Guy Worth Dying; Shot After Robbing Latham Bank Tues.

Former Moultrie Resident Rapidly Overtaken and Riddled by Bullets; Held up Bank About 10:30 Tuesday.

Guy Worth, bullet-riddled is dying in St. Clara's hospital at Lincoln—may be dead by the time this is read.

He robbed the Latham bank on Tuesday morning about 10:30 and secured about $500. He entered the bank with a gun in each hand and after having E. M. Culp, the cashier, pile the currency out where he could get it, he ordered him and all of the employees into the safe. He then put his guns in his pocket, took off his mask and passed out of the door of the bank. He got into an old Ford car to make his escape.

The bankers spread the report at once and in a few minutes four carloads of armed and angry men were on his trail. He was speedily sighted. He turned off the main road into a road leading to a farm house. When he saw his mistake he started backing out. By this time one of the pursuers' car was alongside.

The desperate man fired once at his pursuers and they then turned loose a volley of lead that cut him down mortally wounded. Several bullets hit him in head and others entered his chest and abdomen. He was taken back to Latham, which is a small town North of Decatur. The officers took charge of the wounded bandit and hurried him to the hospital.

All of the stolen money was recovered. In Worth's car were a shotgun and two revolvers.

Latest reports say that he will not recover.

Guy Worth is well known in this community by the older residents. He resided here for a time, southwest of this city. He is about 55 years of age and has been in serious trouble before. He served time in the penitentiary for rape. Of recent years he has lived at Latham, Mt. Pulaski and other central Illinois towns. He had no apparent means of support and was generally regarded as a shiftless but dangerous character.

It will take perhaps ten days or two weeks before the bakery will again be operating full time. The new owners are both married men and expect to move here as soon as they can arrange to do so.

THRILLING ENCOUNTER WITH TWO BURGLARS

On Tuesday night of last week Mrs. George Cogdal had a thrilling encounter with two burglars and as a result has had a badly bruised face.

Her husband was uptown at the time. She heard a man in the cellar and another in the front room of the house. The lights were out. She went to the phone to call her husband. She put in the call and reached him. About this time the burglar appeared at her side and pushed her away from the phone. She fell down a step leading into the other room and struck her head on a table. While this was happening the burglars made their escape. When Mr. Cogdal arrived home he made an investigation but could not find that anything had been taken.

Pearsons and Their Lawyers Indicted by Federal Grand Jury

Action Taken Against St. Louis Attorneys Whose Advice Has Plunged Former Sullivan Merchant into Endless Trouble.

A new chapter in the J. H. Pearson bankruptcy case was written this week when a federal grand jury in East St. Louis returned indictments against two St. Louis attorneys on charges of subornation and a conspiracy to conceal assets of a bankrupt.

The lawyers indicted and for whom fugitive warrants have been issued are James A. Ryan and Joseph C. Hopewell with offices in the Arcade building in St. Louis. At the time the indictments were returned against these attorneys, Mr. Pearson and his wife, Mae Pearson were also indicted for conspiracy to conceal assets.

If found guilty of the charges against them Ryan and Hopewell face a maximum penalty of five years imprisonment on the conspiracy charge and five years and $1000 fine on the charge of abetting perjury.

These indictments were returned on information gathered by investigators for the government. The Pearson bankruptcy case has been pending in Federal courts since August in 1928.

The investigators found that Pearson, when business got bad, consulted these St. Louis attorneys. From there on he took their advice as to how to handle the assets of his business. A sale was held and of the proceeds of this sale, on advice of attorneys, $800 was deposited in the Liberty Cen-

The action of the Men's class which is meeting with hearty co-operation from Allenville was caused by the apparent dormant condition of the Allenville church. No services have been held here for some time. The congregation is large and has a good church building and the Men's Class in co-operation with the other men's classes which are affiliated with the Men's Sunday School Association, expects to do itself some good spiritually, in extending a helping hand to the brethren at Allenville.

Sullivan Justice Displeases Decatur Traffic Violator

H. L. Grace May Appeal Case to Higher Court. Jury Finds he Violated Traffic Laws and Assesses Fine and Costs.

H. L. Grace of Decatur does not like Sullivan's brand of justice. He has informed Judge Lambrecht that he will bring a "big lawyer" over from Decatur to show local folks just how the laws ought to be enforced or not enforced.

Mr. Grace drives a truck for the Decatur News company and makes trips to this city Tuesdays and Fridays.

About October 1st he was arrested by Charles Getz for parking in front of the Grote garage so as to obstruct a driveway and making it impossible for others to be served at the Grote gas supply station. The arrest was made after Mr. Grace had previously been asked not to park at that place.

Mr. Grace paid little attention to the warrant against him and did not appear in Judge Lambrecht's court relative to the matter. Last week the Judge met him on the street and told him he was tired of the delay and would have to ask Mr. Grace to give bond for his appearance. He did so. The next day he appeared and asked for a speedy trial. Trial was set for Saturday evening.

A jury consisting of C. R. Cunningham, E. L. Rentfrow, Vern Atchison, John Stevens, Joe England and Fred Panches was impaneled.

Attorney Ray D. Meeker appeared for the defendant and City Attorney Jennings appeared for the city. The evidence was heard and the jury found Grace guilty and fined him $10 and costs. Costs in the case amount to $20.80. Mr. Grace is very indignant. He has not yet paid up and Judge Lambrecht says that the dilly-dallying must cease and that he will issue an execution and mittimus and throw the offender into jail to serve out his fine. The defendant has intimated that he will appeal the case to a higher court because two of the jurors, Cunningham and Rentfrow are city employees.

DISTRICT NURSES FIND HEALTH CONDITIONS GOOD IN SULLIVAN SCHOOLS

Miss Katherine D. Slimpert and Miss Effie Andrus both supervising nurses were here to make the school appraisal. Their health appraisal was very good and will be graded on after Mrs. Harris visits the Sullivan school and reports upon the weights and measures also the defects corrected since last year's examination.

Miss Slimpert talked to the children about health habits and choosing to be well or sick. They may choose to be well by the right diets and health habits, also by being vaccinated against small-pox and toxin-anti-toxin against diphtheria. Sullivan Grade school was better than 90 percent vaccinated against small pox. Some of the rooms were 100% vaccinated against small-pox.

