as day.

Circuit Court.

The following cases have recently been filed on the circuit court docket for the March term of court:

J. R. Bean vs. Edward Cooley. Distress for rent.

Craig Bros. vs. T. F. Harris. Appeal from J. P. court.

John T. Gilmore vs. Bert and Dolce Harrington. Confession in transcript.

B. W. Hoskins vs. Walter C. Bean. Appeal.

Minnie D. Riley vs. Edward C. Pyatt. Trespass on the case.

Myra Thompson vs. John Glorious. Partition.

A LAST WORD.

To The Voters.

I take this method of soliciting the support of all voters regardless of party affiliations in behalf of my candidacy for sheriff at the election, Tuesday, December 2, 1913.

Probably I have not had the opportunity of having a personal talk with you, if so it has been because the duties of the office at this time would not permit taking the time. To those I have not seen I ask your support. The "gang" are after me to a man and will leave nothing undone to defeat me. I let me urge all who believe in the enforcement of the law without favor to go to the polls and vote and in return I pledge my office to a continuation of the work for a cleaner and better Moultrie county and city of Sullivan.

All sorts of stories and means are being used to defeat me but I wish to say that there can be no compromise between the "gang" and myself, that the fight must and will go on till they or I one are down and out. Again let me urge all good people to go vote and not only vote but work for Scarborough for sheriff. Very Respectfully

Birthday Party.

Mrs. Mattie Harris entertained a number of small girls Monday evening in honor of her little granddaughter, Media, it being her fourth birthday. Little Miss Media is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Harris.

The guests were: Nellie Witt, Carmine Harris, Helen and Edward Newbold, Berates Lawson, Roger Wood, Margaret Cummins, Leonis George, Robert David, Grace Flynn, Agnes Wright and Faye Horn.

The party was entertained from 3 to 4 p. m. Light refreshments were served after which they departed for their homes.

Resentment.

"I hope," said the terrier, deferentially, "that you are not going mad," "No," replied the collie; "I'm not mad, I am merely indignant at this custom of calling each summer's 'silly season' the 'dog days.'"

Mother's Meeting.

The mothers of the Union school district met last Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock and with the assistance of Mrs. Lilly K. Lewis, organized a mother's class.

The officers are: President, Mrs. Mand Bean; vice president, Mrs. Ruth Powell; secretary, Mrs. Perseus Wood.

There are thirty-six pupils enrolled in this school. The teacher is Miss Agnes Morrison, of Dalton City. She is a student of the Millikin University. It is the intention of this club to benefit the school, and aid the teacher.

Football Game.

Two Sullivan teams played football on Poland's field Thanksgiving afternoon. Persons who attended and capable of judging say it was one of the best games they have witnessed for sometime.

Mack Booze and Clyde Patterson were the umpires.

The opposing teams were as follows:

Cody, Drog, Hill, Martin, Wolf, Harsh, Wolf, Huff, Poland, Miller, David.

Against: Wolf, Woods, Burns, Pifer, Poland, Smith, Gaddis, Poland, Mattox, W. Martin, Murphy.

Farmers, Attention.

I have made arrangements by which I can loan money on farm lands at five per cent interest. In the present condition of the money market, this is a very low rate. If you are thinking about making a farm loan or renewing your present loan, I would advise you to see me at once. After the first of the year interest rates are sure to advance.

MARRIAGES.

BAKER-DAVIDSON
Chas. H. Baker and Miss Clara Davidson were married at 6:30 Thursday evening, November 27, 1913 at the home of the bride's parents Mr. and Mrs. James Davidson, living near the Masonic Home, Rev. W. B. Hopper of the Sullivan Christian church officiating.

The bride was attired in white. Miss Oma Baker played Englemands wedding march.

The decorations were white chrysanthemums. The bridal couple stood under a beautiful arch of white and green.

After the congratulations a two course wedding supper was served. There were forty-five invited guests: Carl Ozeo and family, Charles Hayes and daughter, John Castor and Miss Olive Hayes were the Mattoon relatives present. And a friend, Miss Carrie Uhlmer of Shelbyville.

The groom is a farmer, the younger son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Baker who recently moved from their farm to Sullivan.

The bride is the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Davidson. She graduated from the Sullivan high school, taught several terms in the public schools of the county, then went to Iowa City and attended school one year.

They went the same evening of the wedding to his father's farm where they had a home furnished.

The groom's parents in Sullivan gave them a reception Friday.

WRIGHT-BARNES.

Thomas Wright and Miss Victoria E. Barnes were married in Chicago, Monday evening. They went to Chicago last Sunday night.

They are both Sullivan people. The groom is the second son of Mrs. Edna Wright and a grandson of Mr. and Mrs. J. Wagoner, where he has made his home most of his life, and is a painter by trade.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Barnes and is a milliner. The past year she has been running a shop of her own on East Harrison street.

The arrangements of Mr. and Mrs. Wright have not been made known. It is presumed that they will soon return to Sullivan to reside and follow their respective trades.

A Satisfactory Settlement.

A. E. Foster and wife deserve much credit for the charity and respect they have shown Mrs. John A. Reed and family.

September 1, 1912, Mr. Foster and Mr. and Mrs. Reed were taking an automobile ride. Mr. Foster was driving the car, which became uncontrollable and ran down a steep hill, Mrs. Reed receiving serious injuries. She may be a cripple for life and underwent several serious operations. Any reasonable person can see that no sum of money, however large, would lessen her sufferings or put her where she was. Mr. and Mrs. Foster have both been very kind to them, done or offered to do all that any one could to help them, insisted on furnishing a trained nurse, and provide the best of medical aid, and anything else they could do for their comfort or Mrs. Reed's recovery. Both families have suffered, Mr. Foster's a year of worry, Mrs. Reed almost intolerable physical sufferings, Mr. Reed and family all the inconveniences and hard times possible with the mother totally disabled, a babe and several other small children to care for. Mr. Reed's were financially able to take care of themselves, but as it has been a big loss, Mr. Foster realized it and gave Mrs. Reed $550, besides his paying all the expenses of physicians, surgeons and hospital treatment, which amounted to about $900.

Mrs. Reed's friends are satisfied and feel very grateful to the Fosters for the sympathy and kindness, which means much to the distress. The Fosters have our thanks and will always hold a warm place in our hearts.

For Sheriff, vote for Chas. Lansden. For Coroner, vote for C. Enterline. Adv.

Letter From Oregon
Bend, Oregon, Nov. 20, 1913.

Saturday Herald:
I have been living in Central Oregon, since the first of last April, and am well pleased with the country.

The climate is very healthy. The land is of a sandy soil. The forest trees are the yellow pine and juniper. Vegetation grows as fine here as in Illinois or anywhere else.

The principal field crops are, rye, wheat, oats, alfalfa, clover, cabbage, carrots, turnips etc. I have seen but one orchard since I have been here and it is too young to bear.

Deeded land here sells from $10 to $20 per acre. Relinquishments sell from nothing to $5.00 per quarter section. Good homesteads are becoming very scarce.

I have a homestead of 320 acres on the Bend and Burns road corner. I have built me a good house 24 x 26 ft. and one and one-half stories high. I have a good well of water and necessary out-buildings. I have fifteen acres in cultivation and a house in Bend. I came here last spring with $225. I am more than pleased with my venture to the west.

Wages for labor here are about twice as high as in Illinois. Common labor 25 cts. per hour. Carpenters receive from $4 to $5 per day. Blacksmiths charge $2.25 for shoeing a horse. Wood cutters get $1.50 per cord for cutting wood. The timber cuts about like willow.

Butter is 45 cts. per pound, Eggs 50 cts. per dozen.

Cows sell from $85.00 to $125 and they are scarce at that. Horses can be bought from nothing to $200. Mowed wheat $30 per ton, oats $20, timothy $20. A new farm wagon $125. Harness very common $45. Fruit is high here because it is very scarce, as it is a new settlement and no orchards are started, but in time we will grow plenty of fruit. Potatoes are 60 cts. per bushel now; last spring they sold for 25 cents per sack, and thousands of bushels went to waste, for they grow fine and to a great abundance here. One rancher put out 160 acres of potatoes this year. Wheat, oats and rye make from one to two tons per acre. This is a very healthy climate. The yellow pines are so clean and refreshing. They look as if they had been scraped. The summers are cool and the winters mild and warm. The Des Chutes river never freezes over nor rises or falls more than one foot. If anyone desires information about this section of Oregon, and will write me enclosing a stamped envelope they will be promptly answered.

Household Science.
The Household Science club met Tuesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. O. L. Todd.
A four course dinner was served. The first course was cream of tomato soup. Second course, paste chicken, brown gravy, dressing, scalloped oysters, mashed potatoes, candied sweet potatoes, cranberries, celery, pickles, olives, light rolls and butter. Third course, fruit salad, nut bread and grape nectar. Fourth course, English plum pudding, sauce and coffee.
Those present were:
Mesdames Myrtle Wright, Emily Moutray, Hattie Pifer, Lizzie Eden, Libbie Shroy, Margaret Todd, Ethel Bland, Grace Scroggin, Laura Patterson, Mand Conklin, Libbie Drish, Jessie Miller, Flo Corbin, Clara Craig, Nona Wyrkoff, Lula Matney, Nettie Gifford, Florence Sabla, Hettie Ellis and Misses Lucie Williams, Lella Sharp and Mammie Patterson.
A crusade of education which aims "that common cold may become uncommon with the next generation" has been begun by prominent New York physicians. Here is a list of "don'ts" which the doctors say will prevent the annual visitation of the cold:
"Don't sit in a draughty car."
"Don't sleep in hot rooms."
"Don't avoid the fresh air."
"Don't stuff yourself at meal time. Over-eating reduces your resistance."
To which we would add—when you take a cold get rid of it as quick as possible. To accomplish that you will find Chamberlain's Cough Remedy most excellent. Sold by Sam B. Hall and all dealers. Adv.

SYNOPSIS.

