Odd Fellows Grand Lodge Honors Warren

Arthur Man Who Was Charter Member of Lodge 50 Years Ago Presented with 50 Year Jewel at Big Meeting Friday.

On the 17th of September, 1883 five men met in Arthur and organized an Odd Fellows lodge. The 50th anniversary of this event was celebrated Friday night in the lodge's big hall.

One of the five charter members was J. D. Warren. The 50th anniversary of the founding of the lodge was also the 50th anniversary of his being an Odd Fellow. The other four charter members were W. H. H. Reeder, James K. P. Weaver, Dr. John Gibbon and V. W. Vermillion. Five members were necessary to institute the lodge and fearing that Dr. Gibbon might be professionally employed and unable to attend, the organizers "borrowed" T. H. Curtis of the Lovington lodge to be present at the first meeting so as to be sure of a quorum. All of these men have passed on except Mr. Warren, who is a hale and hearty Odd Fellow at the age of 72.

Many things have transpired since that first Odd Fellows meeting in Arthur. The work started by

Friends In Council's First Fall Meeting

The Friends in Council club met at the home of Mrs. Adilla Burns Monday afternoon for the first meeting of the club year which begins in October.

The club accepted an invitation to attend a meeting of the Lovington Women's club as its guests, next Tuesday, to be held at the home of Mrs. Ira Hoffman.

Mrs. Clyde Patterson is to have charge of a Junior club to be composed of sixteen members, children of club members to have the preference.

Mrs. Glen Garber will meet with club members at the library next Monday afternoon, to organize a glee club.

Following the business session, a sketch was put on by the past presidents, representing a broadcast. Famous characters, and some not so famous, were portrayed.

After the program a Kitchen shower was given in honor of the bride Mrs. Charlotte Cochran. Mrs. Cochran was completely surprised and received many useful gifts. Refreshments, consisting of cake with whipped cream and coffee were served. The next meeting will be held in the library.

Champions Emerge From Tournaments

With the sunny days of October, golf and its tournaments are slowly drifting toward championships.

Mrs. P. M. Hankla by defeating Mrs. G. R. Fleming again won the Ladies' championship of the local club.

Shelvie Tarter, the grounds keeper, in his first year of golf won the handicap tournament. The runner-up in this fray was A. O. Crono of Arthur and the final score showed his defeat by 1 stroke. The winner's handicap was 20; Mr. Crono's was 16.

Mrs. Frank Eads of Arthur won the women's handicap.

In the husband and wife mixup, Mr. and Mrs. Hankla advanced to the finals Sunday by defeating Mr. and Mrs. Frank Eads. Dr. Butler and wife are waiting to see whether the house of Hill or the house of Hudson shall triumph and have the honor of playing them to determine who the Hankla's opponents shall be in the finals.

The course is in excellent shape. The fairways are covered with bluegrass, closely clipped and the sand greens were never better. The golf fever of midsummer seems to have died down and only a few of the old addicts, who cannot restrain their golf enthusiasm still do battle with par.

THAT NEW STORE

Work on interior fixtures and stock arrangements of the Index Notions Company is steadily progressing. The store may, however, not be open until the latter part of this month.

MRS. KNEEDLER'S SISTER DIED WHILE IN CHICAGO

McMullen of the local funeral home went to Chicago and prepared the body for shipment. Mrs. Kneeder accompanied the remains to Little Rock where the funeral was held Wednesday.

Survey Started On Federal Road From Bethany

Project Will be Financed by U. S. to Give Employment to Moultrie Men Now Out of Work. Supervisors to Meet October 17.

Surveyors from the Paris highway office were busy this week surveying a route from Bethany west to connect up with Route 169. There are several tentative routes. This road, if built, will be of gravel construction and will be paid for out of Federal Relief road building funds.

The Board of Supervisors will meet October 17th to pass a resolution providing that the county will maintain this road if the Federal government builds it. The state highway department does not maintain Federal Relief roads.

The proposed route for this road is a little over 4 miles. Building it will furnish work to many.

Dean W. Peterson, field supervisor for the National Re-Employment Service of the U. S. Department of Labor was here Thursday of last week.

He called at The Progress office for information and to outline the plan of employment on Federal Aid Relief construction jobs.

Where such a job is undertaken a county Employment Relief committee is named. This committee is to be representative of the county and will see that the employment is distributed all over the county. The

Gas Engineers Not At Meeting

The city council meeting Monday night was a rather quiet affair. Routine business was transacted and claims were audited and ordered paid.

It was expected that some representative of the McBride Gas Engineering Company of St. Louis would be present to report on developments of the gas project. None appeared.

Reports say that 260 Sullivan householders have signed cards indicating a willingness to use gas, if a plant and distribution system is installed here. Commissioners, when interviewed, frankly stated, however, that there were many things pertaining to the project that they have never fully understood.

Vandalia has a gas plant of this kind now. Figures, as shown by a city official Monday night indicate that the Vandalia plant is not a paying venture.

Odd Fellows To Meet At Lovington

What has been advertised as the biggest Odd Fellows meeting ever held in Moultrie county, will be held in Lovington tonight (Friday) Lodge members from neighboring counties have been invited. Degree work will be exemplified by a team from Arthur.

Jesse Dick Won Fight to Re-open L. Scheer School

Father of Four Grade School Children Wins in Effort to Have Children Taught in the District Where They Live.

Lake Scheer school opened Monday morning with Miss Helen Freeland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Freeland, as teacher.

This ends a school tangle that had attracted much attention. It is also a victory for Jesse Dick, a farmer who lives near the Lake Scheer school and who insisted the school be placed in operation.

Lake Scheer school had not been open for several years. The few pupils who lived in the district were taken to the Bethany grade schools and tuition was paid for them. This meant that the district school taxes were very low.

During the past year the Jesse Dick family moved on to a farm owned by John Stark near the school. There are four children of grade school age in that family. There are two other pupils of school age in the district. The directors agreed not to have school this year and to take the six children to Bethany.

To this arrangement Mr. Dick and some of the other residents of the district objected. Mr. Dick insisted that the Lake Scheer school be reopened and that his children attend there. He stood pat on that proposition. He insisted that it was his right.

He refused to permit his children to be taken to Bethany but sent them to the Lake Scheer school each morning. When no teacher appeared they returned home.

"They threatened to use the truancy law on me," says Mr. Dick, "and I invited them to proceed. I wanted them to try it out. I knew that I was within my rights and that the law would uphold me. Evidently they were only threatening for when the showdown came, they re-opened the school. My children are now attending and, of course, any other children of grade school age have the same right, if the parents choose to exercise it."

As long as the case did not get into court, the question as to the right of directors to close schools remains an open one. Had it gone into court, a decision would have been reached that would have been conclusive. As matters now stand, it looks as if the school officials preferred to give in to Mr. Dick's wishes rather than engage in a long legal controversy.

The school bell rings at Lake Scheer. One more teacher has employment.

Sullivan Officials To be Heard Oct. 11

City Clerk J. E. Martin received a letter Thursday morning asking that Mayor McFerrin, Engineer Wood and City Attorney Meeker appear in the U. S. court house in Chicago at 3 o'clock next Wednesday to present the city's proposed sewer plans before the Advisory board of the Federal Emergency Public Works commission.

As this matter comes under the jurisdiction of Commissioner Ben Luke's city department he will doubtless also accompany the committee.

The city is endeavoring to get a Federal Aid Allotment for building a sanitary and drainage sewer for Sullivan.

James L. Bryom Dies; Funeral Here Thursday

To this union four children were born. One died in infancy; one son Eddie, died several years ago. Mrs. Sipe and Jesse Byrom survive as does the widow.

The Byrom family lived on a farm west of this city many years. Eight years ago Mr. and Mrs. Byrom went to Texas to live with their daughter. About a year ago they all moved to Decatur. Mr. Byrom always retained a great interest in Moultrie county and read his copy of The Progress each week.

When the deputy arrived at the Bradley home, following a telephone call, he saw a man leaving by the way of a window. He called on him to stop and when he failed to do so, he shot twice. The man hastened away. The officer found him at the Charley Jackson home. Bromley, who seemed to have been drinking, denied that he was the guilty person. He had no stolen goods on himself when arrested. Entry and exit to the Bradley home were made by breaking windows.

Sullivan For NRA Program For Recovery

Charge of "Apathy" Published in Decatur Papers is Untrue. Codes Being Compiled With in Employment and Hours.

Sullivan is not apathetic toward the NRA, as was announced in a Decatur newspaper this week. Most of the employers who come under NRA labor provisions have complied with the recovery act. The Brown Shoe factory, largest employer of labor here, is operating under the code. Other employers have shortened hours and increased wages to the minimum that the law requires.

The fact that there is not much commotion about the matter here is due to the fact that Sullivan employers have been, in most cases, paying above the minimum wage which the NRA provides.

Because the people of this community made a tremendous sacrifice in 1929 and spent over $100,000 to secure a shoe factory and employment, there has not been very much unemployment here and there are no vacant houses. All of this does not mean, however, that Sullivan is not heartily behind the NRA and any similar measures for industrial recovery that President Roosevelt may place in effect. Sullivan people did not join in Decatur's parade for a very good reason. When Sullivan gets ready for a NRA demonstration it can stage its own.

In compliance with a request from Gen. Hugh Johnson an NRA compliance board was named the latter part of last week. The members of that board are as follows:

Harry Fulk—representative of retail trade employers.

Wm. Kohlhauff—representative of industrial employers.

E. O. Dunscomb—representative of retail and wholesale trade employers.

Mrs. C. E. McFerrin—representative of consumers.

Robert White—legal representative of industrial employees.

