Sullivan Quintet In Okaw Valley Finals at Tuscola

Home Boys Lose to Bement Team After Successfully Downed Monticello and Villa Grove. Far Exceeded Predictions of Basketball Dopesters.

Sullivan did itself proud at the Tuscola Okaw Valley basketball tournament last week and for a time high hopes were entertained that the boys would win the championship.

They came through with flying colors in the preliminary games and entered the final game with Bement as an opponent.

The Sullivan boys were tired from a strenuous afternoon game in which they defeated Villa Grove 26 to 24. They had battled this strong team to a tie and in an overtime period Kellar the Sullivan center sank a long one, giving Sullivan the victory.

The championship game started off good for Bement and in no quarter did Sullivan make a show-

GOVERNOR LEN SMALL

This was done after reaching an agreement with Mayor William H. Thompson of Chicago, whereby the Mayor will be given a free hand in selection of state appointees in his city. Appointees now holding office who are unfavorable to Mayor Thompson and his political friends will be discharged by the Governor.

The Mayor's pet project of "America First" which was given wide publicity in his fight against English domination of Chicago's school system will be the leading plank in the governor's attempt at renomination.

The primary election will be held April 10th. The leading opponent of the Governor is L. L. Emmerson, present secretary of state. Attorney General Oscar Carlstrom is also an active candidate for the gubernatorial nomination.

The usually quiet village of Bethany has had a sensation lately in as much as it was found that gambling was going on there.

W. E. Goetz, son of Don Goetz was one of the men most deeply involved. Mr. Goetz's business, first as ice dealer and then as manager of the elevator at Dunn are said to have resulted in failure. His father in both cases came to his rescue.

Lately young Mr. Goetz was said to have gotten into difficulties in Decatur. It was known that gambling was going on in Bethany. When the young man appealed to his father to get him out of his new troubles, it was done with the understanding that he would tell what he knew about

SULLIVAN TEAM WON CHAMPIONSHIP IN ARTHUR TOURNAMENT

Living right up to expectations the Sullivan grade school first team cleaned up at Arthur last week-end and emerged from the four-county tournament a champion.

Sullivan's first tournament game was with Humboldt. This game Sullivan won in overtime play 17 to 15. The same evening Arthur disposed of Pierson 22 to 12.

Saturday morning Sullivan first won 42 to 6 from the Arthur seconds, while Arthur firsts won 19 to 17 from the Sullivan seconds.

In the afternoon Sullivan firsts won 25 to 10 from Hammond, after that team had won 15 to 14 from Bethany in the morning.

After all this elimination Sullivan and Arthur firsts emerged from the fray as Championship contenders.

In this the final game of the tournament Sullivan bested Arthur 20 to 16. For the third place Hammond defeated Sullivan seconds 28 to 6.

The Sullivan firsts have thus far not lost a game this season and Coach Roney is duly proud of his scrappers.

The boys who played in the tournament were Poland, McDavid, Collins, Freeman, Shirey, Coventry, McDonald, Cummins, Dunscomb, Wood.

APPLICATION FOR FRANCHISE DENIED CHICAGO PROMOTER

Several weeks ago a party named A. J. Smith of Chicago made application for a 50 year gas franchise in the city of Sullivan.

Monday night was the first council meeting held since the application was received. By a unanimous vote the franchise application was rejected.

The city attorney held that no application could be granted without accompanying petition from the property owners along the frontage where the proposed gas mains were to be laid.

Other objects voiced were against granting any franchise covering so long a period as 50 years; that A. J. Smith was not a bona fide gas company and the council knew very little about him or the parties he was acting for.

Mr. Smith has never appeared in this city to confer with officials but his negotiations have been conducted entirely by mail.

PROPOSED $500,000 MEMORIAL ROAD TO PASS MARTIN FARM

J. D. Martin of this city owns a tract of land in Coles county, which at one time (according to his abstract) was owned by Abraham Lincoln. The abstract shows that 6 acres of the tract were in Lincoln's name and 12 acres of it were in the name of his father, Tom Lincoln.

This land is about two miles from the Gordon cemetery where the Lions Club last year erected a monument in honor of Lincoln's father and mother. This cemetery adjoins Shilo church.

Congressman Rathbone has recently introduced a bill in Congress asking for an appropriation of $500,000 of Federal funds to build a Lincoln Memorial highway in that part of the country. He says he will bring all possible pressure to bear to get the government sanction to this project. If successful, the Martin land would be a very appropriate place for a Lincoln Memorial park.

MILDRED HARSH IS DECATUR MAN'S BRIDE

Miss Mildred Harsh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Harsh of this city was united in marriage with Clarence M. Hanley of Decatur in that city Friday afternoon. The ceremony was performed at the parsonage of the First Church of God with Rev. C. F. Rogers officiating. Mr. Hanley is an I. P. L. bus operator. They will reside in Decatur.

Couple Kept Marriage Secret Until This Week. Will Go To Housekeeping in Peoria March 10th in Home Groom is Furnishing for His Bride.

Announcement was made on Wednesday of this week by Mrs. Etta L. Ray, of the marriage of her daughter Miss Louetta to Hugh MacDonald, which event took place on August 22nd, 1927 at Petersburg, Illinois.

The ceremony was performed at the Rock Creek Presbyterian church by Rev. G. A. Wilson. The couple had slipped away to that city and after their return kept the wedding a secret.

They had intended keeping it secret until the latter part of this month, but friends had learned about the marriage and the announcement has followed.

The bride is the youngest daughter of Mrs. Etta L. Ray and is a graduate of the '25 class of the Sullivan Township High School. She has for the past two years been employed as bookkeeper in the office of L. T. Hagerman & Co.

The groom is a son of Mrs. Catherine McDonald of this city and is now employed as time-keeper in the Caterpillar Tractor Company at Peoria.

He is furnishing a home there for his bride and she will leave here March 10th to join him and go to housekeeping.

Both bride and groom are some of Sullivan's best known young people and their many friends wish them a happy journey on the sea of matrimony.

TOWNSHIP TICKETS NOT TO BE DEMOCRAT OR REPUBLICAN

The Supreme Court in a recent decision has held that the present state primary law is valid and nominations will be made under it by the parties on April 10th.

At that time candidates for county office, legislative and Congressional, and state offices will be made.

Petitions have been filed at Springfield by many who seek nominations on the state tickets.

Locally the petitions of Cadell West for circuit clerk and Roy Foster for states attorney have been filed with the county clerk.

While practically all candidates who have announced for township offices in this county this spring state that they want to run on either the Republican or Democrat tickets, it now develops that this cannot be done.

Attorney General Carlstrom has ruled that such candidates must seek election without the aid of their party label. The appellation "independent Republican" is also barred.

This situation was brought about by adoption by the last session of the legislature of an amendment to the ballot law providing.....no party which cast more than two per cent of the entire vote at the last general election may make party nominations for township offices.....

Hugh S. Magill, running as an independent Republican in the last United States senatorial election polled more than two per cent of the entire vote, therefore, according to interpretation of the ruling, the appellation "independent Republican" cannot be used.

There seems to be nothing in the law against nominating candidates as heretofore, but the ticket so nominated must be certified to the town clerk under some different name as for instance the Democrats may name their ticket "Independent Democratic" or "Progressive Democratic" or something along that line and this will appear on the official ticket at the April election.

W. L. ELDER CANDIDATE FOR HIGHWAY COMMISSIONER

The latest entrant into the race for highway commissioner of Sullivan township of W. L. Elder who is a candidate for the Republican nomination. Mr. Elder is now engaged in farming on Route 32 north of this city. In case he gets the nomination he is after and is elected at the ensuing election in April, he will discontinue his farming operations and devote his entire time to the office.

Alumbaugh Store Badly Damaged by Thurs. Morning Fire

Flames are Thought to Have Originated from a Short in Electric wiring. Fire Confined to Second Story But Water Damages All Stock.

