L. W. McMullin Heads Dist. 68 Moultrie I.O.O.F.

Lodges See Need of Revival of Fraternal Interest to Insure Continuance of Old Folks and Orphans Homes.

The late depression had a depressing effect on all fraternal organizations. Lodge dues were in many cases not paid, and as a consequence members were dropped. This has been the story in all lodges.

As nearly all lodges maintain homes for the aged and orphans, the decrease in membership and non-payment of dues has cut seriously into the financial support of such homes.

All lodges are now making a drive toward a revival of interest in lodge work, especially as it pertains to Home maintenance and the social features.

Friday night, September 29th a big meeting of Odd Fellows was held in Arthur. On Friday night of last week a Moultrie district meeting was held in Lovington. At that time the Arthur degree team exemplified the work of the 2nd degree, David Lindsay, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Lindsay, being the candidate.

At this meeting new officers were elected for the district for the ensuing year.

L. W. McMullin of Sullivan was elected president.

C. E. Heckler of Bethany, vice president.

Art Smith of Lovington, Secretary-treasurer.

Alva Wilt of Lovington was endorsed as choice for district deputy. Grand Lodge which meets in Springfield this month makes this appointment.

The next district meeting will be held here in Sullivan on the night of Friday, November 17th.

Lovington Lodge presented an interesting musical program and at close of the meeting refreshments were served.

Oral Buxton Badly Injured In Crash

Oral Buxton, 17-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Orville Buxton of near Allenville bought a motorcycle Wednesday morning. He spent the day riding around. At one time his speed was such that the Sheriff cautioned him against carelessness.

Several cars were on the slab at the same point and in some way one of these cars, driven by a travelling man from Indiana ran Buxton down. An ambulance was summoned and he was taken to the Mattoon hospital. Both his legs were broken and he had sustained other injuries that made his recovery doubtful.

Senator W. E. C. Clifford of this district is opposed to Governor Horner's thirty million dollar bond issue relief measure. This measure met with defeat in the State Senate this week. It may become necessary that other legislation take its place to provide the necessary relief funds. Senator Clifford has introduced several such measures. In the following statement received from the Senator Thursday morning, he sets forth his views on relief legislation:

Special to The Progress: Memorandum on Proposed Legislation for persons who are destitute and in necessitous circumstances:

1. The proposed bond issue is dangerous because of the uncertainties involved. Among these uncertainties are the following:

(a) The uncertainty of a market for the tax anticipation warrants.

These warrants undoubtedly will have to be thrown for purchase on the open market. There is no certainty at all as to the response which they will receive. If only a part can be marketed or if they must be sold at a consider-

Sewer Plans Approved By Illinois Com.

Next Step Will Be to Submit Plans to Washington and Get Federal Funds for Financing the Job.

The Illinois Advisory board of the Federal Works Commission in Chicago Wednesday gave a hearing to Sullivan city officials on their application for federal aid to build a sewer system here.

The board gave the matter its unqualified endorsement and will recommend to the authorities at Washington D. C. that the loan be granted so contract can be let and work begun.

The matter now goes to Washington for its final passage.

About a week before the city officials were asked to appear in Chicago for the hearing, plans and formal application for loan had been forwarded. This had been examined and the commission highly complimented Engineer C. C. Wood of Springfield who has drafted the plans, on the excellent way in which the work has been done.

The estimated cost of the sanitary and drainage sewer (not including storm sewer) is $170,000. Of this amount, if the Federal authorities make the loan, the sum of $45,000 will be an outright donation to the city to pay for part of material and labor costs on the construction job.

There will be no assessment against property. A small rental charge for use of sewer facilities will be made. What this charge will be depends on action of the city council. The charge can be changed from time to time as the need arises. It is planned not to make it so exorbitant, but rather to make it so reasonable that people, not now using modern conveniences and city water, can afford to do so.

The commission also advised that the contract for the work be let in two parts. It is suggested that he big sewer mains and disposal plant be one contract and the laterals and smaller sewers be another job. In that way the work could be speeded up with two contracting firms on the job at the same time. It would give many men needed work this fall and winter.

Mayor McFerrin was unable to go to Chicago Wednesday so Commissioner Bupp represented him. Others who went were Engineer C. C. Wood, city Attorney Raymond D. Meeker, City Clerk J. E. Martin and Commissioners Fisher, Kingrey and Luke.

The commission had studied Sullivan's financial situation and was very favorably impressed with conditions as they exist here.

Dairy Company Buys Moultrie Jerseys

The Pevely Dairy Company of St. Louis has a farm at Crescent, Missouri which they desire to stock with Jersey cows that have a test of 5 or better. These cows will produce Grade A. Certified milk for the dairy's select trade. The company now has 250 Holstein cows on one of its farms. Holstein milk, not being as rich in butterfat fills a certain demand in the milk business.

Dr. S. J. Lewis, in the employe of the dairy company, brought its buyers to Moultrie county for Jerseys, this county having the reputation of being Jersey headquarters for Illinois. Twenty cows were bought the latter part of last week from Frank Emel, Roy Martin and Ralph Emel. ## The Editor's Chair

Job says—Chapter 23, verses 8 and 9: For what is the hope of the hypocrite, though he hath gained, when God taketh away his soul? Will God hear his cry when trouble cometh upon him?

If I ever reach heaven I expect to find three wonders there; first, to meet some I had not thought to see there; second, to miss some I had expected to see there; and third, the greatest wonder of all, to find myself there.—John Newton.

THE AFTERGLOW

When the daily tasks are finished,
And the afternoon's diminished,
When the golden sun is sinking in the west:
It is then the day is brightest,
And our burdens seem the lightest—
That's the time of day that people love the best.
When the golden streaks are lengthened,
And the shades of night are strengthened,
When twilight sheds her beautiful rays below,
It is then, I think, God's sending
All His richest colors, blending
In the beautiful, the wondrous afterglow.

So, when all my work's completed,
When the long day's been defeated,
And my sun is sinking in the golden west,
Let it be no time for sadness;
Give me only light and gladness;
It's the time that I shall welcome as the best.
So, just let my life keep gleaming
Through the twilight that is streaming
Down the ages. Though I'm dead long, long ago,
Let it throw its richest shading
Where the light is slowly fading,
In a beautiful, yes, wondrous afterglow.

—Rev. Floyd H. Pence

Mr. Williamson And The Governor.

Is the Governor of Illinois at war with the Illinois Press Association? We believe not though some editors are laboring hard to create that impression.

H. L. Williamson has been for many years the efficient secretary of the Illinois Press Association, an organization of the newspaper people of Illinois. He has also for many years been superintendent of the department of printing, a lucrative state job.

During the campaign last year Mr. Williamson was very actively opposed to Judge Horner, first for the nomination, and later for election. He used every power at his command to encompass the defeat of Judge Horner, even to using the Press Association mailing list to distribute anti-Horner literature.

In his efforts, Mr. Williamson, a Republican, was aided and abetted by some Democratic editors who had received appointments and favors from Len Small in past years.

Immediately following the inauguration of Governor Horner in January, Mr. Williamson resigned. He took an interest for a time in planning who his successor should be but such plans came to naught and the Governor named a Chicago printing expert to take over the job, who remained on duty some months and then the office was turned over to another Chicago man.

Now Mr. Williamson is charged with mis-administration of the office he held. He is charged with having favored certain big print shops and having grossly overpaid them for the work they did for the state. The amount which the state asks Mr. Williamson to make good is close to $400,000.

To this charge Mr. Williamson replies that his office has always been administered honestly and efficiently and that no monies were paid for printing unless on contracts properly certified by other state officials and that his department was regularly audited and nothing found amiss.

