THE TRAPPER'S DAUGHTER.

BY WILLIAM EARLE BINDER.

Benjamin Hubbel, or Dad Hubbel, as his friends familiarly called him, made his home in the wilderness of the Far West. For many long years he had lived the life of a trapper. Bold, brave, fearless, and better still, fair and honest in all his doings, though not a saint, Dad Hubbel was well known to all the roving characters in that section of the country. Those who, like himself, were fair and honest, respected and admired him; while those whose reputation was of a contrary description—and there were many of that class—bore him no good will.

When Hubbel first made his appearance in the western country, he was quite a young man, and was accompanied by his wife, a youthful and very pretty woman. Not long afterward, however, the latter gave birth to an infant, and to Hubbel's inexpressible grief, breathed away her last breath almost at the moment that the little stranger first saw the light.

From that time out little Constance—Hubbel named her after his dead wife—became the trapper's principal care.

Time passed, and Constance grew to be a woman of twenty. All her life long she had been surrounded by many dangers, and, as might be expected, had many hair-breadth escapes, not the least interesting of which we are now about to relate.

Constance, or Con, as her father was in the habit of calling her, was a very handsome young woman, and many a longing eye was turned upon her, not, however, in all cases by the most honest or scrupulous of the trappers. But Hubbel had no idea of parting with his daughter, and Constance had yet to see the man whom she could really love.

With these few preliminary remarks always necessary to a proper understanding of what follows, we will turn our attention to the incident which forms the groundwork of this sketch.

A short time previous to the date of our story Hubbel had mortally offended a desperado by the name of Josh Wheeler. The straight-going trapper had detected the said Wheeler in a very dishonest act, and besides interfering with the rascal's plans, he had threatened him with the most summary punishment if ever again he were found at any such tricks.

Wheeler had always hated Hubbel, as the bad frequently will hate the good, without any just cause, but after that occasion his feelings amounted to something more, if such a thing were possible. He burned for vengeance, and impatiently watched for a favorable opportunity to gratify his desire. Hubbel was not slow divining the outlaw's thoughts, and consequently kept his eyes and ears wide open.

Some time passed in this manner, and one evening when Hubbel was away from his cabin, Wheeler, accompanied by an associate fully as mendacious as himself, stealthily approached the trapper's hide shanty. Constance was all alone, for no one occupied the cabin but her father, herself, and a huge shaggy dog, and the latter was then away with the trapper.

Outside the door the two desperadoes halted for a moment.

"Thar's more ways than wun to fetch a man to his feelin's, an' Dad Hubbel'll find it out afore long," whispered Wheeler, savagely. "Jest let me wunst git that gal o' his'n in my power, an' see if I don't make him smoke! I know the cuss loves that gal better nor his life—better than if she wur a solid lump o' ginewine gold, an' that's jest the reason I'm goin' to steal her away. Blast him, I'll tech him in the tenderest spot, or my name is not Josh Wheeler." Stepping back a pace or two he, added, "Now, for a rush, an' away with the gal afore the ole feller lights on us!"

"Dash away, my hearty; I'm about, I am!" was the response of the other.

"Now fur it, then!"
With a leap, the desperadoes rushed at the door of the cabin, and bust it in. The trapper's daughter was standing in the center of the little apartment. The suddenness of the attack had entirely unstrung her nerves. She trembled with alarm.

"Cum, my beauty, we want yer!" cried Wheeler, making a grab at the bewildered girl. "No tricks, or we'll make mince meat out o' yer!" he added, wickedly.

All at once Constance appeared to realize her position—appeared to comprehend the purpose of the outlaws.—With a suppressed scream, she suddenly dodged beneath Wheeler's arm, and before she could be prevented, rushed from the house.

"After her, Dick Tomar, after her!" yelled Wheeler to his associate.

Quick as flash, the two men darted from the cabin, in pursuit of Constance. By that time the trapper's daughter was some distance away, fleeing with the speed of the wind. Where she was going, however, she did not know. Her only thought was to escape her pursuers.

On, she went; and on, on followed the two outlaws.

Through the deep forest Constance held on her course, stretching nerve to its utmost tension. Gradually, however, the outlaws gained upon her.—She could not see them, but she could tell it by the sound. She tried to increase her speed, but vainly. She drew her breath in short and labored puffs. Her skirts, brief as they were, impeded her progress. They caught in the low branches and vines, and were torn into shreds. For the time being an indelible fear held complete possession of the trapper's daughter. She felt she would rather die than her pursuers should catch her.

At length she began to tire. At length she felt that her power of endurance was giving out. Much longer she could not hold upon her course; and what then would become of her? Dreadful question!

The outlaws, too, began to show signs of weariness, for the trapper's daughter had led them no fool of a race. Forest born and forest reared, she was capable of considerable endurance, as she had already fully proven. Besides, the desperadoes were incumbered by the weight of their rifles.

Still Constance held on though her heart quaked as she experienced the increasing evidence of exhaustion.—She felt that she must soon faint and fall in her tracks. Nature would not bear up any longer, for already she had passed over several miles of ground though not in a direct course. A firm began to gather over her eyes—a ringing sound was in her ears—her head swam round—her heart beat against her ribs in a terrible and overpowering manner.

She tried in vain to shake off these dreadful feelings. They were past her power to master. In her despair she called upon heaven to give her strength and bent again to the race.

