Tires for the new Ford are specially made to give long wear

WHEN the new Ford was designed, it was immediately apparent that a new tire would have to be made to match the car's performance. It was distinctly a new problem, for here was a car with quicker acceleration, greater speed and more braking efficiency than any car of similar size or weight.

So that every Ford owner might be assured of maximum tire mileage at the lowest cost, the Ford Motor Company devoted many months to research and experiment in conjunction with the leading tire manufacturers.

As a result, certain definite specifications were developed for tires for the new Ford. These specify cords of certain strength and texture, a large volume of tread and side-wall rubber, sturdy non-skid design, and reinforced plies for protection against bruise breaks—all the strong features of construction formerly considered for only the largest tires.

Great care also was taken to secure the best riding qualities in connection with the transverse springs and the Houdaille shock absorbers.

Though the Ford tires are designated as 30 x 4.50, they have the resiliency and air space of much larger tires because of the drop center rim of the steel-spoke wheels.

For best results, the tires on the new Ford should be kept inflated to an air pressure of 35 pounds and checked regularly to insure this pressure all the time. This is important. Low inflation breaks down the side-walls of a tire. By causing overheating, it also destroys the rubber that acts as an insulation, with consequent separation of the cord.

At the end of each 5000 miles, when you have the front wheels packed with grease, it is a good plan to have the wheel alignment checked. This will prevent premature wear.

When punctures come, as they will with any tire, you will find the Ford dealer particularly well-equipped to make repairs quickly and at small cost. See him, too, for replacements. Then you will be sure of getting tires built specially for the Ford car according to definite Ford specifications.

NELSON DEMOCRATS NOMINATE LANE FOR SUPERVISOR

For Justice of the Peace (three to be elected)
Charles S. Edwards
Ray D. Meeker
S. T. Bolin.
For Constables (three to be elected)
Cloyd Freeman
Wm. Winchester.
Roy A. Light.
For cemetery trustee J. E. Briscoe, whose term will expire, was renominated.

Marrowbone Township
In Marrowbone township a town meeting will be held some time this week. The Democrats propose to place an entire ticket in the field. Present prospects are that Don Goetz will be the candidate for supervisor.

O. C. Hoskins, the present supervisor is a candidate for renomination. There is said to be some dissatisfaction with his candidacy and friends of Homer McReynolds are urging him to run. Mr. Goetz came within a narrow margin of defeating Mr. Hoskins two years ago and at that time the Democratic candidates names had not been placed on the ticket and had to be written in by the voters.

While Marrowbone township is strongly republican, the voters disregard party lines in township elections and vote for the man or men whom they feel can best represent the township.

Whitley Township
Very little interest was shown in Saturday's Democratic primary in Whitley township. Reports say that G. D. Edmonds of near Gays was nominated by the democrats for supervisor. Henry Hortenstine, the present incumbent was not a candidate for renomination. Mr. Edmonds has had experience in the office, as he served one term some years ago.

Report says that the Republicans will nominate Lawrence Gammill, son of Mack Gammill, the Gays banker and merchant.

Whitley township also elects constables, justices of the peace and a school trustee this spring.

Jonathan Creek
The Democrats of Jonathan Creek township will meet at the town hall Saturday afternoon of this week to select their township ticket. It has not been learned who will make the race for supervisor, although the name of Jas. Craig of Cadwell, a former supervisor will doubtless again make the race on the republican ticket. The Democratic convention Saturday will meet at 3:00 o'clock.

—Miss Nina Kennedy cousin of Mrs. Levi Patterson and Leo Ward of St. Louis son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Ward spent Sunday at the Patterson and Ward homes.

JOHN GARLAND WAGGONER

Rev. John Garland Waggoner, well known to the older residents of the county, passed away at his home in Canton, Ill., Tuesday, March 5, at the age of eighty-four years.

He was born in Moultrie county and spent his boyhood days in Whitley township at the home of his aunt, Mrs. Alex Edwards, having been left an orphan at the age of one year.

He graduated from Eureka College in 1872 holding pastorates in Princeton, Shelbyville, Eureka and Canton, Ill., also Buffalo, New York. He was twice married, his first wife being Elizabeth Cox of Mattoon and his second wife Augusta Fouke of Shelbyville.