So the issue seems to be—is the Governor right in his accusations, or is Mr. Williamson blameless? We do not know. As the controversy develops, the truth will doubtless emerge so as to clarify the situation.

In the meantime, we resent the attitude of those newspaper men who seek to make of this affair a feud between the Governor and the Illinois Press Association. It is not that. The Governor has no motive in seeking to destroy the friendship of the press. Mr. Williamson is NOT the Illinois Press Association.

In seeking to turn the whole press association against the Governor, the Dertinger-Goddard-Small faction is using every despicable means at its command. They seek to foment the divisional strife between downstate and Chicago. They are playing every move in dirty politics that is at their command. They are sending out pleas to newspapers to side with Mr. Williamson and against the Governor. Such action is reprehensible and disgusting.

We have known Mr. Williamson many years. We like him. He has done us and the other newspapers in the state good service. But the issue in this controversy is not as between Mr. Williamson, secretary of the Illinois Press Association and Henry Horner, governor. It is between the Governor and a former state official—which official happens to be Mr. Williamson.

We do not see that Mr. Williamson can presume on his friendship with the editors of the state, to call upon them to launch their association into a battle with the Governor in a matter that has nothing to do with the affairs of the association, either directly or indirectly. It does not seem fair to embroil the other newspaper men of the state in the mix-up. Those who seek to do so are not doing Mr. Williamson a favor. They are simply trying to pay off an old score against Governor Horner and to becloud and befog the issue that has been raised. Some newspaper men will doubtless fall in line and be influenced by such propaganda. We feel, however, that the average intelligence of the press of Illinois will be such that its members will not plunge headlong into an affair which does not directly concern them.

We believe in the honesty and integrity of Governor Horner. We have a deep and abiding friendship for Mr. Williamson. Let the issue that has been raised between them be decided on the facts and merits of the case. Those who seek to influence any other course in the matter are playing short-sighted petty politics.

Relief -- A Tremendous Problem.

If there is one outstanding issue before the people at this time, it is "Relief." You hear it in all conversations, you see it in all the newspapers. The government at Washington and the state governments are bending their efforts toward getting funds to finance relief activities this coming winter.

Honest relief is meritorious. There is a well-founded suspicion, however, that Relief is getting to be more or less of a "racket" especially in the bigger cities. Human nature, being what it is, that was to be expected.

No true American will ever permit a woman or child to suffer for want of food, clothing and shelter. Neither would he permit a man who is down and out, through no fault of his own, to suffer for lack of life's necessities.

That much of the Relief now being handed out is misused there is no doubt, whatever. There are people who like to live without working. To them this relief situation has been wonderful. They would not take work, even if offered them. They do not ask much of life, and when what little they need can be secured without any effort on their part—that is the height of prosperity for them.

We have heard of cases where men have refused jobs paying modest salaries, because taking a job would remove them from the relief rolls. They would prefer to cling to Relief rather than cut loose and try to make their own way.

In many cities the unemployed have organized and demand what they call their "rights." They insist that they be given a certain amount each week for relief. They regard it as their right. In big cities much of the relief funds are paid to those who administer them.

All of this creates a very unpleasant situation. The funds for Relief must, quite naturally, be taken from those who have money or property. The government must devise ways and means of prying loose such funds and putting them into the relief chest. Most people are more than willing to give their share and more for those who are really destitute and in want. But the racketeering and grafting which creeps into this situation is so very apparent at times, that people are often led to wonder whether or not their money gets to the people who really need it, or to the people who demand it. The people who are most deserving are always reluctant to ask for relief. The professional paupers and the willingly unemployed are not at all backward. They demand relief and can never get enough. It is their way of making a living.

The relief problem is perhaps the most serious task that has ever confronted this country in times of peace. It needs the sincere and earnest co-operation of everybody. In a land of plenty, hunger leading to starvation—lack of clothing and shelter with resultant illness, misery and hardship, cannot and must not be permitted to prevail.

Sunday School Lesson

by Rev. Charles E. Dunn

PAUL IN ANTIOCH

Lesson for Oct. 15—Acts 11:19-30
Golden Text: Romans 1:16

The lesson introduces us to a new city, a new man, and a new word. The new city is Antioch, the capital of Syria, at that time the third metropolis of the world, with a population of half a million and conspicuous for its wealth and magnificence. It was the first city in which Gentiles were converted in any large numbers, and thus naturally became the headquarters for the impressive missionary work among them carried on by Paul and his colleagues. All of the apostle's three missionary journeys began at Antioch.

The new man is Barnabas, one of the most attractive figures in the New Testament. We caught a brief glimpse of him in chapter 9 at Damascus. But here he occupies the center of the stage.

Now Barnabas was a beautiful incarnation of the generous spirit. There was nothing petty about him. Note that he championed Paul at a time when the genuineness of the apostle's conversion was under suspicion. John he came to the defence of John Mark, whose conduct had angered Paul. His generosity was more than sentiment. It revealed itself in loving deeds, for the lesson tells us that relief, probably a caravan of provisions, was sent in a time of famine from Antioch to Jerusalem.

The new word is "Christians." "The disciples," we read, "were called Christians first in Antioch." Other names in the New Testament are friends, believers, apostles, brethren, saints, followers "of this way" But all these yielded to the term "Christian" now so honorable and universal, although when applied to that small company of primitive disciples in Antioch it was, a designation of contempt.

Today we all rejoice in the name. But do we take it seriously? To what extent is the title "Christian" a mere convention? Are we prepared to assume all the obligations it heralds?

American Legion's Compensation Stand

Resolutions adopted by the American Legion at Chicago show a commendable change of attitude on the subject of compensation and rehabilitation. It may be a change only for the duration of the recovery program, but for the present, at least, the general disability pension movement has been abandoned and the efforts of the organized veterans are centered on better treatment of war victims and their dependents.

Only in one respect does the American Legion program conflict with the principles laid down by President Roosevelt in his address to the convention. The Legion asks free hospitalization by the federal government for all disabled veterans, regardless of the nature or cause of their ailments, if they are unable to pay for medical treatment. The President promised government aid in non-service cases only after local and state relief agencies had failed.

There is little to fight over in that difference, provided those applying for aid are really unable to pay. The main complaint about hospitalization of veterans in the past is that the government was imposed upon, and private hospitals injured, by free treatment for veterans who could easily afford to pay for treatment.

The Legion deserves hearty praise for giving up the bonus demand at this time, and for making no move to defend the claim to compensation for injuries or other disabilities having no relationship to war service. It deserves equal praise for making a vigorous fight to defend the rights of those who suffered in the war, and the dependents of those who died.

The Legion finds it had to get over its old fear of communism. The resolution pledging a campaign against it was a throwback to early policies which never were more out of place than at present. It is strange that there is a person in the United States, today, who cannot see that the only threat of communism comes from a breakdown of our efforts to get rid of economic injustice at home, not from foreign propaganda.

When the skin is hrunken and wrinkled from long contact with strong soaps and washing powder, immerse the hands in salt water (2½ teaspoonfuls to a quart of warm water) for a few minutes. The skin will at once become smooth.

Editor Relief

Things are not breaking so bad. Last week Willard Dale sent us some North Carolina apples. Just about the time we had eaten them all, along comes Roy Smith of this city with an offering of some fine big red radishes, grown in Sullivan soil. That means we'll be on a radish diet for about a week. We like this New Deal. Has anybody got some nice horseradish they want written up? Raw, fresh, horseradish in cider vinegar is one of our favorite desserts.