Suddenly Dick Tomar halted, panting for breath.

"Cuss me, Jqsh, if I kin hold on eny longer!" he cried, between his gasps. "That gal runs like a deer. Never seed the like afore. I'll swar we'd never ketch her if she'd kept that up."

Wheeler stopped suddenly, took several long drawn breaths and replied: "True as preachin, Dick Tomar! I must have her, though, dead or alive, an' if can't ketch her, or skeer her inter stoppin', cuss me if I don't send a bullet through her!"

He dropped upon his knee and sighted his rifle, taking deliberate aim at the tottering girl.

"Tell her to stop, Dick, or I'll shoot her!" said he.

"Look har, gal!" shouted Tomar, in stentorian tones, "ef yer don't stop at wunst yer'll git a bullet through yer pooty body, sartin!"

Constance heard the words, and a sickening sensation crept over her.—She stopped, turned round, and faced the outlaws. A wild, imploring look, rested upon her white face. For a moment she stood so, and then she reeled and fell to the ground.

Wheeler exulted at the sight.

"Hurra, Dick, I've got the wench, sartin!" he yelled, as he sprang to his feet and dashed forward. "Cuss her!" he added, bitterly, "I'll make her pay for the race she's giv us!"

Tomar followed him. In a few moments they reached the young girl's side. Constance was insensible.—Wheeler bent down over her.

"She's pooty, ain't she!" said he to Tomar, with a leer.

"Like a pictur!" was the response.

"Har, Dick, carry my shooter, and I'll carry the gal," added Wheeler, as he made a movement to lift Constance from the ground. Again he bent down over the trapper's daughter. Suddenly the report of a rifle rang out on the air. With a loud shriek he staggered to his feet, reeled several paces away, striking blindly at the air, and fell to the ground, a red stream oozing rapidly from a hole in his chest.

Tomar looked around in bewilderment.

Almost instantaneously with the report, and the shriek of the outlaw, the person who had shot Wheeler burst forth from his concealment. He came on, running at the top of his speed. In advance of him bounded forward a large and powerful dog.

"Dad Hubbel, by —!" exclaimed Tomar, throwing away the rifles and taking to his heels, without waiting for anything further.

The outlaw had not gotten but a little distance away, notwithstanding he ran at an unusual pace, when Hubbel reached the side of his still unconscious daughter.

"The bloody villains! I believe they've killed my darlin' child!" he cried, as he bent over the apparently lifeless form of Constance. Pointing his finger after Tomar, he suddenly added, addressing his dog, "Bring that fellow back, General!"

The dog gave one loud bark, and at a single spring cleared nearly a dozen feet of ground.

Tomar soon heard the animal in pursuit of him, and exerted all his powers. He had never before displayed so much of the racer's qualities, but nevertheless the dog was within a few feet of him in a very short period. He felt that escape was hopeless—felt that he had to fight for his life, and with no common foe. Drawing his knife, he stopped, turned round, and stood on the defensive. The dog did not hesitate, however, did not pause in his rapid career, but bounded right at Tomar's throat, and before the outlaw had time to use his weapon, bore him to the ground. The force of the assault, the stunning effect of the fall, and the grip of the powerful brute, deprived the desperado of all power, and the knife flew from his nerveless hand far out of reach. He was at the mercy of the dog, and, under the circumstances, the latter was not likely to spare him.

In a few moments Tomar recovered a degree of consciousness, and rendered desperate by the pain he was suffering, turned upon his canine assailant. Every effort that he made, however, and rendered the fierce dog still more ferocious. Blood flowed from the outlaw's neck in a stream. The dog knew no mercy then, for his master had set him on.

Suddenly Tomar became too weak, too faint, to struggle any more. He was nearly gone. General, as his master called him, appeared to realize that he had conquered, and paused in his bloody work. After waiting a few moments, the dog took a firm grip of the sleeve of Tomar's hunting shirt, and backing himself off, dragged the desperado after him.

Meanwhile Hubbel had been exerting every effort in his power to revive Constance. At first he believed her dead, and acted like one insane. In that thought everything else was forgotten. After a time, however, the young girl began to show signs of returning animation, and in a little while she opened her eyes and recognized her father.

"Father, dear father, you here?" she murmured.

"Thank the Lord, darlin', I am! an' ready to die for you, if need be," tremulously responded the trapper, as he folded his daughter to his bosom.

"And where are they, father?" demanded Constance, not yet having noticed the body of Wheeler.

"Thar's one of the villains," responded the trapper pointing with his finger, "and I guess General will give some account of t'other."

At that moment the dog made his appearance, still dragging along the mangled body of Tomar.

Hubbel spoke a few words to his daughter and went forward to meet him. After calling the dog away, he bent down and examined the body of the outlaw.

"General has done his work," said he; "the villain is dead. 'Twas a miserable death, sartin, but the scoundrel deserved it, an' I can't feel any pity for him. However, soon as I take my darlin' home, I'll come back an' bury their carcasses. Now, General, come along."

Hubbel turned away, and the dog followed him. On reaching his daughter, he communicated to her the fate of the other desperado, and then made preparations to return to their rude home. Finding Constance much too weak to walk, he took her up in his arms, and carried her to their cabin.

A few days the young girl was entirely recovered from the effects of her adventure.

A young lady, just graduated from a certain academy, remarked the other day, "I cannot conceive how the young gentlemen can drink to each a recess, when they know it is so conjunctious to their institution."

