

THE SULLIVAN PROGRESS

Who takes no pride in cleanliness is a poor citizen.

73RD. YEAR. NO. 6

ED C. BRANDENBURGER, PUBLISHER

G. R. Brown Observed His 80th Birthday Anniversary Thurs.

Has Had an Eventful Life and Comes to the 80th Milestone, a Genial and Happy Young Man, Well Liked by All Who Know Him.

Thursday was the 80th birthday anniversary of one of Sullivan's best-beloved citizens, who with his wife for the present is making his home in Decatur with his daughter, Mrs. W. P. Davidson and Dr. Davidson.

He is George Reynold (Daddy) Brown. Though absent from this community he nevertheless claims it as his home and the community claims him as one of its lads who is but temporarily away.

Always cheerful, always optimistic and always in a philosophical frame of mind "Daddy" Brown is the friend of all who happen to meet with him and in ten years' residence in this community the writer has never happened to hear one word of ill or one unfriendly remark directed toward "Daddy."

At the present time he is one of the justices of the peace of Sullivan township and when duty calls him, he is right here on the job to officiate. Of course his absence, does not make it possible for him to participate in one of the greatest joys—that of officiating at marriage ceremonies, where the strictly legal end was (Continued on page 5)

CARL PIATT FORGERY CASE CONTINUED TO MARCH TERM OF COURT

Carl Piatt, a young man who is under indictment for forgery, appeared in the circuit court Monday and entered a plea of not guilty. He is charged with having passed bad checks on Coventry's Cafe, J. H. Smith and the Standard Oil Station here several months ago. His record for some years past is one of conflict with the law on account of giving bad checks. His wife and two small children as well as his parents and other relatives were here on Monday morning. Young Piatt is in poor physical condition.

CAR COULD NOT HAVE BEEN TAKEN FROM GARAGE

Last week it was reported that Lee Roughton had informed the sheriff that his car had been taken from the Jenkins garage some time during the night and damaged, after which it was returned.

The damage was but slight. Mr. Jenkins states that the car could not have been taken from garage, because the building is locked during the night when no one is in attendance. Furthermore this car was locked and could not be moved. He feels that the dent on it was sustained in some other manner. He expressed surprise when he saw the report in The Progress, as nothing had been reported to him.

The Jenkins storage garage is the biggest of that kind in the city and cares for about sixty cars during the winter season.

Supervisors Favor 3c Gas Tax; Notify Representatives

New J. P. for Jonathan Creek Township; Macon County Told to Remove Its Paupers From Moultrie and Pay Accrued Expenses.

By a unanimous vote the board of supervisors of Moultrie county at their special session Thursday of last week passed a resolution endorsing a gas tax. This resolution was sponsored by Guy S. Little the new county superintendent of highways.

After the introductory paragraphs which cite the passage and fate of the former gas tax bill, the board states that it endorses a bill for a 3c per gallon tax, the amount so realized to be apportioned to the state and the counties as the Legislature may deem proper to the best interests.

The county clerk is instructed to mail a copy of the resolution to this district's representatives in the legislature and also to send copies to all county boards in the state.

A request by the Farmers Institute for a $75 donation to help defray the expenses of this week's institute was received and complied with.

The recent death of W. A. Wilkerson of Cadwell left Jonathan Creek township without a justice of the peace. John S. Bolton of Cadwell was named to fill the vacancy.

It was reported that John Holman and family, formerly of Macon county were now living in Marrowbone township and were county charges. According to law these people are Macon county paupers and that county is responsible for their keep. It was decided to ask that county to pay for the expenses already accrued in caring for this family and that a request be also filed with the authorities of that county asking that they remove the Holmans from Moultrie county.

A MOULTRIE COUNTY DISGRACE

Moultrie county needs a new building at the county farm.

The present building is a ramshackle old wooden structure. It is a fire trap that may at any time ignite and burn to death the helpless wards housed therein.

It is too small. Since a change was made in the matter of granting blind pensions, many who formerly received such pensions are now inmates at the county farm. It is over-crowded.

The building is insanitary. It is poorly lighted and poorly heated. It is a "poor" house in more ways than one.

It is a shame that a county like Moultrie treats its poor as ours are treated. We believe that it is carelessness more than intentional negligence.

Go out and see. Have a look for yourselves.

The conditions complained of are not the fault of the superintendent and matron. With the means available Mr. and Mrs. Hamblin are running the place as efficiently as is possible.

It is not entirely the fault of the supervisors. They are doing what they think the people want done. The fault lies with the people of Moultrie county. Perhaps they are not aware of the condition that exists.

But you say it's a "poor house" and beggars can't be choosers. That may be true, but it is a hard hearted way for Christian people to regard this matter.

The big fraternal orders take good care of their poor and unfortunate members. They provide for them homes which give them comfort. They are sanitary homes. They are well cared for.

The people we have at the county farm are citizens. They are Americans. Can't America do as much for its citizens as the fraternal orders do for theirs?

The folks at the county home are unfortunates. Many of them have been neighbors of yours. They have worked as you work. Misfortune or mismanagement may have brought them at last to the place where they were no longer able to care for themselves. Some were afflicted by sickness and unable to longer care for themselves. All are worthy of proper care. They are entitled to some comforts in their affliction.

And remember please that "The poor man's lot today, may become your own tomorrow." Earthly things are perishable. You may think that you are safe from ever going to the county farm, but are you?

Moultrie county needs a new building of latest approved sanitary construction, properly lighted, properly heated and so arranged that it can care for its unfortunates in the right way. The shack that is out on the farm now is about 50 years behind the times.

Don't take our word for it. Go and see.

Women white wings gave Norfolk, Virginia the surprise of its life recently. Thirteen prominent club women to set a good example, armed with gunny sacks, worked two hours cleaning up streets. They were not a bit modest about being seen in their working attire and a picture of the group has appeared in the daily papers.

We all waste a lot of time talking about things that need to be done. We do it in our business life, in affairs around home and very much so in our civic activities.

The favorite past time of many clubs, both women and men, is to talk a whole lot about things that need to be done and then "let George do it." A good average in club activity assays about 99 per cent talk and 1 per cent action.

