77TH YEAR NO. 43

Postmaster Change Made; Clerk Resigns

C. W. Tichenor Holds Temporary Appointment Succeeding C. E. McPheeters; Mrs. Ross Tucker Out of Service December 1st.

Webb Tichenor is now Postmaster. He will retain that office until a permanent selection can be made from those who will take the civil service examination. No blanks for such examination have as yet been received, nor has a time for the examination been set. An examination for a post office, such as the local one, is along the questionnaire line. There is no examination as is necessary for the smaller offices.

Mrs. Ross Tucker, clerk in the office handed in her resignation some time ago, prior to Mr. McPheeters leaving the office. This resignation will go into effect on December 1st. It is doubtful at this time whether the department at Washington will authorize the appointment of a new clerk or whether economy will dictate that the remaining clerks must do all the work.

The rural carrier force will be cut from five to four carriers on November 1st when Will Gardner retires on a pension.

Big Welcome Party For Baptist Ministers

A welcoming party was given in the basement of the First Baptist church in Mattoon Monday evening in honor of Rev. and Mrs. Harold Ranes.

The following from Sullivan were in attendance: Lucille Davis, Crete Davis, Albert Whitsell, Ilda Mae Foster, Mrs. Kracht, Udora Sutton, Charles Sumner, Charlotte Thompson, Dick Grigsby, Virgil Ferguson, Raymond Grigsby, Mrs. Will Grigsby, Marguerite Grigsby, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Shirey, Jean Shirey, Marion Sutton, Mrs. Harry Sumner, Harold Sumner and Clarence Sumner.

Retailers Code Effective Nov. 1st

The new retailers code, which applies to all stores, will go into effect Monday, November 1st.

The code is expected to do away with ruinous, cut-throat competition and unfair trade practices.

Stores will no longer be permitted to sell certain items at a loss to lure customers, with the expectation of making up the loss by charging big profits on other sales. That part of the new code which will prove of greatest interest to Sullivan merchants is that it exempts from all its provisions any merchant operating a store employing fewer than 5 persons in towns and cities of less than 2500 people. This applies to Sullivan as a 1930 census governs. Sullivan had about 2300 people in 1930 but today it is generally conceded that the population is 3,000 or more.

Chain stores do not receive the exemption offered the small individual owned stores.

A young boy who attends high school decided that Joe David, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewie David, being young and active, did not really need a bicycle. Accordingly Joe's bicycle was stolen from its parking place in the south side school grounds. Sheriff Lansden got it back for him the following morning. The name of the foot-weary student was not divulged.

Nan Patterson Died In Home Where Born

One of Sullivan's Most Prominent Citizens Succumbs to Complications of Injuries and Disease; Funeral Held Thursday.

Miss Nan Patterson died at the family home on East Harrison street Tuesday evening at 4 o'clock. She had long been in failing health. About six years ago she fell and suffered fractures of the pelvic bones. She had been an invalid since, never being able to walk again.

She died in the home where she was born on October 19, 1862, the daughter of Jonathan and Julia (Southers) Patterson. She was one of a family of seven children only one of which survives now, her sister, Catherine. Three brothers died in their youth, two sisters, Mrs. Sallie Fillhour and Mrs. Mary Purvis died years ago. Besides the surviving sister the only near relatives are two nieces, Mrs. Mae Ricketts of Chicago and Mrs. Butha Flint of California.

The remains were taken to the McMullin Funeral Home where they remained until Thursday morning.

Funeral services were held at the family home at 2 o'clock on Thursday afternoon, in charge of Rev. C. E. Barnett of the Christian church of which the deceased had long been a member. Pallbearers were Tobias Rhodes, Chester Horn, Earl Horn, J. B. Martin, Sam B. Hall and Dr. J. F. Lawson.

Nan Patterson was a forceful character. She took an active interest in community affairs and at one time served a term as city treasurer. Politically she was a Democrat and, before her affliction disabled her, was an active worker in the party ranks. She never lost interest in her party and her influence and advice was generally sought by all candidates. After becoming an invalid she was usually brought to the poll in a wheel chair to cast her vote. The last time she was up town was on judicial election day last June.

When still able, she took a great interest in her garden and together with her sister Catherine usually had one of the most beautiful displays of plants and flowers in this city.

In her life's span, as a native daughter of this city, she saw great developments in this community, but was always found in the forefront with those fighting for things she considered important to the well-being of her neighbors and her city.

Weekly Papers Organize Association

Publishers of weekly newspapers in Eastern Illinois met in the U. S. Grant hotel in Mattoon Friday night to discuss the advisability of re-organizing the Eastern Illinois Publishers association or organizing a new association.

After discussing the matter it was decided to organize the Illinois Weekly Newspaper Association, in which only publishers of weekly newspapers are to be eligible for membership.

The association is not a rival organization of the Illinois Press Association, in which all newspaper men, daily, weekly, periodicals, supply houses and salesmen are eligible for membership.

The new association is to be strictly non-political and its activities are to be devoted solely to promoting the interests of the people engaged in publishing weekly newspapers—this of course, includes publishers of semi-weeklies.

A temporary organization was effected by choosing Ed Brandenburg of The Progress as chairman and D. L. Shoaff of the Shelby County Leader as secretary. The next meeting, to which all weekly newspaper men, in all parts of Illinois, are invited will be held in Mattoon on Friday night, Nov. 3rd.

At that time the plans of the new organization will be outlined, permanent officers will be elected and membership will be enrolled.

The weekly newspapers of Illinois yield perhaps the greatest publicity influence of any printed publications in the state. In other organizations of newspapermen the weeklies do not constitute a special unit. The new organization, when it gets under way, will tend to serve only the best interests of the weekly press.

Many of the older weekly newspaper publishers, who have long been prominent in the affairs of the press associations of the state have given encouragement and signified their willingness to cooperate in the affairs of the Illinois Weekly Newspaper Association.

Publishers at Friday night's meeting were from Douglas, Edgar, Coles, Shelby, Montgomery, Christian, Cumberland, Crawford and Moultrie counties.

Film On Fire Does Damage To Machine

A defective film, the trailer of which burst into flame, caused mild excitement at the Grand Theatre Wednesday night. The fire department was called, but the flames had been extinguished before its arrival.

The operating booth is absolutely fireproof. No fire could ever get out of it and the theatre patrons are never endangered by an accident such as happened Wednesday.

One of the two machines was slightly damaged and there were some pauses in showing the picture while the reels were being changed. The damage has been repaired.

The Editor's Chair

And I saw a new heaven and a new earth; for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away.

—Revelation 21-1

The weakness of human nature has always appeared in times of great revivals of religion, by a disposition to run into extremes, especially in these three things: enthusiasm, superstition and intemperate zeal.—Jonathan Edwards.

Days Like These

I like the tangled brakes and briars,
The hazy smoke of forest fires;
The misty hills' soft robe of brown,
The ravished fields' regretful frown;
The wrinkled road's unconscious snare;
The free, unbreathed and fragrant air.
I like the wide, unworried sky;
The resting wind's contented sigh;
The rustle of the vagrant leaves;
The whisper of the standing sheaves;
The birds' lament for summer lost;
The stinging challenge of the frost.
The sturdy life of stalwart trees
Thrills in my veins on days like these!

A New Nation In The Making

Socialists are pleased with the way things are going in this country, though the Socialist party as a factor in the political arena has been almost eliminated.

The socialistic theory of government provides in part for the more equitable distribution of wealth resulting from labor, from natural resources, or from development of the country through the needs of an increased population.

The capitalistic theory, which for many years has held sway in the life of this country, considered the rights of capital or money as always superior to human rights. The theory was that a man could, so long as his practices did not bring him into too great conflict with law, accumulate all of the wealth possible, whether he had any need for it or not.

As can readily be seen, the capitalists, made it their concern to grasp and retain control of the government, so no laws would be passed that would tend to seriously hamper their activities.

The result of this sort of economic theory was that a small group of Americans gained control of the most of the wealth of the country. Fortunes of millions and billions were built up and the owners of these bloated fortunes were the play-boys and hot-mammas of the nation whose activities, graceful and disgraceful, filled many a society column and decorated the rotogravure sections of the metropolitan press.

