GOSSIP: Even so the tongue is a little member, and boasteth great things. Behold how great a matter a little fire kindleth!

And the tongue is a fire, a world of iniquity; so is the tongue among our members, that it defileth the whole body, and setteth on fire the course of nature; and it is set on fire of hell.

For every kind of beast and of birds, and of serpents, and of things in the sea is tamed, and hath been tamed of mankind;

But the tongue can no man tame; it is an unruly evil full of deadly poison.

—James III: 5-8.

When it shall be said in any country in the world, "My poor are happy; neither ignorance nor distress is to be found among them; my jails are empty of prisoners, my streets of beggars; the aged are not in want, the taxes are not oppressive; the rational world is my friend, because I am a friend of its happiness"—when these things can be said, then may that country boast of its constitution and its government.—Thomas Paine.

WHY CODDLE THE KILLERS? DOES JOURNALISM NEED $500,000 BUILDING? JUDGE LYLE NO FRIEND OF GANGSTERS.

On October 25th Sam Kesterson shot and killed John Shipp.

The killer surrendered to the sheriff and admitted having done the shooting.

At an inquest held next day the facts leading up to the fatal act were told by witnesses. Kesterson was ordered held without bond.

A few weeks later a grand jury after due deliberation decided that Kesterson be indicted for murder. The man was brought into court and there entered a plea of "not guilty."

He is still in the county jail, fed at the expense of the county.

There are two outstanding facts in this case. John Shipp is dead. Sam Kesterson killed him.

Kesterson may be sane or he may not be mentally responsible. We do not know whether this question will be raised.

We have before this called attention to expensive delays in the administration of justice. Here is a case that illustrates the point.

With court in session and with the facts pertaining to Kesterson's guilt and the reasons leading up to the killing so very plain, why should there be any delay in disposing of this case? There is some talk that it may go over to the spring term. Why?

There will never be more evidence available than now. The community is not inflamed and demanding the blood of the killer. Sam Kesterson will not live long. Why not permit him to enter a plea to a minor murder charge, such as manslaughter, and give him a 1 to 14 year term in the penitentiary?

Delays in cases like this add nothing to respect for law. If there were any doubt as to whether or not Kesterson killed Shipp there might be some excuse for delays and continuances. There is no doubt now nor will there ever be any.

Another case very similar to that of Kesterson is that of William Gray the Kentucky youth who shot and killed Calvin Harris in a cornfield northeast of this city. This youth is in a very unfortunate position. He deliberately shot and killed a fellow workman in a fit of hot-headed anger. His victim is beneath the sod. There has never been any denial that Gray fired the shots that killed Harris. He is under indictment. He is being fed by the county. He pleads not guilty."

Some idiotic legislation passed within recent years provides that in a case like this an attorney may be appointed by the court to defend the accused and he must be paid $250 for conducting such defense. The county does the paying.

Respect for law is created by the certainty with which it will punish the transgressor. Delay in enforcement is no special favor to the accused. It is an imposition on the taxpayers who foot the bills.

Those states have least of crime and racketeering where the law delays least in punishing the offender.

Illinois system of law enforcement is cumbersome. It is apparently inefficient. It permits of too much piffing and delay. The first stumbling block in speedy administration of justice is the grand jury system; next come court continuances and unjustified delays.

When the crime is so clearly apparent as are these two Moultrie county murders, nothing whatever can be gained by delaying the punishment that the law prescribes.

"A movement for a new $500,000 building to house the school of journalism at the University of Illinois was started at the concluding sessions of the Illinois Press Association at Champaign-Urbana. Students in Journalism now are compelled to have their classes in buildings that are devoted to other lines of education. A special committee met with President Harry Woodburn Chase, of the university, and later presented resolutions to seek an appropriation for the building from the general assembly next year."

The above item reaches our desk through the State Capitol News, edited and disseminated among the newspapers of Illinois by Hiram Williamson, secretary of the association.

