

WEATHER

At 5 o'clock this Thursday morning, when this is being written, it is nice and cool—also dry. The sun coming up is casting shadows to the southward. A few hazy clouds frame the western horizon.

There have been some showers this week—but in spots only. The big, general rain is still missing. We see in the papers that over near Villa Grove it rained so hard one day this week that the Am-brow was out of its banks. Reports say that in some localities nearby it has rained so much that farmers cannot get into the fields.

This is to certify that Sullivan has been passed up by these rains, except for a few teasing sprinkles which have done more harm than good. It has been hot—very hot. Likewise it is dusty. Housewives are praying for street oiling about as much as farmers pray for rain. Every vehicle that passes a house, not on paved street, makes the air gritty and dusty. A little child asked its mother: "Mamma, why can't we move to the country where there are nice oiled roads and we do not have to eat so much dust?"

Chinch bugs are a serious menace to the corn crop. Because they are coming out of the wheatfields, many farmers are again advocating not raising wheat. We firmly believe if not an acre of wheat had been sown last fall, we'd have just as many bugs as we now have.

Potato prospects are so poor that some of our gardeners seriously contemplate digging up the seed and saving at least that much. Soybeans look good. Oats look lousy and few farmers will get as much back as they sowed. Why sow oats around here anyway? You never get an average crop more than about once in ten years.

Alfalfa hay is being cut. The crop is short and light. The nice thing about alfalfa is that though the first crop may be light, you have a chance for two more crops if weather conditions are favorable. Red clover sown this spring hasn't much of a chance to survive.

The government in its Corn-Hog reduction plan is relenting somewhat and farmers may use contracted acres to raise feed of certain kinds. Some farmers still look at the whole plan disapprovingly and say: "It is plum sinful not to try and grow a crop on every acre of land." Maybe so, but don't you think the poor land deserves a rest once in a while?

Over near Plymouth, Indiana the other day they found a 70-year old farm hand tangled in a barbed wire fence. He had died from starvation and exposure. Let this be a warning.

Down near Jackson, Tenn., Mr. and Mrs. Watson Patrick left their 3 months old son in a crib under a tree while hoeing their tomato crop. The infant dislodged the nipple from its milk bottle and the milk spilled all over it. This attracted big red ants and they nearly bit the poor kid to death. A mass of the insects covered the child when found.

An exchange tells that down Arizona way a schoolm'am was canned for "smoking, dancing, singing, playing the piano, looking attractive and entertaining nicely". In a neighboring district the directors heard of this. "Why heck" said they, "that's just the gal we want for teacher" and they hired her at an advance in salary.

All of which proves something or nothing—figure it out for yourself. Anyway you look at it, this world is a sort of crazy thing—or maybe it seems crazy because so many people act that way. A man in an asylum was asked "why are you here?" It was the will of the majority" said he, "I thought they were all crazy, but they all said I was. Naturally I could not lock up everybody else in the world, so they ganged on me and locked me up."

The town has been nice and quiet this morning. It is now nearly six o'clock. Bob Filson who gets up about 4 o'clock has been to town twice to see if stores are open. A few folks are beginning to circulate around and I'll be going home for a June-day breakfast.

Gosh—we overlooked saying anything about an important crop—June brides and obedient husbands. Congratulations! But why get married when it's so hot? Can it be that the heat ripens love—brings on the climax, as you might say!

For what is so hot as a day in June!

The Belle Hopper Missionary Society will have installation of its new officers Monday night. Place of meeting will be announced at church Sunday.

Pretty Church Wedding Unites Popular Young Couple. Many Sullivan People in Attendance. Will Live in Hammond.

The Methodist church at Riverton, Illinois was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Wednesday morning when Miss Mildred E. Dasher, daughter of Mrs. Edwin H. Dasher, became the bride of Kenneth E. Johnson of near this city.

The altar was banked with ferns, palms and cut flowers and the bride group stood before an arch made of white lattice, entwined with rambler roses.

A musical program was given before the ceremony by Miss Ruth Martin, who played several violin selections and was accompanied on the piano by Miss Nellie Mitchell. John Hale, sang, "I love you truly" and "I love you."

The strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march accompanied the bridal party to the altar. The bride

Kingrey Resigns; Lane Is Appointed

At Monday night's meeting of the city council, the resignation of Commissioner H. Y. Kingrey was accepted. He was recently named township highway commissioner.

As city commissioner he had supervision of the electric light plant, the city's largest municipal business.

The council then voted to name Walter Lane as successor to Mr. Kingrey. He was a candidate at the last city election and was defeated by but a few votes. Prior to that election he had served as alderman and is consequently familiar with city affairs.

Demonstrate Ways For Fighting Bugs

Continued drought has been very favorable toward the chinch bug crop this spring and these insect pests constitute a serious menace to the cornfields.

Charles Shuman, president of the Farm Bureau has been in charge of several demonstrations showing best methods for preventing the insects from getting into the cornfields.

Two such demonstrations will be conducted Saturday. At 8 o'clock a demonstration will be held at the farm of Elvin Bobbitt north of Lovington; at 10 o'clock at the farm of Ralph Molzen northeast of Lovington.

Ledbetter Names Casteel On Board

The Moultrie county board of review will have two supervisors serving on it this year: A. Mayfield of Bethany, chairman of the supervisors, by virtue of his office, is also chairman of the board of review. The holdover member is Sam Dick of Lowe township.

Judge Ledbetter Tuesday named J. E. Casteel, supervisor of Jonathan Creek township, as the third member of the board. The board according to law, must be constituted of two members of one political party and one from the other. Messrs. Mayfield and Dick are Democrats.

Before making the appointment of a Republican, Judge Ledbetter looked over the records for a number of years past and decided that Jonathan Creek was entitled to recognition. After Mr. Casteel's application was filed, the Judge asked Attorney General Kerner for a ruling as to whether or not a supervisor can serve on the board by appointment.

Mr. Kerner ruled that there was nothing in the law against it and the job went to Mr. Casteel. The board will meet at some near future date to adopt rules, select a secretary, and set a date for the beginning of its work.

White Ants Damage Woodwork Of House

When a picture was moved from a wall in the home of George A. Roney Tuesday, it was found that termites or white ants, had eaten their way, through the wall and riddled the picture frame.

Contractor Kingrey was called to make an investigation. He found that a piece of upright timber in the house frame had been practically destroyed by the insects. Weatherboarding was removed, the damaged timber was replaced and the ants were destroyed with a creosote solution. The entire house foundation was treated with creosote to prevent another attack.

Cases are on record where ants of this kind have practically ruined all woodwork of houses before discovered.