A few years ago, with the assistance of others of the family, he wrote a one hundred page history of the Waggoners. Though of an advanced age, he attended the Waggoner

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH
C. E. Barnett, Pastor

The same old motive that took the Psalmist to the temple "in the morning" should take the Christian to the house of God today; to behold the beauty of the Lord and become morally and spiritually beautiful himself. Every Sunday presents opportunities to go up to house of the Lord to be taught of His ways and to walk in His paths. The Sunday school is a place for inquiry regarding His ways and paths. At the First Christian the assembly hour is 9:30 a. m. and a cordial welcome awaits you. The church services will be held at 10:40 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. At the morning worship the pastor will deliver the second of the series of sermons upon the meaning of the Cross. Choose Your Cross" will be the subject. Sermon by the pastor at 7:30 p. m.

Christian Endeavor leader Sunday evening at 6:30, William McKown. The subject is "How the Church Helps Us to Live Christian Life."

Wednesday evening, March 20, the monthly fellowship supper will be held at the church. The choir is preparing an Easter Cantata "The Resurrection Song" which will be given Sunday evening, March 31.

THE GOSPEL MISSION
Sylvester Egan, Pastor.
Time of services as usual.
We are expecting Brother Paul B. Fischer of Chicago who will hold special services beginning Friday night.

Sec. Sam. 4:4—"And it came to pass, as she made haste to see, that he fell, and became lame."

The non-reparable mistakes caused by haste. In the spiritual life there are those whom we might term nurses, usually we call them preachers. They are those into whose keeping the Lord has given certain little ones. And with spiritual nurses we are including ourselves and we are asking ourselves, can it be said of us, that in our haste we have let some little one fall, crippling them all through after life. Not only making of them a spiritual cripple, and less efficient in laboring in God's kingdom here, but grieving our Father's heart with our carelessness.

Are we in haste to flee from the enemy? Crippling a young convert in our flight. Are we too hasty to leave the work of His kingdom for some amusement of the world? We knew a preacher one time who would hurry thru his prayer meeting to attend the second show. His wife excused him on the ground that he did it to quiet his nerves so he could sleep. We do not know how many little spiritual children were crippled by his haste. We were not, for we took no chances in allowing him to carry us.

H. Wright claims some of Sullivan's Minstrel Glory for old Nickle Platers

"River Forest, Ill. March 7, 1929.

"Mr. Ed C. Brandenburger, "Editor Sullivan Progress "Sullivan, Ill.

"Friend Ed:—After reading the press agent stuff, and the final report on the minstrel show given at the Grand Theatre last week, I felt that out of respect for the old timers who I think will concur in what I say—that this troupe of minstrels is the offspring of the old Nickle Plate Minstrels of the early 1900's.

"I think that the few reminiscences that follow will recall to mind of those still living in the old town, pleasant recollections of days gone by—

"One day while sitting with my pal Guy Ulrich in the yard of my home—the idea came to me that we could put on a show—that it was to be did not matter, the idea had no sooner been conceived until the two of us got busy rounding up talent.

"Our first stop was at the Sonoma home (where Heinz presides) and Carl being just at that time not actively engaged in anything in particular gave a ready ear to our proposition. The result—a tight wire act—and from hence forth the neighbors were treated to a show every day, seeing him practice in the back yard. That he made good is putting it mildly—he was very professional.

"Our next victim, just by chance was Willie (Bill) Baker, who upon being asked what he was going to do about it, agreed to a contortion act—and as seen afterwards—AND HOW, I can see Bill now in his red tights.

"A call was next made on Harry Randol and Guy Linder (the dancing fools) and how they could dance—Ask some old timer if he remembers the base ball number.

"Well the quartette was all set relatives here Thursday afternoon.

Alva Wilt of Lovington was a business caller here Tuesday morning.

Mrs. Esther Wallace has been caring for Mrs. Harry Siron who has been ill.

