ARE WE GOING TO STOP?

Sullivan has during the past two years seen the completion of important improvements.

A water supply system and water distribution system have been successfully installed.

A group of business and professional men as city officials have given much of their time and attention to bring these things to pass.

Two more things loom as necessities if Sullivan is to be a modern city in which it will be desirable to live.

We need sewers and we need better streets. It is advisable that sewers precede paved streets.

The city is full of unsanitary ill-smelling, open, out-door toilets. One reason for this is lack of proper sanitary sewers.

Some months ago nearly all basements in the city were flooded. Much damage was done. Much inconvenience resulted. It was caused by lack of storm sewers.

Open, fly-infested toilets breed disease. Flooded basements and cellars are a health menace.

The one we have always with us. The other may again recur whenever the heavens open up and send us another downpour.

Paved streets are passable at all times of the year. Many of the dirt streets are now impassable, have been so at various times during the past month and promise to be bottomless pits of black muck for the rest of the Winter.

Some streets are oiled. They are an improvement over the "raw" black streets. The oiled streets will go to pieces a little later. People along Jefferson street have during the past ten years paid almost enough for oil, to have paid for paving.

We all dislike expense. It costs and costs and costs.

We live but once on this earth.

GOOD TIME NOW TO SELECT HENS FOR THE BREEDING PEN

Urbana, Ill., Dec. 7.—This is a good time to select hens for the breeding pen and rest them for a month or so, H. H. Alp, poultry extension specialist of the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois, points out. These breeding hens will be the nucleus for next year's flock and the best of care is none too good for them, he added.

The way to rest the breeding hens is to take them off their mash ration and place them on a feed of grain only. With plenty of grain and fresh water they will rest and build up their bodies after their year's work of laying. They may be put in a small colony house by themselves where they can have fresh range and left until about the first or the middle of December.

After that time they should again be fed a laying mash, the idea being Katheryn McFerrin to promote egg production. The birds

Friday, itself, whether it falls on the thirteenth or not, they consider the Jonah-day of the seven in the week. This is believed because Christ was crucified on Friday. At least that is the popularly accepted reason for the fear of it.

So the superstitious person would never think of beginning a journey or any important undertaking on Friday lest the jix of that evil day bring disaster before the journey or undertaking be completed.

As for the sinister significance of thirteen, there seems to be two traditions: in Biblical times the Hebrew word for "thirteen" was indentified with the word "death". In Norse Mythology too, the number is put under a curse, for there is a tradition that the sun god Ballur had to die because there were thirteen gods in Valhalla, and that couldn't be tolerated. Whatever the reason the fear of thirteen still exists among many persons who become most uncomfortable if they find there are thirteen people at a dinner party or such affair; they wouldn't think of occupying a berth number "13" in a Pullman car. Now, how about this evil day, Friday. Let's see what we can find out about it. Go back to the year of 1492. At two o'clock in the morning, a certain Rodrigo de Triana, a sailor rushed up to his captain Christopher Columbus, and excitedly pointed toward the west. "Land!" arose the cry on the Santa Maria., and that was on Friday, October 12th and Columbus had set sail for the unknown on Friday. Ahristmas Luggestions

When the spirit of the Christmas time comes to engulf us all, the men are just "boys grown up" and its really an easy matter to dope out what to get them for Christmas. There is no reason why the selection of present for the menfolks should be a difficult job for the ladies. Follow his footsteps in filling his past wants and they will lead you here-to a MAN'S STORE. Our practical gifts on display all over the place will fairly shout suggestions at you as to whatto buy. If you'd talk the matter over with him and say "Overcoat. silk shirt, box handkerchiefs, etc." he'd be sure to say "Why sure, certainly, anything will do." So take the hint and come here and select just those things that he needs, and get them from a bright new stock, bought in anticipation of your Christmas wants.

Look over this list. You'll find many things here that you can use.

not permit that we list them all.
