JUNE DAYS

This community had a very satisfactory rain Wednesday evening between the hours of six and seven. After a few small showers during the day, the heavy downpour came at eventide. It is estimated that more than an inch of rain fell.

It was a welcome opening for the month of June. Rain was badly needed. While corn is up, it was not showing much growth and farmers cultivating in the fields were surrounded by clouds of dust. Wheat and oats and all pastures and other growing crops were suffering on account of the May drought. Reports say that south of here the oats is heading out and is so short that it will be impossible to harvest it.

Gardens were also exceedingly dry and housewives, who had great expectations, seemed doomed to disappointment. Then came the heavy rain and everything again looks fine. Vegetation grew more the night from Wednesday to Thursday than it had grown in two weeks preceding.

Prospects on Thursday were promising for more rain. But why should not things get wet? We note by newspaper reports that Len Small, Senator Ote Glenn and lots of other one-time political drvs are getting awfully wet this year. Though once they seemed inclined to call an International Conference on Bible revision in order to write the 18th Amendment and the Volstead law into the Sacred book, they now blame all the cussedness of the day on the scarcity of legalized alcoholic stimulant. The two-faced hypocrites! What they want is votes for the offices they are seeking. When they thought most voters were dry, these politicians were dry; now that they think the tide has turned and voters favor the wet side, these astute politicians are wet. They will be anything at any time to any or all men provided they can get the votes that will give them a grabbing place where public funds are dispensed.

On Friday of last week they had a seven-inch snowfall in North Dakota. It is said to have been awfully hard on the young grasshopper crop and North Dakota may have to import grasshoppers to keep up its normal supply.

We pity some of the good people who live in the north part of the city. Last week they had such

C. T. E. Hagerman and Wife on Way to Sullivan at Time of Accident. Funeral Services and Burial Held Here Wednesday Afternoon.

C. T. E. Hagerman and his wife both met instant death Sunday evening at about 4 o'clock when the car in which they were riding was struck by an Illinois Central southbound freight train.

The accident occurred near Sigel in eastern Shelby county. A witness stated that Mr. Hagerman was driving north on slab 25. They had turned off on a side road and evidently feeling that they had made the wrong turn, started backing. In turning off they had crossed the I. C. tracks and their backing brought them back on to the tracks just as the southbound freight came along.

The car was struck broadside and Mr. Hagerman was tossed quite a distance by the impact. The train was brought to a stop and the man who had seen the accident and others hurried to the stricken people. Mr. Hagerman was dead. Mrs. Hagerman is said to have breathed her last when rescuers pulled her body from the debris. Many bones were broken. The bodies were not mangled.

Efforts were made to discover the identity of the aged couple. The remains were taken to Sigel and later to Neoga. From papers in their possession it was found that they were Mr. and Mrs. Hagerman of Sumner, Illinois. Communication with Sumner friends disclosed the fact that they had been on their way to Sullivan to decorate the graves of relatives. When identity had been established the remains were taken to Sumner.

Older Sullivan residents remember Mr. Hagerman well, although he had left here about 26 years ago. He was a son of the late Justice Ben Hagerman of this city and a brother of Mrs. George Lansden. At Sumner, Mr. Hagerman was engaged in newspaper business.

The following obituaries of the deceased were read at the funeral services held here Wednesday afternoon at the McMullin Funeral home.

Biography

Eunice and C. T. E. Hagerman in a tragic moment on Sunday afternoon, May 29, 1932, two lives were ended; two persons highly esteemed by their relatives, friends and fellow citizens, were taken from our midst. The hearts of all acquaintances are saddened by the great loss suffered by the death of their valued and dearly loved friends, Mr. and Mrs. C. T. E. Hagerman.

For many years, members of the First Christian church of Sumner, Illinois, their lives were earnestly and fervently spent in the labors of the Master's cause.

They will be sadly missed by sisters, brothers, other relatives and friends in the community where they have spent the past twenty-six years of their life.

Mr. and Mrs. Hagerman were happily united in marriage, Sept. 26, 1888, at Sumner. To this union three children were born. Two died in infancy and later Roy passed away at the age of seventeen years, his departure bringing deep sorrow to the hearts of his parents.

Eunice Hagerman
Eunice Perrott, daughter of John and Ann Perrott, was born October 2, 1865 at Delphos, Ohio. At the date of her death she was 66 years, 7 months and 27 days.

A member of the First Christian church, she was faithful to her ideals and beliefs, and gave her life unselfishly to the service of others. Kind in word and deed, she was a friend to all. She was a true worker in church organizations, including Sunday School class, Ladies Aid Society and the Missionary society. She was a member of the Royal Neighbor lodge.

Mrs. Hagerman's mother, father and three of her sisters have preceded her in death. Three sisters and five brothers survive.

GREYS DEFEATED AT KINSEL FIELD BY SLUGGERS

Though Henry Sona performed the prodigious feat of getting four hits in five times at bat, the Sullivan Grays were trounced to the tune of 20 to 5 by Ott Kinsel's Bruce Sluggers Sunday.

Sullivan's battery at the start was Asa Johnson, pitching and Carl Blue catching. Asa couldn't control his speed and when the Sluggers started knocking his offerings all over the lot, Fritz Poland was put in the pitchers box in the hope that he could save Sullivan's bacon by a close shave. But the slaughter continued.

Bill Kinsel pitched and Jim Evans caught for Bruce. Dutch Abbott got three hits and then whaled out a homer. The Bruce boys made 12 hits while Sullivan crowded them with 11.

Sullivan's lineup had some young blood interspersed with the old time "grays". Winchester played 3b, Poland ss and pitcher, Pete Chippis 2nd base; Carl Blue catcher, Bill Black 1st base, Dorman Shirey, cf, Earl Barnes and Elmer Leeds left field and Asa Johnson and Fritz Poland pitchers.

So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them.

And God blessed them, and God said unto them, Be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth and subdue it; and have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over every living thing that moveth upon the earth.

—Genesis I—27-28.

The Beaver sometimes contemplates the dam
And says "Nice job! I'm proud of that, I am!"

The Oriole regards her swinging nest
And flutes "Of all fine cradles, there's the best!"

The She-Bear cuffs her cubs with loving paw
And growls "A sweeter pair I never saw!"

Erect upon the ant heap, cries the Ant:
"Say! Who can make a mountain if I can't?"

So you, I trust, have similarly stood
And looked upon your work and found it good.

Interesting World Events

As this is written three matters of vital interest hold prominent place in the news stories of the metropolitan press.

First and foremost is the effort of Congress and the President to decide on some measures of taxation which will raise the necessary funds to balance the budget. The country has been running deeply into debt. It is still running into debt at the rate of some millions of dollars a day. The problem confronting Congress is two-fold. First, to raise the money to pay off the deficit.—Second, to devise ways and means of cutting down the running expenses of the government so that it can live within its income.