To Cleo Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Hall, who delivered the class valedictory, was given the Scholarship award.

Thus saith the Lord, What iniquity have your fathers found in me, that they have gone far from me, and have walked after vanity, and are become vain? —Jeremiah 2-5.

I never knew an early-rising, hard-working, prudent man, careful of his earnings, and strictly honest, who complained of bad luck. A good character, good habits, and iron industry are impregnable to the assaults of all the ill-luck that fools ever dreamed of—Addison.

We should accustom the mind to keep the best company by introducing it only to the best books. — Sydney Smith

VALUES

Child-laughter and a baby's joyous crow, Strong eager Youth, a maiden's slenderness, Light in a lover's eyes and simple tenderness, Firm Manhood, growing as the trees should grow, Mature and graceful, and the generous flow Of Sympathy drawn still from hearts that beat With love, or wake with joy to tiny feet That thoughtless to the yearning mother go— All these transcend the bonds of tongue and race, No frontier changes them from land to land, These, the deep truths of life, can know no State; Do they not matter more than warlike hate Sprung from a treaty-right learnt secondhand That in our own small life has little place? —Munro Fraser

City's Greatest Need -- Improved Streets.

A local attorney, after carefully investigating the matter, reports that there is no law against the city of Sullivan making use of some of its accumulated electric light surplus for the purpose of street improvement.

These funds were not raised through taxation for any specific purpose. They belong to the city, just as the electric light plant belongs to the city. The funds do not belong to the users of electricity, as is sometimes claimed. All of the people of this community, whether they use electricity or not, have an interest in the electric plant, for it was originally built by proceeds from sale of bonds, which all the taxpayers helped to pay.

No one improvement can be made in Sullivan that will benefit more people than the oil-surfacing of its dirt streets. The streets are well graded now. An oiling will preserve this grade. The street and alley department of the city is out of funds. Nothing would help it out more than protecting the graded condition of the streets. Oiling would lay the dust, gain the good will of all housewives. Every user of automobiles would derive some benefit now, and more later, if rains should ever come to soak this city.

Though improvements may be necessary at the electric plant later, the small amount needed now for street oiling would not wreck the department's surplus and the improvements could doubtless be partly paid out of the profits of the plant over a period of time, after making a down payment of funds available when the work is done.

We still stubbornly contend that the streets ought to be oiled and that a portion of the electric department surplus be used for that purpose. We know of no bigger need of the city of Sullivan right now than this street improvement.

Tariff As Trade Stimulant.

The United States will have a new tariff policy. It is designed to promote trade with foreign nations, rather than restrict it.

Under the new tariff bill President Roosevelt is given unrestricted power to raise or lower import duties as he sees fit.

This places the tariff on a business-like basis where it can be used to benefit all of the people.

The old Republican tariff policy was one of favoritism. It was called a "Protective Tariff" and protected the American market for exploitation by certain American manufacturers.

If an organization of manufacturers was able and willing to make a liberal campaign contribution to the Republican cause, it was generally rewarded by a raise in tariff on imports of their line of products. This permitted an increase in their own prices, at cost of consumers. It shut out foreign competition.

If such organized manufacturers found themselves with a surplus on hand that Americans could not buy at the inflated prices, they shipped such surplus abroad and dumped it there for anything it would bring.

One of the greatest tariff atrocities ever perpetrated was that of the Hoover administration. It practically shut the door to importations from foreign countries and angered the world. The tariff barons and their political friends overreached themselves. Instead of helping themselves they committed business suicide.

If you want to trade with foreign nations, you must not slam the door in their faces if they want to sell to you.

The new tariff policy gives President Roosevelt power to handle this tariff proposition so as to promote trade and good will with the nations of the world who can use what we have to sell.

The old theory of a robber protective tariff has gone into the discard. Common sense will henceforth prevail.

Term Of Work Well Done.

Our schools are closed for the 1933-34 term. Good work was done. School affairs were well managed by the boards of education and by the teaching staffs.

The people of the grade school district registered their approval of the school management when they voted an additional tax to pull the district out of financial difficulties.

They voted to keep President McLaughlin and the board members on the job for another term. The board voted to retain Supt. Brumfield and the teaching staff.

The high school has never faced financial difficulties and it has always levied far below the legal limit. There were no gossip-fostered scandals to mar the year's school work. It was done efficiently and well. It kept abreast of the times.

By their votes at the spring election the people showed their hearty approval of board president Dr. J. F. Lawson and his board members. The board in turn showed its approval of the efficient way in which the work of the school has been done by retaining Prof. R. A. Scheer and the entire staff of teachers.

The school term, both grade and high, end in a feeling of good will on the part of the community, toward its educational institutions.

Such a situation is most fortunate, indeed.

City Loses A Good Official.

Henry Y. Kingrey is no longer a city official. He resigned his office of commissioner this week, to devote all his duties to his new office of commissioner of highways of Sullivan township.

Mr. Kingrey had long been a city official. He served as alderman and when the system of city government was changed to commission form, the people voted to retain him as a public servant.

He has given much of his time and best efforts for the people of Sullivan. He has always retained their good will and respect. It is just too bad that he can no longer sit in on the council of the city dads, but his new job is in the way of a promotion and in it, he is still working to assure good results for every dollar spent.

Lesson In Finance.

In 1940—Child studying history: "Father, it tells here that in the Great Depression, many banks failed and depositors lost their money. Just what was that?"

Father: "Under the banking system of those days, people took their money to banks. The banks used it in doing a banking business. When the people who owed money to the banks could not pay it, or if bank officials were dishonest and lost the money in speculation, the banks "failed," closed their doors and liquidated. If any money was collected during liquidation, it was apportioned among the depositors after the high cost of liquidation was paid."

Child: "And what stopped this sort of a ridiculous situation?"

Father: "President Roosevelt stopped it. At his behest Congress passed a 'Depositors Guarantee Law.' This law provides that depositors are guaranteed against loss of their deposits if the bank fails. It did more toward restoring confidence and putting money back into circulation, than anything that had ever been done for the American people."

Editorial Shorts

If newspaper publicity is fame, you never know when it will sock you in the jaw. Consider, for example, Dr. R. A. DaFoe of Callander, Ontario. He was just a common, hard-working country doctor. Then one night recently came a summons to the home of a family named Dionne. He went. Fame awaited him for Mrs. Dionne gave birth to five girls, all in one litter. Since then the attention of the world has been focused on that humble home and the daily bulletins by Dr. DaFoe have been of more interest to readers than what President Roosevelt or Mussolini have said.

thefts. Officers have made a detailed investigation but have so far been unable to pin anything on these nudists.