The Alumbaugh grocery store on the southwest corner of the square was badly damaged by fire, smoke and water early Thursday morning.

The fire is supposed to have started from defective wiring between the ceiling and second story floor. Mrs. Rosa Reeder, night operator at the telephone exchange nearby was the first party to see the smoke issuing from the building and turned in the alarm.

When the fire department arrived the building was full of smoke and it was very difficult to find the fire, which was entirely confined to the second story. On this floor Mr. Alumbaugh had many things stored, especially the lighter kinds of groceries, crates, etc., as heavier groceries are kept in a storage room on the first floor.

The alarm sounded at 4 o'clock and for almost two hours water was forced into the second story, until finally the smoke subsided.

A hole burned in the floor above some wiring and the fact that the fuse was blown at the switch downstairs led to the belief that crossed wires had started the damage.

The building is owned by Homer Shepherd of Champaign who will take steps at once to repair it.

Water damage will be considerable as practically all merchandise on first floor, except canned and bottled goods suffered water damage. Sacks and packages were saturated.

Mr. Alumbaugh had some insurance but on Thursday morning was unable to state just what coverage he had.

This was the third misfortune that has befallen this business during the past year as the place was twice broken into and robbed.

Mr. Alumbaugh plans to go ahead with his business as soon as things are in such shape that he can.

The exhibits were large and varied and showed excellent work on the part of the pupils. The judges were Mrs. J. D. Knight and Mrs. Otis Kearney of Lovington and Miss Katherine Lehman of Sullivan.

NEW ILLINOIS BLUE BOOK

Through the courtesy of Louis L. Emmerson, secretary of state the Progress is in receipt of the 1927-1928 copy of the Blue Book of the State of Illinois.

The Blue Book is a great Illinois institution. A copy of it ought to be in every school room in Illinois. From cover to cover it is filled with information of interest to the people of Illinois.

To try to list all of the subjects treated in this book of over a thousand pages is manifestly impossible. To do it justice in even a cursory review would require more columns of space than we have available.

We will endeavor to touch some of the high spots, however and if we can arouse our circle of readers to a greater interest in the wonderful state of Illinois, our purpose shall have been accomplished.

Quoting from the book:

"One hundred years ago Illinois was a frontier state, in many sections still virgin territory.

"The southern part was sparsely inhabited and possessed the chief towns of the commonwealth, Vandalia, the capital; Kaskaskia, the former capital and Shawneetown, the Ohio river settlement.

"The Northern half was even more thinly settled. It was for the most part a vast expanse of lonely prairie and undisturbed forest land. The first post office in the northern section had just been established at Galena. The towns in the north were little more than trading posts. Chicago was Fort Dearborn.

"Transportation was by river, by horseback and by stage coach, though the stage lines were few and unsatisfactory and the roads bad.

"Ninian Edwards was governor and politics revolved around state development and state and national finance, Andrew Jackson, state's rights and national banks were the burning issues.

"The outside world in 1927 looked upon Illinois as virtually an uncivilized backwoods wilderness.

"Newspapers were small weeklies, edited largely with the scissors.

"From 12,283 whites in 1810 the population had increased in 1820 to 55,162 and by 1830 to 157,445."

Now let us take a look at Illinois statistics for today: "The estimated population July 1, 1926 was 7,203,000. It is exceeded in population only by New York and Pennsylvania. Chicago with a population of 3,250,000 is the fourth largest city in the world. Total property value in Illinois is $22,252,794,000.

"In value of farm property Illinois ranks second. The estimated value in 1925 was $4,628,344,531. Only Iowa has a greater investment. The value of farm crops in 1926 was $372,849,000, that being greatest of any of the states except Texas, Iowa and California. In value of livestock Illinois ranks third, being exceeded only by Iowa and Texas.

"Illinois ranks fourth in manufactured products. The total value of its factories in 1923 was $5,041,113,314 and nearly one billion dollars was paid in wages to industrial workers."

And thus the story reads all down the line in all kinds of endeavor in which the people of Illinois are engaged.

The Blue Book is a photo album of the past and present great men and women of Illinois. A number of photos appear of the members of the convention of 1870. Heads of present state departments each gave Mr. Emmerson his most flattering likeness to be inserted in this book.

State elective officers are given a full page each for biography and another page for their photo. Some are modest and get by with but a few lines, others rather spread themselves in their desire to impress on their constituents their superior qualifications and fraternal affiliations.

The dignified and handsome jurists who constitute our Supreme Court add lustre and class to what the book contains.

Senator Charles S. Deneen appears with his best professional politician scowl and lo, and behold, just see who follows: "United States Senator Frank L. Smith." He got his picture into the book so history will record him as a United States Senator, even though the Senate refused to grant him admittance to its dignified and august body.

Then we see two more of the states persistent and pernicious office holders, Richard Yates and Henry R. Rathbone, our congressmen at large. Dick Yates, the son of the illustrious war governor of Illinois is getting along somewhat in years and has past the 68th milestone. He too at one time was governor of Illinois.

Incidentally we might state that both Yates and Rathbone are so enamored of drawing their pay out of the public treasury that both are again candidates for re-election.

Then we have presented to our gaze the Illinois statesmen who represent this commonwealth's districts in Congress. There are twenty-five of them of which number, sad to relate, only seven are of the Democratic faith. Three of these Democrats—Henry T. Rainey, J. Earl Major and William W. Arnold are from the downstate and the other four are from Chicago.

Richard J. Barr, president pro tem of the Senate and Robert Scholes, speaker of the house each are accorded a full page to set forth their particular type of manly beauty.

And in perusing the book we now come to page 213 and here note the first batch of legislative representatives. The first district is in Chicago. Here a note of sadness enters the chronicle for one of those pictured is dead, Sheardrick Bond Turner, Republican negro legislator died in September of last year. Negro legislators? Certainly, why not? Chicago has sections where the negroes predominate and where the votes came from that elected "Big Bill" mayor last spring. So let us turn to page 217 to add some more color to this narrative. We there see these gentlemen of color: Adelbert H. Roberts, senator, who in his biography lays claim to having been a close friend of late Booker T. Washington; Warren B. Douglas a colored attorney and George T. Kersey, an undertaker of the same hue constitute the republican triumvirate, while democracy is represented by a fighting Irishman by the name of George Garry Noonan.

Rambling on through the legislative list we see a typically American conglomeration of faces. We see pictures of political statesmen and mere political accidents. In the Chicago list we find Bohemians, Swedes, Italians, Irish and English born—also some native Americans.

For brevity in biography you'll have to hand it to David H. McCluggage of Peoria. It follows: "David H. McCluggage (Representative, Democrat) Peoria Manager of the Hotel Harold, Peoria. He is serving his fourth term." Just that, nothing more.

In reading the biographies it strikes you most emphatically that to be a statesman you've got to be a "jiner." Some of the fellows list fraternal affiliations as long as your arm as note this from the biography of our friend Grover C. Hoff of Decatur: "He is a member of the Presbyterian church, Masonic, Elks, Odd Fellows, Modern Woodmen and Eastern Star Lodges and Kiwanis club." But there are others who lay claim to an even longer string of fraternalities.

Here and there a woman legislator appears—you'll see more as the days go by.

Coming down to our district (the 24th) did you ever realize that our venerable senator the Hon. Henry M. Dunlap who has been, off and on, representing this district since back in the days when Benjamin Harrison was president, is getting to be quite along in years. He's seen 75 summers and 75 winters and a goodly portion of this time as a member of the Legislature.

Our representatives are H. H. Hawkins of this city, Roger F. Little a Champaign lawyer and James Albert Reeves who gives farming as his avocation in life.

There are articles on hard roads, on health and state institutions and everything else that you might want to know.

