The Editor's Chair

Blessed are they that hear the word of God, and keep it.—Jesus.

Poetry is the music of thought, conveyed to us in the music of language.—Chatfield.

After all manner of professors have done their best for us, the place we are to get knowledge is in books.—The true university of these days is a collection of books.—Carlyle.

Get Somebody Else

The Lord had a job for me, but I had so much to do, I said, "You get somebody else or wait 'till I get through." I don't know how the Lord came out—no doubt He got along—But I felt kind o' sneakin' like! I knew I'd done God wrong.

One day I needed the Lord—needed Him right away; But He never answered me at all, and I could hear him say Down in my accusin' heart, "Child, I've got too much to do; YOU get somebody else, or wait 'till I get through."

Now when the Lord has a job for me, I never try to shirk. I drop what I have on hand and do the Lord's good work; And my affairs can run along or wait 'till I get through. Nobody else can do the work that God has marked out for you.—Paul Lawrence Dunbar

Two Democrats For The Legislature.

Democrats made a mistake in the 24th Senatorial district two years ago. The senatorial committee that year designated that only one Democratic candidate for the General Assembly be nominated at the April primary. That decision was final.

As a consequence of this, the Democrats early in that year were placed in the position of conceding the election of two Republican legislators. The Democratic candidate was T. J. Anderson of Piatt county. He was, of course, elected.

Two Democratic legislators would have been elected easily had two names been on the ticket, for the district went overwhelmingly Democratic in the November election.

This mistake on the part of the senatorial committee and its advisers has been more serious to the Democratic administration at Springfield than many voters realize. One less Republican and one more Democrat would have made a very vast difference to Governor Horner in many of his legislative problems.

The old "gentlemen's agreement" which for many years has been in effect in this district among Democrats, where apportionment of legislative representation is concerned, makes this year Moultrie's turn to have the candidate. The plan, as is well known, provides the following rotation—Champaign 2 terms, Piatt 1 term, Moultrie 1 term. So far as we are aware, it does not signify how many candidates, such counties are to run. This agreement was made back in the days when there never was a chance of electing more than one Democrat.

From the selfish viewpoint of a candidate,—and the editor may decide to throw his hat into the ring,—one candidate would be the preferable situation. However, from the standpoint of playing fair with the Democratic party in this district, in Illinois and the country at large, the one candidate proposition this year would be a betrayal of the voters and of the Democratic state administration.

It is up to this district to nominate two candidates and we hope that the senatorial committee will so decide. Mere personal inclinations of candidates ought not be considered. More important issues are at stake than the ambitions of individuals who might seek an easy way into the Legislature.

We do believe, however, that Moultrie county is entitled to name the two candidates this year. We were willing to grant Piatt county that privilege two years ago, but it was decided otherwise and only one Piatt man was in the running.

In the interest of representative government, we feel that it is folly to concede anything to the Republicans or for them to concede anything to the Democrats. In the people alone vests the power to make that decision intelligently by their votes at the polls.

The Progress again goes on record as favoring two Democratic candidates for the General Assembly. We are opposed to conceding anything to our friends and political opponents — the Republicans.

Rich While Living -- A Pauper Dead.

George W. Blazer of East St. Louis died recently a wealthy man.

He died happy. He had accumulated much and delighted to talk about his wealth to his associates. He was a humble sort of person, his needs were few and he spent none of his accumulated wealth, but kept his fortune in a safe deposit box in a large bank.

He was buried by the county as a pauper. His remains rest in a pauper's grave.

After he had died, the public administrator unlocked the box in which the fortune was kept. He found 24,000,000 German marks, 850,000 Soviet rubles and 160,000 Austrian kronen, all of which had a value of just nothing. It was some of Europe's inflation currency, now absolutely worthless.

People may smile at the memory of the late George W. Blazer. We contend that his case is interesting. It shows the actual value of great wealth, when death comes. Blazer in a pauper's grave is just as wealthy as some deceased millionaire whose remains may rest in an elaborate vault.

Perhaps Mr. Blazer is really more fortunate than those who left wealth of real value when they passed on. None of George's relatives, if he had any, will fight bitterly for a share of his wealth. There will be no attempts at evading an inheritance tax law. Lawyers will not grasp for Blazer's accumulated fortune.

But Blazer was rich. In his own mind and by his own standards, he ranked with millionaires. This brought happiness to him perhaps in even greater measure than if his millions had been in silver and gold. You cannot hide that much silver and gold in a safety deposit box without somebody knowing about it and trying in some way to take it away from you.

The Greatest "Chiseler" Of Them All.

The envelope department of the United States Postal service is the champion chisler in operation today. It has no code of fair competition. It prints envelopes at rates lower than a printer can buy the stock. It competes directly with the country's established printing business. It brings Uncle Sam no profit but is one of the departments which has doubtless helped to create the deficit of $112,374,892 in the postal service this year.

The United States government is in the envelope business because the business and professional men of the nation want that service.

It is just as sensible for the government to sell printed envelopes as it would be to sell bacon and coffee at the Post Offices. There is no argument of right or justice on the government's side in this matter insofar as its competition to the established printing trade is concerned.

The printers have howled a protest against this injustice for many years. They have not achieved any results. We doubt whether they ever will. But the fact remains that it is certainly inconsistent for the government to endeavor to put into effect codes of fair competition in all other lines of business and at the same time continue its most disreputable and unfair competition with the printing business.

Sullivan, Missouri.

We have occasionally in the past called attention to the fact that a place named "Sullivan" is just naturally destined to be a fighting town.

Our own Sullivan has been at its best when it had a fight of some kind on hand. One of its most memorable fights was that which was carried to victory through expelling from this city an unwanted public utilities company.

The fruits of that victory are now being enjoyed. We own and operate an excellent electric plant and do not pay tribute to any great utilities company, as do many other cities in this country.

That alone may not prove that "Sullivan" is a name that means "fight for right", so let us present our evidence.

Sullivan, Missouri is today attracting the attention of many cities through the country which are saddled with a utilities octopus. It is fighting for the right to issue bonds for the construction of a municipal electric light plant. The Missouri Electric Power Co., has filed suit to enjoin the city from doing this. A battle royal is on. The power company has taken the case out of Franklin county, where Sullivan is located, on a change of venue. It has experts and professors and statisticians testifying that the proposal of Sullivan to own and operate its own electric plant is impractical. They are presenting many of the arguments that the C. I. P. S. used in its fight with Sullivan, Illinois about 18 years ago.

We hope that Missouri courts will be responsive to the rights of the people and will uphold Sullivan's right to free itself from the power monopoly. Sullivan, Illinois sends greetings and hopes for victory to Sullivan, Missouri.

There are about a half dozen of these aggressive cities and towns named Sullivan in this country. May we suggest that they organize a league of the "Free and Fighting Sullivans", and damned be he who in any way tries to trample underfoot their rights and their freedom.