Mrs. F. W. McPheeters president of P. T. A. and Mrs. Harris county nurse visited the school with the district nurses.

Editorial

O come, let us sing unto the Lord; let us make a joyful noise to the rock of our salvation.

Let us come before his presence with thanksgiving, and make a joyful noise unto him with psalms. Psalm XCV 1-2. For the Lord shall comfort Zion; he will comfort all her waste places; and he will make her wilderness like Eden, and her desert like the garden of the Lord and gladness shall be found therein. Thanksgiving and the voice of melody. —Isaiah LI—3.

A SCOUT IS CLEAN
 He keeps clean in body and thought, stands for clean speech, clean sport, clean habits, and travels with a clean crowd. This is the 11th Scout Law. Comment of the Scout Journal is as follows:

An old proverb says, "Cleanliness is next to godliness." It is a virtue that indicates self-respect and strength of character. To keep one's body clean is to show that one is trying to take care of his health and strength, and that he has some pride in his personal appearance. To keep one's mind clean is important, because it is truly said, "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." To keep one's soul clean is most important, because a tarnished soul means a wasted and ruined life. Let us keep clean, for our own good and pleasure, and because of the influence for good this will give us with others.

WHO WILL LEAD IN 1932?
ITALY, THE POPE AND AN HUMBLE EDITOR

Political writers are devoting a good deal of time to selecting a Democratic candidate for president in 1932. Unless conditions greatly change the Democrats may be successful nationally in that year.

There are a lot of obstacles to overcome. First and foremost seems to be the Prohibition question. That will get the most publicity. The extreme wets and drys will do battle to keep this issue foremost in the minds of the people and on the front pages of the metropolitan press.

We believe that three-fourths of the voters are thoroughly disgusted with this issue. They would like to see it settled some way, which would bring back to this nation a measure of temperance and sobriety. They might favor repeal of the present ineffective measure, if absolutely assured that the objectionable old-time saloon would never return. Many, however, who are thoroughly convinced that Volsteadism is not a solution of the drink problem, remember vividly the stupid arrogance of the old time coalition of politician, brewer and saloon.

Much will be heard about wet and dry between now and 1932 unless the issue of "to eat or not to eat" crowds it out. The man out of a job with a family depending on him will have little patience with prohibition or anti-prohibition agitation. He will be mainly concerned with the question of food and clothing.

The outstanding personality which emerged from the recent campaign was Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York. In 1928 he was elected governor of that state when his friend, Al Smith failed to carry it. Roosevelt got by with a very narrow margin.

He has made New York a good governor. In the recent election the Republicans ran a very able man against him, but he was buried in an avalanche of Roosevelt votes. Gov. Roosevelt was re-elected by a majority of over 700,000.

Gov. Roosevelt's outstanding issue in matters political is curbing the power trust. He feels that the people have rights in their natural sources of power which ought not be bartered away to the power magnates whose lines extend across the length and breadth of this land. He has been in public life long enough to have shown the people his ability as an executive. His friends, pointing to his recent landslide vote, predict that he could easily carry New York State and other eastern centers of population.

Next in prominence seems to be Senator Joe Robinson of Arkansas. Recently elected for his fourth term in the Senate, he is an outstanding figure among the ranks of the Democracy. He was the running mate for Al Smith in 1928 and proved himself to be a regular of regulars although he and Mr. Smith were not entirely in accord on the liquor question. It is predicted that he may go to the 1932 Democratic convention backed by the delegates of the solid south. Those midwestern Democrats who recently scored such decisive victories have always been suspicious of an Eastern candidate and may prefer Robinson to Roosevelt. How Robinson would appeal to the East is a question troubling politicians.

But the Democrats have other big men. Albert Ritchie, recently elected governor of Arkansas is an outstanding figure who will draw considerable support if he decides to enter the race for the nomination.

Former Senator James Reed of Missouri still remains to be reckoned with. Ambition to be president will smolder in his breast until they pile dirt on him. Virginia may again present her favorite son, Senator Carter Glass, recently elected without opposition. Senator Walsh who was a late entry in the race in 1928 was again victorious November 4th and has many friends who would like to see him president. Ohio elected a Democratic senator by the name of Buckley in the recent election and his admirers think he would make a great president. There are plenty of good men, able men. The ablest man does not always win. The man with organization and plenty of campaign funds usually emerges the winner in a presidential race. People are awakening. Illinois and New York recently showed the way.

The pre-convention skirmishing will soon begin. It will be interesting. Let us hope that it will also be instructive. A challenge to constructive statesmanship has been handed to the Democratic party. How will it acquit itself in the eyes of the people?

A voice from the past reached our desk in Monday's mail. It was a copy of the Fellowship Forum, printed in Washington, D. C., but mailed to us from Spokane, Wash. The Fellowship Forum, some of you may remember, is the K. K. K. newspaper, published weekly and claiming to have more than a million readers. You will not we said "claiming."

On the front page of this issue of November 15th appears a story headed "Italy Rejoices over Defeat of Senator Heflin." This article is blue-pencilled and on the margin there is lettered "Brandenburg and the Pope also rejoice." The sheet seems to be in mourning because of the fate of Senator Heflin and his fight for "Genuine Americanism." It is the same old sensational intolerant jargon, long discredited by the thinking people of this country. Fostering race hatred, it publishes an adv. for a book "Can the White Race Survive" and shows white girls in the arms of negro men and negro girls in the arms of white men.

One thing that makes our country great is free speech and a free press. Both of these things are frightfully abused but the common sense of the American people usually keeps them in proper restraint.

"Italy, the Pope and Brandenburg" rejoice over the defeat of Senator Heflin. Look at the company they put us in! We feel flattered to say the least. We know furthermore that about 95 per cent of the rest of the people of this country feel just like we do about Senator Heflin. The old boy had a lot of fun while it lasted, but the people got next to him and told him rather emphatically to stay home.

The "Forum" folks could show him some real "Fellowship" by making him an assistant editor or some such thing.

HISTORY
 Three interesting and very different experiences occurred one Sunday last fall.

In the morning we sat in the chapel of an historic academy in New England and, while the preacher prayed, we peeped a little. Our eyes wandered over the bowed heads of the boys; our imaginations were busy with thoughts of what might be in store for them.

Riding back to New York on the train we read an impressive speech by the President of the United States. When the train stopped at Hartford we looked out of the window to see a crowd filling the air with rice and confetti, and presently an embarrassed but happy young couple hurried through the car and into a drawing room.