GOVERNMENTAL EXTRAVAGANCE

President Coolidge signed a bill granting an annual pension of $3,000 to Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall, relict of the late Vice President. That's more Coolidge economy. The bill is vicious for two reasons. In the first place Mrs. Marshall doesn't need the money, and in the second place she is not entitled to it. A special law had to be passed to legalize it. There is no law in the statutes to justify paying pensions to either Presidents' or Vice Presidents' widows. Marshall was Vice President during eight years. For every day of the time he held office, he was paid his regular salary with perquisites. He was Governor of Indiana. He was a lawyer of large and lucrative practice. In addition to that he was a writer and an author who wrote books which enjoyed a large sale and which were indeed best sellers in their day and time. He provided for his widow while he lived. Why should she draw a pension from the government? This is the rankest kind of extravagance and misappropriation of public funds. Why not pension all of the widows in like proportion? The widow of a coal miner, or a farmer, or a mold-er, or a business man is just as much entitled to a pension as the widow of a Vice President. We don't know whether Curtis has a wife or not but we suppose that if he should kick the bucket, his surviving better-half would get a pension, too. Mrs. Marshall had no duties to perform of an official nature during the time that she was the wife of the Vice President. The office which came to her as a windfall, provided a good time for her, and gave her social standing. We wouldn't be surprised if the next Congress raised her pension. If Dawes would hie himself from this mundane sphere during one of these cold and wintry nights, we presume that Congress would pass a bill to give his widow a pension which Coolidge would sign or Hoover either, notwithstanding the fact that Charlie is a millionaire, over and over again. We hate this business of frittering away the people's money, just to tickle some fellow under the chin.—Fred J. Kern in Belleville News-Democrat.

The city water question is solved so far as the matter of supply goes. That also takes care of providing fire protection. The city light plant is working in a state of efficiency that leaves no cause for complaint.

The next big problem is to tackle the matter of Sullivan's streets. Paved streets need cleaning and unpaved streets need better attention at all times of the year. This is big problem that confronts the next administration of city affairs. People will demand results. The city has shown that it can handle big problems successfully. Here is one that needs attention.

880,000,000 HOT DOGS
ONE MORE MIRACLE
WILLIAM H., AGED 70
ELECTRICITY IN THE HOME

Chicago packers say 880,000,000 sausages, commonly called "hot dogs" were eaten last year.

Properly made, well cooked, eaten at regular hours, and chewed slowly to avoid swallowing small pieces whole, the "hot dogs" are good for men. But, eaten between meals, hap-hazard and rapidly, they contribute to the 50,000,000 cases of American dyspepsia.

A child in Chicago, five years old, born without feet will be enabled to walk, run and play by surgeons operating on the muscles of the upper leg.

That is an interesting miracle, and there are many others in modern science. Those born deaf and dumb, that never hear a sound, learn to speak and understand the speech of others. With imagination's power, never having seen the earth or the sun or the sound of a friend's voice, they are able to understand beauty and friendship.

That answers those who ask: "Is there really such a thing as a soul?"

William Hohenzollern, once Emperor, is seventy. He looks well, but disillusioned, wears a full beard, mustaches no longer waxed or turned up at the point.

* * * *

He will celebrate by publishing a book called "My Ancestors." It could be interesting, going back to the early money-lending family of East Prussia that got its name from high interest rates. But it's hard to write impartially about your own people.

* * * *

William decided that some of the things were wrong in the Hohenzollern family, and blames its troubles, passion, sudden rages, bad temper, etc., on a woman, Maria Pawlowa, Russian by blood, Hohenzollern by accident of marriage. That reminds you of Adam blaming Eve.

* * * *

William says Maria was "the villain of my family." His predecessor, Frederick the Great, would know better. Maria Pawlowa, because she was wild, violent, ungovernable, may have given Prussia's ruling family its genius.

Use of electric machinery in the home, sweepers, washing machines, fans, irons, mangles, exercising apparatus, has increased enormously in the past year.

L. J. Horowitz, head of Thompson, Starrett, biggest building concern, announces privately, a new electric cooking stove that will be operated as cheaply as a gas stove. That will interest General Electric and Westinghouse.

A bill in Indiana's Senate suggests "flogging for male criminals who carry weapons while committing crime."

Strokes would be "administered to the bare back, well laid on," and punishment graduated up to SIXTY LASHES.

Why not have criminals operating with or without weapons, put to work for ten or twenty years. Pay them for work, let them accumulate money, and except in cases of murder, release them after time convinced them that work and saving are worth while.

China, with almost as many problems as she has inhabitants, decides to cut her army in two, leaving ONLY 715,000 fighting men to be fed by others. ONLY 40 per cent of the nation's total revenue is to be spent for military expenses.

If those 715,000 men could be put to work raising food for the starving, and 40 per cent of national revenue devoted to the same starving, that would probably please the ghost of old Con-

LEMONADE AND CATS

It happened at a village Sunday School picnic. Two little boys had lemonade stands—one on either side of the entrance. The pastor came along and going up to George, said:

"Well my little man, how much do you charge for your lemonade?"

"Five cents a glass," replied George.

"And how much do you charge?" he asked, turning to Harry, who ran the competing stand.

"Two cents a glass," replied Harry.

The pastor cast a censorious eye upon George and said to Harry, "I'll try a glass of yours, my boy."

As he quaffed the fluid, he smacked his lips and said, "That's good, I'll have another glass" and he smiled when he thought he was getting two glasses at less than George asked for one.

"Tell me, my little man," he said to Harry, "how you can afford to sell your lemonade for two cents a glass when George is asking five cents?"

"Well, you see," said Harry, "the cat fell in my pail."

NOW—HERE'S THE MORAL

When the price is cut there is usually a reason. The lemonade tasted good to the pastor until he learned the reason for the cut; then any price would have seemed high.

It's a strange thing that a man who sees the justice and wisdom of asking a fair price for things he sells often fails to see the justice and wisdom of paying a fair price for the things he buys.

CLEVE MILLER ENGAGES IN BANKING BUSINESS

Several weeks ago a story appeared in the Decatur and other papers telling about R. C. Miller's selling his building and loan association stock in a company which he formed last year in Oregon. This report was as Mr. Miller says "when one depends on rumors for information it is usually inaccurate."

Mr. Miller organized the building and loan company and still owns his stock in same. With his associates he latter organized the Albany Securities Company with a capital stock of $200,000 of which he became general manager. Both institutions have proven very successful.

Recently it came to his knowledge that the controlling interest in two Albany banks was for sale. He laid before his business associates a plan for a new Securities company to act as a holding company in the purchase of these banks. The Linn Securities Company was organized with a capital stock of $700,000. The company purchased a controlling interest in the building and Loan company and the Albany Securities company and also the controlling interest in the two banks.

The men associated with Mr. Miller in these institutions are among the leading capitalists of the northwest. The city of Albany is a progressive community, growing steadily and without and perceptible booming.

The demand for manure in farming has increased so greatly that we now bring in goat manure by the boatload from South America. This manure is landed along the eastern coast, principally Florida, and largely goes into the making of mixed commercial fertilizers.

During the year just closed Illinois mines produced 54,023,337 tons of coal, 9,208,562 more than in 1927.

During 1928 the state of Illinois collected $15,521,525.50 in automobile license fees—$681,932.59 more than in 1927.

Latest Department of Commerce figures for Illinois give the number of scholars attending Sunday schools as 1,084,348—1,300 more than were in 1916, the year of the last previous count.