Fran arrives at Hamilton Gregory's home in Litchburg, but finds him absent, conducting the choir at a camp meeting. She repairs thither in search of him, but during the service and is asked to leave. Abbott, Ashton, superintendent of schools, escorts Fran from the tent. He tells her Gregory is a wealthy man, deeply interested in charity work, and a pillar of the church. Ashton becomes greatly interested in Fran and while taking leave of her, holds her hand and is seen by Sampson Clinton, sister of Robert Clinton, chairman of the school board. Fran tells Gregory she wants a home with him. Grace Noir, Gregory's private secretary, takes a violent dislike to Fran and advises her to go away at once. Fran hints at a twenty-year-old secret, and Gregory in agitation asks Grace to leave the room. Fran relates the story of how Gregory married a young girl at Springfield, while attending college and then deserted her. Fran is the child of that marriage. Gregory had married his present wife three years before the death of Fran's mother. Fran takes a liking to Mrs. Gregory. Gregory explains that Fran is the daughter of a very dear friend who is dead. Fran agrees to the story. Mrs. Gregory insists on her making her home with them and takes her to her room. Fran declares the secretary must go. Grace begins making excuses in an effort to drive Fran from the Gregory home. Abbott while taking a walk alone at midnight, finds Fran on a bridge, and she tells her famous lion tamer, Fran Nonpareil. She tired of circus life and sought a home. Grace tells of seeing Fran come home after midnight with a man. She guesses part of the story and surprises the rest from Abbott. She decides to investigate Fran's story. Fran enlists Abbott in her battle against Grace. Fran offers her services to Gregory as secretary during the temporary absence of Grace. The latter hearing of Fran's purpose, returns and interrupts a touching scene between mother and daughter. Grace tells Gregory she intends to marry Clinton and quit his service. He declares that he cannot continue his work without her. Carried away by passion, he takes her in his arms. Fran walks in on them, and declares that she must leave the house at once. To Gregory's consternation he learns of Clinton's mission to Springfield. Clinton returns from Springfield and at Fran's request, Ashton urges him not to disclose what he has learned. On Abbott's assurance that Grace will leave Gregory at once, to a corner by the threat of exposure, Gregory is forced to dismiss Grace.

"All? You can prove she's no fraud?"

"My pockets are full of proofs," Robert exclaimed, looking significantly at Gregory.

"Dear Fran!" murmured Mrs. Gregory with a sweet smile of reminiscence.

"Abbott," Mr. Gregory gasped, as he began to realize the compromise that was offered, "you have always been my friend—and you have been interested in my charities—you know how important my secretary is to my work. It is true that I did wrong, years ago—very wrong—it is true that I bitterly—what shall I say?—antagonized the interests at Springfield. But that was long ago. Am I to be punished now?"

"Mr. Gregory," said Abbott, clearly and forcibly, "I have nothing to do with any punishment, I have nothing to do with demanding the release of your secretary. I am a mere agent of the interests, sent to you to demand that your secretary be dismissed in the morning; and if you cannot see your way to promise me now that you will dismiss her, my office is ended. If you can promise to send her away, I give you my word the transactions shall be forever hushed up, so far as we are concerned. If you cannot promise, all will be revealed at once."

"In just ten minutes," said Robert Clinton, consulting his watch.

Grace stood looking at Gregory as if turned to stone. She had listened in-these men we cannot go on with our work, without her."

Not for worlds would Mrs. Gregory have betrayed her eagerness for Grace to go, but for no consideration would she have asked her to stay. "Mr. Gregory," she responded, "I cannot conceive of your being in the power of business interests to such an extent as to drive you to anything that seems like taking your heart's blood."

"I refuse!" cried Gregory, again.

"Of course I refuse,"

"Very well," said Abbott, turning.

"But what are you going to do?" Gregory asked shrilly.

"I shall go now; my endeavor to straighten out things—or rather to keep everything peaceful and forgotten—comes to nothing, it seems. Good evening, Mrs. Gregory."

"But wait! Wait! Let us discuss this alone."

"It is useless now, for the time has expired."

"That's right," Clinton confirmed, clicking to his watch.

"And all of it is going to be told?"

"Unless you will dismiss your secretary."

"But you insult Miss Grace to speak in that way. Good heavens, Abbott, what are you doing? How can you insult that—the best woman in the world?"

There was a moment's silence. Then Mrs. Gregory turned to her husband and said quietly, "If Miss Noir is the best woman in the world, you should be the last man in the world to say so."

He covered his face with his hands. "Everybody has turned against me," he complained. "I am the most miserable man on earth because for mere caprice, for mere spite, for no earthly good, it is the determination of people who have lost positions and the like, to drive me wild."

Robert Clinton thumped the keys of the piano with one hand.

"Why, hello, Mr. Bob!" cried Fran, dancing into the room. "So you're back, are you?" She shook hands broadly.

"Come back, Abbott, come back!" called Gregory, discovering that the young man was indeed going. "You know what I must do, if you drive me to the wall. I am obliged to do what you say. State the condition again if you have the courage to say it aloud."

"The past will be forgotten," said Abbott solemnly, "if you give your word that your secretary shall go in the morning."

"And you'll take me in her place," spoke up Fran decidedly.

"The time is up," said Clinton harshly. "It's too late now, for I shall tell."

"I promise, I promise!" Gregory cried out, in an agony of fear. "I promise. Yes, I'll dismiss her. Yes, she shall go! Yes, let Fran have the place."

"Do I understand you to dismiss me, Mr. Gregory?" asked Grace, in a low concentrated tone, leaning slightly forward.

Fran turned on the lights to their fullest extent, and looked about with an elfish smile.

Hamilton Gregory was mute.

"I have your promise," said Abbott, bowing gravely. "That's enough."

"Yes," groaned Gregory, "but it is infamous."

Fran looked at Abbott inscrutably. "Third time's the charm," she said in a whisper. "I'm proud of you this time, Abbott."

Grace turned with cold dignity, and moved slowly toward the hall door.

Fran slipped between Clinton and the piano, and began to play sottily, carelessly with one hand, while she watched the retreating figure.

In a very short time, Gregory found himself alone in the parlor. Abbott and Clinton had withdrawn rather awkwardly, Mrs. Gregory had melted away unobtrusively, and Fran, last of all, had given the piano a final bang, and darted out of the house.

Gregory stood pale and miserable. It seemed as if all the world had deserted him. The future without Grace would be as dreary as now seemed his past with Fran's mother. He suffered horribly. Was suffering all that life had left for him? Perhaps he was reaping—but is there no end to the harvest? One sows in so brief a time; is the garnering eternal?

A bell rang, but he was not curious. Voices, sounded at the front door, footsteps passed, then silence once more—silence and despair. Gregory went to the open window, and leaned heavily on the sill, taking great breaths, staring dully.

Footsteps were heard again. They were near by. They stopped at the door—they were here. Gregory started up with a low cry of reanimated hope. Whatever happened—he was about to see Grace Noir once more.

CHAPTER XIX.

The First Victory.

When Grace re-entered the parlor to find Hamilton Gregory alone, her eyes were full of reproach without tenderness. As she came straight toward him, an open letter in her hand, his body grew erect, and his brown eyes, losing their glazed light, burned from the depths.

"Read it," Grace said, in a thin, brittle voice.

In taking the letter, Gregory touched her hand. With recaptured alertness, he held the missive to the light, and read:

"My Dear Miss Noir:

"This is to officially offer you the position of bookkeeper at my grocery store, now that Hamilton Gregory has decided to make Fran his secretary. Come over early in the morning and everything will be arranged to your satisfaction. I am,

ROBERT CLINTON."

Gregory looked up, and marked the fixedness of her gaze. It seemed to call upon him to avenge an insult. He could only bluster, "Who brought this thing here?" He fung the note upon the table.

He Sank Upon His Knees and Caught Her Hand.

"A messenger," Grace's look did not waver.

"The impudence!" he exclaimed. "The affront!"

"However," said Grace, "I presume it is final that I am dismissed?"

"But his unseemly haste in sending this note—it's infamous, that's what I call it, infamous!"

"And you mean to take Fran in my place, do you not?"

"You see," Gregory explained, "Bob Clinton came back to town this evening from Springfield, you understand, and Abbott came with him—and Mrs. Gregory was in the room so they could not speak exactly openly, and Abbott made the condition—I can hardly explain so delicate an affair of business—but you see, Bob is evidently very much in love with you, and he has it in his power to demand—"

Grace calmly waited for the other to lapse into uncertain silence, then said, "This note tells me definitely that I am offered another position, but you tell me nothing. It was I who sent Mr. Clinton to Springfield to look into the private record of that Fran."

"You see," Gregory explained, "he was afraid I might think it presumptuous of him to do that, it was like doubting my word, so he came to me—however, he is back and there is nothing to reveal, absolutely nothing to reveal."

"Is he sure that the girl is no impostor?"

"He knows she isn't. His pockets are full of proofs. I know you sent Bob on my account, Grace, but alas! Fran is a reality—she can't be dismissed."

"It seems I can be. But of course I am nothing."

"Grace, you are everything."

She laughed. "Everything! At the word of an Abbott Ashton, a disgraced school-teacher, you make me less than nothing!"

He cried out impetuously, "Shall I tell you why we must part?"

Grace returned with a somber look. "So Fran is to have my place?"

Gregory interposed passionately, "It is because I love you."

"So Fran is to be your secretary!" she persisted.

"Grace, you have read my heart, I have read yours; we thought we could associate in safety, after that—but I am weak. You never come into the room that I am not thrilled with rapture. Life hasn't any brightness for me except your presence. What can I do but protect you?"

"Mr. Gregory, Fran hasn't any interest in your work."

"I love you, Grace—I adore you. Beautiful darling—don't you see you must go away because you are so inexpressibly precious to me? That's why I mustn't have you under my roof."

He sank upon his knees and caught her hand. "See me at your feet—should this thing be?"

Grace coldly withdrew her hand. "In spite of all you say, you have engaged Fran in my place."

"No one can take your place, dear."

Grace's voice suddenly vibrated: "You tell me you love me, yet you agree to hire that woman, in my place—the woman I hate, I tell you; yes, the spy, the enemy of this home."

"Yes, Grace, I do tell you that I love you—would I be kneeling here worshipping you, otherwise? And what is more, you know that you love me—you know it. That's why I must send you away."

"Then send Fran away, when you send me away."

"Oh, my God, if I could!" he exclaimed, starting up wildly. "But you see, it's impossible. I can't do that, and I can't help you."