Though some may deny this: we predict that soft-ball is following closely in the footsteps of 'pee-wee' golf. But it will create a lot of excitement while the fever lasts.

We've been missing something in our favorite Decatur newspaper—writeups of the city's gambling joints. Will it be necessary for some desperate promoter to throw a bomb or something, to get back on the front page? Or perhaps the gamblers have adopted a code and are prosperous now.

Hints for the Home

by Nancy Hart

A cheap and excellent cleanser for removing grease and oil spots and other stains from clothing is a simple mixture of soap bark and water. Soap bark at less than 25 cents a pound can be purchased at any drug store. Use about a tablespoonful to a half pint of water. Moisten a rag and rub the spot until it disappears. . . This is cheaper than gasoline, has no odor and it isn't inflammable.

Bake your stuffed peppers in muffin tins instead of the usual baking dishes. They'll keep their shape much better.

To avoid the unpleasant odor that dish towels frequently acquire soak them in hot water to which a little ammonia has been added.

When you are planning to cut bias folds, fold the bias material to the desired depth for as many folds as you need. Then crease with a hot iron. It is easy to cut biases prepared in this way.

Near a nudist colony in northern Indiana there have been some

Sunday School Lesson

by Rev. Charles E. Dunn

Jesus on the Cross. Lesson for June 10th. Matthew 27. Golden Text: Hebrews 12:2.

Some feel it is morbid to emphasize the Cross, that it is more wholesome to stress the life of Jesus than His death, His happiness rather than His sorrow, His teachings rather than His sacrifice. But there is nothing undesirable in facing the Cross soberly, without mawkish tears. At once we are impressed by its protest, its searching rebuke of our godless society. In the light of the crucifixion we note the blackness of the human heart.

The Cross, too, is a supreme revelation of suffering. We think of Jesus hanging helplessly in unspeakable pain, the horrors of which we can only faintly imagine, enduring a shame so desolating that it is no wonder He felt God had forsaken Him.

Now there is comfort in our Master's pain. In the midst of their own agony men have discovered in Christ a consoling Fellow-Sufferer. The plain truth is that the Cross is "the typical and representative agony of the world," as one novelist says of it. In Louvre there is a striking painting of Jesus on the Cross, at the foot of which the artist has placed a desolate figure, veiled in darkness, looking up at the inscription. "He himself has endured greater sufferings."

Note, too, the complete submission of Jesus. This is well voiced by Katherine Mansfield, a victim of tuberculosis, who wrote in her Journal: "One must submit. Take it. Be overwhelmed. Accept it fully."

But we rightly think of the Cross as an expression of victory. Miss Mansfield says elsewhere, "I do not want to die without leaving a record of my belief that suffering can be overcome." Exactly! Suffering can be defeated. In one sense, the Cross marks the greatest failure in history, for the Master hangs there defeated and broken. But in a higher sense the Cross is history's greatest success. For the Lord of glory reigns there as King!

Sullivan History

Editor Progress:

You have published several things about the Bastian seminary. The majority of Sullivan people who are 60 or more years old were either students or acquainted with the seminary grounds.

There were about 5 acres of fine orchard apples, mostly of the old-time Milan variety. This orchard extended from the South line of the Margaret Todd property to Water street on the north.

At the south end were the buildings, consisting of one 2-story brick building used for school and facing west which stood almost where Mrs. Todd's home is now; also the Bastian home which faced south and stood just back of the school building and a few feet from the east line of the property. This building was moved to where it now stands and repaired. Just north of the home was the smoke-house and wood shed and a barn which was torn down at the time of the other repairs.

This property was at one time very beautiful in the springtime as there were many lilac and snow-ball bushes and many other spring flowers.

About 50 or 60 feet north of the southwest corner of the property on the west side was the carriage gate and driveway going back to the barn. The walk to the home was on the south side of the brick school building and was made of brick.

The grounds and everything connected with it were kept in good condition. Changes were made about thirty years ago in this property.

I hope that this information will prove interesting.

Yours very truly, O. L. Patterson, 222 N. LaCrosse Avenue Chicago, Illinois

Oil stains on wall paper can often be taken out by putting a piece of blotting paper on the spot and pressing with a hot iron. Another method is to mix benzine with Fuller's earth, plaster Paris, or powdered whiting, making a thick paste. Spread over the spot and when dry remove by brushing off the powder.

Before re-putting windows or glass door, where putty has dried and fallen away, the wood should be cleaned and painted with clear linseed oil or thin paint, thus closing the pores in the wood and preventing the oil being drawn from the new putty.

FILENE SAYS SERVICE INDUSTRY'S SALVATION

Providence, R. I.—"It amuses me nowadays to hear people talk about business being 'regimented' and being under a 'dictatorship,'" said Edward A. Filene, famous Boston merchant, in an address at Brown university in which he described a recent nation-wide tour. "It was in the old days that business had a real dictator—and it was the meanest chiseler in every line who did the dictating. He was the one who regimented us and had us all doing the goose step. When he cut wages, we all did. Business recovery will not be complete until business is able to take care of itself; and it just happened to be a fact of business evolution that business can no longer take care of itself unless it organizes consciously to seek its profits in the greatest possible service to the mass consumers. When American business does that, it will no longer need to complain of Government interference." One of the fundamentals of the recovery program, he said, is cooperation between business and agriculture.

Is. 26:3. "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee, because he trusteth in thee."

The secret of this verse lies in the "Whose mind is stayed on thee" It means, constantly abiding, continually remaining within the comfort and protection of His love. Perfect peace comes only with implicit faith. Not in our own ability, not in the conditions that surround us, not in anything human or material, but faith in Him who has promised that he would never leave us nor forsake us, and has declared that he will supply our every need according to his riches in glory. What is true of us individually is also true of us nationally. The secret of the fear and unrest of a troubled world is the fact, that the minds of nations are not stayed on Him. We are not looking to God for a way out, or a way of peace, but we are building great armies and navies to insure unto us, Peace. Placing our faith and trust in these things rather than in the God of all peace.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH

C. E. Barnett, Pastor

At the First Christian Church next Sunday evening at 7:30 the Shelbyville Christian church choir, under the direction of Gus Pundt, will present the cantata "Prayer, Promise and Praise" by Niedlinger. This is a number of general nature, having a theme well treated, set to tuneful music and will be a treat to everyone who attends. We therefore cordially invite every one to this service, which takes the place of a regular preaching service.

Preceding this service, the Christian Endeavor will be led by Harris Wood. "A Christian's Duty to His Body" is the subject for discussion. The "Whites" who won the recent contest by 35 points, are eagerly awaiting their reward, an evening's entertainment by the "Reds." The hour for Endeavor is 6:30 p. m.