Eureka, Ill., Mar. 11—Collie Baker, son of Mr. and Mrs. William K. Baker of Sullivan, was initiated into Theta Kappa Nu fraternity at Eureka college, Mar. 9.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Harry Shipman spent Sunday afternoon in Mattoon.

when we got to putting our program together, as Ulrich, Linder, Randol and Wright made up that part, and as we did not receive any bouquet in the way of rotten eggs, vegetables, etc.—that too stood the acid test of our discriminating audience.

"Guy Ulrich and myself put across singing numbers and held down one of the ends—with Carl Sona and Harry Randol on the first ends.

"Our show was not yet complete—we needed a piano player. And all minds centered on but one person—Mae Lucas—and as always Mae said yes—and the rehearsals were on.

"Through many rehearsals we went with Mae directing us and polishing off our short comings until she had us all singing our numbers in regular big time style. I have always had a big spot in my heart for Mae—and if ever there was another like her—I have failed to meet her.

"I do not recall who was in our chorus but it may be that some of you readers can recall them.

"Now there is just one thing more I want to write before I close,—it seems that the Editor was agreeably surprised at the talent shown at the minstrel—and in this respect I want to enlighten him with the information that Sullivan always was possessed of plenty of good talent and to my knowledge nothing in the way of an entertainment ever failed for the want of good talent.

"May Heinz and Roy back in the sunshine of this work—for from the point of achievement he who can make the multitudes laugh is great indeed.

"But I still maintain that the old Nickle Plate Minstrels was the daddy of 'em all.

"Respectfully submitted, "Harry E. Wright."

George Thompson who is employed as salesman by a furniture concern in Springfield came Friday to visit at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Thompson. Mrs. Sam Magill and daughter Lenore Eileen also of that place arrived Saturday evening and also visited at the Thompson home. All returned to Springfield Sunday evening.

Miss Ruth Harper of Mattoon visited over the week end with Miss Ruth Mae Bartley.

Ansel Wright spent the week end with his son Glenn Wright and wife in Chicago.

Prescription He Wrote in 1892 is the World's Most Popular Laxative

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1876, the needs for a laxative were not as great as they are today. People lived normal, quiet lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air and sunshine. But even that early there were drastic physics and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings to put into their system. So he wrote a prescription for a laxative to be used by his patients.

The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe, gentle bowel stimulant as Syrup Pepsin.

Under successful management this prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. The fact that millions of bottles are used a year proves that it has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds and fevers.

Millions of families are now never without Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and if you will once start using it you will also always have a bottle handy for emergencies.

J. C. Caldwell, M.D. AT AGE 63

It is particularly pleasing to know that the most of it is bought by mothers for themselves and the children, though Syrup Pepsin is just as valuable for elderly people. All drug stores have the generous bottles.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.

MOULTRIE JERSEY CALVES FOR MAROA CLUB MEMBERS

T. H. Hafeer agriculture teacher in the Maroa High school called up Harry Neville the local ag teacher last week and inquired as to the prospect of getting some good Jersey calves in this county for club members of his school. On invitation of Mr. Neville he came Saturday, bringing with him Farm Adviser Walworth of Macon county and a number of the fathers and sons who are interested in the club project.

Ralph Emel, secretary of the local Jersey Breeders and Mr. Neville accompanied the Macon county folks. They bought six calves out of the herds of Bone Walton, Harve Sharp and Henry Francis. They also bought a bull from Vernie Winings. The heifer calves were all of August drop and the price paid from them was from $96 to $98. Good heifer calves are scarce in this county and there is a ready sale for any that are available. Anybody that has good Jersey heifers suitable for calf club work is requested to notify either Mr. Emel or Mr. Neville.

THE DESPERATE LOVER

By E. Phillips Oppenheim
ILLUSTRATED BY FRANK BRUEN

"Yes."

"Lumley, twenty-five years have passed away, and he is free."

"But, Miss Briscoe?" he asked bewildered. "How does all this concern her?"

"She is his niece."

"His niece! his niece!"

Lord Lumley could say nothing. With all the swift selfishness of a man his thoughts were centered round one point. Would this new development hinder his purpose, or was it favorable to him?