Napoleon Explains Matters.

New York, Aug. 3.
The steamship Ocean Queen, from Havre and Southampton, arrived here after midnight.

Her advices have been mainly anticipated by the Anglo Saxons, at Quebec.

Dr. Merrit, U. S. consul at Tunis is a passenger.

The Atlantic telegraph shares are advancing in price.

The Paris Moniteur, of the 30th, has the following defence of the peace treaty by Napoleon:

Yesterday evening the Emperor received the great bodies of state, the presidents of which, M. Troplong, Count De Morney, and M. Brocher, addressed congratulatory speeches to his Majesty. The Emperor thanked them for their devotion, and then explained the reason for his conduct during the late events. He said: Arrived beneath the walls of Verona, the struggle was inevitably about to change its nature as well in a military as a political aspect. Obliging to attack the enemy in front, who was entrenched by great fortresses and, protected on his flank by the neutrality of the surrounding territory, and about to begin a long and barren war, I found myself in the face of Europe in arms, ready to dispute our successes or aggravate our reverses.

Nevertheless, the difficulty of the enterprise would not have shaken my resolution, if the means had not been out of proportion to the results to be expected. It was necessary to crush boldly the obstacles opposed, and then to accept a conflict on the Rhine, as well as on the Adige. It was necessary to fortify ourselves openly with the concurrence of revolution. It was necessary to go on spending precious blood and at last risk that which a sovereign should only take for the independence of his country. If I have stopped it, it was neither through weariness or exhaustion, nor through abandoning the noble cause which I desired to serve, but the interests of France. I felt great reluctance to put reins upon the ardor of our soldiers, to retrench from my programme the territory of the Mincio to the Adriatic, and to see vanish from honest hearts, noble delusions and of patriotic hopes.

In order to serve the independence of Italy, I made war against the mind of Europe, and as soon as the destiny of my country might be endangered, I made peace. Our efforts and our sacrifices—have they been merely losses? No. We have a right to be proud of this campaign. We have vanquished an army, numerous, brave and well organized. Piedmont has been delivered from invasion; her frontiers have been extended to the Mincio. The idea of an Italian nationality has been admitted by those who controlled it. Most all the Sovereigns of the Peninsula comprehend the wants of salutary reforms. Thus, after having given a new proof of the military power of France, the peace concluded will be prolific of happy results. The future will every day reveal additional cause for the happiness of Italy, the influence of France, and the tranquility of Europe.

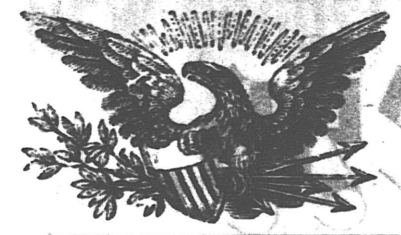

"For my part, Mrs. Cavendish, when I go out, I don't want above all things, to be bothered with a man."

"Well I'm pretty much of the same mind, Mrs. Rattle, but after all, in getting into a small store, an omnibus, or a pew, I must say it is quite handy to have a man behind to push in the hoops!"

A Connecticut school-master asked a lad from Newport "How many Gods there were?" The boy, after scratching his head some time replied—"I don't know how many you've got in Connecticut, but we have none in Rhode Island."

When bent on matrimony, look more than skin deep for beauty, dive further than the pocket for worth, and search for temper beyond the glow of the moment.

A young lady, who was urged to study French, replied that she thought one tongue sufficient for any woman. Sensible lady that.

JOSEPH H. WAGGONER, Editor & Publisher.

SULLIVAN, ILLINOIS.

Friday, August 12, 1860.

FOR PRESIDENT IN 1860,

Hon. S. A. Douglas.

TO OUR READERS.

We Club, only, with such publications as we can recommend.

The EXPRESS and GODEY'S LADY'S BOOK can be had for $3.25.

We will furnish the EXPRESS, and the ATLANTIC MONTHLY, for $3 per year. The EXPRESS, and the PRAIRIE FARMER, for $2.25 per annum. The EXPRESS, and the NORTH-WESTERN PRAIRIE FARMER, for $2 a year.

Call at our office and see specimens. Messrs. Rounds & Langdon are our authorized Advertising Agents in Chicago.

Religious.

Rev. Joel Knight will preach on the first and third Sabbath in each month, at the Presbyterian Church, at 11 o'clock A. M.

Rev. Wm. H. McVey will preach at the above place next Sabbath, (the 13th inst.) at 3 o'clock P. M., and subsequently every two weeks.

Preaching every Sunday, at 11 o'clock, at the Christian church.

We are authorized to announce the name of COL. J. W. R. MORGAN as a candidate for the office of Treasurer and Assessor, at the ensuing November election. MANY VOTERS.

"MR. WAGGONER, of the Sullivan Express, is too smart a man for so plebeian a name as he bears or so humble a position as editor of a country newspaper. Any man that can see that the present status of the colored race in Massachusetts or Maine logically pledges the Republican party to negro equality, ought to be a lawyer or a grocery keeper. We are in favor of letting those States which see fit grant political rights to negroes, yet we are not one of those who would do it; and such, we think, is the general sentiment of the Republican party.—Even Mr. Douglas has disclaimed any right or duty to interfere in such a case."