Sullivan, Illinois instead of contributing tribute to the C. I. P. S., is today accumulating a surplus in its treasury.

UNIVERSITY SCIENTISTS ADD TO KNOWLEDGE

Urbana-Champaign, Jan. 10—University of Illinois x-ray chemists recently have made two important contributions to mankind.

They have made the first definite scientific step toward the minimization of airplane accidents caused by defective propellers. A discovery that defective propellers may be found before they reach the actual breaking point has been made by Prof. George L. Clark of the University chemistry department.

Also, Prof. Clark and an assistant, J. N. Mrgudich, have found a new method of quantitatively diagnosing the severity of rickets, a bone disease most common in children. Because of their discoveries the medical profession will not only be able to recognize earlier the existence of rickets, but will be able to diagnose more thoroughly the effects of the disease and the results obtained by treatment.

Sunday School Lesson

by Rev. Charles E. Dunn

Baptism and Temptation of Jesus Lesson for Jan. 14. Matt. 3:1-4:11

Golden Text: Hebrews 2:17.

The baptism and temptations were critical periods of decision for the Master. Occurring at the very threshold of His public ministry, they are formative events of the highest significance.

The baptism reminds us of the river Jordan, whose impetuous current is a symbol of the speed with which the career of Jesus approached its climax at Calvary. But more important than the Jordan is the figure of the Baptizer, the rugged, fiery John who has been called the last of the prophets of Israel. Note the becoming modesty of John as his strange cousin from Galilee presented Himself.

And now turn to the central figure. Remember the gentle insistence of Jesus, "Suffer it to be so now." Recollect the striking vision that came to Him immediately after the baptism, the vision of God's Spirit descending dove-like, with the heavens opened, and the divine voice assuring the Master that He was indeed the Son of the Most High.

Why was Jesus baptized? Is the baptism a melodramatic announcement of His Messiahship? No. Is it an indication that the Master felt the need of cleansing from sin? Again, no. The true explanation is two-fold. The baptism first makes clear our Lord's genuine humanity. His desire to identify Himself with His restless, unhappy fellows whom He so longed to serve. Secondly, it is the token of Jesus' complete union with His Father.

Immediately following the baptism came the wrestling in the wilderness with three specific temptations. First of all, the Master was tempted to selfishly satisfy His dire hunger. Next He was enticed to be a clever sensationalist, to throw Himself from the temple height with the certainty that He would land unharmed. Finally, He was bribed to substitute a material empire of worldly gain for a spiritual kingdom of the inner life.

Here are three typical temptations. All of us are inclined to be selfish, to seek the lure of the spotlight, and to stress external, physical prosperity.

A Sated Scientist

All Re-print Rights Reserved

O, I'm sick of these flights into wisdom and lore, Of these atoms, and stratas and rays, I'd like to be primitive, simple and sane, With no theories to torment my days.

I'd like to be ignorant and fight for my bread, Be a savage in love and in hate. At least I'd be honest and real in my acts, And end in a natural fate.

All around me I see such a struggle of lust, Man wishing for more, ever more, Unaware that he's drifting still further from peace, As he delves in the labyrinths of lore.

For scientific research has figured away All the need for a Person divine, Believing that they with their schemes so complex, Can dispense with these precepts of Thine.

Audacious presumption of scientific brains. Who, tho' made in Thine image 'tis true, Daring boldly to trespass Thy realm so immense, Still remain a reflection of You.

Original sin, that we strive to ignore, Call it not by some high sounding name! Let no psychic phrenitis, complex or cant Give it lure, for Old Satan's the same.

Tho' I find much of value in cosmic research, It seems to have gone to my head, To make me forget I'm a mere helpless man, Who must look to his God for His bread.

With one touch of His hand He could wipe all away, Cast all forth as it never had been, And our labors of research would vanish away As will some day all conflict and sin.

I want to believe that God made me from dust, With the infinite power of His hand, That He made bread from stones, and walked on the sea, As common folk walk on the land.

I want to believe that He hung on the cross, That He did this for you and for me, That on the third day He arose from the dead, Coming forth for the whole world to see.

I surely believe had we followed His words, All this search for God's secrets, no need, No depressions, no sickness, no unholy wars, For these brainfights, these inventions no need.

O, I'm longing once more for a god I can trust, Whom I need not explain, whom I find In centuries past spoke this loving rebuke, "Only those who are children are mine."

For children are simply and trusting and sweet, When they come from the dear Father's hands, But soon learn to reason, to doubt, to defy, Soon to wander away from God's plans.

O, bring back to me all my faith, all my dreams, Make them real, without reason or rhyme, Teach me Lord to forget all my meddling past, To accept Thee with eyes that are blind.

Vacation Days Are Over

H. S. Butler

It's just a little dreary Since vacation days are past, Some would like it better If they would longer last.

But children must go back to school.

The college students, too, Every one must go to work His duties now, to do.

The Christmas season's over With all its happy cheer, And we are now commencing Another brand-new year.

And we are surely hoping That the year, now just ahead, Will pep up all our business Not leave us in the red.

Somehow, I have a feeling That this is going to be, That better things are coming And good times we shall see.

Conditions are much better Than they were a year ago, Despite the bad crop failure That did affect us, so.

So if we can raise some crops Oats and corn and such, That will help to turn the tide I know it will mean much.

As I look into Thirty four I'm not the least bit blue, I think we're on a rising tide Good prospects are in view.

—Mrs. J. J. Gauger, her house guest Miss Ina Wynn of Kenton, Ohio and Miss Cora Gauger spent Monday in Decatur.

THE BEASTS AT JUDGMENT

"And he was there in the wilderness forty days . . . and with the wild beasts . . ." Mark 1:13

We are the friendly beasts— We knew this Jesus well. Full forty days and nights The Lord with us did dwell.

Lean limb and padded paw, We followed in his track— And not a claw unsheathed And not a lip writhed back!

We watched with gentle eyes When down he laid him; No jackel in the land Would have betrayed him!

Our tongues had licked the dust From his worn sandal— We brought our round-eyed young For him to fondle.

Lion and leopard and wolf— We would have ministered to him We were the friendly beasts— His own kind slew him!

—Sara Henderson Hay

RIGHT BEFORE CHRISTMAS

In saying his prayers one night Jim said a long prayer, ending with,

"Dear God, please, make John a good boy, he is just awful mean to me."

John who happened to overhear this immediately knelt down and prayed, "Dear God, now don't you believe a word Jim says, for he is only 'soofig' you. I stopped being bad a month ago, Amen."

—Mrs. J. J. Gauger, her house guest Miss Ina Wynn of Kenton, Ohio and Miss Cora Gauger spent Monday in Decatur.

Brandy Sauce

The Bride: "Before we were married, you told me you were well off."

The Groom: "I was. In fact I didn't know how well off I was."

High Hi: "So Evelyn told you she loved you. How do you get girls to tell you such things?"