Children's Day in the Sunday School was observed last Sunday and a goodly offering taken for foreign missions. The program and decorating committees are to be commended for their work and its results. Next Sunday's session begins at the usual hour, 9:30 a. m.

In the morning, at 10:30 o'clock, a service of worship not exceeding one hour in length. Communion immediately following the Doxology and Gloria Patri. A twenty minute sermon by the pastor. Church members trust with Jesus. An invitation to all who seek an hour of fellowship with God and man.

"Religion is the mother, the church the nursery of religion." You will find "mother" in the "nursery."

600-LB. HOG NETS FARMER JUST 50c

"This NRA hog-processing tax is supposed to help farmers" said E. A. McKenzie, in supreme disgust, the other day. "Here is what it did for me."

"I had Fred Doner truck a 600 pound sow to the Chicago stockyards for me. She was a fine, well-finished hog. When sold on the market, the government tax was deducted, and what do you think I got for that hog? just 50c!"

"Fred also took a steer to the yards for me on the same day, or I would have come dog-gone close to owing somebody money because I sold a hog."

—The Progress invites Dr. and Mrs. Wayne Brock of Greenville, S. Carolina to be its guests at a show at The Grand theatre.

Fifty Years Ago

The Progress of 50 years ago was a great newspaper. W. J. Mize & Co., were the publishers. The paper then was in its 27th year.

Through the courtesy of R. D. Meeker, we are in receipt of a copy of June 5, 1884.

Journalism in those days was somewhat different in style from what it is today.

This particular issue was six-page, seven columns to the page. Page 1 was taken up with six columns of advertising and one column of news. Of the advertising, three columns were occupied by A. C. Mouser's listing of farm and city property for sale or trade. The Great New York Fire Store of Decatur advertised a stock damaged in a New York fire. T. J. Hill & Co., of this city told of having received a car load of "Roberts & Allison Fine organs" and show a picture of one of these instruments (Are any of these organs still in existence in this part of the country?) This same company also says that M. Tichenor is handling their New Home and White sewing machines. They also sell a full line of farm implements.

Lynn & Scruggs have an adv. as have several other Decatur firms. White's New Drive Gate was advertised by Wm. Winings & Son of Lake City. Silver & Yantes of Dalton City advertised Champion harvesters.

Merchants worked lotteries in those days. N. O. Smyser tells about $300 worth of presents which he will give away Jan. 2, 1885 and every purchaser of 25c worth of groceries at his store will be given "one chance."

A. H. Goodman of New York advertised that he had bought the entire Ansbacher stock at sheriff's sale and was disposing of it "regardless of cost for Cash over the Counter."

Pifer and Hardin were in the implement business here while C. B. Brown advertised a similar line in Lovington. M. E. Reeves of Arthur advertised his dry goods, clothing, etc. Dunscomb & Martin, owners of the City Mills advertised flour and farm implements.

One column was taken up with railway time tables. Peter Cofer, Master of the Masonic lodge was calling a regular meeting. John P. Lilly owned the City Book store, Grindol of Decatur had a rather elaborate monument adv. C. G. Roane was in the general store business in Dalton City. Pinkley & Hoke were local implement dealers while S. Parrett claimed to be "the leading druggist in Sullivan."

The health of the people attracted the attention of many advertisers who recommended Rosin Weed Balm for coughs; Castoria for infants and children; Ayer's Sarsaparilla; Dr. John Bull's Smith's Tonic for "fever and ague or chills and fever"; Hall's Vegetable Sicilian and others.

Among the attorneys who valued the publicity the paper gave them were R. M. Peadro, W. H. Shinn (states attorney) Meeker and Smyser, Eden & Clark; A. P. Greene, A. B. Lee, Minor and Chumley, A. C. Mouser, Cochran & Pollard.

Business cards were carried by D. F. Bristow, Kellar & Duncan, Welch & Livers, Wm. Thunemann, Charles K. Thomason, Geo. P. Chapman, Arthur Helicon Brass band, A. F. Robinson, livery, F. M. Stephenson, real estate; Wright & Eden abstractors; G. W. Logan, Bethany, lumber; Dixie McGuire, shoes, Bethany. Even the American Express Co., had an adv. and livestock men were not hesitant in telling about their business.

In the news items appeared an account of a livestock sale held by Thos. H. Crowder of Bethany in which heifers and bulls were sold for as high as $155 each. All of this was "fine stock" but the breed is not mentioned although the description says "red, white, and roan."

A children's day meeting had been held in Dalton City which was regaled as being some affair, the editor ending the story with "Take it all in all, it was a grand success, and we hope to have just such another time again soon."

George Monroe's school had closed at Neoga and he was coming home. Wm. Knight of near Cushman had two cows each of which had twin calves. In the George N. Knight family a 10-lb boy had arrived. Mrs. M. McDonald was visiting relatives in Kentucky. A. J. Beveridge delivered the memorial address in Greencastle, Indiana where he was attending college.

Taylor Pemberton had bought two lots in Camfield's railroad addition preparatory to erecting a house. A baby born to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Newbould had died. Mary Fread, wife of Arthur Fread had died. She was a daughter of Jack Myers, deceased. Burial was in the Pea cemetery.

The following was the report in full of the Decoration Day services:

Decoration Day

Decoration day was observed in Sullivan this year with more ceremony and by more people than ever before, although the day is always one of great interest to our citizens.

The post of the G. A. R. took active part with the citizens, and the day was made a very interesting one indeed.

The audience gathered in the Titus opera house at two o'clock, but the building was far too small to accommodate the large number who desired to participate and many were forced to wait outside.

The meeting was opened by the Post, Capt. Duncan, commander, services of the order were held, after which Elder Bryant of the Christian church offered prayer.

Then followed short, spicy speeches by Capt. Lee, H. M. Minor, Capt. Greene, W. H. Shinn and Dr. Cone.

The oration was delivered by Rev. J. F. Howe, whose speech was a masterpiece of oratory and rhetoric. It was apropos to the occasion and not a word was said that should not have been said, and not a word was left unsaid that belonged to the occasion. A happier talk could not have been made. The audience was delighted with the effort. Its dignity, its eloquence captivated each and all.

The procession formed and the march to the cemetery taken up.

The post decorated the cenotaph with appropriate ceremony, in honor of those who were buried elsewhere, after which the graves of those in Sullivan cemetery were decorated as follows:

War of 1812

W. G. Haydon, William Shepherd, Mathias Kliver, Samuel Wright, Sr., Jonathan Graham, John Strickland, Ansel Clark.

Mexican War

Aaron George, M. A. Baggett. Black Hawk War Addison McPheeters.

