75TH YEAR NO. 45

Partly Approved

Sheets Insists That Bethany Agreement be Fulfilled. Bruce and Kirkville Projects Approved. Cadwell Gets 133 Connection.

Frank T. Sheets, state highway engineer, in a letter to Paul L. Chipps, county clerk, gives his department's approval in part to the action of the Moultrie County Board of supervisors plan for the use of gas tax money to improve secondary roads in this county.

Mr. Sheets in his letter calls attention to the agreement made with Bethany in 1930 pertaining to a state aid road from that village west to connect up with Route 169 on the county line. The agreement which is part of the records of the Bethany road case is cited in full in Mr. Sheet's letter.

Bethany's Case

A short history of the case may refresh the memory of the reader. When the state was ready to build Route 132 from Sullivan to Dalton City, the Bethany people asked that this road be built west out of their village to connect with Route 169 and thence proceed along that route to Dalton City. So emphatic was Bethany in its contention that the road work was delayed several years. The state

LOCAL FIRM GETS COMPLIMENTARY NOTICE IN "AMERICAN MILLER"

To get a mention in the big trade papers is an ambition that most everybody in business has. When such mention is as complimentary as that which the Sullivan Grain Company received in the November issue of "The American Miller" it is worthy of reproduction in "The Progress" so that the home folks can also read it.

Says "The American Miller": "Perhaps I made mention once before in this column of the Sullivan Grain Company of Sullivan, Ill.,—maybe not. At any rate, there are quite a number of successful poultry feeders in that part of the country and the Sullivan Grain Company makes a real effort to serve that trade. I doubt if there's better all-around mill mixes sold the chicken men in the middle west. Congratulations to you, Mr. Tabor!"

Howell Must Pay

Jury in Circuit Court Finds in Favor of Wife and Against Husband. Only One Jury Trial. Court Adjourned Until Friday (Today).

The only trial case that was heard in the Circuit Court this week was that of Helen B. Howell vs. Rupert E. Howell. The action was based on Mrs. Howell's attempt to collect $1500 and interest from her husband.

The Howell family has had an unfortunate series of law suits. She is now supposed to be getting alimony from her husband, as the result of a separate maintenance action decided in her favor.

The suit heard this week was also decided in Mrs. Howell's favor by a jury consisting of Murray Shaw, William Grant, Geo. Hoke, V. R. Osborn, John N. Johnson, Will F. Walker, Marion Trabue, Leonard Kirkwood, Denzel Powell, Loren Rhodes, Richard Delahunty and Fred Elder.

Mrs. Howell was represented by Cochran & Sentel and Mr. Howell by Attorney Miller of Decatur. The plaintiff contended that about five years ago she inherited $1500. That she loaned this to her husband and that he has failed to return same. It was shown that the money was used to purchase an automobile for the Howell family.

The plaintiff also was permitted to bring to the attention of the jury a paragraph contained in Mr. Howell's answer to the Separate Maintenance action in 1929. In that paragraph Mr. Howell stated that he had in his possession $1500 that his wife had loaned to him and that he was willing to pay same to her at any time, furthermore that he had never refused to pay same or denied owing it to her.

The jury in finding for Mrs. Howell decided that her husband owed $1476.56. This amount was arrived at by deducting one-fourth

ARMISTICE Day ought to be a day dedicated to the ideals of peace. It was to assure peace that the blood of millions was shed in the World War. This is a neighborhood world. Any war, anywhere, is like a fire fanned by wind—a wind of hatred, jealousy, misunderstanding. Between world peace and world war, stands one agency that is functioning efficiently. That agency is the League of Nations—the brain child of the immortal Woodrow Wilson—his gift to a grief-stricken world—his promise to the mothers bereft of their sons, that a carnage of bloodshed shall never again prevail. The forces of ignorance, prejudice, war-profiteering and greed, are bitter against the League of Nations. But it has proven its worth—may it grow in strength and may Divine Providence lead and guide it so its labors shall always be blessed with Peace on Earth, Good Will Toward Men.

Following these ceremonies there will be a football game on Victory field between Lovington and Sullivan. Arrangements have been made so that the net proceeds of the game will be donated to the charity relief fund. A big crowd is expected at the services and the game.

THIRTEEN GRANDSONS; NO GRANDDAUGHTERS

When Charles Leonard, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Shasteen appeared to gladden their home Thursday of last week he became the 13th grandson of Mr. and Mrs. James Shasteen. This would not be strange in itself, were it not for the fact that no granddaughters have come.

In the families of the children of Mr. and Mrs. James Shasteen the son score is as follows: Mr. and Ansel Wright, 1 son; Mr. and Mrs. Chester Horn, 2 sons; Mr. and Mrs. Millard Shasteen 7 sons; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Shasteen 3 sons. Mr. Schilling will speak to the public in the Court room at 1:30. It is expected that a large number will want to hear him and for this reason the court room has been secured for the occasion. The business meeting of the Farm Bureau will be held in the morning beginning at 9:30.

E. NELSON ROAD FUNDS OUT OF DEBT; HAVE NO NEED TO ANTICIPATE

Commissioner Shim McDaniel of East Nelson township reports that for the first time in many years the finances of his office are in good shape. There is money enough on hand so that there will be no need to issue any anticipation warrants. He has paid off all indebtedness which was against the office when he took charge. During the past summer 20,000 more gallons of oil than usual were used on township roads; during his time in office 66,000 feet of bridge lumber has been bought and paid for. Two tractors have been paid for and the roads are in excellent condition.

Not Scored Against

Sullivan Football Team Blanked Arthur in Game There Friday. The Crucial Test Comes Today When the Boys Tackle Unde-feated Monticello.

(Samuel Bolin)

Sullivan took a decisive victory over Arthur last Friday. It was Sullivan's third victory over Arthur in as many years. The game was played on a wet field and gave Sullivan fans a chance to see their team play on a field which tends to slow up a speedy backfield. Freeman made his usual long gains and Dwyer skirted the ends for his usual long gains and Dwyer skirted the ends for a couple of touchdowns.

"Pete" McDavid thrilled the crowd by intercepting a pass in mid-field and racing for a touchdown through the whole Arthur team and Sullivan's blocking. Baker of Arthur showed that he is one of the best fullbacks in the Okaw Valley this season. Had Baker had better support from his team Arthur might have scored.

*giving all diligence, add to your faith virtue, and to virtue knowledge

And to knowledge temperance; and to temperance patience; and to patience godliness.

And to godliness brotherly kindness; and to brotherly kindness charity.

HAVE YOU LOST FAITH?