This was America up to 1929. The rich were growing richer and the poor were growing big families and remaining poor. Over-reaching in their greed, the money-changers burst their own bubble and wrecked the structure which capitalistic finance had been so long in building.

The resulting depression, was a blessing and future generations will regard it as such. Out of the chaos man has again emerged to assert his rights. The struggle is now in progress to see whether or not his intelligence has reached that level where he can gain those rights and use them wisely after he does.

As has always been the case in the history of the human race, a leader has emerged from the rabble with a vision of better days for his fellowmen.

Revolutionary as it may seem, his first thought is for the "average" American and his family. He seeks economic conditions which will give to every man the opportunity of earning an honest living. His ideal is a nation of happy homes, rather than a nation of happy capitalists.

The task he has undertaken is momentous. He combats not only the organized forces of greed, the barons of the almighty dollar, but he also contends with the forces of selfishness, of ignorance, of timidity and of age-old traditions and prejudices.

President Roosevelt is not a slave to the past, but he is a prophet of the future. He has the courage of experimentation. He admits his human fallibility. In putting the New Deal into effect mistakes will be made, but the mistakes will only hamper and not retard the building of a new nation, based on the rights of man.

The old regime of the money-kings has passed. The millionaire or billionaire of the future will no longer be enthroned on a pedestal where the wage-slaves may bow down to worship him. A more equitable distribution of the fruits of labor—a more wise administration of the nation's natural resources, for the benefit of the many rather than for the benefit of the few—the abolition of child labor—managed production and employment for all who want it—these are some of the ideals of the New Deal.

The old era has passed. The new one is being ushered in. How soon the nation will achieve its new ideals, depends entirely on how heartily and unselfishly we all give unstinted support to the Roosevelt plan. The mists are lifting; America sees a vision. There can be no turning back now. There is nothing to turn back to. The Old Deal is dead and by the grace of God we are headed toward a better day.

Macon County's Next Circuit Judge.

Governor Horner has yielded to the wishes of a small coterie of aspiring politicians and called a special election to fill the vacancy on the judicial bench caused by the death of the late Judge Horace McDavid. The election will be on January 29th.

The judge to be elected will preside over the Macon county circuit court. A number of Decatur Democratic attorneys are seeking the nomination for the office. Nominating conventions will be held December 15th.

Decatur Democrats are not as harmonious as seems necessary if they want to elect a judge. Factionalism has developed. Patronage distribution under the Horner regime has caused dissension and there is at present a lack of cooperation that bodes ill for success.

We dislike saying this, but it needs be said—if the Democrats of Macon county get into a wrangle on this judicial nomination, Judge James S. Baldwin will be the next presiding judge of the Macon county circuit court.

The late Horace W. McDavid was an outstanding character. His personality and ability were such that he could reconcile any factions in his own party organization and could also gain a great support from the ranks of the regular Republicans.

Judge Baldwin, long a power in Republican politics in Macon county, was not a circuit judge candidate in the judicial race last June. He took his defeat as a candidate for justice of the state supreme court. Defeat was his fate at that time, not matter what ticket or for what office he might have been aspiring.

Judge Baldwin took his defeat gracefully. He subsided temporarily from the field of politics. But Judge McDavid was called hence from the scene of his labors. The situation was thrown into turmoil and Judge Baldwin, ever ambitious, ever aspiring, seem to be the Republicans' logical choice for the nomination.

With Judge Baldwin running and the Democrats engaged in internecine strife, there exists the menace of a Republican victory in the election January 29th.

This is the way the matter looks to the writer—viewing it from the side lines and from a distance and not taking sides with any of the Democratic judicial aspirants. The Republicans will do battle to the utmost of their ability to stage the first step of the come-back—for which their loyal party members are so fondly hoping and praying.

BIGGEST STATE FAIR ON SAVING BASIS

Operating costs of the 1933 Illinois State Fair during the eight days and seven nights of the exposition were only $55,575.53 as compared with $78,069.44 in 1932, Edward S. Collins, general manager announces.

"Conforming to Gov. Henry Horner's wishes for economy, we exercised rigid supervision of all expenditures," said Mr. Collins. "The results are gratifying and we believe that we accomplished the appreciable saving without reducing the high standard of the Illinois State Fair, in the least."

"Exhibitors who had entries at the 1933 State Fair generally agreed that this exposition was the greatest in the history of the fair. We had more exhibits than ever before, and the largest attendance ever recorded. Crowd records were established for Veterans' Day and Governor's Day, and the moving of the Horse Show from the Coliseum to the Grand Stand accommodated nearly four times its usual patronage."

State Fair records show that the high point of operating expenditures was reached in 1928 when a total of $110,019.41 was expended. In 1929, the amount was $100,737.09; in 1930, $85,072.33; in 1931, $92,399.83, and in 1932, $78,069.44.

The dates for the 1934 Illinois State Fair will be August 18th to 25th.

DUCK SEASON IS ON

"Federal regulations set the open season of snipes as starting October 16th and ending Dec. 15th and takes precedence over the open season prescribed by the state law."

Preparations for feeding thousands of ducks and geese at Horse Shoe Lake, in the southern part of the state, which is the largest game preserve in the middlewest, have been completed. Mr. Thompson said. Approximately 700 acres of wheat and other small grain await the hungry birds.

For years, the Horse Shoe lake region has been a resting place for geese and ducks in their flight south.

What Is A Home Without A Fireplace

Carolyn Caldwell Fanning

What is home without a fireplace? And the answer comes to me, Like a home without its love light, Lonely surely both must be.

When my day is full of trouble And the dusk comes creeping down And I sit before my fireplace When I come home from the town.

Then I dream again of castles That have tottered long ago, Here again tonight I see them In the fires bright, living glow.

At these times I still rebuild them, In the firelights rosy gleams, And again I see the people Who dwell in those castle dreams.

They know all the tricks of magic That will show me how to find Other moments just as precious As the ones I've left behind.

Teach me love and understanding, How to make the most of life, Whisper secrets most amazing That will keep me out of strife.

And the sparkling flames that upward Reach their fingers to the skies Seem to be my life's own strivings, Seem to point where duty lies.

In their cracklings and their glow-ings My ambition I can read, Just my shouts and my complainings When I fail or do succeed.

And this evening while I ponder And the glowing embers die, Should I place a log upon them They will blaze again and cry,

O faint heart! renew your courage, Dead hopes may be born anew, Morning brings another morning, Cloudy skies will change to blue.

What is home without a fireplace? And the answer comes to me, Like a home without its laughter, Sad indeed they both must be.

Sunday School Lesson

by Rev. Charles E. Dunn

WORLD'S TEMPERANCE SUNDAY

Lesson for Oct. 29. Romans 13:12 to 15:3.

Golden Text: Romans 13:10

Paul's letter to the Romans was written about the year 54 A. D., from Corinth, where the apostle was sojourning during the course of his third missionary tour. A massive statement of his theology, it has been aptly called "The Gospel According to Paul."

The lesson is taken from the latter part of the epistle, which is full of practical counsel. While Paul mentions temperance only incidentally, yet his whole teaching here constitutes a powerful proclamation of this virtue.

With the repeal of the 18th Amendment a foregone conclusion, the nation faces a very difficult problem. Everyone admits that the liquor traffic must be controlled. But how? There are plenty of brewers whose itch for profits will inspire them to move heaven and earth to bring back the saloon. Can they be frustrated? Most of the younger generation have never seen a saloon, and know nothing of the hideous saloon system allied with vice and corrupt machine politics. We can depend upon them for only lukewarm support.

Can the separate states be trusted to curb effectively the sale of hard liquor? Are we to have 48 different systems of alcohol control to parallel our 48 varieties of marriage and divorce legislation? It seems clear that the Federal Government, while allowing large liberty to the individual states, must formulate a national plan to forestall the impending chaos of contradictory wet and dry codes.

But what shall this plan be? Perhaps we can adopt a system similar to that prevailing in Norway, where the manufacture and sale of all liquor, hard or soft, is under strict government regulation, and the profits are held down to something like 5 per cent. At any rate, the Church will have to abandon its conventional approach to the problem, and re-think its position upon this critical question. The 18th Amendment was a mistaken and costly experiment. But what next?

Team Work In School And Home

By F. Brandenburg

The home and the school are closer together in our country than elsewhere. Parents and the teachers among us cooperate more actively and sympathetically in the instruction and training of the young than is the case in any other country.