Next in importance is the new crisis that has arisen in Germany. President Von Hindenburg has fired Chancellor Brüning. The two no longer were in agreement. He has asked Franz von Papen to organize a new cabinet in which are to be included representatives of all of the dominant parties in Germany. That is easier said than done.

Germany is drifting toward Facism. That is the idea of government that prevails in Italy under Mussolini. Italy is enjoying an era of prosperity. It likes its boss. With Italy as an example, two things have happened in Germany. The people look with favor on the Mussolini type of government and a man stands forth who is ambitious to be the Mussolini of Germany. He is Adolph Hitler, an Austrian by birth, lately given German citizenship. Herr Hitler and his friends do not want to have anything to do with any von Papen compromise cabinet. A new election will be held in Germany in the fall. Herr Hitler is quite certain that it will lead to his enthronement as boss of Germany.

Whether or not that would be good for the rest of the world remains to be seen. The allies who are collecting reparations from Germany dread to see this happen. Herr Hitler, besides being obsessed with the ambition to be dictator of Germany, also has some rather radical ideas pertaining to war debts and similar obligations. So Germany is an interesting example of government that will bear watching. Adolph Hitler may prove its salvation or he may be its further ruin.

The third big story of the day is Mayor Jimmy Walker of New York. Jimmy is on the griddle and is being sweated and roasted by an investigating committee that wants to know about some big financial transactions in which he figured since becoming mayor of America's biggest city. All of which is preparatory to a report from the investigating committee to Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, asking him to remove Mr. Walker from the office he holds.

While Walker is in the spot-light, he is really not the big man in the case. The big man is Samuel Seabury, counsel for the investigating committee. Mr. Seabury is a Democrat. He has a long career of distinguished public service in New York City and in the State of New York. Descendant from a family of fighting and praying pioneer bishops and statesmen, Samuel Seabury has consistently and effectively fought corruption in public office. He has led the battle against Tammany dominance in New York City. Sometimes beaten, oft-times meeting with discouragement. Seabury has always been ready to answer his state's call to lead the fight to root corruption, graft and all its vicious by-products out of public life. His present battle is the most spectacular in which he has ever engaged. The mayor he is investigating is popular in New York. People like Jimmy Walker. But that does not excuse any crookedness, direct or indirect, in which he may be implicated.

In the weeks to come it will be interesting to note the developments in these three cases.

Will President Hoover prove enough of a statesman to get his ideas on taxes and relief enacted into law? Will Congress pass legislation that the President will disapprove? Will business take an upturn when Congress gets done arguing and decides on a definite policy of taxation and economy?

The German situation vitally affects all the world. This world is so closely knit together that what affects the welfare of one nation affects the welfare of the entire world. When the world ceases to be an armed camp and realizes that friendship and neighborliness are better for all, some semblance of international sanity may be restored.

The entire country is watching Samuel Seabury's investigation of Mayor Walker. It is a foregone conclusion that Mr. Seabury will ask Gov. Roosevelt to remove the mayor from office. If this is done, it will doubtless be before the Democratic national convention meets in Chicago. Indications now are that Gov. Roosevelt will be nominated for President. The Walker situation will have an important bearing on the Governor's chances for nomination. If he removes Walker, the New York City delegation will be hostile. His chances for carrying New York state next November will not be so rosy. If he fails to remove the mayor, the rest of the country will feel that the Governor has failed in his duty—that he has not had the backbone necessary in a man who aspires to be the nation's chief executive.

This is an interesting old world. It's more fun than a three-ring circus. There are so many things to watch that it keeps a fellow busy.

Man's Dominion Over the Earth

Rev. C. E. Barnett's text for his Baccalaureate sermon at the High School auditorium Sunday night is found in the quotation from the Book of Genesis that heads this week's editorial column.

God created man to "have dominion." Rev. Barnett developed this theme in a very interesting manner. His message was an inspiration to his audience and to the large graduating class.

Through the many centuries since the story of creation was first told, man has sought for dominion. He has subdued the beasts of the field, he has made earth yield him food and clothing. He has to a certain extent conquered the seas and the air. Through scientific discoveries he is conquering disease, misery and squalor.

To each generation comes the call to further subdue the forces of nature and harness them to the needs of man. The dominion of man is extending and carries with it the gospel of enlightenment.

And through all of these years man has sought to have dominion over himself—to root out the brutishness, selfishness, and many of the other bestial attributes which bring war among men and hell itself upon earth. Man is conquering the earth and gaining dominion over it much more rapidly, it seems to us, than he is gaining dominion over his own selfishness, his greed and the other things which shame "the image in which God created him."

Strange, is it not, into how many different avenues of activity man has gone to "have dominion", though most of us are kept busy, not in striving to dominate the earth and subdue it, but rather to dominate the circumstances and environments surrounding us sufficiently to make them yield us the wherewithal to be fed and clothed and enjoy some of life's simpler pleasures.

CLAUDE BOWERS ON TARIFF

Washington, June 1.—Claude Bowers, in a recent radio address over a coast-to-coast network of the National Broadcasting Co., stated the reason, so often asked, why the Democratic House had not reduced the exorbitant rates of the Hawley-Smoot trade-wrecking tariff. After telling how the tariff act had almost destroyed American foreign trade and threw millions of people out of employment, Mr. Bowers said:

"You ask, then why something has not been done?"

"The answer is that something has been done by Congress. The Democratic House received a clear mandate from the people in 1930 to do something for the restoration of our foreign markets. Now, even under normal conditions, it would have been impossible for the Democratic House to pass a general tariff reduction measure, with the Senate Republican and the President waiting with a veto. But under the abnormal conditions created by the Grundy act it would have been impractical; so long as we are excluded from the markets of other nations we cannot permit other nations access to our own."

"Under these circumstances the Democratic House passed a tariff act instructing the President to enter into negotiations with other nations for such reciprocal arrangements as will reopen the markets of the world and restore foreign trade. The Senate concurred."

"Now that was not even a partizan measure. It did not even strike at the protective principle. It proposed to give nothing without an agreement for something in return. It is a plan that financiers, merchants, intelligent manufacturers, Chambers of Commerce and economists of the highest order have been urging."

"And what did the President do? He killed it with a veto. He took his stand against taking any steps for the restoration of our lost markets that would keep our factories at home and put our working men back upon their jobs."

"And on what ground did he veto it? On the ground that since his administration has done the damage we must wait until the other nations act first."

"Well, the answer to that is that this country was the first to take the step that destroyed international trade; that other nations would not have built barriers against us had we not first built barriers against them, and that having taken the initiative in the policy of stupidity we must take the initiative in leading the world back to a policy of economic common sense."

The Post, Office Department which as a side line sells and prints envelopes below cost, in competition with the printers of the country, is said to have a deficit of $150,000,000 for the past year. When they devise some sort of tax to help defray this deficit we printers, big and little, will pay our share. When you stop to figure it out you will note this puzzling

At the end of March 1932, there were 609,488 employees in the Executive Civil Service of the United States, a gain of 1,633 over March of the previous year.