When faith in God goes, man, the thinker, loses his greatest thought. When faith in God goes, man, the worker, loses his greatest motive. When faith in God goes, man, the sinner, loses his strongest help. When faith in God goes, man, the sufferer, loses his securest refuge. When faith in God goes, man, the lover, loses his fairest vision. When faith in God goes, man, the mortal, loses his only hope.

Since the Days of Adam and Eve

"Eve, my dear, we are face to face with a serious depression" said Adam as he and his fig-leaf clad wife walked out of the garden of Eden. But Adam and Eve overcame the depression and lived to be fruitful and multiply. So we see that in the early biblical history of mankind, all was not so rosy, but times of depression came and passed.

And think how depressed the aged patriarch Abraham must have been when the voice of Jehovah came to him and commanded that he offer his son Isaac as a sacrifice. But Abraham did not let depression overcome him. He had faith in the future and that faith was justified.

Jacob and his sons lived in a land where famine came. Jacob had been depressed too when his son Joseph disappeared. The other boys had sold him to Egyptian traders. The famine depression was appalling. Starvation for man and beast was staring Jacob and his tribe in the face. But there was advertising even in those days and in some way word had come that down in Egypt there was grain. Joseph was there, though his father and brothers knew it not. Joseph had seen the depression coming and had been given power by Pharaoh to store a lot of grain. And so the tribe of Jacob drifted into Egypt and the depression for them was over, for a time at least, for they were permitted to settle in the rich land of Goshen.

But wherever you find humans, you'll find a depression by and by and there came to rule in Egypt pharaohs who "knew not Joseph" for Joseph was dead and gone. And then a record depression came on the descendants of Jacob and for many generations they were slaves to their Egyptian masters. But a peculiar thing about a depression is that it can't continue for all time. Along came Moses and with the aid of his brother Aaron and sister Miriam he led the enslaved Israelites out of the land of bondage. The depression was over, although Moses had his hands full to keep the morale-weakened slaves from going back to serve their masters.

In the Land of Promise the descendants of Abraham flourished. They had great booms and prosperity and Solomon and some of the other big shots had lots of wives and lots of money. But their Wall street or whatever they may have called it went bust. Dark days came upon them and they went as captives to neighboring kingdoms. How was that for a depression? Not so bad, for it blew over and some of the boys drifted back, rebuilt the Temple and re-established the religion of their fathers.

Were the old prophets of Israel depressed? You know it. Read what Jonah had to say. Get an eyeful of real depression by scanning the Lamentations of Job. And there was a man who contended with a depression that was a real depression!

Always there was hope, however. There must have been something like Rotary or Kiwanis in those days to eat noon-day luncheons, sing songs and bouy the spirits of the people. Maybe they had something similar to Pep meetings or Lion clubs. Anyway they always managed to get along some way or other and no depression ever depressed them permanently.

Then let us look at another early booster. Paul of Tarsus. There was a man who knew not the meaning of the word depression. He was ship-wrecked, he was stoned, he was beaten, he was imprisoned. Friends turned against him, he was misunderstood and maligned. But was he depressed? Not so you could notice it. He kept right on the job and laid the foundation of the greatest structure the world has ever known—the Church of the Living God.

So when you feel that depression has hit you—don't get peevish and grouchy. Why should it have passed you by? Most anybody else that ever amounted to shucks had a few husky, disagreeable depressions to fight through before the world took notice of him.

History is a story of depressions. There was Alexander who was depressed because he had no more worlds to conquer. Nero tried to lift his depressed spirits by fiddling while Rome burned. Napoleon is notorious as being a man of deep fits of depression. In our own young America we have had quite a variety of depressions. Do you think that

Washington at Valley Forge was in a state of easy prosperity? Don't you think that Abraham Lincoln's life experiences were depressing at times? There were depressions before and after the Civil war. There must have been some sort of depression in Cleveland's day and even Teddy Roosevelt could not, with all his strenuous efforts, escape a depression during his administration.

A depression is just a sort of financial fog in which we wander around seeking a way out and suddenly, we're out in God's sunshine again and wonder how we ever could have lost faith. We knew the sunshine was there all the time.

So cheer up. Look this depression squarely in the face and highly resolve, that so far as you are concerned, it will not lick you. Be like the man who was unpopular with his lodge. One night the boys trying to impress on him his unpopularity, handed him a bag of lemons. Was he put out? Not at all. He opened a lemonade stand next morning and sold lemonade all day, even to the boys who had been so unkind to him.

There never was a depression that did not do somebody some good. Look around, maybe this depression is just Old Man Opportunity knocking on your door.

Our forefathers knew the danger of excess of government and were bent upon so simplifying, limiting and checking it, that it must forever remain a servant and could never become a master. Most bad government has grown out of too much government. It is a sort of inherent characteristic of all government, as of all conscious organisms, yearly and almost daily, to take to itself more and more jurisdiction, to increase the force and weight and numbers of officialdom, until at last, the structure becomes top-heavy, and must fall by its own weight, or else, upon the other hand—remaining administratively efficient—it holds the people in servile subjection.—John Sharp Williams.

What Must You Have to be Rich?

What are riches? Is it lots of money, lots of property, etc? That is what most folks think riches are.

We are rather doubtful about this matter and we'll tell you why.

Our interpretation of riches is peace, contentment and happiness. Now if wealth can bring that, why wealth is riches.

But let us cite you some personal observations.

A man who is wealthy. He has lots of land and lots of money. He has spent a lifetime accumulating it. Age has come on and if ever he is to enjoy any happiness it is now, for his days are numbered. But is he happy? Hardly! Land values have gone down; his money is invested in securities that have depreciated in value. His tenants cannot pay rent. His children need help. They are not getting along so well. His every waking hour is an hour of worry. All his property, all his wealth is bringing him misery instead of happiness. All his life has been spent in accumulating riches. It has been his idol. Now, if he'd have sense enough to realize it, he would see that his idol has betrayed him. For a lifetime of unstinted effort, what has it brought him?

We know another man. He, too worked hard. He raised a family. He never could accumulate much, but he liberally shared what he had with those in need. He gave much time and much effort toward his church and his community affairs.

Then came a day when it became necessary for him to become a member of a lodge home. Cheerfully he accepted what the Lord had evidently provided for him. Life to him still was good. He had no earthly wealth to worry him. But he had a wealth of another kind. His nature had developed spiritually. He believed in the goodness of God and in his ever-loving care.

He looked into the future with eyes of a soul unafraid. He had loved and served his fellow men. He never had tried to become rich. Perhaps he never gave the matter much thought. Perhaps some of the things that he would have been called upon to do would not have harmonized with his conception of religion. His pride is not his wealth—it is the well-being of the home church, even though he can visit it but seldom.