As a result of the cooperation of home and school in America, educational work is better adapted to the needs of daily life among us than among foreign people.

Parents and teachers will need to cooperate more intimately and more cordially in the future than they have done in the past because we are entering upon a great program of educational reconstruction. There is a vast amount of educational investigation being carried forward in every section of the country. The purpose of this investigation is to determine what materials of education, what methods of instruction, and what program of discipline will best prepare our young people to meet all the requirements of daily life. All the traditional subjects of education are being thoroughly scrutinized for the purpose of eliminating all topics that have ceased, or are ceasing, to be of much service in American life. There is not a subject that has been taught in the elementary or high schools that is not being overhauled. Hundreds of cities throughout the country are banded together for the purposes of pooling the results of investigations and experimentation in reconstructing courses of study, and devising more effective methods of instruction and school management.—Okawville Times

New Deal Decalogue

One of the new assistant secretaries of state is Harry F. Paper of Cleveland, who, in a recent speech, laid down the Ten Commandments of the New Deal, partly as follows:

"First—Thou shalt not live, my dear country, beyond thy means.

"Second—Thou shalt not lose confidence in thyself or thy great strength.

"Third—Thou shalt not make Mammon thy god but neither shalt thou be unmindful of thy monetary system, lest it destroy thee.

"Fifth—Thou shalt not make gold thy god but thy servant.

"Sixth—Thou shalt not permit the unemployment of thy people, well beloved; this is the first and greatest commandment.

"Seventh—Thou shalt not fail to manage well and rationalize thy industry.

"Eighth—Thou shalt not suffer the paradox of poverty amidst plenty else thou sinnest previously."—Exchange.

When the Democratic Party Will Die

According to The Pathfinder, the following poem appears in the Congressional Record. It was written in 1906 by Congressman Gaines of Tennessee, after some Washington folks had made the idiotic statement that the Democratic party was dead:

When the lions eat grass like an ox
And the fishworm swallows the whale,
When the terraphins knit woolen socks,
And the hare is outrun by the snail;

When serpents walk upright like men
And doodle-bugs travel like frogs;

When the grasshopper feeds on the hen,
And feathers are found on hogs;

When Thomas cats swing in the air
And elephants roost upon trees;

When insects in summer are rare,
And snuff never makes people sneeze;

When the fish creep over dry land,
And mules on velocipedes ride;

When foxes lay eggs in the sand,
And women in dress take no pride;

When Germans no longer drink beer,
And girls get to church on time;

When the billy-goat butts from the rear,
And treason no longer is crime;

When the humming-bird brays like an ass,
And limburger smells like cologne;

When plowshares are made out of glass,
And hearts of Tennesseans are stone;

When sense grows in Republican heads
And wool on the hydraulic ram,
Then the Democratic party'll be dead,
And this country not worth a—

Life Is A Tread-Mill

By H. S. Butler

Life is just a tread-mill
And we the treaders are,
Walking, walking all the time
But still not going far.

Trying hard to reach a goal
Struggling in every way,
Yet we're on a tread-mill
And in one place we stay.

Sometimes we think that success
now
Is knocking at our door,
When all at once it vanishes
We're knocked down to the floor.

But we must keep on treading
No use to quit nor sigh,
For life is just a tread-mill
And will be till we die.

Working, struggling is our lot
While on this mundane sphere,
Hoping for some better luck
When comes the next New Year.

It has been true since time began
Will be so evermore,
We're walking on a treadmill
As others have before.

And when we're worn and weary
Cannot keep up the pace,
The younger generation
Will come and take our place.

But the mill will keep on running
The wheel will never stop,
The world is to one person
As the ocean's to one drop.

SAVES PRICE ON COAL FOR STATE

Saving of $61,495 in the purchase of coal for thirty-three of the state's institutions will be accomplished by Gov. Henry Horner's administration on the basis of low bids announced by J. J. Rice, Director of the Department of Finance.

The state is buying 313,700 tons of coal, all from Illinois mines—a total delivery price of $715,777, as compared to a cost of $770,072 for fuel for the same institutions in 1932. The coal to be purchased is equivalent to a train load sixty miles long.

There were eighty-three bidders, and twenty-five of them were successful. The coal will be delivered to the 28 institutions operated by the Department of Public Welfare, and the State's five normal schools. Shipments of coal are underway now.

"She told me you told her that secret I told you to tell her."

"The mean thing! I told her not to tell you I told her."

"Well, I promised her I wouldn't tell her she told me, so don't tell her I did."—Exchange.

Brandy Sauce

"I can't understand this civilization" said the visitor from Dark-est Africa. "I see a big bully in a game called football. He ferociously attacks his opponent, breaks his leg and otherwise disables him, and he is the hero of the day. Then I walk into your courts and I find that a man who in righteous anger struck another man, is heavily fined and then jailed because he can't pay the fine."

Old Joe Poke of Brushy Bend says: "Lots of divorces are caused by disappointment. If the young fellow would watch his words before marriage and never promise as much as he knows that he can do, there would be pleasant surprises instead of disappointments in married life and darn few divorces."

Claude Wheeler: "You need a new car."

Prospect: "Maybe that is what you think, but let me tell you I'm still paying installments on the car I turned in in part payment for the car I traded for the car I've got now."

Once, men all over the earth believed that they were surrounded by a host of menacing, invisible beings—and times have not changed much. Today men fear evil spirits, the devil, the hereafter, the future and increased taxes.

The laborer's problem: "If I work like I ought to, I'll finish the job in two hours and the boss will get sore. If I put in the whole day on the job, the fellow for whom the work is being done will get sore. But work's scarce, so I guess I'll stretch it to a year."

When Mattoon and Sullivan get into a little spat, Decatur forgets its own troubles and hollers "Sic 'em."

Young husband: "Dearie, you spilt some mustard on this pancake."

Bride: "Boo Hoo, you don't love me any more. That's lemon pie."

In a certain town down south, when a non-advertising merchant quite business, the editor publishes the news under the heading of "Public Improvements."

A photographer, to be a success must be a diplomat. He must make people look like they want to look without spoiling the likeness so folks can't recognize it.

"If there is one thing I'm proud of" said the Allenville man, "it is my credit rating. When I buy something from a traveling man he usually says 'that will be cash' and I pay cash or I don't order. If I come to Sullivan to buy anything, nobody refuses to sell to me. They usually figure up the bill and I pay cash or I don't take the goods. Yes siree, my credit standing is first class, and I'm proud of it."

'Tis said that one Jersey dairy-man has such rich cream on the milk he sells because he mixes a few greenbacks with the cows' fodder most every day.

One of the shortest and most comprehensive codes is that of the deadbeats: "Buy all you can, but never pay unless you have to."

"Your Brandy Sauce column would be all O. K. if you had some jokes in it once in a while" a very candid young high school lad told us the other night. You know, We have been thinking the same thing ourselves.

What becomes of old jokes? A good joke never dies. Nowadays the radio announcers dig them out of their old and musty resting place, shave off their whiskers, clothe them in the language of the day and pass them off as new and original on an unsuspecting and gullible audience.

One of the meanest slaps recently received was from the fellow who remarked: "I've got to read your whole darn paper, to see if there is a theatre invite in it for me" and he's still a-readin'.

Do Classified ads get results? In St. Louis a lady advertised in the classified for a lost cat. The next day the cat was returned, together with five new-born kittens.

The high school home-coming reminds us that it would be a good idea once in a while to have a home-coming of high school students to meet together with the rest of the family.

We know of some fellows who recently got out of the pen. They are beginning to look as if though this unemployed freedom is not all it's cracked up to be. The inside of a pen is not so bad in depression times.

"On Time" is a first-class recommendation.

BAPTIST CHURCH

Rev. Harold W. Ranes, pastor

Due to the fact that the minister will be attending the Illinois Baptist State Convention at Chicago over this week-end there will be no preaching services Sunday.

Bible school will be held at the regular hour of 9:30 a. m. and B. Y. P. U. will be held at 6:30 p. m.