It even gives the names of the fellows who are on the big payroll by virtue of the love they bear Len Small. In an article last week we stated that members of the Illinois Commerce Commission received only $5,000 a year. The Blue Book corrects us and we pass it on. Bill Smith, Hal Trovillion and the rest of Len's pets on this particular graft get $7,000 each per year; assistant commissioners get $5,000. The book has pages and pages of names of appointees who get $3,600 to $7,000 per year for giving to Illinois their efficient and indifferent service and toadying to its most illustrious chief executive.

If you want to know the big cogs in a real political machine, read the Blue Book.

Read it anyway if you get a chance. If you have a thirst for history, civil government, Illinois constitutional law, predatory politics, general statistics, or what you will, you will find it in this latest addition to well regulated libraries.

We thank Mr. Emmerson for so kindly remembering us with a copy.

19TH. DISTRICT G. O. P. LEADERS ENDORSEMENT GIVEN F. O. LOWDEN

At a meeting of the Republican county chairmen of the 19th Congressional district held Thursday of last week at the Orlando Hotel in Decatur, it was agreed to support men politically who are pledged to farm relief.

The candidacy of former governor Frank O. Lowden for the Republican nomination for president was endorsed by adoption of the following resolution:

"Recognizing the ability with which Hon Frank O. Lowden discharged the duties of his high office as Governor of the State of Illinois, the value of his services to the people of this state, and to the nation, by reason of his integrity, experience, ability and industry, and his knowledge of those great national problems which deeply concern the welfare of our people; and remembering his valued services in behalf of the republican party, and his loyalty to those fundamental principles of republicanism which have been the foundation of the progress, prosperity and welfare of the United States from the time of the inauguration of Abraham Lincoln as president, therefore:

"Be it resolved by the Republican Congressional Committee of the Nineteenth District of Illinois, assembled in convention at Decatur, Illinois, this 2nd day of February, A. D. 1928, that we hereby approve and endorse the candidacy of Hon. Frank O. Lowden for president of the United States."

That endorsement, it was pointed out, was virtually as strong as was possible, in view of the fact that delegates to the national convention are bound by the vote of the people in the presidential preference primary, provided one can be held this spring.

"I tell you I won't have this room," protested the old lady to the bell boy. "I ain't going to pay my good money for a pig-sty with a measly little foldin' bed in it. You think jest because I'm from the country—"

Disgusted, the boy cut her short. "Get in, lady, get in. This ain't your room. This is the elevator."

Brisbane

A COURAGEOUS IRISHMAN.
A HOLLOW MAGNET.
A VARIEGATED CLIMATE.
MORE AEROPLANES NEEDED.

A real fighting Irishman has come to America. William Thomas Cosgrave, President of the Irish Free State. Diffident, keen light blue eyes, soft voice, iron will and a lion's courage. That is a picture of the Irish President for whom fear does not exist, not even the only fear admitted by his relatives, the Celtic chiefs of Gaul, who admitted that they feared one thing, that the sky might fall on them.

If you asked, "Can NOTHING be more powerful than SOMETHING?" you would get no serious answer.

But how do you explain this fact, announced by German science and proved by convincing experiment? A hollow magnet is more powerful than a solid magnet.

The absence of magnetized metal inside the magnet increases its magnetic strength. A magnet containing four hollow lamellae has as much lifting power as one containing nine solid lamellae.

Everything is possible in chemistry and physics, now that atomic construction and the horrible power and speed of the tiny electrons have been added to human knowledge. But that hollow magnet news is a thing to puzzle science.

A. D. Lasker, who ran the Shipping Board, once a young, frightfully energetic boy, sitting in the outside office of Lord & Thomas in Chicago, now even more frightfully energetic, sits in the inside office and owns the place.

He and his wife have just given a million dollars to Chicago University to study the "causes, nature and prevention of degenerative diseases."

Within three hundred years, the average life has increased from thirty to sixty years, but a man of fifty has very little better chance of life than a man of that age one hundred years ago.

Lasker wisely gives money to find out why it is that human beings after fifty break down so quickly.

If the scientists will let him, Lasker should use some of his money investigating suggestions that medical science would call "all nonsense." All nonsense is what the doctors called the theories of Pasteur, who taught them more than they ever knew before.

Michael J. Hinch, eighteen years old, touched a live wire carrying 5,000 volts and, according to doctors, was "dead for half an hour." Quick action by fireman brought the boy back to life.

At first his mind wandered. Then he recognized friends, knew his own name, who he was and what he had been doing in the previous eighteen years.

The question arises, does the same thing happen to all of us, after we have been dead a long time, perhaps, as one earnest clergyman suggests, as long as a billion years, waiting for the world to end and Gabriel to summon us?

We have a variegated climate, dogs pulling sleds over Alaska's ice, ladies and their friends lying half-naked on the sands of Florida, California and the Gulf States.

And the thermometer does not tell everything about weather. We shiver and growl at 14 above zero, while Donald McMillan, Arctic explorer sent word, through radio, that he is quite comfortable at Bowdoin, Labrador, with the temperature 35 below zero.

It depends on humidity, elevation, ozone and other things probably of which we know nothing.

A dispatch from Nicaragua says Sandino, the rebel-bandit who killed some of our marines, has been killed by a bomb from one of our airplanes.

The Nacaragua rebels now know that they have no more chance against United States flying machines than a rabbit has against eagles.

That is satisfactory so far as our Nicaragua fight goes.

But our President, Congress, and Army and Navy departments should remember that several countries in Europe and at least one in Asia exceed us so greatly in air power that they could do to us if they chose, what we have just done to Sandino.

WE NEED FIGHTING AIRPLANES, not merely a sample force of the Nicaragua size.

The Emperor of Japan sets an example in economy—carries a $5 watch, cultivates his own rice field. That would surprise his great great grandfather. That Mikado, by lifting a finger, could chop off anybody's head, and he did.

THE LINCOLN CIRCUIT

In Springfield, where his ashes lie,
A granite column rises high;
To Springfield, year on year, there wends

A Caravan that never ends,
Of pilgrims, eager, come to pay
Their homage to his sacred clay;
And yet methinks the true estate
Of Lincoln, humble, simple, great,
Is better sensed in village street,
Where once he loved to walk and greet

In heartiness his fellows all,
In mart, in courthouse, tavern hall,
Methinks his spirit lingers where
He lived and wrought. No sepulcher

Of stately grandeur, cold and dim,
Can hold the human heart of him.
The little towns, the county seats,
With dreaming squares and idling streets,
Plain homes of plainer pioneers,
Unsung, yet hallowed through the years

Because in distant times they saw
Him come and go to practice law,
Tell homely tales, crack homely jokes
And neighbor with the common folk—
The little towns, the country roads
The woods, the prairies, the abodes
Of humble men where malice fails
And charity for all avails—
These are the shrines that still enfold

The heart of Lincoln as of old,
Whose living legend runneth thus:
We loved him; he was one of us.
—E. O. Laughlin in the Ladies Home Journal.

A MAN OF SORROWS

They thought him but a clown, a tactless boor
Who filled his days and nights with quips and jests;
His hours were heedless as his purse was poor;

Without ambition, blind to worthy quests,
He dragged along his days; a human clod
Who scorned religion, mocked and flouted God.

How far they erred! A man of sorrows he,
Who bore within his heart a fatal wound.
Bereft of those he loved, the sympathy
He craved and hungered for could not be found;

The men with whom he walked from day to day
Knew not he trod a dark and lonely way.

A man of sorrows, born to pain
and grief,
Yet would he not inflict his woes on men.

In jests and jokes he sought to find relief;
Thus gaining strength, he walked erect again.

Such was the man they called a wag and clown,
The byword—and the glory—of his town.