He Sailed West to Reach the East

(A Columbus Day Editorial)

Constantinople had fallen. Christendom stood dismayed, not alone because the crescent had supplanted the cross on the top of St. Sophia, but because the trade routes to the Orient had been closed.

For centuries the merchants of Genoa and Venice had sailed their argosies to the city on the Golden Horn, there to barter with the masters and caravans which had brought across the deserts rich stores of silk and spice, of gold and gems, from India and from far Cathay.

For these traders, the triumph of the Turk spelled disaster. Doors of opportunity which in the past had led to prosperity and financial power were closed and locked. The way to the East—the glamorous East which seemed to hold all that was worth striving for—was barred. The best minds of the age were baffled by the problems of raising these barriers, so that caravans might again travel the way that led to the rising sun.

But there was one man who was not baffled. He dared to set out for the East by sailing west. He braved not alone the dark waves of an uncharted sea, but the perils of an equally uncharted field of thought. He snapped his fingers alike at the goblins that were believed to rule the ocean and those more dangerous demons which lurked behind outworn traditions, deeply entrenched prejudices and ill-founded superstitions. Seeking the India which other men hoped to reach by traveling east, he faced about and pointed the prows of his three caravels into the setting sun.

He never reached India. But as he sailed westward—he discovered a New World.

It may be that there is need today for men of like mind—men who can quit lamenting the closing of the ways which, a little while ago, seemed to lead straight to a fabulous India of easily won prosperity; men who can boldly seek another way by which to reach their objective or some different objective offering greater satisfaction. It may be that in these trying days, many a modern Columbus will discover that the shortest way to what all men are seeking is not by the seemingly direct and all-too-well-traveled caravan routes of self-seeking and littleness and greed, but by the more roundabout way of putting boldly forth upon the sea of self-forgetfulness and service and sacrifice.

A voyage on such a sea may never lead to India. For those who travel thus, its shores lie far away. For others, it may be that the old roads are permanently closed—that the citadel of faith in a false prosperity which men had reared, and which fell a few years ago as the city of Constantine had fallen, will never be recaptured or rebuilt. Perhaps our India will prove to have been but an illusion.

But such a voyage, on such a sea, may well lead to the discovery of a new world—for those who dare to turn their backs on the past and the things of the past. For those who find it, it will be not only a new world, but a better and happier world as well.

Newton Jenkins

When the G. O. P. in Illinois quits staggering around and starts giving the Democrats some real competition, you'll find that a Chicago attorney named Newton Jenkins is going to cut some figure.

This man Jenkins has been working persistently and assiduously in picking out some of the best pieces of the old G. O. P. wreck to build a political machine and with an enormous ambition for fuel, he expects to head this machine toward the Governor's chair in Springfield, and hence to a Senator's seat in Washington—and, who knows? We like ambitious people. They make life interesting.

Casper, Wyo., Oct. 6—Fred Warford faces a prison sentence because he selected the wrong doctor to treat his injuries.

Warford broke into a garage at Edgerton, Wyo., and stole an automobile. He hurt himself when he wrecked the car, and rushed to the office of Dr. Earl E. Dale of Edgerton for treatment.

Among the articles Warford removed from his pockets were the keys to Doctor Dale's car.

There are a lot of people who have a "far away" complex. They can't have a good time unless they go far away. They send their kids far away to college. Over the Post Office

Time of services the same.

Gen. 3:4 "And the serpent said unto the woman, ye shall not surely die."

God has said disobedience would bring death, satan says it is untrue, that God is a liar, and down thru all the years of time, men have been believing satan rather than God.

God says if you partake of the pleasures of the world, ye shall surely die. Satan tells you it is all a mistake, you will not surely die. He tells you God is a hard master, that he wants to rob you of all the real pleasures of life, that he does not want you to be happy, that he does not want you to get any fun out of living. This is just a bunch of satan's big lies. God does want you to be happy, He wants you to have a good time, He wants you to have that kind of pleasure that does not react.

The world may show you a so-called good time, but you will pay for it, if not with a headache, you will with a heartache.

High School News

Three cheers! No school today (Eastern Illinois Divisional meeting of the state teachers association at Mattoon). But does good come before evil or evil before good? Any way, we had six weeks tests Wednesday and Thursday. Maybe we studied so much we learned everything and forgot it or maybe we just forgot to learn it. Just the same, it won't be long until we find out the bad news (our high (?) grades for the first six weeks).

I do wish that people would send things when they are supposed to. The show didn't show up Monday. I guess the company thinks that the longer we wait, the more anxious we will be to see it. Maybe they are right but I wouldn't say for sure.

The school extends their sympathies to Marie Watts. Marie has been out of school for a number of days and must have her tonsils removed before she can continue classes regularly.

Every one is talking about bad luck for Sullivan in today's game but if I'm not mistaken, it's Friday the thirteenth for Villa Grove too so everyone should look at the date this way and we'll be sure to win. This is the first important home game of the season and the whole town should be on the field to yell themselves hoarse for our "Redbirds." They're worth it.

Is my face red? Well anyway—I wish people would make up their minds about who's doing what. The candidates for Homecoming Manager were Lone Reedy, David Moore and Wayne Hughes. The student body voted on the candidates Monday the fifth hour and the luck (?) person is Lone Reedy. Dean Brackney was one of the candidates but he will be at Taylorville the next two weeks and he could hardly direct the plans for our Homecoming in the midst of all that fighting.

Dean Brackney (the left guard of our football team) is taking a two weeks vacation ( ). He is in Taylorville to 'take care of' the mine war there. Dean left Tuesday morning with the Sullivan National Guards and we hope he gets back in time for Homecoming.

The Homecoming play, "Digging up the Dirt" is progressing rapidly. The cast has started practicing on the second act (they know the first act perfectly) and it won't be long until they are on the stage wondering if the audience can possibly hear their speeches above the racket made by their knees knocking together and their teeth chattering. I know, cause I was in one once.

I just learned that the first show "The Pony Express" will be given in the assembly Monday morning. I certainly hope the company knows what it is talking about and we won't have to wait any longer.

Margy Lou Scheer.

The Doctor and The Contraption

Stephen Leacock

In the old fashioned days when a man got sick he went to a family doctor and said he was sick. The doctor gave him a bottle of medicine. On the bottle was written, "Three times a day, in water." The man drank it three times the first day, twice the second, and once the third day. On the fourth he forgot about it. But that didn't matter. He was well by that time.

Very often after the patient had gone away the doctor would sit and smoke a pipe and wonder what was wrong with the man anyway. Sometimes the doctor suspected that the man was really ill. But he never said so. Only after the patient was quite well again, did the doctor tell him how ill he had been.

When an up-to-date doctor of today looks at a patient he sees not a man at all but a complicated machine contraption, probably running very badly. Naturally, he wants to get at it. The Contraption sits huddled up in its serge suit in the doctor's office chair. The poor thing is consumed with something like panic, but it makes as brave a show as it can.

"It's a little hard to say," says the doctor, "just what the trouble is."

He has been making a few preliminary investigations by punching and listening in.

"I don't know that I quite like that heart," he adds, and then relapses into a reflective silence.

"Yes," he continues, as he comes out of his reverie, "there are symptoms there that I don't like—don't like at all."

Neither does the Contraption, but he keeps quiet.

"There may be," says the doctor "an ankylosis there."

What an ankylosis is and what it does, the Contraption doesn't know but the sound of it is quite enough.

"It's just possible," says the doctor as another bright idea occurs to him, "that there's an infiltration into the proscenium."

These may not be the exact medical terms that the doctor uses. But that is what they sound like to the Contraption.

"However, we'll keep that under observation till we see what we find. You say you never had hydrophobia?"

