DR. FRANK CRANE SAYS I DON'T KNOW

The three words in any language hardest for the average person to say are:

"I don't know."

If you doubt this observe the distinguished visitors who arrive to investigate our fair land. At the pier they are interviewed.

They answer questions on religion, politics, art, morals, music, history, literature, biology, philosophy, clothes and the younger generation without batting an eye.

They proclaim with the gravity of a Delphic Oracle undisturbed in the slightest by the evident fact that they don't know what they are simply stated: "I am an novelist and of course lay no claim to authority on such subjects."

Consider also the octogenarians, septuagenarians and centenarians who fill the papers with abused secrets for long life.

One old woman says smoking a corncob pipe did it; another says scrubbing floors was responsible. One man says riding a horse gave him his longevity; another never getting more than a few hours' sleep.

After a while the truth begins to down that they know no more about it than anyone else, but they can't admit it.

The old negro who said the secret of his long life was "Because I was born so far back," gave as valuable, and a much more honest answer than most old people who divulge the secret of their longevity."

Also consider the distinguished fellow citizen," the specialists who have become famous in a single line, the inventors, automobile manufacturers, millionaires and novelists who give oracular and worthless opinions on education, history and religion, whether they have ever given them any study or not.

Why is it that so few people are able to admit the self-evident fact that they don't know.

What Net Earnings Mean

The money which railroads have left after paying operating expenses and taxes is classified under the accounting regulations of the Interstate Commerce Commission as net operating income and is commonly known as net earnings. Not all of net earnings, however, is available for dividends to railway owners. For example, it will take all the net earnings realized in the first half of 1926 by the railroads of the country as a whole to pay the full year's interest charges on their borrowed money.

The ratio of net earnings to property investment is commonly accepted as the yardstick measuring the financial results of railway operation. Such measurement shows that there has been a fairly steady improvement in the financial results of railway operation in recent years. The net earnings realized by the railroads of the country as a whole for each $100 of investment in railway property were $2.92 in 1921, $3.61 in 1922, $4.48 in 1923, $4.33 in 1924 and $4.83 in 1925. For the first eight months of 1926 net earnings were realized at the annual rate of $5.13 for each $100 of investment in railway

This improvement in the financial results of railway operation is well deserved, because it is the result of greater economy and efficiency in handling increased traffic. However, the ratio of net earnings to property investment is even yet less than it should be, especially when we consider that railway traffic has been breaking all records this year. Few other businesses could manage to get along at so low a rate, and the railroads themselves have earned more in the past. In 1916, for example, their net earnings were $5.94 for every $100 of property investment at that time, and, when the difference in the purchasing power of money is considered, a good many other years yielded earnings that meant more to the railroads than those being received today.

The present railway efficiency, which is so productive of good in every line of business, is largely the result of the substantial investment in improvements which the railroads have made in recent years in the hope of improved earnings. The continued efficiency of the railroads depends to the same large extent upon their ability to obtain funds for further expansion to keep pace with the increased demands for their services which the future is certain to bring. Railway credit, therefore, must be safeguarded. We believe that railway patrons, realizing this situation, will look with favor upon further improvement in the rate of railway net earnings.

The value of good railway service is beyond estimation. Good service is the kind the railroads want to continue to provide. All they ask is that the public encourage them to do so.

Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.

L. A. DOWNS, President, Illinois Central System.

CHICAGO, November 1, 1926.

"THIS IS MY OWNATIVE LAND"

The patriot who uttered this stirring sentiment has expressed fittingly the sentiment of all of us towards our country, and our city.

This is, indeed, our own community. Many of us first saw the light of day here ---many of us have rounded out a quarter century, a half century, even our allotted threescore years and ten, in Sullivan.

As we look back, some of us, to the days when Sullivan was a struggling village, we are filled with an infinite appreciation for the Sullivan of today.

Once the streets of Sullivan were oozing ribbons of mud. Now a thousand automobiles glide over them as ships upon a placid sea.

Once we walked about the town on board sidewalkes, a rotting board here, a loose board there. Now we walk on sidewalks of enduring concrete.

Once we stumbled about in darkness. Now our well lighted streets turn night into day.

And who will try to compare our churches and schools, our spiritual and educational advantage, those we possessed even a quarter century ago?

Sullivan has indeed moved forward. And it is continuing its onward and upward march. Nothing will stop us.

We who are actively engaged in the commercial enterprises of Sullivan gladly subscribe to this "stock taking," this comparison of the present with the past, to the end that we may envision more clearly the Sullivan of the future.

D. A. MacLeod, Pastor. The good old summer time is past and the autumn leaves manifest to us in their rich coloring the blessing of the summers sun and shower. The ripened corn with golden ear, in silent tones speaks of life's changing ways. The life in the seed has been glorified in the new and ripened corn glorified in the new and ripened corn a hundred fold. So to the fruit that was sour in June is now ripe and mellow to the taste. Autumn reveals to us the rich harvest time of life. May we not learn from nature of nature's God, and enjoy the blessings of a more ripened age, with the passing day. If we are growing upward toward a richer life, it should be in richer coloring, and in more abundant fruit. If the fruit in our lives today is other than we would have it, we would seek the light and blessing of the Son of Righteousness, with hope of coming days.