CULINARY ATHLETICS

Here is the story of a young bride who asked her husband to copy off a radio recipe she wanted. He did his best, but got two stations at once, one of which was broadcasting the morning exercises and the other the recipe. This is what he took down:

"Hands at hips, place one cup of flour on the shoulders, raise knees and depress toes and mix thoroughly in one-half cup of milk. Repeat six times. Inhale quickly one-half teaspoon of baking powder, lower the legs and mash two hardboiled eggs in a sieve, exhale, breathe naturally and sift into a bowl."

"Attention! Lie flat on the floor and roll the white of an egg backward and forward until it comes to a boil. In ten minutes remove from the fire and rub smartly with a rough towel. Breathe naturally, dress in warm flannels and serve with fish soup."

THIS NEIGHBORHOOD WORLD

By S. J. Duncan-Clark.

The spirit of concord has been conspicuous in the sessions of the Pan-American union at Havana, and probably no one has been more influential in promoting it than Charles Evans Hughes, leader of the American delegation. Mr. Hughes has displayed admirable tact in smoothing out situations which had possibilities for friction. He has spread sentiment of good-will and cooperation, maintaining American dignity but not insisting too much upon preogatives.

One result of this wise attitude is found in the fact that plans for the reorganization of the Pan-American union on a permanent basis have progressed without material disturbance to the existing arrangement which has the approval of our government, and which we preferred to see continued.

The Mexican delegation, as we noted recently, had a plan which would have made the chairmanship of the union's governing board, and the office of director-general of the union, subject to change on a basis of rotation among the nation-members of the union. Under the system now in vogue the chairman is elected by the governing board, and the board has always elected the American secretary of state. That system is to be continued. If the board desires to elect some other member to the chair it can do so. If it wishes to dismiss the director general, who is an American citizen, Dr. Leo S. Rowe, that lies in its power. Mr. Hughes made it clear that the United States had no wish to control the action of the board in the choice of these officers, but that it regarded continuity of service, especially in the office of director-general, as an important principle.

The Mexican plan was voted down in the committee on reorganization by a vote of 19 to 1.

There had been some criticism of the fact that Dr. Rowe attended the union as an American delegate, altho he is, in fact, the impartial agent of all nation-members of the union. Mr. Hughes admitted the force of the criticism but explained that the union had made no provision for the presence of its director-general at the conference, and that the United States had put him on its delegation in order to get around this neglect. Mr. Hughes then proposed that in the future the director general should be considered ex-officio a member of the conference, and that the expenses of his attendance should be pro-rated among the union members.

A matter which has invited a good deal of interest is the work of the special committee which is laboring to draft an aviation treaty. Certain misunderstandings which arose in the earlier work of the committee, and which concerned American effort to protect the fortifications of the Panama canal, and the naval base at Guantanamo, Cuba, from curious survey by planes of European ownership or control, have disappeared in the process of discussion. The treaty draft is nearing completion. It is said that in its final form it will be open for adoption by all governments, and not merely those of the Western hemisphere.

This aviation treaty task is, of course, experimental. It is pioneering in a new field of international relations, and nothing, perhaps, could stress more significantly the changing conditions in our neighborhood world than the necessity which has developed for regulating the highways of the air as they sweep, without barrier of any sort, across all boundary lines and frontiers.

Herr Stresemann, the German foreign minister, stirred the neighborhood to more or less of a flutter the other day by declaring in the reichstag, "France must evacuate the Rhineland or the rest of the world will deride the Locarno treaty as nonsense."

It rangles the heart of Germany that French guns are still in the Rhineland despite the fact that Germany is disarmed, that she has pledged herself never to make war on France, and that she is a member of the League of Nations, with a seat in its council and loyal to its covenant. Herr Stresemann contends that these things should be sufficient assurance to France that Germany means to keep good faith or to carry out the terms of the Versailles treaty.

If Mr. Briand could have his way it is likely the French forces would soon be out of the Rhineland, but so long as M. Poincare is premier the likelihood of the complete withdrawal is not good. They expressed a sentiment and a point of view which all the subsequent happenings have not greatly modified. The French premier is not a neighborly sort of man. He is too suspicious. It is obvious, however, that the spirit of Locarno cannot prevail in an atmosphere of suspicion. France ought to remove her guns. There are not enough of them to be of much service if need should arise. They are merely provocative, a cause of irritation, an obstacle to amicable relations.

The United States Senate during the present session may be asked to accede to the slavery convention adopted at Geneva in September 1926, and to which forty states have already acceded. We are accustomed to think of slavery as a thing of the past. But it can be found in many parts of the world today, and forms of it have developed which, while avoiding some of the more blatant phases of old buying and selling, are none-the-less terribly oppressive and destructive of human rights and liberty. "Debt slavery" is one of these forms; forced labor for private purposes another.

In 1890 an agreement of the powers was reached at Brussels under which they obligated themselves to prevent the trade in slaves by land or sea. The Geneva convention grew out of a question raised in the Third Assembly of the League of Nations in 1922, with special reference to conditions in Abyssinia. It goes further than the agreement of 1890, but no farther than we have gone in our own Constitution and in our attitude toward all peoples who live under our flag. The convention was drafted for signature by all nations whether members of the league or not.

The discussion of disarmament will be renewed at Geneva next month. Commissions have been making further study of the question. In the light of the American proposals—for war renunciation—as well as of American cruiser building proposals—it is not unlikely some interesting things may develop. In the French mind everything hinges on security, and Germany is said to have certain recommendations to make for the meeting of this need, which are mainly interesting in the fact that they abandon the old idea of sanctions.

WILLIAM G. McADOO

MR. McADOO'S BITTERNESS

William G. McAdoo seems to be suffering with a return attack of his 1924 New York convention malady. Having taken himself out of the running for the Democratic nomination several months ago, he seems now bent upon putting himself back in—if it can be accomplished by hook or crook. Seeing Gov. Al Smith of New York, his hated rival of four years ago, leading the pack in advance of the Houston convention, Mr. McAdoo evidently has made up his mind to beat him, even if it causes disruption of the party again. No other construction can be put upon his savage attack on Gov. Smith, whom he singled out in his Richmond speech, no other reason for the bitterness of his cry to the dry element to rally immediately "if the White House is not to become a veritable Gibraltar of anti-prohibitionists" thru the election of a wet, can be logically assigned.

The Californian, however, is crying in the wilderness. He gnashes his teeth in a rage to no purpose. The dry organization has signified on more than one occasion that it was through with his leadership. Southern chiefs who have sought someone other than Al Smith have shaken their heads when McAdoo pointed to himself. They will have nothing of his ruler-ruin policy. They remember McAdoo's dog-in-the-manger attitude in 1924 when he fled to Europe to nurse his wrath at failure to obtain the nomination, and recognize that he no longer appeals to the rank and file as the ideal leader or as the most available standard-bearer.

His hatred of Gov. Smith is his principle motive in his new declaration. He indicated that in his Wednesday night speech by calling Smith by name, although his remarks might have been applied with equal force to either Gov. Ritchie of Maryland or Senator Reed of Missouri. The slurs were perfectly obvious, and without foundation. "It is of outstanding importance to impress the fact that the powers of government must be entrusted only to those who have the honest will to enforce the law" he said. "It is not to be expected that the law will be enforced by officials who are hostile to it and who are willing to remit the performance of their public duties in exchange for political or personal advantages." Was that intended to refer to the New York executive, a known wet, but a man who has stood singularly clean before the public in his fidelity to duty? Was that intended to refer to a man whose record is proof that he has disregarded politics and personal advantage when either threatened to clash with his oath of office? Apparently it was.

Mr. McAdoo seems to have o'er leaped himself again. His speech will get him nowhere, although it may cause considerable annoyance and threaten party harmony for a time. If it was an effort to throw his hat into the Democratic ring again, it will fail of its purpose.

—St. Louis Star.