"Not so far as I remember."

"That's interesting. The symptoms seem to suggest hydrophobia, or just possibly hendiads."

The doctor reflects a little more, then he begins to write on little bits of paper.

"Well," he says in a cheerful tone, "we'll try it out anyway."

He writes out little orders for X-rays, blood tests, heart tests.

"Now," he says in conclusion, "don't be alarmed. You may blow up on the street. But I'm not much afraid of that. It's possible that your brain will burst open at the sides. But I'm not alarmed if it does. If your eyes fall out on the street, let me know."

These are not his exact words. But they give exactly the impression that his words convey.

"I will," says the Contraption.

"And now," says the doctor, who by this time has warmed up to the case and is filled with artistic interest, "about diet—I think you'd better not eat anything—or not for a month or so; and don't drink; and you may as well cut out tobacco, and you'd better not sleep."

"And above all," he concludes with a sudden burst of geniality, "don't worry. You may blow up at any time, but don't let that worry you. You may fall dead in a taxi, but I'm not alarmed if you do. Come back in a week and I'll show you the X-ray plates."

When the Contraption comes back he finds the doctor beaming with interest.

"Look at them," he says, holding up to the light some X-ray plates. "You see that misty-looking spot—there, just between the encephalon and the encyclopedia—"

"What is it?" asks the Contraption.

"I don't know yet," the doctor says. "It's a little early to say. But we'll watch it. If you don't mind, I think we'll probably open your head and take a look. They are doing some wonderful things now in the removal of the brain. It's rather a nice operation, but I think I may take the risk. I'll let you know. Meanwhile you're following our instructions, I hope, not eating anything."

"Oh, no."

"And nothing to drink or smoke."

"Oh, no."

"That's right. Well, now, in a

Fell From Horse; Injures Fatal

Elmer Creath, aged 53, a former resident of the Fullers Point community east of this city, died Friday morning in the hospital in Mattoon. A week previous to his death he had been internally injured in a fall from a horse at his home near Sexson in Ash Grove township southeast of Windsor.

He was born at Neoga, Illinois May 30, 1880 a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Creath. He spent most of his lifetime farming.

He is survived by his wife, nee Josephine Talley to whom he was united in marriage in Missouri on January 6, 1900; also, the following children, Leroy Creath who lives on a farm near this city; Glenn Creath of Milwaukee, Cecil Creath of Durham, N. C. and Mrs. Ada Cutright of Indianola, Illinois.

Sunday afternoon short services were held at the family home after which the remains were taken to Mt. Zion church near Fullers point where funeral services and burial took place.

'Aunt Nancy' Bracken

Whenever an editor publishes a story about somebody being an "est", he usually invites trouble. Last week we stated that Mrs. Clevinger, who had died near Toledo was the "oldest" daughter of Jonathan Creek township.

Mrs. Amanda Bolin has called our hand. We were mistaken, although the information came from Hi Hagerman, who evidently thought he was correct, for he claimed for himself the title of the "oldest native son of Jonathan Creek" and after Mrs. Clevinger's death said he was the oldest native born Creeker.

It now develops that "Aunt Nancy" Bracken, widow of the late J. C. Bracken, is the oldest native-born Jonathan Creeker. A daughter of James and Nancy Bolin, she was born on the place where she now resides with her bachelor son, Emmett Bracken. She will be 89 years of age on November 10th.

Now if all this should again be wrong and if there should be some person living who was born in Jonathan Creek township prior to November 10, 1844, please do not be backward, but step right up and assert your rights.

day or two we'll know more. I'll have your blood by that time and the sections of your heart and then I think we'll begin to see where we are. Good-bye."

A week or so later the doctor says to his lady secretary, "That Contraption in the serge suit, wasn't he to have come in this morning?"

The lady looks over a memorandum book. "Yes, I think he was."

"Well, call him up on the 'phone. He doesn't need to come. I've had all his hospital reports and they can't find anything wrong at all. And, oh, by the way, tell him this—it will amuse him. That cloud on the X-ray plate that looked like a flaw in the glass. He'll have a good laugh at that."

The secretary vanishes into the telephone room and it is some little time before she comes back.

"I got his house," she responds, "but they say the gentleman is dead. He seems to have turned on gas in the bedroom on purpose."

"Tut, tut!" says the doctor "suicidal mania! I forgot to test him for it!"

U. S. Radio Station Features An Hour On Farm And Home

Urbana, Ill., Oct. 10.—New information on agricultural adjustments, economic questions, skillful feeding and clothing of the family and other facts from the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois will be more readily available to farmers and homemakers during the coming school year under a new arrangement whereby the university radio station, WILL, will present a farm and home hour from 11 to 12 o'clock every Friday morning during the school year. The station broadcasts on a wave length of 890 kilocycles.

In past years the broadcasts on agricultural and home economics subjects have been made daily, except Friday, as a 10-minute feature of the station's regular broadcasts. This period was so brief that many interested listeners were missing the information. Under the new arrangement, with a solid hour weekly being given to agricultural or home economics broadcasts, it is believed that the programs not only can be made more complete and valuable but also that more listeners will be able to take advantage of them.

The schedule through November is: October 13—horticulture; October 20—agricultural engineering; October 27—agricultural economics; November 3—home economics; Nov. 17—horticulture; and November 24—agronomy.

Problems in the economical operation of the 160 million dollars' worth of implements and machinery on Illinois farms will be dealt with in the agricultural engineering program which Prof. E. W. Lehmann's department has arranged for October 20. "What We Know About Combining Soybeans and Legume Seed," will be discussed by A. L. Young; "Improvements in Plov Equipment to Control Insect Pests," by Thayer Cleaver; "Saving Farm Machinery From the Scrap Pile," by E. G. Johnson, and "Keep the Tractor Wheels Turning," by R. I. Shawl.

European land problems as related to agricultural adjustments in this country will be the general theme of the October 27th program being arranged by the department of agricultural economics. For its November 3 broadcast the department of home economics under the direction of Prof. Ruth A. able discount, then they will fail to produce the amount of funds anticipated.

(b) The uncertainty of the ratification of the bond issue by the people.

Before the bond issue can be validated under the Constitution, it must, of course, be authorized by the people. After the money has once been raised, probably spent, it is very doubtful indeed whether the people can be enticed to ratify a bond issue under those conditions. As a matter of fact, public borrowing is coming very rapidly into disrepute. There is considerable uncertainty as to what the reaction of the people will be when asked to vote on this proposal.

(c) The uncertainty of the legality of the proposed source of redemption of the bonds, if issued.

The proposal is that the bonds shall be redeemed from funds collected under the motor fuel tax. As yet there has been no opinion expressed by the courts as to whether such funds will be available for this purpose. In the minds of many it is very doubtful whether these funds can be so used.

In view of these uncertainties, it hardly seems a part of wisdom to sponsor such a method of finance. If it is undertaken and the tax anticipation warrants sold and if either the people refuse to authorize the bond issue or the funds from the motor fuel tax are not available for their redemption, the ultimate result must be that the property owners in Illinois will have to be burdened with the redemption of the tax anticipation warrants. This will be extremely unfortunate and unjust, in view of the fact that at present between 80% and 90% of all taxes collected in Illinois are levied upon property. It will be extremely unjust, moreover, since the personal tax burden is extremely low in the State of Illinois in comparison with that levied in other states. It would seem much wiser, therefore, in the light of the above to seek additional sources of revenue rather than to proceed on the basis of deficit financing, as is anticipated under this bond issue.

2. Additional sources of revenue

(a) OCCUPATION TAX.