If the people of Illinois are not aroused to oppose this matter, it will doubtless go across in great style and the taxpayers will be called upon to foot the bill.

On the part of a newspaperman it may be deemed inexplicable to oppose taking a mere $500,000 out of the pockets of Illinois taxpayers to erect another building on the grounds of the University at Urbana. By some it is not deemed good citizenship in Illinois to oppose any appropriation that may be asked for the University. The University is becoming more and more the little tin god to which the people of Illinois pay endless homage. The custodians of this godship, seek to dictate the laws and the customs of this great commonwealth.

If some additional room is needed at the University for the accommodation of journalism students—something we very much doubt—then provide that room. We feel that this can be done without the expenditure of $500,000.

The newspapermen and the university officials seem to feel however that while they are asking they might as well ask for enough.

In 1929 the general assembly appropriated to the University sums: For salaries, office expense, (including printing); travel, operation, repairs, equipment and improvements other than new dwellings $4,765,000 per annum. That same general assembly voted to that same University $2,500,000 for various building projects.

We wonder whether the zeal in the cause of education sometimes does not go beyond the bounds of common sense. Because funds are asked for in the name of education and legislated for the purpose, is no assurance that they are wisely spent.

Educational institutions are worthy only while they humbly serve. When they presume to dictate to those who support them, their usefulness is much curtailed.

We are ashamed of our fellow newspaper men for seeking to take out of the pockets of the tax-payers another half million dollars. We feel that the press ought to protect the people, rather than seek new ways to despoil them.

Hoodlum-infested Chicago has one judge who is not afraid of the racketeers, beer barons and other prosperous vagrants and gangsters of the type that practically control that city.

He is Municipal Judge John H. Lyle. He is fighting a double battle.

He has sentenced hoodlums to the pen. He has ordered others held on bonds so high that there was no chance of their regaining their liberty and making a get-away before date set for trial. He has astounded the Chicago underworld by sentencing some of its most prominent members to the pen on charges of vagrancy. He has unearthed old statutes and laws and made them applicable to the need of the times.

The people of Chicago approve of Judge Lyle. In the recent election when the rest of the Republican ticket was buried under a landslide of votes, Chicago re-elected Judge John Lyle, Republican to his place on the bench.

The Chicago papers have been poking fun at Judge Lyle. In alleged interviews which have been printed, he has been made to appear rather uncouth. He is receiving little if any encouragement from some of the big metropolitan newspapers.

He is receiving less encouragement from the other Chicago judges and members of the bar association. He has even been cited to appear and explain why he deals such summary justice to the hoodlums. The gangsters and racketeers are doing a lot of whining about the treatment accorded in Judge Lyle's court. Shyster lawyers who earn their living by defending the crooks are equally indignant. They say that Judge Lyle demands excessive bail, that he refuses appeals and assesses exorbitant fines and jail sentences.

They are out to "get" Judge Lyle. His fellow judges and the members of the bar association are not in sympathy with the way in which he and his court attaches enforce the law. It is unheard of in Chicago. There are plenty of professional bondsmen who go on gangsters' bonds for a usurious commission. Judge Lyle is ruining their business. Lawyers, who for a share in the gangsters' spoils, seek loopholes in the law to keep their clients free and prosperous, are howling to high heaven over the injustice done them.

Grave and dignified judges, whose dilatory tactics and inefficient administration of the criminal laws, have made Chicago a haven for crooks, are aghast at the action of a judge who really believes that law ought to be enforced without catering to or palavering with the criminal element.

A dozen Judge Lyles on the bench in Chicago could clean up that city. More power to him. We are glad that the people of Chicago elected him. He is the type of Judge that Chicago needs. He has the good sense and the audacity to junk the sacred citadel of legal procedure and precedent and to administer the laws for the benefit of the people instead of for the benefit of the crooks.

He is one one Republican in office of whom we most heartily approve.