"Leonardo's sister, Lumley, was my dear friend. She married a man named Briscoe, and died very soon afterward. Margarita is their daughter, and, Lumley, there is no English blood in her veins. She is a Marioni! I can see his eyes and his forehead every time I look at hers. They seem to tell me that that wild oath still lives; that some day he will stretch out his hand and redeem that murderous threat. Lumley, there have been times when it has terrified me to look at that girl."

His face was clearing. A smile even began to dawn upon his lips.

"Why, mother, don't you see that so far as Miss Briscoe is concerned that is all fancy," he said. "You feel in that way toward her simply because she happens to resemble the Count di Marioni. Isn't that a little unfair to her? What can she know of an oath which was sworn five and twenty years ago, long before she was born. Why, I don't suppose that she ever heard of it."

She smiled a little sadly.

"Lumley, I do not attempt to defend my feeling. Of course it is absurd to connect her with it, really."

"I was sure that you would say so, mother."

"But Lumley, although I cannot defend it the feeling remains. Listen. No woman has known greater happiness than I have. My life has been sometimes almost too perfect, and yet I never altogether forgot those passionate words of Leonardo's. They lay like a shadow across my life, darkening and growing broader as the years of his confinement passed away. The time of his release came at last—only a few months ago, and only a few months ago, Lumley, I saw him."

"You saw him? Where?"

"In London, Lumley! Why did he come almost on the day of his release, here to England? It was a country which he hated in his younger days, and yet instead of visiting his old home, his love for which was almost a passion, instead of lingering in those sunny southern towns where many friends still remained who would have received him with open arms he came straight to London alone. I found him at a hotel there, broken down, and almost, as it were, on the threshold of death! Yet when he saw me, when he heard my voice, the old passion blazed out. Lumley, I prayed to him for forgiveness, and he scorned me. He had never forgotten! He would never forgive! He pointed to his person, his white hairs, to all the terrible evidences of his long imprisonment, and once more, with the same passion which had trembled in his tone twenty-five years ago, he cursed me! It was horrible! I fled from that place like a haunted woman, and since then, Lumley I have been haunted. Every feature in the girl's magnificent face, and every movement of her figure, reminds me that she is a Marioni!"

She had risen and was standing by his side, a beautiful, but a suffering woman. He took her in his arms and kissed her forehead.

"Mother, you have too much imagination," he said gently. "Look at the matter seriously. Granted that this old man still harbors a senseless resentment against you. Yet what could he do? He forgets the days in which he lives, and the country to which you belong! Vendettas and romantic vengeance, such as he may have dreamt of five and twenty years ago are extinct even in his own land; here, they cannot be taken seriously at all!"

She shivered a little, and looked into his face as though comforted in some measure.

"That is what I say to myself, Lumley," she said: "but there are times when the old dread is too strong for me wholly to crush it. I am not an Englishwoman, you know; I come of a more superstitious race!"

"I am sorry that Miss Briscoe should be the means of bringing these unpleasant thoughts to you, he remarked thoughtfully. "Mother!"

"Yes, Lumley."

"Would it be a great trouble to you if—some day—I asked you to receive her as a daughter?"

She stood quite still and shivered. Her face was suddenly of a marble pallor.

"You—you mean this, Lumley?"

"I mean that I care for her, mother."

"You have not—spoken to her?"

"No. I should not have said anything to you yet, only it pained me to think that there was anything between you—any aversion, I mean. I thought that if you knew, you would try and overcome it."

"I cannot!"

"Mother!"

"Lumley, I cannot! She looks at me out of his eyes; she speaks to me with his voice; something tells me that she bears in her heart his hate toward me. You do not know these Marionis! They are one in hate and one in love; unchanging and hard as the rocks on which their castle frowns. Even Margarita herself, in the old days, never forgave me for sending Leonardo to prison, although I gave her lover's life as well as mine. Lumley, you have said nothing to her?"

"Not yet."

"She would not marry you! I tell you that in her heart she hates us all! Sometimes I fancy that she is here—only—"

"Mother!"

He laid his hand firmly upon her white trembling arm. She looked around following his eyes. Margarita, pale and proud, was standing upon the threshold, with a great bunch of white hyacinths in the bosom of her black dress.