The present tax upon occupation is getting well under way and has indicated that it can be made to produce a considerable amount of revenue. The present law, however, does not by any means exhaust the possibilities of revenue under such a tax. If the base of the tax were extended to include the sales of personal and business services as well as tangible personal property at retail, the receipts would be multiplied greatly, and it would be possible at the same time to levy a lower rate of tax. It might be well to consider such an extension of the base, not only from the standpoint of revenue produced, but from the standpoint of justice in the uniformity of the levy.

From every side come reports of the waste and misappropriation of funds now being distributed by the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission. The real reason for this is that those who are charged with the distribution of the funds have little concern about their origin. That is, they come from a central government far removed from the locality. The bill herewith presented, which proposes a change in the distribution of the receipts from the occupational tax, has in mind greater economy and efficiency in the use of funds to meet the emergency needs. It is just as important to save a dollar which otherwise would be wasted, in fact more important, than it is to borrow a dollar or to raise a dollar into revenue. The plan provides for the distribution of a large part of the receipts for the support of the public schools. To distribute central funds for this purpose is not new.

The machinery is in existence and in successful operation. There is little chance for wastage and leakage of these funds or that they will go to other ends than those for which they are intended. To the extent, then, that the locality is relieved through these funds from educational burdens, it can levy taxes for the support of the poor and the unemployed. When the people locally know that they are being taxed directly for this particular thing they will be much more concerned about the economy and efficiency that should exist in the administration of these funds. There would be fewer objectors to a replacement tax of this sort under the present critical condition.

(b) Tax on the sale of agricultural produce for future delivery on the Chicago Board of Trade.

In presenting a bill to tax the occupation of selling agricultural produce for future delivery we have a tax which is extremely logical. Just as New York has for many years been the center of the market for security transfers in the United States, so has Illinois been the center for the transfer of agricultural products. In fact, about six-sevenths of all such transfers in the United States occur on the Illinois exchanges. For many years New York has levied a tax on the transfer of securities, and it seems but logical, therefore, that the State of Illinois might do something similar in regard to the sale of agricultural produce. Some years ago the federal government levied a tax upon the sale of agricultural produce for future delivery and has continued such a tax to the present time.

While the tax is logical from the comparative standpoint, many other reasons may be advanced for its use. One is that it fits admirably with the present occupation tax. Here we are suggesting the tax levied upon the sellers of agricultural produce for future delivery, which sellers do not come under the present occupation tax law.

Again, there has been much agitation in many quarters of the State for some regulation of the exchanges upon which such sales are made. Such a tax might well be considered as an attempt of the State in some small way to regulate through a systematic knowledge of sales hereby gained from the records. The tax proposed in the bill but duplicates that of the federal government and is an exceedingly moderate tax. The federal tax at present is five cents on each $100 of a contract for future delivery, which, in addition to the tax of the same amount levied in the proposed bill, would make the entire tax but one-tenth of one per cent of the sale price. Last Friday (October 6th) there were over 46 million bushels of wheat that changed hands, about 6% of the total normal production of the U. S. At this rate 16 days would see a complete turnover of the entire wheat production of the country and but a small portion was ever moved from an elevator.

In this tax we have one which would produce considerable revenue at little cost. The administrative problems would be negligible, and revenue would begin to accrue as soon as stamps could be manufactured after the passage of the bill. The provisions of the bill follow exactly those of the federal tax, so that all members of exchanges are now familiar with the entire procedure, and the only thing necessary for them to do would be to purchase stamps from the agents of the Department of Finance and affix them in the same manner as they now affix federal stamps.

(c) Tax on Security Transfers. For many years the State of New York has levied a small tax upon the transfer of stocks. Since a large part of the stock transfers in the United States has taken place in New York this has proved a very fruitful source of revenue. We suggest this law at present, not because the returns in revenue would be large, but because, since both New York and the federal government levy such a tax and since the transfer of securities in Illinois is not insignificant, it seems to be logical that we levy such a tax. Such a law, moreover, would be productive of more and more revenue in years to come, for it will undoubtedly be true that relatively more of the transfers of the securities in the United States will take place on the Illinois exchanges in years to come. Here again, administrative problems would be few, and the cost of collection of the revenue would be insignificant. The bill drawn follows the requirements of the federal legislation and since those who sell securities in this State are already familiar with these provisions and the required practices thereunder, there would be little difficulty in putting such legislation into effect in the State.

Sullivan Eleven To Strong For Decatur Reserves Saturday

By Raymond Edmund Scheer

Sullivan received the kick-off and advanced the ball on straight plays to the one foot line. A fake play, however, failed to materialize and was thrown for a loss, after this play Sullivan was held for down. Decatur kicked out of danger. Sullivan again started a march down the field but was stopped in mid-field where Decatur started showing their offense. The Decatur team was making most of its gains on line smashes. The contest remained largely in mid-field during the remainder of the quarter. At the start of the second quarter Sullivan took the ball on her own thirty eight yard line and progressed the remaining distance to the goal line. The try for point failed. Decatur received the forthcoming kick off and marched to the 30 yard line where a Sullivan back intercepted a forward pass. After three downs Sullivan kicked. Thus the half ended.

Coach White took his boys into a huddle between halves and gave them an acute inspiration to convert their efforts into a score in the third quarter. Their efforts were duly rewarded and their hopes for a win by the margin of the point after touchdown was graced by the added favor of the elements.

For a determined defense supported by a continued downpour of rain made it doubly difficult for the locals to maneuver an effective offense. However steady persistence and determination seemed to mark every play and with 1 minute and 50 seconds to play The Red Birds pushed the ball over the last marker for a touchdown and a goal.

Touchdowns—Mahoney, Barclay and Cressler. Point after touchdown Cressler.

Substitutions—Sullivan: Brackney for Pickle, Barclay for Horn Horn for Barclay, Barclay for Mahoney. Decatur—Moss for Denz, Robinson for Moss; Simpson for Walraven; Hammer for Lawler.

Sullivan came out fourth best in the four-cornered tournament when Lake City trounced Manager Elder's boys 13 to 2.

There is some talk that there may be a game between Sammy Bolin's Browns and Elder's Indies to determine the Sullivan baseball supremacy but the promoters are afraid that the weather may be too cold for much action along that line.

GOOD SEATS FOR WISCONSIN GAME ARE AVAILABLE

Urbana, Ill., Oct. 10—All roads lead to the University for Saturday is homecoming with Wisconsin and Illinois ready to put on a thrilling and exciting battle.

Last year these teams fought it out nip and tuck at Madison and although the Badgers emerged victors, three touchdowns to two, it was a nerve-racking battle in which the issue was in doubt until the last minute.

This year all critics predict an even struggle between the Badgers and Illini. Wisconsin, in fact, has lost more players than Illinois.

This is the last opportunity to see a game at Illinois until Nov. 4 when Michigan appears.

Bob Zupke will be able to send against the invaders from the north a team that will include few sophomores. The best guess at a lineup places Frink and Straw or Schustek at end; Gragg and Cummings at tackle; Kuhn and Bennis at guard; Bloom at center and lists this backfield, Benyon, quarterback, Lindberg and Froeschauer, halfbacks and Snook, fullback.

Out of this group, only Kuhn and Lindberg are sophomores. However, it is possible that Dahl and Antilla, tackles and Walker, end, may break into the starting lineup.

The University and cities are putting on the gala attire which is typical of homecoming. On Friday night 5000 students will participate in a mass-meeting on the south campus to inspire the Illini players.

The Illinois band of 160 pieces will appear in new marches, songs and music, fresh from its triumph at St. Louis where the Missouri metropolis went wild with enthusiasm as the musicians entered Francis field in formation portraying an airplane, "The Spirit of St. Louis."