Miss Lucille Davis will be the leader of the B. Y. P. U. this Sunday. The subject to be discussed is "Commerce and Missions." It has been said that commerce in the lands of little civilization is the greatest instrument of exploitation of the people and the resources of the land. If this statement is true commerce is an enemy of the Cross of Christ. If this statement is untrue commerce can be mobilized in these lands for the cause of Christ. Come and hear the Young People discuss this question that is being discussed far and near; which in truth occupies the mind of the leaders of Church and Industry.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH

C. E. Barnett, Pastor

We have just received a friendly invitation to attend, and to invite our friends to attend the One-Day Convention at the Central Christian church, Decatur, Monday, Oct. 30. There will be three sessions: ten o'clock a. m., 1:30 p. m. and 6:00 o'clock a Fellowship supper. The convention theme is "Christ, the Pioneer of Life." We gladly announce this convention because we want to interest you in missions. The team leader will be Stephen J. Corey, president of the United Christian Missionary Society. Let us have a large attendance from the Sullivan church. In our local work the regular services continue. The evangelistic spirit still abides and our themes will be of like nature. Sermon Sunday.

HEALTH SERVICE

Why go to some Springs or Sanitarium when you can get the same results at much less cost? We have a combined system of treatments and eliminative baths, which will cure any curable case.

Warm rooms, meals furnished and the entire cost is very moderate as compared with sanitarium prices. Many of our former patients and friends of Sullivan and vicinity have come to us here, for treatments, which we appreciate very much.

If you have a chronic condition of any kind why not come for an examination, and our opinion in your case?

Write for information as to prices, etc. Free transportation may be arranged for.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Glenn M. Garber, Pastor

Every one ought to belong to the Church because every man ought to pay his debts and do his share toward discharging the obligations of society. The Church has not only been the bearer of good news of personal salvation; it has been and it is the supreme uplifting and conserving agency without which "Civilization would lapse into barbarism and press its way to perdition."

GOSPEL MISSION

Over the Post Office

Time of services the same.

2nd Kings 3:16—"Thus saith the Lord, make this valley full of ditches."

Preparations must precede blessings.

The host of Israel was suffering for water, God through his prophet Elisha tells Israel to prepare to receive the water and he will send it. Here was a need in the lives of the Israelites but before God could supply that need there was something for Israel to do. Notice, he tells them they will neither see the wind nor rain but if they dig the ditches he will fill the valley with water.

If you are standing in need of a certain blessing, first of all you must prepare to receive it. It may mean some ditch digging on your part, but when you have dug the ditches the Lord will send the water. You say, but I don't see how the Lord can supply the particular need or blessing that I stand in need of, neither did Israel see how God supplied the water, there was no wind nor rain, but there was an abundance of water. It is none of our business how God does it. If you are camping in some dry valley just commence digging ditches, God will supply the water. If God chooses to have it rain in some other part of your world and send the water without the rain, the wind, the thunder and lightning, so much the better.

High School News

Margy Lou Scheer

A change has been made in the Homecoming program today. The Parade will start at 2 and the game between Shelbyville and our Sullivan team starts at 3:00. This change was made so that the Shelbyville student body can attend the afternoon celebration. Serving for the supper begins at 5:30 and continues until 7 or 7:30. Don't forget, the supper is in the gymnasium and there will be plenty of food for the whole family (we hope).

The curtain rises for "Diggin' Up The Dirt" our all school play at 8:00. This promises to be one of the best plays ever presented at S. T. H. S. and is under the direction of Miss Coolman. An Alumni reception will be held in the gymnasium after the play. This makes a rather full day and our only regret is that school will be held this morning but the classes will be shortened so it won't be so bad.

The principal speaker at the teacher's banquet Tuesday was Supt. William Harris of Decatur. After the banquet, the teachers attended the Grand Theatre in a group. We hope they enjoyed themselves.

Miss Lawson was ill last Friday and Mrs. Guy Little, a former Sullivan teacher, substituted for her for the day.

Tryouts for the Glee Clubs were held this week but, owing to the large number of promising voices, Mrs. Roney hasn't picked the lucky people yet.

The second show of the series will be given Monday morning. It is a James Cruze production and the title is "Grass." It sounds interesting at least.

Dean Brackney got back from the mine war Tuesday. He managed to miss the first six week's test but the teachers will probably let him make them up.

James McLaughlin sprained his ankle in the game last Friday and has been absent from school this week. I'd say he was lucky if it wasn't for homecoming.

The Sullivan Redbirds held the Alumni to a scoreless tie Monday evening after school in spite of the threats of some of the Alumni to 'skin' them at least 40 to 0. The game was doubly interesting when you knew the members of both teams.

Thelma Burwell, a member of the Senior class has been in Decatur at the hospital for three weeks. Her condition is improving and she may be able to attend school before long.

A certain boy can't seem to guide his feet, especially when he is kicking a football.

Tuesday, he had the misfortune to kick the ball through the window in the cafeteria room, causing a big commotion among the girls there. Of course, no one was hurt but a few thought they had been shot.

Desks seem to be pretty handy things to write notes on but privacy cannot be guaranteed.

Waggoner

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. King and son, Ethel Harris, Dean Rawlings and Edward King spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Rawlings of near Tower Hill.

William Critzer was a Bruce caller Monday.

Frances and Billie Critzer spent Sunday with Grace King.

Dean Rawlings broke his arm while hauling cane.

Bessie Sampson spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. George King.

GLENN ROLEY BUYS FARM

A deal was closed this week by Carmine & Wood whereby they sold 7 acres in the southwestern part of this city, the property of Mrs. Alice Workman of Chicago, to Glen Roley of this city. The only improvement on the tract is an old cattle barn.

Lovington's Last Civil War Vet. Dies

Joseph H. Foster, a resident of this township for over eighty years, and the last of the Civil War veterans of this community passed away at his home Wednesday evening, Oct. 18, at 10:15 o'clock.

Mr. Foster was one of twelve children, a son of the last John and Margaret Foster. He was born February 25, 1846 in Ross county, Ohio, near Circleville. He came with his parents to the Foster farm northwest of Lovington when he was two years old and had since lived in this community. He enlisted for service in the Civil War at Camp Butler, near Springfield, just after his eighteenth birthday and served until the close of the war.

The deceased was united in marriage to Emma Dunscomb, also a native of Ohio in November, 1871. Two daughters, Mrs. L. T. Anderson and Mrs. G. W. Harris were born to this union. There are three grandchildren, Joe F. Harris of Detroit, Mich., Harold Harris of Lovington and Mrs. Maxine Halfyard of Danville and one great grandchild. Also three brothers and three sisters as follows, Mrs. Sarah Gibson, Rocky Ford, Colo., Robert of Lawton, Ia., Fletcher of A-wood and Mrs. N. E. Timmons, Mrs. Emma Howell and M. E. Foster of this place.

After services in the M. E. church Friday afternoon, the remains were laid to rest in Hewitt cemetery with military honors.

I'm Going Home

J. McBride Dabbs
I find myself turning away from the cooperative ventures of men, and looking backward to the years and moods of my youth. I'm going home. But not to rest; to work. I have frittered away time enough playing the game that most men play. I do not regret my wandering; it is a part of myself. Without it, I might not have come to this place, here on the road home.

From earliest childhood I looked between tall pines, across a mile of fields, to the evening sky beyond. Here, in an old Southern community a few families still attempted however vainly, to hold together the great plantations of ante-bellum days. Here we were taught self-dependence. Though alone, we were not lonely.

At 16 I ventured into a highly organized world. As I see it now, that venture is drawing to a close. I like individuals, but when the machinery of organization intervenes I lose interest. I'm going home.

Why? Because I have failed? Not according to average standards, I think. But what have I gained? A broader and deeper understanding of men, a certain sense of comradeship. But beyond this—mostly negative things. I've been engaged in learning where life for me does not exist. A necessary knowledge, it is true, but one doesn't wish to spend all his time learning it. When one knows it, he wishes to go on, or as in my case, back to the spring of life. To me, most organizations simply don't matter. I'm no mechanic, to tinker forever with their machinery; nor am I a statesman, to use them.