¶ Demand for feeder pigs has increased in recent years, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture, principally from Corn Belt farmers and men who make a business of fattening pigs. Garbage-feeding establishments and serum plants also buy feeder pigs. To sell as feeders, pigs should weigh from 75 to 100 pounds, or they may even weigh up to 120 pounds.

¶ Keep the horse's stall dry and well bedded, and clean it daily. Wet, mucky stalls are likely to cause thrush and other foot troubles.

Wahrheit und Dumheit

The Lord put colors into the universe to make it interesting. There's a hint for you when you have your next job of letter heads printed. Why not touch them up with a bit of artistic color?

The resolutions committee reported "Whereas it has pleased Almighty God to remove from our midst etc."

It was all done to do honor to a departed member.

Where did the world ever get the idea that it "pleased Almighty God" to bring sorrow to families by "removing from our midst etc."

It must all harken back to the days of paganism when the gods were pictured as fearsome and jealous gods, pouring out their wrath on mankind. Isn't it about time that this introductory to obituary resolutions be revised and re-edited.

"Oh, I just adore that funny new dance step you have" gurgled the little flapper to her boy friend. "Funny step, boloney, I'm losing my garter."

Eddie Palmer: "Beg pardon sir, but what is your name?"

Hotel guest—"My name, why I just signed the register. Didn't you see my signature?"

Eddie—"Yes I did, that's what aroused my curiosity."

THE PRAYER PERFECT

James Whitcomb Riley
Dear Lord! kind Lord!
Gracious Lord! I pray
Thou wilt look on all I love,
Tenderly today!
Weed their hearts of weariness;
Scatter every care
Down a wake of angel-wings
Winnowing the air.

Bring unto the sorrowing
All release from pain;
Let the lips of laughter
Overflow again;
Share with all the needy
O Divine, I pray.

This vast treasure of content
That is mine today!

In the big city dailies you often see where the widow inserts an "In Memoriam" about a year after her husband died. Maybe she's doing this to show how much she loved him, maybe it is done to tell the world that she's in the market again.

"Lots of confessions are being placed on record in your court" said a fellow to Cadell West the Circuit Clerk the other day. "Do you tell them to 'Go and sin no more' as they do in church."
"No, I don't" said Cadell, "But I tell them to 'go and sign no more'."

Never call a Doctor by his first name. Call him "Doc" and give him the benefit of the free advertising.—Exchange.

Over in our neighboring city of Arcola there is a firm of doctors by the name of Gomel and Butcher. We presume that Doc Gomel is the medical gent and Doc Butcher does the surgical work.

Nearly all men are liars when they brag about the steep hills their cars can climb in high gear. We are, aren't you? In fact, Aren't we all?

"Say Jim, come to our big party tonight. We're going to have a great time. Bring Bill along."

"I'm coming, but I can't bring Bill. He's got a case of diabetes and expects to stay home."

"Aw don't let him do that. Tell him not to be selfish but bring that case along. The boys'll drink anything."

—Apologies to California Cub.

Is your business limping along. It needs a good advertising tonic and not a crutch. The business whose name does not appear in print once in a while is not much of a business. The business whose name appears in print regularly is a builder. What kind are you?

Years ago the good old German mothers used to tell their offspring when they went visiting: "Now Heimie don't dunk at the table."

What does "dunk" mean? Here's a word that is coming in general use in our American language. It means to dip or sop what you're eating in your coffee, or tea or milk. Do you "dunk"? Back in the days when "dunking" was considered rather bad table manners, I roomed with a professor for a time. He "dunked" his coffee cake and proudly boasted that that was the only way to eat coffee cake and that he would "dunk" it even if he were eating it at the President's table.

A Scotchman had lost his wallet containing several hundred dollars. A man found it and about ten days after it was lost returned it. The canny Scot carefully counted the bills.

"Is it all there?" asked the finder, expecting a reward.

"Aye, the mooney's here a' right, but mon, you've had it ten days—what about the intrist'?

"In time of trial" said the lecturer. "what brings us the greatest comfort?"

"An acquittal" promptly responded Bloody Jim.