Announcement that seats in excellent locations will be available at the stadium Saturday for all comers is made by C. E. Bowen, ticket manager. Free parking places will be provided.

Arthur 20, Shelbyville 13
Arthur went into a tie with Atwood for Okaw Valley conference leadership when they defeated Shelbyville 20 to 13. Shelbyville showed a fleet and versatile backfield but the line was not sufficiently strong to permit the backfield to maneuver their plays successfully.

Scoreless Tie

FARM INCOME UP

Gross farm income will approximate $6,360,000,000 this year, compared with $5,143,000,000 in 1932, assuming a continued improved demand for farm products the remainder of this year, according to a preliminary estimate by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics. The estimate is made up of $6,100,000,000 from the sale of farm products, plus at least $260,000,000 in rentals and benefit payments by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

Most of the increase in gross income is attributed to better prices for crops, since prices of most types of livestock have averaged slightly lower this year than last. Unless livestock prices advance materially during the remainder of the year, gross income from livestock will not be greatly different from that in 1932, says the Bureau.

The trend of farm prices in the next few months will be an important factor in determining the gross income of farmers for 1933, since farmers' marketings are usually largest during that period of the year, the Bureau explains.

Chillon Occupies Spot on the Lake of Geneva

Hallowed by history and glorified by pen, Chillon, one of the frequently painted and photographed chateaus in the Old world, occupies a spot on the lake of Geneva, near Montreux, which for the remarkable perfection of its beauty suggests, not earth, but paradise.

The castle stands on a tiny island of rock, separated from the shore by a narrow, natural waterway. "Here," as Sir Frederick Treves pointed out in his "The Lake of Geneva," "are all the details that befit a scene of medieval romance."

"Here stood the drawbridge by the ominous entry. Here are the low-pitched, cavernous guardroom, with its great fireplace and the sunlit courtyards where the pages played at knuckle-bones, and where the maids, as they passed, lingered to laugh with them."

"Here, too, are the turrets where the sentinels watched, the great keep into which the country folk, half clad and half crazed, were hurried when the Terror was upon them, as well as the dungeons made horrible by moans and the clank of chains. There is no detail lacking. There are even the secret stairs cut in the walls, so essential in romance, and the postern by the water's edge, which was a way of escape when all was lost."—World-Telegram.

At the THEATRE

In writing the history of the present day, the historian will doubtless find that one note-worthy feature of our lives has been clean amusement, furnished at very reasonable cost. Most of the pictures shown here at The Grand teach a very wholesome lesson—they are action sermons, vividly portrayed so all can see and all can understand. The audience does not drowse, it does not fidget.

The Gary Cooper picture Monday night was good. It was a sermon well-portrayed. The Will Rogers picture was good. Rogers' clean fun and philosophy and good acting always are pleasing.

On Friday and Saturday night of this week righteousness will triumph over villainy. The ranch will be saved. The villain meets his doom and the hero gets the gal. We did not read the advance dope but we know just about what's coming for the story was written by Zane Grey. His heroes and heroines all act to the same pattern. We note one change in these westerns—they call the villains "Racketeers"; also instead of dynamite, they use pineapples. Come let George O'Brien and El Brendel drive dull care away.

This WILL be Good
You have read (if you read any show dope) about "Three Cornered Moon." It is all about the Rimplegar family and their nutty doings. The whole picture is designed for fun and it has registered a big success. Petite Claudette Colbert, Richard Arlen, Mary Boland (as Mrs. Rimplegar), Wallace Ford, William Blakewell and a lot of other actors and actresses will frolic through a performance that will do you depressed, sad-faced readers more good than a drug-store full of medicine. This show holds forth Sunday and Monday and is accompanied by plenty of good short features. If you want to see a real nice clean, whooping comedy go see this. Don't wait until the crazy Marx brothers come—we believe this is far better.

Just a Word Here
Everett Hays as manager of The Grand has given us many good shows. He has arranged the booking for all the shows now being shown. He is on his back in the hospital in Mattoon. That's too bad, of course! But it will be cheering to this energetic and progressive townsman of ours, if we put our appreciation into action, rather than into words. Go to the Grand and see grand shows and then Mrs. Hays and Operator Yancy can report to "the boss" that things are just going along lovely and that business need not worry him—in fact it is getting along fine without him. Now if I were in a hospital and my staff would bring me such reports, I'd know that my townsmen were appreciative and it would be "good medicine" which would lead toward early recovery. Everett Hays is a grand guy, let's show him that we are the same kind of fellows. He's in the Mattoon hospital. Drop him a card.

Tuesday night
An exceptionally good show has been booked for Tuesday. Kay Francis and Nils Asther (Nils is a gorgeous looking he-man) will star in a picture—wait a minute, what is this? It says they will "star with Walter Huston and Phillips Holmes!" Now in our estimation Huston and Holmes are ever so much bigger than Francis and Asther, but maybe Kay and Nils do the heavy work in "Storm at Daybreak" which is the title of this 'ere piece. Good shorts as usual.

Big Executive
Wednesday and Thursday night comes a picture of present day life in high circles. This picture is credited with being an outstanding success. Ricardo Cortez, Richard Bennett, Elizabeth Young, Sharon Lynne, Dorothy Peterson, Barton McLane (do you know any of that crowd). We thought not, but nevertheless they are hard working climbers in Hollywood so come and see them put a picture over in a "big way."

And that's our week's dope on pictures! A pretty fair layout. We are sure no theatre in central Illinois has a more diversified and high class schedule.

4-H CLUB NEWS

SHOW 3-LEGGED CALF

The exhibition of a three legged calf at a July Fourth celebration was the ingenious plan of 4-H club members in St. Lawrence county, N. Y., to raise money to send a delegate to the National Club Congress to be held this fall in Chicago. The project was in the hands of the county 4-H council, whose members found willing people everywhere to help them make a go of it.

The calf was loaned by the owner and the army tent in which it was displayed was secured by the American Legion boys, who had charge of the celebration, by sending a truck to Ogdenburg for it. The admission was five cents and the day's receipts $6.83, showing that 160 people took in the show. The club members supplied the posters to advertise the calf and also the "barkers" to attract the crowd. It was not only a money maker but a good experience in organizing an exhibition and promoting it.

There are any number of ways for clubs to raise money and new ones are being discovered right along by enterprising members. The dance or social is a common one, but must offer some unusual features to attract good crowds in communities where there are rival events. The Clever Clothiers Club in a Montana community staged a country fair and barn dance and cleared $12.25. A considerable sum was made on sales of popcorn, candy and ice cream.

In a community near Elmira, N. Y., two 4-H clubs joined their talents and resources and staged a play, "The Special Chair" which raised $23.00. One club was limited to boys and the other to girls and it required both boy and girl characters in the cast.

Uncle Billy Rhodes Had 84th Birthday

In honor of the 84th birthday anniversary of William L. Rhodes, neighbors and friends gathered at the home of M. H. Rhodes and family near Bethany Wednesday night, October 4th and tendered him a surprise party.

Interviewed in The Progress office Saturday morning, Uncle Billy seemed very optimistic and looked forward to many more happy years. "Though I am 84 years old" said he, "I feel stronger and more able than I did when I started life. I know a lot of things now that I did not know then. I can play better golf than I ever did in my youth." Uncle Billy looks like a man just turned 60 and has that youthful spirit that you find possessed by men in their early forties.

Pay Gas And Oil Every Thirty Days

The dealers in gasoline and oils, all over the nation are under the new NRA code and it will interest the public in what way this will change their dealing with this industry.