Of these events—the prayer in the academy chapel, the speech of Mr. Hoover, the marriage of an unknown and apparently commonplace young couple—which was the most important? Which will leave the most lasting impression on history?

No one can possible tell. If every child and every happening were labelled "This is important" or "This is unimportant" the business of living would soon lose its zest. The eternal uncertainty of it keeps it exciting.

ATTENDED LEGION CONVENTION SUNDAY

Twelve from Sullivan attended the American Legion District convention held Sunday in Monicello. More than two hundred delegates were present from all over the district. Those attending from Sullivan were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Yeakel, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer McIlwain, Allen Hawley, and the Dutch band in costume. The members of the band were Lewie David, Henry Sona, Roy Light, Bill Heacock and J. Frank Gibbon.

LONG WAY FROM HOME

The Toledo (Ill.) Democrat tells of an Oakland man who shot some blackbirds recently. One carried an aluminum band on its leg. The man got into communication with the proper department at Washington and an investigation of bird-banding records disclosed that the bird was what is known as an adult male cow-bird, banded at Lake Wales, Florida on February 9, 1930.

MARRIED IN DECATUR

A marriage license was issued in Decatur last week to Ruth Randol 19 of Sullivan and Roscoe Redman 20 of Decatur.

Wahrheit und Dumheit

Some of the folks we know are thankful for the following reasons: (If not then why not?) Postmaster McPheeters is thankful about certain things than happened Nov. 4th. Cecil Yates is thankful he's single. He's so young looking he can't get a license. Jim Smith is thankful he got up enough nerve to see his dentist. He'll be all fixed to eat turkey next year. Ray Meeker is thankful he's Ray Meeker. Isn't that reason enough? Gerald Elder is thankful in the hope he'll be able to play better golf next year. Bill Gardner is thankful that the creator endowed man with speech. Can you imagine a silent Bill Gardner? John Elliott is thankful that it is only two years more until a new president will be elected. Levy Dickerson is thankful for fish; especially for that friendly kind that permits itself to be caught. Judge Grider is thankful that he can look back over twelve years in office and feel that he has served the people well. Clarence Miller is thankful that this has been a good year for road work. That permits him to pay off some more old township indebtedness. Ray Yeakle is thankful that he could report a 100 per cent membership for the local Legion Post at the convention in Monticello last Sunday. Halec Lansden is thankful that the people can call him Sheriff and his family can call him Daddy. Paul Hankla is thankful that every day its getting closer to Spring and a reopening of Freedland Fairways. Dr. A. E. Turner is thankful that the Presbyterians used such good judgment in selecting a pastor. Carl Hill is thankful that he now lives in the Second ward—the best in Sullivan—the editor lives there too. George Henderson is thankful because we just called him and made reservations for 3 Thanksgiving dinners. Cotton Wood is thankful for youth, life and love. Bill Robinson is thankful that the people are beginning to realize that he is "Bill the Builder." He's at it again. Dick Dunscomb is thankful that adv. writing is now the job of some other member of the family. Guy Bupp is thankful that nobody can induce him to go coon hunting again. Dr. Thurman is thankful that he opened an office in Sullivan. Who wouldn't be? To the girls who have asked about a certain matter let us say confidentially, "No, he isn't." Vern Atchison is thankful that the younger members of the fair sex have no attraction for him. Frank McPheeters is thankful because he and Col. Hopper agree so harmoniously in matters of politics. Matt Dedman says he's thankful that some people still have the good sense to appreciate good horses and good harness. Col. Jennings is thankful because he can soon lay aside his military title and adopt the judicial title of Judge. Prof. Scheer is thankful that he has a 100 per cent Red Cross staff of teachers. Any school could be proud of that. Gale Carnine is thankful that a mere political set-back cannot spoil his good humor. So are his many friends. Col. Hopper is thankful that the smiling face of his friend Len is again rising like a sun of promise on the political horizon. Basden the baker is thankful that he had the nerve to go on, when everybody thought he was ready to quit and leave us. Earl Nighswander has lots of reasons to be thankful. The main one is a bride. Vern Siron is thankful that the Lord made coons. So is Guy Booker. Col. McKenzie is thankful that he is Lou Emmerson's right hand man here in Moultrie county. He's the only man in the county with a state job and a state appointment. Doc Johnson is thankful for golf. He is also thankful for golf and more golf. Furthermore he is thankful that he can play golf. Guy Little is thankful he won a Legion blanket the other day. He will put it in his hope chest. Bill Davis is thankful that work is his line is slackening up somewhat. Eddie Palmer is thankful that the National Inn has such a good-looking curly headed clerk. Howard Wood is thankful there is no speed-limit in smoking cigars. Walter Birch is thankful that a highway maintenance man need not ride a motorcycle. Look what happened to Boob. By the way he's thankful he's alive. Clint Coy is thankful for his new store front. Ralph Hanrahan is thankful he's young and ambitious. Raymond Shasteen is thankful he's back in Sullivan. Emery Creech is thankful. Who would not be, with a brand new bride? Ross the Jeweler is thankful that when offered the purchase of a nicely located store room he "Tuck'er." Purvis Tabor is thankful his lady friend corresponds so regularly. Absence makes the heart grow fonder. Ray Bupp is thankful he's growing up to be such a big strong man, able to handle freight of any size or weight. Joe Shirey is thankful he's head of a first class high school. Ditto—Joe McLaughlin for the grade school. Chester Horn has lots of things to be thankful for. Why enumerate them? A Nicholson is thankful that Dick Dunscomb is such a good pal in helping collect church funds. Francis Purvis is thankful because he and his friend Wehmhoff are two of best-looking eligible bachelors in Illinois—beg pardon, we meant to say the Middle West. Buck Fisher and family are thankful th're back home with home folks. Rev. Barnett is thankful for the young folks who are assembling under his leadership. Paul Bryant, Jim Harsh and Claude Wheeler are thankful for the new Chevrolets. O. C. Worsham is thankful that he looks so financial-like in a black derby. Frank Furtherer is thankful for the Federal Farm Board—or maybe we're mistaken. Lots of other fellows are thankful, but we're thankful that we haven't got time to list them all. Be thankful we overlooked you, please!

