DISOUALIFYING THE "SLUMS"

"Al Smith of New York thinks he is going to be the next Democratic presidential nominee. A united Republican party hopes that he will succeed in his ambition. This Republic will never elect as its chief executive a man who hails from the "slums" of New York City.

This little editorial gem is taken from the columns of our esteemed contemporary "The Shelby County Union", which is as rock-ribbed a Republican newspaper as exists anywhere on the face of this mundane sphere.

It contains a few features that we desire to comment on. First of all, Al Smith has a perfectly legitimate right dential nomination, if he so desires. We hope that Al will step aside and that McAdoo will stay under cover where he sneaked to when the Democrats nominated John W. Davis.

Al Smith has made a great governor for the state of New York. Where they know him best, he is unbeatable. He gets the votes of the people who know him and know his capacity as an executive.

He may not agree with all people on some questions, among them the government's liquor legislation. He does not advocate violation of any laws. Relative to the prohibition law many people may have the same same frame of mind as Al Smith has. He may be right, or he may be wrong. This much, however, is certain. He is no hypocrite, no four-flusher and no trimmer. There never has been any doubt as to where Al Smith stands on any question of public interest. Most of the people whom we have heard criticizing Al Smith are of the kind that are ready to take a drink if they can get by with it, so that the holier-than-thou bunch they parade with will not become wise to it. Hypocrisy is the most despicable of human failings.

But the part of the editorial of our esteemed contemporary that is most distasteful to us is the broad assertion that "This Republic will never select as its chief executive a man who hails from the "Slums" of New York City".

Any pray, why not?

Is there anything disqualifying in the fact that you have been poor and have lived with the poorest. Is there any disgrace in the fact that Al Smith has worked his way up, step by step until he today is serving his third term as Governor of this nation's greatest state?

order to have the necessary qualifica tions to aspire to be President?

The spirit of snobbishness manifested in that statement shows the trend of the G. O. P. The Shelbyville editor may not be high in the Councils of his party but its ideals filter down through the ranks and cause our Republican brethren to start to draw the line of caste. They would have you believe that you must be born in such and such a locality or you are disqualified from holding the highest office in this land. If you are born in the "slums" you are low caste and your aspirations must cease at a certain point. That is not the spirit of Americanism. Today the man who will be president 25 years from now may be starving in some city slum. The Secretary of State in his cabinet may be following a plow in some prairie cornfield; the Secretary of Treasury may be counting and putting pennies into packages in some remote country bank; yea, we may even go further, some man who may at that time be high in the councils of the land may today be an inmate of penal reformatory. Who can tell?

In America, the land of opportunity, all things are possible. Brains and ability, whether they originate in the slums or in the castles of the rich must never be discriminated against. America to remain great must never recognize an aristocracy other than that of brains.

That is the spirit of real democracy, whose flag unsoiled by any of the things which becloud the minds of petty politicians must always remain unsullied, floating high in the blue of the heavens.

Red Crown—A Premium Gasoline at a standard price—glides up the grade of popular favor with great ease.

Thousands of motorists have recognized the force of the "price per mile" argument and switched over to Red crown.

The price per gallon contention is weak-kneed—has no bearing.

The story is told better by what is built in the gasoline.

Of what significance is the question of a saving of a few cents on an investment of hundreds of dollars?

If you pay less for your gasoline than the price of Red Crown, you are getting less—and that is false economy raised to the nth power, no matter how it is disguised.

SPORT BRIEFS

Remember the Lovington game Friday afternoon.

Coach J. R. Sterling has for the past six weeks been drilling and working with the football squad and has produced what seems to be a prospective team this season.

Our team has won two games and lost one but they lost only to a team that really outplayed them. The defeat however, has shown where the weak spots are in the team and enables the Coach to strengthen them

POST OFFICE WARNS

OF NEW CHAIN LOTTERY Postoffice authorities warn the public to be cautious of the new form | Those present were: Mrs. John Sharp, of lottery, an endless chain of mail order purchases, that is beginning to Mrs. Fred Sampson, Mrs. Clara Scribevidence itself. As yet none of the letters have been known to have passed through the local postoffice.

The scheme is described by the authorities as an endless chain purchasing method that is misleading and that Mrs. St. Clair will make many also class it as a form of lottery. First the purchase of a coupon is made for for her home at Custer Ky., about $1, which is then returned to the mail order house together with $4. In return a contract is received by the sender with three more coupons that must be sold for $1 each. The receipts are then forwarded to the company and a premium of $10 in merchandise is returned.

But before the merchandise is delivered all three of the coupon holders that the first holder had sold must repeat the performance. If the chain is Monday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. broken the first purchaser must hold the sack for the others.

Postal authorities have appealed a recent injunction prohibiting the issuance of fraud orders to the United States court of claims and they hope to put the mail lottery out of business within the near future.—Decatur