Ed Baumgartner—representative of industrial employees.

He that hasteth to be rich hath an evil eye, and considereth not that poverty shall come upon him. —Proverb.

God is pleased with no music below so much as with the thanksgiving songs of relieved widows and supported orphans; of rejoicing, comforted and thankful persons.

—Jeremy Taylor

Age is a quality of mind.
If you have left your dreams behind,
If hope is cold,
If you no longer look ahead,
If your ambition's fires are dead—
Then you are old.

But if from life you take the best
And in life you see the best,
And if love you hold,
Then no matter how the birthdays fly,
No matter how the years roll by—
You are not old.

The President And The Veterans.

President Roosevelt told the American Legion, assembled in convention in Chicago, "The fact of having worn a uniform does not mean that he (the veteran) can demand and receive from the government a benefit which no other citizen receives."

He did not wire this message. He did not send a representative to deliver it. He, in person, appeared before the Legionnaires and enunciated this principle.

Those words were not intended to please. They were different from the usual procedure of politicians with veterans.

These words were part of the President's address. In it he promised the government's aid to all veterans who, through wounds or disease, were disabled while in the service of the nation. He denied the justice of the federal government being called upon to pension, or aid veterans for disabilities after discharge. Only if the home communities and the states are unable to give such veterans aid, then the Federal government may have to step in and assist.

The attitude of the veterans seems to have been expressed by National Commander Johnson in these words. "We will continue to maintain that the war veteran is not in the same position as the average citizen, because of his service to his country in time of war."

If the Legion backs Commander Johnson's contention the issue becomes this: The President says that the mere fact that a man has worn a uniform in government service does not entitle him to any special privilege. The government will compensate him for injuries received but otherwise he is on a par with other citizens. The Legion says that service in uniform entitles a man to certain privileges that ought not be accorded the man who has not seen uniformed service.

The issue is plain. Like many other issues that President Roosevelt has brought before his people, it requires a new viewpoint—a different way of looking at things. Many veterans will approve this attitude. Many will not.

We look for this matter to evoke a lot of discussion and a lot of comment. Veterans who have been deprived of their pensions and others who have had their pensions reduced will bitterly disagree with the President's plain statement. Politicians will start recruiting the dissatisfaction to their own advantage.

But all will have to admire the courage of a President who can face the issue and clearly state his opinion on a matter of national policy. He may be right; he may be wrong; but he has the intestinal fortitude to think clearly and speak plainly.

Economy In Judicial Election.

Holding a special election for the one and only purpose of filling a vacancy on the circuit bench, caused by the death of Judge Horace McDavid, will cost thousands of dollars. Estimates run from $12,000 to $20,000. These election expenses will have to be paid by the counties in this district. These counties are all hard up. Such an expenditure would be a hardship.

If there is any possible way of saving the counties this expense it ought to be given careful consideration.

A special election will have to be held at some time. Governor Horner will set the date for that election. Until such an election can be held Judge McLaughlin and Judge Armstrong will have to take care of the duties which would have fallen to the lot of their late colleague. They can call in Judges to assist them, if needed.

In April of next year a state wide primary election will be held. This requires the legal setup of the election machinery. It has been proposed that the special election to fill the judicial vacancy be held on that same day and that the judges and clerks officiate as both primary and judicial election officials. This would save the greater part of the expense of a special election merely to fill the judicial vacancy. At its best, allowing for the necessary time to elapse between the date of the Governor's call and the date on which the election could be held, it would be but a short time before this primary.

We hope that the Governor will insist that the special election be held on primary election day in April. If he heeds the wishes of the voters, he will do this.

Some meetings have been held in Decatur where sentiment has prevailed for calling the special election at the earliest possible date. Even among the members of the bar, some opposition has been raised to this. Some of the prospective candidates for the nominations want to rush the matter. They say that Decatur needs its judge at the earliest possible date. Perhaps so, but little if anything will be lost by delay, if such delay saves the taxpayers money.

We are quite sure that Both Judge McLaughlin and Judge Armstrong will continue their strenuous efforts, made necessary since the illness and death of Judge McDavid, to give the people of the whole district that measure of judicial service which will answer the urgent need. The plea of the people is for economy in the expenditure of public funds. With this plea both of these judges are in complete accord.

These Political Postmasters.

These are sad days for Republican postmasters. They feel aggrieved and abused. The Democrats are gunning for their scalps and are taking steps to have them thrown out on their respective ears. Which is as it should be.

Practically all Republican postmasters are holding office as a reward for political service rendered. Civil Service, as it applies to appointments to postmasterships in the bigger offices is pure, undefiled bunk. The fellow with the political pull usually gets the plum, though he may (as sometimes happens) be a crass ignoramus.

The law then presumes that they become chaste and dignified and aschew all political activity. That asks something that is out of harmony with human nature. Every Republican postmaster who has received his appointment because of his political prominence cannot sit idly by without raising a hand occasionally to aid a meritorious brother toward the public payroll trough. He may do it in an under-handed way, but in some way the task is done. Just like murder, pernicious political activity will out.

And why should a Republican continue on the most lucrative job in a community when the people have decided they want Democratic administration? Or to reverse the situation, why should a Democrat hang on to the job, when the country goes Republican? Raus mit 'em!

No postmaster is indispensable in his job. They can be checked out with eclat and dispatch and will never be missed by the service.

The charges filed against our Sullivan postal czar not only tell of pernicious political activity, but even of the misuse of the office's cancelling stamp to aid his party. When, as has appeared in print occasionally, the postmaster says that he does not know what the charges are—that is not exactly truthful. We know that the inspectors who were here recently must have told him. One of these days, at the opportune time, all of these charges may appear in print, so all may know.

There is just one thing we ask of our Democratic friends who may succeed in getting postmaster appointments—if the tide should turn and the country should go as thoroughly Republican as it is now Democratic please respond to the wishes of the people and get out. Don't hang on like a poor sport. If you've had your fling, if you have had a reward from your party, do not disgrace it by poor sportsmanship and hang on for dear life to a job where the people do not want you. That may not be a Republican principle of government, but it is a Democratic principle and we would not turn a hand to help any Democrat if we felt he could not measure up to the definition of being a good clean sport.

Birth And Death On The Levee

Lyle Saxson

We are gathered together on the levee-top—white and black men, rich and poor—or, rather, yesterday we were rich and poor; tonight we are equal in misery, for the Mississippi has taken everything from us.

The broken levee-top is like a long narrow island. Twenty feet wide, perhaps, and water washing on both sides—black water that extends out in all directions, mile after mile, dotted with wreckage of our homes and covering the land endlessly.

We are tired out, hungry, wet, miserable. There are perhaps 50 of us, we sit upon the ground, afraid to sleep, waiting with forlorn hope for a rescue boat. We have no water except the yellow, foul stuff that is all about us. There is no food.

Only two white men. We sit with bowed heads, looking out into the darkness. A young negro woman, separated from her family, lies moaning. She is going to give birth to a baby before morning. She is having a hard time. The old women gathered around her have tried every charm and spell they know, but nothing works.

An old negro man lies near her, his head pillowed in the lap of his wife, almost equally old.

"De ole man's mighty bad," she says, "E won't las' long."

I sit disconsolately, thinking of the cotton fields and the fields of young sugar-cane, lying deep under all these miles of black water. Gone, all gone. All that we of the South have labored for, hoped for, lived for. For years we have curbed the river, fenced it into its channel. But now it has taken its land again, as it did in the old days, when it spread out as the Nile does, enriching the country for the coming year.

A negro man gave me a piece of stale bread this afternoon. Never have I tasted cake half so sweet as that crumbling loaf handed me by black fingers. He sits near me now, his head hanging down on his breast. I turn to him:

"Is that a light, out yonder?" His head snaps up, he looks.

"No, suh, I can't see nuttin'." "Yo' done fool me, boss!" he laughs.

How can he laugh in the face of this terrible night and black water?

"Where are you going when we get away from here — if we get away?" I ask.

"Maybe to New Awlins. Maybe somewhere else. . . I got to find Mattie—she's done got los' somewhere. She done gone up to de schoolhouse with her maw and sister when me and de rest of de niggers come out to work wid Mr. Jim. Dat was fo' days ago." He paused. "Mattie's my wife," he added as an afterthought.

So he had a wife out there in the black expanse of water. Safe? Drowned? Who could tell? We knew nothing and could only conjecture.

The white man beside me is a civil engineer. He has remained near the river studying the levees—working to build them higher, year after year. He has said little, except to talk to the negroes, reassuring them, although he has small hope himself.

Behind us the negro girl is screaming. The old women are trying to fortify her with one of their remedies—an open pocket-knife placed under her body, "to cut de pain"; but this seems to give no relief.

After a time a woman's quavering voice is heard:

"Well! Well! He's a dyin'-bed maker! Well! A dyin'-bed maker! Well! Well! He's a dyin'-bed maker!"

Ah know he's goin' to make up muh dyin'-bed!" The negroes are excited; they move about in the darkness. They cry and moan aloud. The big negro man leans toward me and says:

Sunday School Lesson

by Rev. Charles E. Dunn

SAUL IN DAMASCUS
Lesson for Oct. 8th. Acts 9:1-31

Golden Text: Corinthians 5:17.

The lesson introduces us to the thrilling story of the conversion of Saul, the persecutor, into Paul, the great-hearted apostle. So significant was this dramatic transformation that it is related three times in the book of the Acts, twice by Paul himself. As black carbon may be transmuted into white diamond by the rearrangement of its atoms, so his fiery enemy of Christ became a passionate herald of the Cross.