High Lo: "Oh, I just squeeze it out of them."

Old Soak: "Oh how rotten I feel. I've just had my nose broken in three places."

His wife: "Well, that ought to learn you to keep out of them places."

Another result of the depression: when you buy spare-ribs and backbones nowadays, you'll find more meat on 'em.

Prisoner: "Gosh Halac, but I'm thirsty."

Sheriff: "Thirsty! Why there is plenty of water in your cell."

Prisoner: "I said I was thirsty, not dirty!"

These pampered and petted society dames (big city of course) are what might be termed the "bungalow" style—no upper story.

The Sullivan father tried his best to sing his little two year old to sleep. Finally in exasperation, he asked "Why don't you go to sleep?"

"I can't daddy, your hollering keeps me awake" was the sleepy reply.

With all these other surpluses bothering us everyone ought to do all they can to prevent a surplus of beer and other liquors accumulating.

D'ye remember way back when a boy felt obligated to buy his sweetie a gold watch and chain just as soon as he was her accepted steady?

To fully realize that automobiles are a modern innovation, it is but necessary to say that most of our "girls" who now have kids in high school were courted back in the red-wheeled, rubber-tired buggy age.

Some day twenty years hence, we old timers will be sitting around the office stove, stroking our whiskers and some old geezer will remark: "Naow boys, I tell yer. We don't have the mild winters no more that we usta. I kin remember back about 1933-34, etc., etc."

Have you ever noticed that most folks pronounce the word "town" as if it were spelled "ta-ouen"?

Sullivan mother: "Oh, I'm so glad my daughter will some day have a home of her own."

Neighbor: "Why do tell! Has she got a beau?"

S. M. "No, not yet. But she's started working at the shoe factory."

"I ask a simple question, 'Tis only truth I wish; Are all fishermen liars, Or do only liars fish?"

The wives of several prominent local citizens would like to have an answer to this.

Ashes to ashes
Junk to junk—
At the Chinese wedding
The guests smelled punk.

Bobbie: "Say Bill, have you a wife?"

Bill: "No Bobbie, I haven't."
Bobbie: "My, Oh my! Who tells you what to do?"

Sullivan man (in restaurant in neighboring village) "What's the matter with your dog? Why does he watch me so closely?"

Waitress: "You got the plate on which we feed him and I reckon he knows it."—Adapted.

Prof. Kilby: "Now will some member of class please explain the jury system in vogue in our courts? Bright Student: "The jury system works like this: twelve men are put in a box to hear the evidence and then decide which side has the smartest lawyer."

Two local men were discussing the money situation. "There is no money shortage," said one. "How do you figure that out?"

"Any bank statement shows it. What we are all short on is good collateral. Offer a bank good collateral and see how quickly they'll ask you to sign on the dotted line."

Guy: "Now I know why skunks have such a bad reputation?"
Dope: "What have you figured out?"

Guy: "Why the dern beasts are not co-operating with President Roosevelt. They are hoarders."

Dope: "Aw, go on, yer crazy."
Guy "Crazy me eye! Read this: "Skunk hides $1.50."

"And the Lord added to the church daily such as should be saved."—Acts 2:47.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Glenn M. Garber, Pastor

Regardless of the fact that some churches and some ministers are not doing their work well, it is still true that within the church is to be found more truth about the way to live than anywhere else. Religion has always been the great answer of the profound questions of man's existence here and hereafter. It is still true that if we do not allow religion to answer these questions for us, they will not be answered. The church is the teacher of religion. You are invited to attend the services of this church.

Sunday, January 14:

9:45—Sunday school.

11:00—Morning service of worship. Subject of sermon "The Magnetic Christ."

6:15—Young People's Forum in the manse.

7:30—The evening service will be built around the study of some of the great religious literature of the past and present. The pastor will present a brief talk on a portion of the chosen book, after which there will be opportunity for questions and discussion. Subject for discussion at this service, "The First Letter to Timothy."

The choir rehearses on every Wednesday evening at 7:15 in the manse.

High School News

Margy Lou Scheer

The machine age has arrived. The Seniors are getting soft in their old age and have installed a candy vender. It is three penny machines and the candy is guaranteed to be fresh (for a while at least). One of the machines is out of order already. Some senior boy wanted to make his money go farther so he put two half penny slugs in the machine and it refused to work.

Well—The picture actually came this week and was it good. The students want more shows like "The Covered Wagon." It lasted two hours but we just lost one hour of school time. Some of the most bloodthirsty felt "gypped" because none of the principal cast were killed except the villain. It was a good show and one boy almost fell out of his seat when the villain aimed his gun at the hero. The hero was saved and the boy safely regained his seat.

We had an interesting day Monday. Besides the show, Mr. Boyajian of Armenia, now an American citizen, gave a talk on the schools in Armenia. Boys and girls aren't allowed to attend the same school (poor boys) and can't even see each other from the time they are twelve until they marry. Mr. Boyajian gave a demonstration assisted by three brave boys, on the punishment inflicted upon the Armenian students. I can't describe the punishment but I'd hate to have it used on me. His talk was short but ten lucky students were admitted to the address he gave at M. E. church Monday night by the courtesy of Oscar Cochran.

Thursday night, the Sophomores put away all their troubles and had a good time. In other words, they had a party in the high school gym. There was only one "wet blanket" and that was the person who kept talking about semesters next week.

Whew—I guess we got taken down a notch or two last Friday night. None of the boys were "going good." I wonder if it was the lack of rooters. The voices of the few who were there sounded pretty weak compared to the Shelbyville cheering section. Maybe the boys will do better next time if we have plenty of pep behind them.

Mr. and Mrs. Roney turned "high brow" last week end. They went to Chicago and attended the opera "Aida" at the Civic Opera House. They saw the Duncan Sisters in the Musical Show "Topsy and Eva." Sunday, they visited the Art Museum — just to finish in "class."

The students who couldn't find their desks without their initials to guide them were lost this week. Last Friday, Mr. Scheer brought some sandpaper and varnish to the assembly and the students who had, absentmindedly or otherwise, carved their initials on their desks were forced to turn carpenter for a while and take them off. The new varnish doesn't look so "hot" but "it was just the principle of the thing."

Mr. Dennis has at last solved the problem of why the Irish wear the shamrocks. It seems, according to him, that someone shipped monkeys into Ireland for some reason or other and in order to avoid mistakes, the Irish took to shamrocks.

We want more and bigger dictionaries out here. One boy in the English two class said that in the "Odyssey" Circe promised Odysseus "immortality" if he would marry her. What would Homer say?

That reminds me. The English two classes are making notebooks with all the classics they have had this semester. If you don't think it's a nice job, come out and take English two.

If the American Legion Play isn't good, it won't be the fault of the High School. Almost everyone in school has something to do with the play. Even our dignified principal will turn sleuth for the benefit of the audience.