"Can the dead communicate with the living?" asked the man who wants to know things.

"No, I'm positive they can't" said his friend "I borrowed $5 from a Scotchman the day before he died and I've never heard a word from him."

We once heard of a Scotch undertaker who generally had a few sets of slightly used teeth for sale.

Let us cite you a coincidence—Sullivan, Indiana has been made famous because of the fact that it is the home of Will Hays, the big boss of the moving picture industry. Sullivan, Illinois is becoming famous because of another Hays, whose first name is Everett and who is drawing people from many miles around to his theatre to see the great programs he produces. Looks like Hays and theatres are a winning combination.

Some men smile in the evening,
Some men smile at dawn
But the man worth while
Is the man who can smile
When all of his teeth are gone.

Mr. Fultz" said his friend "is that dog of yours a setter or a pointer?"

Willie was Elected

It was back in the spring of 1912 in Southern Illinois. We needed a printer apprentice. A lad from a small town has been sending us news items weekly. He'd stop in occasionally and get acquainted with folks in the shop.

He was a big, hulking lad from a mining town. One day he confided to us that he wanted to be a printer. He got the job.

He reported for duty. The printer foreman put him to work. Perched high on a printers stool Willie, for that was his name, learned the "case." At the same time he entertained the printers and pressman.

Willie had lots of song in his make-up. He liked to sing and he did sing. The old time Evangelical church hymns were his favorite. While sticking type he sang "Grosser Gott vier loben dich" and "Ein fester Burg is Unser Gott."

He was no speed demon. Type seemed to have no affinity for Willie's clumsy fingers. When he learned that in print shops "Pentecost" Monday and "Good Friday" were not observed by closing the doors and suspending business, he became somewhat doubtful as to whether or not he really wanted to be a printer. In the meantime, we had also developed doubts as to whether it was worth wasting Willie's time and ours in trying to make a printer out of him.

We talked the matter over with him one day, after the Big Boss had suggested it. Willie had changed his mind about becoming a printer. He went back home to his little town and got a job in the mines. This psalm singing miner was not content however to be just one of the crowd. In a certain way he was ambitious. He was also willing to let fellows give him jobs in the miners union they were incompetent or too lazy to do. Willie's willingness made him popular. He was elected secretary of the miners local union. He made a good one. Then to compensate him for being a good fellow, they elected him town clerk. He was proud and efficient in his new duties and continued to mine coal.

A rich farmer was supervisor of his township. It took the votes of the miners to elect him. The miners finally decided that, since they had the votes to elect, they might as well elect a miner. Choice fell on Willie. He was getting better known right along and the farmers who did their trading in his town also liked him. Willie was elected a supervisor. In the same jovial, easy-going way that he had made good in other positions, he also made a good supervisor. He was elected and re-elected.

Then along came a county election. The Democrats were in a sad minority in that particular county but they did have the good sense to present candidates for all county offices. There was a vacant place on the ticket that year. Nobody wanted to run for probate clerk. Somebody, perhaps it was his old Big Boss of printing experience days, suggested that the place be offered to Willie. He was delighted. Sure he'd run! He did and got an inglorious beating.

That did not break his heart. He continued being supervisor. In the spring of 1930 the Democrats again selected a ticket. Chances for success looked rather dubious at that time. Willie was by common consent put on to fill out the place on the ticket that he had filled four years previously. He considered it a compliment to have his party treat him like that, although he doubtless also realized that if some of the "big guns" thought there was a chance of election, he would not have had a chance at the nomination.

Then along came Jay Ham Lewis and swept the state of Illinois as it has never been swept before. The day after election, Willie found that he had been swept into office by a big, substantial majority.

He's capable of filling it. He's a willing worker. He may still sing religious songs, but that is because they are in his heart. Willie is religious. He believes in spreading joy and dispelling gloom.

Willie has arrived. He's got a good job for four years at least. Perhaps for many years more, for usually when people see how he runs an office, they keep him on the job.