"Why is it impossible? Must you treat better the daughter of an old college friend, than the woman you say you love? What are those mysterious Springfield interests?"

"—And you are the woman who loves me!" Gregory interrupted quickly. "Say it, Grace! Tell me you love me before you go away—just those three words before I sink back into my lonely despair. We will never be alone together in this life—tell me, then, that you love me—let me hear those words from your beautiful lips—"

"It makes me laugh!" Grace cried out in wrath that could not be controlled, "to hear you speak of love in one breath and of Fran in the next. Maybe some day you'll speak both in the same breath! Yes, I will go and you can hire Fran."

"But won't you tell me goodbye?" he pleaded. "As soon as I have become complete master of my love for you, Fran shall be sent unceremoniously about her business. I fancy Abbott Ashton wants to marry her—let him take her away. Then she will be gone. Then my duty—to friendship will be fulfilled. And if you will come back again then, we might be happy together, after all."

She stamped her foot violently. "This need not be, and you know it. You speak of being master of yourself. What do you mean? I already know you love me. What is there to hide?"

"But others would see. Others would suspect. Others would betray. Good heavens, Grace, all my life has been made horribly miserable because I've always had to be considering what others would think and do!"

"Betray? What is there to betray? Nothing. You are what you have always been, and so am I. We didn't commit a crime in speaking the truth for once—you are sending me away forever, and yet you try to temporize on this eternity. Well—keep your Fran! It's fortunate for me that I have one friend." She snatched up the open letter, and hurried toward the door.

"Grace!" Gregory followed her imploringly, "not Bob Clinton! Hear me, Grace. If you ever marry that man, I shall kill myself."

She laughed scornfully as she snatched open the door.

"Grace, I tell you that Fran—"

"Yes!" exclaimed the other, her voice trembling with concentrated anger, "let that be the last word between us, for it is that, and that only which separates us. Yes—that Fran!"

CHAPTER XX.

The Enemy Triumphs.

Old Mrs. Jefferson would long ago have struck a blow against Grace Noir had she not recognized the fact that when one like Grace wears the helmet of beauty and breastplate of youth, the darts of the very angles of justice, who are neither beautiful nor young, are turned aside. Helplessly Mrs. Jefferson had watched and waited and now, behold! there was no more Dragon. Fran had said she would do it—nothing could have exceeded the confidence of the old lady to the new secretary.

Mrs. Gregory's sense of relief was not so profound as her mother's, because she could not think of Grace's absence except as a reprieve. Surely she would return—but the present was to be placidly enjoyed. Grace was gone. Mrs. Gregory's smile once more reminded Fran of the other's half-forgotten youth. When a board has lain too long on the ground, one finds, on its removal, that the grass is withered; all the same, the grass feels the sunshine.

Fran thanked herself that Grace was no longer silhouetted against the horizon, and Gregory, remarking this attitude of self-congratulation, was thrown more than ever out of sympathy with his daughter. Fran was indefatigable in her duties as secretary, but her father felt that it was not the same. She could turn out an immense amount of work because she was strong and playing for high stakes—but she did not have Grace's methodical ways—one never knew how Fran would do anything, only that she would do it. Grace was all method, but more than that she was as Gregory phrased it to himself—she was all Grace.

Gregory missed her every minute of the day, and the harder Fran tried to fill her place, the more he resented it. Fran was separated from his sympathies by the chasm in his own soul.

The time came when Gregory felt that he must see Grace again and be alone with her. At first, he had thought they must meet apart from the world; but by the end of the week, he was wondering what excuse he could offer to induce her to meet him—not at Miss Sapphira's, where she now boarded, not at the grocery where Bob was always hovering about—but somewhere remote, somewhere safe, where they might talk about—but he had no idea of the conversation that might ensue; there was nothing definite in anything save his fixed thought of being with her. As to any harm, there could be none. He had so long regarded Grace as the best woman in the world, that even after the day of kisses, his mind continued in its inertia of faith—even the gravitation of material facts was unable to check its sublime course.

TRUTH FROM YOUTHFUL LIPS

Not Exactly the Aweful Spinster Expected, But It Came From the Heart.

A middle-aged spinster who lived in the suburbs had a fine orchard. She likewise had a heap of trouble with a lot of youngsters, who looked on the orchard as something placed there for their especial benefit.

Finally the spinster decided that she could do more with kindness than with a fence rail, so she prepared a feast of apples and other dainties and invited every small boy in the burg to join the jubilee.

"Now, tell me, boys," said the hostess at the conclusion of the feast, "would the apples you have just eaten tasted so good had you stolen them?"

"No, ma'am," answered little Willie Smith, with surprising frankness.

"I am certainly glad to hear you say that, little man," responded the spinster, with a glow of pleasure. "Why wouldn't they have tasted so good?"

"Because," came the equally frank reply of Willie, "we wouldn't have had no ice cream and cake with them."

Poor Charities.

There are charity societies, as all the world knows, that only give to the poor a quarter or a half cent of every dollar they take in, most of their subscriptions going for salaries to officers and investigators for expensive rentals, etc.

Richard March, the charity expert of Denver, Colo., was condemning these charities. He said:

"A man's wife shouted up to him the other day:

"Don't you think this blue overcoat with the strapped-in back is too new and fashionable, George, to give away?"

"It's the agent of the Alpha Incorporated Charities that's at the door, isn't it?"

"Yes, dear."

"Then let the coat go," said George. "It'll be old enough and old-fashioned enough before it gets to the poor dubs that is shivering for it now."

Her Aid.

"If that girl ever gets into danger in a lonely place she can signal for help with her collar."

"How could she do anything like that?"

"I noticed it is wireless."

Bocker—Yes; as soon as the tariff bill was signed he cut his wife's allowance because the cost of living is coming down.—New York Sun.

A Shrewd Dodge.

"This new murderer is a foxy one."

"How so?"

"Declares he's perfectly sane. Now, of course, everybody will have to go to work to prove he's insane."

Honeycomb Over.

Wife (pouting)—You have ceased to love me.

Hub (enjoying cigar and newspaper)—No, my dear; I've only ceased making love to you.

A Reasonable Fear.

"So you are going down for a visit to the Jobbinses. They will treat you like a member of the family."

"But I do hope they won't feed me like one."

tently to every word as it fell from Abbott's lips, but not once had she turned her head to look at him.

"You are cruel," Gregory fared out, "you are heartless. If I send away the only one who is in perfect knowledge and sympathy with my work—"

"Then you refuse?"

"Of course I refuse. I'll not permit the work of years to perish because of an unreasonable and preposterous demand. You wouldn't exchange your position here for Bob's grocery, would you?"

"Yes—if you dismiss me," Grace answered, Miss Grace? He ended appealingly, her eyes smouldering.

"Lacy"—Gregory was almost beside himself—"tell her she must stay—tell him to call upon him to avenge an insult. He could only bluster, "Who brought this thing here?" He fung the note upon the table.

"A messenger," Grace's look did not waver.

"The impudence!" he exclaimed. "The affront!"

"However," said Grace, "I presume it is final that I am dismissed?"

"But his unseemly haste in sending this note—it's infamous, that's what I call it, infamous!"

"And you mean to take Fran in my place, do you not?"

"You see," Gregory explained, "Bob Clinton came back to town this evening from Springfield, you understand, and Abbott came with him—and Mrs. Gregory was in the room so they could not speak exactly openly, and Abbott made the condition—I can hardly explain so delicate an affair of business—but you see, Bob is evidently very much in love with you, and he has it in his power to demand—"

Grace calmly waited for the other to lapse into uncertain silence, then said, "This note tells me definitely that I am offered another position, but you tell me nothing. It was I who sent Mr. Clinton to Springfield to look into the private record of that Fran."

"You see," Gregory explained, "he was afraid I might think it presumptuous of him to do that, it was like doubting my word, so he came to me—however, he is back and there is nothing to reveal, absolutely nothing to reveal."

"Is he sure that the girl is no impostor?"

"He knows she isn't. His pockets are full of proofs. I know you sent Bob on my account, Grace, but alas! Fran is a reality—she can't be dismissed."

"It seems I can be. But of course I am nothing."

"Grace, you are everything."

She laughed. "Everything! At the word of an Abbott Ashton, a disgraced school-teacher, you make me less than nothing!"

He cried out impetuously, "Shall I tell you why we must part?"

Grace returned with a somber look. "So Fran is to have my place?"

Gregory interposed passionately, "It is because I love you."

"So Fran is to be your secretary!" she persisted.

HISTORIC SPOT IS UNMARKED

Location of Nation's First White House, in Philadelphia, Known, but That is All.

Excepting for a few months, Washington lived in Philadelphia during his entire administrations as president of the United States, and John Adams did likewise during his term. There was no White House, but a brick house, and, as quite generally known, it stood on the south side of Market street between Fifth and Sixth streets. The house itself long since disappeared, and it seems strange that Philadelphia has never taken the trouble to make in a suitable way the spot where the nation's executive mansion stood when occupied by the Father of His Country.

When Washington came to Philadelphia to attend the continental congress before taking command of the army, he lived in the swellest boarding house in the city. It was kept by Mrs. Trista, at the southwest corner of Fifth and Market streets. But while more fashionable, the house has been far less famous than the more modest one, two blocks farther west, at the southwest corner of Seventh and Market streets. It was in the latter that Jefferson boarded, and on the second floor, corner room, in which he wrote the Declaration of Independence.

According to John Adams, who could have qualified as chief gossip at any quitting party, Philadelphia was then away ahead of Boston and New York as a fashionable center. The great patriot told his impressions in those voluminous letters to his wife. He was quite awed by the local splendor.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Work for Men and Women.

After all, you know, there is room for both men and women in this world. Men have their work to do and women have theirs. It is the woman's work to provide for the inner man and it is the man's to provide for the outer woman.

The Basement Philosopher

By KENNETH HARRIS

(Copyright, 1913, by W. G. Chapman)

"Nels, my friend," said the janitor to his Scandinavian assistant, with more than his usual blandness, "Nels, my friend, would you do me the favor to bring me them three old shoes that's standing behind the door? Thank you kindly. I'm much obliged to you, Nels. You're an accommodating sort of a guy, you are, and I've been noticing it. And now since you're here, maybe you'll pull off these here boots of mine for me. They're hurting my feet considerable."