We first see Saul as a fanatical foe of all followers of the Way, seeking with relentless energy, to capture, bind and bring to Jerusalem from Damascus, as many of these disciples of the hated Master as he could detect. Suddenly, when near Damascus, he was blinded by a spectacular light from heaven. Falling to the earth, he heard a voice cry, "Saul, why are you persecuting Me?" Now note that the stricken victim of this strange interruption responded to this searching query by asking two highly important questions, "Who art thou, Lord?" and "What shall I do?" (see chap. 22:10.)

This is a day of reinterpretation. The Christian world has been stirred by the significant laymen's inquiry, "Rethinking Missions." But all departments of life need to be restated, especially religion itself. And there is hardly a better way to approach such a fresh definition of religion than to ask anew the two questions propounded by the dazed Saul on the Damascus highway. We need to know who the Lord we profess to serve really is, and then we need practical guidance in the immediate task of the hour.

Now Saul's momentous conversion can be explained in several ways. But the only explanation that does full justice to the scene is the spiritual. The cardinal fact is that Saul had a vision of the risen Christ. It was a Spirit that appeared to him, not flesh and blood, and to this Spirit, so overwhelmingly real, he henceforth gave his whole heart.

"De ole man's done die."

There are two groups discernible in the darkness now. One group of the negroes is around the old man, who still lies with his head in the lap of the old woman, and the other group is about the young woman. Her screams of pain now blend with the moans for the dead man, and the rushing of the waters.

The two white men, powerless to help, lean forward, burying heads on folded arms. The sky in the east is beginning to show gray.

The black man beside me speaks again: "Ah's worried 'bout Mattie—Ah shore wish daylight wuz heah!"

Another hour drags by. As the light increases we can see an old woman crouching at the levee's edge, holding something in her arms. She dabs a rag in the muddy water. And then, in the silence, comes a thin cry, like a cat mewling. One man is dead, but there is another life on the levee-top. We all crowd around to see the baby, lying naked in the old woman's lap. The mother, covered with sacking, lies with closed eyes.

"Hit's a fine big boy!" the old woman announces. Immediately there is a chorus of comment: "Great day!" "Gawd knows!" "What yo' goin' tuh name 'im sister?"

The black mother opens her eyes in the dawn and smiles a twisted smile. "Ah specks Ah'm goin' tuh name 'im Refugee," she says.

The old woman, leaning with bowed head over the body of the old man, continues to moan to herself. Above the horizon comes the broad face of the sun, round and red. On all sides is desolation. Only a strip of levee-top, an island on which we are gathered, and beyond to the left, the mighty river, roaring toward the Gulf, its surface dotted with drifting logs and uprooted trees. To our right are the inundated fields, with the tops of trees visible, and in the distance the tall tower of a sugar-house, standing clear of the flood. Wreckage is floating about—a chicken coop, a barrer, a broken chair from some water-swept cabin.

But there—up the river—plainly seen in the first rays of sunlight, is a steamboat. It is far off, but approaching. A shout rises from the levee-top. Slowly it draws near. Already the decks are crowded with other refugees, but there is room for us too.

Negro men carry the body of the old man aboard. Those already on deck roll their eyes in superstitious awe. Bad luck for a boat to take a corpse aboard. But the bowed figure of the old woman quiets their comments. The young mother with her new baby is greeted with a shout: "Lawzee! De flood done brought dat gal a baby! Um-Umh! The negro man who sat at my

The Girls And Boys

H. S. Butler

To me, it's very pleasant
When I am on the street,
To be greeted by the girls
And boys I chance to meet.

I don't always know them
They grow too fast, you see,
But still I don't let on
I think they may know me.

So when I say to them, Hello!
And pass the time of day,
I always find they greet me back
In a friendly, cheerful way.

If I know them, if I don't
I always act the same,
For oftentimes the strangers
Are the ones that call my name.

As I think back of former days
When I was still a boy,
I think of things that made me sad
And things that gave me joy.

And the people that I think of most
The ones I'll not forget,
Are those that always spoke to me
When'er by chance we met.

SOME PEACHES

The Illinois Chamber of Commerce has announced that from information available it was apparent that Southern Illinois growers this year sold about $2,000,000 worth of peaches. Centralia was right in the center of this year's big peach production, that area producing about 800,000 bushels.

The man in charge of the refugees asks where she was, and, on hearing, his face becomes grave. He shakes his head: "No, I haven't seen her."

Then, turning to the civil engineer, he says, "How can I tell that black boy that 15 nigger women were drowned up there at the schoolhouse? The building collapsed some time yesterday. We were there this morning. There's not one of them alive."

One consolation folks have here on earth is that they may not have to associate with people they dislike in the hereafter; it's just sort of temporary here. If, however, they wake up in the hereafter and find that they will forever and forever have to put up with such people, even the best heaven would be naught but a hell.

Every community has two types of news dispensers—the local paper and women's clubs. The women have the advantage, however. They talk about things that editors can't publish. Usually what the "club women" do not know, is not worth knowing. If you would keep your reputation safe, don't ever offend any prominent talkative club woman. She can with but little effort start rumors that tear your reputation to shreds and blacken your character so that even your own mother would be ashamed to own you. And it can all be done so innocently and in such a nice way! Beware of the female club woman, she's far more deadly than the male!

When you've set your mind to do it When your judgment says you're right,

When your conscience gives its sanction, Then pitch in with all your might. Don't let anything prevent you Though the odds seem big and strong;

Every obstacle must vanish As the swift days roll along— If you set your jaw and say— "Well, I'll do it anyway!"

A lawyer who was a very busy man was engaged to plead the cause of an offender, and he opened the case in his most virulent style, saying: "I know the prisoner at the bar and he bears the reputation of being the biggest liar and cheat and the most consummate all-around scoundrel in seven states—"

There was a flurry in the court room and the attorney's partner hurried up and whispered in his ear that the prisoner at the bar was his own client. The attorney never changed the expression of his face, and then went on: "As I have said, this man has the reputation of being an unmitigated scoundrel—but what great and good man ever lived who was not slandered by those around him and made the innocent victim of gossip and evil rumors?" —Exchange

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Glenn M. Garber, Pastor

One of the great churches of our country recently sent these words to its membership: There are a few persons who tell us that they have quit the church because they are not able to contribute as much to the church's financial support as they formerly did. They love the church, they want to see it grow and prosper, and they will return to its services, its organizations, etc., when the depression is over. This is very strange logic. They withdrew financial support because they are forced to, and then withdrew the support of their presence even though they are not forced to. It is exactly as though a man who had lost his money and his job and could not therefore send his mother as much money for her support as he formerly did, should tell her that on that account he must not come to see or write her any more. He must withdraw all appearance of interest in her, or affection for her, until he is again prospering financially. It is certainly a curious twist of logic. The church needs more than your financial support. It needs your active interest, your presence, your influence.

Announcement of services: Each Wednesday evening at 7:15 p. m., choir rehearsal at the church Sunday, October 8:

Oldest Native Daughter of Jno. Creek Is Dead

Mrs. Elizabeth Davidson Clevenger died Thursday night, September 28th at the home of her son Frank who lives West of Toledo, Illinois. Her death was caused by the infirmities of old age, having been 84 last April. She was the oldest living person who had been born in Jonathan Creek township, being the daughter of Joseph and Mary Davidson. She was the last of this pioneer family.

About 60 years ago she was married to Josiah Clevenger who died in 1914 at the family home near Toledo.

Mrs. Clevenger leaves one son, Frank and a daughter Ruby Pickering. There are eleven grandchildren.

says it is enough, and turns his back. God is not speaking here of Ephraim the son of Joseph, but he is speaking of the ten tribes of Israel, who at that time were spoken of as Ephraim. God did turn his back and for twenty seven hundred years he has kept his back turned. It will be a sad thing for us nationally if God has to say of us "Let them alone they are joined to their idols." I think we may also look at this scripture as applying individually. It is a dangerous thing to trifle with God, and ignore his pleadings, spurn his love, and reject His Son. During this twenty seven hundred years, Ephraim has made no effort to seek the living God, nor will they until God again turns his face toward them. It is a dangerous thing to ignore God's blessings.

APPLES FROM PENSACOLA WHICH IS IN S. CAROLINA

The Progress is in receipt of a box of apples from J. W. Dale, grown in his Pensacola, South Carolina orchards. In his letter accompanying the shipment he says "show them to some of my friends" and then tells that the apple crop this year has not been as good as expected but that it will doubtless be better in future years.

Now if Mr. Dale would remember our mutual friends real well, he'd know that when you start showing apples around it would be "goodbye apples." Furthermore there are not enough to go around so we'll ask all our friends to take our word for it that the apples were of fine size, excellent flavor and of a quality that establishes forever the supremacy of the mountain grown fruit. We never ate better apples. We are very sorry that our friends had to be deprived of the pleasure that has been ours. When it comes to apples we are selfish. We admit it and ask forgiveness.

Mm—mm, such apples! We wish now that J. W. had sent a carload instead of a box by mail.

Why Hospitals Use a Liquid Laxative

Hospitals and doctors have always used liquid laxatives. And the public is fast returning to laxatives in liquid form. Do you know the reasons?

The dose of a liquid laxative can be measured. The action can be controlled. It forms no habit; you need not take a "double dose" a day or two later. Nor will a mild liquid laxative irritate the kidneys.

The right liquid laxative brings a perfect movement, and there is no discomfort at the time, or after.

The wrong cathartic may keep you constipated as long as you keep on using it! And the habitual use of irritating salts, or of powerful drugs in the highly concentrated form of pills and tablets may prove injurious.