But his soul is overflowing with real riches. He is at peace with God and man. He is happy and contented. He has found those things that are a boon in old age. His riches are of a kind that bring joy and not worry.

Now which of these two men, my friends, has achieved that richness that is a real blessing?

The ideal of government as expressed by Thomas Jefferson is embodied to a certain extent in the following words: It was his view that government is not an end, but a means—a means to defend and increase the liberty and happiness of the men and women living in the country governed, who, however, are the safest, and the only rightful guardians of their own private concerns; that government is good in proportion as it is responsible to and supervisable by the people.

EVEN THE BANKER IS A LONG-SUFFERING PERSON

"You appear to be busy here," said the garage man customer to the manager as they watched the bank lobby bustling with activity. "Yes," replied the manager, "it is something like your business—a lot of it is just free air. Do you see that girl standing at the teller's wicket holding up the line? Well, she comes in every day about this time for change for 'X' up the street. X does his business at Y bank but it is more convenient here for change. We handle a lot of change here, takes time and costs money in express charges. No, we don't turn them down. It isn't done. Did you see that old fellow going into the safety deposit vault? That is the third time the guard has let him in today. He is out and in like that every day. He pays the same rental as the ordinary customer who clips his coupons twice a year. No, we don't make any special charge. It isn't done. There is old Smith at the ledger wicket asking for another check book. He gets a couple a week and writes about two checks a month. No one knows what he does with the check books. Just loses them. No, we don't make a charge for them. It isn't done, you know. There is Jones over there taking up the accountant's time to get a quotation on a draft on Italy. No, he won't buy a check. He will use our rate to check up his own bank. Charge for the service? No, it isn't done. Did you see the lady who just went out? She opened an account yesterday, deposited $50. She got a pass book and used up a bunch of stationery and is closing the account today. No, we don't charge anything extra. It isn't done." Tell me," said the garage man, "Why isn't it done?" "That's just it," said the manager. "Why isn't it done?"

HOW FROST COMES

The chief weather signs preceding a frost are a clear sky, a temperature of 40 degrees F. or lower, and little wind, say Weather Bureau experts. The principal requirement for frost when the temperature is not too high, is abundant radiation of the heat from the earth, with but little return radiation. A moderate wind usually prevents frost by mixing the warmer air above with the colder surface air. When heavy lower clouds cover the sky they send back much radiation to the earth below, keeping it fairly warm and preventing frost.

Hunters and sportsmen have been killing from 12 to 15 million ducks a year. This year a kill of half that number would be too many.

MAIN STREET LOOKS AT BROADWAY BY OBSERVER

Main street—

A $4,000 Pane

A few weeks ago an automobile tire acted as a sling shot, throwing a stone through a window pane thirteen and one-half by seventeen feet belonging to Altman's department store. The huge window went out of business, pronto.

The entire country was combed for a duplicate, without result. Cables to Europe uncovered a plate of the right size in the warehouse of the Union Commercial des Glaceries in Belgium. It was ordered rushed to New York by the Belgenland.

Eighteen men, specially trained in the art of handling glass, watched while the huge pane was swung out of the hold of the Belgenland over the special truck waiting on the pier to transport the glass to Altman's. Just as the crane hovered over the truck with its $4,000 burden, chain slipped.

Altman's spent a lot more money on special cables.

Socialist Cafeteria

There's an expatriated Russian in this town who is a craftsman in wonderful furniture. He sells to Mrs. Payne Whitney and others who do not have to look at the price tag. Few of those who deal with him know whether he is for or against the Soviet.

The other day, however, he happened to drop in on him around the lunch hour and he invited us to his own, particular Sovietized cafeteria located on East 46th Street. He explained to us that was different. That it catered largely to the "middle-class." It was a revelation. The food was better prepared, of greater variety and the prices were about the same as at most cafeterias above the level of the "one-armed" food places. Most of the patrons had a distinctly artistic look, like painters and artists.

One novel feature of the place was the fact that the customers picked up their trays and litter after eating and carried them to a shelf behind which dish-washers were busy. Just one more step in self-service.

Run on Co-Operative Plan

The socialist cafeteria, we found, is owned by the diners themselves. They pay their checks in the regular way, except that they write their number on it. At the end of the year the profits are distributed among the owners in proportion to the amount of patronage they have given the place.

Business Men

One of the most successful of the street beggars here is a certain blind man. For months he has been accompanied by a friendly little Boston bull dog. A certain appealing look in the dog's eyes won many a dime.

Lately, however, the blind man found a wonderfully productive stand on steps leading down to the subway. The crowds were herded close to him and many of those forced to jostle him felt obliged to drop something in his hat.

The dog was hidden by the crowd became more of an asset than a liability. He ceased to earn a profit over his keep. Just recently we saw a legless man on the street begging from passers-by. With him was the blind man's dog. Apparently a sale had been effected.

WINTERING BEES

Important considerations for wintering bees are: plenty of young bees, a good queen, enough good-quality stores, sound hives, and protection from cold and dampness. A colony needs from 25 to 40 pounds of stores. If there is not enough honey of good quality for the bees to consume during the winter, sirup made of granulated sugar is safe and just as good as honey. Provide the stores early enough so it will not be necessary to feed or open the colony after cold weather. Do not leave honeydew honey in the hives, as it may cause dysentery. Honeys which have a high percentage of gums (most tree honeys) are not so desirable for winter stores.

At Sunset

By Margaret Sangster.
It isn't the thing you do dear,
It's the thing you've left undone
Which gives you a bit of headache
At the setting of the sun;
The tender word forgotten,
The letter you did not write,
The flower you might have sent dear,
Are the haunting ghosts tonight.

The stone you might have lifted
Out of a brother's way,
The bit of heartsome counsel
You were hurried too much to say:

The loving touch of the hand, dear
The gentle and winsome tone.
That you had no time or thought for,
With troubles enough of your own.

The little act of kindness,
So easily out of mind;
Those chances to be angels,
Which every mortal finds;
They come in night and silence,
Each chill reproachful wraith,
When hope is faint and flagging,
And a blight has dropped on faith.

For life is all too short, dear,
And sorrow is all too great,
To suffer our slow compassion,
That tarries until too late.
And it's not the thing you do, dear
It's the thing you leave undone,
Which gives you the bit of heart-ache
At the setting of the sun.

WAY OF LIFE

By Bruce Barton

WINDOW DRESSING DUMMIES

On my first business job it was necessary for me to call one day at the office of a bankrupt company which had sold in small units all over the country.