The janitor leaned back in his chair, and his assistant, backing up to him, straddled the extended leg and stooping, gripped the heel of a boot that was well plastered with recent mud. The janitor placed his other foot against that part of his assistant's person that was nearest and pushed firmly but gently.

"Good work!" commented the janitor, as the boot slid off. "I never seen that better done. Now for the other one, if it ain't troubling you too much."

The operation was repeated, but this time the janitor applied so much force to his part of it that the assistant was propelled violently forward on his hands and knees, from which posture he arose with a red face, muttering words in a strange tongue.

"Holy smoke!" ejaculated the janitor, with an appearance of extreme irritation. "What was you a-trying to do? Throw somersaults? Say, didn't you know that boot was a-going to come off, or did you think you was hitched up to a load of coal on an upgrade? It's a pity you didn't run your thick head into the wall. You've got lots of sense, you have. Skinned your knuckles, have you? I'm glad of it. Maybe it'll learn you something."

"GOOD WORK," COMMENTED THE JANITOR AS THE BOOT SLID OFF.

"One thing it ought to learn you is not to be so darn obliging," the janitor continued, after glaring a moment or two on the abashed assistant. "You ain't in Souwega now. You're in the land of the free where one man's 'at as good as another and a blamed sight better, as the fellow says. You want to keep that in mind and see that everybody else does. You go around doing things for people that they can do for themselves or hire done just as well as not, and it won't be but a little while before you're a-working over hours and giving out the impression that your time ain't worth nothing. When a man once begins to make a pack horse of himself, everybody for miles around will come a-running with a full sack to put on him, and they'll give him the gas if he ain't moving fast enough to suit 'em."

"Yesterday I seen you run out and pick up a box a guy had dropped out of his dray and carry it over half a block to where he had pulled up and was a-waiting for you. I guess that box weighed forty or fifty pounds, but you didn't care. If it had been a safe, it would have been all the same. You was a-goin' to be accommodating if you bust them new suspenders of yours. Wouldn't have done to have hollered at him and let him drive back for it and load it in himself, would it? You ain't mean enough to do a trick like that, are you? What did you get for that there kind act? You needn't lie, because I heard the cussing he gave you for hoisting the box onto his corn."

"And it wasn't ten minutes after that that you dropped your broom onto the sidewalk and jumped to open the door for the old woman in 45 just because she had a few parcels in her arms. She couldn't have laid them parcels down and opened the door herself, could she? Certainly not. She'd have probably waited there all afternoon. And what did she do when you had opened the door? Asked you if you wouldn't ring her bell for her, and you done it, just the same as you humped your back helping them huskies up three flights this morning with the piano. They give you an invite to go around the corner with them and wet up, didn't they? Not much, they didn't. They was afraid of hurting your feelings, and they didn't know but what you might be on the water wagon anyway. What they done was to blame the plaster they knocked off the wall onto you when I spoke to them about it, and then drive over to Mike's by themselves."

"Will tell you, Nels," said the janitor. "You want to understand that I've never heard him swear."

I'm an obliging man, myself. Why, it was only last fall one of the tenants comes to me and slips me a 2-vo spot and says he'd like to have me look after his bull-pup for a couple of weeks while he's off on his vacation. I didn't hang back. I told him that I was willing to accommodate him, and I done so. That was some pup, too. I want to tell you. Inside of the two weeks that fellow was gone, I matched him up against four different dogs that was considered pippins, and what I did to the ginks that backed 'em was a sin and a shame. I could tell you of lots of other obliging things I've done right in this building, if I wanted to brag. I believe in being obliging. I ain't opposed to it in moderation, only I like to feel tolerable certain that the guy I help is going to appreciate what I do for him and that he is in a position to show it.

"Don't get the idea that I'm all the time a-looking for thanks, I ain't. Mike was telling me one time about a friend of his that started up a poultry farm out near Lake Forest. He was a grateful man, Mike's friend was, and every time his hens laid an egg he thanked them for it. After while the hens quit laying and he come to Mike and wanted to know what was the best thing to do.

"Try some chicken feed on 'em," says Mike.

"Now I ain't no hen, Nels, but I like some chicken feed now and then," said the janitor, as he pulled on his shoes. "And you remember what I've told you. What did you get when you accommodated me just now?"

"You got the boot, Nels, my friend, and that's what they all get. Now you can shake 'em down them grates."

PUT UNDER CONTRIBUTION

Cleveland Lawyers Left "Holding the Bag" After Tramp Made Good His Departure.

A pathetic looking tramp hobbled into a lawyer's office in the downtown district a few weeks ago, relates the Cleveland Plain Dealer. When his turn came to be interviewed he said that he wanted to sue a man for heavy damages. He had been run down by a motor car; his shoulder was dislocated, his clothes torn, his ankle sprained severely. He had been knocked into the gutter and the driver of the car had put on full speed without trying to ascertain the condition of the victim. The latter had taken the number of the car, however, and he said he could produce witnesses. It was a good case, and the lawyer agreed to take it.

"—Er— I can't pay you no money now, sir," mumbled the client, in an embarrassed manner. "I ain't got a cent, an' if you don't want 'er—"

"That's all right," said the lawyer. "We'll settle that when I win your case. By the way, if you broke your leg you need a little to go on." And a green-back changed hands.

There wouldn't have been much of a story in this if the motor car victim hadn't gone to five other lawyers in the same building before he considered that his case would be sufficiently well handled. He collected about $30 and then recovered from his bruises and disappeared.

What Becomes of Old Clothes? Black cloth clothes purchased by second-hand dealers, provided they are too far gone to be "revived," are sent to France, Russia, and Poland to be made into caps, which the working people of these countries wear. The cast-off red coats of the British soldiers almost all go to Holland, for in that damp country the people have a notion that red cloth keeps off rheumatism; therefore, all careful Dutchmen of the laboring classes wear red cloth waistcoats next their skin. These are made by cutting off the sleeves of the British soldiers' red coats and altering the shape a little.

The showy uniforms of the guards and the full dress liveries of the lord mayor's footmen and the royal servants come into the hands of the old clothes dealers, and go chiefly to the south coast of Africa, where they are sold to the native chiefs.

Travelers are sometimes amused at being received in full state by swarthy chief on his throne dressed out in footman's livery or a ruffian's uniform.—Northern Weekly Gazette.

Honest Dealer. "Does that parrot use bad language?" "Well, mum, that 'ere bird ain't no parrot, 'cause he ain't had no college education, an' he's as low he were 'taught to talk by a fellow, his English ain't none too good, but I've never heard him swear."

CREDIT GIVEN TO THE WIFE

Good and Sufficient Reasons Why Married Man Lives Longer Than the Bachelor.

It is a good thing for a man to have a wife to look after his ingoings and outgoings—to enforce regularity in his mode of living—to see that he is clothed according to the requirements of the temperature, and takes his umbrella when there is likelihood of showers, and gets good meals at stated hours.

Jacques Bertillon, the French expert on occupational mortality, has found that low death rates occur particularly in occupations in which the workman is under more or less supervision as regards not only health but also habits of life, and in which he is surrounded by influences tending to prevent dissipation, and conducive to regular hours and regular habits. Bank clerks and fiduciary employes who feel their responsibilities are types of this. Bertillon attributes much the same influence to marriage and family life. The married man is supervised for his own good, and, having added incentives to self-restraint and to the care of his health, he has a lower mortality than the bachelor.—Journal of the American Medical Association.

See? He stopped before a blind peddler and bought a pencil, putting five pennies into the man's hand.

Quite Easy. "It must be hard to be poor," observed the millionaire.

Greatly Desired Lady. It would appear from bits of the social gossip of her day that Miss Burdett-Coutts' nearest approach to an occupation was refusing offers of marriage. ### ERUPTION SPREAD ON FACE

310 East Elm St., Streator, Ill.—"A running sore broke out above my right eye, which spread over my entire face. It started as a small pimple. I scratched it open and the contents of this small pimple ran down my face. Wherever this ran a new sore appeared. They itched and burned terribly; I couldn't touch my face it burned so. It disfigured my face terribly and I couldn't be seen for everyone was afraid of it. It looked like a disease of some kind; it was all red and a heavy white crust on it. Everybody kept out of my way, afraid it would spread. I lost rest at night and I couldn't bear to have anything touch my face, not even the pillow. I had to lie on the back of the head. I was always glad when morning came so I could get up. It was extremely painful.

What is Woman's Beauty but Health?

And the Basis of Her Health and Vigor Lies in the Careful Regulation of the Bowels.

MRS. C. E. VANCE

If woman's beauty depended upon cosmetics, every woman would be a picture of loveliness. But beauty lies deeper than that. It lies in health. In the majority of cases the basis of health, and the cause of sickness, can be traced to the action of the bowels.

The headaches, the lassitude, the hollow skin and the lusterless eyes are usually due to constipation. So many things that women do habitually conduce to this trouble. They do not eat carefully, they eat indigestible foods because the foods are served daintily and they do not exercise enough. But whatever the particular cause may be it is important that the condition should be corrected.

An ideal remedy for women, and one especially suited to their delicate requirements, is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which thousands of women endorse highly, among them Mrs. C. E. Vance, of 511 S. Ray St., New Castle, Pa. At times she had spells of indigestion so severe that she thought she would die. Syrup Pepsin regulated her stomach and bowels, and she attributes her excellent health today to this remedy.

All the family can use Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, for thousands of mothers give it to babies, and children. It is also admirably suited to the requirements of elderly people, in fact to all who by reason of age or infirmity cannot stand harsh salts, cathartics, pills or purgatives. These should always be avoided, for at best their effect is only for that day, while a genuine remedy like Syrup Pepsin acts mildly but permanently.

It can be conveniently obtained at any drug store at fifty cents or one dollar a bottle. Results are always guaranteed or money will be refunded. You will find it gentle in action, pleasant in taste, and free from griping, and its tonic properties have a distinct value to women. It is the most widely used laxative- tonic in America today and thousands of families are now never without it.

Families wishing to try a free sample bottle can obtain it postpaid by addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 205 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. A postal card with your name and address on it will do.

HELP SULLIVAN.