We clip the above clear and lucid exposition of the Republican platform from the Springfield Independent.—We will not dispute with the editor of that paper about names. We will admit for the purposes of argument that Wheler is a more classical name than Waggoner; and yet we don't see that that will change the position of parties, or have much influence on the next Presidential election.

The Independent started out with the broad position, that neither Republican convention, nor prominent Republican orator, had ever even squinted at negro equality; and pledged himself if such could be shown to be the case, that he would cast his (great) influence in the scale against that party. When we prove that many of the leading Republican Senators of the United States voted against the admission of Oregon into the Union, because its constitution ignored negro citizenship; and show, by the statements of their own chosen Senators, that the black Republican States of Maine and Massachusetts have bestowed upon the negroes all the rights of citizenship; then Mr. Wheler dodges the question by saying that each State has the right to regulate this matter for itself! No one denies this. But the question is, will not this same party, should it become firmly established in other States, carry out the same principles it has inaugurated in Maine and Massachusetts? The fact that the great body of the leaders resist the admission of a State into the Union because its constitution denies negro citizenship, goes a long way to establish the fact, that negro equality is one of the tenets of that party, to be practically enforced whenever and wherever they may safely try the experiment.

I allow the editor of the Independent is better posted on the price of whiskey than he is on national politics, we doubt his capacity either for a lawyer or a politician.

Pictures! Pictures!!

Mr. E. H. HAWLEY is now stopping in our midst for a few days, with his splendid Daguerrean Car, for the purpose of taking likenesses for everybody and their children. His prices are very moderate, and his facilities for taking good and durable pictures are seldom ever met with in these parts. We have examined his specimens, and pronounce them first class—really, they are so life-like, that we were led to exclaim:—

"What find I here? Fair Portia's counterfeit? what demy-god hath come so near creation?" As this is a better opportunity than is usually to be had for getting superior likenesses, we would advise the lovers of the beautiful to improve it well.—All work warranted. Call and see him at his Car, south side of the court house. Call early.

Our friend, B. B. Petticoord, has our thanks for the present of a whapping great whaling big watermelon, left at our office the other day. We think it hard to beat in size and quality by any melon raiser in any country. He says that he has quite a 'patch' of this delicious article about ripe. He remarked that the reason he brought it, was that he was afraid the blamed printers would steal some from him. Please, won't some one else become alarmed, too?

We see the name of Hon. URI MANLY prominently mentioned in connection with the nomination for Treasurer of State, by the next Democratic State Convention. MR. MANLY is an old well tried citizen, and faithful Democrat, possessed of all the Jeffersonian qualifications, and we earnestly hope that he may receive and accept the nomination.

PETERSON'S MAGAZINE, For next month, again dazzles the eyes of the world in its beauty and splendor—always first to make its appearance, and among the last to be laid aside. Ladies, subscribe for it.

We had the promise some time since of the Mattoon Union Fair Premium List, and have been looking for it to come ever since. Why hasn't it come?

DARK (EY) COMPLEXION.—Those of our citizens desirous of obtaining something to read, which abuses Democracy and its principles, and loves and praises the negro, advocating in bold colors negro equality in every particular, can not do better than to subscribe for "The Reformer," (see another column), a real red-eyed Abolition sheet, published monthly, at Aurora, Ill., at a dollar a year.

The story on first page is from that most excellent paper, the New YORK WEEKLY. It is decidedly superior, in several particulars, in our opinion, to the New York Ledger, or any other literary paper published.

NEW WESTERN COUNTERFEITS.—Edgar County Bank, Illinois, 5s altered—viz., loading hogs on cars. Garden State Bank, Illinois, 5s, 10s, 20s, altered—harvest scene—two children on lower right. Reedsburg Bank, Wisconsin, 10s altered—viz., man feeding hogs. Bank of Green Bay, Wisconsin, 5s, altered from 1s by pasting. Bank of Manitowoc, Wisconsin, 5s altered from 1s—viz., wharfing scene—deer on lower left corner; well done. Sank City Bank Wisconsin, 10s, altered from 2s—viz., farm scene.

The work of fencing our Fair Ground is progressing finely. It will be completed in a few days; and none of the surrounding counties can beat it; in our opinion. By reference to the first column, it will be seen that Col. Morgan's name is announced as a candidate for the office of Treasurer and Assessor of this county, at the coming election. The Democracy could not have found a safer, sounder man.

Thanks to Willie Cleveland for nice large sweet potatoes, of this year's growth—enough for a success.

The Charleston Convention.

The friends of the various Presidential aspirants are watching every suggestion with reference to the Charleston convention with much interest. In common with many other Democratic journals, we, a few weeks ago, advocated the holding of the Charleston convention at a somewhat earlier period than the month of June, for the simple reason that the intense heat of month would prove not only inconvenient, but intolerable to the delegates from the New England, Northern, and Western States. This is considered a suspicious movement. The convention will be held during a month when thousands of the citizens of Charleston leave the city to avoid the scorching heat. At such a time a southern city crowded to suffocation, hotels overflowing, and private boarding-houses filled, cannot present many comforts.

Those who sweltered in Baltimore at the same season of the year, in 1852, and at Cincinnati in 1856, may form some idea of the torture which is in store for them in a city where strawberries and green peas are at their prime early in the month of April.—We speak knowingly when we say, that whilst a convention of Salamanders might find Charleston pleasant in June, such will not be the case with the delegates to the Democratic National Convention.