HE WENT ABOUT DOING GOOD

Matthew 4:23, 24. And Jesus went about all Galilee teaching in all Galilee, teaching in their synagogues and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing all manner of sickness and all manner of disease among the people. 24. And his fame went throughout all Syria: and they brought unto him all sick people that were taken with divers diseases and torments, and those which were possessed with devils, and those which were lunatic and those that had the palsy; and he healed them.

Uncle Nehemiah, the proprietor of a ramshackle little hotel in Mobile, was aghast at finding a newly arrived guest with his arm around his daughter's waist. "Mandy, tell that nigger to tak his arm 'way from 'round yo' wais," he indignantly commanded.

Poet Has Joined the Ranks of Mysterious Realm of Illustrious and Select Hunters of the Coon

Among a bunch of coon hunters you may find lots of unexpected talent. Take Matt Dedman for instance—he's a born philosopher who could have given old Socrates a round of argument had he lived back in those by gone days. Slim Harlow is a race-horse man to whom most any fellow will listen when he wants information about horses.

Bob Filson is a man of musical ear (he says the Editor would ruin any choir he might perform with). Guy Booker is the fellow who helps Henry Ford keep going. Guy Bupp is an expert on night-hunting bird dogs. Vernie Siron is an alderman who in time will develop into a statesman. Walt Smith's peculiar failing is running dances. Elam Love is president of the Sunshine Club at Dunn. Dale Holsapple is noted for being a rampant and unconvertible Democrat, etc. Some are noted for one thing and some for another. Some are famous in one line and others infamous in some other way.

But look what's broke into the club now—a poet. Yes sir, a real live he-poet. He tells about coon hunts in poetry, with rhythm and rhyme. Shakespeare never wrote like this, nor did Eddie Guest.

Welcome to the Coon Hunters circle Brother John Turner of Alleville, for by the endearing name of "Brother" you may now be called by all who are members of the Mysterious Realm of Illustrious and Select Coon Hunters. We hereby nominate him Poet Laureate of the club—all nominations are closed and we move that he be elected by acclamation. Motion carried and it is so ordered.

The following is Mr. Turner's first contribution to the good of the order:

THAT COON HUNT

AT GARFIELD DEDMAN'S
"Twas dark and gloomy as could be,

The air was foggy too,
"Twas along in November,
When chores were only few.
Hugh Dolan and Matt Dedman,
Who lives across the way,
Had asked Garfield Dedman to go hunting

And of course, what could he say?

Now, when it comes to hunting
And especially at night,
Hugh has dogs that have no equal
Can put all dogs out of sight.
Old Drum's the one that takes the prize
He ranges far and wide,
That night he defeated some dogs
While Matt had old Rowdy tied.

A colder nose you'll never find,
He's not as true as he could be,
And when he goes to barking up
You'll know "he's not up that tree."

In water he'll go if thrown in
But will not stay in long.
And Drum's a fighter from the start,
A dog that tried to prove he was smart,
He held a record on fighting
Until Curley's dog broke his heart.

And now he never hits the rapid pace
Until he strikes old Mr. Fox.
And so they passed out into the night
O'er woodland, hill and vale,
And they hadn't gone a quarter
Til old Rowdy, he hit a trail,
And Drum soon joined him in the chase

They raveled out the trail
They had him hot in just a jiff,
And how they made him sail!
They sauntered on towards their homes
'Twas shortly after ten
And then they heard both dogs ahead

They both had bayed again.
They hurried on through brush and briar
Towards the barkin' dogs,
And when they came to the spot
They were barking at a frog.

Some may love to hunt the bunny,
Others love to hunt the bear,
Some love to shoot the quail and grouse
And some the northern hare,
Some hunt the fox with packs of hounds
And listen to the tune
But give me old Rowdy and Drum
And a cunning ring tailed coon.

PRUNNING GRAPE VINES

If the fruiting grape vines were not pruned last fall, they should be pruned before the sap starts in early spring but not while the wood of the vines is frozen. Of the two ways of pruning grapes—the renewal and the spur system—the renewal system is better, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture, as it leaves no old wood except trunk cane. Cut off all the previous year's growth except two or four canes for the fruiting arms. With the 2-arm method, leave on each side the best arm nearest the trunk; with the 4-arm method, leaves two high and two low arms in the same way.

¶ If you think it right to lick the kids, why do you feel ashamed when the neighbors catch you at it?

—Earl Landgrebe of Cicero, spent last week with his sister, Mrs. Willis Smith, and other relatives and friends. He returned home Sunday and was accompanied by Miss Anna Landgrebe, who will visit her brother George Landgrebe and family at Oak Park.—Lovington Reporter.

¶ Critics are people who discover it is great stuff after the common people have been raving about it for ten years.

¶ So live that you won't care a rap if there sin't any aspirin in the house.

WHY SALESMAN TURN GRAY

A young salesman was seen to turn away from a prospective buyer of an electric washing machine, a disgusted look on his face. "She doesn't want an electric washing machine," the young man said. "I explained just how to operate it, turned on the current, and showed her how it works, and finally she pointed to the hole in the bottom and asked: 'What is that for?'"

"To let the water out," I said. "Oh, then it doesn't wash by electricity, does it, you have to use water?"

¶ Americanism: Sixty million people muttering in unison: "I don't see how they can afford it."

¶ Sweet clover will grow almost anywhere, but the soil must contain lime to get a good stand.

¶ Maybe the old poets were inspired by liquor, and maybe they just seemed inspired because the erasers had liquor.

¶ How the world has progressed! Back in the stone age a woman's chief treasures were beads and a fur.

URGE PAY CHECKS INSTEAD OF CASH TO FOIL BANDITS

Bankers of Chicago and the State, represented by the Illinois Bankers Association, Saturday, February 2nd stamped their official approval upon the recommendation of police authorities that business men and manufacturers of Illinois utilize checks henceforth in meeting their pay-rolls, rather than cash.

In voicing approval of this policy, however, designed by the police to effectually curb the operations of bands of holdup men and thieves whose "racket" is to prey upon messengers delivering the money, or to hold up business houses after the money is delivered, the Illinois Bankers Association offered the qualification that employers, in substituting checks for cash, erect every possible safeguard pointed at the elimination of hazards in the way of forgeries of these checks.

M. A. Graettinger, executive secretary of the association, in urging that careful thought be given the proposal, pointed out that during the last 90 days at least thirty-five different series of bogus payroll check issues have been circulated in Chicago.

"Some of these were drawn on imaginary companies, others on defunct concerns, and many were forged on bonafide corporations, but all were so closely comparable to the true payroll check issues as to render their cashing confusing," he said.

"It is conservatively estimated that Chicago merchants are losing $3,000,000 annually through cashing bogus checks, and the loss is growing yearly.

"Within the past 90 days several large corporations have had bogus payroll checks appear, and although they are protected against loss, they are spending thousands of dollars to stamp out the issues and capture the criminals.