The number of men favoring anti-saloon territory and woman suffrage has increased. Women, who two years ago did not want the ballot, have been convinced that they can attend an election with propriety...

November 4 was a red letter day for the foes of the saloon. The wet forces lost twenty-two precincts, carried two and one tied.

The result of the battle has inspired woman and her auxiliaries with fresh courage. The better class of men being convinced that they need woman's help to obtain better legislation and execution are ready to come to the front and do their part in establishing suffrage for all citizens.

When women vote four to one for the betterment of conditions it means much. We do not wonder at the breweries and whiskey interests lifting their hands to the supreme court with such a strong appeal, beseeching, imploring, praying them to declare the suffrage law unconstitutional, appealing to them to find a technicality in the suffrage law, and declare it null and void.

If unconstitutional, who made it so? And why? Was it passed so for a purpose? The privilege has been well exercised, and in a manner to substantiate its strength and function.

Some of our legislators no doubt got very dry, and it may be when the next legislature meets they will be at leisure to slake their dryness, while better men occupy their desks in the assembly room. The war is well on, and but one of two things will satisfy women; the ballot or cleaner better officials, better legislation and strict enforcement of law.

The three departments of government—executive, legislative and judicial, in every organized locality, must work together for good.

Woman can turn the tide, ballot or no ballot. It is not so much the ballot we are after as right doing.

You often hear it said that "Competition is the Life of Trade" and no one engaged in business objects to honest, legitimate competition. But when a competitor resorts to misrepresentation and downright lying in order to secure patronage, we can't justify such a standard of business ethics by calling it "Competition."

The December American Boy

Beneath the unusually attractive, colored covers of the Christmas issue of THE AMERICAN BOY is contained a wealth of fiction, of fact, and of attractive illustration that is certain to interest the active boy as it will inspire him. The fifty-two large pages are crowded with good things. Prominent among the excellent Christmas fiction is "The Lesson Jerry Learned," by Clarence B. Kelland, "How Santa Came to Cote Blanch," by Garrard Harris, and "The Tale of a Dog's Foot," by Rose Seelye Miller, are other pleasing stories of Christmas. "The Open Trail," by Herbert Wyndham-Gittens, is an animal story of unusual power. "Nix Ferstay," by Harold William Fiferlis, is packed with laughs. There are, besides, four other short stories of varied appeal. The second installment of "The Gaunt Gray Wolf," a serial story by Dillon Wallace, appears in this issue. "The King of the Filibusters," by E. Alexander Powell, F. R. G. S., is a historical article of the most thrilling interest. Lieutenant Walter S. Anderson, U. S. N., tells the boys how to signal in his "Signalling For Boys." "Making Electricity Work," is the title of a new series of articles by Don Cameron Shaffer that tell of the wonders of modern electricity in a form as practical as it is interesting.

The many departments and short articles appeal to a boy's every interest and aid him in his important business of being a boy and developing into an able man. A boy you know wants a copy, $1.00 a year. Published by The Sprague Publishing Co., Detroit, Mich.

HOME TOWN HELPS

GARDENS TURNED INTO PARKS

Movement Started in Baltimore That If Successful Will Make a Real "City Beautiful."

Two years ago there was inaugurated in Baltimore a movement, or perhaps it might be better termed a propagandism, which aimed at the pulling down of the fences which hedge the back lots that extend from the rear of dwellings to the midway alleys, relates the American of that city. Each householder was expected to beautify his particular back yard by the planting of flowers or shrubbery, or, at least, by raising a carpet of grass. When all the householders in a block act upon this suggestion the result will be to create a small park in the rear of their homes. When the scheme is realized fully the back window outlook will be upon a spread of flower gardens—a blooming small paradise.

The idea has not yet materialized in a way to make Baltimore a city of flower gardens, all over and everywhere, but about in spots there are evidences that a good many householders have had their imaginations touched by the poetic suggestion. The home garden committee, which has its headquarters at 512 Fidelity building, is doing much to promote the backyard garden movement.

Scattered over the city there are thousands of back yards that are now beautiful with blooms and green shrubbery. In the majority of instances, however, these are boxed-in affairs—each little garden is carefully segregated from the neighboring gardens on either side. The pulling down of the division fences would at once enlarge the vistas, and if all the division fences on both sides the midway alleys were pulled down there would be the effect of a diversified garden park. There may be obstacles in the way of pulling down the back fences, but they are generally obstacles that can be removed. The convincing evidence that the difficulties can be obviated is that, in instances, they have been obviated.

LIKE THE SCHOOL GARDENS

What Children of Los Angeles Have Done Those of Any Other Community May Copy.

Though it is but a small stretch of years since first we heard of local school gardens, the movement has been one of the most rapid in development of anything touching public life during that time. We now have gardens at 75 schools in this city with 75,000 children actually working in them from a half hour to three hours a week, says the Los Angeles Times. In addition about 15,000 of these children are doing some sort of gardening at home. Surely this is a most satisfying and gratifying showing, considering how recent and how crude the beginning, and how feeble the movement during the first year after its introduction. At first no support or even encouragement was given it by the local school officials, and funds for its launching and maintenance were collected from an apathetic public by a few noble, zealous club women, who had more than a dream of a glorious future for this great educational feature of modern school life.

Cleveland Is Awakened.

Forty of the leading artists of Cleveland have appointed a committee, representing the new Arts Club, to call upon five citizens and respectfully ask them to stir the artistic conscience of the sixth city in the United States.

The committee will be asked to devise ways and means for forming a vast Municipal Arts association, whose duties will arise as events transpire, but which will attempt to look after the matter of esthetic culture in Cleveland.

"Our little sisters are running away ahead of us," said Professor Curtis, "Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Detroit, and even wee and tiny Toledo." He said that the patronage of symphony concerts and devotion to many art forms in the city proved that the people are hungering and thirsting for the good and the beautiful. People merely want someone or some organization to take the lead.

Electric Street Stoves for Police.

In Glasgow the police on night duty are being afforded facilities for warming food and tea at certain street telephone and signal boxes. To this end the boxes are fitted with electrical hot plates, which can be switched on to the corporation mains and utilized for warming food or drink. Twenty hot plates are allowed for supper, and the circuit is so arranged that the heater element cannot be left under current when not in use, even if the operator omits to switch off. Each box is also fitted with a telephone communicating with the nearest police depot, and a red signal lamp controlled from the superintendent's office. When glowing, this signal indicates that telephonic communication is required with the first constable who sees it.—Electricity.

Origin of Two Old Sayings. "Going to the dogs" comes from the East, where dogs are scavengers of the streets, and become so unclean as to be unfit to touch; while the expression "Tell it to the marines" used to show disbelief in the truth of a story, arose from the fact that when the marines first went about they were naturally rather "green" concerning nautical affairs, and someone who related a very tall yarn was told to "tell it to the marines," the idea being that they could be more easily gulled. Whaling at Natal. The whaler Egeland the other morning brought in the first humpback whale captured in Natal this season. It was a good whale and very fat. On a second visit to the ocean the same whaler captured a blue whale 70 feet long, which landed in the evening. Apparently the baleen whales are early this year.—Natal Mercury.

VOTERS ATTENTION!

When you go to the polls next Tuesday to vote for Sheriff and Coroner, remember

Charles Lansden and C. Enterline

are both honest, upright men and will make good officials if elected.

December 2nd is the time to make Charles Lansden sheriff of Moultrie County, if all Republicans will go to the polls and vote. Let each Republican take it upon himself to be at the polls December 2, 1913, and vote for Charles Lansden for sheriff and C. Enterline for coroner.

Charles Lansden is the man for sheriff. He has lived his whole life in Moultrie county and his life is an open book for close inspection. He has been in the sheriff's office as deputy under his father, and Chief of Police of Sullivan, and has always made a good officer and never faltered in his duties.

Charles Lansden has always made Moultrie county a good official and does not have to depend upon sensational acts, hired detectives and special grand juries to influence the voters of the county. The people know him and know him well.

A Campaign Falsehood.

It has been erroneously stated that Charles Lansden, instead of doing his duty as Chief of Police of Sullivan, laid down and made no attempt to exercise the duties of the office, and that he mixed with the hoodlum element and allowed them to do as they pleased. Charles Lansden made the best chief of police Sullivan ever had. The conditions were then as they are today. Places might be raided and arrests made but persons who complained or knew of misdemeanors would not appear as witnesses and testify.

A MESSAGE TO WOMEN

Who Are "Just Ready to Drop." When you are "just ready to drop," when you feel so weak that you can hardly drag yourself about—and because you have not slept well, you get up as tired-out next morning as when you went to bed, you need help. Miss Lea Dumas writes from Malone, N. Y., saying: "I was in a badly run-down condition for several weeks but two bottles of Vinol put me on my feet again and made me strong and well. Vinol has done me more good than all the other medicines I ever took."

If the careworn, run-down women, the pale, sickly children and feeble old folks around here would follow Miss Dumas' example, they, too, would soon be able to say that Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron remedy, had built them up and made them strong.

It is a wonderful, strength creator and body-builder, and we sell it under a guarantee of satisfaction. You get your money back if Vinol does not help you.

EXPANSION SAFETY BEHIND CURRENCY

OWEN SEES REMEDY FOR CALL LOAN EVIL UNDER THE NEW MEASURE.

WOULD SATISFY BIG BANKS

They Would Be Said to Have Speculative System Ended, He Tells Senate—One of the Benefits of the Pending Bill.

Washington.—Under the present system the bank reserves of the country are concentrated largely in New York, where they are loaned in speculative accounts on the New York stock exchange, Senator Owen asserted in opening the debate on the currency bill in the senate.

He declared the administration bill as reported by the Democrats of the banking currency would remedy this condition.

Senator Owen reviewed the details of the bill and urged that by the creation of a market for discounted commercial paper and by mobilizing the reserves in public utility regional banks, the measure would remove the great dangers of the present financial system.

Bankers Favor Change.

Declaring that at present New York bankers who hold a large percentage of the country's reserves are forced to place these reserves in call loans on the stock exchange, the senator said:

"We are advised by New York bankers the great banks there would be glad to have the system improved by the establishment of the federal reserve banks strong enough to furnish money on demand against good commercial bills, and thus enable the New York banks to withdraw their funds from the stock exchange—which has become the most gigantic gambling establishment in the world—and place such funds in the service of legitimate industry and commerce."