War of the Rebellion

John H. Hollingsworth, C. P. Tichenor, Thomas Iverson, J. F. M. Whiting, William Humble, Clement L. Shinn, Leroy A. Lynn, William A. Lynn, Robert Stewart, A. N. Smyser, James A. Davis, Joseph H. Everett, George W. Gennett, George W. Foster, James Fread, James R. Lee, George T. Thomason, Harmon Hagard, Henry Carriker, Moses Hoggett, Charles Flick, Harry Bowers, Lee B. Birchfield, Abram C. Baggett, F. M. Purvis, Charles Grunet, George Dawson.

The day was fine, business houses were closed, and the whole town together with many visitors from adjoining towns and the country took part in the services and a prettier sight could not be imagined.

Teachers selected for the Sullivan schools were: P. J. Nichols $90; Mollie Thunemann $55; Ella Lowe $40; Alice Porter $40; Vene Millzen $40; Alice Workman $40; Mary Powers $40; Sarah Powers $40; W. S. McCaig, janitor $45. Jacob Dumond, supervisor for Sullivan township reported that he had received during the year $578.92 and spent $430.47 leaving a balance in the township treasury of $148.45.

A. E. D. Scott was county treasurer; B. F. Peadro was supt. of schools; D. F. Bristow was mayor; E. Hall was city clerk; A. P. Greene, master in chancery.

Politics was boiling. J. H. Baker, S. P. Drake and Geo. W. Vaughn were candidates for the Democratic nomination for the lower house of the legislature; S. M. Smyser wanted to be states attorney and Samuel W. Wright sought re-election as circuit clerk. The paper contained several columns of write ups about the national political situation. Under "News Condensed" it had stories from all parts of the country. Its market reports showed that wheat in Chicago ranged in price from 87c upward; in the same market corn was 54c; beeves $6.50 to $7.00; hogs $5.50 to $6.00; lard 8c. Nine terminal markets were represented in the report.

Lovington, Bethany, Arthur and Dalton City were liberally represented in the news of the day. Columnists were already on the job as is evidenced by the "Progress Pickle Dish, Seasoned with Stolen Spices." This column represented the humor of the day with a number of wise-cracks and caustic comment, which made it a rather interesting feature. Example: "Boys, these days" remarked a street urchin, as he picked up the stub of a cigar and puffed away at it, "begin where grown people leave off." Also: "One would reasonably suppose that it would be difficult to collect a bill from a leather merchant when he buys leather and hides."

Occasionally we get an idea that The Progress of today is quite

CORN-HOG PROGRAM SLOWLY MOVES TO ITS FINAL STAGES

to become eligible for corn-hog benefit payments. Following the second sign-up, the contracts will be mailed to Washington for acceptance by the Secretary of Agriculture. This will be the final step before the first benefit payments may be received by the contract signers.

Before individual allotments can be assigned to cooperating producers, some adjustments will have to be made between their total indicated production and the county quota, it was pointed out. Those who have signed up have indicated that they grew an average total of 61,804 acres of corn and produced an average of 32,191 head of hogs during the two base years of 1932 and 1933. Under the terms of the contract, this production is to be reduced 20 per cent in the case of corn and 25 per cent in the case of hogs. However, these reductions will not bring the figures within the county quota, and consequently the production figures which the farmers gave will have to be adjusted.

The AAA Corn-hog section at Washington, explains President O. E. Lowe, assigned definite corn and hog production allotments for Illinois in 1934. These state allotments, in turn, have been subdivided and assigned to various counties. The county allotments must then be pro-rated to the individual contract signers in proportion to their respective production in 1932-1933.

The major adjustment in bringing the production of corn-hog signers within the county quotas will be made in contracts in which the figures are not supported by evidence and in contracts in which the supporting evidence is obviously incorrect.

The adjustment of individual production allotments to correspond with the county, state and national quotas is absolutely essential to the success of the corn-hog program, it is explained.

In the first place, if the AAA program is to succeed, there must be an actual reduction of at least 20 per cent in the average acreage of corn grown by the contract signers and a reduction of 25 per cent in the number of hogs produced for market. If such reductions are not accomplished, the 1934 production of these basic commodities will not be adjusted to probable demands. Likewise unless production and consumption are brought more nearly into line, there is no assurance that market prices can be brought up to a fair exchange value. Without this accomplishment, the long-time value of the program will be lost and the $350,000,000 distributed in benefit payments will be of but temporary relief.

Secondly, the adjustments are necessary to assure every contract signer his rightful allotment.

Weekly Bulletin Relief Projects

GOVERNMENT REQUESTS INFORMATION ON C.C.C.

A memorandum from the Emergency Conservation Department of the Illinois Relief Commission requests information from local communities regarding the value of CCC. The federal authorities would like to know whether the young man, their parents, and community in general feel that the camps are worth while. They would also like to know what, if any, changes have been noted in the boys and in their attitudes.

Continuation of the plan depends upon whether or not communities feel that this work is worth while for the boys, the family, and the nation in general. The Social Service Department of the relief office would be very glad to talk regarding this with anyone who would like to express an opinion on the subject. Some boys who have returned on leave recently have already been interviewed. The office will be glad to have an opportunity to copy a few letters from boys who have written from camps.

PROGRESS OF WORK RELIEF PROGRAM Another work relief project which will complete an unfinished CWA project was started June 4—that of completing the grading on the Avenue Bridge in Whitley township. The bridge was built under CWA but the grading up to the bridge will require considerable time and labor.

The widening of Vine Street in Arthur is proceeding rather rapidly. Most of the concrete has been poured for the curb and gutter on the east side of the street, and the work of moving back lamp posts and replacing side walks started this week. Work is being done mainly on one side of the street at a time in order to interfere as little as possible with trade in the business district.

The next project to be started will probably be one for draining a borrow pit near Route 132 near Allenville, and the project in connection with Lovington Township High School football field.

RELIEF GARDENS John N. Johnson, Moultrie county garden director reports that both the community and home gardens are in good shape, but need more moisture. The community gardens are in general better cared for than the home gardens. Some re-seeding will be necessary because there has not been enough moisture to germinate the small seeds. This can not, however, be done until there is more moisture in the soil.

It has not been necessary to remove any families from the relief rolls because they did not take care of their garden plots, but two families were recently removed because of refusal to take a garden when seeds and land were provided. This is in accordance with a federal order to the effect that emergency assistance from federal funds may not be given to the families who are not making that much of an effort to help themselves.

CARD OF THANKS We desire to thank all neighbors and friends for their kindness during the illness and death of our beloved husband and son, Vernon E. Hawbaker. Especially do we thank those who sent flowers, the Legion members and all others who participated in the funeral services.