STHS Boys Awarded Prizes in Contest Of Drivers Journal

Granville Cochran and Vern Kellar Contest with Stories of Projects Sponsored by Ag Class

The names of Granville Cochran and Vern Kellar, STHS agricultural students, appeared with the names of eighteen other project story prize winners from Wisconsin, Iowa and Illinois in the Chicago Daily Drivers Journal on Feb. 6. For the past three years the Chicago paper, the clarion of the Chicago livestock market has conducted a project story contest. Two STHS boys mentioned above entered the contest this year and as a result Granville Cochran won third and Vern Kellar seventh. Granville will receive a year's subscription to the Drivers Journal and a silver loving cup, and Vern will receive a year's subscription to the journal also. In addition the project stories as submitted to the paper will be printed in the Chicago Daily Drivers Journal at an early date.

The judges of the stories were J. E. Hill, C. F. Ekstrom and L. M. Seaman, supervisors of vocational agriculture in Illinois, Iowa and Wisconsin respectively. It was a keen contest according to the Chicago paper. About one hundred stories were sent in from Illinois, Wisconsin and Iowa. Johnnie Foss, Walnut Ill., won first. Illinois boys won seven of the twenty prizes and the STHS boys won two of the seven, a showing that should be appreciated by friends and patrons of the school.

The purpose of the contest, according to the Judges of the project stories may best be stated in their own words: "The project itself is a required part of vocational teaching. In this work practical application is made of what the boys learn in classroom, and accurate records are kept of time and money spent and of the returns. The project story contest is sponsored for the purpose of encouraging boys in writing and through publication of the stories to acquaint the public with the kind of work being done by these lads."

Kellar's project related the facts concerning his ton litter, an account of which was published a few months ago. Granville Cochran wrote concerning his swine project and its relation to his joining the 4H Jersey Calf club.

Third Prize Story
After I had attended my Animal Husbandry class for a few weeks I found that each person was supposed to have a project. I was undecided what to take. I finally decided upon a gilt. Since the season was late a bred Chester White gilt was purchased. I gave my note at the bank for fifty dollars for her.

On Feb. 9 the gilt was brought home and let out on a clean bluegrass pasture. About two weeks before time to farrow she was put in a pen. All the ground and the house had been cleaned and sprayed with hot water and lye. The gilt farrowed on April 11th. She farrowed eleven pigs and saved ten. The sow was not allowed to have any feed until 24 hours after farrowing. She was given water and a little slop however.

As soon as the pigs were big enough to eat they were given a ration of ground corn, bran and tankage. The weather was rainy and cloudy most of the time. The pigs grew fast and one Sunday morning I noticed that the pigs were becoming weak in the back. I went in to see my teacher. He went with me to the high school to get some bulletins on the subject. He told me that the pigs should have some mineral mixture and so a mixture of limestone, steambone meal and salt was given them. Just to experiment we fed them some cod liver oil in the slop. They immediately began to get better and were soon growing well.

Mr. Iftner helped us vaccinate the pigs. The pigs were weaned at eight weeks of age and the sow bred again. The boar pigs were castrated and I lost one of them. The pigs were fed corn, bran, some soybeans and tankage until the middle of the summer. We ran short on feed then and the pigs got nothing but some green corn for a while. These pigs were entered in the ton litter contest but when the feed ran short this was given up. Four of the best gilts were sold to boys who are starting a pig club. Twenty five dollars a head were received for these gilts. The other shoats were fattened and put on the market.

Another project was started the nineteenth of April with a purebred heifer. I joined a calf club and received a heifer. I also gave a note at the bank for $118 for this heifer. She has been fed a ration which is recommended by the club, and consists of 3 parts ground corn, 3 parts ground oats, 33 parts bran and 1 part linseed oil meal. My calf was six months old when I got her. She was bred on Dec. 15. I showed her at the Moultrie-Douglas County Fair but failed to win. Each calf club member received $5 for showing his calf however.

I have paid the note for the sow and partly paid the note for my heifer from the money I received for the pigs. I gave my father enough hogs for meat and the sow and her second litter to pay for the feed which they ate. My father also promised me a gilt from the pigs which the sows are raising. He is also to finish paying for the heifer.

So from the work which I put upon the Animal Husbandry project I have gained a purebred heifer of good breeding and also a promise of a good gilt. I have learned many things about hogs and cattle since I took up the work on the projects.

My Ton Litter Project Seventh Prize
When Vocational Agriculture was introduced in the local High school, my father, a farmer, was anxious that one of his sons enroll in the course. My brother, a senior, could not enroll and my course of study was so planned that it was impossible for me to do so the first year. Last year I signed up for the course partly to please my Dad, partly on the recommendation of the boys who had taken it the year before and because I wanted to get something practical from my high school work.

After careful consideration I selected purebred Poland China hogs for my project. Dad gave me a smooth, purebred gilt, possessing excellent quality and type for the foundation of my herd. Later several of our hogs died of influenza. My gilt died also.

Dad came to my rescue and gave me a tried sow with lots of scale, a clean, dense bone and a broody disposition. I started out again. The sow was bred to farrow in April and was wintered on an ordinary winter ration. A few weeks before farrowing time, I put her in a clean pen, provided with a new house. That saved me the trouble of scrubbing and disinfecting one house and gave the sow a pen that had never been used for hogs. I also fed the sow carefully greatly reducing the corn in her ration.

On April 21st there were twelve little ones; two of which were small and weak. One died, but the other one pulled through with the strong ones. By this time I found that the house was rather small for such a large family but they grew right along and were soon able to be put on a wormfree, bluegrass pasture. As soon as they could eat grain, I fed them shelled corn, oats, and tankage in a self-feeder. This feeder was placed in the pen provided with a hole large enough to let the pigs through but kept the mother in the pasture. In one end of the self feeder I kept a mineral consisting of 45lb lime, 45lb steamed bone meal and 10 pounds salt.

When the pigs were seven weeks old the Ag teacher and I vaccinated them.

I tried to give them all they could eat, all the time, in the feeder and in the trough. How they did eat and grow. As part of my task, I kept account of all the grain and tankage, mineral, shorts and an estimate of the skim milk and pasture. With plenty of corn in the crib, I turned the sheller each morning and carried those pigs a bag of corn; then came home in the evening usually to find the feeder empty; so I had to shell another supply.

I made an agreement with Dad to give him two of the hogs in payment for the corn fed to the litter.

I entered the litter in the Ton Litter Contest and the Ag teacher made frequent trips to see how they were getting along and to offer helpful suggestions.

One rather unusual feature was that nine of the eleven pigs were gilts. They were the tamest, laziest bunch of hogs I have ever seen.

When at the end of the 180-day period, October 17, the eleven hogs were weighed, I felt repaid for my time and labor. They tipped the scales at 2240 pounds.

The price the day they were weighed was eleven cents but I did not sell them, consequently I had to take a lower market price.

The project was fairly profitable from the financial standpoint. The feeds and their cost as figured from the records kept follows:

Feed Cost:
Shelled corn 5889 lb	$ 58.80
Oats, 160lb	1.75
Tankage, 160lb	7.20
Shorts, 200lb	4.50
Bone meal 45lb	2.02
Lime 45lb	1.10
Salt 10	1.12
Milk, 6880lb	24.15

Blue Grass pasture	11.50
Total feed cost	$110.24
Total labor cost	19.50
Vaccination	4.81
Total cost of production	$134.55
Net Income	89.45
Paid self for labor	19.50
Total income	$108.95

I have learned several things from my project; that pure bred stock is best, that care is an important factor and that gains made in the shortest time are more economical, and that clean feed, clean surroundings and water will make good pork.

I am proud of the fact that my litter was the first official ton litter of Moultrie county and am anxious to see the medal which I shall receive from the State University.

MANY PLAN TO ATTEND NATIONAL INN OPENING

The arrangements committee of the Community Club held a meeting Tuesday to check up on ticket sales for the formal opening of the National Inn on the night of February 17th. All indications are that there will be a greater demand for tickets than can be accommodated.