"This will be one of the great benefits of the pending measure—that is, will withdraw from the gambling enterprises on the stock exchanges the reserves of the country and enable such reserve to be used for the commerce of the nation."

Security Behind Currency.

In detail, Senator Owen explained the security which would be behind the new currency would be issued against commercial paper.

Besides this paper, he pointed out, the notes would be secured by the liability of the member bank discounting the paper, the liability of its stockholders, the liability of the reserve bank issuing the notes, and its stockholding banks, a 33-1/3 per cent gold reserve and the guarantees of the United States.

"There have never been issued a note with such safeguards surrounding it," he said.

FEDERALS ROUTED AFTER BRIEF FIGHT

ADVANCE ON JUAREZ REPULSED BY CONSTITUTIONALISTS AND HUERTA'S MEN FLEE.

GEN. VILLA TO FORCE BATTLE

Europeans in Capital Organizing to Defend Themselves—Germans Have Two Machine Guns, Supply of Rifles and Ammunition.

El Paso, Tex.—A message from Juarez says Gen. Villa, commander of the constitutionalist forces, returned to Juarez from the south with 50 men and reported that the federals, after a brief battle, fled from the constitutionalists below Terra Blanca. Terra Blanca is 22 miles south of Juarez.

Villa said a federal troop train came up in the night, but that the federals, when driven back, boarded their train again and departed for the south.

Gen. Villa departed from Juarez on a special train to join his troops below Terra Blanca, and on arrival will give the order for the march against the federals under Gens. Salazar, Caraveo, Hojas and Landa, at Samalayuca, six miles south of the rebel position.

EUROPEANS IN MEXICO CITY ORGANIZING FOR DEFENSE.

Mexico City, Mexico.—From the Austrian legation there was sent out to all Austrians a circular urging them to co-operate with other European colonies in organizing for defense. In this circular it is stated that the troops in the city are so few and uprisings against foreign residents so possible the legation deemed it wise to adopt defense measures.

Another circular issued by the Germans detailed the plan of organization. Men who served in the German army will direct affairs. The Germans have a fair supply of rifles and ammunition and two machine guns.

The Americans have made no systematic attempt to protect themselves, the disposition of the majority appearing to be to trust to Gen. Huerta and his forces or to luck.

Sullivan's Boom Launched.

Chicago, Ill.—Roger C. Sullivan's candidacy for the United States senate was formally launched while 2,000 of his followers gathered in Cohan's Grand Opera House, shouted themselves hoarse. Sullivan himself did not attend the meeting, nor did he make any formal announcement that he was a candidate for the seat of Lawrence Y. Sherman.

Bomb Factory is Found.

NEWS OF ILLINOIS AND ILLINOIS NEWS AGAIN

ITEMS OF GENERAL STATE INTEREST FRESH FROM THE TELEGRAPH.

WIND CAUSES MAN'S DEATH

Jacob Zeitch of Franklin, O., a Carpenter, is Blown from Roof of Eight-Story Building at Freeport.

Freeport.—A gust of wind blew Jacob Zeitch, a carpenter of Franklin, O., from the roof of an eight-story building. His body struck the roof of a freight house 80 feet below and then tumbled to some railway tracks. He was dead when companions reached him.

Lincoln.—Encouraged by cries of hundreds of persons in the street, Forrest Allison, a painter, hung five minutes by his hands to the cornice of a downtown building while rescuers made frantic efforts to reach him. A broken scaffold had hurled his companion, Harry Custer, thirty-four years old, to the pavement, where his skull was crushed and his neck broken. Once Allison looked down and saw the huddled body of Custer lying on the sidewalk and his nerve almost failed him. He was rescued from the roof just as his grip was slipping.

Springfield.—Preliminary plans for the coming meeting of the Illinois State Teachers' association, which will be held in Springfield, December 29 to 31, were discussed at a conference of Gerard T. Smith of Peoria, chairman of the state teachers' association, and Superintendent H. S. Magill of the city schools. The sessions of the coming state meeting will be held in representatives' hall. The meeting promises to be among the largest and most important of the association's history.

Springfield.—The "lid" was clamped a little tighter on Springfield when Chief of Police Underwood issued an order that no more cabaret shows would be tolerated. Fifteen places are affected. The city has been infested with criminals for several months, a series of train robberies, safe-blowings, burglaries and holdups having terrorized the citizens. Some of the cabaret resorts, are believed to have been a contributory cause.

Murphysboro.—Woodmen of the World will initiate 150 members here November 30. Col. A. A. Pearson's crack uniform drill team from Johnston City will do the work. Evan J. Morris of Chicago, a state manager, will preside. On December 7 a district initiation will take place at Lincoln, and later district meetings will be at East St. Louis, Harrisburg, Danville, Quincy and Rock Island.

Champaign.—Announcement that the University of Illinois will establish a normal school of physical education next year was made by Director of Athletics Huff in an address before the state high school teachers. He said: "It will be the purpose of the department to develop trained men, capable of taking charge, both of athletics and of physical training proper."

Joliet.—Joliet is terrorized by the worse epidemic of smallpox ever experienced in the history of the city. Dr. E. C. Crawford of the Illinois state board of health investigated conditions here and reported that he had personally seen 50 cases of genuine smallpox and that the number would increase rapidly unless drastic measures were immediately taken.

Duquoin.—After a week's strike, local bartenders went back to work, with the increase in wages they demanded granted. The men asked that their weekly pay be increased from $15 to $18. Duquoin will be the only oasis in Perry county after December 4, and the only "wet" town between Christopher and Lenzburg.

Chester.—After having been a fugitive from justice for eight years, William H. Greenlee was arrested in Clinton and placed in jail here to await the action of the December grand jury on charges of burglary and larceny. Eight years ago, it is alleged, Greenlee broke into a lumber office at Tilden and stole merchandise. He was arrested at the time, but jumped his bond.

Centralla.—Hasty Harrison, Steve Westfall and Frank Lakin, bootleggers rounded up at the time the Sullens-Harrison affair stirred Salem, were liberated, their sentences having expired. Harrison immediately was arrested by a United States marshal and taken to East St. Louis to answer to the charge of violating the federal liquor laws.

Bloomington.—Harry Cutter, a painter of Lincoln, Ill., was killed in a fall from a scaffold. His parents and a sister live at Olney, his former home.

Champaign.—Will Higginson shot and fatally injured Anna Bell Knox, alleging that she talked too much. Both are colored.

Byron.—Triplets, all girls, were born to Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Shugars of this city.

Sterling.—W. F. Flock of Sterling put five bushels of two-year-old popcorn into a feed grinder to crush it for fodder recently. The grinder is run at high speed and generated so much heat that before the machines could be stopped half of the corn had "popped."

Savanna.—The Whiteside County Farmers' institute will be held in Fulton December 10-11.

Anna.—Jacob Rendleman, fourteen years old, who died here of infantile paralysis, is perhaps the oldest victim of this disease to be stricken in this section.

This Time at the International Soil Products in Oklahoma.

Last year and the year before, and the year before that, the farm products of Western Canada carried off first premiums, championships and honors, together with medals and diplomas, tests that were likely to give a spelled head to any other people than those who had so much more behind. At Columbus, Ohio, and then again at Columbia, North Carolina, a farmer of Saskatchewan carried off the highest prize for oats, and in another year, will become the possessor of the $1,500 Colorado Trophy; another farmer made two successful exhibits of wheat at the biggest shows in the United States; another farmer of Manitoba won championships and sweepstakes at the live stock show in Chicago, and this year expects to duplicate his successes of last year.

These winnings are the more creditable as none of the cattle were ever fed any corn, but raised and fattened on mature grasses and small grains.

At the Dry Farming Congress held at Lethbridge in 1912, Alberta and Saskatchewan farmers carried off the principal prizes competing with the world. The most recent winnings of Canada have been made at Tulsa, Oklahoma, where seven of the eighteen sweepstakes rewards at the International Soil Products Exposition were taken by Canada in competition with eleven states.

The chief prize, a thrashing machine, valued at $1,200 for the best bushel of hard wheat, went to Peter Gerlack of Allan, Saskatchewan. Montana took four of the sweepstakes, Oklahoma four, and Nebraska two.

Russia sent one delegate, Spain had two, Belgium three, China four, Canada fifty, Mexico five, Norway one, Brazil three.

In the district in which the wheat was grown that won this prize, there were thousands of acres this year that would have done as well. Mr. Gerlack is to be congratulated as well as the Province of Saskatchewan, and Western Canada as a whole, for the great success that has been achieved in both grain and cattle.—Advertisement.

Didn't Impress Farmer.

An altercation arose between a farmer and a so-called expert in agriculture.

"Sir," said the expert, "do you realize that I have been at two universities, one in this country and one in Germany?"

"What of that?" demanded the farmer, with a faint smile. "I had a calf nursed by two cows, and the more he was nursed the greater calf he grew."

Had to Be Careful.

An old man who had led a sinful life was dying, and his wife sent for a nearby preacher to pray with him. The preacher spent some time praying and talking, and finally the old man said: "What do you want me to do, parson?"

"Renounce the devil! Renounce the devil!" replied the preacher.

"Well, but, parson," protested the dying man, "I ain't in position to make any enemies."

A Variable Measure.

"How long do you think a speech ought to be?" inquired the student.

"That depends entirely on how much time the gentlemen in charge expect you to kill with it."

STATE PROPERTY VALUE $7,169,261,523

Illinois Board of Equalization Issues Report.

SHOW $237,339,351 INCREASE

Tax Commission Consisting of Governor, Auditor and Treasurer, Will Meet to Fix Rate, Which Will Be Nearly 70 Cents.

Springfield.—Property of all classes in the state of Illinois is valued at $7,261,169,523 by the state board of equalization in returns made before the sine die adjournment. This is an increase of $237,339,351 over the total valuation of all classes of property as fixed by the board last year.

The state tax commission, consisting of Governor Dunne, Auditor Brady and Treasurer Ryan, will meet to fix the state tax rate for next year. According to estimates made by State Auditor Brady, the new rate will be around 70, which means a state tax of 70 cents upon every $100 of equalized assessment of property.