"Am I intruding?" she asked quietly. "I will come down some other evening."

"Lord Lumley sprang forward to stop her, but his mother was the first to recover herself.

"Pray don't go away, Margarita," she said, with perfect self-possession. "Only a few minutes ago we were complaining that you came down so seldom. Lumley, open the piano, and get Miss Briscoe's songs."

He was by her side in a moment, but he found time for an admiring glance toward his mother. She had taken up a paper knife, and was cutting the pages of her book. It was the savoir-faire of a great lady.

A CORRESPONDENCE

Letter from Count Leonardo di Marioni to Miss M. Briscoe, care of the Earl of St. Maurice Mallory Hotel, Lincolnshire.

"Hotel De Paris, Turin.

"My beloved niece: Alas! I have but another disappointment to recount. I arrived here last night and early this morning I visited the address which I obtained at Florence with so much difficulty. The house was shut up. From inquiries made with caution among the neighbors I learned that Andrea Pashuli had left a few months before for Rome. Thither I go in search of him.

"The delay is irksome, but it is necessary. Although my desire for the day of my vengeance to come is as strong as ever, I would not have the shadow of a suspicion rest upon you. Truly, yours will be no crime, but the world and the courts of justice would have it otherwise. You will in verity, be but the instrument. Upon my head be the guilt, as mine will be the exceeding joy, when the thing for which I crave is accomplished. Bless you, my child, that you have elected to aid me in carrying out this most just request! Bless you, my child, that you have chosen to bring peace into the heart of one who has known great suffering!"

"Your last letter was short; yet I do not wonder at it. What is there you can find to say to me, while our great purpose remains thus in abeyance? My health continues good, I am thankful to say, yet, were it otherwise, I know that my strength would linger with me till my oath is accomplished. Till that day shall come death itself has no power over me. Even though its shadow lay across my path I could still defy it. Think not that I am blaspheming, Margarita, or that I believe in no God. I believe in a God of justice, and he will award me my right. Oh, that the time may be short, for I am growing weary. Life is very burdensome, save only for its end.

"Sometimes, my beloved Margarita, you have sought to lighten the deep gloom through which I struggle, by picturing the happy days we may yet spend together in some far-distant country, where the shadows of this great selfish world barely reach, and its mighty roar and tumult sound but as a faint, low murmur. I have listened, but I have answered not; for in my heart I know that it will never be. Those days will never come. I have shrunk from throwing a chill upon your warm, generous heart; but of late I have wondered if I do well in thus silently deceiving you. For, Margarita, there is no such time of peaceful happiness in store for me. I am dying! Nay do not start! Do not pity me! Do not fear! I know it so well; and I fell no pang, no sorrow. The limit of my days is fixed—not in actual days or weeks, but by events. I shall live to see my desire accomplished, and then I shall die. The light may flicker, but till then, it will not go out. You will ask me: Who am I that I dare to fix a limit to an existence which God alone controls? I cannot tell you, Margarita, why I know, or how, yet it is surely so. The day which sees me free of my vow will also be the day of my death.

Trouble not my child, at this thought, nor wonder why I can write of the end of my days so calmly. Ask yourself rather what further life could mean for me. There is no joy which I desire; my worn-out frame could find no pleasure in dragging out a tasteless and profitless existence. I look for death as one looks for his couch who has toiled and labored through the heat of the day. I shall find there rest and peace. I have no other desire.

"For yourself, Margarita have no fear. I have made your fortune my care, and God grant that it may be a happy one. Honest men have made good profit out of my lands during my imprisonment. I have wealth to leave, and it is yours. The Castle of the Marionis will be yours, and well I know you will raise once more and uphold the mighty, though fallen traditions of our race. I leave all fearlessly in your hands, at your entire disposal. Only one thing I beg of you, and that without fear of refusal, Marry not an Englishman. Marry one of the nobility of our own island, if you cannot find one worthy of you; if not, there are nobles of Italy with whom your alliance would be an honor, and also a profit. You will be rich as you are beautiful; and the first lady in Italy, our distant kinswoman, Angelia di Carlotti, will be your guardian and your friend. May you be very, very happy, dearest; and all that comes to you you will deserve, for you have lightened the heart of a weary old man, whose blessing is yours, now and for ever.