"While few banks sustain losses on such types of checks, the merchants—the banker's customers—are the serious losers."

The Illinois Bankers Association suggests that merchants use extreme care in cashing checks of any kind, particularly "payroll" checks. They should be more than reasonably sure of the identity of anyone presenting them.

Father of Corn Cob Pipe Industry Passes Away

20,000 Missouri Acres Devoted to Raising Cobs for Pipes

Anton A. Tibbe, father of the modern corn cob pipe, passed away at Oakland, Cal., after an illness of six months at the age of 70.

Tibbe was the man who put Washington, Mo., on the map as capital of the cob pipe or "Missouri Meerschmum" industry.

Nearly 20,000 acres of Franklin County, Mo., are devoted to raising the large cobs essential to the industry. Several million cob pipes are manufactured yearly at Washington, Mo., where several factories are doing a thriving business. About 4,000 cobs or cob pipes to the acre are yielded by the soil around Washington. The cobs are seasoned for a year before being started through the factory.

Henry Tibbe, Anton's father, a wood worker, hit on the value of corn cob pipes half a century ago. A neighbor had asked him to bore an extra large cob with a lathe and fashion him a pipe. The elder Tibbe realized the novelty of the pipe and gathered a few cobs and carried on a small pipe manufacturing business.

His son put the business over in a big way. His son also discovered a patented plaster of paris filler which revolutionized the business. This fireproofed the bowl, making a longer life possible for the corn cob pipe.

Tibbe established a bone factory manufacturing bone bits for the pipes. This and his original factory are in the hands of his sons since he moved to California ten years ago.

The second principal industry of Washington, Mo., is the manufacture of zithers.

In deference to the vogue for costume jewelry which becomes more pronounced with each passing month, TRINI, vivacious star in the new comedy, "Cafe de Danse," shows us a collection of trinkets that furnish plenty of food for the imagination.

Finely wrought paillettes of gilt form the earrings and necklace; the broad bracelet is of dull gold and carnelian; the two smaller bracelets of alternate links of gold and cloudy amber with settings of carnelian. Tawny gold and red and amber tones for her brunet beauty—we commend the color choice.

Green stones, from the palest opaque jade to the clear, deep green of simulated emeralds are also prominent among very latest costume jewels. Modernistic designs in gold and colored enamel are more finely done than the earlier models that marked the introduction of costume sets. And these tailored novelties are extremely smart for sports and business wear.

ROMAN STRIPES APPEAR

Who does not love gipsy-like Roman stripes with their flashing colors and suggestions of things gay and carefree? Spring's girdles and sahes will carry this colorful accent among their contributions—even sponsoring them for use with the simple evening frock.

HATS OF STRAW AND FELT

Felt crowns with cut-out patterns into which straw is inserted are developed in many novel ways for Spring. There is also the straw brim with felt crown in the two-tone effect—brown and beige, black and beige, dark and light green and other colors. This use of two fabrics fits in very well between the heavier winter styles and time for the all-straw model.

THE TWEED ENSEMBLE

Although they were featured in autumn, the ensembles of tweed are cast for parts quite as important for Spring. Rose reds, soft greens and purple blues are the favored colors.

BILL COURTRIGHT WINS HARP CHAMPIONSHIP

If what you expect to play in hereafter is a mouth harp, it may be to your interest to take lessons from Bill Courtright. Mr. Courtright annexed another first prize for his harping ability at an old fiddlers' contest at Moweauqua Wednesday night of last week. Wes Love the Marrowbone violinist was not dismayed when the fiddling championship was awarded to some one else, but he stepped out in the jiggling contest and annexed honors that were awarded for that intellectual Terpsichorean performance. His 71 years of age sat but lightly on Mr. Love as he heel-and-toed his way to fame.

Purity Baking Co. Bread

Awarded

High National Honor

WE are delighted to announce that the Purity Baking Company received the National Three Months High Score from the American Institute of Baking, in competition with thousands of bakers scattered throughout the United States.

This Institute was organized to assist bakers to improve the quality of their products. It maintains a corps of internationally known baking experts, a school for bakers, and a complete laboratory where elaborate tests of nutrition value are made.

Experts Critical

These experts are extremely critical. They point out to the baker, each imperfection in his loaf, and whether it is uniform in shape, volume, taste, flavor, color of crumb and crust. The baker's name is unknown to the experts, samples bearing numbers only, resulting in unbiased judgment.

In order to maintain our high quality, we send samples each week, for scoring. These samples are not selected in our bakery but are purchased from grocers, just as they would be purchased by the consumer.

Our Appreciation

We feel very grateful to all who have in any way contributed to our success in winning this coveted award of honor:

- To the firms from whom we buy, who so constantly maintain high quality of their materials;
- To the retailers who favor us with their patronage;
- To the public, whose increased buying reflects its appreciation of Purity quality.
- To the American Institute of Baking which has pointed out our mistakes and shown us how to correct them.

So, when you buy Purity Cream and 2 in 1 Bread you buy the finest loaf that is being produced in the United States today.

G. R. BROWN OBSERVED HIS 80TH BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY THURS.

supplemented with an over-flowing good will and a world of good advice to the couple.

"Daddy" has had an eventful life. His 80 years have seen wonderful progress made in his native Indiana and in his later home city of Sullivan.

The Progress joins with his many friends in wishing him many more birthday anniversaries and promises that when he reaches the century mark, we will print another picture of him and will extend his biography to cover the intervening years.

"Daddy" has kindly consented to write a sketch of his life and his furnished us the snapshot which appears herewith. The lad with him is his great grandson, John Billy Barnes. Now read "Daddy's" story:

(Autobiography)

George Reynolds Brown was born at Cortland, Hamilton township, in the county of Jackson in the state of Indiana February 7, 1849 a son of Jacob and Letty Ann (Day) Brown. Two other children, Eliza Jane Brown and Elias Day Brown are both deceased.

My father Jacob Brown was born in 1813 and my mother Letty Ann Day was born August 24, 1815 at Newton, now a part of the city of Cincinnati. Both families came to Hamilton township and settled near the place afterwards called Cortland.

This was in the year 1818 and the families were among the first settlers after the state was surveyed and admitted to the union in 1816.

My grandfather on my father's side was the father of 24 children by two wives, 16 of them at home in a log house at one time. My grandfather Elias Day, the father of my mother was the father of 12, many of whom lived to a ripe old age. Three, I remember, including my mother lived to be past 90 years of age. My father and mother lived and died on the home place to which they had moved in 1837. My father was 76 years old when he died and my mother was 94. They began home life in a big cabin that I remember did service as a blacksmith shop.