We're for him and only sorry that our pathways have parted and that we were not able to vote for him, for he lives in a county far removed from Moultrie.

The Way of Life

BY BRUCE BARTON

CONQUERORS

A great merchant of my acquaintance, who is a friend of Gene Tunney, told me what occurred after the final Dempsey-Tunney fight.

Gene, who never loved the crowds or was greatly loved by them, wanted to get away immediately. His idea of the way to spend an evening of victory was to hide himself with a few companions in a hotel bedroom.

His friend said: "Gene, you could have done that if you had lost. But you won. You are champion of the world. Whether you like it or not you must pay the price of the championship. And part of the price is to be seen by the crowd."

In telling the story the merchant enlarged upon the theme.

"When I became manager of one of our stores I had to do a lot of things I did not like to do," he said. "When I became head of all the stores my unpleasant duties increased. Now I get to the office before nine o'clock every morning and a large part of my day is consumed in duties that are more or less distasteful. The only man who can do as he pleases is the failure. Every step up that you take means that you belong less to yourself and more to other people."

As he spoke I thought of some examples that have come under my own observation.

The partners of Morgan & Co. are the princes of the modern business world. If you stand outside their building on almost any winter's evening you will see the lights burning in at least a part of the private offices. The lower floors are dark. The clerks and accountants have gone home. But almost always some of the partners are still on the job.

I spent a day with Coolidge while he was still President. He was supposed to be on vacation. He fished a little in the morning, but it was the least relaxing job of fishing that I have ever witnessed. A secret service man stood at his elbow and another kept watch from behind the bushes on the bank.

Once, for a week, I travelled in a private car with the president of a great corporation. Every morning we left the car at eight o'clock and called on dealers in their stores. We lunched with a group of them at noon, and had another group with us until midnight. At midnight we went to bed and woke up the next morning in another city and did the whole thing all over again.

It was a tougher week than any laborer ever spent.

The big jobs look attractive from a distance, but when you get closer to them you find a large price tag pinned on each one.

Some of us who have been close enough to read the figures on the tags find it quite easy to reconcile ourselves to remaining quietly and contentedly below.

Main Street Looks at Broadway

NEW YORK—This frantic island is suffering from a bad case of wandering husbands and dislocated wives.

You're not really up in society unless you have Mexican, Parisian and Reno divorces, eight-cylinder alimony and circulating boy friends.

It's becoming difficult for the Manhattan gal to keep count of her ex-husbands. You can imagine her exclaiming, "Oh, yes, I remember you. Weren't we married a couple of years ago?"

Next? . . . This midget craze has got to stop somewhere. First midget golf. Then midget autos. Then midget radios.

The next thing we know a college student will reach into his pocket, pull out a law book, and settle down to an evening of study.

Flappers can already carry around a week-end wardrobe in a vanity case.

Before long father will come home to his evening fireside and delight the wife and children by pulling a new house and lot out from under his overcoat.

—And congress has already renovated the navy so that we can park it in a telephone booth.

Play Something Simple

In numerous apartments you will find divorced or separated husbands returning to have dates with the ex-wife.

I know one such hubby who brings his new girl friend along. It's always a congenial party—especially if the ex-wife's new boy friend is on hand.

There Goes the Bride

The children have been in court so much they talk like Philadelphia lawyers.

And a bride's trousseau is new enough six weeks after the honeymoon for the trip to Paris to get the final decree.

You don't know whether you are married or not until you read the tabloid newspapers. Mrs. Peter Arno says she had to phone Walter Winchell to find out if she and Mr. Arno are still man and wife.

Millions in Miniature

The only thing small about mini-ture golf is the name.

The first National Miniature Golf Show was held here the other day. The stop and sock industry, only a few years old, is said to employ 150,000 persons, representing an investment of $150,000,000 and an annual income of $255,000,000.

Riches in a Niche

Many observers have commented upon the incredibly tiny holes-in-the-wall that do business on New York's busy thoroughfares as candy stores, drink stands, lunch counters, and jewelry stores.