JUDGE GRIDER TO HAVE OFFICE ABOVE S. B. HALL'S

Judge John T. Grider who will retire Monday from the office of County Judge has announced that he will have an office in the rooms above the S. B. Hall drug store on the west side of the square. He has served as county judge twelve years or three full terms, which is one term more than any other man served in that office in this county. During these years he attended faithfully to his judicial duties. During the strenuous days of the World War many important duties devolved on the office of county judge, especially as pertained to alien property rights and persons in service who had interests in estates in course of settlement. Judge Grider came here as a teacher. He is a native of the Windsor community. After securing a good education he came to Sullivan as principal of the high school in the old building. He has ever since been in positions of honor and trust and is one of the best known men in the county. He will be succeeded in office by John E. Jennings.

LOCAL GIRL ATTENDING BLACKBURN COLLEGE

Miss Wiletha Miller of Sullivan, Ill., is attending Blackburn College, that wonderful self-help school which is located at Carlinville, Ill. This college has attracted more attention in recent years than any other school in our state. The American Magazine featured it in a story by Neil M. Clark under the title "A College Where You Take Your Pick and Shovel." Just recently the Pathe News ran a section of pictures showing the classes in the Pullman cars, the moving out from the Pullmans and the burning of one. Blackburn is a college where all work is done by the students, and in addition is planned, managed and directed by them. It is a real 'honest-to-goodness' self-help project and offers an education to boys and girls who are willing to work for it, and who cannot afford to go elsewhere.

NO HOG CHOLERA

Moultrie county has been very fortunate so far this fall in not having any hog cholera. Other parts of the country are combating this scourge and many dollars worth of hogs have been lost. Moultrie farmers are practicing immunization and sanitation and this may account for the absence of this dread disease.

Main Street Looks at Broadway

By Ernest Camp Jr.
 New York—New Yorkers at a football game display as much "college spirit" as a heard of creditors at a bankruptcy meeting. If one of them cuts loose with a lusty yell, somebody has stepped on his foot. To the hardened New Yorker a football game like everything else, is a beez-niss proposition. If the team is staked five bucks upon a couple of touchdowns upon down, why get steamed up about it? Didn't he drop fifty grand in Wall Street on Consolidated Soap—and did he bat an eyelash? The only real reason why these birds attend the games in person is to enable the Mrs. to show off the new chinchilla coat. If they had their way about it, they would stay home and follow the day's investments by radio. "Say, Pop, did they let that touchdown count?" "Er—don't bother me now, son—let's see, I've got ten on Army and gave six points, five on Penn, five on Dartmouth and got twelve points, ten on Notre Dame. The—" "Say, Pop, what state is Illinois in?" "Lord, Willie, I'm surprised at you. Er—ask your mother." One New Yorker has figured out a way to prevent his dogs from being run over by automobiles. After seeing two pets killed in this manner, he decided to teach his own animals to take better care of themselves. So he taught them—six of them—to obey traffic signals. With a police whistle he taught them to cross the street at one blast, to stop at two. If they don't see a policeman they watch the traffic lights. Never, it is said, do they cross against a red light. Just to prove—as if it needed proving—that New York is just a big hick town, there's a horseshoe pitching parlor near Madison Square Garden. During the five o'clock rush on Broadway the other day a sidewalk fakir was selling "imported German watches, worth $5," at twenty-five cents a throw. They went like hot cakes—just as fast as he could grab them out of a shabby black bag. There's one born every minute, said Barnum. He must have known his Broadway. Every street corner, almost in New York is occupied by someone with a box of apples and a sign: "Unemployed—Buy Apples." The fruit interests, who furnish the signs free and the first box on credit, are said to be cleaning up. One of these "unemployed" is said to have earned $51 in one day. Even unemployment has become a racket, see? The week's best story has to do with the Mara-Tunney court battle. Martin Littleton, the famous lawyer, acting counsel for Mara, was quizzing Tunney on the witness stand. The fiery little barrister fung out a verbal thrust that stung the retired champion, who clenched his fists and poked out his lower jaw. "Now, now," pleaded Littleton, "please don't look at me like that, Mr. Tunney. For you a very athletic chap, while I'm just a young fellow trying to get along." New York things I like: The Chrysler tower, silver against a sunset sky of rose. Manhattan at dusk, viewed from the upper level of Manhattan bridge. The lower Manhattan skyline viewed from the harbor. The pigeons on the plaza of the New York Public Library. The dirigible Los Angeles, flying over town at night. The windows at Lord & Taylor's. Twilight strolling on Fifth Avenue. The spaghetti at Caruso's. Hoboken beer. Pay day. Mrs. Bilgewater—"Where have you been until this hour?" Mr. Bilgewater—"Working at the office, my dear." Mrs. Bilgewater—"Then you must be made of asbestos. The building where your office is, burned down at 10 o'clock."

FOURTEENTH INSTALLMENT

He took her to a desk and gave her paper and a pen. Julie wrote a few hurried lines. "I didn't mean it, Lawrence dear. I want you to come back to me. Please ring me in the morning—Julie."

It was a relief to have written that, and she half smiled as she thought how unnecessary it was to have added those last words. He would not ring her, he would come round, she was sure, he would come very early, perhaps even to-night if he was back in time, and then in the morning they would go away and make some sort of happiness together.

Julie tried hard not to think beyond tomorrow, but although she was so tried, and felt ready to drop, she could not sleep. She lay awake for hours listening to every sound. In the early morning Julie dozed off to sleep, only waking when she heard the maid let herself into the flat and move about in the kitchen lighting the fire.

Presently she brought tea and a note. "It was lying on the mat when I came in, Miss."

Julie glanced at the handwriting, then sat up, her pulses jerking. It was from Lawrence Schofield. She was conscious of a warm glow of pleasure.

He loved her—it was something to be happy about in a world that held no real happiness. He must have brought it himself late last night. Perhaps, after all, it had been his footstep out side which she had heard.

She broke open the seal, the envelope felt unusually bulky, she drew out its contents—her own note which she had written last night in the hotel lounge, torn across and across into minute pieces. That was all.

When Giles Chittenham got back to his mother's house she met him in the hall. "Your wife has been asking for you all the evening. I said I would send you up as soon as you came in."

As he went upstairs he could hear Sadie's voice, high-pitched and hysterical, and he stopped for a moment, his hand clutching the stair rail, a terrible sense of loss and irrevocable fate gripping his heart.