Says WILL ROGERS

BEVERLY HILLS — Well all I know is just what I read in the papers. Wasn't that terrible out here in Cal, about the Akron landing? They had had all this tough time crossing the Country, storms and bad weather, then when the sailors at San Diego tried to help em land there was enacted about the greatest bit of drama that we have read in our time.

That bit of the sailor being drawn up there for over an hour and a half, now if there is a man living that has had an hour and a half of any more suspense than that, that was actual suspense, he must have been a cool headed customer to have thought of tying himself on like that. They figured they would have to go out to sea and drop him in the ocean. There was a nice little thing to look forward too.

"We will drop you in the ocean." Being a sailor it would just be his luck he couldn't swim. But that's what I call real drama. You know it's hard to tell about those big old suckers, as to whether they are a success or not. Course they do go places. Look at that one that went around the world. And this one had come all the way across our Continent without gas, food, water, hot dogs, or a morning paper. Course it had been two or three days doing it, but at that it beat a train. But I will trust all that to our Army or Navy men to figure out. They know whether its practical or not. Remember there is 84 men on that thing. That's a lot of men to carry across the Continent in one load.

I tell you any experiment that is being made in the air is not a waste of time or money. Our defense, offense, and all have got to come from the air. So these big dachunds are going to find some place in our National defense. You know that's a terrible job being in charge of that floating bladder. This guy Rosendahl has done a fine job of it. Course when you want to land you can't always find two hundred sailors in all parts of the Country. Some parts of the Country you have to fly around several hours before you can see two hundred sailors. Lots of people living in this Country for all their lives never saw two hundred sailors. I don't much care to cruise the air if its going to take two hundred men to pull me down.

In an aeroplane it don't take anybody to pull you down. In fact most of the time you wish you had two hundred men to hold you up, I have seen times in a plane when I have wished there had been men underneath with a net.

Doug Fairbanks got back a couple of weeks ago from the Fiji Islands, or some outlandish place that he had been. He took pictures of it. He said that down there you could live on 90 cents a week. That is about ten cents more than here, or what some have to live on here. However you keep reading about things getting better, but most of the articles are written by folks that are doing well themselves. With the elections coming on you are going to be fed up with a lot of hoovey about a lot of things. Naturally the Republicans are going to put their best "Side" forward. They are just trying to figure out which side is their best.

Roosevelt is pretty well sweeping the Country for the Democrats but perhaps won't have enough to nominate on the first ballot. Smith combined with a few of the native sons would be able to block him. Then it would be just a wild guess as to who would be nominated. Mr. Hoover just goes right on wanting to stay in there. I had kept thinking that he would finally give up and say, "Well boys here she is. Take it whoever wants it. I have had enough."

But once a man is President he is just as hard to pry out of there as a Senator, or a town Constable or any political office. He has done some pretty courageous things lately in a political way. If he will get up and cuss the Senate and Congress out a couple of more times, he is liable to wake up a hero for never was "Cussing Congress" as popular as it is now. And the rascals I guess are not to blame for it either. Of course they are not doing the best they can, but they are doing the best they know how.

Conventions will be on us now. They are like the locusts. They come every few years. Will meet you all there, at one or the other of em. It will be good Conventions this year for both sides will be in doubt. And the people don't care.

THERE ARE JOBS — AND JOBS

(By Edgar A. Guest)

Take this, my boy, and remember it long,
Though now it may strike you as funny,
A job with a chance to improve and advance
Is better than one that pays money.

Take a hint from an old man who's traveled the way,
Just heed to his counsel a minute.
There's a job that may pay you five dollars a day
But that's all there will ever be in it.

Don't look at the cash as so many boys do,
Take a look at the long years before you;
See how much you can learn, not how much you can earn,
And the place which the future has for you.

Can you rise from the post where they'd have you begin?
How far will this humble job take you?
There are questions to ask. They pay well for the task,
But what sort of a man will it make you?

Oh, many a boy has begun with a rush
And has grabbed for a man's wages blindly;
Now he sticks as a man at the spot he began,
And thinks life has used him unkindly.

So look for a job with a future ahead,
Seek a chance to grow greater and greater,
Seek a place where you know as you work you will grow;
And the money will come to you later.

Note—This poem of Mr. Guest's has some very timely advice for the 1932 crop of graduates.

EDITOR BRANDENBURGER

With last week's issue of the Sullivan Progress, the editor and owner, Ed C. Brandenburg, completed his 13th consecutive year in the newspaper game at the Moultrie county metropolis. This year the Progress will observe its 76th anniversary, as well. While the Progress has been an exponent of the Democratic principles of Thomas Jefferson for many years before Mr. Brandenburg took up his work there, the present editor has made the Progress something more than partisan sheet. His logical deductions and wise counsellings which appear weekly in the editorial columns, relative to national, state and county, are copied all over the state of Illinois; he runs a newspaper that is an example in style, neatness, and best of all cleanliness, for other publishers to pattern after. He publishes news of human interest to his readers written in such a manner as to entitle him, we believe, to be classified as the peer of country editors of central Illinois.

In speaking of his years of service spent as a newspaper publisher in Sullivan Mr. Brandenburg says:

"We have found the work pleasant and the associations enjoyable. We appreciate the co-operation given us."

"Sullivan is a good community in which to live and labor. We hope that we may have added something to the community life to compensate for the living and the worth-while things that the community has given us."

"We pause, at this period of our editorial labors, to thank you all. We can only hope and trust that our future service will merit your trust and confidence. We will give the best we have."—T. B. Shoaff in The Shelby Co. Leader.

"This paragrapher is so old, he remembers when telephones had to be wound up before they would attract the attention of Central." So says our esteemed contemporary writing in the Decatur Herald. We Sullivan folks still get a big portion of our exercises from winding telephone cranks.

Daughter "Oh Papa, I've got a splinter in it."

Father: "Huh, what else can you expect, running round with those Cooks Mills boys."

The city boy wrote to his country cousin: "You know that dog you gave me last week? Well, Ma says you shall come and take them back."

"If a piece of steak fell on the floor," asked the mistress of the new cook, "what would you do with it?"

"Is this a boarding house?"

"No!"

The new member of the golf club was swinging his new clubs happily waiting for his turn to tee off. "Do you know this game of golf?" an old duffer asked him.

"Betcher life I do! There ain't anything about golf I don't know."

"I played nine holes with Bill Gardner yesterday and he told me all there is to know about golf."

Bobby: Nothin.' He was bigger'n me."

"Yes, from Indiana," she replied. "Hoosier girl."

Newspaper men as a general rule keep harping on their poverty. That does not add dignity or prestige to the profession. Now generally we do not approve of such a poverty complex, but the following catchy bit of poetry, composed by a Wisconsin editor, will bear reprinting:

"Lives of great men all remind us
Honest men don't stand a chance
And departing leave behind us,
Bigger patches on our pants.
On our pants once new and glossy
There are stripes of many a hue
All because subscribers linger
And won't pay us what is due.

Let us all be up and doing
Send your mite however small
Or when the cold of winter strikes us
We shall have no pants at all!"