Mr. Dennis took a vacation Monday and Tuesday mornings, due to "a gold id his head."

Semester exams Jan. 17-18-19—goodnight!

Whispering Rock

FINAL INSTALLMENT

Snively passed her on the run, shouting, "Pack my stuff." She had left his riding horse at the saddle shed, and now Snively hurried into the shed, returning with saddle and bridle.

At the house Ann set about packing the horse. When she saw Snively getting into his chaps, she paused and watched him for a moment. Then her eyes turned toward the trail to Old Charley's. It would not be dark for some time—Miss Ruth could not have gone far. From the top of the first little hill one could see a long way along the trail; and the rifle would shoot a mile.

As Snively mounted his horse at the barn, Ann suddenly ran to the rifle, snatched it up, and disappeared around the southern side of the house. From there she crossed the small gully, and, stooping low, made her way to the trail and hid behind a large bowlder.

Snively missed the rifle almost as he dismounted at the house. He called Ann in a furious voice. He looked about, ran cursing into the house and out again. Several times he slapped the two revolvers belted around his hips with an air of vexation—revolvers were only good at close quarters. He wanted the rifle. He would need it badly when a posse took his trail.

He soon gave up calling Ann and hastily finished packing the buckskin horse. The last thing he tied on was a half sack of rolled barley he had just brought from the barn. He would look after his horses all with the lead rope of the pack horse in his hand, he swung himself into the saddle. And as he mounted, his eyes came to rest on the country he was to ride. Slowly the man's eyes dropped until they rested on the trail which passed over the hill. A sudden tenseness came into his face; his lips fell to twitching and jerking without parting. With a wild insane yell he dug the spurs into his horse, dropped the lead rope of the pack animal and started toward the trail Ruth and David had taken.

Before he had crossed the little gully south of the house, he pulled up his horse with a jerk; Ann stood above him on the trail, the rifle to her shoulder. "You can't hurt them people! You got to take the other trail to Mexico."

Snively held his hands away from the guns at his hips; a mask of stony hatred settled over his face. He said nothing.

"Ride down to th' barn—you kin go afterwhile. But wait at th' barn. I doan want you here where you kin talk at me."

For a long moment the man looked at the woman above him; his face set, his eyes narrowed. Then he slowly reined his horse about, rode to the buckskin, and gathered up the lead rope, continued on to the barn.

As soon as he was beyond the point where he would dare try to use his revolvers, Ann settled herself on a rock beside the trail, and the rifle came slowly to rest on her knees. She was trembling.

Ruth had been gone half an hour. Ann decided it would be safe to let him go. Darkness was coming fast. Ann looked down at the rifle, then at the man by the trough. He would need this gun. Ann again looked at the rifle. Quickly she rose, and running with her body bent low, she reached the trail Snively would soon pass over. She placed the rifle across the path and returned, a slow smile on her face.

As she reseated herself she saw that Snively had already started; the tip of his hat bobbed along over the corral wall. She leaned forward, chin on palm, one huge leg thrust across the trail. Again she smiled slowly—he'd be right pleased when he come on that rifle.

Sugarfoot came to the back screen door of the ranch house and scratched. Ann grinned—it was supertime and nobody could fool that dog. "Here I is, Sugar—come up an' set a spell."

A rifle cracked from the direction of the trail to the west. Ann's hand flew to her side. She sat very straight for a moment, an expression of bewilderment on her face. Slowly her head dropped, the great body crumpled, slid from the rock and fell across the trail. Sugarfoot whined and licked the big open hand.

It was long after dark when Old Charley, Will and Ruth crossed the mountains and came among the lower foothills on the Dead Lantern ranch.

Old Charley rode first, his ancient forty-five on his hip and a Winchester in a sheath under his left stirrup. Ruth followed, then Will. David had been left behind with old Juan and Juana.

The riders were coming down the last hill when Old Charley suddenly halted. His revolver sprung into his hand, and he leaned forward, peering at the ground. "It's Ann!"

Sugarfoot stood guard, growling fiercely. He would allow no one to approach but Ruth, who did not heed him but dropped to her knees beside the giantess. "She's alive, I think—Ann! Ann!"

"Yes, little white girl," Ann whispered faintly. "I been waitin' fer you."

"Let's get her to the house," said Will. "Here, Dad—"

"Wait," cried Ruth. Ann was whispering; the girl bent her head lower.

"Don't move me—I ain't got but a minute, little white girl. I jes' want to tell you—Mr. Snively an' me was together long ago in Texas—he's my man—we ain't married. We got a little girl—at Saint Mary's Convent in town—she is—Martha Jackson—"

Ann rested for a moment. "Will you look after my little Martha? She—don't know—who her folks is—thinks good people. Don't tell her—no different. Mr. Snively don't want nobody to know—but he's been payin' fer her a little—I tol' him I'd tell if he didn't—"

Again the whisper died away for a moment.

"Ann," said Ruth, "I promise to always look after your little girl as long as she needs me."

Ann sighed.

"Was that where you went, dear, those times you used to go away from the ranch?"

"Yes—that was it. I seen her with the other girls—sometimes I could. But she never know'd nothin' 'bout me—don't tell her no different—she thinks I was good—"

Ruth was sobbing. "I won't."

"Then—if—you'll kinda look after Sugarfoot—where is you, Sugar?" Ruth pulled the little dog's head down to Ann's cheek. There was a moment of silence, then a faint sigh.

It was just after the fall round-up. David was down by the saddle shed putting the finishing touches to a racer boasting four wire wheels. Sugarfoot lay in the warm dust at a safe distance and watched with alert eyes. A few yards from the barn, old Don Francisco and Alfredo were laying pipes across a long pit, in preparation for tomorrow's barbecue. Just beyond them, under the shade of the big mesquite, Magda sat on a rawhide covered chair. The small bundle lying so comfortably in her arms stared with great brown eyes into the lacy foliage above.

On the porch of the ranch house Ruth, Will and Old Charley sat around a small table littered with papers. The old man laid aside his pen, scrutinized the last of three signatures on a legal document, blotted it, and removed his spectacles. "Now"—he raised his eyes to Ruth and Will—"Who knows what's the next step in this business?"

"I guess the money comes next," said Will. "I'll write Ruth a check and then, as far as I can see, the Dead Lantern is legally sold."

Ruth nodded. "I think you'd better make out the amount in two checks; one for three-quarters and the other for one-quarter. Then I will have my share and Snively's heir will have hers. I'm going to buy an annuity for Martha with her share; Judged Carson agree that was the best thing I could do for my ward," Ruth smiled.

"How is your ward?" asked Will. "Just fine. One of the Sisters is bringing her out for the fiesta tomorrow. Martha's a dear."

"Now where are we?" asked Old Charley. "I wish Will had brought Martin along with his documents—this legal business comes too fast for me. As far as I can see, Ruth hasn't got a mite of interest left in the ranch."