But few realize what amazing wealth is often piled up by operators of such pigeon holes. Fire regulations forced the removal recently of a tiny lunch counter that had done business for years in a 4-by-12 foot corner of a building entrance on 39th street. It was disclosed that the old man who operated the place had been earning $10,000 a year.

I know of one thriving candy and tobacco stand that is jammed between two adjacent columns of a building front. The proprietor has barely room inside to make change and turn the pages of his morning paper. Yet he works there all day—and probably has a tidy pile laid up in some savings bank.

NEW SWANSON VEHICLE

A HILARIOUS COMEDY

Gloria Swanson in a modern comedy with modernistic sets of revolutionary design, smart clothes galore, three new popular songs and a supporting cast headed by Owen Moore, Lew Cody and Margaret Livingston. Such are the ingredients of "What a Widow!" the star's most recent talking and singing picture released by United Artists and booked for showing at the Grand theatre, Sullivan beginning Sunday, for two days.

The story of "What a Widow!" was written for Miss Swanson by Josephine Lovett. Allan Dawn who handled the filming of several of the star's outstanding pictures for Paramount several years ago was director.

In the title role Miss Swanson appears as a young and attractive widow, filled with an ambition to make up for years of boredom, by seeking romance in Paris. While Owen Moore has the featured role as a young attorney he finds himself with considerable competition for among those eager to aid the widow in her determination to live and learn are a night club dancer, a Russian violinist and a Spanish baritone, played by Lew Cody, Gregory Gaye and Herbert Braggiotti. The cast also includes, in addition to Miss Livingston, Adrienne D'Ambricourt, William Holden, Nella Walker and Daphne Pollard.

Miss Swanson's clothes establish a new high mark of magnificence and the wardrobe also is the most comprehensive she has ever assembled for a single picture, the widow Tam having been provided with costumes suitable for every conceivable sort of social activity. The various ensembles, including jewelry and other accessories, were specially designed for the picture, many by the star herself.

The modernistic sets which reveal a trend of design new to the screen are the work of Paul Nelson of Paris who was signed as art director for this production.

Vincent Youmans Broadway composer responsible for such hits as "Hallelujah", "The One Girl" and the music of "No, no, Nanette" and "Hit the Deck" wrote Miss Swanson's songs with lyrics by George Wagner and J. Russell Robinson. The numbers are "Love Is Like a Song", "Say Oui Cherie" and "You're the One". Special orchestration were written by Dr. Hugo Felix and Josiah Zuro acted as musical director during recording.

FINAL TABULATION OF VOTES SHOWS THAT TAX AND BOND ISSUE FAILED

Information from the office of the Secretary of State shows that six of the special propositions voted on at the November 4th election carried. Two were defeated. The proposition to have the state issue $14,000,000 in bonds the proceeds of which were to be used to create state forest preserves, playgrounds, etc., was defeated. It received 886,971 for to 869,434 against. While this was a majority of the votes cast in this proposition, it was not the necessary majority of the total number of votes cast in the election of state legislators, which was 2,007,303.

The Emmerson Tax Relief proposition was soundly defeated by a vote of 371,812 for to 513,861 against. Such proposition to carry would have needed a majority of the total vote cast in the election which was 2,332,696.

The two propositions to make it possible for women to serve as jurors both carried.

The votes on the Prohibition referendum was as follows: To repeal state prohibition enforcement act—For 1,060,004. Against 523,130. Repeal of 18th Amendment—For 1,054,432, against 551,741; Modification of national prohibition act—For 968,625, Against 506,973.

The final returns show that about 35% of the voters were not enough interested in the prohibition questions to vote either For or Against.

CAN THIS BE TRUE?

The story is told that a Kentucky mountaineer raised 17 sons. All had reached voting age and went to the polls on Nov. 4th.

The father sadly told a friend "We all voted the Democratic ticket, but one?"

"And what caused that one to vote different?"