A week with a properly prepared liquid laxative like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will tell you a lot. A few weeks' time, and your bowels can be "as regular as clockwork." Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is an approved liquid laxative which all druggists keep ready for use. It makes an ideal family laxative; effective for all ages, and may be given the youngest child. ???

Will you give us a few minutes of your time while we tell you about our shoe business?

You have doubtless seen our ads from time to time, but we'd like to have a heart to heart talk with you, without mentioning any certain styles, prices, etc.

Our business is selling shoes to people of Sullivan and surrounding community. Day in and day out, we plan to give the very best of merchandise and service possible.

Our store is easily accessible. Our display windows always show the latest models. We carry a wide range of sizes and can, if necessary, secure special sizes and styles on very short notice.

The Sullivan Brown Shoe factory makes a quality shoe at low price. We sell that kind of shoe. The Central Shoe Company of St. Louis is a selling organization for the Brown Shoe company. They supply us with shoes.

THE BROWN SHOE COMPANY IN ITS OTHER FACTORIES MANUFACTURES THE VERY HIGHEST QUALITY SHOES. WE ALSO SELL THOSE BRANDS.

We aim to carry a line that will satisfy the customer who has but a small amount to spend, as well as that customer who can afford the highest quality footwear.

By selling shoes made locally, or rather, by selling the complete Brown line, we help to give employment to Brown Shoe factory employees. We helped to get the factory for Sullivan to give work to people of this community. We strive in every way to be headquarters for the shoe needs of Sullivan and its surrounding trade territory.

Our prices are always reasonable. We are established here and not only sell shoes, but shoe satisfaction. We want the privilege of doing business with you. When you need shoes, will you try our Sullivan store first? We thank you.

Answering Critics Of Gov. Horner's Relief Problems

The Legislature met in special session Tuesday. One object of this session is to provide relief for the unemployed. In the downstate of Illinois much propaganda has been spread that the Governor's relief proposals will be a hardship on the downstate for the benefit of Chicago.

Representative Lewis of Robinson, Illinois publishes a newspaper in that city. In an editorial in that paper he last week set forth clearly the situation just as it exists from his viewpoint. He being a downstate, naturally cannot be accused of seeing only Chicago's side.

He explains the relief situation in Illinois as follows:

(By Rep. F. W. Lewis)

Since Governor Henry Horner announced his decision pursuant to the suggestions of the Federal government, to call a special session of the General Assembly to consider the enactment of a $30,000,000 bond issue for unemployment relief purposes, the perennial critics have rushed into print with objections to this plan. Those critics however, offer no practical substitute plan, and, as usual, have as yet failed to offer a single constructive suggestion.

There are only two possible methods of dealing with the situation; namely: (1) the unemployed—approximately 250,000 families of them in Illinois—can be fed, or, (2) the State can repudiate its responsibility to the unfortunate victims of the depression and permit them to starve.

Which method do the opponents of the proposed bond issue advocate? Analysis of their criticisms, generally speaking, does not provide a clear cut answer. They say they are opposed to the bond issue. In fact, they're opposed to everything, and offer nothing in return. When they say they are opposed to an increase in taxes, they merely state the Governor's oft expressed view. He is not only against increased taxation, he stands for definite reduction in taxes.

If the opponents of the bond issue desire to terminate relief activities at once, and deprive 250,000 families of the necessities of life, let them say so. If that is not their desire, they should come forward with some feasible plan for obtaining the money to continue unemployment relief in some other way. The Federal government properly takes the position that it will not help us further in unemployment relief unless Illinois does its share.

No person is more concerned than Governor Horner in terminating the necessity for unemployment relief at the earliest possible moment. He has stated and restated his position on this point. But it is an incontrovertible fact that unemployment relief cannot be shut off now, or in the immediate future. The consequences of such action are too dreadful to contemplate.

Only by assuring the Federal Emergency Unemployment Relief Agency that he would propose and stand back of the bond issue, did he prevent every relief station in Illinois being closed on Sept. 15th, or soon thereafter.

There is only one course of action to be taken, and that is to raise money in the speediest way possible, and in a manner that will work the least hardship upon the citizens of Illinois.

There are only two methods by which this money may be obtained: (1) By taxation, and, (2) By borrowing and repaying from the gasoline tax.

Do the opponents of the proposed bond issue plan favor a statewide tax on general property for unemployment relief?

If so, do they realize that counties outside of Cook would pay a considerable share of the unemployment relief burden there?

For many months, now, we have heard the demand that each county take care of its own unemployed. The proposed bond issue provides just exactly that and only out of each county's share of the gasoline tax.

It is obvious that the state tax rate on general property cannot and must not be increased. General property taxes, throughout the state, are overburdensome, and an increase in general taxes sufficient to meet the immediate needs of unemployment relief would precipitate further foreclosures and distress among property owners. General property taxes, on the contrary, must be reduced.

The only feasible way to provide the necessary money for unemployment relief is through this bond issue. The bonds would be retired by the counties' shares of the motor fuel tax, and in direct proportion to the relief bond issue proceeds expended in each county. This would obviate the necessity of any increase in the State tax rate, and would be fair and equitable to every county in the state, large or small. No county would pay back more than its proper share; each county would bear its own burden. Counties not needing relief would not be subject to payment for other counties.

Financing the cost of unemployment relief is, admittedly, a tremendous burden, one forced upon the State by circumstances over which it had no control. From an economic standpoint, as well as from a common sense standpoint, it would be unfair to our citizens to compel them, at this time, to pay the costs of this activity out of current revenue, which is, of course, receipts from taxation.

There is every sound reason for spreading the cost of meeting this obligation over a period of years. The normal years of industry, trade and commerce should bear as much of the burden of fulfilling this obligation as the lean years.

In authorizing a bond issue, subject to the approval of the electors in 1934, the General Assembly simply would be following a practice it adopted in 1932 when a like act was adopted by the legislature and approved by the people of the state.

Opponents of the proposed bond issue plan are advocating a re-enactment of the so-called Lantz bills passed at the last regular session of the General Assembly, and vetoed by the Governor on the opinion of the Attorney General that there were serious doubts as to their constitutionality.

Disregarding the questions as to the constitutionality of the Lantz bills, it appears that, in practical application to the problem confronting the state, the Lantz bills fall far short of solving it.

So far as Cook county is concerned, any taxes that might be levied there under the Lantz bills could not be collected until 1935 because Cook county is a year behind the remainder of the State in collecting its taxes, and this because of the reassessment ordered by the State Tax Commission several years ago.

There has been some suggestion that the retailers' occupation tax law should be amended so that its proceeds, after Jan. 1, 1934, can be used for relief purposes.

Governor Horner is unalterably opposed to that. He assured some of the members of the legislature, when the retailers' tax was enacted, that proceeds for the first six months only would be allotted to unemployment relief, and that, thereafter, the revenue would be applied to the abatement of the state tax on general property. Governor Horner is a man who does not give his assurances lightly.

Some of the opponents of the retailers' tax, who are also prominent among the opponents to the proposed bond issue plan, have declared that the retailers' tax revenue is not coming up to expectations. There is no foundation in fact for this statement. The payments are in line with preliminary estimates.

Before the bond issue plan was decided upon, the situation was thoroughly canvassed. Every possible method of raising funds has been studied. Governor Horner is following the only course of action that is open, unless, of course the General Assembly and the people of Illinois are willing to let 250,000 families starve.

"It is inconceivable," to quote the Federal Relief Administrator, "that any Illinois legislator will vote against relief for the unemployed."

Farm Bureau News

FARMERS OPEN DRIVE TO CUT THE TAXES

The huge Farmers Mobilization campaign and tax reduction drive is to be launched Monday according to announcement made by local leaders this week. This opening date was set for all counties in the state at a regional conference of campaign captains and lieutenants in Bloomington Wednesday at which Moultrie County was represented by a good delegation.

The purpose of this campaign is to unite a large number of farmers under one "code" calling for and pointing out ways of quickly obtaining (1) Higher Farm Prices; (2) Immediate and Adequate Farm Credit; (3) Lower Farm Taxes.

One of the big tasks of the campaign is the circularization of a petition to all taxpayers demanding that the Legislature submit a revenue amendment to the people in 1934 embodying the following principles:

(1) That the present limitations which prevent an equitable distribution of the tax burden be removed.

(2) That the total general property taxes shall not exceed $1.00 on the $100.00 fair cash value unless the excess is approved by referendum vote.

(3) That no further indebtedness shall be incurred by a taxing district without a referendum vote.

(4) That the General Assembly may by general law enacted by two-thirds vote distribute State revenues among local taxing districts.

Among the delegates from Moultrie at the Bloomington meeting were Fred Schuetz, J. W. Rauch, Oliver Schable, E. A. Brown, Arthur Bryant, C. B. Shuman and J. H. Hughes.

CHARLES SHUMAN NAMED ON WHEAT ALLOTMENT COM.

Officials in the wheat acreage reduction movement organized the Coles-Douglas-Moultrie Wheat Production Control Association here Thursday in the City Hall. Theodore Rath of Humboldt township, one of the most active workers in the early stages of the work, was named president.

Others elected were H. L. Gates of Tuscola, vice president; Ollie B. Scott of Mattoon, secretary; Fred G. McNutt of Charleston, treasurer. Fred F. Munson of Arcola and C. B. Shuman of Sullivan were elected as members of the district allotment committee. Mr. Rath, as president, is ex-officio member of the latter group.

"Organization of the association brings to reality the plans of local wheat growers to cope with the surplus problem and regain their buying power," said Melvin Thomas, Coles county farm adviser, today. "Backed up by wheat farmers throughout the United States and by the recent London international wheat control agreement, farmers of this county are now in a position to attack the wheat problem in a way which otherwise would not have been possible.