Its literature had followed the familiar pattern, pointing out how much you would be worth if you invested one dollar in telephone stock in 1895, or if Ford had asked you to lend him a nickel in 1900.

Perhaps the officers were irresponsible rather than deliberately crooked. They were sure that their enterprise was destined to make fortunes for every one associated with it and they backed their judgment with their own money. But that did not mitigate the sufferings of the people who crowded the office on the day of my call.

A station agent and his faded little wife from a country town in Pennsylvania. They had invested $15,000, their savings of a lifetime.

A poor preacher from South Carolina. The $6,000 which he had saved by incredible economies had been his only bulwark against the poorhouse.

A school teacher; a dentist; and many men whose gnarled hands and bent backs were eloquent of heavy burdens. They wept; they cursed; they threatened, but it did no good. Not one of them ever recovered a cent.

Walking away from all that tragedy, I resolved never to be associated with any company which financed itself by selling stocks to the public, not even if George Baker were the president and J. P. Morgan the sales manager.

Everybody whose name gets advertised a little is invited to go on boards of directors. It has happened even to me. I have a nice form letter that says "no."

To be on the board of a business with which you are not intimately connected means that you attend a meeting once a month, vote on a lot of things that you know nothing about, receive $10 or $20, and go away. The public, reading your name, believes that you are directing. Actually you are not.

In England most boards are made up of the men actually conducting the business. Once a year the chairman has to stand up before the stockholders and answer questions about every detail of the operations.

In this country the habit of being a director is a piece of business vanity. A man with a lot of directorships after his name thinks of himself as a "big shot."

Many of these famous dummies have lost money and sleep during this depression. It will be interesting to see whether the return of good times will not bring many resignations.

Directors should direct. Window dressing dummies should go out.

Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Wright celebrated their Golden wedding anniversary Tuesday, Nov. 1st.

Wesley Elder died Wednesday morning.

On Nov. 1st Rev. Hopper finished his ninth year as pastor of The First Christian church.

Wahrheit Und Dumheit

If the ladies can have bakery and candy sales, why don't some of the men wake up and put on tobacco sales? Think of a nice stand with a few good looking men in charge saying—"Here mister. Buy your chewing tobacco, cigarettes, (all kinds) cigars, pipe tobacco, etc., etc." Now there's an idea. It's not copyrighted. Go to it boys!

"Sleeping" says Eddie Palmer does me no good. I always feel worse in the morning when I have to get up than I did when I went to bed.

The new foreman's name was Bill Dodgin. One day before he'd been on the job very long he saw a number of men sitting in the shade of a building, resting and enjoying themselves. He sauntered over that way. One of the men spoke up: "Hullo stranger, who are you?"

"I'm Dodgin, the foreman" said Bill.

"You don't say. That's just what we're doin' too, so come over and join us."

Joe Pound and lady friend were driving in Decatur. He brushed a fellow's fender. Both got out and took a look at it. "Well, what about it?" said Joe. "Oh, I guess $2.00 will fix it" said the owner of the other car. And then Joe turned on his full powers of eloquent persuasion and finally compromised the damage at 50c. As the fellow drove away Joe remarked "Huh, if I'd talked just a little more, I believe he'd paid me." Big city people must be ever on their guard against these country boys, or they'll sicker 'em.

Here are two college stories:

The girls' dean was investigating a report that the men in the fraternity next door, forgot to lower their shades while dressing and undressing.

The dean looked out of the window indicated and then remarked "Girls, you must be mistaken. I can't see anything."

Whereat one of the girls remarked: "Oh yes, you can. But you've got to stand on a chair."

Shades and curtains of a men's fraternity house had been sent out to be cleaned.

Next morning a note arrived from the girls dormitory nearby. It read: "Get some shades or curtains. We don't want a course in anatomy."

The young man who happened to be in sent a reply: "The course is optional."

A local family had just installed a radio. The little darling of the house was saying her prayers. At the close she surprised her parents by adding "Please stand by for announcement God. Another prayer will be said at this time tomorrow night."

Gale Carmine was rehearsing a church chorus. They were singing "Like a tree that's planted by the waters, etc." After a few tries Gale got exasperated and declared: "Now look here folks, you're getting it about right, but please put a little more spirit in 'the waters'."

MUCH TOO MUCH

Too much oats and too much wheat,
Too much corn, and too much heat,
Too much cotton and too much oil,
Too many hours that we don't toil;
Too many highways, too many cars,
Too many people behind the bars;
Too much poverty too much wealth,
Too many people with poor health;
Too much politics, too much booze
Too many wearing high heeled shoes;
Too much loafing, too many bets,
Too many failing to pay their debts,
Too many spending their dough on gas,
Too much taking Europe's sass,
Too many living on high heeled means
Too many buying canned corn and beans;
Too many candidates after our votes,
Too many having their washing done;
Too many playing bridge for fun,
Too many looking to Uncle Sam,
Too many people don't give a damn;
Too many poets, too much prose,
Too many girls without under-clothes;
Too much buying of goods on time,
Too many people don't save a dime
Too much lady, too much play,
Too many politicians on big pay;
Too much taxes, too much spent,
Too many folks spend every cent;
Too much fun, too much ease,
Too many rips in the family B. V. D's;
Too much reforms, too much law;
Ain't it the darndest mess you ever saw!

Advance Dope Grand Theatre

Join the crowd. See "Monkey Business" at The Grand on either Thursday or Friday nights of this week.

Too Many Cooks

Saturday night the attraction is something better than usual. In the first place you'll see the second installment of "Adventures in Africa." The first chapter last week proved interesting and thrilling.

The star performer in "Too Many Cooks" is Bert Wheeler of the Wheeler and Woolsey team. With Wheeler are Dorothy Lee and Roscoe Ates, that funny stuttering man. Wheeler and Miss Lee made a big hit as the "love birds" in Rio Rita and they've been going strong ever since.

Let us tell you about Roscoe Ates:

He started out in the theatrical world a poorly paid violinist in Chickasha, Oklahoma. Leaving there he toured the south in medicine shows, circuses and traveling stock companies. Several years ago he organized a vaudeville act with his daughter, Dorothy Darling, and police dog, Judge. His hilarious stammering over the footlights caught the ear of film producers, and he moved to Hollywood. He has been featured in a score of films, among them "Billy the Kid," "Check and Double Check," "Remote Control," and Radio Pictures' epic-drama "Cimarron." In the latter he was a sensation as Jess Riskey, the bibulous printer.