At Tuesday's meeting the following were named to constitute a reception committee: Guy S. Little, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Foster, Mr. and Mrs. Frank McPheeters, Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Billman, Dr. and Mrs. S. T. Butler and Judge and Mrs. O. F. Cochran.

CUT OUT THAT CUT-OUT NOISE; ITS DISGUSTING

Some fellow who evidently likes to be heard has been running a blue devil automobile of ancient vintage through the uptown this week with cut-out wide open. The resulting noise is anything but pleasant.

There are state and city laws against such nuisance. Why not enforce them and put an end to the racket?

SULLIVAN VICTOR OVER ARTHUR IN HOT GAME WEDNESDAY

Keeping up the good work they started in the Okaw Valley tournament, Sullivan basketballers Wednesday night administered a drubbing to Arthur here by a score of 28 to 24.

Vern Kellar and Wayne Smith tied the score for Sullivan in the last few minutes after Arthur had assumed a 24 to 21 lead.

Holding this scoring advantage, Arthur began to stall away the remaining two minutes but Wayne Smith managed to get possession of the ball long enough to be fouled, and he sank his free throw. On the next tip off Kellar took the ball and sank a field goal from near center to tie the score. Sullivan then won out in the extra period when Wayne Smith got a basket and Kellar followed with another soon after.

Arthur held a one point lead at the end of every quarter except the fourth when Sullivan tied the count. During the third quarter, Sullivan overcame its opponent's one point lead and kept it until the final minute only to see Arthur forge to the front again as the quarter ended.

Although the game was not rough, 29 fouls were called during the fracas, and four athletes were ousted from the game as a result. Kellar and Wayne Smith starred for Sullivan while Folkerts with 15 points proved Arthur's big gun.

In a certain raiser the Sullivan seconds avenged their defeat at the hands of the Arthur seconds who defeated them in the Moultrie county finals. The final score was 26 to 10.

M. E. FOSTER SEEKS RE-ELECTION AS SUPERVISOR

Supervisor M. E. Foster will make the race again this spring for the democratic nomination for supervisor of Lovington township. Mr. Foster has been supervisor for several consecutive terms and has made an able official. He has been chairman of the county board two different terms and is always favored with responsible committee appointments. While Mr. Foster aims to give a square deal to the whole county, he is always on the lookout for his home township and just now when the state's hard road program is looking to new roads in this county it is well to have a well posted supervisor. Mr. Foster has been a member of the hard road committee for several years.

So far Mr. Foster is the only candidate in the race for supervisor and it is doubtful if his party brings out any opposition against him.—Lovington Reporter.

The Lovington team which had reached the semi-finals was eliminated by Bement by the score of 25 to 15. The Bement five overwhelmed the Lovington boys after battling on almost even score for the first three quarters.

Lovington and Villa Grove played for third place in the conference and used their second teams in a major portion of the game. Both teams were tired out and played a listless game which resulted in a win for Villa Grove 25 to 9.

The conference tournament which started Thursday at Tuscola was well attended. The first night saw some upsets particularly when Lovington trimmed Atwood, the Platt county champions to the tune of 19 to 16. Bement laid Arthur by the heels with a score of 27 to 24 and Tuscola eliminated Oakland 34 to 14.

Friday afternoon's games in which Sullivan defeated Monticello 19 to 18 and Villa Grove eliminated Newman 25 to 20 showed the home boys had some championship stuff if they had the proper staying qualities.

Friday night saw Lovington keeping up its good work by defeating Tuscola 23 to 21 and Bement stepped out with a 40 score against 27 for Arcola.

These results matched Sullivan vs. Villa Grove and Bement vs. Lovington.

Villa Grove and Lovington were eliminated and then the Bement and Sullivan closed the contest with a victory for Bement.

Sullivan placed two of its team on the All Star selection made by the conference game officials. Keller was placed as center on the first team and J. Smith as forward on the second team.

W. B. WHITLOCK WANTS TO BE STATE AUDITOR

At the time of Sullivan's bank troubles some years ago the man sent here by State Auditor Russell to take charge of the situation was Ward B. Whitlock of Springfield. During his stay in this city he became well acquainted with people who will be interested to know that this year he is seeking the Republican nomination for the office with which he was formerly connected. His petitions were being circulated here this week.

THE CALENDAR

By Dr. Frank Crane
A questionnaire was sent to 1,000 representative firms the other day in regard to a new calendar of thirteen 28 day months.

George Eastman, head of the Eastman Kodak Company, sent out a statement after the meeting of the United States Chamber of Commerce, which endorsed the movement, in which he says that the new calendar will consist of weeks in which every day of the month falls upon the same week day.

This plan will probably receive the support of the League of Nations and a committee will be appointed in each nation to ratify the proposal.

This is a valiant struggle of common sense against tradition and its outcome will be looked upon with interest.

This plan for the new calendar not only would make every date fall on the same day of the week in each month, but, as this would only result in 364 days, New Year's day would be a holiday and called January 0. Also the extra day for Leap Year would be designated by a cipher and a new month would be inserted between June and July. This month would be called Sol because it would contain the solstice in both the northern and Southern hemispheres.

Even if every nation accepts the new calendar it can only be put in effect after 1928, when New Year's Day falls on Sunday. After that date, if the new plan is successful, we should have no more calendars, as it could be easily told what day of the week any date is.

Mr. Eastman and his co-workers deserve a great deal of credit for endeavoring to make this calendar a success as it would undoubtedly be of great convenience to the world.

Almost all business executives in America are in favor of it and it would undoubtedly do a vast deal of good in correspondence and in making our records.

Of course, the past would have to be taken into consideration, but a calendar would only be needed for the past and not for the future and those who look forward are more apt to favor the new plan than those who look backward habitually. The calendar for one week would be for all weeks, as follows:

Table with 7 columns: S, M, T, W, T, F, S. Rows showing days of the week for 28 consecutive days.

MISS PATTERSON HOME

Miss Nannie Patterson who injured her hip in a fall some weeks ago was brought home from the Decatur hospital Friday. Dr. Lawson, accompanied by Tobias Rhodes went to Decatur in the McMullin ambulance to get her. She is not doing as well as hoped and her injury gives her severe pains.

WERE AT DEDICATION OF HOTEL IN 1883

Police Magistrate Lou Lambrecht has informed us that the list of surviving guests who attended the formal opening of the hotel in 1883 as published was incomplete. It was stated that Judge Cochran, Miss Lizzie Ginn and J. H. Baker were the only present day survivors. Mrs. Lambrecht states that he was present and Miss Austine Roane, now Mrs. S. T. Butler was also there. There doubtless were others whose names have not yet been mentioned.

PARTY THURSDAY NIGHT FOR ETHA BUSHART

Miss Vera Freeman gave a party in her home on Jackson Street Thursday night in honor of Miss Etha Bushart. The party was in the nature of a shower for Miss Bushart who in the near future will be united in marriage with Clifford Williams of Chicago. The guests at the party were members of Miss Freeman's Sunday school class and a few other friends. A mock wedding was the feature of the evening's entertainment. Other games were played and refreshments were served.

A CORRECTION

In a front page item last week it was stated that S. H. Oliver was a candidate for supervisor of East Nelson township. This was an error. Mr. Oliver is a candidate for the democratic nomination for Highway Commissioner. East Nelson elects no supervisor this year.

SUPERVISORS TO MEET

The board of supervisors will meet Saturday at 10 o'clock for the transaction of any business that may come before it.

HOW THEY DIED

It was midnight in the graveyard. The moon peered with uncertain beam through the rifted clouds. A mournful wind sighed through the evergreens. A skeleton scantily draped in the rags of a shroud moved from grave to grave, stooping now and then to read an epitaph the letter of which he traced with a bony finger. These are some that made him pause:

"This is the grave of Solomon Day, Who died defending his right of way. He was mighty right as he sped along But he's just as dead as if he'd been wrong."