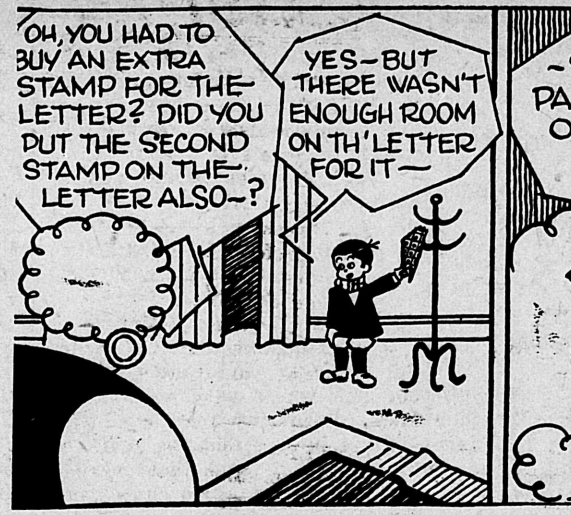

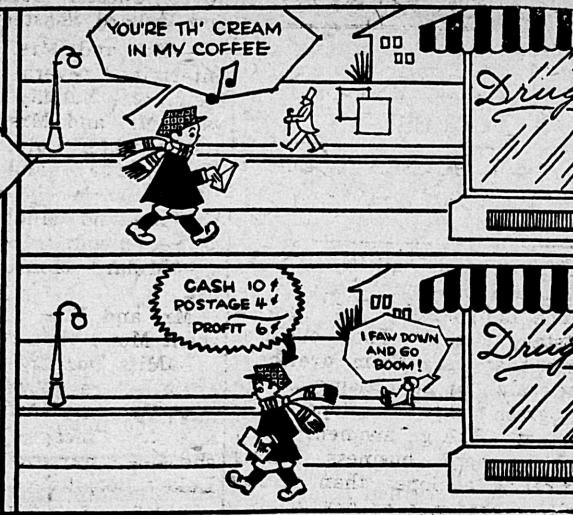

My father was active in business as long as I can remember, first having a little store that sold sugar, coffee, tobacco and there was present the barrel of whiskey the contents of which were sold to keep off the chills and to cure snake bite. Afterwards he was interested in the milling business, both saw mill and flour mill. He also engaged in farming and stock raising. He was in partnership later with B. S. Holmes, my father-in-law, in all of these enterprises, including merchandising. In later years they dissolved this partnership, each going into business for himself in Cortland.

My father was justice of the peace of Hamilton township for a number of years and afterwards was elected county commissioner and filled that office for a time. He was a progressive man interested in education. Not having had the chance in early life, he insisted on his children going to school. His decree was "Go to school or go to bed and I will send for the doctor for you." He said we must get education by absorption if in no other way. He was much interested in schools and churches and would not allow anyone to use profane language in his presence without rebuking the act. He was a zealous Mason; he made my brother a Mason and my brother made me a Mason.

Now if I had but two bits of advice to any young man it would be that he identify himself with some religious organization and with some fraternal organization such as the Masons, Odd Fellows, or any other that might appeal to his fancy, for reasons of identification and help in case of need, and let him put the church first, because one is without much hope in the world without the help of the Lord.

The writer was born at Cortland just after my father had returned from New Orleans, where he had gone with a flatboat load of produce such as the new country he then lived in produced. It

Both Principal Brumfield and Coach Roney deplore the fact that there are not enough teams hereabouts in the grade school class to give the Sullivan boys a good struggle. Tonight (Friday) may see their hopes realized for Shelbyville is coming with a line-up that is determined to win. The Sullivan lads will have to put on full speed. If they expect an easy victory, they may get a trimming. A once in a while licking helps stiffen the morale and will-to-win of any athletic organization.

Preceding the big game at the Armory tonight between Sullivan and Shelbyville, will be a curtain raiser played between the girls of the 7th and 8th grades.

DEACON'S HONEYMOON PLEASED BIG AUDIENCE

The trials and tribulations as well as the joys of an old deacon's honeymoon were well exemplified in the play which was given by the Parent-Teachers association at the Purvis school one night last week.

The actors and actresses showed real talent, supplemented by past experiences of their own and careful coaching.

The Home Oil Company orchestra rendered a selection of tuneful compositions, very appropriate for the occasion.

Robert A. Collins, manager of the orchestra and an entertainer par excellence added to the joys of the occasion by a stage operation on Merle Miller. Nobody knew that Merle needed any kind of operation and as he was up and around town the next day, the operation was either very successful or it was a pure, unmitigated and inexcusable fake.

consisted of bacon, corn, corn meal that was ground at a water mill at Rockford on the White River, also lumber sawed at the water mill with a sash saw. He made 16 trips to New Orleans in 15 years, two in one year. That was the only way he had of making ready cash in those early days and his customers were the Southern cotton and sugar planters. The boats were built at the loading places and sold at the end of the trip for what they could get for them.

The Spring of 1849 was the last trip he made aboard a flat boat. My name sake George Reynolds was a part of his crew on the trip. My father then went to merchandising and milling afterwards.

I was just an ordinary boy that was somewhat venturesome, getting into a good many scraps but was never arrested for any misdemeanor. I generally got the worst of the deal but I was something of an organizer. I furnished the wagon and prevailed on the boys to pull me. I was never punished much for my scrapes. My father tanned me once with the half of a board for running away from home on Sunday morning to roam about in the woods and my mother chastised me with a switch for sucking eggs. The older boys told me if I could suck eggs I would soon be a man, but the lesson stopped my growth for a time. I must say though other boys may have had as good parents as I but I don't think they had any better ones. They were always my best friends.

My father and mother did not have much chance for an education and always felt the need of it so they made all the sacrifices they could to give my sister, my brother and myself the best the country afforded at that day. My father said we could get some education by coming in contact with those who did know something. He insisted on regular attendance. He would take no excuse for not going to school. I never was tardy but once in my school days. I went to the ice to skate and tarried a little too long.

As I grew older I became interested in my studies and I devoted one whole winter to the multiplication table and it is still there to stay I think.

Later I became interested in farming and livestock. Here I will digress a little to blow my own horn. I was a beginner in better stock in Hamilton township. I had the first pure bred hogs; also Shorthorn cattle and sheep and poultry and a better system of feeding and I made an effort at leadership in Agriculture. Had the first clover huller in the county of Jackson.

Two others farmers and myself were the only persons from that section who visited the Centennial at Philadelphia in 1876. The other parties were Jack Brocker and Alfred Beatty. They said they would go if I would agree to bring them home again and I did.

I was married to Miss Lodema Holmes a childhood friend of mine from my youth. The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. W. H. Krutinger, a Christian minister and my school teacher for some years before. We were married the 29th day of August 1869. The morning following we took a trip to Roseville, Illinois via Chicago and were at home September 20th.

The total eclipse of the sun took place the 17th day of August 1869 at 4 p. m.