When she heard Chittenham's voice, she turned her head towards the door, and stared at him with her wild, blind eyes. "So you've come at last, have you?" she shrieked at him. "I suppose you've no use for me either, now I can't see."

She beat her hands frantically on the brass rail, and the nurse who had been standing beside her, caught and held them. Sadie burst into wild sobbing. "There's no hope for me, I know that I shall never see again as long as I live. I shall just sit here in the darkness till I die—till I die—and nobody cares—it doesn't matter to any one in all the world what becomes of me."

Giles crossed the room and touched her shoulder. "Sadie—" She checked her sobbing with a sharp breath, and raised her face with pathetic eagerness to hear what he had to say. She tore her hands from the nurse's grasp, and groped in front of her till she touched Chittenham's coat, then she clutched it feverishly and began sobbing once more. "Don't leave me, Giles—be kind to me—after all, I am your wife—Chittenham looked at the nurse. Please leave us."

When she had gone, he sat down beside his wife and put an arm round her. "Sadie—you must try and be brave and listen to reason. Everything possible is being done and will be done, you know that."

Sadie was sobbing again. "You don't really care for me—nobody cares for me. Though I can't see you I know by the feel of your arm that you're just trying to be kind, while all the time you're impatient and want to get away—"

"Don't leave me alone, Giles. You don't know what it's like to be left alone in this hideous darkness. I shall go mad if you leave me. I've often felt impatient with blind people—it's bored me to have to talk to them and try and be nice to them, but I know what it's like now, and I wish I'd been kinder. I suppose it's my punishment—and yet why should I be punished? I've never done any one any harm—"

"My dear, I want to be kind to you, but you make it so difficult for me—"

There was a little silence, which Sadie broke pitifully: "There! I'm not crying any more, am I? I'm quite quiet now—please kiss me, Giles."

He kissed her affectionately, his heart torn with pity. "You didn't kiss my lips," Sadie said—then she laughed brokenly, "Never mind! I suppose it's all I deserve."

She took her hands away from him and folded them in her lap to hide their trembling. "Well—" she said after a moment as he did not speak. "What am I going to do? Or what are you going to do with me? I can't stay here, can I?"

Giles explained as gently as he could. "In the morning I will take you away."

She interrupted quickly: "Where will you take me? To live with you?"

"Not at once. To a nursing home. I have arranged with a specialist to see you—"

She interrupted again: "It will be of no use. I know. I'm finished."

"Don't say that, Sadie." She shuddered from head to foot. "Well, go on—and afterwards? What then?"

"Then we must see. We must make arrangements."

"Arrangements! for what? For me to be led about by a nurse or a dog for the rest of my life?" Her terrible, hysterical sobbing began afresh.

Chittenham felt that he could bear no more. He called to the nurse and made his escape. His nerves were shaking as he went downstairs. He had never imagined anything so tragic as this last half hour.

He paced up and down the library, at his wit's end to know what to do. It was long past eleven and he had all the night to drag through.

If there was indeed no hope of Sadie ever being able to see again, how could he possibly leave her? It would be inhuman, impossible and yet to live with her—Another knock at the door. Chittenham turned impatiently. "Oh, come in, come in."

"Perhaps you would like me to explain, Mr. Chittenham," Schofield went on, and now every sneering word was a studied insult "or will it be sufficient if I just call you the cad and the black-guard which I know you to be?"

"I can only conclude that you are drunk," said Giles, sharply, "and that being so, the kindest thing I can do is to ring and have you shown out of the house."

He took a step towards the bell, but Schofield was too quick for him. "That won't do," he said thickly. "I've seen that trick tried before. I'm not drunk and you damn well know I'm not. You're a younger man than I am, Chittenham, but I spilt Lombard's beauty for him last night—he won't show his face amongst decent people again for some time to come, and I'll spoil yours if I—"

Chittenham caught his upraised arm and held it in a grip of steel. "Don't be a damned fool," he said roughly, "you're no match for me, and you know you're not. If you've got anything to say, say it and be done. As far as Lombard goes, if you have given him a thrashing I'm in your debt, I owe him one myself—"

He released Schofield's arm, at the same time giving him a little push away from him, and for a moment the two men glared at one another silently, then Schofield broke down. He groped towards a chair and fell into it, hiding his face against his clenched hands. Giles watched him for a moment without speaking, then he fetched whisky and soda from a side table.

"Help yourself," he said. "If you've got anything against me, let's talk it out sensibly, instead of flying at one another's throats like wild beasts. I know what Lombard has told you—he tried his blackmailing games on me, and when he found it was no use he threatened to go to you. Good God, Schofield, what sort of a fool are you to believe a lying hound like that?"

Schofield raised his haggard face. "What reason have I to disbelieve it?" he asked sullenly. Giles shrugged his shoulders. "Isn't your knowledge of Miss Farrow the best of all reasons?"

Schofield rose to his feet and began pacing up and down. "Lombard was so sure—he had got every detail of the story—that you and Julie spent the night together at the St. Bernard Hotel—"

"So we did. It was impossible to get home. If all such unforeseen situations are given the same vile interpretation as you have given to this—"

Schofield's face flamed suddenly crimson. "But I believe it!" he shouted. "I've always known that Julie was unhappy. She has hinted at trouble again and again. The reckless way she talks—all that pretended gaiety. It's never really deceived me, though for her sake I've let her think so—Lombard had the whole story pat. He even spoke of your brother's relations with Miss Farrow's cousin—and of his suicide. He said that you mistook Julie for her cousin—he said that you intended punishing her for the way she treated your brother—he said that when you came back from St. Bernard you boasted to him of the easy conquest you had made—"

He never finished his sentence—for Chittenham's hands were at his throat, shaking him like a rat, almost choking him—

"By God—you dare say that to me—you talk of Lombard! how much better are you? Believing the first foul lies that come to you about a woman you're supposed to care for! You're not worth a thrashing—get out, that's all I've got to say to you—"

Still keeping one hand on Schofield, Chittenham dragged him to the door and flung it open—shouting to one of the servants: James show this gentleman out, and if he refuses to go send for the police."

He released Schofield so violently that he almost fell. He waited a moment—then went back into the library shutting the door behind him.

He was shaking from head to foot with uncontrollable passion, and his face and head were burning.