Good morning, Mr. Farmer. Have you ordered your Farm-all as yet? Or perhaps you prefer a McCormick-Deering tractor. Whichever your choice now is a good time to get your order in.

We are busy making deliveries and when the spring work starts you'll be surprised at the number of new tractor outfits you'll see in the fields.

Don't put this matter off too long or you may get absent minded and forget about it. Jim had an experience in absent mindedness the other night. He was sitting at home smoking and thinking about tractors. His pipe was empty and he started knocking it out. He heard the knocking and absent-mindedly thinking it was somebody at the door he called "Come in, Come in."

With bridge replacing the good old game of poker as a gambling medium, we propose to start a bridge club next fall. When they catch you playing poker, the grand jury pokes its nose in your business, you get indicted and fined. Now bridge is different. It's a ladylike and re fined game. EARLY DISCOVERY EARLY RECOVERY

The Illinois Tuberculosis and Public Health Association, and its affiliated organizations in Illinois are conducting an Early Diagnosis campaign throughout the month of April. This is the second campaign of this kind to discover the disease in its earliest stages.

This year Childhood and Teen-Age Tuberculosis, will be stressed, as there has been an increase in the number of cases, especially in teen-age.

While there has been a 50% decrease in the mortality rates in tuberculosis, it still takes the largest toll between the ages of 20 and 40 years. It is not the leading cause of death among those who have nearly finished their lives of usefulness, and have made their contribution to the world, but among people who are still rearing families, and are earning the wages that support those dependent upon them.

It has been known for some time that most tuberculosis is contracted during childhood and lies dormant until later life, often breaking out just at the time when the responsibility of parenthood is greatest. It has been said that, "Childhood is the Seed Time of Tuberculosis, the Harvest comes Later."

Through posters, bill boards, moving picture films, special circulars, literature, and newspaper publicity, informing about the symptoms of tuberculosis are wonderful messengers of cheer, that "Early Discovery Means Early Recovery," will be placed before the public during April and the help and interest of everyone is needed.

Everyone is urged to see their family physician sometime during the month, having a physical examination. If he tells you that you are all right, you will be more satisfied to go about your work, but if some early symptom of disease is discovered, you will be prepared to take the usual "stitch in time."

The Illinois Tuberculosis and Public Health Association, has determined to make this campaign so effective, that it will attract the attention of every person within the borders of the state.

I THANK YOU

Though I failed to secure renomination in Saturday's primary I want to thank all of my friends who gave me their support in my desire to represent East Nelson Township on the county board for a second term.

FARMERS GRAIN CO AT DALTON CITY HANDLED 497,413 BU.

How a business can be taken out of bankruptcy and made to pay good dividends is ably demonstrated by what has transpired in the elevator business at Dalton City.

Several years ago the business as then conducted got into bad shape. Its management was poor and it reached that state in its affairs where a receiver was named and the business was later sold.

It was bought by a stock company of Dora township farmers and business men. Of this company Tom Sheehan is president, J. H. Weidner is secretary and manager and the directors are Mr. Sheehan, Mr. Weidner, Irving Freeland, P. J. Vollmer, John Henneberry, F. Weidner, Anton Freeland, Charles Davidson and Grant Cole.

A report made by the company and O. K.'d by a certified auditor shows the following interesting developments during the past year: the company handled at the elevator 497,413 bushels of grain—corn, wheat, oats and barley. The gross receipts were $359,596.63, which ranks it with the big business concerns of the county.

After making all deductions a net profit of over $6,000 resulted. The stockholders decided, however, that of this amount a certain portion be turned over to the farmers who sold their soybeans to this elevator. Accordingly a refund of 6c per bushel is being made to the farmers. In other words the farmers that sold their soybeans to this elevator are getting 6c per bushel more than they had expected. The amount so paid will be over $2,000.

With the company's finances in such excellent shape prospects look bright for the Farmers Grain Company of Dalton City.