In after years I engaged in farming, stock raising. C. J. Aatkisson and I formed a partnership and engaged in the milling business at Cortland. After some years together the partnership was dissolved, I buying him out. The trade was made on Friday and Sunday night following the mill was burned—a total loss of $25,000. It was sure a black eye for the writer but in partnership with nine other good and substantial farmers of the township, built another mill near the same spot and got under way again with fair success until within a few years this mill also went up in smoke, so you see the milling business was not a howling success with me.

In the meantime I had a shed with 100 tons of fine Timothy hay that I had contracted and sold at $18.00 a ton and had the press at the end of the shed on Saturday ready to start bailing Monday.

day. On Sunday at 3:00 p. m. this shed of hay was burned up, a total loss including the press. These fires were five years apart so you see I have been fire tried.

I then moved to Seymour and followed house moving for several years. In the meantime I was appointed street commissioner for the city of Seymour and during that time my wife died and I became a wanderer, finally landing in Sullivan, Moultrie Co., Illinois in April 1903. After a time I took a job at the Masonic Home as a practical nurse under the management of C. L. Hovey and after several years I met with and married Annie Carter, the 29th of October 1910 and then took up my residence in Sullivan. I was employed in the auto service with J. M. Bushart, Carl Wolf, Clarence Crowdsen and lastly with Newbould & Jenkins.

I was elected clerk of the City of Sullivan for one term and was elected Justice of the Peace for three terms and am now serving.

With all this modern tendency to scandal mongering in biography, there is nothing in the memory of Abraham Lincoln that in any way besmirches his character. He stands in history and will continue to stand as one of the greatest men that civilization has produced.

REVIEW OF NATIONAL PRODUCE MARKETING

Butter receipts on the larger Eastern consuming markets for last week showed considerable decrease due to weather conditions affecting production in the Middle Western States. The general marketing situation is firmer. Trading has been active with lighter receipts.

The Chicago butter market early this week on 90 Score Standards is 48 1/2 cents, an advance of one and one quarter cents as compared with week ago. New York 92 Score Extras are 50 cents, advance of one cent as compared with last week.

Egg production has also been affected by unusually cold weather in the Central West and accordingly receipts have been lighter. The selling situation, because of the advancing season and increased receipts which are to be expected as soon as weather conditions improve, is easier. The general condition in the East shows different markets variable and depending directly upon the supply available. While the Chicago market has declined as compared with a week ago, the New York market is steady at present quotations which are actually slightly higher than week ago.

The Chicago egg market on First today is quoted at 37c. New York firsts are 38 1/2 to 40 cents. Receipts of live poultry during the past week have been light but the market situation has not been entirely satisfactory and quotations have declined. The production of soft meat springs being received is light and the majority of the spring stock is showing up coarse and stagg and being marketed accordingly. This situation is being reflected in the buying in the Central West as these stagg young springs must be bought in line with their marketing value to the consuming trade.

New York market today: live fowl—legorns and light weights 29 cents, colored light weights 30, heavy colored stock 28 to 29. Springs legorns and colored weights 26 to 28 cents, old roosters 18 cents.

WINDSOR CHAMPIONS OF SHELBY COUNTY

Coach Dunscomb's title seeking Windsorites annexed the county basketball championship of Shelby county at Shelbyville Saturday night. The opponent was Tower Hill which earlier in the contest had laid the Moweaqua five on the shelf. In the semi-finals Windsor by some brilliant playing put Shelbyville out.

The championship game resulted in a 29 to 19 score for Windsor.

In the recent Moultrie county tournament Sullivan eliminated the Windsor team in the semi-finals and then were out-classed in the finals by Bethany, which emerged as champions of the meet.

Safety, silence and simplicity are features of the new Ford six-brake system

ONE of the first things you will notice when you drive the new Ford is the quick, effective, silent action of its six-brake system.

This system gives you the highest degree of safety and reliability because the four-wheel service brakes and the separate emergency or parking brakes are all of the mechanical, internal expanding type, with braking surfaces fully enclosed for protection against mud, water, sand, etc.

The many advantages of this type of braking system have long been recognized. They are brought to you in the new Ford through a series of mechanical improvements embodying much that is new in design and manufacture. A particularly unique feature is the simple way by which a special drum has been constructed to permit the use of two sets of internal brakes on the rear wheels.

A further improvement in braking performance is effected by the self-centering feature of the four-wheel brakes—an exclusive Ford development. Through this construction, the entire surface of the shoe is brought in steady, uniform contact with the drum the instant you press your foot on the brake pedal. This prevents screeching and howling and makes the Ford brakes unusually silent in operation.

Another feature of the Ford brakes is the ease of adjustment.

The four-wheel brakes are adjusted by turning a screw conveniently located on the outside of each brake plate. This screw is so notched that all four brakes can be set alike simply by listening to the "clicks."

The emergency or parking brakes on the new Ford require little attention. However, should they need adjustment at any time, consult your Ford dealer for prompt, courteous, and economical service. He works under close factory supervision and he has been specially trained and equipped to help you get the greatest possible use from your car over the longest period of time at a minimum of trouble and expense.

THE DESPERATE LOVER

By E. Phillips Oppenheim

ILLUSTRATED BY FRANK B. DRUEN

WHAT HAPPENED BEFORE

Palermo is the scene. There an exile, Leonardo di Marioni, has come for love of Adrienne Cartuccio, who spurns him. He meets an Englishman, Lord St. Maurice, who falls in love with Adrienne on sight. Leonardo sees his sister Margarita, who tells him his love for Adrienne is hopeless. But he pleads with her to arrange an accidental meeting, to say farewell, between Adrienne and him. She consents. That night the Englishman is informed of an attempt being made to carry off Signorina Cartuccio and Margarita, who are walking, by brigands employed by a rejected suitor, on a lonely road. He rushes to scene, and proves able to rescue the ladies.

Inflamed by the failure of his scheme, Leonardo sees Margarita who shows him she knows that he was the instigator of the attempted attack. The Englishman now sees Adrienne often. The Englishman, sitting in the hotel, finds a dagger at his feet. Looking up, he sees the Sicilian, and seems trouble. "We sat here a week ago" recalls Leonardo. Lord St. Maurice nods.

NOW GO ON WITH STORY

It is well. It is of the events which have followed that night that I desire to speak, if you Signor will grant me a few moments of your time?"

"Certainly," the Englishman replied courteously. After all, perhaps the fellow did not mean to quarrel.

"I regret exceedingly having to trouble you, Signor, with a little personal history," the Sicilian continued. "I must tell you, at the commencement, that for five years I have been a suitor for the hand of Signorina Adrienne Cartuccio, my cousin."

"Second cousin, I believe," Lord St. Maurice interposed.

The Sicilian waved his hand. It was of no consequence.