"This one belongs to Cornelius Treat, Who read a newspaper while crossing the street. Why weary your ears with the rest of the tale? Cornelius is here, the driver's in jail."

"Here is the grave of Annie McHale, Who walked downstars with her hand off the rail, One heel caught and down Annie fell And never stopped rolling till she woke up in—her present company."

"They all had their chance, but they did not give heed, They were reckless or careless or wild after speed, So just take a tip from a guy gone before, In this place where I'm at, there's still room for more."—I. C. Magazine.

Prayer meeting every Wednesday evening at 7:30.
The church where there are no strangers welcomes everyone.

THE GOSPEL MISSION
Matt. 14:24 "But the ship was now in the midst of the sea." The farthest point from any land where human help could reach it. God frequently permits His children to reach a point where the arm of flesh is too short to reach them. Faith cannot be measured until a test like this has come to it. "Tossed with waves, for the wind was contrary." Since the disciples had embarked at the urgent request of the Lord, they may have thought they should have been guaranteed a pleasant and safe trip, but this was not the Lord's best for them at this time. Storms reach us even in the center of His will and must be weathered by faith in His wisdom and love. Contrary winds are not only dangerous but are also baffling, compelling one to take an uncertain course. This is very trying and calls for the highest type of faith if one is to be restful and quiet while passing through such an experience.

BRETHREN ASSEMBLY
A. J. Burville, Minister
Sunday school at 9:30 a. m. and Bible study and breaking of bread at 11 a. m. Christian Endeavor at 6:30 p. m. Subject, "Hair". In 1st Corinthians 11 and 15 we find that the Lord gave long hair to a woman to be a covering for her head. In this day and age, "style comes first and The Word of God last."
Until further notice there will be services at Windsor the first and 3rd Lord's days in each month and the second and fourth Lord's days in Sullivan. There is quite a crowd of the poor people here and also at Windsor that do not go to the larger fashionable churches. They are looked down on and not noticed because they cannot dress as well as the rich folks. And the trouble about a good many people to day is, the clothes they wear is not paid for. We are reminded of Luke 4 and 18. "The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because He hath anointed me to preach the Gospel to the poor."
Some kind friends in St. Louis have sent money to pay for the rent of a hall and we are renting one above the citizens bank very reasonable with light and heat included. God willing there will also be cottage prayer meeting at the home of some of the town people in Windsor each Wednesday night.

Prayer meeting in Tuesday and Friday evenings at Sullivan.

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH
C. E. Barnett, pastor
It was a great encouragement to be greeted by the inspiring music of an enlarged orchestra last Sunday. Now let's show we appreciate these players by being on time to hear them, and to sing as they lead. The hour is 9:30 a. m.
There are three great seasons in our church year. The first is past, reaching its climax at Christmas. The second will close with Easter, the third with Pentecost. We are planning special services, through these seasons, for the vitalization of our lives and the enrichment of our homes. We wish particularly to emphasize regularity of church attendance upon the members of the First Christian church, as one means of accomplishing our aim. We invite all who have no other church home to worship with us regularly. In the weeks immediately before us we shall strive to advertise Christ and His church. Sunday morning's sermon subject will be "Advertising Christ and His Church." This hour of worship will begin at 10:45 a. m.
Last Sunday evening the members of the Christian Endeavor appreciated the splendid hearing given the "Crusade with Christ" and the offering received. Next Sunday will be the 119th anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln. The pastor's subject for the evening at 7:30 o'clock will be "Moses, Lincoln and Christ, the Three Great Emancipators."
All Endeavorers will be deeply interested in Sunday evening's subject, "Ideals for Choosing a Life Partner." Young people not members are especially invited to this service at 6:30 o'clock. It is also roll call and consecration meeting for the members.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH
Last Sunday was one of those grey days, when so many people like to remain indoors, and yet we were delighted to see so many out to the regular services of the day. Come again, your presence may be a bright spot in the life of another of whom you have never dreamed. Next Sunday kindly remember the Sunday school hour is at ten o'clock. This is a very important service for the young people, and if it is so important for the boy and girl, it cannot hurt the man or woman. By your presence you may inspire the youth, and encourage the older ones who are seeking to promote the work. We are told many hands makes light work; that is especially true where there are willing and intelligent minds. We will look for you at ten o'clock sharp. If you are not present we will miss you, as a member of some class.
Subject for service following the study period, "Jesus' Optimism."
Subject for evening service, "The Unexpected."
Young peoples service at 6:30 p. m. to which all young people are invited.
We invite you to one and all of these services. You can help by your presence, and can do us good by your interest and your prayers. If not in this church, then let me invite you to some church of your choice. If you help one in the true sense of the word you are helping all.

WILD HORSE KILLS EDGAR CO. FARMER
Paris, Ill., Feb. 7—Everett White, Edgar county farmer, who resides between Newman and Hume, was killed early yesterday morning by an outlaw horse, which the farmer was trying to break to harness. The horse had been recently purchased and was known to be dangerous. Mr. White entered the stall to harness the animal and had succeeded in getting the trappings in place when he turned to walk out. The horse seized the opportunity to make a lunge and caught the farmer between its body and the side of the stall. Mr. White was so badly crushed about the abdomen that he died twenty minutes after the accident. He was thirty-eight years old and is survived by his wife and three sons, ranging from seven to sixteen years.

CHAPTER XXII

Gone!

Nothing further happened now until shortly after sunrise the next morning.

Then Burton, who had fallen into an uneasy slumber after some hours of futile watching to see that dear Larry did not die of an overdose without her knowing it, awoke and aroused him.

"What is it, dear?" he cried. "What are you doing here?"

Her story did not take long in the telling. The narrative finished, he rose to his feet, fumbled in his pack, drew forth a revolver and holster which he strapped to his belt. "What are you going to do?" she asked anxiously.

"I'm going to follow the car." "You can't hope to catch it afoot!"

"The chance is very slim," he acknowledged, "but it's the only chance, and it should be taken. Luck might play with us. The car might get stalled. Who knows? And in any case I've got to get on the wires to the lawyers right away."

He was methodically bestowing small necessities in a rucksack. "Please have Simmins take care of my other things," he requested. "Goodbye, dear."

He opened his arms and she crept into them. They clung together for a moment. "Be careful," she begged. "You must come back to me. Don't—don't be rash, will you?"

He laughed. "You mean the gun. No; I'm not going forth to slay. That's just in the remotest case I need a convincing argument. This is a lawyer game now, and a game of get there first."

He kissed her again and strode away. "Come back to me soon!" she called after him. "The sooner ever!" he cried back.

After his departure Burton, whose education had been coming on, made herself some coffee. About two hours later Simmins appeared, very apologetic over his tardiness.

The absence of the little car Burton had expected; but she was at first puzzled to hear that the extra cooking utensils had disappeared; as also a small quantity of provisions.

Then she realized that her father was hiding out, and Burton that he would continue hiding out. Even a pirate chief, if not tender feelings, at least love of mental ease, and Burton realized that even this stern parent might be just as well satisfied if he did not have to face his child while things were too fresh in her mind!

Simmins report that Grimstead's fishing tackle had been taken confirmed her opinion.

"You and I will probably have to wait here some days," she said, and told him what had occurred.

Shortly after noon they were astonished to see Davenport returning. Burton ran to meet him with a cry of mingled gladness and curiosity.

He replied curtly. His eye was savage, his lips compressed. She looked at him, then fell silent. As they entered the camp she made an imperative gesture to Simmins of warning that he should not speak.

Larry strode to the fireside and threw down the rucksack with a slam, then turned to Burton.

"I followed the car for six or eight miles to the place the road crossed the Deep Barranca on a trestle. Part of the trestle had been carried out by the flood. Gardiner had driven the car into the abyss."