"You want to stop now?" said the golfer. "Why we've only played five holes."

It was her first day at golf and she said: "Well, the pro told me that the par for the round was 76 and I've played that number already.—Fathfinder."

An enterprising Sullivan young man went to Decatur this week and helped his sister clean house. He liked the job so well that he is of a mind to organize a house-cleaning company.

At the THEATRE

Joan Crawford and Robert Montgomery in "Letty Lynton" this Thursday and Friday. This picture has received much favorable comment from the boys and girls who criticize and praise. We presume that it is much out of the ordinary and really meritorious.

Did you like the "Trial of Vivienne Ware" shown here this week? We thought it was rather punk. The radio announcements of Skeets Gallagher and Zazu Pitts were just so much added bunk. The plot of the whole story was simplicity itself. The actors did the best they could with it. That's our opinion. You may have liked it.

"Carnival Boat"

Saturday night's performance should draw a big crowd. It is a lumbering camp picture. Hobart Bosworth plays the part of camp boss and Bill Boyd is his son. Among the big trees and among the sturdy and hardy sons of the ax and saw the tale develops. A carnival boat makes its annual tour of the cities along the stream on which the camp is located. Bill Boyd loves a lassie on this boat. This gives you a sort of general idea on which an excellent entertaining show is built. The heroine of the play is Ginger Rogers; Others who have prominent parts are Fred Kohler, Marie Prevost and quite a few more. We'll predict that you will like this show. There will also be some short subjects and serial.

Here's a theatre invitation for Miss Dorothy C. Purvis.

The Lost Squadron

The show Sunday and Monday is not a war picture. It is not based on the incident of the World War's "Lost Squadron", but is a picture of Hollywood. It is packed with thrills and melodrama. Four famous flyers—Dick Grace, Art Gobel, Leo Nomis and Frank Clark do some wonderful stunts. This picture is being favorably commented on wherever reviewed. It has an exceptionally able cast—Richard Dix, Mary Astor, Erich von Stroheim, Dorothy Jordan, Joel McCrea, Robert Armstrong, Hugh Herbert and Ralph Ince. This said to be "A self-sacrificing brotherhood of men—air thrills galore—spectacular airplane crashes—and a glorious romance combined in a vivid air-thriller. It was good to inspire such press-agent adulation. (If Charles Reeder can find this invitation, it will admit him to the show). Other things on the program are: Mickey McGuire, Scrappy Cartoon and Pathe News.

Warner Baxter

It has been some time since a Warner Baxter picture was shown here. Baxter pictures are usually good. Tuesday and Wednesday of next week this popular actor appears in "Amateur Daddy" which will be shown at the Grand. Others having eluding parts are Marian Nixon and Rita LaRoy. This is said to be a romantic drama as delightful as Baxter's production "Daddy Long Legs." A confirmed bachelor takes it upon himself to raise the family of his pal who meets death accidentally. Four child stars have a prominent part in the picture. Judging by the description this looks like a peach-ino of a picture. Besides this, there will be comedies, novelties and curiosities.

"The Wet Parade"

Thrills of modern life, exciting happenings which appear daily in newspapers and the engrossing adventure of a young man and woman who find the fight for love and happiness as hazardous as the most fantastic jungle adventure, form the plot details of the "Wet Parade", which will be shown here next Thursday and Friday.

The story, based on Upton Sinclair's sensational novel, opens on an aristocratic Southern plantation before the World War, depicting the tragedy of a young girl whose father is driven to suicide as a result of his obsession by liquor. Because of this, the girl becomes an almost fanatic supporter of the cause of prohibition but as the succeeding years bring about first the 18th Amendment and then the modern era of bootlegging activities, she finds herself the center of a series of exciting happenings which rise to a thrilling dramatic climax.

This picture has caused more or less commotion. The political wets who think beer can save the nation don't like it and the political dries who think their fantastic ideas spell salvation are inclined to be dubious about it. That ought to make it a good human interest story. It has a good cast featuring Walter Huston, Lewis Stone, Niel Hamilton, Robert Young, Jimmy Durante, Wallace Ford, Myra Loy, Joan March and others. If all of these folks get but a small hitch apiece, the play should prove interesting.

Manager Hays says that there will also be Pathe News and Novelty reels.

"YELLOW JACK" NOT DEAD

The term "yellow fever" is an empty phrase to perhaps a majority of people under 30 years old in this country. Its meaning is as vague and remote as that of the word "leprosy". Even physicians under the influence of enthusiasm for preventive medicine and the achievements of sanitation have been heard to declare that yellow fever has been eliminated from the world.

Popularly known as "Yellow Jack", probably no other disease ever struck into the hearts of men greater alarm and panic than has yellow fever in the United States. No less a city than Memphis has been depopulated more than once at the news of yellow fever in the lower valley. Villages and cities from Cairo to New Orleans were practically abandoned when news of an approaching epidemic of yellow fever was announced. Sometimes few of the courageous who stuck to their homes lived to regret their choice of action. From the little town of Grenada, Mississippi, for example, in 1878, the city marshal who undertook the functions of mayor sent a telegram to the mayor of Wilmington, which read as follows:

Help us to pay nurses and bury the dead. Our town is a graveyard. We need help. The mayor is dying and I am the only officer left.

These conditions, which recurred periodically until early in the twentieth century, disappeared rapidly after it was discovered that yellow fever is spread only by infected mosquitoes. Control over mosquitoes on the one hand and the isolation of yellow fever patients so as to keep out mosquitoes on the other quickly subdued yellow fever in many parts of the world.

Now comes the disquieting news that the United States is by no means immune to yellow fever and that a new introduction of the disease into this country is well within the realm of possibility. Investigators of the U. S. Public Health Service have discovered that air planes coming into southern ports from Central and South American terminals may bring live mosquitoes which have found their way into protracted parts of the ship prior to the take-off. While this possibility does not now result in the frequent transportation of mosquitoes it must be remembered that air traffic is likely to increase along those particular routes and also that only one infected mosquito is necessary to start a lot of trouble.

Africa still provides a great reservoir of yellow fever and the disease still persists in certain parts of Brazil. As late as 1929 yellow fever reappeared in Columbia. Everlasting vigilance will be required to maintain the advantage which has been achieved over yellow fever.—Illinois Health Messenger.

ANNOUNCE APPROACHING

MARRIAGE OF R. BROWN

The announcement of the approaching marriage of Robert Brown of Akron, Ohio, son of A. A. Brown, of this place, has been made. The wedding will take place June 4th at Akron. Mr. Brown and son, Richard are planning to attend.—Lovington Reporter.

Several folks were entertained to a pot luck dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Lucas Monday. Those present were as follows: Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Gardner, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Gifford, Mrs. Lucy Ralston of Chicago, Mrs. Cynthia Newbould and Mr. and Mrs. John Lucas and family.