"Certain political differences with the Imperial party at Rome," he continued, culminated two years ago in my banishment from Italy and Sicily. You, I believe, Lord St. Maurice, are of ancient family, and it is possible that you may understand to some extent the bitterness of exile from a country and a home which has been the seat of my family for nearly a thousand years. Such a sentence is not banishment as the world understands it; it is a living death! But, Signor, it was not all. It was not even the worst. Alas, that I, a Marioni, should live to confess it! But to be parted from the woman I love was even a sorer trial. Yet I endured it; hoping against hope for a recall. My sister and I were orphans. She made her home with the Signorina Cartuccio. Thus I had news of her continually and sometime my cousin herself wrote to me. It was these letters which preserved my reason, and consciously or unconsciously, they breathed to me ever of hope."

"Not Adrienne's I'll swear," the Englishman muttered to himself. He was a true Briton, and there was plenty of dormant jealousy not very far from the surface.

The Sicilian heard the words, and his eyes flashed.

"The Signorina Cartuccio, if you please, Signor," he remarked coldly. "We are in a public place."

Lord St. Maurice felt that he could afford to accept the rebuke and he bowed his head.

"My remark was not intended to be audible," he declared.

"For two years I bore with my wretched life," the Sicilian continued, "but at last my endurance came to an end. I determined to risk my liberty, that I might hear my fate from her own lips. I crossed the Alps without molestation, and even entered Rome. There I was watched but not interfered with. The conclusion I came to was, that as long as I lived the life of an ordinary citizen, and showed not interest in politics, I was safe. I crossed to Palermo unharmed. I have seen the Signorina, and I have made my appeal."

The Englishman dropped his eyes and knocked the ash from his cigar. The fellow was coming to the point at last.

"You Signor," the Sicilian continued, in a tone which, although it was no louder, seemed to gain in intensity from the smoldering passion underneath, "you, Signor, know what my answer was, for you were the cause. I have not told you this much of my story to win your pity; I simply tell it that I may reason with you. I have tried to make you understand something of the strength of my love for the Signorina. Do you think that, after what I have risked, after what I have suffered, that I shall stand aside, and see another man, an alien, take her from me? I come of a race Signor, who are not used to see the women they love chosen for other men's wives. Have you ever heard of Count Hubert di Marioni, who with seven hundred men, carried off a princess of Austria from her father's court, and brought her safely through Italy here to be one of the mothers of my race? It was five hundred years ago, and among the ruins of ancient kingdoms, the Marionis have also fallen in estate. But the old spirit lingers. Lord St. Maurice, I am not a blood-thirsty man. I do not wish your life. Go back to your country, and choose for a bride one of her own daughters. Give up all thought of the Signorina di Cartuccio, or, as surely as the moon yonder looks down upon you and me, I shall kill you."

Lord St. Maurice threw his cigar away and shrugged his shoulders. The affair was going to be serious, then.

"You must forgive me, Signor, if I do not quite follow you," he said slowly. "The custom in our countries doubtless differs. In England it is the lady who chooses and it is considered—pardon me—ill-mannered for a rejected suitor to have anything more to say."

"As you remark the ideas and customs of our countries differ," the Sicilian rejoined. "Here a nobleman of my descent would consider it an everlasting shame to stand quietly on one side, and see the woman whom he worshiped become the bride of another man, and that man an alien. He would be esteemed, and justly, a coward. Let us waste no more words Signor. I have sought you tonight to put this matter plainly before you. Unless you leave this island, and give up your pretensions to the hand of the Signorina Cartuccio, you die. You have climbed for the last time to the Villa Fiolesse. Swear to go there no more; swear to leave this island before day breaks tomorrow, or your blood shall stain its shores. By the unbroken and the sacred oath of a Marioni, I swear it!"

To Lord St. Maurice, the Sicilian's words and gestures seemed only grotesque. He looked at him a little contemptuously—a thin, shrunken-up figure, ghastly pale, and seeming all the thinner on account of his sombre black attire. What a husband for Adrienne! How he dared to love so magnificently a creature. The very idea of such a man threatening him seemed absurd to Lord St. Maurice an athlete of public school and college renown, with muscles like iron, and the stature of a guardsman. He was not angry, and he had not a particle of fear, but his stock of patience was getting exhausted.

"How are you going to do the killing?" he asked. "Pardon my ignorance, but it is evidently one of the customs of the country which has not been explained to me. How do you manage it?"

"I should kill you a duel!" the Sicilian answered. "It would be easily done."

The Englishman burst out laughing. It was too grotesque, almost like a huge joke.

"Damn you and your duels!" he said, rising to his feet, and towering over his companion.

"Look here, Mr. di Marioni, I've listened to you seriously because I felt heartily sorry for you; but I've had enough of it. I don't know whether you understand the slang of my country. If you do, you'll understand what I mean when I tell you you've been talking 'bally rot.' We may be a rough lot, we Englishmen, but we're not cowards, and no one but a coward would dream of giving a girl up for such a tissue of whimpers. Be a man, sir, and get over it, and look here—none of this sort of business!"

He drew the dagger from his breast pocket and patted it. The Sicilian was speechless and livid with rage.

"You are a coward!" he hissed.

"You shall fight with me!"

"That I won't," Lord St. Maurice answered good-humoredly.

"Just take my advice. Make up your mind that we both can't have her, and she's chosen me, other man, and that man an alien. He would be esteemed, and justly, a coward. Let us waste no more words Signor. I have sought you tonight to put this matter plainly before you. Unless you leave this island, and give up your pretensions to the hand of the Signorina Cartuccio, you die. You have climbed for the last time to the Villa Fiolesse. Swear to go there no more; swear to leave this island before day breaks tomorrow, or your blood shall stain its shores. By the unbroken and the sacred oath of a Marioni, I swear it!"

The very idea of such a man threatening him seemed absurd to Lord St. Maurice an athlete of public school and college renown, with muscles like iron, and the stature of a guardsman. He was not angry, and he had not a particle of fear, but his stock of patience was getting exhausted.

"How are you going to do the killing?" he asked. "Pardon my ignorance, but it is evidently one of the customs of the country which has not been explained to me. How do you manage it?"

"I should kill you a duel!" the Sicilian answered. "It would be easily done."

The Englishman burst out laughing. It was too grotesque, almost like a huge joke.

"Damn you and your duels!" he said, rising to his feet, and towering over his companion.

"Look here, Mr. di Marioni, I've listened to you seriously because I felt heartily sorry for you; but I've had enough of it. I don't know whether you understand the slang of my country. If you do, you'll understand what I mean when I tell you you've been talking 'bally rot.' We may be a rough lot, we Englishmen, but we're not cowards, and no one but a coward would dream of giving a girl up for such a tissue of whimpers. Be a man, sir, and get over it, and look here—none of this sort of business!"

He drew the dagger from his breast pocket and patted it. The Sicilian was speechless and livid with rage.

"You are a coward!" he hissed.

"You shall fight with me!"

"That I won't," Lord St. Maurice answered good-humoredly.