"Not a particle," smiled the girl. "Mr. Will Thane is at this moment in entire possession of the Dead Lantern ranch. I have received the value of my interest and Martha hers. But look at this—" Ruth solemnly tore her check in two pieces.

"Hey!" shouted Old Charley. Will smiled. That's all right, Dad. Ruth's just simplifying matters."

"Yeah? That's nice," replied the old man dubiously.

"Sure"—Will pulled another document from his pocket—all she has to do is to sign this and she comes in with us for the value of her original interest in the Dead Lantern."

"Oh, yes." Old Charley lapsed into thought.

"Now there's another thing," said Will. "Since the ranches are combined we ought to decide on a brand for all the stock. As it is, part of them are carrying the Dead Lantern iron and the rest have ours. We ought to have a new deal all around. Don't you think so, Dad?"

"Eh? Oh, sure. Yes, everything ought to be under a new brand."

Three pencils began making fateful scrawls on as many pieces of paper.

At last Ruth pushed a design to the center of the table. Wouldn't that do?" she asked.

The two men regarded it for a moment. It would," said Old Charley. Ruth had drawn the outline of a lantern, identical with the Dead Lantern except that in the center she had placed a small half moon with downturned horns.

"It's lit," said Will. "Ruth has lighted the Dead Lantern."

"She sure did," observed Old Charley, thoughtfully. He teetered back on the legs of his chair and fell to suffing his pipe. With only half a mind he listened to the voices of the young folk; his eyes wandered over the distant valley. The voices faded from his thoughts. After a time he awoke from his thoughts. After a time he awoke from his dreaming: David was plodding toward the ranch house, proudly dragging a wobbling contraption on wire wheels behind him. From the boy his eyes dropped to the bent heads of the young people: "greatest idea in the world, Will; we can move the south pasture fence half a mile east—" "Fine; then with the old line fence and just a bit of new fence we'll have a wonderful holding pasture."

There was a shrewd light in the old man's eyes as he regarded the studious young faces. Raising the sauntered over to meet David, he gray smoke from his pipe drifting in the air.

While down in the gulch a soft Arizona breeze stirred to flute a harmony of peace and happiness in the cavern of whispering rock.

THE END

FARMERS EAGER TO LEARN ABOUT CORN-HOG PLAN

especially to Moultrie farmers as this is a big corn and hog producing county.

Blanks are being put out but no farmers will be asked to sign up until after February 1st, if present plans are followed.

Much Corn Sealed
160 cribs containing 202,385 of Moultrie corn have been sealed by county sealer H. S. Reedy. The farmers are getting checks for 45c per bushel on this corn. This money is a loan from the government.

Wheat Checks Coming
From Charleston comes word from the treasurer of the wheat-reduction committee of this district that checks for Moultrie farmers who signed up to reduce wheat acreage will be available next Monday. Charles Shuman local representative on that committee states that $4,200 in checks will be distributed. All checks are not yet here. Those whose checks were held up in Washington will be notified by mail.

Farmers must call personally for their checks at the Farm Bureau office Monday and sign receipts for them. 121 checks will be ready for distribution.

Encouraged
A spirit of encouragement seems to prevail among those farmers who are co-operating with the government in its endeavor to assist Agriculture. The wheat checks, added to the corn checks will bring quite a bit of money into circulation. Farmers are beginning to understand that the only way in which the government can really help them is through assistance and co-operation on the part of the farmers.

O. E. Lowe is county chairman of the Corn-Hog reduction committee.

Pluchritude On Parade
Between halves of Bethany-Sullivan collision a bevy of girls from the local high school chorus aped Ray Dvorak's Illini band as they marched over the floor singing and shaping themselves into letters.

Thieves Exterminated
The thieves who robbed Lewis Sharp, local farmer, of two rows of his corn have paid for it with their lives. At first, late last fall, the two barren rows offered quite an enigma until Mr. Sharp's shrewd son Roscoe, sighted one of the robbers at work. A few weeks ago he laid a series of traps along the ravine which runs through the field and to date they have yielded him nine of the criminal band. Nine muskrats, to be exact.

Grade School Closed
After Maurine Goetz, 9, had been sent home from grade school Monday with scarlet fever, the directors decided to dismiss school for the remainder of the week. Prevalence of the disease also necessitate the closing of Rev. McCallister's Cropper school last week and Miss Balch's Younger school.

Bliss Schlartz attended the Moultrie mail carriers' pot-luck supper which was served in the home of Henry Carlyle of Gays Saturday.

Rehearsals for the Junior class play, to be given Feb. 2, got under way this week. The production is entitled "Oh, Doctor" and is under the directorship of Miss Phyllis Waggoner.

AUTO DEATH TOLL IN 1933 ABOUT 30,500

Chicago, Jan. 9.—Motor vehicle accidents took the lives of about 30,500 persons during 1933, the National Safety Council estimated, an increase of about 3 1/2% over the previous year. The all-time high toll of life was 33,675 in 1928. Increased use of automobiles during the last six months of 1933 was given as the reason for the advance in fatalities.

Grabb Plus Free Throws Give Bethany 27 to 28 Win Over Sullivan Reds

Loss Ends Reds' String of 13 Straight Victories Over Neighbors.

By Jim Scott

Tonight—BEMENT here. Tuesday—OAKLAND there.

Bethany—Sullivan high's prized chain of a dozen consecutive cage triumphs over Bethany was scattered asunder on the under-sized gym here Tuesday night as Cunningham's wavering hardwood firm, manned by the elder trustees, Grabb and Scott, rose out of a current slump to rush over a 27 to 23 victory in a contest studied with rallies.

The Orange and Black's chief weapon in piling up that ugly 12-link juggernaut, which originated back midway in the '28-29 season, was the conversion of 9 of 13 free throws. After Doc Grabb's sensational second period sniping had staked them to a 16 to 8 lead at the intermission, the hosts saw Sullivan put on a stought-hearted comeback which all but closed the gap. It was then that charity tosses stepped into the savior role, with Grabb and Weakley counting thrice each as remuneration for the Redskins' unnecessary roughness.

Grabb in Form

Hailed as the most accurate marksman in Central Illinois Doc Grabb, a senior, simply couldn't close his prep ledger without so much as a single Redskin scalp; in truth his very success would be questionable without it. The blond phenom first struck just before the close of the opening stanza to give Bethany an advantage which they mothered to the end. Then he stabbed the netting with three uncanny offerings in the following frame for the most brilliant offensive throw of the evening. In the last half Coach Dennis juggled his defense, putting Grabb in Poland's custody and Bouncing George, despite athletes foot and a bad ankle, obliged by restricting him to a lone bucket and a trio of gratis heaves.