That any man should dare to accuse him of such a thing—and to Julie of all people—the woman he adored!

And again Chittenham lost himself in the thought of that night on St. Bernard—when they had been shut in on all sides by storm and snow and tempest and he had held Julie in his arms.

In a revulsion of feeling he wished passionately that he had made true the almost unspoken accusation which Schofield

William McKown Reports on Trip to Kansas City Livestock Show

Big crowds, bands, fine cattle, fat hogs, 4H club banners, future farmer caps, thoroughbred horses, wide brimmed hats, silk hats, overalls, swallow tail coats, activity as far as the eye can see it was the American Royal Livestock Show in Kansas City.

Every day the judges were busy studying livestock exhibits, which number more than ever before. Every night the arena was packed for the horse show with its varied entertainment. Visitors from all parts of the U. S. were there by the thousands, 3,000 of them boys and girls.

Such crowds, such exhibits showed the people of America that the farmer and stockman were not looking back to the drought and business depression of the summer, but were making plans for a better, more prosperous future. They were developing methods to produce a better produce, a better product at cheaper cost and so beat the "depression" at its own game.

Junior farmers and Future Farmers of America held most of the attention the first two days of the show. Sunday there was a religious service. While cattle lowered and sheep bleated in American Royal pens, hymns were sung and prayers intoned in the tan bark arena. It was the first religious service held in connection with the Royal.

The setting was not strange. The Christian religion was cradled in a manger and it was the faith of the shepherds of old. Beyond the platform and the pulpit, the congregation could see the straw of the cattle pen and the fat kine. A farm hand stood in the midst of a show herd, head bowed while Rev. Oliver Brackett said the invocation.

The Judges were busy judging livestock of the finest type to be found anywhere, all day Monday. There were close to three thousand farm boys and girls who attended the Royal. They are not only the farmers of tomorrow—the rising bulwark of our fundamental industry—but actual farmers who actually have achieved results in their chosen careers. Practically every one of the young visitors of the Royal brought with him a record of noteworthy results in Agriculture. The majority of the boys went to the Royal on trips awarded to them by the railroads and other agencies interested in agriculture in recognition of outstanding achievement at home.

The Wabash Railroad Co., furnish free transportation for: Les Simpson, Oliver Durham, Homer Edwards, Hugh Bothwell, and William McKown, all members of the Future Farmers of America and all from the state of Illinois. Two were from Springfield, two from the U. of I., and one from Sullivan.

The Wabash Co., give five free trips to Illinois boys who live close to their railroads as an inducement to better and more prosperous farming. The company realizes that such trips are an investment rather than liability. The agriculture manager H. E. Jamieson, St. Louis, said the knowledge gained by various boys along the company's route, when put to use in each individual community through various newspapers, etc., really returned the sum of 25 or 30 dollars spent, for car fare, several times over. Each boy who received a free trip on the Wabash Railway is asked to give a brief account of his experience to his local community. Only a few have the privilege of enjoying such a wonderful experience.

The Junior farmers at the Royal were represented in two general classifications, the students of vocational agriculture in the rural High Schools and the membership of the vocational students in a national organization, known as the Future Farmers of America, to which the student is admitted by degrees, as he makes a record in agriculture. Sullivan now has two State farmers, Charles Lane and William McKown; twenty Future Farmers; and twelve Green hands. A local chapter of thirty-four members.

The Future Farmers of America now covers 41 states. Each state is under the by-laws and constitution made and improved by the Future Farmers of America in their annual convention. This convention was held in Kansas City, Nov. 15-21. Each state has two delegates at this meeting who have the power to vote and a voice in business discussions. It is during this convention that the candidates receive their highest degree, that of "American Farmer." Illinois had four boys to receive this degree this year. They were Homer Edwards of U. of I. Ed. Dunphy of Ornsbo, Wilson Bryant of Waverly, Ill., and Elmer Searls of Medora.

Part of the required course of study in vocational agriculture, includes along with the usual studies prospects in farming itself. The student is taught not only from text books, but in the laboratory. All the usual duties of the farm are included in these projects. The boy handling his project under the direction of his High School instructor uses the most modern methods, keeps careful records, and quite frequently achieves such striking results that he changes the whole method of farming in his community. It is such records, the earnings and the methods and the elements of sportsmanship and of leadership indicated, as well as scholarship, which admits the students of Agriculture to the various degrees in this "Future Farmers of America" organization.

The Future Farmers of America might be called an outgrowth of the American Royal. The organization was framed two years ago.

The Future Farmers of America draws its membership from vocational agriculture students of high schools receiving federal aid under the Smith Hughes Act. There are about 100,000 vocational agriculture students in the country. The F. F. A. organization already has reached forty-one states, and three others have applied for membership charters. About 40,000 boys are members of the Future Farmers.

Nomination of 49 boys to the highest honor of the Future Farmers of America, was made Nov. 18. It is no easy job to secure this degree of "American Farmer." The fact that each one of the candidates for this degree was in competition with a thousand other aspirants in his own state proves that. Dr. Lane read the record of each boy, the candidates stood and made a brief response. The delegations from 41 states voted and forty nine more boys made history.

Gov. Caulfield of Missouri presented David Johnson of New Jersey, the boy farm king with the Kansas City Star's $1,000 check, for the most outstanding vocational agriculture student of forty-one states.

Mr. Edward Drace of Keytesville, Mo., (he represented Illinois, Missouri and surrounding states in the National oratorical contest of F. F. A. which was held in the Ararat Temple in Kansas City) received first prize of $500. (a total of $1,100 in prizes were awarded to the four orators) Edward spoke on the theme "Equalization of taxes as a source of farm relief."

A Kansas Senator made the remark that these F. F. of A. orators should be able to represent Agriculture interest in Congress in such a way that they could truly, surely get results when they are elected to office. He told this story:

—Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lane of Sheldon, Ind., visited Mr. and Mrs. Web Tichenor over Sunday.

A little lad came running to him as he was changing a tire on his car. This lad lived on the farm but had troubles of his own. When asked how he felt the lad replied, "I lost my pony, my cat got drowned last week, a car hit my dog and I stepped on a nail. My father lost his crop in the drought and I can't have turkey for my Thanksgiving but I still think that "Smith's farm is the best farm in the county; I think Adams county is the best county in the State; I think Kansas is the best state in the Union; I think U. S. is the best country on earth; and I think this is the best World anywhere!"

tral Bank in St. Louis in Mrs. Pearson's name.