Some time ago, after an absence of years, I visited my boyhood home. Those days and nights showed me what I wanted. More explicitly, the day and the night there, the sun, the moon, and the stars, taught me. I slept again in the room that I had occupied as a boy. During the night I heard the ceaseless piping of frogs in the ponds nearby. I rose and went to the window. The moon had just cleared the tall pines before the house. From far off to the south came the murmur of a breeze. Steadily the noise increased until the pines about the house were all sighing together. And I was sure that these sighs and sounds held the secret of my life. The years had passed, and I had changed—oh, I had lost many things—but here was something changeless, binding my present to my past. It even amused my fancy to think that the same frogs that piped through my boyhood nights were piping still; as perhaps the same wind was blowing—a—at least, it blew from the south; as surely the same moon silvered the same trees.

I had learned where to find myself. In proportion as I understood these dear objects about me, I should understand myself, for they having helped to form me, had become a part of me. With them were both my physical and my spiritual home. I was so sure of this that I, who until that moment had never had the least preference as to where—or even whether—I should be buried when I died, now felt that when it was all over it would be good to sleep beneath the long-leaf pines, here in this quiet grove. Here I should be always at home.

And always in the presence of the noblest symbol of religion that I know. A pine. With its tap-root sunk, through sand and loam, deep into clay, its trunk straight and clean, its branches against the sky. Sure of itself, at peace, steadfast.

So, these days, I'm on my way back. Men may call it defeat, cowardice, selfish individualism. What does it matter? What if I am an anachronism, a survival of the pioneer in an age that does not need him, needs rather the socialized man? We must cooperate, we are told, or our civilization is lost. And I think it's true. (Though when I ride on the New York subway at six p. m. I have doubts about our civilization). I'm in favor of the League of Nations, the World Court, etc., etc. I will give them my moral support—whatever that means. But organize them, and run them—I'm sorry, it isn't my job. My children perhaps will learn it. Groups of people are as natural to them as trees are to me. I will go back to the trees, and listen again to the lessons they taught me as a boy. It is barely possible that some of those lessons may be of value even to the highly socialized world of today.

One doesn't get cock-sure, where I'm going. I have seen a hundred acres of cotton, the beautiful product of man's sweat under the summer sun, fleecy white at morning, at evening torn, bedraggled, beaten into the sand by the fury of a storm. So it's sit quiet, and watch; and when the storm is over tighten your belt and plant your cross again.

I remember, as a boy, many and many a night—standing in our backyard at nine o'clock and hearing through the pines, across an interval of seven miles, the night express go by. The note of the whistle was sweetened by distance.

At moments we even heard roar of the train crossing a trestle. Then, silence. And the pines and the stars. Once more we had been assured that, though we lived on the outskirts, we lived in the world. And now, surrounded again by this quiet, I shall hear, far off like muted music, the noise of industry of commerce. I may smile ironically at times, for at times it may seem like the noise of lost men saving one another. But I shall often be moved to admiration, and to wonder that men play so well the hard game of life. If I choose to play alone, they choose to play together. I will return to myself, to the years, and the scenes, long lost. Again the western sky, beyond the Black River, will reflect strange and noble deeds. The world will work its work, I mine. I'm going home.

Oregon Forest Boys Read The Progress

Joseph Fuller of Gays who recently re-enlisted in the C. C. C. (Forest Army) likes the life and according to his letter the boys like to get the news from home, via The Progress. In a letter to his mother Joe writes as follows:
Wineglass Camp,
October 10, 1933
Medford, Oregon.

Dear Mom:
Well our camp is almost deserted now. The boys all went home but 102 and 30 of them went to government camps today to work there for two weeks. We are busy cutting trees and I like camp life. The boys of Co. 1653 at Crater Lake, Oregon enjoyed deer steak for dinner. The deer, a young two point buck was killed by one of the rangers and given to the Co. as a treat to the C. C. C.'s of Illinois.

At the Company garbage pit at government camp was counted 21 bears at one time enjoying an evening meal on the government.

Have this put in the Sullivan Progress as I enjoy reading it and the Gays news. One of the boys here in camp gets The Progress every week and he hands it down to us all.

Goodbye for this time.

Arthur Shows Good Offense To Defeat Sullivan 20 to 0

(By Ebby Scheer)

The Arthur team making 18 first downs to Sullivan's 3 plunged through, ran around and passed over the Sullivan team for consistent gains at that place. The Arthur squad threatened in the first quarter with the ball on the Sullivan 3 yard line first down and failed to push the ball over.

Arthur's cross bucks fooled the Sullivan forward wall time and again. A torrential downpour aided the heavier Arthur team in the last period in their 20 to 0 win.

The Sullivan team never threatened.

First Period

Poland's initial kickoff crossed the goal line and was brought to the 20 yard line to start the play. On the first play Turner (former Sullivan boy) plunged for five yards. Dixon netted three and Turner ran off tackle for three more and a first down. Taylor on a crossback made another first down placing the ball on the 42 yard line. After an incomplete pass Arthur kicked to the Sullivan 33 yard line. Barclay returned the ball to the forty. English plunged to the 43 where a 15 yard penalty put the ball back to the Sullivan 25. An off-tackle smash lost five yards, so on third down Poland kicked and the ball went out of bounds on the Arthur 8. Turner made 30 yards on a wide end run. Fleming made 15 yards and another first down. A complete pass put the ball on the Sullivan 45 where Sullivan took the ball on downs.

Second Period

Arthur took the ball on her own 30. Two plays made a first. Turner made 20 and Fleming 15 yards to the Sullivan 18. After a 15 yard penalty Arthur completed a 33 yard pass and Turner went over for a touchdown. Dixon plunged to make the point 7-0.

Barclay ran back the forthcoming kick off to the 30 yard line. After two plays Sullivan kicked. Turner and Taylor alternating ran the ball from their own 30 to Sullivan's 5 yard line where Sullivan, taking the ball on downs kicked out of danger. Arthur started another march down the field but fumbled on the Sullivan 25. Poland kicked. Turner made 3 yards and the half ended.

Third Period

Dixon kicked off to English who ran back to the 25 yard line. Mahoney lost three, then English gained 10 yards. Pifer plunged for a first down. Arthur recovered a fumble on the Sullivan 45. A 40 yard pass put the ball on Sullivan's 6 yard line. Dixon, on the fourth down plunged for the score. He failed to make the point.

Pifer carried the kick off to the 35. A pass made a first down. The following pass was intercepted.

Fourth Period

Sullivan held for downs on her own 10 and kicked to their own 45. A 15 yard penalty put the ball back on Arthur's 40. Arthur kicked to the 5 yard line. A 15 yard pass to Scheer made first down. Again the following pass was intercepted this time by Robinson for a touchdown. Dixon again plunged for the point. English took the kick off to the 25 yard line. Here he punted, and on the next play Arthur drew a 15 yard penalty. Pifer intercepted a pass and ran to the Arthur 10 yard line, but Sullivan received an off side penalty. The game was over at this point, but because of the penalty one more play was allowed. Turner made 8 yards off tackle.

Future Farmers WEEKLY NEWS

Robert Miller, Cecil Shasteen, Lloyd Thomas, Ross Thomas Jr., and H. P. Erwin were in Shelbyville Wednesday looking over some calves for project work in agriculture. Cecil and Robert each bought calves. The other boys may decide to buy on Thursday.

The calves were Texas Herefords picked for 4-H club work in Shelby county and shipped in by the Shelby County Shipping Association. The calves chosen were part of a lot of fifty-six originally shipped in. Each calf of the entire lot was given a number and each prospective purchaser had to look the entire group over and if he chose to buy he was required to "draw" so that chance was the only factor that determined which calf he would get.

Oliver Myers and Dale Lane are also thinking of trying to obtain beef calves to feed as part of their agriculture project activities. They may not, however, be able to get calves from this group.

The Animal Husbandry class visited the Orville Hogue farm east of town Wednesday and received instruction and practice in sheep judging. Mr. Hogue's grade Shropshire lambs and ewes were used in the demonstration. Body conformation, fleece and breed characteristics were the factors observed and brought out in the demonstration and practice.

Wayne Wilson, Billie Sentel and Robert McKinney are looking after pure bred Jersey calves and heifers for their project work during the coming year. These boys have the foundations well started for three splendid herds of Jerseys.

Garret Burtchard and Harold Bathe are making plans for Jersey projects but have not yet gotten their projects started.