Mrs. Vernon E. Hawbaker Parents, Brothers and sisters.

More Clouds On Factory Horizon

While the local branch of the Brown Shoe Company has been working this week, reports say that another strike is threatening.

Moberly, Missouri shoe workers are still on strike and it is rumored that sympathy strike is to be called here if the Moberly trouble is not adjusted soon.

Thursday afternoon of last week President Bush of the Brown Shoe Company of St. Louis was here. All employees were called to one floor and Mr. Bush explained the company's terms and plans for continuing operation of its plants.

He stated emphatically that if labor troubles continued the company would close down the plant. The man named Lawyer, who had headed the union movement, issued a statement through a "staff correspondent" which was published in a Decatur paper, finding fault with President Bush's attitude and with his interpretation of the terms under which the factory recently reopened.

There have been rumors around town about threats that have been made by those who disapprove of the agitators and also by the other side of the unfortunate disturbance. The sheriff has been called upon several times, but no outbreaks have resulted.

Dalton Falls To Charleston 1 To 0 And 6-5

Ryan Blanks Foe in Seven Inning Opener. Second Contest Goes 12 Innings After Dalton Blasts Crawford For 5 Runs in 7th. Fourth Straight Loss for Dalton.

By Jim Scott

Dalton City—Only six members of Manager Hale's Foreign Legion of ball players were in camp Sunday so the little round man was forced to patch his lineup with homefolks. This juggling of cast seemed to take away much of the Grays' former resilience, for they curled up twice before the Charleston Lumberjacks, swooning 1 to 0 in the seventh inning opener and again, 6 to 5 in a thrilling twilight edition which went 12 innings before a decision could be reached.

The visitors presented Pat Ryan with a run in the first inning of the opener and then relaxed knowing that a run to their middle aged marvel was a commanding lead Pat encountered little opposition as he served the Grays their first shut out of the season, chucking as the boys swung viciously at his dipping outcurves and drops. Their bludgeons, for the most part, met with only raindrops which came pelting down at various intervals.

Dopey Loses Two
It was Dalton's third and fourth straight defeats and both losses were charged against Howard (Dopey) Clark, the Decatur meat cutter. The young man was all that could be asked for in the way of a slinger in the initial contest, stopping the Charleston hitters dead in their tracks after the first.

Dalton was without a caster for the nightcap as Kinsel had deserted in favor of Lovington so Dopey was again trotted out to the arena. Charleston welcomed him with two tallies in the first, and were still leading by that score at the end of the sixth, when Boss Hale decided that it was a useless task and excused Dopey, substituting his brother Fred, who had been patrolling centerfield.

Although a year or so had elapsed since Fred last tried to fool a batter he nevertheless got thru the seventh and eighth with but one run chalked against him. In meantime Dalton had gone on a frolic in the seventh, chasing five runs across the plate.

With the Grays leading, 5 to 3 in the first half of the ninth, the Lumberjacks suddenly became ornery and began taking liberties with Fred, batting him for a single and a double which brought about his removal. Brother Dopey was whisked back in from centerfield, but the Charlestoners were tough enough to tie the score before he could get things in order.

By this time the visitors had seen enough of Mr. Dopey and having learned his little tricks of the trade they landed on him for the winning margin in the twelfth.

First Game
Charleston manufactured its winning run in the first, but didn't start work until two were gone. Then Riggles clicked off a single to left, stole second and tagged in on a safe shot by Barnes.

Vance Kidwell, the 16-year-old sensation, who collected four hits the previous Sunday, punched a single to center to start the Dalton first, but Granddaddy Ryan bore down to fan Reno and F. Clark and made Boyer roll feebly to the second-sacker.

A single by Schlesinger and another by Kidwell failed to accomplish anything in Dalton's third as the former was tagged out on the runways and Armstrong, strictly a novice, and Reno were easy for Ryan.

Boyer waisted one of his line doubles in the third, his shot coming after F. Clark had struck out. The following batsmen, Benton and Trulock popped up to the infield.

A single by Reno and a walk to Boyer completed the Grays last scoring threat in the sixth for in the closing stanza the venerable Irishman really opened up. He whiffed Trulock, H. Clark and Schlesinger, the only three men to face him.

Second Game
Charleston also went to work in the first chapter of the second contest. Seaton, the lead-off man, beat out a slow roller to short, stole second when Barnes' drive got away from Trulock. Barney pulled up at second and, after camping while Doc Marker and Riggles popped to first and second respectively, came home on a lofty triple by Ernie Priceo, the well-known collegian.

Louie (Brother) Crawford, who was serving his third game for the Lumberjacks in a week's span, was on his way to no-hit fame until Benton touched him for a single in the fifth. Up until then he had retired every one of the thirteen who had faced him.

Crawford Weakens
Louie then regained his poise in such a manner that Hale lost hope and allowed his star hurler to leave the hill. Then suddenly Dalton came to life in the seventh, hammering Brother Crawford to the extent of five runs.

Fred Clark led off with a single and went to third on Boyer's double to right. Benton grounded to the pitcher who fumbled, but Marker came in and grabbing the ball, threw home to Bell, who put it on Fred as he slid into the plate.

The Clarks Do Bark
When Empire Burress waived the runner out, Fred jumped up shouting vociferously as he threw himself on the arbiter. His brother Dopey chimed in and together they must have made the poor fellow wish he had stayed home with the wife and kids. It was well that Mr. Boyer, the mighty Dalton backstop, came to his rescue, for with a few pointed words he helped the Clarks regain their composure.

When order was restored, Crawford passed Trulock to fill the bases, bringing up Clark the Dopey. Still gurgling with anger the hitter rapped a hard double thru the box, scoring Boyer and Benton and moving Trulock to third. Schlesinger grounded to Seaton, whose throw to the plate arrived too late to catch Trulock. Clark took third on the play and came in while Marker was tossing out Goodwin. Schlesinger, in the meantime, had legged it to third, whence he scored when Barnes scooped up Kidwell's roller and threw the ball past first baseman Peary.

Crawford Delivers
Charleston wasted two hits in the sixth, but in the seventh Seaton tripled to drive home Crawford, who had singled.

Crawford's ability to hit in the pinch prevented him from becoming the losing pitcher. Peary led off the ninth with a single and later romped to third on a double by Kiegly. Dopey replaced brother Fred and retired Bell on a fly to the shortstop. Crawford then stepped up and slammed a single to center, scoring the two runners and tying up the game at 5 apiece.

The Lumbermen noticed that it was a fatigued and forlorn Dopey who faced them in the twelfth, so

Dolan Carnine Is Held To Grand Jury

"The court finds that sufficient evidence has been introduced to show cause for holding Mr. Carnine to await the action of the grand jury. The bond will be $500."