The final disposition of the time and place for holding the convention rests, we believe, with the National Executive Committee of the Democratic party, and we trust that they will give the whole subject a careful consideration. If the convention meets in Charleston at a pleasant season of the year, it will be the most pleasant ever held. The city of Charleston is one of the most striking, peculiar and attractive cities in the Union, and the citizens the most chivalrous, cultivated and hospitable. In architecture, habits, style of living, and tone of thought, the people of Charleston are unlike the people of any other city of the Union. So great their courtesy, forbearance and respect for the properties of life, that nothing is more ludicrous to those who have seen them in their homes, than the absurd newspaper articles which are going the rounds about "Charleston Mobs," and delegates from the North being in danger of being "slain in the streets." The people of Charleston are among the most quiet, orderly, and thoroughly well-bred people in the world. The delegates to the convention, if it is held in June, will have much more to fear from "sun strokes" than from "bowie knives and revolvers."

Elections.

Petersburg, Va., Aug. 6. The returns from North Carolina show the following results of the election held yesterday:

In the 4th district Hon. L. O'B. Branch, democrat, is certainly elected. Complete returns from three counties in the 1st district show a gain of 920 votes for Smith, opposition, over H. M. Shaw, democrat, compared with the vote of 1855, when Shaw was elected by a majority of 38.

No returns from the other districts.

Nashville, Aug. 6. Twenty-six counties heard from.—The opposition gain 2,200. The opposition have gained one Congressman, probably three. The 10th district, Avery, dem., elected by about 400 majority. In the 9th, Atkins, dem., is reported elected.

Louisville, Aug. 6. The following opposition Congressmen have been elected: Bristow in the 3d; Adams in the 6th; Mallory in the 7th; L. T. Moore in the 9th.

The 4th district is doubtful. The remaining five districts are Democratic. The Democrats have a majority of about 30 on joint ballot.

Democratic Governor and State officers are elected by probably 7,000 to 10,000 majority.

St. Louis, Aug. 6. The Overland mail of the 5th reached Jefferson city to night. Incomplete returns from Oregon Congressional election, indicate the success of Stout, Democrat, by a small majority.

The Grain Trade.

The grain market was so irregular and unsettled yesterday, that it is difficult to give a complete account of its various fluctuations. Some sales of wheat were made at ten cents lower than on Friday, and the bulk of sales were five cents lower. More than 20,000 bus. wheat sold, at 90c27c for No. 1 red winter, closing at 94c in store; 80c84c for No. 1 spring in store, closing at 80c; and 56c for standard spring. Corn was tolerably active, but lower. Nearly 40,000 bus. sold, at 62c63c for No. 1 road corn in store. Flour was dull. The only sale reported was 100 bbls. Genesee mills from new spring wheat, the first in market, at $4.50. The receipts and shipments were both light. (Chicago Times.)

As next week is the time to sow corn, we hope our farmers will not be disappointed.

How to get to the State Fair.

STATE AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY. Office Corresponding Secretary, Springfield, August 5, 1860.

The Superintendents of the following Railroads have agreed to carry passengers on their respective roads, to and from the State Fair at Freeport, at half the usual rates, and stock and other articles, for exhibition at the Fair, free of charge, under the regulations hereinafter stated:

Galena and Chicago; Chicago Iowa and Nebraska; Chicago, Burlington and Quincy; Chicago and Rock Island, Mississippi and Missouri, and Bureau Valley; Chicago, Alton and St. Louis; Great Western; Illinois Central; Chicago and North Western [formerly Fon du Lac]; and Racine and Mississippi; [This a new route through from Chicago to Freeport, without change of cars, and is as short as any other route.] Chicago and Milwaukee; [Passengers from Milwaukee by Railroad, and from Michigan by Steamboat, can take the Racine and Mississippi Railroad at Racine, and go to Freeport from thence without change of cars.] Peoria and Oquawka; Northern Cross; [From Quincy to Meredosia.] Mineral Point; Every effort will be made to accommodate visitors and exhibitors at the Fair by this road. Extra trains will be run for the accommodation of passengers if necessity requires it.

REGULATIONS.

The officers of the roads will require full pay from persons going to the Fair, but will permit them to return free, provided their tickets are stamped by the Recording Secretary on the Fair Grounds, and without which the tickets will not be valid.

The freight of stock and other articles over the roads to the Fair must be prepaid. On the return of the same property, with a certificate on the original freight bill, signed by the Recording Secretary of the Society, stating that the same was exhibited at the State Fair, the money paid for freight will be refunded.

It would be well for the owners of stock and other heavy articles intended for exhibition at the Fair, to give a week's notice to the officers at the station where they design to place the same upon the cars.

The half fare tickets to exhibitors at the Fair, and the arrangements for transporting stock and other articles for exhibition at the Fair will commence on Wednesday of the week previous to the Fair.

Persons desiring to send articles to the Fair for competition and premiums, will please consign them to J. P. REXFORD, Freeport, Superintendent of the Fair Grounds. All expenses to be paid by the owner of the property, who, by himself or agent, must be present to place the same on exhibition.

Ample means will be found at Freeport to accommodate all persons with food and lodgings who may visit the State Fair. Special trains will be run from Freeport to Dixon, and from Freeport to Galena, on the Central Road; and from Freeport to Rockford on the Galena and Chicago Road, morning and evenings during the Fair, for the purpose of accommodating persons who desire to visit the places named, or intermediate points for lodging or other objects. Half fare will be charged on these extra trains. Convenient grounds near the enclosure will be furnished for persons who desire to encamp at the Fair.