Al Smith, not Starring

Then along on Sunday and Monday comes Buster Keaton in "Side-walks of New York." We looked over the cast carefully but Al Smith and Jimmy Walker are not in it. Doubtless it is not a true version of "East side, West side, etc." But with the mirthful Buster we find Anita Page, Cliff Edwards, Oscar Apfel et al. Buster is a reformer on the great East Side and the many adventures he finds will furnish you with a pleasant evening's enjoyment. You'll like the roughneck boys that Buster plays with in this great show. Also a good detective story "The Burglar to the Rescue" a Crazy Kat cartoon and News.

Thomas Meighan

Here's a name to conjure with among the females who like classy actors. In "Skyline" this man Meighan has a part wonderfully well adapted to his ability. With him are Hardie Albright, Myrna Loy, Maureen O'Sullivan and Donald Dillaway.

Skyline is a great old story. It will be shown at the Grand Tuesday and Wednesday. There will also be a comedy and sport novelty. Would you like to know more about Mr. Meighan? Here 'tis:

Born in Pittsburgh. St. Mary's College graduate. Went tramping shortly after graduation. Soon was playing with David Warfield. From this eminence he rose higher, filling leading role in "The College Widow" in London, and then starring in "Broadway Jones," in America. Entered movies and captured world's attention in "The Miracle Man." After continuous seasons of highest salary in pictures, he retired. Two years of this fed him up with leisure. Returned to screen in Fox talking picture, "Young Sinners."

See William Farnum

Dear child, do you know what a bar room is? Come to the Grand and have a look at a picture taken from a storybook? Years ago "Ten nights in a Barroom" was a classic. Every stock company featured it, every prohibitionist approved of it and every drinker scoffed at it. But there is a human interest in this play that time and conditions cannot erase. It tells of the regeneration of a father through the love and faith of his little girl. William Farnum plays the leading part. Thursday and Friday nights of next week.

Extra! Extra! Special

Manager Hays just came rushing into this office, all out of breath and bursting to tell the great news that on Tuesday and Wednesday nights of next week, as a special added feature, the 3000 feet of film taken of the 4th annual home-coming of the Sullivan Township High school will be shown. No increase in price of admission. You may be in this picture. Better come and see. Have a look at how home folks act when they act naturally. They were shot without knowing it.

RALPH BOWERS WON SECOND IN SPEAKING AT U. OF. S. CALIFORNIA

Ralph Bowers, Sullivan senior at the University of Southern California, was today (Fri., Oct. 30) announced as second place winner of the 17th annual Bowen cup contest for extemporaneous speakers.

Open to all undergraduates of the Trojan institution the Bowen contest is staged annually to bring to the front the speaking talent of the campus. Six large silver cups, donated by Judge Bowen, and S. C. alumnus, are awarded each year.

Contestants draw lots for their subject and given two hours in which to prepare it. Because of the large number of contestants an elimination is held two days before the final at which time ten students participate.

Bowers' winning subject was "The Financial Depression in the United States; Its Cause." Thirty-four students entered the contest this year. The Sullivan student is a senior in the S. C. College of Letters, Arts and Sciences.

SULPHURIC ACID EATS METAL

Avoid Sulphur in Gasoline

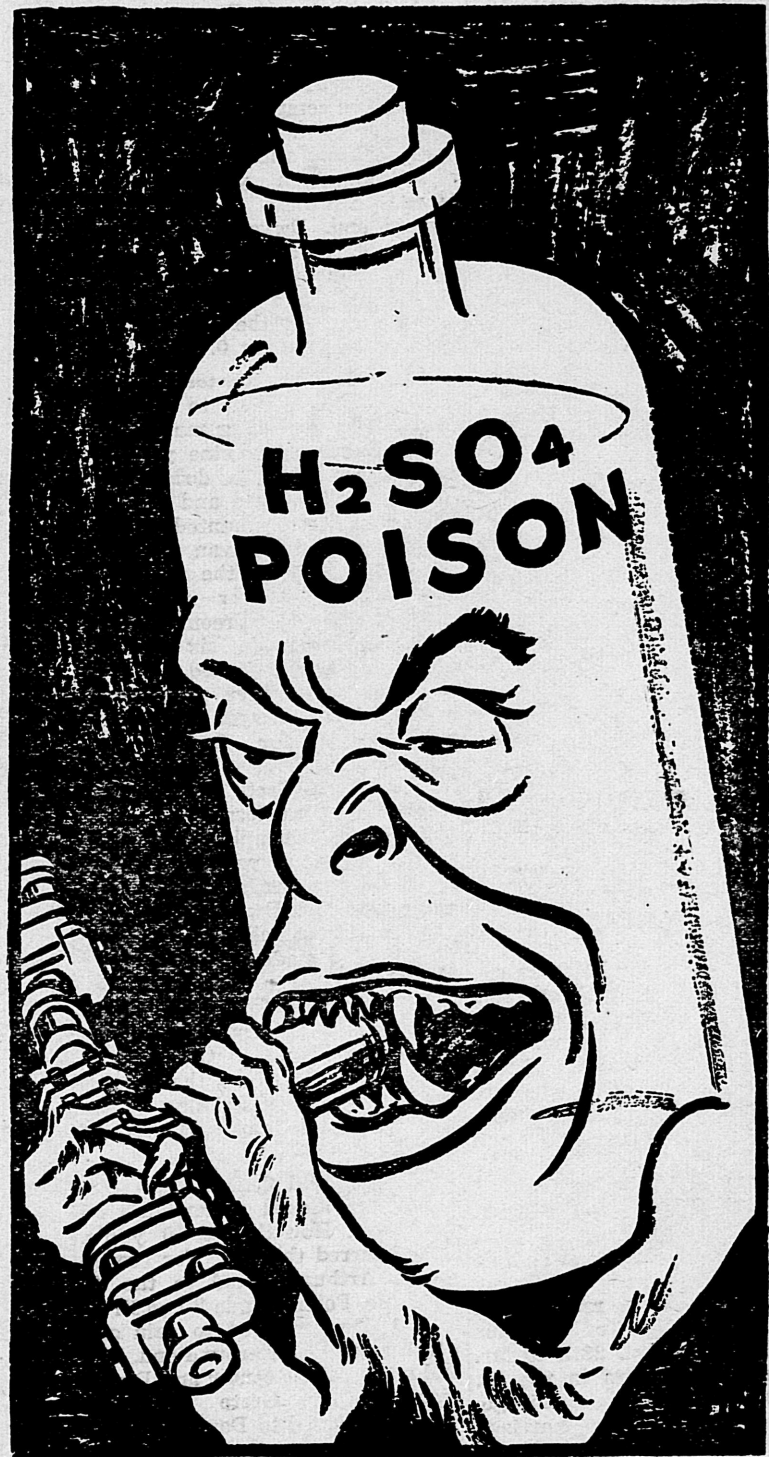

USE

SKELLY SULPHUR-FREE* GASOLINE

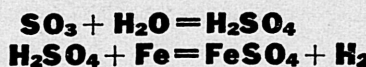

Why make a sulphuric acid factory out of your motor? Why permit this deadly, poisonous acid to pit valves, and eat through the oil film to corrode cylinder walls, bearings and wrist-pins? Why lose compression and power, because your gasoline is not refined and treated to remove the sulphur that was in the crude oil?