HOBBIES

By Dorothy Watkins

I have heard that Adam and Eve spent their perfect days in gardening and their descendants of today come nearest to the peace of Eden when engaged in garden work. There is something about this work, which eases the tension of life and renews strength in the beauty of it all.

Gardening brings happiness, health and friends to all, we get happiness by the joy of creating beauty, health by doing our own work and being out doors and friends, whose interest is our interest and we meet those other gardeners regardless of race, creed or station in life by exchanging seed, plants and experiences.

I have seen a woman with a small garden just as happy as her next door neighbor who owns acres.

What is a hobby? It is a favorite object or occupation, which you enjoy very much. If you stop to think, all of us have one and really enjoy life more by it.

Mine is gardening, as you probably have thought by reading the first few lines.

I like flowers more than any other plants and really should call my small plot of ground, a friendship garden, for I have exchanged my plants and seeds and in this way gained many and a great variety of plants and new friends.

As each flower blooms I think of the friend who gave it to me or call the plant by his or her name. I could write and write about flowers but I want to tell you of my neighbors hobbies. Three of my neighbors play musical instruments. This is a recreation to them while reading and writing is to others.

I have an aunt who lives close by who makes quilts. She has many beautiful ones of all patterns and designs and does this when not busy with her house work.

One woman keeps an account book, another a diary; a girl I know buys handkerchiefs every chance she gets and she has more now than all the women in the neighborhood own.

A very dear friend of mine delights in cooking and folks just love to eat a meal at her home.

This includes the men, for they also have hobbies, as raising pure bred stock, truck patches and owning a workshop for machinery repair as a side line to their other work.

One of our neighbors is interested in aeroplanes and makes a study of this along with his farming.

Why not spend a few hours a week doing the thing you like best and life will not be so monotonous as some people claim it to be?

NEIGHBORS GAVE FAREWELL PARTY FOR WARD FAMILY

Mr. and Mrs. William Ward and daughter Leo were pleasantly surprised Saturday evening when the neighbors gave them a farewell party at the home of Mrs. Genevieve Lowe. The Ward family expect to leave sometime in June for California where they will reside.

The party proved to be a complete surprise, as the Ward family had been invited to dinner at the home of Mrs. Lowe that evening. The guests gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Wood and then went to the Lowe home in a group. A pot luck dinner was served and a social time enjoyed by all present. The following attended: Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Scheer and family, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sona and family, Mrs. Hal Sona, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Wood and son Harris, Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Hill and daughter Beatrice, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Collins, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Shanks and son Billy, Dr. and Mrs. S. J. Lewis and family, Mrs. Hettie Purvis, Mrs. Minnie Heacock, Misses Pauline and Helen Howson, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Spates and children.

IN LITTLE OLD NEW YORK

A New York department store is offering a baby carriage equipped with a wind-shield.

Down at Fifth Avenue and Tenth Street is the old Church of the Ascension. It never closes its doors. Day and night it is open to all who wish to enter. Men and women go into the church at all hours of the day and night.

It is said that there are very few buildings in New York where it is possible to telephone without being obliged to talk above the sound of riveting.

He was with a party of five and he was insistent. He had been there many times. He knew Joe and Joe always let him in. Also he was a personal friend of Mr. Murgatroyd and Mr. Murgatroyd practically lived in the place. The polite gentleman at the iron grille insisted firmly that it was a private house. Finally, in desperation, the man with the party of five said: "I can describe the wall paper." He did and they let him in.

In New York there is a law against climbing on the statues in Central Park.

It is against the law to throw banana skins in the river while riding on a ferry.

No person may fire a cannon in New York except on July 4.

Strange as it may seem, there is a lively trade here in Central American iguanas or lizards. They are eaten. Sharks' fins, cuttlefish, whale steaks and fried locusts are also served in this city.

New York is known as a city of skyscrapers and yet it is true that the average height of buildings on Manhattan Island is only five stories. New York's tall buildings are taller than those of other cities but its low buildings are lower.

The wig and toupee manufacturers report that business is good. It seems that men are getting bald and the women are wearing more hair.

One New York shop is selling rings with removable stones. A set of colored stones is sold with each ring. They can easily be screwed into position.

New York's cat population is estimated at 1,500,000.

There is a nursery company here which last year sold $600,000 worth of orchids.

Business Is Held Back by Rate Chaos

Regulation of rail rates may be irksome at times, but it serves one outstanding good purpose; it makes the rail rate a dependable factor in business.

Rail rates must be published and strictly adhered to. Every shipper knows what his rate is and what his competitors' rates are and can act accordingly.

This is not the case with less regulated forms of transportation. Some have published rates to which they adhere, but most of them are under no such compulsion.

The results are economic chaos, disruption in business, another unstable factor to complicate competition and retard the return of normal times.

This much can be agreed: if regulation of rail rates is a good thing, equal regulation of rates for all other transportation is a good thing.

Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.

The Gray House Mystery

By CLARRISSA MACKIE

WHEN the doctor ordered Sallie Barr into the country for complete rest and isolation from society, the first thought that came into Sallie's lovely head was a beautiful one about the old gray house that Uncle Peter Barr had left to her in his will.

"I want to get away from people, mumsie, dear," Sallie told her mother. "Imagine the old Gray house, two miles from everybody."

"Then I will write to Mrs. Lunt and tell her to get ready for you, Sallie. Do you want to take your runabout with you?"

"I believe I'll drive down there myself—that will be fun—only 65 miles—and I'll send you and dad a wire the moment I arrive. The post office is Wiggins station, I'm sure."

"I thought they received their mail at Gearing—Gray house lies half way between the two villages." And that was the beginning of the mystery, for Mrs. Lunt never received Mrs. Barr's letter.

A week later Sallie Barr stopped her car at the tiny railroad station in the hills of Connecticut, and sent off a telegram. "Arrived safely—send all mail to Wiggins station—feeling splendid after lovely ride. Sallie."

After inquiring her way to Gray house Sallie hopped into the little car and started off to "her own house."

"Mmmm-nf! Broiled chops, baked potatoes," sniffed Sallie hungrily as she mounted the steps and plied the brass knocker.

"Bless my soul, Miss Sallie, dear, what are you doing here?" bleated Mrs. Lunt. "Why didn't you send me word, Miss Sallie? I would have been prepared for you."

"Didn't you get the letter mother sent?"

"No—we receive our mail at Wiggins station—perhaps she sent it to Gearing."

"She did. I wired her from Wiggins," she smiled, as she explained about her banishment from the social whirl.

"I will go down and prepare your lunch now," said Mrs. Lunt, departing hastily. There was the pleasant smell of good tobacco.

"Make me think of poor Don," thought Sallie sadly, as she bathed herself and got into some summery clothes. Don Roberts was a young man, a poor young man and proud, who had tried to forget Sallie, who was rich, and who had proudly let her go with an aching heart. She would not admit that incident had anything to do with her illness.

"I believe this house is haunted," Sallie said next morning at breakfast.

Mrs. Lunt stared at her with a stricken face. "I believe it is, Miss Sallie. By a gentleman who plays the violin," she added.