"Killed?" cried Burton, horrified. "Gone; swept away, disappeared completely. The stream is wide and swift and fast. I climbed down, of course, but no trace whatever remained except one seat cushion that had been thrown clear. I followed down the stream on the chance that the car might have stranded; but in that force of water it probably broke to pieces almost at once. It was of very light construction."

"What a tragedy!" cried Burton. "Poor Ross Gardiner!"

Davenport shut his lips grimly and let this pass. After a decent moment or so Burton ventured a comment.

with this." "You can copy your other battery," she pointed out.

"Oh! the first was crude. It was dismantled long ago."

"You will work it out again," she comforted. "It may be a slow task, but you'll get it."

He looked at her with something like fright in his eyes. "I do not know!" he almost whispered. "I thought that at first, and I did not really care very much. But then all at once when I sat down to think about it I discovered that I had not one shred of memory of how to make a start at it. It's gone."

"Why, Larry!" she cried. "I hardly know you. It isn't like you to be discouraged. What does it matter if it does take time? You'll get it."

He shook his head. "No, I'm not a quitter," he disclaimed. "I know it sounds like it. But this has become a certainty to me. It has come to me in the same way that all these other things have come to me. Perhaps it is the last of these beautiful certainties from the current of wisdom. It was given to me, and now I feel that it has been taken away. I never was more sure of anything in my life."

She stared at him, aghast. "Such things cannot happen!" she cried, all aflame.

He shook his head. In his uplifted face was no discouragement, only the sorrow of regret.

CHAPTER XXIV

Simmins Writes a Note

Unnoticed, a lank figure had crossed the meadow from the road and now appeared among them.

"Hullo, folks," said he, casting a curious eye about him. "Camp-in' for fun, or get stuck yere by the storm?"

"Caught by the storm," replied Burton.

"I'm the stage driver between Eureka and Tecolote," he volunteered, "but I don't see so way of gettin' through now. That there redwood tree's got the road blocked for keeps. Say, she must have made some crash when she came down!"

"She did," replied Burton. An idea was forming in her brain. "Are you going back to Eureka?" she inquired.

"Sure. Only place to go."

"Have you got room for two?" "I got only the United States mails aboard. What's the idea?"

"Our car is broken," she explained rapidly. "If you will wait 10 minutes, we'll be ready."

"Lot's of time," rejoined the stage driver, and sauntered over to engage the excellent Simmins.

"It is the only thing!" she urged Larry, as soon as the other was out of hearing. "Can't you see it? We cannot stay here. Don't you see it?" she implored.

"I want to get out before he gets back," replied Larry bluntly. "You're right; I'll go."

"I'm going with you," she said steadily.

"What! You cannot do that!" "You are going to need me; I know," she insisted, "it is part of my wisdom, as you call it."

The hunted, hurt look in his face softened.

"Come," he cried, almost exultantly. "There must be people who marry people up here! The world and its power and its troubles can go hang."

"All aboard!" called Davenport to the stage driver. "Ready when you are."

He produced a pad and pencil and wrote thereon.

"I don't want to pry; but if that note is to Grimstead—" suggested Davenport.

"It is only my resignation, sir," replied Simmins.

"You are right," said Davenport. "What would you consider the proper procedure for a young lady eloping. Should she also leave some sort of written communication?"

"I took the liberty of explaining in my note that I was leaving to enter your service, sir, and that of Miss Burton; and that it is intended to send a garage man immediately," answered Simmins.

"You relieve my mind, Simmins," murmured Burton and the stage driver. She looked at him with pleased surprise.

"Good!" she cried. "You're more like yourself!"

"It's Simmins!" Larry exploded with suppressed laughter. "He's a joy and jewel and he's untwisted me from all my knots. Dear, never must we lose Simmins! We'll pawn the family jewels before we let him go."

The little party, carrying the few pieces of baggage, and followed solemnly by Rapsallion, crossed the meadow to where waited the stage.

Then minutes later Grimstead, who had heard the racket made when the long vehicle backed and filled in turning around, came curiously to see what was happening.

He found himself alone with the wrecks he had made.

Across the episode now slowly the dark curtains closed. A great vision had been given one man; a vision that in its due and proper time will lift from mankind one of its greatest pressures. But that time had not yet arrived. When thus it too evidently appeared that from the gift would come strife, not freedom, then the great invisible intelligence, whose pressure is the carrying on with the wisdom of our little world, in sadness reached forth their hands from the soul of that man the vision was erased. Of all its breadth and greatness remained only one little thing: an idea for this story. But sometime, in the remote future, somewhere, to some soul the vision will come again.

BETHANY GAMBLING EXPOSURE BRINGS MANY INTO COURT

Continued from page 1 Bethany gaming. In accordance with this arrangement Mr. Goetz and James Ertell, known also as James Stables went before a Justice of the Peace in Bethany last week and entered pleas of guilty to violating a village ordinance. They then came to Sullivan, had informations filed by the States Attorney in the County Court and there plead guilty to gaming. They were each assessed a fine of $10 and costs. They then proceeded to furnish the information relative to others in Bethany who also were guilty of gaming.

Monday morning Hubert Bushart, Irwin Roney, Harold Howell, Edward Howell, M. B. Baum, James Shiels and Charles Younger the accused men came to this city to see what disposition could be made of the charges pending against them in the county court. The charges for violating the Bethany village ordinances were taken into the court of Police Magistrate Lambrecht, where on pleas of guilty each of the men was fined $10 and costs.

Not only did the accused come to this city, but they were accompanied by Mayor George Reuss, William Bone and Don Goetz, three of the older residents who came to see that justice was meted out to the accused according to their ability to pay. After the men had entered their pleas of guilty in the county court, Judge Grider heard testimony from Messrs. Reuss, Goetz and Bone before he assessed the fines.

He then fined them as follows: Hubert Bushart $15 and costs; Irwin Roney $25 and costs; Harold Howell $15 and costs; Edward Howell in whose meat market the game was supposed to have flourished, $25 and costs; M. B. Baum, $15 and costs; James Shiels $15 and costs; Charles Younger $25 and costs. Mr. Younger was village marshal while the gaming was supposed to have been in progress and he entered a plea of guilty to having participated in the game. He lost his job and Gene Girard is now the custodian of the law in Bethany.

The entire affair has worked up quite a commotion in Bethany and the past record of some of those prosecuting was touched upon in the proceedings Monday. James Shiels who confessed that he played in a game "once in a while" gave it as his unbiased opinion that "he could not see much more harm in putting up money and waiting for a seven to show up, than to play the board of trade and wait for the grain prices to go up."

The Bethany authorities are determined to root out the gambling tendency. Some of those caught in young Goetz's roundup stated that they were just a sample of the gambling crowd and that it would be easy to bring over a "whole bus load" all of whom were equally guilty.

AUCTION BRIDGE RULES

Important Bridge rules not found in any edition of Mr. Work's excellent "Auction Bridge Complete." 1. Pick up your cards as fast as they are dealt to you—You will be ready to bid ahead of all other players. 2. If your hand is rotten mention it—it will guide your partner in his bid and policy. 3. If you partner has the first bid, don't hesitate to raise it—Remember he has to play it. 4. Never hurry—Try several cards on a trick until you are sure which one you prefer.

5. Ask occasionally which are trumps; it will show that you are interested in the game.

6. Talk about other subjects during the game. It makes for good fellowship.

7. Feel free to criticize your partner. He will be so much a better player as a result.

8. Always trump your partner's tricks—never take a chance.

9. Don't try to remember all the rules, because it is rather confusing.

10. If it is a game for money always stop when you are ahead. Folks will remember you better by so doing.

11. Always explain your plays. Do this in particular when you are set. It indicates your card knowledge.

12. Last, but not least, eat chocolate creams or other adhesive candy while playing; it keeps the cards from skidding.—Anonymous.