A year ago the state tax rate was fixed at 68. As a consequence of its being so low, the newly installed state officials declare, the ordinary working balance of between three million and four million dollars that was usually carried in the state treasury has been required to meet appropriations made before they were inducted into office, the low tax rate not producing sufficient revenue to meet the expenses of government.

In the judgment of Auditor Brady, based upon a careful calculation of the various sources of revenue, a state tax rate of 68 or 70 cents will produce sufficient revenue to meet the appropriations of the last general assembly and restore to the state treasury a working balance of approximately two and one-half million dollars.

About $1,850,000 is paid into the state treasury annually now by the Illinois Central railroad, under its charter. It is estimated that the fees from the secretary of state's office, insurance department and other state departments will show a substantial increase in the next year. It is impossible, of course, to estimate the amount of inheritance taxes that will be collected.

Appropriations of the last legislature aggregated $37,915,457.93, and of this amount $23,589,576.43 was appropriated for use by June 30 of next year. Approximately $7,725,000 already has been paid on this amount, leaving $15,864,576.42 to be paid before July 1 of next year, when the remainder of the appropriations made by the last legislature become payable.

Returns made by the equalizers show substantial increases in the valuation of every class of property with the single exception of the capital stock of railroads. This item shows a reduction of $505,596. In other classifications, however, the railroads were hard hit. The assessment on personal property and lots of railroads was increased $9,164,694, the assessment of their tangible property by the state board was increased $23,781,501 and the assessment of electric lines was raised $936,310, making a total increase in the assessments of railroads of $33,426,905.

The personal property assessment shows the greatest increase, this year's valuation being fixed at $1,528,371,142, which is an increase of $116,158,407 over last year's figures. The valuation of farm lands is raised $3,326,663, aggregating $2,084,215,731. Town and city lots are given a valuation of $2,927,417,271, an increase of $74,173,471 over last year.

The capital stock of corporations other than railroads is valued at $87,957,532, an increase of $4,754,901.

States More Places for Progressives.

Governor Dunne is reported to have determined to allot five minority state appointments to the Progressives, in addition to the two already given them.

The five positions and the probable Progressive appointees are:

Minority member industrial commission, Graham Romeyn Taylor, Chicago.

Minority member state civil service commission, Charles Ringer, Chicago.

Minority member live stock commission, E. J. Fellows, St. Charles.

Minority member San Francisco exposition commission, J. Y. Chisholm, Bloomington.

Minority member utilities commission, Frank H. Funk, Bloomington.

The two places previously awarded to the Progressives were a minority place on the Pontiac reformatory board and the minority place on the court of claims.

Eureka Man is Named.

The grand encampment of the Illinois Odd Fellows elected the following officers at a meeting in the city of Springfield:

Grand patriarch, A. J. Morey, Eureka; grand high priest, Norman Waltrip, Whitehall; grand senior warden, Mark Jardine, Rockford; grand scribe, Samuel J. Baker, Olney; grand treasurer, Samuel Watson, Champaign; grand junior warden, M. E. Heora, Springfield; grand representative, George B. Rolfe, Canton.

Holstein Breeders Meet.

The annual meeting of the Holstein-Friesian Breeders' association of Illinois was brought to a close in Springfield.

The report of the treasurer showed the association to be in a good financial condition.

The committee on membership reported the largest addition of new members during the past year of any previous year and that the organization was in a very prosperous condition financially with the utmost harmony and earnest purpose on the part of its large membership to promote the Holstein industry in Illinois.

The committee on the exhibit of Holsteins at the Illinois state fair by breeders of this state reported a large and highly creditable show. The meeting of the association at the state fair was most enjoyable and encouraging.

The matter of making a larger and better exhibit of Holsteins at each succeeding state fair by Illinois breeders was favorably commented upon and the following committee was appointed to confer with the state board of agriculture in reference to the next state fair classification for Holsteins and the selection of judges to pass upon the same, viz: Hon. Len Small, Maj. J. E. K. Herrick and Dr. F. A. Laird.

Major Herrick called attention to the growing interest in the breeding of Holstein cattle at the state charitable institutions of Illinois and favorably commented upon the very creditable exhibit of Holsteins made at the 1913 state fair by the state board in charge of the charitable institutions.

A vote of thanks was extended to the state board of administration for the creditable exhibition of Holsteins made at the state fair in 1913.

On motion Major Herrick was appointed a committee to report the above action of the Holstein-Friesian association of Illinois to the state board of administration.

The following were appointed a committee to co-operate with the state board of administration in the work of enlarging and improving the herds of Holsteins at the charitable institutions of the state, viz: J. E. K. Herrick; I. J. Case and F. M. Rule.

The applications of the breeders desirous of having a public sale of Holsteins in 1914 on the Illinois state fair grounds was discussed and on motion a committee was appointed to arrange for a public sale consisting of J. W. Garvey, Len Small and A. H. Nokes. The election of officers and directors for the ensuing year resulted as follows:

President—J. J. Case, Alta.
Vice-President—Len Small, Kankakee.

Treasurer—A. B. Nokes, Springfield.
Chairman Executive Committee—J. E. K. Herrick.

Members—J. J. Case, J. H. Shultze, F. E. Zimmerman and R. M. Rule of St. Jacobs.

Directors—J. E. K. Herrick, I. J. Case, J. H. Shultze, Joseph Simmons, F. M. Rule, Duncan McKenzie, Arthur Ware and H. F. Adams.

The following were appointed a committee to co-operate with the national society in the arrangements for the Chicago meeting of the Holstein-Friesian Association of America, viz: I. J. Case, Len Small and J. E. K. Herrick.

State-Wide Fire Drill is Urged.

School children of Illinois will observe December 5 as school "fire prevention" day. State Superintendent F. G. Blair, in a booklet which the state fire marshal's department sent out, urged a program for the afternoon and fire drills as one of the essential features of observance.

The booklet is designed to encourage greater care on the part of children in the matter of life preservation, and to instill in their minds the importance of the elimination of fire causes. That Illinois last year suffered a fire loss of $12,000,000 and a loss of 300 lives from fires, is mentioned by Acting State Fire Marshal F. R. Moga-ridge in the booklet.

The following program of exercises for the afternoon of December 5 is suggested:

Opening song—"America."
Reading of the governor's "proclamation."

Recitation—"The Fire Brigade."
Short talk by the teacher on the "Proper Method of Kindling a Fire."

Essay—"Cause of Fires and How to Avoid Them."
Recitation—"Engine No. 8."

Composition—"The Great Fires of the World."
Debate—"Resolved, That the Life of a Fireman is More Dangerous Than That of a Policeman."

Instructions by the teacher on "What to Do in Case One's Clothing is on Fire."
Song—"Illinois."

N. B.—Other things that might be used in a program of this character are the "Story of the Chicago Fire," "The Burning of Rome," "Causes of Fire and How to Avoid Them," and "Dangers in the Use of Gasoline," "Prairie Fires," "Forest Fires," and "Fires at Sea."

Illinois Could Furnish 50,000.

That Illinois, in the event of war with Mexico, could furnish 50,000 unarmed volunteers within a week is the belief of Governor Dunne, the state military commander-in-chief. The governor, whose personal aversion to war at this time is no secret, had occasion to estimate the state's patriotism as measured by a probable gift of men for war, in response to a query which he received from the Sunday editor of the New York Sun, who evidently is compiling a list of governor's opinions on the war situation.

WEDDING OF MISS JESSIE WILSON AND FRANCIS B. SAYRE

Mr. and Mrs. Sayre and East Room in Which They Were Wedded.

Washington, Nov. 25.—Jessie Woodrow Wilson, second of President Wilson's three daughters, was married to Francis Bowes Sayre at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon. The ceremony took place in the east room of the White House, and was performed by Rev. Sylvester Beach of Princeton, N. J., the president's former pastor and the close friend of the Wilson family for many years.

The entire affair was very simple, as had been requested by the bride, and the number of guests was rather small—distressingly so to many persons in official and social circles of Washington who had expected to receive invitations but were disappointed.

Miss Margaret Woodrow Wilson, eldest of the three daughters, acted as maid of honor to her sister, and Miss Eleanor Randolph Wilson, the youngest, was one of the bridesmaids. The three other bridesmaids were Miss Adeline Mitchell Scott of Princeton, daughter of Prof. William B. Scott; Miss Marjorie Brown of Atlanta, Pa., daughter of Mrs. Wilson's cousin, Col. E. T. Brown, and Miss Mary G. White of Baltimore, a college friend of the bride.

Dr. Grenfell is Best Man. Mr. Sayre was attended by his best man, Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell, the famous medical missionary to the fishermen of the Labrador coast. The two men have long been fast friends and Mr. Sayre spent two summers helping Dr. Grenfell with his work.

The ushers were Charles E. Hughes, Jr., son of Justice Hughes of the Supreme court and a classmate of Mr. Sayre in the Harvard law school; Dr. Gilbert Horax of Montclair, N. J., who was a classmate at Williams college in 1909 and now at Johns Hopkins university; Benjamin Burton of New York city, and Dr. Scoville Clark of Salem, Mass., who was Mr. Sayre's companion in Labrador and Newfoundland.

Wedding Gown of Ivory Satin.

The bride's gown was of satin, of a soft ivory tint, trimmed with beautiful lace, both old and rare. It was made in New York and the women connoisseurs declared that it was a masterpiece. The lingerie in the trousseau is of the most dainty material and is all hand made. The maid of honor and bridesmaids were beautifully gowned and all looked their best.

Coming right in the midst of the chrysanthemum season, this was made a chrysanthemum wedding and that flower was used most profusely in adorning the White House. As the bride's favorite color is mauve, that was made the prevailing color in the decorations. The east room, and indeed all the rooms in the president's mansion, were beautiful indeed.

Depart on Their Honey-moon.

After the ceremony was completed and the couple had received the congratulations of the guests, refreshments were served, and then Mr. and Mrs. Sayre departed for their honeymoon. Their plans include a visit to the home of Miss Nevin, Mr. Sayre's aunt, at Windsor Forge, near Churchtown, Pa., where they first met. After January 1 they will live in Williams-town, Mass., for Mr. Sayre is to sever his connection with the office of District Attorney Whitman in New York and become assistant to Harry A. Garfield, president of Williams college.

