

SULLIVAN MARKETS

Eggs and cream are about the only farm products now reaching the local market. Eggs are worth 24c and butterfat is 41c.

38c per lb. is offered for springs that weight 1 1/2 lbs. but as yet none have been received.

Old hens are 15c to 21c and old roosters and stags are 9c.

Elevators are paying 89c for No. 4 corn; oats is 58c and wheat $1.39.

A matter of special interest to farmers was a meeting at Champaign Tuesday between farmers and buyers of soybeans. The buyers offered to take 1,000,000 bushels of soy beans at $1.35 per bu. at time of delivery for this year's crop. An Eastern company, Funk Bros. of Bloomington and the American Milling Co., of Peoria combined to make this offer. This will mean a big acreage of beans. Staley is not quoting any price, saying that it is too early to do so. The Staley management has announced that they can use 1,850,000 bushels of beans next fall if they can get them.

SOUTHERN ILLINOIS TO HAVE PEACH CROP

Centralia, Ill., April 16—Prospects for a peach crop in Southern Illinois this year are brighter now than at the corresponding time last year, A. B. Leeper, manager of the Illinois Fruit Growers Exchange here, said today.

"Peach buds have been held back by the cool weather," he said "until they are at least three weeks behind those of last year. This will give the buds a far better chance to escape a late frost."

South of Carbondale, there was only slight injury to the trees from the sub-zero weather early in December, while in the Centralia district there is probably only thirty-five percent of the buds living. However, this does not mean that these thirty-five percent cannot produce an average crop because the trees produce many buds that never develop into peaches, owing to the lack of room for them on the limb.

Apple orchards were not injured at all by the unprecedented cold weather, H. W. Day, secretary of the organization, said.

SURPRISE PARTY FOR MRS. RILEY MORAN

Relatives and friends gathered at the home of Mrs. Riley Moran Sunday to help her celebrate her forty-sixth birthday anniversary, her birthday being on April 14th. They gathered at the noon hour with well filled baskets of good things to eat. She was presented with a large angel food cake as a birthday cake. It was baked by her daughter-in-law Veta Moran. She was also given another angel food cake, it being baked by a neighbor, Mrs. Orville Buxton.

Those present were the following: Mr. and Mrs. John Standerfer and daughter Helen, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Daniels and sons, Earl Emery and Oscar Wayne, Mr. and Mrs. Orval Buxton and son Oral, Mr. and Mrs. Willie Moran, Mr. and Mrs. Riley Moran and daughters Olga and Alta and Clay Standerfer. They all left at a late hour wishing her many more happy birthdays.

Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Foster and son Richard, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Harsh, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Baker and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Franklin and sons, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Mayberry, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Woodruff and daughter Lorene, Mr. and Mrs. Vergil Cook and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Chris Monroe and son Wayne and Gene Campbell.

AN UNORTHODOX VERSION

The family were at Sunday dinner: "Well, Janie," said Aunt Emma, "tell us the Golden Text in Sunday School today?"

And little Janie chanted: "I should worry—I'll get the quilt anyhow!"

When a startled family opened her Quarterly, they found it read: "Fear not!—The Comforter will come!"—Exchange.

Coffee

THOSE who have read the story about the Arabian horses who ate some strange plant, were stimulated, and who pranced and cavorted so that their master tried the plant himself and discovered coffee, will be annoyed, possibly, to learn that the tale is pure fiction. A majority of the legends concerning the discovery of coffee place that event in Arabia, but the first coffee was used in Abyssinia, the strange republic of the African highlands, and in that country only has the plant been proved to grow wild.

Coffee has been used in Abyssinia from time immemorial, both as a curative and as a drink. But at the time of the crusaders it had not spread into the East. No records of the crusaders mentions coffee in any form. The celebrated physician, Ibn Baithar, who left a record of his travels over the north of Africa and Syria in the Thirteenth century, made no mention of coffee.

Access to the sea from Abyssinia is by the east coast of Africa, not far from Aden, at the southern end of the Red Sea, so it is natural that Arabia and Egypt should have been the first countries outside Abyssinia to gain possession of coffee and begin its cultivation and use. It is practically beyond question that this was the beginning and manner of its spread into the civilized world.

Although coffee has been used for centuries in Abyssinia, no proof exists that its cultivation is very ancient. The early Abyssinians may have gathered it wild in the forests. Coffee was first introduced into Java, now generally connected with the name, in about 1690 by the governor of the Dutch East Indies at Batavia. The Dutch also introduced coffee into America, which continent, thanks to Brazil, the West Indies and Central America, now raises far more of it than any other region in the world.