Reds Outplayed

Coach Cunningham fittingly phrased the Reds' fortune when he stated that Sullivan's plays were running into the wall before they could get underway. But while the visitors were checked by the abbreviated layout at the same time it must be candidly reported that they were also outplayed. Poland wasn't working into the offense and was missing on numerous long missiles; subtle Ebby Scheer was off nitch; and English was fumbling like one of the Bloomer girls. But Finley Pifer, that ever-valiant combatant, was fightingly on the alert and checked in with one of the best performances he has rendered to date. His floor work was masterful while Leo Horn, the Tarzan with the grave mien, did some excellent rebounding in the second half.

For Bethany, "Trojan" Scott augmented Grabb's accomplishments with some classy dribbling and timely baskets while substitute Lloyd Smith, a frosh, did some commendable caging for one of such limited experience.

Who's Afraid?

Another important item why the Reds couldn't pass over the old unlucky No. 13 in their long series of Bethany defeats was that this time the black-frocked youths didn't succumb to buck fever, which hitherto, the very sight of a red shirt would produce. With all of Dennis' strongmen graduated, the Meridian champs seemed to have nothing to be afraid of and regaining their virility they played a brand of ball that Dr. E. A. Grabb and I know they are capable of.

First Quarter

Pifer intercepted a pass under his own goal and promptly banked the ball thru. Scott sank a free toss. Horn flipped one in from the circle with Pifer duplicating a minute later. Scott drilled his low dribble under the hoop, scoring. Grabb, from the side, hooked the ball over his head and it sped cleanly thru the webbing to set Bethany up with a 6 to 5 edge.

Second Quarter

Mathias dribbled three-fourths the length of the floor for a push-up. Scott's side shot slit the net. Carmine replaced English. One of Horn's two gift shots found its mark. Grabb sprayed one in from the circle. Scott hit a gratis throw and then Grabb delivered again from the side. Pifer scored once from the penalty stripe and then Grabb hoisted the ball in from the corner to establish relations at 16 to 8.

Third Quarter

Fired by Dennis' half-time oration the Reds essayed a rapid three-basket comeback which narrowed the breach to 16 to 14. Pifer tallied on a pass from Horn, English on a long effort, and Horn on a rebound. Grabb stemmed the sudden rush with a pair of free tosses. Horn caged a rebound and Weakley one of two penalty pitches.

Scott swung around English for a pushup.

Fourth Quarter

Pifer leaped in the air to bat in a rebound and added another point when fouled while so doing. Horn took a rebound out of Weakley's clutches and deposited it in the basket. Pifer's fielder from closeup left Bethany nervously protecting a 24 to 23 edge. Grabb added a charity toss and with the Reds battling for the tying basket he dribbled in for a sleeper which created quite a din among the customers.

Earlier in the evening the Bethany Seconds had started the ball arrollin' by switching the Sullivan Reserves 22 to 16. Lindley, a stringy frosh, paced the winners while Guy Carmine drew the plaudits of the less fortunate.

Speaking of Sports

(By Jim Scott)

Bill Dwyer told the writer Saturday night that it is probable that neither Pete McDavid or he will be back in school next semester. A shortage of cash is to blame.

Bill also intimated that, all considered, boxing was his best bet and in the field of professional fistcuffs he intends to specialize.

SOS

Unless Frank Froshauer is benched he will be the Big Ten's leading scorer this season. About him one may safely state that "he shoots every time he gets his hands on the ball."

Against Wisconsin Saturday night the big-blond Lincoln boy was forever boring in toward the goal and if his road was blocked he would call upon an unreliable one-handed shot. It seemed that he pitched at least 40 of them through out the course of battle.

Mike Tobin, the university's ace publicity man, coined for him a pretty nickname, "Happy Warrior." But as far as veracity is concerned it's a first-class misnomer. A tempestuous, high-strung competitor he roushs his rivals but simply can't take a slight brush in return. Once, in the Badger upset, he pounced on a man who was already flat on his abdomen and nearly got a sock on the konk in return.

On another occasion Froshauer drove hard under the basket scoring and then somersaulted at the foot of the bleachers. Instead of bouncing back into the fray—as a "Happy Warrior" should—he grumbled and called upon the officials to remove a scrap of paper some 10 feet behind the basket.

SOS

Most popular and colorful of all the Illini is Les Lindberg, slender 6 feet 2 inch Swede from Lockport. There's nothing the gent can't do if he really chooses.

At Lockport he was no cage sensation and at Illinois last year he didn't even trouble himself with frosh basketball. This winter, however, the eccentric blond, who wears his hair like Jimmy McLaughlin, concluded that he would indulge in the sport and in a few weeks' practice had won a starting position.

As a cage entertainer Les is without equal. Gawkily he wobbles over the court and on receiving the ball he starts his dribble in a listless lazy manner. But if a clear route to the basket presents itself he'll show you what blinding speed really means. He always looks in the opposite direction to which he is to pass.

Before the tip-off Les stumbles up to the man he is guarding and gives him the Simon Legree stare but says nothing. Wisconsin went into a huddle before each tip and once Les convened with them apparently unnoticed. He emerged waving a fictitious signal to his mates.

SOS

Baseball patrons of the Elder Indians are familiar with two members of the wing-footed Shelbyville cagers who played hard ball here with a team from that place. Johnny Frizzell was the fast though flabby backstop while tall Milt Lewis was the first sacker.

SOS

Rebounds—"Finley Pifer," remarked a SHS co-ed, "is a triple threat man. He's good looking, a star athlete and a fine student." Fin also has talent along musical lines. Ed Elliott, Purdue's pivot man, is a son of the school's president. Charles Waggoner, Mt. Pulaski's 6 feet, 8 inch center, is proving quite a drawing card, for they say that the Hilltoppers have been playing to capacity crowds in every game to date. Even collegiate publicity directors make much ado over a 6-foot-4 specimen.

The loftiest cage regular that we've heard of this year operates in the Little Nineteen conference. He is Illinois college's 6 feet, 9 inch Louis Lassiter, who came up from Metropolis. Joe Medwick, St. Louis Cardinal outfielder, is one of the best pro basketball players in the East. As a prepster he was ranked the best in New Jersey. Zimmerman, tall clever center, who along with Blout carried Mt. Pulaski thru a great season last year, did not go to college but is playing indee ball with a Lincoln team.

A certain Moultrie county tosser is paid 1 cent for each point scored. Two of the best prep basketballers in Illinois last year are now regulars on Wisconsin's freshman five. They are Musser of Streator and Jones of Freeport. Speaking of centers Mouthouth claims to have the country's best in the person of Jack Ozburn from Murphysboro. He was named on every one of the all-conference selections last spring and hasn't yet stopped in a single conflict this winter.

Tall dark Guy Arnett, the type gals never forget, has a good job driving one of these oversized Standard Oil trucks. He started his athletic career as a freshman on a strong Atwood quintet and later played at Arthur, then Millikin. A star high school athlete on probation is a first class oddity but such is the case up at Kankakee. Last year upstate scribes billed their Lester Tammen as the most efficient offensiveman in the business. Today finds Lester lagging in his studies and doing his sniping in the church league. As an official for the bestial city-league struggles Sammy Bolin is said to be still a dandy baseball pilot. Which reminds me, has anyone seen Shorty Hale?