That part of the code that will affect many people is the new credit terms which are in full force and effect.

Under the code the dealers are using the following statement on their printed stationery and they must live up to it:

"We are operating under the National Petroleum code and the NRA Recovery program and are therefore compelled to limit credit terms on gasoline, kerosene, motor oils and greases—coupons or payments net in 30 days."

Where coupon books are used they will be in denominations of $10 and will be payable in cash or net in 30 days.

Any dealer who has signed the NRA code agreement and does not live up to it will face trouble. The dealers request their patrons not to ask them to violate this credit code. A violation, even though used only as an accommodation to a friend, may lead to a $500 fine. Naturally few oil dealers can afford to take this risk. The dealers are anxious that the public understand this matter fully, as they are co-operating in every possible way to help restore the normal prosperity conditions of the country.

Upon request, any dealer can more fully explain all other matters of fair competition as included in the code. It will doubtless put an end to the practice of selling cheap or, as generally known, "bootleg" gas as prices far below the general market.

WHISPERING ROCK

by JOHN LEBAR

After the noon meal Ruth had returned to the remains of the old adobe and was mourning over a mess of mud and clothes, when she was startled by the sound of an automobile. She could hardly believe her eyes when she saw a gne-looking machine climb out of the gulch. Visitors were not common on the Dead Lantern.

There were two men in the car which approached the ranch house. Before it stopped and just as Ruth had started to walk in that direction, Snavelly rode out of the brush along the southern bank of the gulch, his horse on a dead run. Ruth paused and watched him bring his mount to a sliding stop by the machine.

"What d'you want?" his voice shrilled at the men in the car.

One of the men replied, talking for some time, but his voice was low and Ruth could not understand.

"Hell, no! We don't want nothing to do with that—" Snavelly swung his arm back and pointed along the road—"There's th' way out of this place, stranger!"

"How do you do?" smiled Ruth, as she came up to the other side of the car. The two men turned their heads in quick surprise, then smiled with pleasure.

"Are you Mrs. Warren?" asked the older man, lifting his hat.

"Yes—won't you gentlemen come up to the house?"

"Why—er—thank you"—he half turned his head in Snavelly's direction—"my name's Parker of the Triangle T, and this is Mr. Harvey, our attorney. Your neighbor Mr. Thane thought perhaps you people might be interested in a cattle proposition."

"Oh, I'm sure we should!" The three went to the ranch house porch where Snavelly joined them after tying his horse to a mesquite. The girl introduced him. He handed, did not offer to shake hands and seated himself at one side.

"You see, Mrs. Warren," began Parker, "the Triangle T is changing hands—do you know of the ranch?"

"I'm afraid not," smiled the girl. "Don't make any difference," observed Parker. "We're on the Mexican line about twenty-five miles east. Well, as I said, the ranch is changing hands. The man who bought it is going to do differently than I've always done. He intends to make a feeder ranch out of it, using Mexican stock—ah—do you see what I mean?"

"Well, no—I'm rather new to this business," said Ruth.

"Don't make any difference—he is going to buy cheap Mexican cattle and feed them to sell. The point is, he isn't going to breed Herefords and he won't pay me for the cattle already on the place—I mean he don't want them for breeding—he'll take all my steers and beef stuff, but you can see that good young cows and registered bulls are worth more than so much a pound—they're producers. Now, the man I'm selling to, Jesus Travena, don't care about that sort of stock. I was telling Charley Thane about it and he wants ten of my bulls and he said you people—"

Parker glanced from the girl to Snavelly and then back to the girl. "He thought you people might be interested in doing something. So as I was taking Mr. Harvey, here, back to town, I just thought I'd drop in and see you."

"But," said Ruth, "just now we haven't much cash. We'd have to ask for time in which to pay—we would have to pay out of the earnings the cattle bring us."

Parker nodded. "That often happens in the cattle business," he smiled. "But if I can make eight per cent on my money, I can't be in too great a hurry to get the principal. If you like, we can draw the note to come due next November—after the fall selling. But if you're at all pressed I'll extend it to the spring selling. Even if I had to wait until a year from this next November, it would be better for me than to sell the stock for what I can get now. The ranch here would be my security, of course."

"I'm opposed to that!" Snavelly leaned forward. "I don't go putting up my interest on no such proposition as that."

For some time no one spoke. "Well," said Ruth at last, "I have no objection to risking by three-quarter interest in the ranch for as many cows and bulls as you'll give me for it."

Mr. Harvey, the lawyer, lifted his brows at this statement—as a general thing partners agreed.

Parker turned to the attorney. "It would be legal for Mrs. Warren to offer her interests even though Mr. Snavelly does not wish to offer his, wouldn't it?"

"Why, yes, it would be legal; it can be done. However"—he studied Snavelly—"it will be a rather unique state of affairs. Should the cattle come on the ranch they will increase the value of the ranch and likewise the value of the partnership interests. In other words, Mrs. Warren would be increasing Mr. Snavelly's property for him, while Mr. Snavelly, in refusing to offer his share as security, would be contributing nothing to the welfare of the partnership. However," he turned to Parker as though he had seen enough of Snavelly. "I think Mrs. Warren's note will be sufficient."

An hour later the machine was disappearing into the gulch and Ruth Warren had mortgaged her entire interests in the Dead Lantern ranch.

Snavelly came up behind her. "What you just done was ag'in my advice, Mrs. Warren. Don't expect me to do nothin' if things don't turn out like you figger."

Ruth smiled. "Certainly, I understand. But you were there when Mr. Parker and I went over the situation—I know and you know the water is a little scanty, but if things don't go too badly I may be able to pay off the note next November. I hope I shall but if not, he agreed to give me a year."

"Seems like you're talkin, a lot about yourself," he replied tensely. "You talk like this was your ranch."

"I didn't mean it that way," answered Ruth lightly. The look on Snavelly's face brought Ruth back to earth with a jerk. For a moment she thought he was going to leave her without speaking, but her relief was short-lived. Do you know something? I come by the deep tank in the south pasture on my way home this mornin'. Well, it washed out last night—that's what it did. The water in that represa's gone to hell this minute. Them other shallow ones won't last two weeks!" For a moment, his glinting eyes played over her sardonically. With a short laugh he walked to his horse and mounting, rode away.

On the day after the cattle deal had taken place, Ann was not in the kitchen when Ruth arose. Neither was she in her room. Nothing in the kitchen appeared to have been touched since the evening before, nor was the fire lighted. She built the fire. Soon Snavelly came to the door.

"Where's Ann?"

"I'm sure I don't know; I thought perhaps she had to do something outside before breakfast and hadn't come in yet."

"Did you look in her room?"

"I didn't look—I opened the door and called."

"Huh!" Snavelly went to Ann's room and returned shortly. "Her bed ain't been slept in—she's gone ag'in."

"Why, what do you mean?"

"'Bout every two months or so Ann goes away for a spell—don't know where. Well, you can get me somethin' to eat, I reckon."

For five days Ruth was cook on the Dead Lantern, and of the fifteen meals, twelve of them consisted of Mexican beans and boiled sun-dried beef.

On the morning of the sixth day Ann was in the kitchen when Ruth entered.

"Why, hello, Ann! When did you get back?"

"Last even'."

"I didn't hear you come in."

"No, Mrs. Warren."

"Where have you been, Ann?"

"I've been away," answered the huge woman quietly.

Ruth said nothing more.