Several of the boys who obtained seed corn from the F. F. A. seed corn improvement project last year are finding it very difficult to find seed with which to pay back the seed they got last spring. Edgar Roberts, Forest McDaniel and Hathas Deckard have repaid their obligations in full. A few of the other boys have found and picked some of their project seed but have not brought it in to the drying racks. Those boys who obtained seed corn from the F. F. A. for their projects are under obligation to return twenty choice field picked ears for each gallon of seed to the school building before the first killing frost. Some of the project fields don't have corn enough to begin to fulfill the contract—others have good quality corn. Seed corn appears to be scarce and will likely be relatively high in price in the spring of 1934.

4-H CLUB NEWS

AFTER CORN RECORDS

Four-H club members have shown the way to do many things on the farm in a better way, and this year they are sure to spring some surprises in the national corn growing contest which is under way in 36 states. The only states not entered are those in the extreme northeastern section, the southwestern and Florida.

The contest is under the supervision of the state club leaders in each state and contestants must grow at least one acre, but may report on more than one due to the varying condition in the different states. This is one of a number of contests developed by the National Committee on Boys and Girls Club Work and made possible only by scholarship and other prizes provided by the Nelson Knitting Company of Rockford, Illinois, due to the friendly interest of this firm in helping to readjust agricultural production of the nation in line with national recovery.

Many club members are expected to show yields of 100 and more bushels of corn per acre, and grown at a relatively small increase in cost per acre over the cost which many farm fields show for yields of but one-half or less. Anyone can see the club member's profit per bushel will be materially higher. The club member's saving will be in the use of less land, and the consequent saving in rental or interest and tax charge and seed, and the reduced labor of covering the land. The time he saves in covering his land can be devoted to other occupations or to leisure, and the study of farm problems. All of these advantages may be had by the farmer who raises more corn on his present or on a reduced acreage. It is in this way that 4-H contestants will point the way to better corn production.

County winners will be announced by club leaders soon after corn husking, and state champions as soon thereafter as county winners can be judged. The state champion receives a prize educational trip to the National Club Congress in Chicago, where final winners will be awarded cash agricultural college scholarships and other fine prizes.

Contestants will also be eligible to enter their corn in subsequent shows offering many thousands of dollars in prizes. Last year's Iowa state champion produced 145 bushels of corn an acre, and the average of 407 members was 73 bushels, which shows what the country may expect from the youngsters when their fields are harvested. Records of all costs are a requirement, and will be widely disseminated by the newspapers.

"The Poor Man's

(Continued from last week) Old Charley himself had remarked to Ruth that the rains began about the end of June; Snavelly had admitted that it might rain around the twenty-fourth of June—before the real drouth set in; but Ann, Don Francisco, Alfredo and Magda had stated calmly that the rain would come in abundance beginning with the day of San Juan.

It was now the twentieth of July and since the single storm of more than two months before, there had not been a cloud in the sky the size of a pigeon. The grass which had sprung up so brave and green after the storm was now wilted and the color of broom-straw. The lacy leaves of the mesquite curled on drooping branches, dust laden; the broad, flat leaves of the prickly pear were shrunken and yellowish; small bushes were as brittle as glass, and the twigs and weed stems underfoot rustled like dry paper. The birds, rabbits, coyotes and lions had left the country—all was desolation. Rattlesnakes abounded.

Each morning the sun rose naked above the eastern mountains and as it rose a wave of stifling heat swept over the desert as though a mighty oven door had slowly swung open. Ruth had rather expected rain on the Day of San Juan and, when that passed cloudless, felt that in a day or so she would see the clouds billowing over the mountains and smell the indescribable perfume of desert rain. As day succeeded day, each hotter, dryer, more hopeless than the preceding day, her anxiety increased—she seemed trapped in a corner while disaster crept relentlessly nearer. The increasing awareness of her responsibility drove her to assume more and more the control of the ranch. Before she well realized it she was giving orders for the day's riding. Snavelly left everything to her. He rode out each morning but he rode alone and he returned alone.

Occasionally as she rode about the ranch, Ruth came across him. Sometimes he was riding casually up some canon as though he cared not where he went, as long as he had no company; again, she had seen him sitting in the shade of a scrubby live oak high upon a ridge top. Whenever she saw him these days Ruth had an odd, uncomfortable feeling that Snavelly was waiting for something.

One day she met Old Charley and Will as she was riding the southern boundary of the ranch. The two men came up to the fence and talked with her. That evening she told Snavelly that he ought to go to town for a wagonload of cottonseed meal which could be given to such cows as needed it badly. She also suggested that he get a certain brand of dried milk—much advertised in the cattle raisers' magazine—which, mixed with water, could be given to the underfed calves and the orphans.

Snavelly thought for a long time, then said he would go. It seemed to Ruth that there was an undercurrent of eagerness in his voice in spite of his objections to the trip. He started the next morning with team and wagon, returning a week later with the load. He appeared oddly satisfied.

Now, whenever the riders found a weak cow with a starving calf or some calf without a mother, these animals were brought to the home ranch, turned into the small horse pasture, and fed. Some sixty cows were receiving their daily ration of meal, and about the ranch house and corrals wandered a band of nine or ten orphaned calves whom Ruth was bringing up on the bottle.

The gulch had been fenced by the Mexicans under Ruth's direction; also all the ponds were now deep—and all but the one in the south pasture was bone dry. Half of the herd watered at this pond, the other half at the corral troughs on the home ranch. The corral troughs could only water this number. Very little wind came to turn the windmill which fed the tank by the corrals. Even after Alfredo had constructed a primitive hand pump, it usually meant three hours of back-breaking labor to raise the required amount of water.

And no signs of rain. Each day, as she returned from the south pasture, sometimes driving a weak cow, or even carrying a day-old calf across her saddle, the swelling fear in her heart increased. A hundred times a day she looked for clouds; if her riding took her near a hill she went to the top, eagerly scanning the new-made horizon.

She knew that the Mexicans were praying for rain—she had given them all the candles in the house for the sacred picture they had hung in the barn. And once she had entered the gulch after a calf, which had gone through the fence, and upon the rock had found a grotesque little mud image holding a tiny pot of cornmeal. Ann did not reply when Ruth asked her about it; but the girl had come to know the footprints of the giants.

There came a day when the water in the south pasture had shrunk to a thin sheet of wet mud. Then Ruth knew that the end had come; with the full herd trying to water at the home ranch where there was barely enough for half, there could be only one result. If no rain came within a week the cattle would begin dying by dozens.

For the last few days as she watched the water so relentlessly disappear, Ruth thought less about meeting her note and more about the cattle themselves. The tears often started in her eyes these days. When the girl came upon a gaunt cow lying in the stifling shade at the bottom of some gully, with a shriveled, panting calf at her side, she wanted desperately to explain to these poor creatures that she could not help, that she was not to blame.

When the last of the water was gone in the south pasture, Ruth felt that she would gladly give every animal on the place to any one who could take them to green fields and running water. Feeling as she did, the blow which fell on the following mail day was robbed a little of its power to hurt.

She had written a letter to Parker explaining the situation and thanking him for his previous offer to extend payment. And although Old Charley would be bringing the mail and would not be going into town again until next week, the girl rode to the box.

But the mail had already arrived when she reached the box. There were two letters addressed to her. The one with the earliest postmark was from Parker who explained that for business reasons he had been obliged to take a loan on the note. It was now in the hands of J. H. Witherspoon, Inc., a broker. The second letter was from the broker. After reading it the girl stared at the cloudless skyline, then rode home. Her lips were set and her face shone yellow under the tan. "Consequently, the cattle situation being what it is owing to the present drouth, we feel it necessary to call payment on the note when due; namely, November first, next."

"Well," said Will, "there's one thing certain—when the rains hold off as long as this they make up for it when they do begin." Again, Ruth shook her head. Old Charley studied for a moment, then slowly climbed out of the car. Will followed. "I've seen some pretty bad times mended," remarked the old man. "Things most always seem worse than what they are. But psaw—we're bound to get rain before long and when we do, it'll likely be a good one, same as Will says."

"The last pond went dry a week ago," said Ruth dully. Old Charley tried not to show his surprise. "So? Well, they'll get a little thin waterin' at the well, but it won't hurt them."

"Oh!" Ruth suddenly turned away. After a moment she said slowly, "I gave my note to Parker for the cattle—my interest in the ranch will be gone by November—there's no water—the cattle will be dying in another week."