Spread of the coffee plant has been natural due to the fact that it grows abundantly on mountain sides and in poor soil, badly suited to the growth of most other crops of the region. This fact, together with the almost universal appreciation of hot coffee as a beverage, has changed millions of acres into very productive agricultural lands.

There is no evidence to show that coffee is a native of the Dutch islands of the East with which its name has so frequently been connected. Mocha, also associated with the word coffee, is in Arabia, whither the plant was carried a good many hundred years ago from its African home in Abyssinia. (©, 1928, Western Newspaper Union.)

Tea

TEA grows wild in abundance in the mountainous region that separates China from India. It also is found in Cochinchina and other parts of the Flowery Kingdom. Records show that it has been known in China for more than 4,000 years, so little doubt remains that it came into cultivation in that land, where it is also native. From there its cultivation spread, little by little, probably reaching into India earlier than to Japan.

A Japanese legend relates that a priest who came to China from India about 519 A. D., having gone to sleep at a time when he wished to remain awake for the purpose of praying, was so angry with himself that he cut off his eyelids and hung them on a bush. From this bush sprang the tea shrub, with its qualities of sleep prevention.

This legend, however, has a little truth with respect to the time of tea's discovery as it has with the "origin of species," for the Chinese book, "Pentsao," a compendium of knowledge, mentions tea as far back as 2700 B. C. Other books written 300 to 600 B. C. also reveal a full knowledge of the plant and of the drink made from steeping its leaves.

Although tea-growing is today one of the major agricultural industries of India and Ceylon, and tea probably spread into those countries from China before it reached Japan, it is not of very ancient cultivation in the Indian peninsula, as there is no word for tea in the Sanskrit, or ancient Indian language.

Up to the middle of the Eighteenth century tea was little known in western Europe and was one of the delicacies brought from the Spice Islands of the Far East by the trading fleets of Holland, Portugal, France and England. Of the plant which produced it almost nothing was known, and the great Swedish botanist, Linnaeus, writing of it, said there were two principal varieties, the green tea and the black. Today it is known, however, that the same plant, generally speaking, produces all teas, the difference in color being due to different processes of curing and manufacture, and to the different places from which the leaves are plucked.

Brazil is the country in the Western hemisphere where tea growing has been introduced most successfully. (©, 1928, Western Newspaper Union.)

MAY WE ASK YOU A QUESTION?

What kind of an instrument have you in your sewing basket to cut bastings and seams?

Perhaps you use your husband's old safety razor blades. If so, you know they are unhandy and inconvenient, to use without a holder and the bare blade is dangerous to scorching fingers.

You never saw a handier tool for this purpose than the Autostrop Utility knife. It uses Autostrop blades, the sharpest cutting edge known. The blade closed into the handle just like a knife. It is always ready for use. The above picture shows you the knife closed, open and half open.

We have handed these knives to many men, upon subscription payment and invariably they tell us later that "My wife claimed that knife and put it in her sewing basket."

The retail value of these handy knives is 50c. We are giving them away FREE as subscription premiums. If you pay on your Progress subscription we will make you a present of one of these knives. If knife is to be sent by mail include 10c for packing and postage.

We know you need one of these knives and this is an excellent chance of getting one while our supply lasts.

Care of the Eyes
What does the above mean to you? Are you giving your eyes as much care as you are your automobile? Most people are not, yet they expect those eyes to last a life-time while the car with the best of care runs about six years. Wake-up people! Take care of the most precious thing you possess, your eyesight.
Wallace's will help you.

At the price of ordinary gasoline

Keep a record—watch your expenses—make comparisons—see for yourself how much LESS it costs to run your car on 400 'Extra Dry' than any other gasoline that sells at the regular price.

Full mileage from every gallon. Yes—and that's only one of the many good results you may expect from this superior gasoline. Instant starting in any weather—swift getaway when the green light flashes—acceleration that thrills and exhilarates—and in addition to this, a cleaner, sweeter-running motor with less expense for valve grinding and general overhauling.

The reason is plain—Shell Gasoline is refined by a revolutionary process that takes only the most volatile elements from the crude. It is extra dry, which means it is ALL gasoline. Every drop vaporizes—every particle is converted into power—there are no impurities or greasy particles to clog up the spark plugs, pass the pistons unburned and dilute the oil in the crankcase.

Treat your car to this better gasoline. You will find it on sale at all Shell yellow-red service stations and Shell Dealers at the regular price—not one cent extra for its extra quality, or the extra service it will give you.