At the suggestion of the attorneys approximately $1600 was borrowed on two insurance policies on Mr. Pearson's life and this also was deposited in St. Louis.

Mr. Pearson then, for benefit of his creditors, turned over his store to a man named Feigenbaum of St. Louis and he sold it to Indianapolis merchants, who paid $3200 therefor and then sold out part of the stock and moved the rest.

Creditors not satisfied with that arrangement forced Pearson into bankruptcy in August of that year. Mr. Henley of Mattoon was named trustee in bankruptcy by Referee W. T. Grant. A search for assets then resulted in finding that Feigenbaum held the sale price of the store and refused to turn it over unless permitted to deduct about $1100 for attorneys fees, etc. Suit was started in St. Louis, and most of this money was recovered from Feigenbaum for the benefit of the creditors.

When investigation of Mr. Pearson's assets disclosed the fact that funds taken in during the sale were missing and that two insurance policies, listed as assets, had been borrowed on, action was started to get these additional assets for the creditors and the courts upheld such action, after numerous hearings.

In the year 1929 criminal action was started against Mr. Pearson and an indictment was returned in the Federal court charging him with having used the mails to defraud. This was based on the contention that he had sent financial statements to the firms with whom he dealt, which were incorrect and misleading. It has not been learned whether or not this indictment has ever been disposed of.

In the meantime Mr. Pearson had secured a job as shoe salesman and moved his family to Rice Lake, Wisconsin where they now reside. On advice of friends, he cut loose from his St. Louis attorneys and retained the services of Attorney Harry Parker of Effingham. Shortly after this, following an examination in a hearing in which he sought discharge from bankruptcy, Mr. Pearson told his story without reserve to District Attorney Harold Baker.

The action of the Federal Grand jury has followed.

Mr. Pearson's many Sullivan friends have always contended that his troubles were mostly due to depending on St. Louis attorneys who were evidently planning to make a good thing financially out of him. Local friends have never lost faith in the honesty and integrity of Jack Pearson and his wife. When troubles came, these former Sullivan folks, placed their faith in Ryan and Hopewell, old friends at St. Louis and implicitly followed their directions. It has led into a maze of trouble.

With the Federal Court being brought to a realization as to who directed Mr. Pearson's actions in this matter, it is hoped that the case may reach a speedy conclusion and Mr. Pearson may be permitted to follow in peace the work he is doing to support himself and family.

PIGSKIN STARS DON MAKEUP

Un. of S. California Eleven Appears in "Good News" Football Sequence

Trenches, roller-coaster tracks and monorails provided means by which unusual action scenes of a football struggle were obtained for the filmization of "Good News" which will open Thursday, Thanksgiving, for two days at the Grand theatre, Sullivan as a new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer offering.

Edgar MacGregor and Nick Grinde, who directed the screen version of the famous stage musical comedy hit, obtained the services of the University of Southern California football squads for the thrilling sequences that climax the action of the story.

When the company went on location at the Los Angeles Stadium where the Trojan players won their outstanding gridiron triumphs, such pigskin stars as Geo. Dye, Leo Kelly, Marshall Duffield, Tony Stenovich, Frank Anthony, Dick Templeton, John Alden, Harry Durkee, Bud Fisher, Dov Harwood, Tony Jurick, Ames Lane, Bill Seitz, Bull Purcell, Jim Musick and Amos Sherman answered roll call. In their ranks the directors placed Stanley Smith leading man and Gus Shy and Delmar Daves, who also are featured in the cast.

For the unusual action shots, trenches were dug in the middle of the field and cameras and microphones were shoved into the pits, protected from the stampeding players by iron shutters. Along the line of action, as outlined in the script, was erected a roller-coaster track, upon which camera perambulators were mounted in the grooves, enabling the photographers to keep abreast of the plays and keeping the principal players in a continuous closeup of action and dialogue as the game progressed.

"Good News" as it comes the screen, brings such spectacular scenes as these, which were only suggested by off-stage cheering and dialogue in the original stage play. The canoeing love scenes on the moonlit lake also are welcome changes from the stilted theatre action.

Bessie Love heads the cast in the screen version and others featured are Mary Lawlor, Leda Lane, Cliff (Ukulele) Ike Edwards, Dorothy McNulty, Billy Taft, Frank McGlynn and Tom Jackson.

Abe Lyman's famous band plays the musical score of sixteen hits throughout the picture. The spectacular football wedding finale filmed entirely in natural colors is an additional attraction.

H. S. Notes

High school life—

Mrs. Roney, Mr. Moore and Mr. Scheer attended the banquet tendered by the Decatur Review to the music directors and principals of High Schools of Central Illinois, at which arrangements were initiated to sponsor a music festival in Decatur on the afternoons and evenings of May 15 and 16.

Mr. McCann, representative of the Decatur Review, who was largely responsible for the plans which enabled the Decatur High school band to attend the festival in Chicago last summer, was in charge. His experience at this National meet showed the possibilities that a local contest would present, without the enormous cost involved of travelling great distances to the schools participating.

The festival promises to be unique in arrangements, rules and presentation. About 25 schools were represented at the banquet and all present received Mr. McCann with enthusiasm. Mr. Rex Reese, the director of the High School band, is on the committee to arrange the band contest, and Miss Betty Joe Eikenberry of Decatur High School Choral Department is in charge of the chorus and glee club units. Mr. McCann plans to follow up the meeting with a questionnaire to be sent of each High School invited. It will bear all data needed for the committees to classify groups, choose selections, and make other arrangements for adequately and fairly carrying out the general desires of participants in staging the musical festival in Decatur next May.

The Glee clubs have begun to practice for Christmas Cantata, "The First Christmas." It will probably be given Sunday afternoon, Dec. 14.

$110,000,000 MORE FOR ROADS
Springfield, Nov. 24—To complete the state bond issue hard road system will require about $110,000,000 from three to four years' work—and the continuation of the present income in the funds for road construction. This was outlined to Governor Louis L. Emmerson by Director H. H. Cleaveland, of the state department of public works and buildings, following a survey of the season's accomplishments and expenditures, and careful calculations of the sources of revenues for roads—motor licenses and the gasoline taxes.
INDIANA-ILLINOIS BRIDGE
Springfield, Nov. 24—Bids for the construction of a fixed bridge 2,700 feet long over the Washash river at Mt. Carmel will be opened here Dec. 9. The structure is expected to cost about $750,000. Illinois and Indiana will divide the cost. Specifications call for completion of the bridge by Sept. 15, 1931, which means that construction will have to begin as soon as the contract is awarded.