"Days passed, and now and then Sallie heard the ghostly music from the tower room; she never investigated the tower, but she did think it odd one moonlight night when the music was suddenly stopped by the jarring discord of a broken string. A sharp exclamation in a masculine voice brought Sallie to her feet. "I do believe Mrs. Lunt is deceiving me," she said slowly. "She is keeping a boarder here, or she has a guest." She went to the window and looked down at the tempting garden. "I'm going down there before I sleep," she thought.

The garden was drenched in moonlight, and the roses heavy with dew. Sallie buried her face in a full blown pink rose.

A sound startled her. Some one was approaching along the path between the taller roses.

"Specters can't make sounds," her common sense whispered, as she lifted her head haughtily. The shadow of a young man approached, saw her, and stopped in front of her.

"Sally," he whispered. "Not Sally—here—why, I'm seeing things!" It was the voice of Don.

"You are seeing Sally Barr—and nobody else!" murmured that young woman courageously. "This is my house—and my rose garden—how dare you haunt it?"

"I came here because I was ill and was ordered to a quiet place," was his dignified reply. "Mrs. Lunt very kindly took me in as a boarder; she has just explained about your owning the house, and of course, I am leaving in the morning."

"Of course," mimicked Sally. "You—don't care—whether you break my heart or n—not." And then the ghost proceeded to behave like a very real young man very much in love.

"And they're going to live at Gray house," marveled Mrs. Lunt when they came in and told her all about it.

Old Mr. Lunt smiled at his wife and nodded his silver head. "Wherever there's an old gray house, and moonlight, and ghosts, there's bound to be a happy enough ending love story," he chuckled.

And Sally and Don, planning the happy life of country folk, kissed each other, and Sally whispered softly, "And a violin with a broken string! My ghost!"

Farm Bureau

A 4-H club officers' conference was held at the Farm Bureau office Wednesday night, May 25. E. I. Pilchard, state club leader from Urbana was present. Mr. Graham of the U. S. Department of Agriculture was also present. He gave a very interesting talk pertaining to the history of the 4-H club movement, he being one of the pioneers.

Ernest Wining of the Happy Corner club of Lake City gave a talk describing the benefits which he had received from last year's club conference. Jack Purvis gave an extemporaneous discussion of Strawberry project and Dorothy Jean Tipsword of Bethany displayed her ability on a harmonica. Dorothy is a beginner in The Dairy Calf Club work. The club in that vicinity expects to develop an orchestra of its own.

Social Session
The entire group entered into songs and recreational stunts that were enjoyed by all. Quite a few leaders and club officers were present. Mr. Pilchard discussed responsibilities of club presidents and vice presidents.

Charles Shuman held a separate session with the club secretaries, instructing them as to their duties and J. H. Hughes gave special instructions to club reporters.

Quite a few of the Strawberry Club members are now beginning to harvest the fruits of their endeavors and have already marketed quite a few berries.

Monthly Meetings
Club members throughout the county are holding monthly meetings at the Farm Bureau office, at which time matters of general importance are discussed in addition to the extension of the recreation program, which is usually enjoyed by the parents as well as by the club members.

Plan Tax Program
The Farm Bureau is developing a tax program and expects to give quite a little detail and study to this question. The purpose shall be to find or make a way to reduce taxes or to make some substantial revision of taxes downward without necessarily causing any impairment of public services needed. The Personnel of the committee in East Nelson township has already been select, which is as follows:

Julian Dist.—C. A. Lane.
Miller—James Epperson.
Purvis—Geo. Daugherty.
Palmyra—Roy B. Martin.
Allenville—C. F. Ames.
Henton—Reuben Davis.
Vernon—Farley Young.
Crabapple—S. J. French.

This sort of an organization will be carried on throughout the entire county and they expect to give matters a very close study to avoid any radical measures that might affect the public service in any way. It is felt that a comparison of costs following a survey in different sections of the county will assist the committee in determining what steps if any may be taken for any recommended changes.

Going to Urbana
Quite a few 4-H club members are planning to attend the annual 4-H club tour at Urbana June 8, 9 and 10. Usually some 1,000 or 1,500 members attend this gathering at which time, contests between choruses, orchestras and different other 4-H organizations taking part in event of the 4-H conference.

an abundance of sweet and harmonious carnival music. This week just after they had learned to love the carnival tunes, they must again do without and peace and quiet reigns. Live in hope, other carnivals may come. Other cities don't want them, but Sullivan does. We would not think of depriving our citizens of the carnival joys.

Next year on June 1st the Chicago world's fair, known as the Century of Progress, will be opened. This looks like a rather poor time to plan for world's fairs, but who knows what the year may bring forth. You may rest assured that the fellows who want the Republican party to continue in power will make all kinds of sacrifices to boost prices of farm products before November 8th. We hope they do.

This Thursday Democrats are having a meeting in Springfield. The main object of the meeting is to decide for whom the Illinois delegation shall vote after having given a complimentary vote to James Hamilton Lewis. Downstate favors Roosevelt. Chicago is being bossed by Tony Cermak and it is doubtful who Mr. Cermak will let them vote for. We are going over tonight to hobnob with the Democratic editors who have been invited to meet with the rest of the gang.

squares and their length is the same as the block. About 4 1/2 yards of color, 5 1/2 yards of white and 1/4 yard for border are needed. To piece it make first the individual squares as shown in the sketch. Join these into three strips and then into the block.

WAY OF LIFE

By Bruce Barton

WHY MEN DIE

Among the men whose friendship I enjoyed was the late C. W. Barron, owner of the Wall Street Journal.

One day in Boston I received a message that he was sick in New York and wished to see me before he died.

I hurried home by the fastest train, but when I reached his hotel I discovered that he had given up all idea of dying. He was in bed, but he was telephoning, dictating, receiving visitors and having a glorious time.

He had been close enough to eternity, however, so that the experience left a deep impression. When his secretary went out of the room, we talked about Death.

He told me two stories. The first was about a man who accumulated a large fortune, built a house on Fifth Avenue, put his feet on the window-sill, and said: "Now, I am going to enjoy myself." But he was like a watch spring which had been wound up tight for a long time, and, being suddenly released, snaps in pieces. After only a few months of idleness he died.

The second story had been told to Barron by a noted surgeon. A woman, taken to the hospital for a slight operation, died almost before the anesthetic was applied. The surgeon could not understand it. On looking into her history, he discovered that from the minute the operation was decided upon she begun to prepare for the worst. She had made her will, given away her jewels, and divided her personal property.

The surgeon said: "That taught me a lesson. I shall never again operate until I find out what preparations the patient has made. If any person cares so little about holding on to life that he makes all preparations to let go, then some other surgeon can have the job."

Barron said that by the degree of their courage and faith men themselves determine how long they will live.

I believe that is true—that those live who want to live; that when interest ceases, the heart stops. Montesquieu remarked that "the love of study is almost the sole passion that is eternal in us; all the others fall as this miserable machine which sustains them falls more and more into decay."