"The next step in the program to restore the buying power of the local wheat growers will be in the hands of the newly elected district allotment committee. This committee will go over the applications and assign each grower an allotment based upon his average production for the three years, 1930, 1931 and 1932 and upon the county allotment of 255,000 bushels. Later the allotment committee will prepare contracts for farmers who wish to co-operate on the basis of their assigned allotment. After these contracts have been properly executed, they will be submitted to the secretary of agriculture for use in payment of the cash bonus."

It Happened In Chicago During The Legion Convention

Cale Cunningham was taking a bath. Jim Lehman raised up in bed and in a startled tone of voice remarked "Boys our door is open." Dr. George Roney was out of bed in a twinkling and reported, "My pants are gone." He stuck his head out of the door. A lady of color stood there, the pants in her hand. "Am dese yours sah?" she asked and then explained "I found dem daown de corridor." George grabbed his pants and sank his hand in his money pocket. A wail ensued. "My money is gone." Roney in his BVD's and others in more or less of a state of dress and undress hurried out into the corridor. The lady of color had disappeared. About $10 in cash and George's stickpin was gone too.

All of this happened in Chicago this week at the Hotel Grant where the Legion delegates from Sullivan grabbed off a few hours of sleep Tuesday morning.

For Girls With Cold Feet

One thing the girl with the cold feet must do in order to solve her problem is to learn how to use her lungs: in other words, how to breathe fully and freely. It is amazing how few women breathe properly. The great majority are shallow breathers. Yet the habit of deep breathing is one of the most effective as well as the least expensive of beauty aids. The best sort of deep breathing exercise is a by-product of vigorous outdoor exercise. Active use of the large muscles increases the body's need of oxygen so that deep breathing is automatically stimulated. This is much better than standing still and trying to pump the lungs full of air. The habit of deep breathing may be established with the aid of indoor exercises that include free movement of limbs and trunk.

Maryland's State Motto

The motto appearing on the scroll below the coat of arms in the great seal of Maryland is "Fatti Maschi, Parole Femine," which is Italian for "Manly Deeds, Womanly Words." It was adopted on August 12, 1648. There is another motto in Latin, in the border of the seal, as follows: "Scuto Bonae Voluntatis Tuae Coronasti Nos," which means "With the Shield of Thy Good Will Thou Hast Covered Us."

"Underground Railroad"

No part of the so-called "underground" railroad was underground in a physical sense. This term was applied to the secret transportation of escaped slaves. It was systematic and co-operative. Houses of persons who would receive the negroes, feed, clothe, and conceal them until they could be sent farther North in safety were called stations.

26-Inning Game Features Co. Baseball Tournament

Kirkville Team Whips Lake City Nine 6 to 5

A baseball game that lasted five hours Sunday came near setting a record for time in the Moultrie tournament.

At 10 o'clock Sunday morning Lake City and Kirkville took the field, both loaded for bear. For twenty-six tense innings the boys battled until a missed third strike and a wild throw by the catcher permitted Kirkville to end the contest.

Bill Kinsel started pitching for Lake City but was relieved in the 4th after Kirkville had scored 5 runs. Sam Born then stepped to the mound and pitched 22 innings in which his opponents failed to score on him. With two strikes and two outs, Redfern the catcher threw wild to third to catch the runner off base. And then the game was ended.

For the winners Misenheimer started in the pitchers box and after allowing 5 runs in the first two innings, settled down to business and pitched 18 scoreless innings until relieved by Armstrong. Evans did the receiving for the Kirkville aggregation.

This long contest ended at about 3 o'clock.

Kirkville 6; Lake City 5.

Bethany Beat Indies

Elder's Sullivan Indies were all set to do their stuff but Bethany out-played them and won 6-4 in the second upset of a day replete with surprises. For Sullivan Dennis and Rozene pitched and Cowell and Blue worked behind the bat.

Next Sunday

Originally scheduled to be completed in one day, the tournament only got to its half way goal and the consolation and championship game are now scheduled to be played next Sunday.

In the Consolation set to Elder's Indies will play Lake City while Bethany and Kirkville will do battle to decide the baseball supremacy of Moultrie county. Both teams are strengthening their weak spots this week and a wow of a contest is in prospect.

U. OF I. WILL INSTRUCT BY CORRESPONDENCE

Urbana-Champaign Oct. 3.—The University of Illinois will inaugurate extension courses by correspondence for credit in the immediate future, Acting President Arthur H. Daniels announced here today.

The opening of a University extension division has been approved by the University Board of Trustees with the expectation that the correspondence instruction will be self supporting.

Courses in English literature, rhetoric, history, economics, mathematics, Latin, French, German and Spanish will be those first offered by the University.

Robert B. Bornewe, who has been serving as assistant to the dean of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, has been named Acting Director of the Extension division by Dr. Daniels.

The extension service has been started at this time to increase the University's educational service to the State. A large number of high school graduates, who because of economic conditions were unable to enter a college or university this fall, will now have the opportunity of continuing their education along certain lines.

Action was taken by the Board of Trustees only after a thorough consideration of the work by the University Senate Committee on Educational Policy, and finally by the Senate itself.

The teaching services in various departments will be adjusted so that the new work will not involve any new appointments or involve any increase in salaries.

Information regarding courses, credits, and fees may be secured by addressing Mr. Robert B. Bornewe, University of Illinois, Urbana.

ODD FELLOWS GRAND LODGE HONORS WARREN

These five men has resulted in much good. In the practice of the Odd Fellow principles of "Friendship, Love and Truth", these character members and those who later joined with them have exemplified the teachings of their lodge. They have visited the sick, buried the dead and given aid and comfort to the orphans, to the widows and to the aged.

Hundreds of men have belonged to Arthur lodge since that night of September 17, 1883. The lodge has seen its periods of prosperity and of adversity. It has accumulated some real estate holdings. It has spent thousands of dollars of money, paid as dues, to help its members and to aid in financing the Old Folks Home in Mattoon and the Orphans Home in Lincoln.

As a recognition of his 50 years of Odd Fellowship, the Grand Lodge I. O. O. F. of the state of Illinois, through its Grand Chaplain, Rev. Roby Orahood of Tuscola on Friday night presented Mr. Warren with a beautiful badge, known as the 50th jewel of the order.

One hundred and four Odd Fellows were in attendance at the meeting which was also in the nature of a district meeting for Douglas county. Many lodges were represented. Several excellent musical numbers and readings were rendered and talks were made. The main speaker of the evening was Forrest B. Gore of Champaign, who is one of the trustees of the Old Folks Home.

Those from Sullivan who attended the meeting were M. K. Birch, D. D. Kingrey, Walter Birch and Ed Brandenburg.

The Arthur lodge at present has a membership of 108 in good standing. Clarence Argenbright, a forward looking young Odd Fellow of 23, who has been a member since he was 18, is head of the lodge. Practically all the Arthur business and professional men are active members.

SURVEY STARTED ON FEDERAL ROAD WEST FROM BETHANY

Fact that the proposed road is wholly in Marrowbone township will not mean that only Marrowbone men will be employed.

The National Re-Employment service in co-operation with the county Employment Relief Committee will confer and advise with the contractor to see that the work is equitably distributed among the county's unemployed.

Until this matter is definitely closed by the action the supervisors propose to take October 17th, no Relief Committee will be organized. When the government is ready to begin operations such a committee will be asked for to give immediate assistance.

No Relief Reply

The Board of supervisors request for relief funds for the county has evidently not yet been acted on at Chicago headquarters for no information relative to same has been received here. If the request results in the county getting funds, such funds will also be handled through a special committee.

The National Re-employment Service is desirous of having one member of the Relief Committee as a member of its committee, so the relief and re-employment propositions in this county can closely co-operate.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASSES HAD WIENER ROAST FRIDAY

The Sunday School classes of the First Christian church taught by Mrs. Guy Kellar, Mrs. C. E. Barnett and Rev. Barnett were entertained at a wiener roast, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Elder, northwest of the city last Friday evening. Mrs. Barnett's class acted as host and led in a number of out door games that called for fast moving feet, after the feast of disposing of the bountiful supply of eatable provided. Over a glowing bed of coals the refrigerated "wienies" soon became "hot dogs" and rapidly went the way assigned them. The accommodating moon overhead provided sufficient light for the last entertainment provided, a treasure hunt. Following written directions, divided into three groups, over the trail they went. And what bunch of suckers they were as at the end they found the treasure, three sacks full of all day suckers. There were fifty present, and upon departing were unanimous in saying "let's do it again."

Sullivan Red Birds Lose First Conference Game

By Ebby Scheer

Oakland was victor over the Sullivan STHS eleven at that place Friday.

Oakland choosing to kick off, kicked to Poland who ran the ball back 10 yards to the 30 yard line on the third gain so they kicked back. On the third down Poland broke away for thirty eight yards. While changing the ball for a straight arm he fumbled and had to stop to recover. There Sullivan lost the ball on downs and Oakland completing a 30 yard pass ended the quarter.

Starting the second quarter Oakland advanced the ball to the 3rd yard line but was held for downs and Sullivan kicked out of danger. Oakland threw a 15 yard pass which was completed. Sullivan held for downs and punted. English intercepted a pass and Sullivan marched to the eighth and on the fourth down last the ball on an incomplete pass ending the quarter.

Oakland kicked to start the half. The ball went to Sullivan on her 20. They made two first downs and then were held. Oakland took the ball, threw one pass which was incomplete then had one intercepted. Sullivan then threw a pass which was incomplete; then made a first down to Oakland's 20. The first pass was intercepted and Annin, Oakland left half raced for the goal line 87 yards away. Barclay the Sullivan man could not catch the fleet Annin. The point was made by a fake place kick ending with a pass to the fullback in the flat zone. The try for point ended the third quarter.