"Well you see I raised my boys all good Christians and Democrats, but Jim, that dern cuss, got ambitious and learned to read."

$1 FOR LIMESTONE PAYS BACK $7.50 IN BETTER YIELD

Urbana, Ill. Dec. 2—Farmers who can't spend $1 in order to make $7.50 are the only ones entitled to say that they can't afford to buy limestone to sweeten their acid soils, according to C. M. Linsley, soils extension specialist of the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois. Every $2 invested in a ton of limestone for acid soil will return $15 or more in more efficient crop yields, he said.

"Not being able to afford it, is a reason often given by farmers for delaying the use of limestone. This sometimes is an honest reason. The farmer may not have the ready cash or he may not be able to borrow. Bankers, however, would usually rather loan money to the farmer for limestone than for any other purpose. They know that an investment in limestone is a sound one and one of the most profitable that a farmer can make.

"Many of the farmers who are using limestone were compelled either to go into debt or save and sacrifice in order to buy their first carload. They were willing, however because they realized that this was a sure and profitable way of increasing their income for the future."

"When a farmer reaches the point where he feels that he cannot afford to buy limestone, that is just the time when he can afford not to buy limestone," was the comment of one limestone farmer. Another said, "If some oil stock salesman would approach these farmers who say that they cannot afford to buy limestone and offer them stock in an oil well which was guaranteed to return $15 for every $2 invested, most of them would manage to get together at least $100."

WHY DOES UNCLE SAM HAVE TO BUY LAND IN DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA?

When what now constitutes the District of Columbia was ceded to the federal government as the site for a capital, jurisdiction over the territory passed but ownership of the land and other property was still retained by the individual and private owners. The state of Maryland previously had jurisdiction over the region as part of the state, but the state did not own the land; in other words, the land was not public domain. Accordingly the federal government must acquire from its owners any land on which it wishes to build federal buildings. For instance, when the United States purchased Louisiana the ownership of the various buildings in New Orleans did not pass to the government; they remained the property of the owners. Only jurisdiction over the region passed from France to the United States.—The Pathfinder.

IDEAL GIFT FOR THE BOY

What glorious adventures boys between the ages of ten and twenty have reading THE AMERICAN BOY—YOUTH'S COMPANION! As if by magic, this well-known magazine carries boys to distant parts of the world, introduces them to strange people, lets them experience queer customs and revel in the adventures of foreign lands.

In a single issue, a boy will battle the frozen Northland with sled and dog team, cross Indian-haunted plains in a prairie schooner, zoom over war-torn lands in an army plane or on dangerous routes with a U. S. mail pilot, hunt wild animals in Africa, atop the swaying back of an elephant, go cruising in a battleship, fight Arab raiders with the Foreign Legion and participate in many other thrilling experiences that comes to readers of THE AMERICAN BOY—YOUTH'S COMPANION.

It is such experiences as these that sharpen a boy's wits, kindle his imagination, strengthen his character, develop his understanding of the world in which he lives and of the people that inhabit it. Here, indeed, is the ideal gift for that boy in whom you are interested—that son, nephew, cousin, neighbor, or, perhaps, the son of a business associate. An attractive gift card bearing your name will be sent to the boy if you request it with your order. Then every time the mailman brings the magazine to his door, the boy will think of you gratefully.

Subscription prices are only $2 for one year and $3.00 for three years. Mail your order direct to THE AMERICAN BOY—YOUTH'S COMPANION, 550 W. Lafayette Blvd., Detroit, Michigan. Service on your subscription will start with whichever issue you specify.

In order to raise our score on part 1 a gymnasium is needed and some change in our ventilating system, and the play ground will have to be surfaced making it possible to use the play ground during all kinds of weather.

To raise our score on part 2 a school nurse is necessary.

To raise part 3 the services of a nurse and a physical education teacher is needed. Toilets needed on both floors. Hot and cold running water.

We feel that our score of 187 out of a possible 300 is good considering the 300 to be perfection. By making a few corrections we can raise our score several points.