The cattle had come—a long, winding river of brown and white flowed into the north pasture. There, the six Triangle T cowboys allowed them to spread out of their own choosing. A great hunting of cow for calf began. Each cow appeared to have lost her calf and each calf bawled as though it had lost two mothers. The calves, temporarily orphaned, made little effort toward reunion; they stood uncertainly on their limber legs and bawled to the world at large, while their mothers sniffing, lowing, trotting nervously here and there, sorted them out. As soon as a family was united there were mutual sniffings and lickings; the bawling ceased and the cow led her offspring quietly away to graze.

When it seemed certain that every cow had found her calf, Snavelly, with the Mexican cowboys, rounded up the new bulls and drove them towards the home ranch corrals. Ruth and David followed behind. The girl was deathly afraid of those twenty-two monsters. A cow seemed more of a pleasant creature—at least, it loved its calf, and looked over the meadows with a rather satisfied, friendly expression. But those great lumbering bulls—a rolling avalanche of unfriendly power, as they plodded forward, singing their individual battle challenges deep in their throats. But the girl took a tremendous pride in them; it didn't seem possible that such a weak, insignificant thing as herself could own those huge animals. Of course, Snavelly owned a quarter of them, legally; nevertheless, they were her bulls. And they were very valuable—to lose one or two might mean the difference between meeting her note and not meeting it.

After the bulls had been driven into the smallest of the interconnecting corrals on the home ranch, they were forced, one at a time, to enter a narrow runway which opened out into the pasture. Just before a bull reached the open end of this runway and just as he was congratulating himself on his escape, a bar shot across in front of his nose, another was placed immediately behind him and he was a prisoner. The walls of the runway were already pressing his sides, and now three men took hold of a long lever with the result that one of the walls swung inward, holding the entire bull as though a great hand had closed upon him. A large animal can thus be doctored or branded with least danger to all concerned, particularly to himself. Before the first of the bulls had been released, Ruth Warren appeared among the surprised cowboys at the branding fire with a bucket of white paint she had found in the barn.

"Wait, before you let him loose" she called to the man by the nose bar.

"What's the matter?" asked Snavelly.

"Well," said Ruth, "you see—how are we going to keep track of the bulls I mean, suppose we do ride in the pasture and count them, they'll be so scattered that by the time we've counted twenty-two we can't be sure but what we've counted the same one twice, and that maybe one is gone." "Can't you tell by looking at an animal whether you've counted him or not?"

"Frankly, I can't. They all look alike to me."

"What do you aim to do with that paint?"

"I'll show you!" Before Snavelly could protest Ruth ran forward and drew a numeral one on the animal's side, two feet high. "See," she called triumphantly, "now all we have to do is check their numbers on a piece of paper—we can't go wrong."

Snavelly looked pityingly at Ruth, then turned away; the old cowman was too disgusted to speak. It seemed incredible to him that any one could look at a bull and not remember him as one remembers the face of a man.

Chicago Fire

Just 62 years ago this week Chicago had its big fire. The early structures, horse barns, cowstables, rat hatcheries, pig stys, etc., were destroyed. "This said that an old lady named O'Leary was milking a cow. Perhaps she yanked too hard or something. The cow kicked. In kicking it upset a lantern nearby—the old lady was milking after dark—the flame in the upset lantern set fire to the straw and Chicago burned.

From the ashes sprang a great city. In India they worship cows. Ought not Chicago do the same?

Mrs. Charles Cecil Died Here Saturday

(obituary) Emma Probst, daughter of Matthias and Margaret Probst, was born near Shumway November 14, 1870 and departed this life at Sullivan Saturday, October 7th, 1933 at the age of 62 years, 10 months and 23 days. She was united with the German M. E. church at Shumway when a child, her father being the minister there at that time.

Her parents died when she was but eight years of age after which she made her home at Shumway and part time at Bement until her marriage to Charley Cecil Nov. 14, 1888 at Sullivan.

To this union were born six daughters all of whom survive. They are Mrs. Bessie Musselman of Hammond; Mrs. Nellie Blue of Cerro Gordo; Mrs. Edna Ledbetter of Decatur; Mrs. Ora Cripe Moberg of Rockwell City, Iowa, Mrs. Ona Kaub of Fonda, Iowa and Miss Velma Cecil at home.

Besides her husband and these children she also leaves ten grandchildren and the following sisters and brothers: Mrs. Julie Wills of Beecher City; Frank Probst of Bement; Otto Probst of Decatur; Peter Probst of Hanna, Indiana.

The Cecil family lived twelve years in Iowa from where they came to Sullivan five years ago. They bought the Witts farm on the southeast part of the city and lived here since.

The funeral services were held Monday at the Baptist church in this city after which the remains were taken to Cerro Gordo for burial. Rev. George Miller of LaPlace was in charge of the funeral services. The pall bearers were Lon Grigsby, William Grigsby, Lewis Castang, Frank Fleming, Will Walker and W. Maxedon.

All of the children except Miss Kaub were present for the funeral.

BUGS IN WINTER HOME
Last week while C. E. Heckled and some other Bethany men were cutting firewood in the Schwartz timber west of that town, they cut a black locust. It was hollow. About ten feet up from the ground was an accumulation of chinch bugs—about a hatful—which evidently had congregated there to spend the winter.

WEATHER

The year as it grows older seems to relent its harsh moods of the summer when drought and heat withered crops, incubated chinch bugs and generally made things unpleasant.

Here it is near mid-October and no really killing frost as yet. These last few weeks have grown good and succulent pasture for stock. Late corn was given a chance to ripen. Millet fields and bean fields yield a good hay. The weather has been delightful.

Folks are harvesting a late crop of tomatoes and sweet potatoes. Many folks have lettuce and radishes of springtime tenderness in their gardens. Flowers are blooming gaily—'tis a gorgeous fall.

Wheat fields are up in a shimmering green. Football players are rah-rahing. Wienies are being burned at the stake and sticky hot marshmallows are one of world's greatest delicacies. Hallowe'en will soon be here.

A Lord died at Charleston and they sent out a call for a Buzzard—was that nice?

George Roney is working on a new city map. Soon we'll have new street names and number—we need them, so haste the day!

A good friend of ours who wants some big state job was offered the job of janitor at a state institution—and was his face red? Politicians are comedians—that is, those who have jobs to give.

At Springfield Gov. Horner has an objecting legislature on his hands. He has plans for raising relief funds. Some legislators have plans of their own. Read what Senator Clifford has to say. It appears in this issue.

Tuesday the board of supervisors met to legislate county aid for a road in Marrowbone township, if Uncle Sam builds the road and pays the cost of building.

It is beginning to look as if the Sullivan gas plant proposition was—just gas. But sewers! That's another proposition. We might as well get busy and build the sewer or Uncle Dolan Carmine will sue the city every year for dirtying the water in his creek.

Since we warned Gov. Horner that thieves might carry away the slab on route 132, some notice was taken of the warning. Guy Kellar and some of the rest of the maintenance men have been glueing the slab down with some heavy tar substance. If route 132 is not properly policed soon we suggest that it be named "thieves highway"

We are going to Urbana Friday (today) to attend a meeting of newspaper men and hear how other fellows solve their problems of collecting subscription accounts, getting advertising, gathering and writing news and lots of other things which will help us publish a better weekly newspaper.

The other day we got a letter from an indignant Republican. Said he "You have Democratic subscribers; you have Republican subscribers. They are really the owners of the paper. You are only manager, consequently you should say as many nice things about Republicans as you do about Democrats." We were rather astonished at this bold assertion. We looked up the fellow's account. He was about a year in arrears.

We like refreshing letters of complaint or otherwise. It is the fellows who do not agree with you who really make life interesting.

The foreman say he hasn't got room for one line more on this page, so So-Long 'till next week!