COMMITTEE NAMED TO CARE FOR STRICKEN LINDEN TREE IN PARK

Years ago when Wyman park was laid out, on suggestion of Fin Pifer, mayor at that time, the Friends in Council club planted a tree of the Linden variety in that part of the park near the grandstand which was known as "the heart" due to the scheme of landscape layout.

Recently this tree has shown signs of decay and at last week's meeting of the Friends in Council club the matter was reported by Mrs. Ella Stedman. A committee was named to see what could be done to save the tree and to secure a suitable marker for it. Those named were Mrs. Stedman, Mrs. Cora Brown and Mrs. Mollie Womack. Arrangements have been made with Mervin Reed the greenhouse man, to treat the tree this summer, in accordance with the latest methods in tree surgery.

4-H CLUB ACTIVITIES FOR MOULTRIE GETTING AN ENCOURAGING START

Saturday a number of the folks interested in 4-H girls club work will meet at the Farm Bureau office at 1 o'clock and under the direction of Mrs. Charles Wood, the county leader, they will map out a program of project work for the county's 20 4-H clubs this coming year. A similar meeting was held several weeks ago but bad roads prevented a representative attendance.

Boys 4-H Project

Harris Bone the county leader for the boys 4-H work has announced a meeting to be held at Bethany, Saturday, March 23rd. It is planned to have a "Fat Barrow" project for the boys. Boys between the ages of 10 and 20 are eligible for membership. The barrows must be of litters farrowed after March 1st. A boy can fatten 1 to 3 and they will be shown at the county fairs next fall.

Corn Culling School

A corn culling school for Farm Bureau members was held here Saturday. Thirty-eight farmers were present and had brought with them samples of the corn which they propose to use for seed. Mr. Tabaka of Ivesdale was in charge of the meeting. He explained to those attending what constitutes good seed corn and some samples submitted were found to be very undesirable and would not stand the test.

The Bureau's corn germinators will be started the latter part of this week or beginning of next.

SOYBEAN GROWERS DETERMINED TO GET BEST PRICES

last year did a lot of work getting the contracts signed. Most of the beans were sold according to contract and handled through local elevators at a $1.20 net price to the growers.

This year the buyers, instead of negotiating through the Farm Bureaus sent contracts direct to the growers. They offered only $1.33 f. o. b. Bloomington. Several growers contracted at this price. This contract is not open as was last year's. The farmer contracts to sell to the buyer at this price no matter what others may offer him.

This arrangement and the tactics which the buyers pursued did not meet with the approval of the Farm Bureaus. They contended that the price offered was not enough and that if the growers would band together they could raise this price considerably and that is what they are now trying to do.

A meeting of Moultrie Farm Bureau members was held here Monday. About 40 were present. The status of the matter was explained to them. They selected a committee to go to Monticello and co-operate in whatever this district meeting might decide to do. The members of the committee are J. T. Ellis of Lowe township, J. E. Righter of Jonathan Creek township and E. A. Walker, manager of the Farmers Elevator at Bethany. Farm Adviser Hughes accompanied this delegation.

The co-operative marketing scheme has government sanction and the plan to sell a crop prior to planting is a step in the right direction for the farmers, as in this way they can more intelligently plan their crop acreage.

ARMANTROUT ESTATE GOES TO WIDOW

The will of the late U. G. Armantrout of Whitley township has been filed for probate. In that instrument made Feb. 2, 1927, he leaves the entire estate both real and personal to his widow Mrs. Quincey Armantrout. In case of re-marriage she is to get one third and the other two thirds are to be equally divided between the two children, Myron and Jessie Armantrout. The latter some years ago embraced the Catholic faith and is an inmate of a convent in Quebec.

The will provides that after the death of Mrs. Armantrout the estate is to be divided equally between the children.

Four men witnessed the will and the testator asks that the court select three of them to act as appraisers. The four are W. Scott Young, Henry Hortensine, J. F. Lilly and Orla Kimbrough. Mrs. Armantrout is named executrix without bond.