The foregoing was Judge Lambrecht's decision Friday morning at the preliminary hearing of the People vs. D. W. (Dolan) Carnine, charged with attempt to defraud the city of Sullivan.

The specific charge is that he put a "jumper wire" into an electric meter in the basement of his home and through such contrivance defrauded the city's municipal electric plant, by using electricity that did not pass through the meter.

Supt. Cunningham and assistant Supt. Blystone testified as to finding the "jumper" in the meter when their suspicion was aroused by the drop in the amount of Mr. Carnine's electric bill.

Mr. Carnine on the stand testified that he knew nothing whatever about the affair; that he knew nothing about meters or jumpers and that he had paid but little attention to the amount of the monthly bill when he settled it.

The case of the People was handled by States Attorney R. W. Martin. The defendant was represented by Wehmhoff & Purvis.

Judge Lambrecht's action does not imply that Mr. Carnine is guilty as charged, but rather that the case is worthy the attention of further investigation by the grand jury. If an indictment is found and guilt is proven, the statute prescribes the penalty at not to exceed three months imprisonment and fine not to exceed $250, or both.

The case has aroused considerable interest and many were present in Lambrecht's court Friday morning.

they proceeded to bunt him into submission. Seaton dribbled a little roller down third base way and arrived safely. Marker followed with another successful bunt in the opposite direction. Seaton got to third on the play and scampered home when Barnes grounded out via Trulock.

Lee Roughton of Chicago visited his mother, Mrs. Nettie L. Roughton, Sunday.

She found another woman kissing her husband. Did she get mad? Not a bit, but she said "You can have him, provided you find another husband for me." Around this incident is built a smart and spicy comedy in "Uncertain Lady" which appears at The Grand Friday night. You husbands and wives who would like to do some swapping around, see this picture and learn how Genevieve Tobin, Edward Everett Horton and Renee Gadd worked it.

On this same night Tim McCoy and Billie Seward appear in "Voice in the Night." This is one of those newer pictures toward which the Western stars are gravitating. There has for some time been a suspicion that the fans are fed up on "Westerns" and these hard-riding, straight-shooting hoppers are apt to be out of work one of these days, unless they learn a different type of acting. There is something to be said (for or against) this man McCoy. In the 24 pictures he has made within recent years, he has had nice looking leading ladies, but he says he gave them nary a kiss. He must get his wages in money!

Saturday you'll see a typical Buck Jones picture; also comedy, cartoon and serial.

An Old Team
Usually picture stars capture the hearts of the fans with one big outstanding picture. If such success is achieved through teamwork the team members get jealous, split up and the result is a number of very mediocre pictures. When they are about washed up as actors they drift together again and try to attain a measure of their first success.

This, frankly and brutally, is the story of Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell. Teamed together, originally, they went strong. Then they split up and had a hard time keeping out of the breadlines, so now they are together again and the picture to be shown here Sunday and Monday is "Change of Heart." As a reserve, the producers induced James Dunn and Ginger Rogers to pinch-hit. So you are assured of a good picture. If the temperamental Gaynor flunks, you know that Dunn and Rogers are there to save the day. You folks who read Kathleen Norris' folk stories will recognize the play as "Manhattan Love Song." Other good things — go and see.

Newspaper Story
Tuesday night's show is one of those fanciful things that glorifies smart newspaper reporters. Lee Tracy, who is an adept at such things plays the lead. Lee has been "out" for a time owing to some indiscretion in Mexico. In the meantime Spencer Tracy has been "the" Tracy, but now Lee's back on the job and his first picture, which shows here Tuesday night is, "I'll tell the World." Gloria Stewart and a fair cast help do the heavy work. Good shorts.

Wednesday and Thursday
Edgar Rice Burroughs created a fiction character "Tarzan of the Apes" and Tarzan has made him rich and famous. This Tarzan is supposed to have been brought up in the jungles by apes and developed a wonderful physique. His adventures are many in story and cartoon and film. In the picture world this Tarzan stuff has been going over great. Johnny Weissmuller, great swimming athlete has been playing the part for some years. Maureen O'Sullivan a winsome Irish lass is well cast in the sweetheart part in "Tarzan and his Mate" which appears here next week. If you like these "nature in the raw" pictures you'll get a whale of a kick out of this one.

SIXTEENTH INSTALLMENT

Nancy lifted the child gently on his pillow. "Now—quickly, don't be frightened, take off the old sheet and put on the clean one." Together they slipped the child into the clean things, and Nancy sponged his hot little face with cold water.

"Tony's more quiet see, the sponging did him good," she said gently, but her heart beat in her throat. The child seemed to be slowly choking to death.

Richard, Richard! Her heart cried again desperately. It seemed impossible that she could need him so, but she did.

At last she stopped and looked about her. It was better! The atmosphere had cleared, the floor was bare and clean, the bed absolutely white and fresh. She took hold of the sobbing woman and led her to the chair beside the bed.

Nancy ran into the outer room and began to iron towels with feverish energy. Would Richard never come? Perhaps Henry had been thrown by Polestar, perhaps the roads were impassable—but no, no! She would not believe it, he would come, he must come!

Nancy laid the clean towels in a row beside the clean basin, ready for the hot water that was steaming in the kettle. Then she went to the bedside. The boy was very still, his glassy eyes stared and his parched lips were open. Was he breathing? He gasped and she drew a long sigh of relief.

"Don't cry so!" she checked the mother pitifully. "Don't! He hears you. The doctor must get here soon now, he must!" she ran to the window.

Would Richard never come? Then, suddenly, she saw him, coming over the crest of the hill on foot. Of course! She ought to have known it; he couldn't drive his car past the telephone pole.

How strong he looked, how cool. And this man was her husband! It seemed to her that she stopped breathing; then the child's gasps grew suddenly audible. She ran to the door and tore it open.

"Oh, Richard, I'm afraid he's dying!" she whispered, holding the door open.

He came in and shut the door with his shoulder.

"Where's the patient?" he asked briefly.

"In there!" she pointed to the inner room, a catch in her throat.

He did not notice it. His eyes went to the other room. His glance swept over the preparations with something like a flash of surprise but he said nothing. She saw him put the frantic mother gently aside and bend over the child. Deftly, silently, swiftly, he made his examination, raised up, and turned to face them.

Nancy was trying to coax the frantic woman away, but she broke out in a hoarse whisper: "Be he dyin', doctor?"

"No! Be quiet, please. Leave the room. I must be alone, I've got work to do."

Nancy drew the woman gently away.

Mrs. Kinney dropped into a chair and Nancy ran back.