S. FRANCIS, Corresponding Secretary Illinois State Agricultural Society.

Triumph in Kentucky.

In Kentucky at the late election the question of Congressional intervention in regard to slavery, either to establish or prohibit, encourage or trammel it, was distinctly and directly in issue.—Throughout the protracted canvass, in all sections of the State, the subject in all its aspects and bearings, was patiently and thoroughly discussed. The result is now before the country. Kentucky has once more been carried by the Democracy; a Democracy that rests on the platform of popular sovereignty. Magoffin, who stood by Douglas last fall pending his memorable contest in Illinois, and who stands by the principle of non intervention now—as we have good reason to believe he still sides with Douglas—is elected Governor, the latest advices inform us, by a majority of not less than 10,000. This is a great victory. It will cause a thrill of satisfaction to penetrate every true Democratic breast in the Union. It establishes in the South the ascendancy of the principle of popular sovereignty. At the extreme South there are ultraists who will be exasperated at this result; they are for Congressional intervention. And the Republicans, the radicals of the North, do not like it; for they too are for Congressional intervention. But the great majority of our countrymen will rejoice over the happy conclusion of this exciting struggle. (Chicago Times.)

Relics of the Lost.

It is a part of our human nature to cling lovingly to all or aught that reminds us of those whom we have loved, and whom the grave has claimed and swallowed up from our sight. The commonest object that was theirs, that has been hallowed by their use, or consecrated by their regard, becomes to us something sacred, to be hoarded with care, to be wept over, to be the medium by which we recall their looks and gestures, their words and smiles.

The mother hides her darling's battered toys, and worn garments, and defaced little shoes, in some secret place which is the shrine of memory. Every day she steals away to look at them, many times daily, perhaps. One by one she lifts them up reverently; and her heart, if not her lips, whispers: "So he looked when he wore these; how merry was the patter of the little feet when in this tiny shoe; how happy he was with the broken whip, and the drum that made so great a noise, and the tiny wagon, from which the bright paint was all worn. My darling! my darling! He can never return to me!" and then she weeps, and, in torrents of tears, the passionateness of her wild grief is washed away, and she grows calm. And the day comes when she can look more quietly at her relics, and think not that she would recall him whose little feet have safely crossed the dark river; but that, ere long, she shall be permitted, all work and waiting finished here, to join him above.

Of all relics of the lost, none remind us so vividly of them as a tress of hair—the very hair that adorned the white brows in life, on which Death has long since set his dark seal. They, the loved ones, the forms we clasped, have passed into dust and nothingness; but the bright tress curls about our fingers as it did that day we pressed our hand lovingly on the living head it adorned. It is a part of the being that has perished from our sight.

"I kiss this soft curl of her living hair: 'Tis full of light as when she did unbind Her sudden ringlets, making bright the wind, 'Tis here, but she is—where?"

Next to that treasured curl, are the letters penned by the hands long resting in "cold obstruction." The fingers we have pressed lingered over those yellow pages; the face we loved to look upon bent over them; the eyes, so bright with affection when they rested on us, were fixed upon the rapidly traced words; and here is marked the place where those red lips imprinted the playful kiss the missive was to bear to us.

What creature of human kind has not treasured such relics, and worshipped them, perchance, in the silence and mystery of a sacred sorrow, to which no stranger nor familiar friend was ever admitted? [New York Weekly.]

—The impudence of some of the tarnal colored creation, is about as queer as a niggas skull bone. A shoemaker in our parts carried home a pair of slippers to a tall colored customer, where he found the buck of a bear head busy reading the nigger abolition paper of Chicago, an the black critter no sooner seed little ball o' wax than he cried out, "Keep off dar, yo mechanical specimen ob white wulgawisity, d'ye tink a gem-man cares for de understandin ob de feet, when he's taken understandin into de head?"

SAGACITY OF A HORSE.—A very curious, though not uncommon, instance of sagacity in that animal, came under observation lately in the crowded neighborhood of Long Lane, Bermondsey. The London Review says:

A cart horse in harness, whilst its by no means careful keeper was so-lacing himself in a low public house, started off at a pretty brisk trot down the lane. Happening to come to a group of children, one of whom, a baby not more than three years old, stumbled and fell, the animal deliberately stopped, placed the child out of the way with his teeth, and continued his course as if nothing had occurred. But his philanthropic propensities did not stop here, for, meeting with a similar group, he repeated the action, after which, as if fearful of committing some mischief, he quietly suffered himself to be caught and led back.

A young couple from Deatur, came to our town with matrimonial intentions, and were 'jined' yesterday, by one of our officials. May happiness ever dwell in this new abode of the little winged god; and may the happy couple be blessed with many little ones; but that's none of our business. Our farmers think that corn will be worth ten cents a bushel this fall. (Chicago Times.)

AMBROTYPES!

Only one Dollar!

E. H. HAWLEY, Artist, at the Car, (South side of the Public Square,) would respectfully announce to the inhabitants of Sullivan and vicinity, that he will remain in town for a short time, and would be pleased to exhibit his specimens and stock to all who will favor him with a call. Come and try me, and if I can't suit, No Charges made.

Double plate Ambrotypes invariably put up. Also Melainotypes, and pictures on leather.