"Just take my advice. Make up your mind that we both can't have her, and she's chosen me, and come and give me your hand like a man. Think it over, now, before the morning. Good-night!"

The Sicilian sprang up, and looked rapidly around. At an adjoining table he recognized two men, and touched one on the shoulder.

"Signors!" he cried, "and you, Signor le Capitaine, pardon me if I ask you for your hearing for an instant. This gentleman here has insulted me, and declines to give me satisfaction. I have called him a coward and a rascal, and I repeat it! His name is Lord St. Maurice. If he forfeits his rights to be considered a gentleman, I demand that his name be struck off the visitors' club."

The three men had risen to their feet. Two of them were gentlemen of the neighborhood with whom Lord St. Maurice had a bowing acquaintance. The third was a French officer. They looked inquiringly at Lord St. Maurice.

"It's quite true, gentlemen," he said with easy self-possession. "He's been calling me all the bad names under the sun, and I have declined to give him what he calls satisfaction. I haven't the least objection to your knowing it."

The two Palermians looked at one another doubtfully. The officer, giving his moustache a twist stepped forward and bowed.

"Might we inquire your reasons for declining the duel?" he asked.

The Englishman shrugged his shoulders.

"Certainly," he answered. "In the first place, I am an officer in the service of Her Majesty the Queen, and duelling is strictly forbidden; in the second, Signor di Marioni is too excited to know what he is talking about."

"In England, Signor, your first objection is valid; here, it is scarcely so. As to the latter, Monsieur le Count seems now to be perfectly composed. I am on the committee of the club, and I fear that I must erase your name if you persist in your refusal."

"I don't care two straws about your club," Lord St. Maurice answered carelessly. "As for the duel, I decline it, once and for all. We Englishmen have a code of honor of our own, and it is more to us than the custom of the countries which we chance to visit. I wish you good-night, gentlemen."

They fell back, impressed in spite of themselves by the coolness and hauteur of his words. Suddenly with the swiftness of a tiger-cat, the Sicilian leaped forward and struck the Englishman on the cheek.

"Perhaps you will tell us all, Signor, how the men of your country resent an insult such as that," he cried.

Every one turned round at the sound of the scuffle. The eyes of all were on the Englishman, who stood there, head and shoulders above all the crowd, with blazing eyes and pale cheeks. He was in a towering passion, but his voice never shook or faltered.

"You shall see for yourself, Signor!" he cried.

The Sicilian struggled, but he was like a child in the Englishman's arms. He had caught him up in a vice-like grasp, and held him high over the heads of the astonished onlookers. For a moment he seemed as though he were going to throw him right out of the restaurant on the Marina, but at the last moment he changed his mind and with a contemptuous gesture set him down in the midst of them, breathless and choking.

"You can send your seconds as soon as you like," he said shortly. "Good-evening, gentlemen."

They fell back before him like sheep, leaving a broad way right into the hotel, through which he passed, stern and self-possessed.

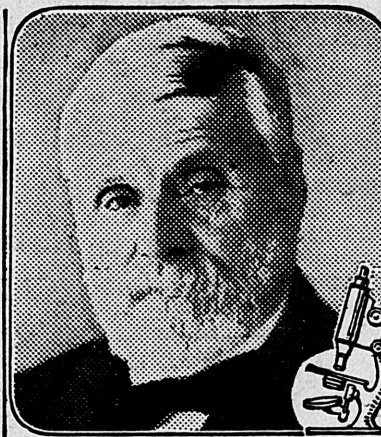

Doctor at 83 Found People Preferred His Prescription

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice, known to druggists and the public since 1892, as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Then, the treatment of constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions that result from constipation was entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a combination of senna and other mild laxative herbs, with pepsin.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. If grown people want to use them no one can deny them the privilege, but they should never be given to children.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you, and the better for the general health of all. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs? All drug stores have the generous bottles.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.

salient points to be considered in making a farm loan, from the standpoint of the land owner, the representative and the head office.

Several of those present followed Mr. McLaughlin and spoke along the same line.

The McLaughlin Bond & Mortgage Company was organized here last fall and its success was assured from its very inception. Its nucleus was the loan business of the firm of McLaughlin & Billman. With but several exceptions the shareholders are Sullivan business and professional men, who had some connection with local banking interests. Mr. McLaughlin is president and general manager of the Company; Carl Hill is secretary-treasurer and O. C. Worsham is field superintendent.

In its particular field the company bids fair to become one of the leading institutions of its kind in the middle west.

Those present at Wednesday's meeting were:

ANNA KENNEDY WANTS TO DIVORCE C. KENNEDY

Mrs. Anna Kennedy has filed suit for divorce against Cass Kennedy to whom she was married in this city June 16, 1923. She says that she left him in July of 1925 but later tried living with him again. She accuses him of adultery, gambling and non-support and states that during their married life she was compelled at all times to work to support herself. The couple had two children. The first died on day of birth. The second, a girl is in custody of the mother and she asks the court to give her this girl. Mrs. Kennedy before her marriage was Anna Hanrahan of this city.

—Dr. William Scott had the misfortune of falling last week in front of Eden Inn. He injured his right hip. He was taken to the rooms above the Hatchery on the southeast corner of square. He has recuperated enough to be able to get around on crutches.

ROSE EDEN MARTIN HIGH IN SCHOLARSHIP CONTEST

Emporia, Kan., Feb. 3—Rose Eden Martin, Sullivan, Ill., high school pupil, placed in the highest one percent of participants in the Every Pupil Scholarship contest conducted January 8, under direction of Dr. E. R. Wood, head of the bureau of educational measurements at the Kansas State Teachers college at Emporia.

All high schools of the country were eligible to participate. The 1929 entry list showed a huge increase over the list of January 1928.

Although no individual prizes were awarded, pupils will have the satisfaction of finishing in the highest scholastic group.

THE GOSPEL MISSION

Sylvester Egan, Pastor.

Time of services as usual and everybody welcome.

Lamentations 3:24—"The Lord is my portion."

The Lord is our "all-sufficient portion". God fills Himself; and if God is all-sufficient in Himself He must be all-sufficient for us. It is not easy to satisfy man's desire, when those desires come from the natural heart. But all that we can wish for is to be found in our divine portion, so that we ask: "Whom have I in heaven but thee? and there is none on earth that I desire beside thee."

Well may we "delight ourselves in the Lord" who makes us to drink of the river of His pleasures. Our faith stretches her wings and mounts like an eagle into the heaven of divine love as to her proper dwelling place. "The lines have fallen to us in pleasant places; yea we have a goodly heritage." Let us rejoice in the Lord always; let us show to the world that we are a happy and blessed people, and thus enduce them to exclaim "We will go with you, for we have heard that God is with you." As the world looks on may they know that "We have been with Jesus and learned of Him." It is our privilege to be a show-case where God displays heaven's choicest blessings. Or a sign board reading "This way to Heaven."