"Another week!" Both men stared at the girl. "You must be wrong," said Old Charley.

"No, the well's going dry—it gives out sooner each day."

"But, Mrs. Warren"—Will looked from Ruth to his father—"I don't understand. There was surface water there late last June worlds of water. Why, there must be two or three thousand acres which drain into that well!"

"It's going dry," said Ruth. "New wells sometimes give out quick," replied Old Charley slowly, "but it sure seems funny. You see, Will, here, helped your brother locate that well. You ought to be able to take care of a good half of your herd—let part of 'em water at the corrals."

"At—the—corrals? But I don't understand—do you mean—what do you mean?" Old Charley looked at his son and then at Ruth. "Why, just what I said; use the well at the corrals, the one with the windmill—the old well."

"But that's what we have been using," cried Ruth; "that's the one that's going dry!"

"What!" ejaculated Will. "Aren't you using the upper well at all?" "Upper well—what upper well?" asked Ruth in a dazed voice.

"Well, I'll be—" Old Charley looked at his son. "He never went on with it," said Will, softly.

Old Charley nodded and turned to Ruth. "The prospect Harry and Will found last summer was in the upper end of the north pasture—I guess Harry didn't get around to developing it before—he left. But didn't anybody tell you about it?"

"No," Ruth's heart was beating wildly. "I never heard about any other water."

"Harry bought the pipe," said Will. "Remember, Dad. We passed a load of it on the way to town last fall."

"There's a big pile of pipe behind the barn," said Ruth. "Tell me quick! Is there water we can use in the north pasture?"

"I'll have to be developed," said Old Charley slowly. "Shouldn't take more than a day or two," responded Will. He thought a moment, then pulled an envelope from his pocket and wrote on it with a pencil. "Here Dad, you run on into town and send this telegram—I'll be staying over a few days." He turned to Ruth. "Suppose I ride back with you and show you that place. Seems to me you ought to develop plenty of water with a day's work or so."

Snavelly slowly arose as the riders came straight up to him. Ruth spoke: "Mr. Thaine has told me of a place in the north pasture where there is indication of water—he and my brother found it last summer." She paused. "Why didn't you tell me about it?"

"I had reasons," said Snavelly, his eyes on Will. "I didn't want to get your hopes up—there ain't no use diggin' in that gully bottom just because of a little rain seepage."

"But, Mr. Snavelly," said Ruth. "Now that we have need of the water don't you think it would be wise to try to get it."

"If you can—you won't find nothin', though. Maybe a little rock basin full of rain water under the sand."

There had been no rains for several months when they located the prospect last summer," said Will—"the sand was wet and we dug far enough to see that water was running into it from that big dike. That dike is a natural underground dam—"

"All right, all right—go ahead and dig all you're a mind to if you have such an all-fired interest in the Dead Lantern, Mr. Thaine."

Will made no reply and Ruth thanked him with her eyes. To Snavelly she said, as she started her horse, "Please have the two men follow us with picks and shovels."

It was not long before Will guided her into a small arroyo, one of the hundreds which led down from the mountains.

Three Taken To Penitentiary Sunday

J. B. Egbert and Fred Wilkie, convicted recently for burglarizing Elmer Bowers home in Jonathan Creek township several years ago are now in the southern Illinois penitentiary. A jury some weeks ago found them guilty after hearing the evidence in the case. At that time the men's attorney asked for new trial. Before this motion could be argued, it was withdrawn and a petition for probation was filed. Probation officer Charles Booze investigated the petition.

When the petition and report was presented to Judge Armstrong in court here Saturday, he ruled that the men were not entitled to the leniency asked and sentenced them to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary.

Russell Retz, who entered a plea of guilty to chicken stealing was also sentenced to 1 to 10 years. He has a record, having served twice in Kansas prisons. His companion, Bert Woodriddle of Decatur, is still in local jail and reports say he is willing to plead guilty and take his medicine. Both Retz and Woodriddle have been in jail here since last May.

Sheriff Lansden took Egbert, Wilkie and Retz to the southern Illinois penitentiary Sunday where they were checked in to start doing their time.

PARTY GIVEN FRIDAY NIGHT AT MT. PLEASANT SCHOOL

A wiener roast was held at the Mt. Pleasant school on Friday, October 20th. Wieners and marshmallows were roasted. Pumpkin pie, coffee, onions and pickles were also served.

After playing games outside, some contests were played in the house.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Vaughn and sons Chas. and Fount and daughters Edith, Hazel, and Rosemary; Mr. and Mrs. William Bathe and son Wayne and daughters Hazel and Martha Alice; Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Morgan and daughter Jaunita; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Foster and son Orville; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Steinbaugh and sons Donald and Robert and daughter Rose Ann; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Carr and sons Harry, Lewis and Russell and daughter Dorothy; Alvin Mattox, Mr. and Mrs. Carl M. Leavitt and son Donald, and daughter Vonnie.

—Mrs. M. B. Whitman is confined to her home with an attack of the flu.

Chicken Thieves Operate In Whitley

Despite the fact that chicken thieves are being sent to the penitentiary for a long sentence, some of the miscreants are still operating. A report from the Smysor neighborhood in Whitley township says that Mr. and Mrs. Scott Young have suffered two losses from thieves. Some weeks ago their poultry house was cleaned of its occupants. They bought some more chickens and some of these have also been stolen.

Many farmers feel that the laws governing this matter are entirely too lax. Years ago farmers used to band themselves together to hang horse-thieves. Chickens on farms are usually raised by the women folks. Any crook so low and despicable as to rob a hen-roost, certainly deserves hanging if any horse thief ever did.

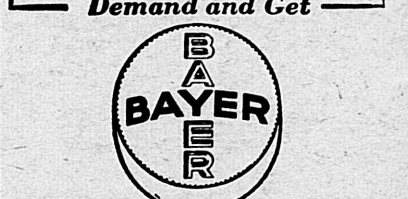

Reports from penal farms and penitentiaries say that even hardened crooks refuse to have anything to do with chicken thieves. They consider them the vilest scum on earth, lower than a snake's belly.

Damon Runyon, noted writer of sports for newspapers wrote the story. From coast to coast the picture critics are digging around in their assortment of adjectives to properly express their appreciation. Liberty Magazine gives it 4 stars; Photoplay magazine says "You'll scream with delight. . . thrill with suspense."

"It has been a long time since this reviewer saw a picture that he enjoyed so much" — Atlanta American; the Atlanta Journal says: "If you do not see it you have simply overlooked, passed up and plain missed, one of the two or three big bets of 1933."

In the cast are Warren William, May Robson, Guy Kibbee, Ned Sparks, Glenda Farrell, Walter Connolly, Jean Parker and Barry Norton, all of whom have been acclaimed among the premier entertainers in the picture world today.

Just a look-in on the story: "All night-life denizens of Broadway and the Roaring Forties know and like "Apple Annie" (sometimes called Madame La-Gimp) the gamblers, the muggs, the panhandlers and the racketeers. She is supposed to be a mascot. Dave the Dude, kingpin gambler, would not turn a card or roll the dice without buying an apple from Annie beforehand, for luck."

And from this general start there develops one of the funniest, most interesting, thrilling pictures of the year, wonderfully portrayed by a swell cast.

If exploitation means anything, this picture ought to go over big with local fans. It is backed by heartiest commendation from the world's leading critics, some of whom seldom give off anything but a sour note.

Do not forget and look in the regular adv. for a line-up of all the other good things on the program for this coming week.

Young Bandits Robbed Texaco

Two nice, gentlemanly looking lads, one wearing a sweater with a college or school initial "T" on it and accompanied by a girl who remained in the car, visited the local Texaco filling station Thursday night of last week at the hour of 8:45. Lowell Hodge was in charge at the time and John Harris was in the office.

After getting some gas, the boys politely relieved Lowell of his coin belt and then while one kept guard the other took what money was in the office cash drawer. They also asked Lowell for his $25 wrist watch which he readily gave them. They asked John Harris for his valuables. John threw a wallet on the table. In it were one penny and one small foreign coin. With a snort of disgust they threw this back at him. 36 cents in pennies did not interest them, so they left them too. In all they got about $26.00 in money. They also took a Goodrich $8.40 Silvertown tire.