Starting the last quarter Oakland again kicked off to Poland who ran ball back to Oakland's 40. The first play lost 5 yards, the second gained 8, the third 2, and the fourth 2. Oakland took the ball and ran it to mid-field. Sullivan again held for downs and kicked back after an incomplete pass. Oakland carried the ball from her own 35 yard line to Sullivan's 25 in seven plays where Sullivan took the ball with 58 seconds to go Barclay threw two passes which were incomplete. After the 3 yard penalty Poland threw another incomplete, then Barclay threw a pass to English which although complete and gained 20 yards was too late, for the gun went off ending the game.

Oakland gained 163 yards from scrimmage to Sullivan's 204. But Oakland made 12 first downs to Sullivan's 9.

The lineups were as follows:
OAKLAND SULLIVAN
Dorris, l. e. Mahony

Checking Up On Sports

by Jack Adams

H. H. Seeley of Amherst, Mass., in 1875, chinned himself with two hands, 65 times. That's probably a record.

In 1880 H. Leussing of Cincinnati with his hands alone, lifted 1,384 pounds. In 1868 W. B. Curtis of New York, with the help of harness, lifted 3,239 pounds.

Back in 1918 the Pittsburg Pirates playing against the Boston Braves went 20 innings without a score being made. In the 21st inning Pittsburg scored two runs and won the game.

Here is the record for fungo hitting: 419 feet, one-half inch. It is held by Ed Walsh, who at the time the record was made was with the Chicago White Sox. That was in 1911.

In a baseball game between Baltimore, National League and St. Louis back in 1892, Wilbert Robinson, playing for Baltimore, was at bat seven times and made seven hits: six single and a double. That's a record.

Women were not allowed to attend ancient wrestling matches. A few of them tried to get in by dressing in men's clothes, but they were promptly thrown from the top of a high cliff and the practice was broken up.

Future Farmers

WEEKLY NEWS

By Lawrence Filson

One of the biggest problems of any club or organization is that of selecting the officers. Adrian McClellan, State Secretary of the North Dakota Association of Future Farmers of America, has some worthy suggestions regarding the selection of officers. His suggestions are as follows:

"How to choose Future Farmer Leaders."

"Did you ever hear of the unknown leader? We have thousands of them in the world. We have hundreds of them in our organization, men of ability, men of courage, men who work while others look on."

"These men should be the officers and leaders in our organization. Why are they not? The answer is simple. Too often these real leaders are over shadowed by 'natural born leaders.' These are many times, fellows who are good talkers but poor workers, fellows who have well to do parents, but could not support themselves if they had to. They lead in words but not in action. But without action our organization does not progress."

"Don't make the blundering mistake of electing a poor worker to one of your offices. Elect the man who has paid the price, the man who does try to do something new, a man who is a proven worker, regardless of his position in life."

"There is another angle of leadership very important in our selection of officers. Is the man we select fit to lead? Does he live a clean life? Does he associate with influential people?"

"We want leaders in our organization who live clean lives. I like to think of a leader as one who precedes and is followed by others in conduct, opinion and undertaking. Do we want to follow a leader who drinks, smokes, or uses bad language? Well here is one 'Future Farmer' who does not want to follow such a leader in conduct, opinion and undertaking."

"I hope that all the national leaders of the organization are hard working, clean living individuals. I met some of them a year ago, and it was a pleasure to talk with them. They are my ideal of young manhood. I would follow such fellows at any time."

"When the time comes for the Chapter to elect local officers let's raise our state standard, let's elect fellows who will do their best, fellows who will pay the price in the future. Now is the time to make the right start, fellows, so let's move on!"

MARRIAGE LICENSES

Levi Yutzy, 24, Arthur.
Etta Marie Hayes 23, Owen, Ind.
Wayne Cochran, 21, Sullivan.
Charlotte M. Barclay, 22, Sullivan.

Omar Reid, 26, Mattoon.
Christina Hill 38, Mattoon.

—Mrs. M. B. Whitman and daughter Drucilla were shopping in Decatur Tuesday.

THE RETROSPECT

Charles (Chuck) Reeder one of the most high-powered and energetic young men attending the Sullivan High School is at work selling advertisements for next year's Retrospect, the school yearbook. Chuck has a sales talk all down pat and when he starts telling his prospect all about it, surrender is the easiest course. We predict a great Retrospect for the 1934 class.

The Intent Was Good Tho Names be Wrong

The papers signed by Sullivan merchants whereby they agreed to cooperate with the NRA were sent to National Recovery Administration headquarters in Chicago. From here a "Roll of Honor" list was returned for posting in the local Post Office. On Sullivan's roll of honor appear the names of practically all local employers.

The stenographers who copied the lists sent here did not do a very good job of it, as is evidenced by the names appearing on the Honor Roll. If you are familiar with Sullivan folks you may be able to figure all of these. Some may prove rather puzzling.

Jerome and Campbell.
Kerry Filling Station.
Pefer Poolroom.
Shosteen Brothers.
J. M. Laughlin, Circuit Judge.
Frundlin & Ward
R. D. Weeder, Gar. and Conf.
McDaniel and Rabbs.
The Madley Company.
Bixton Bonnet Shop.
Garrett & Son, Saw Fining.
H. H. Hainkens & Son.
Carmine & Wood

Senelan Oil Company.
Cochran, Bental & Cochran
O. F. Foster
Bracknecz Garage
Purris, F. W.
Lorb Contracting Co.
Spors Importing Co.

The last named is beyond Progress identification. All of this proves one of two things: Sullivan folks are poor writers, or the Chicago NRA stenographer can't read very well.

DUNSCOMB FAMILY REUNION

A family dinner party and reunion of the Dunscomb families was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Dunscomb at Sullivan Sunday. The six living children of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Dunscomb were all present, namely, C. E. Dunscomb (and Mrs. Dunscomb) of Berkeley, Calif.; George E. Dunscomb (and Mrs. Dunscomb) and their son J. H. Dunscomb and family; Mrs. C. A. Beatty and family; Mrs. D. D. Smith of Croslley, Tex.; Misses Myrtle and Lute Dunscomb; E. O. Dunscomb (and family).

—Windsor Gazette.

THERE IS NO CHILD

Last week The Progress stated that James Jennings, a local shoe worker, had been arrested for "wife and child" abandonment. And that was embarrassing to Mr. Jennings. James is a good natured and genial young fellow and says he has adjusted his domestic troubles but the "child" part of the story has led to much kidding on the part of his associates. "There is no child. In fact there never was any" says James. We gladly correct the error and expunge the child from the records.

—Winfield Murray observed his 84th birthday Thursday of this week. He is hale and hearty and enjoying life.

Operator Yancey just brought us this week's load of Grand picture program information. Sad to say, Mr. Hays is in the hospital. But "the force" will carry on during his absence. Good pictures are on the schedule and everything will run along smoothly, but we do know that the show-goers will miss Mr. Hays' most charming and pleasant greeting. Did you ever give that matter a thought? You have never entered The Grand without a smile and a gracious greeting from the manager—unless he was out of town. Such a greeting is always a cheerful prelude to an evening of good theatrical entertainment.

EVERETT HAYS

We know that all Grand Theatre patrons will anxiously await the return of their friend and we hope the absence will not be much prolonged.

BLACK BEAUTY—Does that recall any memories of your youth? Do you remember that story that thrilled the young and the old—the story of a horse? If any story would have struck you as being impossible of presentation in the films—you'd have said this was it. But it was not impossible. It has been done. With "Black Beauty" as the background theme, a very interesting picture has been made. Esther Ralston and Alexander Kirkland have the leading parts and it will be here at The Grand Friday and Saturday nights this week.

Gary Cooper in "One Sunday afternoon" will be the attraction Sunday and Monday. With Mr. Cooper there are teamed Fay Wray and Neil Hamilton, Roscoe Karns and others. All of this is a nice love story with plenty of entertainment woven into it. This play has made a hit wherever shown. Its simplicity, humaneness and charm is refreshing. Gary Cooper has seldom been a flop, and in this role he is at his very best.

In looking over this stuff that Mr. Yancey brought us, every sheet we pick up, seems to be bristling with good advance dope on outstanding pictures. Tuesday night, the "dime night" of The Grand, the feature bill is "The Woman I Stole." Jack Holt, Fay Wray, Noah Beery and Raquel Torres are the top-liners.

Even though the price is only 10c, this show is big stuff. It is taken from Hergensheimer's famous novel "Tampico." The hero broke the commandment "Thou shalt not Covet thy Neighbor's Wife" and was he sorry? Says he: "I stole my Friend's wife... I trampled on our friendship—I broke the 10th commandment. I risked my future and buried my past—all for the love of a woman." Jack Holt can well portray the part of this sex-wild male, who seeks to justify his actions.

Before we forget it—please remember that the usually good short features will be on all this week's programs.

Here's one that ought to pack the house. It will WILL ROGERS in Doctor Bull is another one of those pictures where you can see this fellow at his best. Rogers plays the part of the small town doctor, looking after people's health, morals and general well being.

If you've seen Rogers other pictures you certainly will not miss this one. If you are not a Rogers fan, it's about time you woke up and stepped out. Pretty Marian Nixon and Vera Allen are the two leading girls in this 'ere show. You will like it. Arrange to take the family.

Wednesday and Thursday nights of next week—book it up now. See Will Rogers, America's beloved philosopher-comedian. Rogers is one of the country's really big men and he brings his message in many ways, but none more entertaining than his theatrical performances.