None of us can escape the process of decay, but there are many things I want to learn, so many places I want to see, that I hope to fool the old heart and kidneys for quite a while. And so, I trust, will you?

HOW GOLD FISH ORIGINATED

Gold fish do not exist anywhere in the wild state. They are a product of years of selective breeding. The wild fish from which gold fish are developed belong to the carp family and are still numerous on the streams of China. They are brightly colored, but appear like ordinary carp. Centuries ago Chinese fish culturists interbred light colored specimens to produce the colored varieties. Fanciers further increased the colors by regulating the quantity of mineral in the water. When gold fish are restored to their natural environment they soon revert to their original dark colors.—Exchange.

4-H CLUB NEWS

Many a 4-H club boy has found pig raising one of his most interesting and profitable projects. Some confine their efforts to market pigs. Not a few go in for purebreds. In this case the boy increases his market outlet, but also complicates his operations. His stock which does not come up to standard has to be sold for slaughter purposes. His better stock if offered to men who are already breeders, or are starting. To interest such men requires that a boy get "in the public eye" with his herd. The main ways to this are exhibiting and advertising. Usually a club boy can sell all he has suitable for breeders if he makes a good showing at one or more fairs, and of course, if he wins. So if a boy succeeds as a breeder and salesman he has done a mighty good job.

What a boy can do along this line is shown by the experience of Dale Reis of Colby, Clark county, central Wisconsin. He is the kind of boy who liked hard things to do. So he chose to make his pig project purebred Poland Chinas. To start he selected a fine young sow—a gilt—buying it from a well-known breeder in the state. The first year was one of study and preparation for later years. Then he increased his herd to two sows and his own herd boar the next year. As his father raised market hogs the herd boar could be used on the grade hogs, justifying the investment. In three years Dale had a herd of sows which raised 45 pigs.

A gold filled medal of honor will be awarded to the highest scoring canning club member in each county of the United States represented in this contest. From the records of county winners, state club leaders will select the state winner. A 17-jewel wrist watch will be the state winner's prize.

How Old?

He doesn't look a day over fifty. And feels like forty. At the age of 62.

That's the happy state of health and pep a man enjoys when he gives his vital organs a little stimulant!

When your system is stagnant and you feel sluggish, headachy, half-alive—don't waste money on "tonics" or "regulators" or similar patent medicines. Stimulate the liver and bowels. Use a famous physician's prescription every drug store keeps. Just ask them for Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin.

This appetizing syrup is made from fresh laxative herbs, active senna, and pure pepsin. One dose will clear up almost any case of headache, biliousness, constipation.

But if you want to keep in fine shape, feel fit the year 'round, take a spoonful of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin every few days. You'll eat better, sleep better and feel better. You will never need another laxative.

Give the children a little of this delicious syrup two or three times a week. A gentle, natural stimulant that makes them eat and keeps the bowels from clogging. And saves them from so many sick spells and colds.

Have a sound stomach, active liver and strong bowel muscles that expel every bit of waste and poison every day! Just keep a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin on hand; take a stimulating spoonful every now and then. See if you don't feel new vigor in every way.

Man Made the Town

By Ruby M. Ayers

She could not quite fathom the relationship between Diana and the good-looking man whose voice made her own lonely heart turn over with such wistful memories. She had once thought . . . but of course, that was too absurd; Rathbone would never seriously consider a child like Diana, though it was quite possible that she might have taken a wilful fancy to him. The Creature had known other cases where patients had temporarily fallen in love with the doctor who looked after them, but it seldom came to anything.

Diana went out into the garden. She was full of curiosity to know what Dennis would say to her; she supposed cynically that there would be more lies and pretense. He came quite early.

The smart two-seater raced up the road and came to a standstill at the gate where last night . . . Diana could not pursue that memory. Last night was like some live creature waiting to pounce upon her directly she was off her guard and tear her to pieces.

She opened the gate and greeted Waterman with a smile.

"You're an early bird," she said calmly.

She led the way and as soon as they were in the sitting room Waterman broke out:

"What became of you last night, Diana? I was worried to death. I thought something dreadful had happened. They told me at Palermo's that you had been and left suddenly."

Diana met his eyes serenely.

"Yes, I ran away," she said.

"Ran away? . . ."

"Yes, I found out that I didn't want to see you after all."

"What do you mean?"

"While I was waiting, Linda came in. It was quite an accident—she was not spying on us."

"Linda? She went to Paris yesterday morning?"

"She didn't; she was at Palermo's last night, and we had quite a little talk together."

She was quick to see the sudden suspicion in his eyes.

"It was Linda who made you change your mind," he said savagely.

Diana nodded.

He stared at her for a moment; then he broke out:

"I've told you again and again that you cannot pay any attention to what Linda says. She is a jealous woman."

"Oh, no; she's not in the least jealous of you or of me, if that is what you mean," Diana said calmly.

"I am not at all sure, Dennis, that you don't really like her a great deal better than she likes you."

"I don't understand what you mean. Whatever Linda told you, you can take it from me it is not the truth."

"Isn't it? Not when she said that she had offered to divorce you and that you had refused? I think it is the truth, Dennis."

He took a step towards her.

"It's a damned lie, Diana. You know I've told you scores of times that I would give anything I possess if only she would give me my freedom."

Diana smiled faintly.

"I know you have," she agreed.

"But that is the damned lie—not what Linda said."

She saw the dull color rise slowly to his face, and she turned her eyes away.

She felt sick and ashamed; not for her own sake, but for his. She had once thought this man so splendid; there had been a time when she would have given him everything she possessed—body and soul—and it hurt her unexplainably to know that he was so unworthy—even of her! she told herself whimsically.

After a moment she looked at him again; in the last few minutes he seemed in some unaccountable way to have lost stature—to have grown ordinary.

"So I ran away," she said again.

"And I shall never run back any more, Dennis."

She saw his lips move as he tried to speak, but he could find no words.

Then suddenly he went down on his knees, encircling her with his arms, hiding his face against her.

"Don't send me away, Diana. I love you so . . . I'll do anything you want—anything in the wide world—if only you won't send me away."

Diana tore his hands from about her.

"It's too late," she said again, and then, breathlessly, "Don't make me hate you, Dennis."

He stood up, his face convulsed with agitation, but now she no longer pitied him; she was only conscious of that sick, ashamed feeling that was almost physical.

He went on pleading, imploring, reminding her of all they had been to one another—all they would yet be.

Diana put her hands over her ears. She felt that it was more than she could bear; she felt as if he were trying to strip her naked instead of trying to cover and protect her, as Rathbone would have done.

She said at last, brokenly:

"If you only knew how you're hurting me."

He misunderstood that, eagerly grasping it as a sign that he was to be forgiven; he made the fatal mistake of trying to take her in his arms.

Diana fled away from him, putting the width of the little room between them, staring at him with wild eyes.

"Don't touch me—don't ever dare to touch me again!" she stammered.