After getting the watch, money and tire, they asked Hodge and Harris to take a walk down Hamilton street. While they did this, the polite robbers entered their car and drove west out of town on Harrison street. Hurrying back to the office Mr. Harris grabbed a sawed off shotgun, and then went to the Grote garage. Cale Cunningham was there and joined Harris in a car of pursuit. No trace of the culprits was found.

Several hours later, a filling station was held up in Lincoln, by a group that answered the description of the local robbers.

ANOTHER SALE

Wood and Loy are announcing another Combination Sale for Friday, November 3rd. These sales are a sort of community institution.

Farmers often have livestock, implements, etc., for sale, but do not have a sufficient quantity to put on a big sale themselves. The Combination Sale plan makes it possible for them to list their stuff and sell at auction to a good crowd.

MRS. W. I. MARTIN HOSTESS TO THE N. Q. Q. CLUB

The N. Q. Q. club met Thursday of last week with Mrs. W. I. Martin and daughters. The day was spent in quilting with a pot luck dinner at noon.

The first meeting of the year was held at Mrs. Bell Piper's a few weeks ago. One new member, Mrs. Grace Summers was taken into the club. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Mosby and daughter Gladys.

WEATHER

Hallowe'en night is almost with us, but Jack Frost is holding aloof. The temperature had been flirting with a killing freeze for the past 30 days, but outdoor flowers still retain their beauty.

The other night a flock of wild geese (brant) passed over the town, honking at the moon. They were headed southward at express train speed. Newspaper reports say that deep snows cover some of the northern states.

Pity the poor nudists these days, if they happened to have mislaid their clothing last summer. When Old man Winter starts embracing these lads and lassies who like to frolic and dance in their bare-shin garb, won't they shiver?

Since they started prosecuting nudists for "indecent exposure" we predict that there will be lots and lots of them next year. We feel that if this thing becomes general, only certain people ought to be permitted to disrobe for public gaze. Think what a sight some pott-bellied old geezer would be strutting around in the all-together. We suggest that the girls nudist age limit be set at 35 and the men at 50. All in favor say Aye—and it is so ordered.

These are the days of fresh farm killed pork, pumpkin pies, horse-radish, high school queens, bonfires, falling leaves, heavier underwear, balky automobiles, contented cows, discontented farmers, late visitors to the world's fair, and what not

Also, these are the days of rats. Big rodents that have been incubated in the few remaining nuisance horse-barns in the city are foraging around and hunting winter quarters in basements, etc. The rat population of this city is entirely too large.

In listing "these are the days of" we forgot football heroes. They are the hot-patooties of the sweet girls, the admiring fathers and the fearful mothers. Any dumb scholar who can get smacked up so he shows scars or a limp is regarded as a sort of "hallowed be thy name" hero. Perhaps that is all right. This day and age demands such antics and the demand must be served. Perhaps—in fact we are quite sure—lack of football enthusiasm is a mark of abysmal ignorance on our part.

This weather column would not be complete this week without saying a few chosen words about the index finger of Counselor Frank Wolf's left hand. What you have not heard about it? My my, where've you been. Here's the lowdown. The Wolf family, so Frank says, recently decided to have cabbage for dinner. Frank went out into the garden with a big knife to cut down the cabbage tree so as to harvest "the cabbage rose." He mistook his finger for the cabbage stump and nearly hacked off the first joint. End of Chapt. 1.

Chapter 2—Later Mr. Wolf bumped this painful digit in an auto windshield and in time it became so sore that relatives made clothing for it, doctors doctored it and friends observed it and extended sympathy. Latest reports and close investigation cause us to incline to the belief that the finger will heal and naught will remain of the excruciating experience but an honorable scar.

Chap. 3—Over in the court house where the Counselor's business takes him ever and anon, so the court attaches express doubt about this story. One version is that "The Big Bad Wolf" bit himself; another office inclines to the belief that he stepped on his finger. But, enough. A finger really has no place in a weather report, except to use in pointing toward better days.

Since the President raised the price of gold, no apparent increase in gold digging has been noticed in this county. Golden ears of corn are being harvested. Soybeans are being threshed. Cord wood is being cut and delivered to the city dwellers. There will soon be a let-up on the ghastly battle against the wienie crop. Many a poor wienie has been roasted alive and, as a result of the torture, people have had sleepless nights, while their stomachs tackled the wienie remains.

Doubtless there will be some Hallowe'en devilment. Old folks who want to be smart lie about what they did when kids. Kids of the present age try to go them one better. Every kid, male and female,—age no bar—who deliberately does malicious mischief or destroys property on Hallowe'en night ought to be laid across somebody's knee and paddled good and plenty so they'd have to eat standing up for a while.

We've got to plan a masquerade costume tonight, so we have time for no more of this stuff. Won't some of you good-looking guys give me the loan of your face, so I can win a prize?

Farm Bureau News

1500 Voters Sign Petitions

With only 40 reports from the 80 petitions now being circulated among the voters of the county, the total signatures has amounted to 1500 according to announcement of the Tax Reduction Committee of the Moultrie county farm bureau.

These petitions which are being circulated in every county of the state back the program of the Illinois Agricultural Association in demanding an amendment to the state constitution to promote possible lower taxes. The four points demanded by the petitioners are:

- 1. Remove the present limitations which prevent an equitable distribution of the tax burden—cut property taxes in half.
2. Limit the rate so that the total general property taxes shall not exceed $1.00 on the $100.00 fair cash value unless the excess is approved by referendum vote. Restrict future indebtedness.
3. Allow no future indebtedness to be incurred by a taxing district without a referendum vote—divide state revenue equitably.
4. Give the General Assembly the power by two thirds vote to distribute state revenues among any taxing districts.

4-H Beef Calves to be Bought

Any boy or girl between the ages of 10 and 20 years should get in touch with Farm Advisor J. H. Hughes immediately if they want to get a calf for feeding purposes this fall for the 4-H season ahead.

Dramatic Contestants

Material for the Dramatic contest which will be probably held about the middle of December are now being turned in. The Moultrie County Farm Bureau last year sponsored this contest which was given at the High School and from all appearances a full line of entertainment is in store in connection with the contest this year. The various P. T. A. organizations are being invited to participate and some have already signified their willingness and desire to take part in the event. It will probably be necessary to hold some preliminary elimination contests to make sure that the evening's entertainment will not be too crowded.

Reduction Program Gradually Moving Along

The contracts for the wheat reduction program have all been checked and are about ready to be sent away. Several corrections have had to be made and this has required considerable time. It has been necessary to return contracts to the cooperators for many of

FARM ACCOUNTING MOUNTS IN VALUE UNDER AAA PLANS

Urbana, Ill., Oct. 23—Accurate farm bookkeeping has had a new and higher premium put on it as a result of the government's various agricultural adjustment programs, it is pointed out by P. E. Johnston, farm management specialist of the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois. Popularity of the Illinois farm account book which the college has prepared and which it has been distributing to thousands of farmers for years is expected to be greater this coming year than ever before, he said.

Normally, about 6,000 of these books are used in Illinois each year, and more than 2,000 of them are sent to the college to be summarized and analyzed by the department of agricultural economics. Long before the agricultural adjustment programs were started, farm accounts were demonstrating their value as a means of helping farmers adjust and organize their operations for greater efficiency and higher profits, Johnston reported.

Under the government's wheat program, farm account records are being accepted as evidence of acreage and amounts of wheat produced during the base period of 1930, 1931 and 1932, Johnston said. Even where the records are not used as evidence, they furnish all information that is necessary for farmers to fill out their application forms.

Now that the corn and hog plan for 1934 has been announced and plans for other commodities are under consideration, farm accounts are becoming still more valuable, and the farmer with such accounts at his disposal is in a highly favorable position, it was pointed out.

Since the wheat applications have been turned in by farmers, the wheat section of the AAA has ruled in regulation 502 that, "Each producer who shall become a party to a contract shall maintain records of the production of wheat and all major crops upon the farm covered by the contract, including acres seeded, acres harvested and bushels of wheat harvested; the disposal of all wheat raised during the crop year, the amount per acre of fertilizer used on the land seeded to wheat, together with the amount per acre of fertilizer used on land seeded to wheat during the base period of each producer." Those producers who are keeping farm account records will have all such information that is requested by the government, Johnston explained.