Wolf and Martin Are New Law Partners

Robert W. Martin and Frank L. Wolf have formed a law partnership for the general practice of law in Sullivan.

The members of the new firm went through the Sullivan Grates and High school together, and both attended Chicago Kent College of law. Robert W. Martin, during his senior year in Chicago Kent, was called into the service of the United States Army during the World War, where he saw overseas duty with the 113th Engineers. After being discharged from the United States Army he returned to Sullivan and for a few years engaged in the abstract business. In 1929 he became associated with the McLaughlin Bond and Mortgage Company of Sullivan as Title and Abstract Examiner, and remained with that Company until June, 1931. During this employment Mr. Martin passed upon practically all of the titles to real estate upon which the Prudential Insurance Company of America made loans in approximately thirty counties in Central and Southern Illinois. During this time he also completed his law course and was admitted to the Illinois Bar in March of 1931. In 1932 he was elected to the office of State's Attorney for Moultrie County, and is now acting, and will continue to act in that capacity.

Frank L. Wolf graduated from the Chicago Kent College of Law in 1917, with the degree of L. L. B. and was admitted to the Illinois bar the same year. After an absence of about one year, during which he was in the United States Army Aviation service, he returned to Chicago and became a partner in the law firm of Goodrich, Vincent and Bradley, one of the oldest law firms in Chicago, having originally been formed as the firm of Collins, Goodrich, Vincent and Darrow (the first three members of which were former judges, and Clarence Darrow at the time the partnership was formed was General Attorney for the Northwestern Railroad). Mr. Wolf practiced law in Chicago as a member of this firm for eleven years, the last five years of which he was the firm's trial lawyer, representing some of Chicago's largest corporations in their personal injury suits. In 1928 he went to Texas as one of the attorneys for the Central and South Western Utilities Company, and represented that company and its subsidiaries in their personal injury cases and claims in Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana.

He moved back to Sullivan in November of last year, and since that time has devoted his time as a lawyer in representing the Mechanical Refrigerated Car Company of Chicago, he being general counsel for that company.

WHISPERING ROCK

by JOHN LEBAR

An hour—two hours, Ruth covered by David's crib with her eyes on the door. She had been telling him stories, breathless, incoherent stories. Now he was asleep and she could watch the door unhindered.

She had placed the trunk against the door and she watched the streak of muddy water reach its top, puddle, and run along between the slats and drip. She had long before, with her husband, fixed the loops securely in the walls and the bar was now in place.

Something struck the door heavily; little drops of water showered in the air. The knob rattled and Ruth raised the heavy gun. A momentary lull let her hear the squelch of receding feet, then quick running steps, and the door crashed inward, pushing the trunk before it. The lamp went out. Ruth stood before her baby's crib, the gun held in both hands. Ann filled the doorway; the continuous lighting played upon them weirdly. Ann's hair almost covered her face; sparkling water dripped from the straight black locks. Neither woman moved. The figure towering in the doorway muttered—chantlike guttural words which seemed a part of the storm. Then silence for a moment, before the giantess crouched low and came forward.

Ruth pulled the trigger—with both hands she pulled frantically, and remembered when the gun was knocked from her hand that she hadn't done something—cocked the hammer, she thought. Thereafter she thought no more; she became a thing of pure instinct; a furious mother animal fighting a black monster that had broken into her den.

They crashed against the crib and David called out; once they tripped and for a moment separated, but as soon as she could find her enemy again, the mother sprang. She was gripped in a crushing embrace which lifted her from her feet. The girl became a scrawny, kicking, writhing demon—every atom of her body struggling with a blind ferocity which would not be quelled. Her fingers, talon-spread, searched for the eyes of the giantess and her teeth bit into a bonelike muscle. Suddenly she was flung bodily across the room. Her limbs tingled numbly and for a moment she could not move. It was during this moment that, by a quivering flash of lightning, Ruth saw a dark, jagged crack running from the upper corner of the window to the ceiling. Without thinking, she knew what the crack meant and heedless of Ann she started through the sudden darkness to the crib where David lay huddled. The mother stumbled and as she was trying to rise to her feet, the lightning came again. Ruth screamed; lightning shone like a livid snake through the jagged crack. The snake squirmed its way along the top of the wall above the crib and reached the door. Slowly the earthen wall swayed inward, broke into great, ragged chunks and fell. The stout timber of the crib creaked under the weight of a slab and all was blackness, grinding earth, and pelting rain.

A sheet of blinding light filled the sky. Ruth saw Ann a few feet away, half sitting, half kneeling, a chunk of adobe propped against her. The big face with its matted hair was stupid, stunned. The mother screamed at her, "David—my baby!" When next the lightning flashed, the stupid face had not changed its expression, but Ann was looking at her. Again the girl screamed. The next flash showed Ann scrambling to her feet and from the quick-thrown blanket of blackness thundered a great, sobbing voice: "My baby!"

Ruth felt Ann beside her, big hands fumbled over her own, a great shoulder edged itself under the end of the fragment. When light came again the giantess was holding up the slab and inside the crib David lay wide-eyed and gasping.

Mingled with the memory of two small arms around her neck, there stood out in Ruth's mind the picture of a livid, tortured face, matted with straight black hair.

This memory seemed to have been with her for a long time—since last month or last year or perhaps in last night's dream. Now she was quite comfortable—she had always liked to be rocked, especially when the chair squeaked at every rock like this one. . . . It was strange, she thought, for a little girl who liked to be rocked to have a memory of a great, straining face with matted hair. . . . No, it wasn't proper, somehow, to be rocked to sleep with one's mother crooning that old colored people's song, and at the same time keep feeling those little arms and seeing that terrible face which oddly enough was a lovely, welcome face.

Ruth opened her eyes. Everything swirled about confusingly. Then slowly, taking one thought, one thing at a time, she knew where she was. She was in the sitting room of the Dead Lantern ranch house; David lay asleep on a pile of comforts before the grate fire; the clock on the mantel said five minutes to four. . . . She was being rocked and at every swing forward she was being patted gently just where she herself patted David. . . . She turned her head and looked into the face of Indian Ann.

The face smiled sadly. "Lie asleep, honey, lie asleep."

"Ann, I'm awake now."

"Hush, little white girl, lie asleep, lie asleep."

Ruth put up one arm and drew Ann's tear-tainted cheek down against her own. It was half an hour before Ruth spoke again. "It is all past, Ann, and I'm hungry—I think."

Reluctantly the giantess placed the girl beside the sleeping child and went into the kitchen.

Minutes passed and Ruth became aware that Ann was not moving about in the next room. Painfully, she stood up.

In the kitchen Ann was sitting on the woodbox, her big hands over her face.

The girl went to her. "Please don't Ann—it's all past—please, Ann dear."

"I ought to be kilt dead."

Ruth stood in silence, her arms drawing Ann close against her. After a time she said, "Come on—let's get some coffee. I'll make the fire."

A moment later Ann was making the fire and Ruth stood at the sink, measuring out the coffee.

"Ann," she asked, "why did it happen?"

Ann shook her head.

"Did the voice tell you to drink and did it tell you to come back to the rock at six o'clock and then when you didn't know what you were doing, did it tell you to—kill—"

Ann nodded and two great tears welled from her eyes.

"Ann, why must you obey the voice?"

The Indian woman spoke, her eyes fixed through the window where the eastern sky was faintly tinted. "I do know why I must—it is the fear"—she touched her breast—"it pulls an' I go."

"But what is the voice?"

"I do know—different things" Ann's voice dragged slowly, tonelessly. "It's the ol' medicine man who was with my mother's people an' the blood of his people—he have power on my blood which is the blood of them people."

"But that old medicine man must be dead long ago."

"That is why he speak so close 'thout our seein'—his body is no more in th' way."

"Ann," said the girl, rising and reaching her hand up to the great shoulder, "when you cried out you said, 'My baby'—have you a baby?"

She nodded. "It seemed to me it was my baby under there. I never knowed until I brought her here—I grabbed her away from you—I brought her in here an' built the fire an' put her down. Then I seen she was white—David. Afterwhile I went out an' found you."

"Your baby is a girl?" asked Ruth.

"Yes."

The girl looked from the window. The ancient adobe was now a mound of earth. "Ann, how did we ever get out of there alive?"

"It didn't fall all to once—the side towards th' barn just went down. First it was only th' wall with th' window—then just as soon as I went back an' got you th' other parts fell."

The girl shuddered. "Ann, why did I stay behind after I pulled David out of the crib?"

The giantess hung her head. "I didn't know how it was—I thought you was stealin' my baby whilst I was a-holdin' up the wall. I hit you an' took th' baby; when I seen it was David, I went back an' got you."

"Ann," said the girl impulsively, "you couldn't help what you did. And you saved both our lives—I'm sorry I bit and scratched you."

The giantess smiled sadly and her huge arm went round the girl's waist. "You feisty little ol' will cat!" Then her face was filled with despair. "I ought to be kilt dead."

"Ann, I'm so happy! I've always been afraid of this place and of you and of—of him. But now! With you on my side—why! I can do anything! We'll stand together and we'll go ahead and make this the biggest ranch in the world for you and me and David. I'm bound to win now, Ann!"

A strange look came into the giantess' face. She shook her head and stepped away from Ruth, her eyes fear-filled. "No! No, Miss—"

"Why, Ann?"

The huge woman spoke hastily. "You tell Mr. Snively that you done come in th' house before th' dobe fell an' stayed with me—doan say nothin' 'bout th' voice talking nor th' fight nor nothin'—I got to—I got to—"

Ann did not finish but turned and left the kitchen, crossed the back porch and entered her room.