THE WEATHER

"I have seen the leaves fall and lie thick upon the ground; I have heard wintry blasts sing sad requiem o'er their decay." I have seen summer days in mid-November, followed by howling gales from out the Northwest, bearing on their wings snow and hale and trembling limbs and goose-pimply skin.

I have seen tanned, plump arms exposed to the admiration of the breezes and the world one week and when I saw their possessors a week later these limbs were swathed in heavy furs.

Folks, its turned colder. Merchants who sell underwear are smiling and the gloom has disappeared from off the faces of our coal dealers. Shoe merchants and repair men are hopefully waiting for the snow to become wet and slushy so it will seek out the holes in the soles of mankind and haste them to spend money for new footwear or repairs.

Every wintry wind ushers in sorrows for some and joys for others. 'Tis truly said that it's an ill wind that blows good for nobody.

From all appearances this will be a white Thanksgiving. Snow fell Monday and melted but on Tuesday it stuck. The temperature has gone down around the 20 mark and snows are hourly occurrences. Paved streets and concrete slabs are slippery as greased glass and its a bad time for the automobile man to apply brakes, if he doesn't want to skate into a curb or do a swift turn-a-bout.

The writer is not a weather prophet nor the son of a weather prophet. If we were we'd predict lots of snow this winter. It's been a long, dry summer and fall and sometime, sooner or later the heavens will open and send down a lot of moisture. If such is the case this winter, it will mean big snows and work for the unemployed.

The people of this big country ought to get well acquainted this winter. Every day strangers, men whom I've never seen before call here at the office and tell me they are hungry. You can go out on the streets any time and see one of this class of tourists. They come and stay for a day and then pass on, while others follow in their footsteps begging for food. Some of these men are really hungry and in need. Others are moochers who panhandle for small change. It's just too bad that there is no way of separating the worthy from the unworthy. We have no soup kitchens in Sullivan as yet and the bones used to color the water in other towns to make it look like soup, here are fed to the dogs.

Road work has been stopped by this cold snap, but the contractors are hopeful for some more nice weather before Christmas. This has been the finest year of road-building weather that this country has seen since Len Small proclaimed himself the hard-road governor and started the boys to pouring concrete.

With the joys of summer now a thing of the past people are turning their thoughts to churches and repairing their religious faiths; lodges are showing renewed activity after a summer of somnolence. The only all-the-year around sport seems to be playing bridge and there is no abatement in this passion. Clubs and similar organizations are eating as usual as if consuming food was the end and aim of their existence. Good Republicans are peeved because times have not turned much better since November 4th and are inclined to belabor the Democrats for their dilatory tactics in bringing prosperity back.

Listen friends, I have noticed that the fellows who have the most money salted away are the ones who are doing the most howling about hard times. If these Shylocks would let loose some of their coin and do some buying the poor folks would have a chance to do some earning. If you've got the money, buy not only necessities, but a new car once in a while and it will help bring the sun of prosperity from back of the clouds.

Christmas will be here December 25th as usual. Buy from your home town stores, the things they advertise in the home town newspapers.

Racial Mark Plainly Seen in Place Names

While most of the states of the Mississippi valley, besides countless rivers and lakes in all parts of the country, bear Indian names, but a small number only of the towns that are the work of the white man have adopted names borrowed from the original owners of the land. Not one in ten, it is claimed, of the 150 large cities has an Indian name, if we except Chicago, and among those that have it is usually an adaptation from some neighboring lake or stream.

The early explorers and settlers have left their racial mark. Up the Hudson and Mohawk the trail of the Dutchman is pretty clear. The French influence in northern New York and Vermont and along the line of the Great lakes is familiar in many names. Mississippi has no "saints" in its list, whereas across the river Louisiana, by nine parishes and many towns, rivers and lakes, perpetuates the religious tenets of its early fathers. Kentucky and Tennessee evidence the vocabulary of the hunter and trapper, Montana and Idaho that of the miner. All the region acquired from Mexico, particularly southern California, maintains in its place names the memory of its Spanish explorers and settlers. There are relatively few Indian names on the Pacific coast, strange to say. North of the Spanish belt capes and towns frequently reflect the loyalty of early settlers to the older states of the Union; for example, Portland, Ore., which was named after Portland, Maine. The story is that two settlers to whom the task of selecting a name for the Oregon settlement fell were easterners, and that they tossed a coin to determine whether the town should be called Boston or Portland.

Nature's Kindness to People of Green Isle
Among other benefits of being an Irishman there is to be listed, it is asserted, an ability to break one's bones with relative impunity, as compared with Englishmen or persons of other races.
At a recent coroner's inquest at Camberwell, England, Dr. Reginald Larkin, a police surgeon familiar with accident cases, took occasion to report his experience that broken bones of the Irish heal more rapidly and strongly than similar fractures; the victims of which are English; thus justifying, perhaps, the Irishman's traditional preference for the shillalah, a plaything relatively harmless to his countrymen.
In all animals the repair of broken bones is the duty of millions of tiny living cells which accumulate at the place where the bone is broken and cement the severed ends together with stiff cartilage-like tissue, which then slowly hardens into bone by deposit of compounds of lime.—Baltimore Sun.

Generous giving of good things to eat and useful articles for practical purposes, with the presence of so many in the house of God made last Sunday's services well worth while. The lasting good will be, not alone in attendance at the church services, but in the cheer the gifts will bring into the lives of those dependent upon the churches for food, shelter and clothing, and the satisfaction in our own lives of having done all in the Master's name. 145 quarts Age with its wistfulness, its memories, its regrets. Youth with its impatience, its hot enthusiasm, its valiant longings. Is age old-fashioned? This sermon is a direct appeal to youth.

"Saint Joan" is the sermon-drama for Sunday night. All the world loves Jean D'Arc. This drama was written by George Bernard Shaw. You will like it.

The Pow-Wow, and the Christian Life Line, are giving the Leaguers a new outlook on their church loyalty. Attendance last Sunday night at League more than doubled that of any meeting so far.