They stood looking at one another as if they had been mortal enemies; then Waterman said thickly:

"If I go away now, Diana . . . I shall never come back."

Diana felt her lips twitching into a smile, but she repressed it and answered gently:

"I'm sorry, Dennis—good-bye."

Waterman left the cottage with as much dignity as he could command. His conceit refused to allow him to admit defeat; he and Diana had quarrelled so often before, and she had always been sorry. Soon—to-morrow or the next day—there would come a letter from her. He knew so well what its contents would be.

Her last night there, she received a letter from Dr. Rathbone.

"My Dear Miss Gladwyn:

"I saw Shurey this evening, and he tells me you are returning to London on Wednesday, so in case we do not meet again before then, and it is unlikely, seeing that during the next few days I shall be very busy, I want to impress upon you to take great care of yourself and not to overtax your strength. I am afraid this will read rather like a homily, but you must put it down to my poor powers of expression rather than to any other cause. I want you always to look on the bright side and believe that life is very largely what we choose to make it, in spite of disappointments and sacrifices. I am preaching to myself as much as to you, seeing that we both have to learn our lessons in the same hard school."

"If I were an eloquent man there is so much I could say, but I know you will understand. Keep a brave heart, and keep well. Good-night once again, Diana."

"Yours ever, "Donald Rathbone."

"P. S. I have added the postscript you spoke about on the other side."

Diana turned the page with a hand that trembled; her heart seemed to be turned to water, and there was a mist before her eyes so that for a little while she could hardly make out the last words he had written.

They were:

"I love once as I live once. What case is this to think or talk about? I love you."

CHAPTER XX

Diana's maid Anna drew the curtains back with a sharp little rattle, letting in the morning light.

She was still in London with Mrs. Gladwyn, as that lady had developed a sciatic pain and at the same moment had discovered a wonderful German masseuse who, so she declared, alone could cure it; so after all they had not gone to Scotland.

Church News

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Glenn M. Garber, pastor.

Man's first need is for a great Ideal in life, an Ideal so worthy of acceptance that he will turn to it with all the powers of his being. Life is hopeless unless one has a great Ideal to challenge it to higher levels of action and thought. The church constantly holds such an Ideal forth in the preaching and teaching of the person and message of Jesus. The church seeks to hold Jesus and his message before all men that they may see him, and, in seeing, be drawn to his way of life, the highest of all ways. In this way does the church add the most necessary contribution to the progressive well-being of our common life. You are invited to worship at the First Presbyterian church.

Announcement of services for Sunday, June 5:

9:45 Sunday school, Dr. Donald Butler, Superintendent.

10:50 Morning Worship. The pastor will preach on "The Enduring Life."

Place them in the offering plates, and your attendance will be thus registered.

Sunday night will be Church Night, with Roll Call of Organizations. Organization presidents, or leaders, are putting forth efforts for 100 per cent attendance of their membership. Participation in the service will be brief, but interesting. Let every member be loyal by church attendance Sunday night. This should be a great service. Visitors will enjoy it and note the working force of the church.

GOSPEL MISSION

Over the Post Office

Time of services the same. Sunday evening George Thompson and three of his friends Lucille Nietzel, Evalyn Like and Bob Moore of Chicago gave us an inspiring message in song, testimony and prayer. Mrs. S. R. Magill and Lenore Eileen of Springfield worshipped with us.

Ps. 9:9—"The Lord also will be a refuge for the oppressed, a refuge in time of trouble."

Oh the lives that are out on the sea of time, driven and tossed by the storms of life. Natural life is made up largely of things which trouble. We may escape them for a season but eventually they overtake us, our text implies that they will, and points us to a refuge, a place of security in the midst of trouble. It does not point us to a place far removed from trouble, but a refuge in the midst of trouble. The storm cellar is no guarantee that the cyclone will not come that way, but is a refuge from it when it does come. Taking the Lord as our saviour does not guarantee us a life free of trouble, but assures us a refuge in that time of trouble. The great storms of judgment are yet to come, are you ready, have you the Lord as a refuge?

namely, Mrs. Wm. Wostell, St. Louis, Mo.; Mrs. Wm. Sanders and Mrs. Wm. Roberts, Sumner, Ill., Geo. A. Perrott, E. St. Louis, Ill., Samuel W. Sumner; Richard H. Arthur; John Asa, Sumner; Robert W., German township. A number of nieces, nephews and other relatives are left also to mourn her departure.

C. E. T. Hagerman, son of B. F. G. and Becky Hagerman, was born Sept. 9, 1867 at Sullivan, Illinois. Age at departure from this life, 64 years, 8 months and 20 days.

Mr. Hagerman, known to his friends as "Charles", spent a life active in service to mankind and God. An earnest worker in the church he served for many years as trustee and as superintendent of the Sunday school. At the present time he was superintendent of Dist. No. 5, Lawrence County Council of Religious Education. He was a prominent member of I. O. O. F. and Modern Woodmen lodges of Sumner. For the past several years he has been associated with the "Sumner Press", recently as business manager of the newspaper and as treasurer of the Sumner Press Publishing Co., a corporation.

He is survived by one sister, Mrs. Ollie Lansden of Sullivan, Illinois, 2 nieces, one grand niece and two grand nephews. Besides his father and mother, one sister and four brothers passed to the Great Beyond prior to this time.

Mr. and Mrs. Hagerman passed away Sunday, May 29, 1932 at 4:15 p. m. Death came suddenly as they were passing through Shelby county, Illinois, near Neoga, when their car in which they were riding was struck by a train. They were enroute to Sullivan, Illinois where it was their intention to spend Decoration Day.

It is symbolic of their lives, spent in happiness and mutual understanding, that they pass together to an Unknown land. Relatives and friends are left to mourn. Two places, which cannot be filled are vacant in our midst. But, God above, Lord of all, extends a never ceasing love and every-ready helping hand to sorrow stricken hearts in this sad hour.

Funeral services were held in Sumner Tuesday evening. On Wednesday the remains were brought to this city to the McMullin Funeral Home. At 2:30 o'clock services were held there in charge of Rev. C. E. Barnett. Several pastors who had accompanied the remains assisted in the services.

Burial was in a double grave in Greenhill cemetery. The local lodge of Odd Fellows officiated at the grave. Flower Girls were members of the Daughters of Veterans. Pall bearers were Charles Hankley, Matt Dedman, H. C. Shirey, Carl Hill, Frank McPeeters, Fred Sona, Joe A. Sabin, Sam B. Hall, E. O. Dunscomb, John F. Denton, A. P. McCune and Charles Lansden.

About May 1st a man stole a pad of Swift & Co., checks from the buying plant at Cisco. He has forged these by writing in names and signing them. All are made out in the sum of $11.90. A trail of these checks leads across this state and into Indiana and many merchants who were victimized are reporting to officials.

In Sullivan a bad check of this kind was passed at the bakery. Similar checks were passed in Dalton City and Bethany. The forger then headed south but later turned north and operated in Indiana. Quite a number of Danville merchants accepted worthless checks.