For a moment Ruth was too surprised to move, then she ran to Ann's door. "Ann," she called, "oh Ann!" There was no response, but Ruth thought she heard a slight movement just beyond the door.

"Ann, please answer me one thing; have I done anything, are you angry with me?"

Ruth waited before the silent door, then a muffled voice cried out, "No, Miss Ruth, no! 'Fore Gawd, I loves you!"

The key turned in the lock and there came a sound of heavy footsteps moving away from the door.

A few hours later the two women were working silently among the remains of the old adobe, salvaging Ruth's belongings. The giantess said nothing unless it was absolutely necessary. To all intents the relations of the two women were the same as at that morning when they had first cleaned out the rooms. Yet, Ruth knew that never again would she fear Ann—beneath exteriors she felt that she and Ann were closer than sisters.

Search as she might, Ruth could not find the big revolver Old Charley had given her; it was hopelessly buried.

Snively returned about noon without any Mexicans. He gave as the reason, that no one in the little border town wanted to come very badly, and then, as he was spending the evening trying to persuade an old man and his son, the storm began. Snively knew that the heavy rain would make work on the ponds impossible. After they dried up again he'd get the Mexicans. Ruth was heartbroken—if only the work had been attended to before this rain, there would be water enough for a year. But Snively reminded her that the rain must have completely filled the deep pond in the south pasture, and that often held the best part of a year. There was no sense in getting any Mexicans at all now.

He made little comment on the collapse of the old adobe. Ruth and David would have to live in the commissary rooms.

Retired Contractor Died Here Monday

William Marshall Gray died on Monday morning at his home in the south part of this city. He had been in fairly good health and only a short illness preceded his departure.

He had been a resident of Sullivan for the past five years, having built himself a home on South Hamilton street near the Chapel where he spent his declining days among Sullivan friends. At time of death he was 81 years, 9 months and 13 days of age.

His active life was that of a contractor. He built many of the buildings in Arcola. He leaves five children—Walter Gray of Seattle; Mrs. Maude Knott and Leslie Gray of Cleveland, Mississippi, Clifford Gray of Arcola and Ralph Gray of Chicago. All except Walter Gray came here for the funeral. Because of distance he was unable to make the trip and arrive here in time.

Funeral services were held from the Hamilton Street Chapel Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock conducted by Elder J. R. Bradley, assisted by Miss Leah Harshman. The remains were then taken to Arcola cemetery for interment. Short services were held at the graveside. Pall bearers were Albert LaNeue, Jesse Dickens, Delbert Duncan, Apollon Hagerman, Rufus M. Harshman and E. M. Hagerman.

POOR CROP SEASON FORCES DAIRYMEN TO ADJUST FEEDS

Urbana, Ill., Oct. 3.—Most Illinois dairymen will have to declare a "new deal" in the feeding of the million or more cows they are now milking, according to Prof. C. S. Rhode, of the dairy department, College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.

One of the poorest crop seasons in years has made a big difference in the kind, amount and quality of feed that will be available on different farms this year, he pointed out. Most of the general recommendations on feeding will have to be revised to fit specific conditions, he explained.

"With a short small grain crop, corn will be used more extensively in dairy rations this year than usual. There is a short hay supply on a good many farms owing to poor growing conditions and the fact that hay has been used to supplement pastures."

"As in other years dairymen who have an abundant supply of good legume roughage, especially alfalfa hay, and enough farm grains will be able to feed good rations at the lowest cost and will need to spend the least for purchased feed. On farms where there is a shortage of hay, good quality shredded fodder may be used to advantage. If fodder is shredded as soon as it is dry enough and put into the barn in good condition it will make a fair quality roughage. The part not eaten will make good bedding."

"If there ever was a year when grain rations should be planned with care it is this year. Costs should be kept as low as possible and a minimum amount of purchased feed used. Grain should be fed according to production, and grain mixtures should fit the roughage that is being used."

"The major consideration in selecting high-protein supplements is to buy the feeds that furnish protein at the lowest cost. At $25 a ton cottonseed meal furnishes protein for 3 cents a pound, gluten meal at $29 a ton furnishes protein for 3.6 cents a pound, gluten feed at $21 a ton supplies protein for 4.6 cents a pound, soybean oil meal at $40 a ton supplies it for 5 cents a pound, linseed meal at $35 a ton, for 5.1 cents a pound and bran at $16 a ton, for 5.3 cents a pound."

"Where soybeans are available, very little if any high-protein feed need be purchased. Ground soybeans have been used in the dairy ration on many Illinois farms during the past few years."

PLANS TO MOVE

Merle Valentine is making arrangements to move his automobile paint shop into the rear of the Chevrolet garage. He is at present located on Jefferson street.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Cochran are herewith extended a honey-moon invitation to see a good show at The Grand theatre.

High School News

Plans are in full swing for the Homecoming. The classes have elected their queens who are:

Senior, Bernice Fultz; Junior, June Yarnell; Sophomore, Lucille Freese; and Freshman, Betty Clark. The float committees, dress committees and advertising committees are busy with their ideas for enhancing the beauty of their queen. As you all know, the queens ride in their floats at the parade preceding the Homecoming football game and the audience at the all school play (to be given Homecoming night) will vote for the queen of the day. May the best one win.

The Homecoming manager hasn't been elected yet but the three prospects Dean Brackney, Charles Reeder, and Lone Reedy will be voted on by the student body soon.

A new student has just enrolled in the Freshman class, Noel Rhodes and we hope he enjoys his high school life.

The Student Council, after much delay, held tryout for the new cheerleader. Margy Lou Scheer was sentenced to serve until she graduates.

"Will you come to my wiener roast?" "Where?" "When?" "I'm invited to another that night. 'I'm going to have one if I can find a nice place for it.' All this is heard at regular intervals throughout the building. Wiener roasts certainly have their hour among the students and—why not? Even if we are in High school, we want to have some fun."

We had the cutest visitor at school last week, a little brown and white (?) pup. A certain young man had the remarkable and the original idea to put the pup in his "girl friends" desk to scare her when she came in the assembly. The pup escaped before the young damsel reached her desk, and was ejected from the building by the capable hands of our principal.

The Senior class held a meeting the other day to decide on the committee to pick out the rings by which the class of '34 will be known. The committee consists of Eleanor Cummins, chairman, Richard Barclay, Bernice Fultz, Wayne Hughes, Mary Fleming and Charles Hollonbeck.

ARRESTED TWO YEARS AFTER STEALING DOG

Sheriff Art Herten and Deputy Sheriff Grider Moberley returned early Thursday morning from Toledo, Ill., bringing with them Willard P. Large of Paris, wanted in Shelby county on a charge of stealing a foxhound belonging to Roy Satherwaite, of Oconee about two years ago.

Large's arrest was made by a state highway patrolman, after being recognized by Satherwaite at the Greenup fox hunt.

While Large was en route to his home at Vandalia after a visit with his son at the state penal farm at Vandalia, it is alleged he "took" a hound belonging to Satherwaite valued at $100. A chase followed and after his car was riddled with bullets, it is said Large swam the Wabash river and escaped arrest. For two years officers have tried to locate him.—Shelby Co. Leader.

WEATHER

Radios are blab-blahing all over the land right now. Excited voices of excited announcers are broadcasting the world series baseball game. The business of the nation is at a standstill. Housewives are passing up their afternoon naps to listen in. In the icebound coasts of Labrador the natives are gathering the news out of the air and in darkest Africa the native drums are relaying the game play, by play.

A newspaperman cannot afford to get excited about such things. He must work and can't listen in to any ball games, even though the Prince of Wales were pitching and Mussolini catching. It's all just a bubble of excitement on the outcome of which depends nothing of great importance. Some wise guys will get stung for backing up their opinions and other wise guys will win money because they guessed right.

With the baseball season about ended much of the hard listening for the season will be over. Some fellows like to listen to football scores, as the crescendo of the announcers voice rises to a squeaky screech.

Here's something far more important—the farmers are sowing wheat. There has been no frost as yet. Corn is worth about three times as much as it was last year. The potato crop is short. Hogs are going up a little. Fresh eggs are getting scarce. In California about 50 men were burned to death in a fire. In Mexico, thousands were killed in a hurricane. One American was shot in Cuba.

There is something doing all the time in all parts of the world. Nothing stands still. It is either showing action toward life or toward decay. At Springfield Governor Horner is doing his best to convince the legislators that he is a governor for the whole state. Some wild-eyed legislators are sputtering and shouting. They know that the folks back home want them to be against something—so they are. Why? Well, that's another question.

This October sunshine is pleasant. No frosts have left their marks on growing things. The soil is saturated with moisture to a depth that makes field work a pleasure. Carl McKown's 60 acres of rye are up and growing. Bean hay is being made. George Henderson says he's got some fishing to do soon. Merchant-looking strangers ramble around the town most every day, looking at the best city of its size in central Illinois.

Women are blossoming out in dinky new fall hats. The men are getting out last year's heavies and wondering whether they can be made to hang together for a little more service. Shipped in apples look nice. Pears are also on the market. Lots of tomatoes have been going into cans lately. Green beans are on many tables.

Soon Indian summer will be here and the world will put on its fall coat of beauty.

EFFORTS BEING MADE TO ORGANIZE SHOE WORKERS

It is reported that an organizer for a shoe workers union has rented a hall in this city where he will have meetings of shoe workers with the object of getting them to join his union.

A similar move was made recently in Vincennes, Indiana. When trouble seemed apparent the factory closed. After three days the organizer left with a pocket full of money, the factory reopened and is working as usual.

Efforts to organize at Charleston and at Mattoon have so far been unavailing as the workers seem to be satisfied with working conditions and wages that Brown Shoe Co. pays under the NRA code.