"Here are towels, and I've got plenty of hot water. I can help you?"

He turned from his open surgical case and there was no response in his face at all.

"No! You ought to be at home. This is diphtheria. I'm going to put a pipe in his throat—leave me, please!"

"Oh, poor child; Richard, she can't help, you need help. Let me help you."

"No!" he motioned to the door, impatience in his gesture. "Leave the room, please!"

He did not want her. He would not let her help! She turned and walked slowly to the door.

Then she heard the woman's voice, broken and husky.

"Th' doctor's savin' him," she said. "He's like God, ain't he? Workin' ter save his life an' gettin' no pay for it."

Nancy made no answer. The woman had begun mechanically to feed the fire to keep hot water ready, and the girl helped her.

"Me cat? Fer th' love o' Mike, however kin th' likes of me git time ter eat—an' him so sick!"

"Oh!"

Nancy found a little tea, half a loaf of dry bread, some sugar and she managed to spread an old clean napkin on the end of the table. Then she sliced and toasted bread and made tea.

In spite of herself, Nancy watched Richard covertly. In the stern conflict that he waged, she had no place at all! She felt suddenly insignificant. Her very rage at his domination dwindled. She was spellbound; she had never noticed before how strong he was, how powerful and deft his hands in their dangerous office.

Nancy put the kettle back and dropped down on the floor beside the old stove, furious.

She had gone to this man and offered to marry him. After she had refused him, she had given herself to him legally. And tonight she had seen how great he could be—and he had not even looked at her.

Nancy could not stand it. She got up and went to the door and opened it. It was pitch black outside. She could not go; she wanted to go home—she was willing to wade through the night and the water, anything, to get away! But she could not; there was no light anywhere. She shut the door silently and turned back; she did not want to see him again, but she could not help it.

He had his watch in his hand and was counting the child's pulse. It did not matter to him whether she went or stayed—so long as she did not obstruct him in his work.

The strain on her mind gave way suddenly; she felt as if she had fallen through space; she did not matter at all! She sat down, huddled on the window sill and stared out at the night.

Mr. Gordon, seeming to admit anxiety, sat up late, waiting for Nancy. Before the storm reached its height, Mrs. Gordon had phoned to Angie Fuller to know if Nancy had been there. Angie's reply that she had left before the rain began.

Mr. Gordon, pretending to read his newspaper, grunted.

"I've thought for some time that my children didn't have sense enough to come in when it rained!" he growled.

But all the same he sat up himself. Long after he had driven his worried wife upstairs, he tramped up and down the old room.

He went to the windows and threw open the shutters. It was morning now and the rain-swept earth smelled sweet. A mackerel sky showed its golden scales all over the rosy east. Mr. Gordon stared down into his own garden. The Japanese quince was sagging in the corner. He started violently. He had heard his old gate creak on its hinge.

"The child's come home!" he thought with sharp relief.

But he opened the door to Page Roemer. The young man's clothing was wet and muddy, but Mr. Gordon did not see it.

"I believe I've forbidden you the house," replied Nancy's father. Page leaned against the doorpost. "Mr. Gordon, your daughter was down at the inn when the storm broke yesterday afternoon. She went out—at its height—no one knows where. We can't find a trace of her!"

"When was it?" he asked, "and why did she leave?"

Page's answers were vague, but he said that Helena Haddon and her husband were both there. Helena had been with him, lending her car to help in the search.

"Go on, make what inquiries you can," he said sharply to Page. "Try the Lomaxes, I've got to speak to my wife—then I'll look myself."

"I've been there!" Page's face set itself, then he looked at Mr. Gordon. "I went to Morgan's but he's out, been out all night."

Mr. Gordon said nothing. He shut the door in the young man's face and went upstairs.

"Nancy was at the inn when the storm broke. The Haddons were out there; that Romer boy's just come here to tell me. Of course, Nancy got out of it to shake him off. Don't worry, Mamma; I'm going to see about the telephone, our wire's down on top of the Japanese quince."

Mrs. Gordon crept out of bed and dressed herself. She came downstairs before Amanda made the coffee, and tried to set the breakfast table, when Amanda came out from the kitchen.

"Mis' Haddon's automobile's at the gate—I reckon yo' all gots ter go ter doah, yo'sef."

Helena came up the patch alone. Mrs. Gordon was agitated when she opened the door.

"Oh, Mrs. Haddon, where's Nancy?" she cried.

"I came here—I hoped she'd come home," Helena replied gently.

"I've been nearly crazy all night," she said weakly. "Mr. Gordon's sure she's stopped somewhere because of the storm. Page came here a while ago."

Helena laid her hand on her shoulder. "Don't worry," she said with a sweetness that went to Mrs. Gordon's heart. "I'm sure she is safe—isn't there anybody you can think of—she might know?"

The poor woman forgot herself entirely. "If our phone wasn't out of order—I'd call up Richard Morgan—she might be there, she—"

she stopped short, catching herself.

Helena's long eyes glimmered under their heavy lids. So, she thought, there is something in it! She thought she knew it all now. The mystery of Polestar's condition—discovered late the night before—had been explained just before she left the house. Henry had confessed to Kingdon. He had also told where Morgan went.

Amanda came to the door, "Mist Page Romer's outside m'm. He'd like ter see Mis' Haddon."

Helena leaned over and deliberately kissed Mrs. Gordon. "He's going with me. We'll find her. Don't be frightened," she said.

"I know where she is, dear boy," she said softly to Page. "I've just found out—we'll go and get her. She can't walk home through this mire."

Page knew nothing and divined nothing beyond his own mad anxiety. He knew that the mad infatuation of his own passion, his blind belief in Nancy's love for him, had led to this. Nancy had gone into the storm to escape him. He hated Morgan again, hated him with all his soul, because Morgan had done what he could not do. But he followed Helena into her car. If she knew where Nancy was, he would find her and—if he found her—she would make her forgive him.

Nancy was drying her shoes by the fire when the big car—falling to cross the stream—stopped nearly a quarter of a mile away and Page and Helena took to the path over the hill.

Richard was still with the child, but the crisis had passed in the night and his poor mother, in the collapse of relief, was lying asleep on the floor. Nancy, shut out of the sick-room was trying to get ready to walk home.

She was putting on the wrecks of her shoes when there came a knock at the door. Richard himself came to answer it. He was still in his shirt sleeves. He had stripped off his collar and the strong chords in his throat showed like the scroiled ucles of an athlete.

The next moment the door opened and the broad sunshine showed Helena and Page Roemer. Helena caught at Richard's arm.

"Richard!" she cried anxiously, "you're killing yourself! It's not right—we can't let you do it—you are too valuable!"