A large assortment of cases, all sizes and qualities, kept constantly on hand. I would call attention to the fact, that all my pictures are taken by a large combined side and sky light. Children taken in three seconds.

Pictures taken as well in cloudy as clear weather. Dress.—Dark clothes are preferable.

[ADVERTISEMENT.]

Mr. Editor: At the request of the donkey, of Mattoon notoriety, the monkey will condescend to come down from his lofty position, to notice the pratings of His Thistle-eating Majesty. 'Tis true that it is unpleasant to "answer a fool according to his follies," but it is necessary to do so to prevent his "being wise in his own conceit."

There is no danger, whatever, of any one taking him for a man, seen or unseen, tail or no tail. Don't be alarmed, my dear sir, about being credited with more than mortal powers and goodness—you are a little too well known for that. It would be well for you to remember the Prophet's interpretation of a part of that handwriting, viz: "Thou art weighed in a balance, and found wanting." Poor Eben, how we sympathize with you in your persecutions, for the good you have done! Remember the promise, "Blessed are they who are persecuted for righteousness' sake." I agree with you, that the base ingrate who would sully your good name, deserves the contempt of all the righteous, (like yourself,) of this world.

Be of good cheer, the tables will yet be turned, and when you get the certified copy of that jackass doctor's testimony, you can "laugh at his calamity, and mock when his fear cometh." But let us say to you, privately, when you put on the lion's skin, be sure and tuck in your ears, or you may betray your nature.

Oh, how can it be possible that a man of such unbounded charity, could bear the taunt of penuriousness! But if all the citizens of your county give you credit for your charity, you should be satisfied,—besides, no one ever said that you was stingy; only, it was said that you would not pay for a thing you were anxious to have done.

Let us beseech you not to beg for sympathy quite so strongly; you are, if you tell the truth, (and who doubts it,) "not only pure, but above suspicion." And then you should remember that you are disgracing yourself by having anything to do with a "liar," "fool," "ignorant country practitioner," or "monkey."

Mr. noyes thinks that he will intimidate some one by a threat, but he is mistaken. He knows he has promised, when he has more leisure, (which he will be careful never to have,) to get a certified copy of a certain person's testimony, and then prove something else. In case he does either, or both, he will qualify that person to associate with himself, as "like seeks like." We do not believe that mr. noyes would swear to a falsehood, but that he would tell one, is another question.

We do not care for anything he has said, as we are in a tree, and he, poor worm, is in the dirt; but then we remember that we are in a tree, and he is in the dirt. (The words which we read upon the sign.)

WE DO NOT HESITATE TO ASSERT

WHAT ALL ARE BY RESULTS,

Compelled to Admit,

Viz: That in Dr Mann's Ague Balsam we have a perfectly triumphant remedy for chills fever and ague and all diseases arising from a diseased or inactive condition of the liver.

Indeed it will never fail, and the one who fails to use it at once will deeply regret the neglect. Reader you will never again shake or have fever that season if you take it as per directions, and continue until the system is perfectly restored; if this be done there will be no one who will suffer long from chills, fever and ague.

Bucyrus, Ohio, Feb. 25th 1858 Dr. MANN & Co., Gallon, Ohio—Gents: We are at a loss to find language sufficient to portray to the public the great esteem in which your Celebrated Ague Balsam is held in this community. The fact is it never fails to cure ague in its worst forms, and we can sell nothing else.

Messrs. S. K. MANN & Co.—Gents: Having procured a supply of your Ague Balsam, and testing it thoroughly in many severe cases of long standing, where all the popular remedies of the day had failed, I found in all cases your Balsam effected a safe and speedy cure. It is just the medicine we want here in the south.

Messrs. S. K. MANN & Co. Gentlemen:—I would say for the benefit of those suffering with chills fever and ague, that I can confidently recommend your Ague Balsam to do what it is recommended to do, having used it myself, and in my family also; have known it used in many other cases, where it has universally proved effectual; leaving the patient soundly cured. I give this for the benefit of all whom it may concern.

Messrs. S. K. MANN & Co. Gentlemen:—Please send us 4 doz. of your Ague Balsam. It gives the best satisfaction of any ague preparation we have had in our place. The fact is, it never fails when properly taken.

Messrs. S. K. MANN & Co. Gentlemen:—After using several other preparations for fever and ague, and only getting partial relief, for the disease soon returned again on me, I took two bottles of your Balsam, and I have had neither chill nor fever since I took first dose. I believe it to be the only thing that will never fail, and hence I recommend it to others.

Messrs. S. K. MANN & Co. Gentlemen:—Please send us 4 doz. of your Ague Balsam. It gives the best satisfaction of any ague preparation we have had in our place. The fact is, it never fails when properly taken.

THE GREATEST MEDICAL DISCOVERY OF THE AGE.

DR. KENNEDY, of Roxbury, has discovered in one of our common pasture weeds a remedy that cures EVERY KIND OF HUMOR, From the worst Scrofula down to a common Pimple.

Two bottles are warranted to cure a nursing sore mouth. One to three bottles will cure the worst kind of pimples on the face. Two or three bottles will clear the system of bile. Two bottles are warranted to cure the worst canker in the stomach. Three to five bottles are warranted to cure the worst kind of erysipelas.