Avoid sulphur in gasoline. More than a trace of it, under heat and pressure in the cylinders, forms deadly H_2SO_4 (sulphuric acid), according to chemists. Why make sulphuric acid with every explosion in your cylinders?

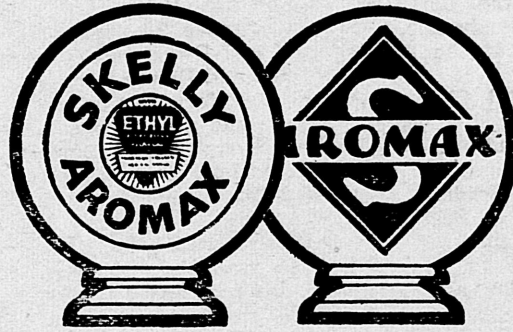

Use only safe, pure Skelly Sulphur-Free* Gasoline. Many crude oils contain one quart of sulphur to every seven or eight gallons. Left in gasoline, one gram of sulphur can form three grams of deadly sulphuric acid in your cylinders. Skelly chooses crude oils low in sulphur content, which are carefully refined, then the gasoline is put through Skelly "sulphur-wash" processes to take out harmful, corroding sulphur. Why take chances? Steer clear of sulphur. Turn to safe, pure Skelly Sulphur-Free* Gasoline.

To Those Chemically-Minded:

Sulphur compounds in gasoline produce SO_3 and SO_2 in the cylinders. H_2O is derived from combustion gases. H_2SO_4 is insoluble in, and about twice as heavy as, lubricating oil, so of course the acid is not halted by the oil.

* Skelly Gasoline is 99.95/100% free from sulphur. Only a negligible, harmless trace remains after Skelly "sulphur-wash" processes are completed. Many gasolines contain several times more sulphur than Skelly Gasoline.

steadfastly refused to approve the Bethany plan and finally on agreement that the road from Bethany to Route 169 be the "first improved secondary road" to be built in this county, a compromise was effected and Bethany withdrew its objections to routing the slab on the east side of the I. C. tracks from that village to Dalton City.

Dist. Engineer Advises
Recently when the Board of Supervisors took steps toward starting a secondary road system, on advice of an engineer from the Paris division office, the plan provided for roads to communities in this county that now have no hard road connections. Bethany having a hard road connection was left out for the time being. Some Bethany people objected to that attitude on the part of the board and went to Springfield to register their objections. The State Highway department withheld its approval of the plans the county had submitted after its September meeting until last week.

Partly Approves Plan
Here is its action on that report: It approves grading from route 138 south to Cadwell and thence east to connect with that place. It does not approve the entire route from 138 to connect up with route 132, east of the Masonic home. The Jonathan Creek route is therefore not approved, only insofar as to give Cadwell a connection with a hard road.

The paving project from Route 32 east to connect up Bruce is approved.

The grading project from state aid route West of this city south to Kirksville is only partially approved. A half mile is lopped off the south end of the project and it now extends only to Kirksville instead of to the first crossroads south of that village.

Must Satisfy Bethany
The Department states that it will be unable to grant approval of any other portions of secondary roads until the agreement with Bethany is fulfilled.

Co. Supt. of Highways Guy S. Little has forwarded copies of Mr. Sheets' letter to all supervisors and this matter will doubtless be gotten into shape for further consideration at the December meeting of the board.

As this matter of secondary road improvement is of vital interest to all of Moultrie county, we produce herewith in full Mr. Sheets' letter:

What Sheets Says
October 29, 1931.

County Roads
Moultrie County
M. F. T. Resolutions.
Mr. Paul L. Chippis
County Clerk
Sullivan, Illinois.
Dear Sir:

The County Board of Supervisors of Moultrie county at its meeting held April 15, 1930, passed a resolution which reads as follows:

"THAT WHEREAS the County of Moultrie in the State of Illinois, is in need of improved secondary roads located within the boundaries of Moultrie County, and

"WHEREAS it is sought by the Board of Supervisors of the County of Moultrie to plan and build a system of improved secondary roads in said Moultrie County, and

"WHEREAS the Supervisors of Moultrie County have an assurance from the State Highway Commission that if Moultrie County will lay out and build westward from the Village of Bethany an improved secondary road to connect with State bond issue route No. 169 as the first improved secondary road to be built in said Moultrie County that the State will locate and put on the 1930 state program for building roads and will contract to build State bond issue route 132 from the Village of Dalton City to the City of Sullivan, during the year 1930.

"THEREFORE, be it RESOLVED by the Board of Supervisors of Moultrie County, Illinois, that system of improved secondary roads will be planned as soon as practicable and that when the County of Moultrie provides the financing of the building of said system of roads that the first improved secondary road to be built by the said County of Moultrie and its Supervisors, will be the improved secondary road from the Village of Bethany, westward and connecting with State bond issue route No. 169."

This resolution is self-explanatory.

Dept. Kept Faith
This Department pursuant to its passage proceeded with the construction of State bond issue route 132 at the time specified and kept faith to the letter in the matter of the construction of this route in Moultrie County.

Therefore, this Department feels justified in requesting that Moultrie County now, insofar as it is in harmony with statutory provisions keep faith in the matter of constructing State aid route 5 from Bethany west to State bond issue route 169. We are confident that the county board will share this feeling, and we are certain that we may count on the full cooperation of the county board relative to this matter.

However, the county board has submitted resolutions passed at its meeting on September 8, 1931 requesting approval of the improvement of certain roads with motor fuel tax funds at follows:

"Section 1A—M. F. T. which provides for the improvement of approximately 8½ miles of State aid routes 2, 8 and 10, between State bond issue routes 132 and 133, with a 30 foot earth roadway.

"Section 2A—M. F. T. which provides for the improvement of 2½ miles of State aid route 11, between State aid routes 5 and 12, with a 30-foot earth roadway.

Section 3—M. F. T. which provides for the improvement of 1 mile of State aid route 4 with a 9-foot concrete pavement.