There was one disappointment for those who attended the wedding, for the gifts were not put on display. It is known that these included many beautiful and valuable articles sent by relatives and personal friends of the bride and groom and of their families, and by admirers of President Wilson. Handsome presents were sent by both the senate and the house, that of the latter being a diamond lavalliere which Miss Genevieve Clark, daughter of the speaker, bought for the representatives in New York.

Guests Limited to 400.

Those who were invited to witness the wedding were mostly personal friends and the number was kept down close to four hundred. The list was pared and revised several times, and as has been said, the operation resulted in many heartburnings. From the house of representatives' circle, for instance, the only guests were Speaker Champ Clark, Mrs. Clark and Miss Genevieve Clark, Marjory Lender Underwood and Mrs. Underwood, and Minority Leader Mann and Mrs. Mann.

As might be expected, the streets outside the White House were as crowded as the police would permit with curious persons eager to watch the arrival and departure of the guests.

Gift of the House.

This is the diamond lavalliere which was the wedding present of the house of representatives to Jessie Woodrow Wilson.

and trying to obtain through the windows a glimpse of the doings within. The police arrangements were admirable and nothing happened, in the White House or outside, to mar the happy occasion.

Immense Wedding Cake.

Jessie Wilson's wedding cake was a triumph of the pastry cook's art. It was two and a half feet tall, counting the white orchids that were placed on top of it, and weighed 135 pounds. The first layer was four inches thick and 23 inches across. The cake contained 19 ingredients and its cost was about $500. Over the body of the cake was molded a thick white icing scroll work, on its top was a design for the initials of the bride and groom, done in silver, and around the sides were lilacs of the valley in white sugar. This delicious confection was distributed in 3,000 dainty white boxes tied with satin ribbon and each of the proper size to go under the pillow of the recipient to bring dreams.

Mrs. Sayre was born in Gettysville, Pa., twenty-five years ago. She attended the Women's college at Baltimore and was an honor member of the class of 1905, being also elected a member of Phi Beta Kappa. For two years after her graduation she engaged in settlement work in Kensington, Pa., and she is a member of the executive board of the National Young Woman's Christian association. She has delivered several excellent addresses in public.

In appearance she does not resemble her father as much as do her sisters, having rather the features of her mother's family, the Axsons.

Something About the Groom.

Francis Bowes Sayre is twenty-eight years old, and was born at South Bethlehem, Pa., a son of the late Robert Heysham Sayre, who built the Lehigh Valley railroad and at one time was assistant to the president of the Bethlehem iron works, since known as the Bethlehem steel works. He was also once president of the board of trustees of the Lehigh university.

Francis Bowes Sayre graduated from Lawrenceville school, Lawrenceville, N. J., in 1904, and from Williams college in 1909. He entered Harvard law school and graduated "cum laude." He was a member of the Sigma Phi fraternity, Gargoyles society and the Phi Beta Kappa at Williams. For the past year he has been working in the office of District Attorney Whitman of New York. During the summer he was admitted to the bar of New York state.

Mr. Sayre's mother is Mrs. Martha Finlay Sayre, daughter of the late William Nevin, who was president of Franklin and Marshall college at Lancaster, Pa. She is a descendant of John Williamson of North Carolina, one of the framers of the Constitution of the United States, and is a sister of the late Robert Nevin, head of the American church at Rome, and a cousin of Ethelbert Nevin, the composer.

Other White House Weddings.

The wedding of Jessie Wilson and Francis Sayre was the thirtieth to be solemnized in the White House. The first was that of Anna Todd, a niece of Dolly Madison's first husband, and John G. Jackson. Then Mrs. Madison's sister, Lucy, was married to Judge Todd of Kentucky. The third wedding, that of Maria Monroe, daughter of President Monroe, to Samuel Lawrence Gouverneur in 1820 marked the first social use of the east room. Eight years later John, the second son of President John Quincy Adams, married his cousin, Mary Hellen, in the blue room. While General Jackson was president there were three weddings in the White House, those of Delia Lewis to Alphonse Joseph Yver Fagot of the French legation; Mary Eaton to Lucien B. Polk, and Emily Martin to Louis Randolph. Many years passed before there was another marriage ceremony in the president's mansion, the next being of Nellie, the only daughter of General Grant, and Algernon C. F. Sartoris. In 1876 Emily Platt, a niece of Mrs. Hayes, was married in the blue room to Gen. Russell Hastings. The eleventh of this series of weddings was that of President Cleveland to Frances Folson, and the twelfth that of President Roosevelt's daughter Alice, to Nicholas Longworth.

SATISFIED WITH HIS BARGAIN

Dramatic Press Agent Had Confidence in Barber for Somewhat Peculiar Reason.

Frank P. Morse, dramatic press agent, met Ralph A. Graves, the dramatic critic, in New York one morning. They went down to a barber shop.

Graves heard Morse talking to the barber, whose voice indicated that he was at least eight feet tall and in the best of health.

"Now," said the barber, "your hair's falling out. What you want to do is to have it shingled and singed and then treated with crude oil, ending up with an electric massage and a few other jolts."

Morse, who has a suit of hair like a cluster of copper wire, inquired as to the cost.

"One dollar and ninety cents," replied the barber.

"Proceed," said Morse, settling back.

When Graves got out of the chair and took a look at Morse's barber, he rushed over to the victim's chair.

"Why, Frank," he expostulated, "that man who's treating your hair is as bald as an egg and you're throwing away a dollar and ninety cents."

"Is he bald?" asked Morse dreamily. "Not a hair on his head," replied Graves.

"Well," explained the victim, gently, "that's why he knows how not to make my hair fall out."—Popular Magazine.

Too Successful.

Quizzer—What's the matter, old man? You look worried.

Sixer—I have cause to. I hired a man to trace my pedigree.

Quizzer—Well, what's the trouble? Hasn't he been successful?

Sixer—Successful! I should say he has! I'm paying him bush money!

His Specialty.

"What does your member of congress think of these questions?"

"He don't pay no 'tention to questions," replied Farmer Cornatossel.

"He's the man that knows what all the answers are, without botherin' 'bout the questions."

Nuff Cudd!

Ethel—Jack said last night he'd kiss me or die in the attempt.

Kitty—Good gracious! And did he kiss you?

Ethel—Well, you haven't heard of his death, have you?

Heard at Long Range.

Uppson—You have a new baby at your house, I hear.

Downing—Great guns! And we live four miles apart! I had no idea anyone could hear him that distance!

London Tit-Bits.

Insulted.

"Why didn't you go to work for him?"

"He insulted me."

"How?"

"I asked him for a situation and he offered me a job."

His Retort.

"You proposed to me a dozen times before I finally accepted you."

"Yes, I always do have a tough time getting you to agree to anything I want."—Detroit Free Press.

Who Was Sick?

"I called a doctor last night."

"Was anybody sick?"

"Yes, he was when he saw the hand I held."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Physically Impossible.

"Maud made a mesalliance with an aviator."

"Well, how on earth could her family consider an aviator beneath them?"

Mean Intimation.

Cholly—Did you see where they had such a big lobster in Boston?

Maude—Why, you weren't there, were you?

Mixed Information.

"Asteroids? What are asteroids?"

"They're the things doctors take out of children's noses."—Baltimore American.

FULLY-NOURISHED

Grape-Nuts a Perfectly Balanced Food.

No chemist's analysis of Grape-Nuts can begin to show the real value of the food—the practical value as shown by personal experience.

It is a food that is perfectly balanced, supplies the needed elements for both brain and body in all stages of life from the infant, through the strenuous times of active middle life, and is a comfort and support in old age.

"For two years I have used Grape-Nuts with milk and a little cream, for breakfast. I am comfortably hungry for my dinner at noon.

"I use little meat, plenty of vegetables and fruit, in season, for the noon meal, and if tired at tea time, take Grape-Nuts alone and feel perfectly nourished.

"Nerve and brain power and memory are much improved since using Grape-Nuts. I am over sixty and weigh 155 lbs. My son and husband seeing how I had improved are now using Grape-Nuts.

"My son, who is a traveling man, eats nothing for breakfast but Grape-Nuts and a glass of milk. An aunt, over 70, seems fully nourished on Grape-Nuts and cream." "There's a Reason."

A New Back for an Old One—How a Sullivan Resident Made a Bad Back Strong.

The back aches at times with a dull, indescribable feeling, making you weary and restless; piercing pains shoot across the region of the kidneys, and again the loins are so lame that to stoop is agony. No use to rub or apply a plaster to the back if the kidneys are weak. You cannot reach the cause. Follow the example of this Sullivan citizen.

Albert Burwell, Sullivan, Illinois, says: "For three years I suffered almost constantly from backache and at times the pains in my loins were so severe that I could not straighten. I slept poorly and it was not until six months ago that I found that my kidneys were causing all the suffering. When I found this out, I procured a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills at Hall's Drug store and began using them. They gave me prompt relief."

APPENDICITIS
Treated and cured without an operation by the use of my SPECIAL FORMULA OF INTERNAL MEDICINE perfected years ago.

I have a RECORD of hundreds of cases of APPENDICITIS treated and cured without an operation. This RECORD is open for inspection to those interested. If your family physician can not cure appendicitis without an OPERATION have him come with you: I will give him some valuable information.

Liver and Intestinal Disorders:
Inactive or Torpid Liver. Intestinal Fermentation and Putrefaction. Intestinal Auto-Intoxication and Complications.

Bile Tract Infection:
Inflammation of Gall, Bladder and Duets. Catarrhal Jaundice. Gall Stone Diseases, and Sequelae.

DISEASE OF THE STOMACH
Years ago I perfected a SPECIAL FORMULA OF INTERNAL MEDICINE for the treatment and cure of diseases of the stomach. I have a RECORD of hundreds of cases cured. I am better able to handle those cases for they have been my specialty all my professional life.

I DO NOT TRAVEL
It is not necessary for me to travel. Patients are coming from all parts of the state. My time is fully taken. You must secure a date before coming. Many dates are taken in advance. I accept, examine and give treatment to only two patients in one day. No Sunday work. Office closed on Sunday.