One or two bottles are warranted to cure all humor in the eyes. Two bottles are warranted to cure running of the ears and blotches among the hair. Four to six bottles are warranted to cure corrupt and running ulcers. Fifteen to twenty bottles will cure scaly eruptions of the skin.

Two or three bottles are warranted to cure the worst kind of ringworm. Two or three bottles are warranted to cure the most desperate case of rheumatism. Three to four bottles are warranted to cure the worst case of scrofula. One to three bottles are warranted to cure the worst case of dyspepsia. I know from the experience of thousands that it has been caused by canker in the stomach.

One or two bottles are warranted to cure sick headache. One to two bottles are warranted to regulate a costive state of the bowels. One to two bottles will regulate all derangement of the kidneys. Four to six bottles have cured the worst cases of dropsy.

One to three have cured the worst cases of piles: a relief is always experienced; what a mercy to get relief in such an excruciating disease! A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the above quantity is taken. No change of diet ever necessary; eat the best you can get and enough of it.

The MEDICAL DISCOVERY is admirably adapted to the western country where FEVER AND AGUE, DYSENTERY, BILIOUS COLIC, BILIOUS FEVER, LIVER DERANGEMENTS, are so prevalent in their respective seasons.

The great cause of the prevalence of these diseases is that many have secreted in their system some Putrid and Fatal Humor which is the source of all diseases, and many a young man and woman in the BLOOM OF LIFE are wasting away whose faded cheeks and sunken eyes warn their friends of a speedy dissolution through the effects of some Acrid Humor preying upon the vitals, and many thousands die annually from the effects of these humors, who, if they but purify their blood with a few bottles of Medical Discovery would live to a ripe old age.

Another great cause of diseases is Costiveness; for this the Discovery is an infallible remedy, its action on the Liver, Kidneys and Bowels is all that you could desire. For Scrofulous Ulcers you will follow the directions in pamphlet around the bottle. For Ulcerated Sore Legs you will find full directions in the pamphlet.

DIRECTIONS FOR USE.—Adults, one table spoonful per day; children over ten years, dessert spoonful; children from five to eight years, tea spoonful. As no directions can be applicable to all constitutions, take sufficient to operate on the bowels twice a day.

MANUFACTURED BY DONALD KENNEDY, No. 120 Warren Street, Roxbury, Mass. PRICE $1.00. For sale by every Druggist in the United States and British Provinces. In Sullivan, by Elder, Vadakin, Perryman, and other merchants and Druggists.

WIT AND WISDOM.
ORIGINAL AND SELECTED.

BY E. M. WAGGONER.
—Dr. Franklin, talking of a friend of his, who had been a Manchester dealer, said, "That he never sold a piece of tape narrower than his mind."

—SOMEBODY says, "A wife should be like a roasted lamb—tender, and nicely dressed." A scamp adds, "and without sauce."

—"I'm off, when you talk of working," as the cork said to the ginger-pop.

—"Teeth inserted here," as the bull dog said, when he bit the loafer.

—"Sonny dear," said a fond mother, "you have a dirty face." "Can't help it, mam, dad's a black republican."

A wife in this neighborhood has had two children at a birth. Her husband is entitled to a divorce. She is, decidedly, an overbearing woman.

—"Tis false," as the girl said, when her beau told her she had beautiful hair.

Economy, joined to industry and sobriety, is a better outfit for business than a dowery.

In the 'game' of life we should watch for the "last trump!"

—The fellow who stood on the defensive "slipped up on it."

—A quick way to produce a bull-rush—tease a short-horned Durham in fly time!

—"Millions for de fence," as the darkey said, when chased by a mad bull.

—Nature often enshrines gallant and noble hearts in weak bosoms,—oftenest, God bless her, in female breasts.

A gentleman having a horse run away and breaking his wife's neck, was told by a neighboring equire that he wished to purchase it for his wife to ride upon. "No," says the other, "I intend to marry again, myself."

An architect proposes to build a "Bachelor's Hall," which will differ from the most of houses, in having no Eves. We think some of our bachelors are getting old enough to fish for another kind of a haul.

A pious old lady, who was too unwell to attend meeting used to send her thick-headed husband to church, to find out what text the preacher selected as the foundation of his discourse. The poor dunce was rarely fortunate enough to remember the words of the text, or even the chapter and verse where they could be found; but one Sabbath he ran home in hot haste, and with a smirk of self-satisfaction on his face, informed his wife that he could repeat every word of the text without missing a single syllable. (The text was as follows: "An angel came down from Heaven and took a live coal from the altar.")

"Well, let us hear the text," remarked the good woman.

"Know every word," replied the husband.

"I am anxious to hear it," continued the wife.

"They are nice words," continued the husband.

"I am glad your memory is improving, but don't keep me in suspense, my dear."

"Just get your big Bible, and I will say the words, for I know them by heart. Why I said them a hundred times on my way home."

DON'T
Come to town, at any time, without coming to see me before you home, for I am sure I can make it profitable to you, by selling you goods at just what they cost me in the city, by wholesale. You may think that I just say this to induce you to trade with me, but such is not the case. If you wish to be convinced, try me when you come, and I will be sure to send you with more goods for less money, than you can buy anywhere else—city stores not excepted.

GO

WITHOUT

detaining you longer, I would say, that the reason I sell so cheap, is, because I want to close out my entire stock, and settle up, and get money to buy another stock of which I shall sell strictly for cash, or saleable produce. I have determined to sell no more goods on credit!