What Law Says
In view of the fact that the priority clause in the motor fuel tax law requires priority in the matter of construction of State aid roads be given to those roads which will connect towns and communities with the State bond issue system before other improvements are undertaken, this Department feels justified in partially approving the resolutions submitted on September 8, but we cannot give our full approval to these resolutions because of the understanding between the Department and the county as outlined in the resolution passed by the board on April 15, 1930.

What is Approved
Therefore, we are approving the construction with motor fuel tax funds of that portion of State aid routes 8 and 10 which will extend from our State bond issue route 133 to the corner of sections 3, 4, 9 and 10, T. 14, N., R. 6 E. of the 3rd p. m., thence easterly to the business center of the community known as Cadwell, the total length of this improvement being approximately 2½ miles.

We are also approving the construction with motor fuel tax funds of that portion of State aid route 11 beginning at its junction with State aid route 5 in section 5, T. 13, N., R. 5 E. of the 3rd p. m. and extending southerly on the State aid route 11 to the business center of the community known as Kirksville, a distance of approximately 2 miles.

Bruce Gets Its Road
We are also approving the construction with motor fuel tax funds that portion of State aid route 4 beginning at its junction with State bond issue route 32 and extending easterly to the business center of the community known as Bruce, a distance of approximately one mile.

This Department will be unable to grant approval of the other portions included in the resolutions passed September 8 until such time as the prior agreement between the county and the department regarding the construction of State aid route 5 from Bethany west to route 169 shall have been fulfilled.

Very truly yours,
Frank T. Sheets
Chief Highway Engineer.

ILLINOIS PRUDENTIAL SALESMEN ARE AHEAD

The Prudential Insurance Company farm loan department has many farms on its hands through fore-closure. Efforts are constantly under way to find buyers for these farms at very attractive prices, as the Insurance company is not eager to own or operate farm lands. Illinois Prudential representatives achieved a 6.3 per cent record of sale in October. The next nearest in results was Indiana with only 3.3.

EXHAUST PIPE SHOWS HOW SULPHURIC ACID EATS METAL SURFACES

Eldorado, Kans., Nov. 2—If you are a car owner you have probably seen exhaust pipes eaten away to a shell, some ready to fall apart; and you may have wondered what caused this damage. The answer is sulphuric acid, formed in the motor from sulphur in gasoline, according to chemists.

What happens in the exhaust pipe is only outward evidence of what is going on inside the motor. Sulphuric acid reaches sensitive metal parts in the motor and proves to be a major cause of repair bills. Skelly Oil Company has eliminated this trouble by taking out the sulphur from the gasoline, as set forth in its announcement of sulphur-free gasoline, which was made recently in the Sullivan Progress.

The obvious safety which this gasoline gives against damage from sulphuric acid has made it highly popular with car owners throughout the Middle West. To learn how sulphuric acid eats into metal and ravages a motor's parts, one needs only to ask any motor car mechanic. He knows well how sulphuric acid pits valves and eats into the sensitive surfaces of piston rings, wrist-pins, bearings and other reachable metal parts.

It takes a reasonable length of time for sulphur-laden gasolines to show their effects, but the results are certain and costly. Frequently the damaged parts must be replaced, while the rest of the motor is practically new.

This most recent Skelly achievement has been attained through the development over a period of years, of "sulphur-wash" processes, which now make Skelly gasoline 99 95-100% sulphur-free. Thus the trace of sulphur that remains is too slight to form damaging sulphuric acid.

Skelly products here are handled by The Fisher Oil Company.

SEVENTH INSTALLMENT
I know, as it happens, very little of firearms, but I did realize that a shot from a .45 Colt automatic would have considerable penetrative power. To be exact that bullet had probably either lodged itself in a joist, or had penetrated thru the flooring and might be somewhere over my head.

But my candle was inadequate for more than the most superficial examination of the ceiling, which presented so far as I could see an unbroken surface. I turned my attention, therefore, to the floor. It was when I was turning the rug back that I recognized the origin of the sound which had so startled me. It had been the soft movement of the carpet across the floor boards.

Some one, then had been there before me—some one who knew what I knew, had reasoned as I reasoned. Some one who, in all probability, still lurked on the upper floor.

Obeying an impulse, I stood erect and called out sharply, "Sperry" I said. "Sperry."

There was no answer. I tried again, calling Herbert. But only my own voice came back to me, and the whistling of the wind through the windows I had opened.

My fears, never long in abeyance that night, roused again. I had instantly a conviction that some human figure, sinister and dangerous, was lurking in the shadows of that empty floor, and I remember backing away from the door and standing in the center of the room, prepared for some stealthy, murderous assault. When none came I looked about for a weapon, and finally took the only thing in sight, coal-tongs from the fireplace. Armed with that, I made a cursory round of the nearby rooms but there was no one hiding in them.

I went back to the rug and examined the floor beneath it. I was right. Some one had been there before me. Bits of splintered wood lay about. The second bullet had been fired, had buried itself in the floor and had, some five minutes before been dug out.

The extraordinary thing about the Arthur Wells story was not his killing. For killing it was. It was the way it was solved.

Here was a young woman, Miss Jeremy who had not known young Wells, had not known his wife, had until that first meeting at Mrs. Dane's never met any member of the Neighborhood Club. Yet, but for her, Arthur Wells would have gone to his grave bearing the stigma of moral cowardice, or suicide.

The solution, when it came, was amazing, but remarkably simple. Like most mysteries I have in my own house, for instance, an example of a great mystery, founded on mere absentmindedness.

This is what my wife terms the mystery of the fire-tongs.

I had left the Wells' house as soon as I had made the discovery in the night nursery. I carried the candle and the fire-tongs downstairs. I was apparently, calm but watchful. I would have said that I had never been more calm in my life. I knew quite well that I had the fire-tongs in my hand. Just when I ceased to be cognizant of them was probably when, on entering the library, I found that my overcoat had disappeared, and that my stiff hat, badly broken, lay on the floor. However, as I say, I was still extraordinarily composed. I picked up my hat, and moving to the rear door went out and closed it. When I reached the street, however, I had only gone a few yards when I discovered that I was still carrying the lighted candle and that a man, passing by, had stopped and was staring after me.

My composure is shown by the fact that I dropped the candle down the next sewer opening, but the fact remains that I carried the fire-tongs home. I do not recall doing so. In fact, I knew nothing of the matter until morning. On the way to my house I was elaborating a story to the effect that my overcoat had been stolen from a restaurant where I and my client had dined. The hat offered more serious difficulties. I fancied that, by kissing my wife goodby at the breakfast table, I might be able to get out without her following me to the front door, which is her custom.