Madison, Wis., has 32 new tennis courts as a result of the CWA. Not only is Carl Mathias, former Bethany youth, now financial adviser to such film stars as slant-eyed Myrna Loy but also does he look after the interests of Ed "Strangler" Lewis, ex-mat king. Once upon a time he saved Lewis a pocket full of sugar and now the big, little man playfully squeezes Carl's windpipe every time he steps inside Ed's glorified restaurant.

Author George Dunscomb was here during the holidays. His next opus will deal with Jim Purvis and probably will appear on the sleek white pages of the Saturday Evening Post. Bill Harlow, Chicago university's new forward, averaged 23 points per game during his four years' service with Bowen high.

Up at the State U. they've monickered Bill Dwyer, "Rasputin" with Pete McDavid and his roommate, Hal Carson, doing the christening. Incidentally Carson, who is slated for a backfield berth this fall, spent a part of his vacation here.

Dwyer, by the way, is a rink guard at the mammoth Illini ice plant. Among his duties is the bouncing of uncouth skaters. In ushering said individuals to the gate, Sullivan's noted half recently enjoyed a string of four fights in the course of six evenings!

Few, if any, are the folks who have heard of Jobey Dunscomb's basketball score book. In fact, although a standout in its field, it hasn't even been patented and is produced only for home consumption.

The Popular Windsor coach designed the book about a decade ago and from conception on it has been issued, when needed, by the Windsor Gazette, which is operated by Jobey's father, George Dunscomb Sr.

It simplifies scoring procedures, but its strong point is its handiness. Unlike similar pads which now flood the market, this one will slip easily into the coat pocket.

When Coach Clark Dennis, after losing all of last year's quintet, put a winning contingent on the floor this season, he foxed every one except Coach Clark Dennis.

"Yes," chuckled Denny, "everybody thought that because I wasn't breaking in new material last year that the current cage crop would be far from developed. But the truth is that the regulars of today were in training throughout the preceding season playing intramural ball from the hour of 11 till noon. Even then they were handling the ball better than my Varsity and could have trimmed them if they had been paired in battle."

"Pardon, but if Mr. Dennis thought them a better organization then why didn't they supplant the Varsity?" "Well you see," explained Clark, "they were young in years, phys-

Reds Bow To Shelbyville In Okaw Opener

Speedy Victors Start Slowly. Then Rush to Easy Win.

(By Jim Scott)

Shelbyville—Bill Bishop's speedy tossers, victorious in six out of seven tough preliminary Okaw Valley titles in their first season of competition, plunged off in the right direction here last Friday night by lacing Sullivan, 35 to 18 in the grade school gym. It was also the Reds' conference debut and their second setback in 10 starts.

The Old Pivot Play

The Shelby county tossers were slow in waxing into form but after an uneventful first period they suddenly began to click, leaving the Redskins hopelessly in arrears. Practically all of their scoring emanated from this one play which the visitors never offered to exterminate. Charles Garvin, center, operating on the pivot spot would toss the ball to his comrades who were constantly driving under the goal at breakneck speed. If the stream of receivers was pretty well under guard then he simply released one of his deadly overhead bank shots. Simple in appearance, this formation, if handled skillfully, is almost unstopable. Bement utilized it in whipping the Reds three times last season.

Meet the Victors

Like the Reds the Bishopmen are adept ball handlers and dribblers but they go beyond them in the matter of bulk. Their star, bespectacled Ed Garvin, is the midget of the troupe but oh how that baby does scoot over the carpet! Of a poor family he frequently has specs smashed during a game. Commenting upon the situation after this tilt Coach Bishop declared, "Of course he gets a new pair every time and if the school doesn't pay for them, I will."

Both he and his tall co-forward, Milt Lewis, are juniors while the other boys are in their final year. Ed's brother, Charles, is the main cog in keeping the ball in circulation while Johnny Frizzell, 185 pounds in football, has now sliced his tonnage down to 170. The entire team is basketball conscious, bent on going far in state play. To date their only loss was a close affair down at Vandalia.

Ol' Faithful Fin

While there are no bouquets for the Reds, at the same time they didn't do so badly considering their high-class opposition. Leo Horn, who sprained his ankle in the alumni fiasco, did not start but was pressed into service when the tilt was beginning to assume the proportions of a runaway. Once again Finley Pifer shouldered the brunt of the scoring, all of his nine tallies coming in the last half.

Fidgety by the futility of it all the Reds were flinging hurriedly from unorthodox positions. Conally undeveloped, and would have been nervous and below par if showing before a crowd. Give me seniors every time and why not? Aren't they nearer their prime and have they not benefitted by experience and are therefore able to put up a cooler article of ball?

Over at Bethany, Coach Guy Cunningham has a system which is directly opposed to the above. He devotes considerable time to his freshman material and if a senior isn't of first-string ability, well there simply isn't any place for him on the squad. He reasons that it is a waste of time to experiment with a senior who probably will be of no benefit to the team; rather give his post to a mediocre freshman who will at least be available in years to come.

Margy Lou Scheer and friend are invited to see a show at The Grand.

gratulations to Brick Poland, who for first time was employing both mitts in his shots, but sadly they were of the 30-foot variety and from them arose not one single point. Neither quintet reaped much profit at the free throw stripe. Shelby sank seven out of 15; Sullivan four out of 10.

Start Slowly

Shelbyville took off cautiously, just feeling things out, and at the close of the initial quarter the scoreboard said 2-up. Free throws by Scheer and English and Lewis' basket from below comprised the totals.

Second Quarter

In the following stanza the Blue machine wheeled into high to rack up four baskets in less than two minutes of play. Lewis and Chas. Garvin started it and then after Sullivan's time-out hiatus Ed Garvin and Frizzell completed the string. Frizzell followed with another pushup. Scheer sneaked in for a sleeper and Sullivan's only field goal of the half. Chas. Garvin, revolving on the pivot stripe, found no potential receivers so he banked in an overhead shot to put Shelby's margin up to 14 to-4.

Third Quarter

C. Garvin notched a free toss and brother Ed bounded in for another pushup. Horn stole behind Shelby's defense for a sleeper. C. Garvin again clicked at the gratis line. Brother Ed duplicated and then Pifer sank one of his twin contributions. Ed Garvin matched Finley's feat. Pifer scurried under to score. Frizzell rushed in from the side, receiving the pivotman's pass and relayed it thru the hoop. C. Garvin missed a free throw but battled in the rebound. E. Garvin tallied from the pivot play, and Shelby was out in front, 26 to 9.