FIND FREAK TREE

Last week while O. E. Lowe and his hand Elmer Graff were working in the timber near the Lowe home they cut what appeared to be a white oak tree. After the tree had fallen Mr. Lowe started trimming the top and surprised to find that he was working in hickory. An investigation showed that the bottom of the tree was white oak and that at some time in its growth a hickory top had been grafted on it. The joint where the graft was made many years ago was plainly to be seen by an examination of the trunk.

STATE FORESTER SPOKE AT STHS AND P-T MEETING

R. B. Miller of the Department of Conservation at Springfield spoke at the high school Tuesday afternoon on the forests of New Brunswick and stated that that was the last real stand of forest. It is a region principally of evergreens. Mr. Miller was well acquainted with the region for he taught forestry there for eleven years. The slides shown were views of forests, lumber jack camps, method of logging in New Brunswick and views of wild life such as the moose, the deer, the otter, and views showing the leaping salmon.

The subject of his talk at the Parent Teachers meeting in the auditorium of the Lowe building at night was "Forestry of the United States". Views were shown of burnt-over timbers and methods of re-forestation explained how forest fires start in Southern, Illinois, and how fires there are fought. He pointed out the bad effects of pasturing timbered lands, he explained and showed slides of the cattle destroying the seedlings or small sprouts. Some of the slides also showed how floods were caused, by the timber being cut away.

He stated that there were three kinds of forest: the evergreen, the hard wood and mixed. Our principal forest regions are in the west. Forest reservations are being set aside in the lake regions in the gulf states and through the Appalachian mountains. His slides showed the method of veneering, also the method of treating telephone and telegraph poles to keep the insects out and fungus from destroying the wood. He ended his pictures by showing about a dozen slides of the beauty spots of Illinois. Throughout our state are several forest reservations, one of the most-recently acquired being Horseshoe Lake, a beautiful spot about eighteen miles north of Cairo, which is a refuge for wild life. Last year thousands of ducks and geese spent the winter there. Another reservation is the white pine forest near Oregon, Ill., which is the only original white pine forest in the state.

SLIM THE SLEUTH FOUND COON DOG; HOLSAPPLE PROTESTS

The coon hunters of this community have threatened to court-martial The Progress editor and shoot him at sunrise some morning that may suit his convenience.

They say that in telling about stealing coon dogs last week he failed to give credit to a man who is the pride and joy of the local congregation of Illustrious Sons of the Coon Trail.

There is some consolation in the fact that the coon dogs are being stolen. The coon season having closed the hunters can now put in their time hunting dogs.

The man whose sleuthing ability was over-looked in last week's story is Slim Harlow. Slim is the fellow who can take up a cold trail of a missing coon hound and by persistence and Sherlock Holmes tactics can find that dog, no matter where he may be hid. It was Slim who found Dale Holsapple's dog at Will Stevens home in Decatur a couple of weeks ago. Slim had his suspicions. When he went to Decatur to the Stevens home he told Will that he wanted to trade for his dog. Will was reluctant to show the dog. Slim finally got a look at the dog and knew him for Holsapple's property. He and Holsapple went over later and got the dog, although some official persuasion was needed to get possession.

So all honor to Slim Harlow, the old Sleuth who is hereby nominated and elected to the office of the Chief of the Detective Bureau of Coon Hunters Club.

But that is not all of the editor's troubles. Along comes Alva Holsapple with a real grievance. Some imp of carelessness last week prompted us to say that the coon dog which was found in Decatur belonged to Alva Holsapple. It did not. It belonged to his brother Dale. Now Alva says that he has been placed in a wrong light before the world. He does not want to be classed with these coon hunters—fellows like Dedman, Siron, Smith, Pyatt and that bunch. He says he has no coon dog, does not want any coon dog and would not accept any as a present. He says he stays home nights and does not loaf around in the brush disturbing the peace and well being of a harmless coon. He says Dale is the coon dog man of the family. So in humble and abject apology we thus set Alva right before the world. We don't blame him for his good-natured kick. If somebody would accuse us of owning a coon dog we'd kick too.

It is reported that Willard Dale has lost a good hound and that Slim the Sleuth is working on that trail. If some fellows are not careful as to whose dogs they steal, they'll land in the hoos-gow for the rest of their natural life.