But, as a matter of fact, I need not have concerned myself about the hat. When I descended to breakfast the next morning I found her surveying the umbrella stand in the hall. The fire-tongs were standing there gleaming among my sticks and umbrellas. I lied. I lied shamelessly. She is a nervous woman, and, as we have no children, her attitude toward me is one of watchful waiting. Through long years she has expected me to commit some indiscretion—innocent, of course, such as going out without my overcoat on a cool day—and she intends to be on hand for every emergency. I dared not confess, therefore that on the previous evening I had burglarized a closed out, had there surprised another intruder at work, had fallen and bumped my head severely, and had, finally, had my overcoat taken.

"Horace," she said coldly, "where did you get those fire-tongs?"

"Fire-tongs?" I repeated. "Why that's so. They are fire-tongs."

"I am not a curious woman," she put in incisively, "but when my husband spends an evening out and returns minus his overcoat, with his hat mashed, a lump the size of an egg over his ear, and puts a pair of fire-tongs in the umbrella stand under the impression that it is an umbrella, I have a right to ask at least if he intends to continue his life of debauchery."

I made a mistake then. I should have told her. Instead, I took my broken hat and jammed it on my head with a force that made the lump she had noticed jump like a toothache, and went out.

When, at noon and luncheon, I tried to tell her the truth, she listened to the end. Then: "I should think you could have done better than that," she said. "You have had all morning to think it out."

However, if things were in a state of armed neutrality at home, I had a certain compensation for them when I told my story to Sperry that afternoon.

"You see how it is," I finished. "You can stay out of this, or come in, Sperry, but I cannot stop now. He was murdered beyond a doubt, and there is an intelligent effort being made to eliminate every particle of evidence."

He nodded.

"It looks like it. And this man who was there last night—"

"Why a man?"

"He took your overcoat, instead of his own, didn't he? It may have been—it's curious, isn't it, that we've had no suggestion of Ellingham in all the rest of the material."

Like the other members of the Neighborhood Club, he had a copy of the proceedings at the two sittings and now he brought them out and fell to studying them.

"She was right about the bullet in the ceiling," he reflected. "I suppose you didn't look for the box of shells for the revolver?"

"I meant to, but it slipped my mind."

He shuffled the loose pages of the record. "Cane—washed away by the water—a knee that is hurt—the curtain would have been safer—Hawkins—the drawing-room furniture is all over the house. That last, Horace isn't pertinent. It refers clearly to the room we were in. Of course, the point is, how much of the rest is also extraneous matter?" He read one of the sheets. "Of course that belongs, about Hawkins. And probably this: 'It will be terrible if the letters are found.' They were in the pocket book, presumably."

He folded up the papers and replaced them in a drawer.

"We'd better go back to the house," he said. "Whoever took your overcoat by mistake probably left one. The difficulty is, of course, that he probably discovered his error and went back again last night. Confound it, man, if you had thought of that at the time, we would have something to go on today."

"If I had thought of a number of things, I'd have stayed out of the place altogether," I retorted tartly. "I wish you could help me about the fire-tongs, Sperry. I don't seem able to think of any explanation that Mrs. Johnson would be willing to accept."

"Tell her the truth."

"I don't think you understand," I explained. "She simply wouldn't believe it. And if she did I should have to agree to drop the investigation. As a matter of fact, Sperry I had resorted to subterfuge and in order to remain out last evening, and I am bitterly regretting my mendacity."

But Sperry has, I am afraid, rather loose ideas.

"Every man," he said, "would rather tell the truth, but every woman makes it necessary to lie to her. Forget the fire-tongs, Horace, and forget Mrs. Johnson tonight. He may not have dared to go back in daylight for his overcoat."

"Very well," I agreed.

But it was not very well, and I knew it. I felt that, in a way my whole domestic happiness was at stake. My wife is a difficult person to argue with.

She is just as tenacious of an opinion once formed as are all very amiable people. However, unfortunately for our investigation, but luckily for me, under the circumstances, Sperry was called to another city that afternoon and did not return for two days.

It was, it will be recalled, on the Thursday night following the second sitting that I had gone alone to the Wells' house, and my interview with Sperry was on Friday. It was on Friday afternoon that I received a telephone message from Mrs. Dane, asking me to take tea with her.

"At what time?" I asked her secretary.

"At four o'clock."

I hesitated. I felt that my wife was waiting at home for further explanation of the coal-tongs and that the sooner we had it out the better. But, on the other hand, Mrs. Dane's invitations, by reason of her infirmity, took on something of the nature of commands.

"Please say that I will be there at four," I replied.

I bought a new hat that afternoon and told the clerk to destroy the old one. Then I went to Mrs. Dane's.

She was in the drawing-room plainly excited. Never have I known a woman who, confined to a wheel-chair, lived so hard. She did not allow life to pass her windows, if I may put it that way. She called it in, and set it moving about her chair, herself the nucleus around which were enacted all sorts of small neighborhood dramas and romances. Her secretaries did not marry. She married them.

It is curious to look back and remember how Herbert and Sperry and myself had ignored this quality in her, in the Wells case. She was not to be ignored, as I discovered that afternoon.

"Sit down," she said. "You look half sick, Horace."

Nothing escapes her eyes, so I was careful to place myself with the lump on my head turned away from her. But I fancy she saw it, for her eyes twinkled.

"Horace, Horace!" she said. "How I have detested you all week!"

"I? You detested me?"

Loathed you," she said with unctious. "You are cruel and ungrateful. Herbert has influenza, and does not count. And Sperry is in love—oh yes, I know it. I know a great many things. But you!"

I could only stare at her.

"The strange thing is," she went on, "that I have known you for years, and never suspected your sense of humor. You'll forgive me. I know, if I tell you that your lack of humor was to my mind the only flaw in an otherwise perfect character."

SHEPARD BUILT HOUSE THAT WAS MOVED THURS.

The house on the corner of Harrison and Van Buren streets was moved Thursday to a lot belonging to George Lansden, the purchaser, in the south part of the city. J. E. and Basil McKown did the moving.

This house was built by E. L. (Buck) Shephard quite a number of years ago after fire had destroyed his hotel, known as The Maple House which was located in the same block. Mr. Shephard's adopted daughter Maggie married Wait Craig and the property went by heirship to her son Dr. Ed Craig, who sold it some time ago to Les Atchison and Buck Fisher who are immediately going to start erection of a modern tire and battery supply station and a super service oil station. The new building will house the business of the Tire & Battery Station and the Fisher Oil company.

Buck Shephard died years ago. During the prime of life he was a saloon keeper. There were three Shephard brothers. J. B. Shephard was a local dry goods merchant and M. T.