Fourth Quarter

Tow-headed Ed Garvin's glasses were shattered when he collided with Poland. Then with his naked eyes he aimed in his free throw. Pifer scored on a pass from Poland. Horn intercepted a pass and made good his dribble in attempt. E. Garvin flung one in as he dribbled past. English fouled Lewis and departed with four personals. E. Garvin converted one of his twin free tosses. Pifer and E. Garvin matched dribble in baskets. Scheer hit one of two gift throws and then Stamper shook himself loose for his only fielder of the encounter. Pifer completed the scoring as he addressed one in from the side.

Seconds Also Lost

The prelude was a replica of the first string exhibition with the Shelby Seconds pummeling the Sullivan Yannigans, 24 to 10. The husky hosts, who own a victory over Vandalia's crack reserves, encountered little opposition except in the early stages of the game. In the dying moments of the contest, lumbering Tom Pickle developed a new talent. We speak of his two nifty long ones which found the stringing to make the final count a bit less humiliating.

Clarence Tubb, brother of the best miler ever produced in this section, plays with the Shelby reserves. He reacts in split-second time and moves about at a speed too fast for efficient cage play. But the news of this item is that he plays at all in view of the fact he spends considerable time coal mining. Bob Reed, who broke a shoulder bone on the Sullivan football field last fall, made an auspicious resumption of his athletic career against same school.

Lowell Sherman

The big guy in Friday night's show is Lowell Sherman, a worthy sprout from a long line of stage actors and actresses. He stars in "False Faces" as the doctor who makes over the faces of his feminine dupes and leaves some scarred for life. If you're not satisfied with your present face, see this picture and you'll feel more tolerant. Playing with the great Sherman are Peggy Shannon and Lila Lee. 'twill be race night, plus good comedy, cartoon and Traveltalk. See the Traveltalk and learn something.

Charlie Chan

One of our favorite fiction characters always was Charley Chan, the Hawaiian Chinese detective who was the hero of Earl Derr Biggers' thrilling novels. Mr. Biggers died some months ago. Just recently a Chinese detective died in Honolulu. He is said to have been Biggers' inspiration for his fiction character.

Saturday night's theatre goers will have a treat. The picture is "Charlie Chan's Greatest Case."

Warner Oland plays Chan and Heather Angel (what a name) plays the part of the heroine. The only horses on the job will be in the serial. The rest of the drove has been turned to pasture for the week end.

"The Three Little Pigs"

"What's all this stuff about the 'Big Bad Wolf', is a question often asked by people who want to be in the know. This wolf is the villain in a Walt Disney colored cartoon picture where the Three Little Pigs are "just too darling." The little darlings sing and dance. It's nice and clever. You just shouldotta see it!

Clara Bow is the big picture attraction. This tempestuous red head appears in "Hoopla" with Preston Foster, Richard Cromwell, Herbert Mundin, James Gleason and Minna Gombell. This Clara Bow production will please you, if you like her style. It is a carnival picture with plenty of entertainment, romance and whattel-y-have?

El Brendel

No comedian, with a foreign brogue is quite so clever as El Brendel. Before Elmer (that's his name) ran away from home in Philadelphia, he made a living selling flytraps. He's an old vaudeville trouper, who worked his way up until he was a leading comedian in Shubert musical comedy productions in 1922-23. Originally he was a German comedian but during the war, for patriotic reasons, he switched to a Swede brogue and he's still got it. His hobby is attending family reunions and when he gets rich he expects to buy a monkey.

In "Olsen's Big Moment" he is ably assisted by Walter Catlett, Barbara Weeks and Susan Fleming. This is the feature picture on Tuesday night's program.

INDIGESTION — GAS

Mr. Fred Leroy Riggs of 314 Hayward St., Peoria, Ill., said: "I had frequent attacks of indigestion — belched gas frequently — it was pretty hard for me to keep food on my stomach, my nerves were bad and I couldn't sleep at night. I used Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and it drove away the stomach distress and the nervous condition. I felt like a new man." Sold by all druggists.

Thirsty Burglar Stole Legal Booze

Some time early Sunday morning a burglar kicked in a window in the back of Robb & Mac pool room on Harrison street. He then went back of the bar and helped himself to a quantity of whiskey, which he carried away. Just how much was taken is not certain. Nothing else was disturbed.

This is the first theft of legal booze since Prohibition repeal. Prior to repeal bootlegger liquor had no standing in law and it was perfectly all right to steal it, for the fellow who was robbed had no standing in law. Such is still the case so far as bootleg liquor is concerned. Liquor that has paid the Federal tax, as shown by a revenue stamp, is legal property. The man who steals it steals property and can be sent to the pen.

L. A. Downs* says:

The end of another year makes it necessary to change the figure in the line which separates this message from the one below. The Illinois Central System has now given "Dependable Service for Eighty-Three Years."

Few persons are now living who can remember when the Illinois Central came into existence. This railroad has been at work constantly for nearly twice the average man's working career. Many of its employees are of the third and fourth generation.

Out of its long experience in transportation, the Illinois Central System wishes its friends and patrons a Happy New Year and pledges them its continued best efforts throughout 1934.

Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.

A Comforting Service

The greatest service of the modern funeral director is that of lifting the load of responsibility from the shoulders of the bereaved. From the moment that he is called, he assumes charge of the many details which require attention. In our organization we give special attention to this comforting service.

Henry's Wedding

January 17 & 18

One of the outstanding features of Henry's wedding is the meeting of the colored brethren and sisters of Mystic Shrine. After Uncle Henry, the famous bridegroom disappears, due to kidnapping, the faithful old negro cook, decides to call in the Brethern and Sisters of the Mystic Shrine to hold a seance with the spirits to see if Henry can be found. As a result, a large number of the colored members of the royal and pompous order gather in the Macey drawing room to see if they can gather any information leading to the whereabouts of Henry.

The meeting of the Mystic Shrine is an old time Spiritualistic meeting. It is composed of several prominent singers, who talk with the spirits and sing songs of rejoicing. Thus in their gayly colored darky clothes they present an old time Negro meeting in all its glory.

Brother Jones played by R. Janes, and Sister Sadie, played by Marie Watts, lead this unique meeting. Sister Sadie and Sister Eliza both have visions of Henry, and fall to quarrelling because one sees him on a black cloud, while the other is sure she sees him on a white cloud. Sambo Sax, who reports new and important business to the meeting is played by Sylvan Baugher, while Charles Reeder as Abraham Lincoln Brown laments the fact that his wife ran off with a travelling salesman. This group is one laugh after another, besides affording very good musical entertainment.

The girls choruses consisting of forty high school girls furnish a great deal of life to the production. The dancing choruses have special costumes, which are very attractive and different. The most attractive girls in the community are in these choruses and certainly do give the show spice and pep. A number of the chorus girls are helping to stage a special window feature Tuesday when the reserved seats go on sale.

Miss Bentley has had wonderful co-operation from the schools in arranging these choruses and feels sure that they will put over a big show.
