

WEATHER

It really can rain in Sullivan!

Although many doubted that it could rain here anymore, we have had several nice rains since our last issue, including one this morning (Thursday).

Friday evening about seven o'clock the clouds started gathering. The sun's reflection on the storm clouds gave a beautiful effect, yet awesome. The clouds were rolling in all directions and there was much electrical display. There was a lot of wind, but it was high up and every little while it blew an icy blast from the north. Many limbs were blown from trees but no property damage in Sullivan has been reported.

There was a severe hail storm Friday night which did much damage to crops north of here. Hail as big as golf balls was reported in Arthur and from the looks of the crops the hail had to be large. Monticello farmers suffered a big loss of crops by the hail.

Now that we have had rain, the main topic is "Have you any mosquitoes?" The crickets have gone and mosquitoes are here by swarms. They not only pester you in the early evening but they invade the sleeping quarters at night so if you see everyone "digging" — it is not the itch.

The weather has been very hot this week. Read this it may help some. Orville Crowell, 19 of Omaha sat on a cake of ice with nothing but a pair of woolen trousers between himself and the ice, for 31 hours and 45 minutes to win the ice-sitting contest at the Lakeview park Race of Nations contest.

Our Boss took time off from his vacation to write me for this column so here it is:

East Shore of Crystal Lake, near Laona, Wis.

This is a heck of a place from which to write a "Weather" report, but I promised "The Force" and here it is.

If you don't see this in the paper this week you will know it arrived too late and eventually reached the waste basket, as I expect to write a more complete report later.

It is cool here in our cabin. Outside a new moon hangs over the silvery lake while mosquitoes are out hunting for anything with warm blood.

We found this place this evening after a 75 mile ride from a hoipoloi camp which was just a little snobby and snooty. We may stay here for a day or two. Boating is fine — the lake shallow — the water clear.

They have had plenty of rain up here — where the main crop is tourists and bolders. In places they have some field crops but of course nothing to compare with Illinois. They don't even know what an Illinois chinch bug looks like in this land of Christmas trees.

Roads are fine and camps are not over crowded. Summer is harvest season. Then is when tourists are ripe for picking.

There are CCC camps near here, also Indians and in one town we saw a place where Uncle Sam is taking care of 250 transients — depression hoboes.

The old Chevy with its "free squealing" brakes is doing fine — apparently enjoying itself, as the brakes scream a warning on sharp curves.

We have not fished. We have had but one fish meal offered us in this land of fish — Mostly we get Chicago beef raised in Central Illinois.

We do wish Charley Hankley were here. He'd get some dandy rock garden ideas. The rock gardens here are natural — boulders by the acre — I bet they make even these patient Scandinavian farmers cuss.

A pretty sight are potato fields in bloom. We have seen garden fences 8 feet high to keep deer out.

We are headed east toward Escanaba, Michigan and will then head toward Green Bay. We'll get there ahead of President Roosevelt — and will those Green Bayers be surprised!

I'll be surprised too — if this gets to Sullivan in time for this week's paper.

Boilers Removed At Light Plant

Cunningham's report was passed and approved. Plans for remodeling and making other improvements at the light plant were made Wednesday morning by the city commissioners. The cost of the improvements will be between $5,000 and $10,000. The Appropriation ordinance No. 320 was passed the same as last year except the Fire Dept. fund, which was increased $1,000 over the amount allowed last year. Canning Project By Moultrie Relief Com.

Canning Centers to be in Lovington and Sullivan. 41 Applications for CCC. Request for Relief Funds Cut 20% for July.

The Moultrie County Garden committee met at the relief office on Friday afternoon, July 13th. J. N. Johnson, Moultrie County Garden superintendent, reported on the progress of the program. The canning program in connection with the garden program was explained by Mrs. Jensen as fully as instructions to date would permit.

The canning program will be carried on as a work relief project, centers having been applied for in Lovington and Sullivan. The equipment for the canning will be furnished by the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission, and supervision by a local person in each center — someone who has had training and experience in pressure cooker canning — will be supplied. It will be possible for anyone, whether or not on relief, to can at these centers if they will bring in their own produce and do the necessary labor themselves.

Those on relief will receive all the cans of their own produce. Those not on relief will be asked to contribute one out of several cans to the county food depot in payment for the use of the equipment. Work relief labor will be used only as needed to assist the person supervising and not to carry on the whole canning process. When this project is approved or further word is received a letter will be sent to all relief clients.

No further word has been received regarding the date for the CCC examinations. There are now forty one applications on file at the relief office.

Both the Lovington and the Sullivan Park Boards have submitted projects requesting someone to supervise playgrounds in the parks in these two communities. The

Bruce Defeats Monarchs Of Decatur, 7 To 1

Bill Allows But 3 Singles, Fans 13 In Avenging Club's Only Loss of Season. Appett Homers.

Bruce — Bill Kinsel, Bruce's 17 year old candidate for a big league pitching job, moved a step nearer his goal here Sunday as he fast-balled his home town Sluggers to a 7 to 1 decision over the Monarchs, a colored nine out of Decatur. About 200 appreciative customers were in the stands.

Lofty Williams' fantastic speedball kept the Africans cowering away from the plate and made it easy for his mates to gain revenge against the only team that has defeated them this season. He gave up only three widely scattered singles and slapped down 13 on strikes.

Kinsel's was a timely performance as the Bruce contingent was far from the foot-loose gang which raced around the circuits here the previous Sunday. And the reason for their letup came in the tall stringer form of Sam Chapell. As a hurler Sammy practices that dark art of throwing screwballs, a delivery mastered and made famous by a certain Carl Owen Hubbell and one Guy Bush.

Exit Chapell For seven and one third innings Chapell was a worthwhile disciple, holding the hosts to but five hits. Then Earl Appett, the Shumway catcher, whacked out a long round-

Drouth Affects Cheese Factory

L. Langford manager of the local Armour Cheese Factory declares that the dry weather and failing pastures have cut their milk receipts about 10 per cent the past two weeks.

The Sullivan plant and the plant at Flora which is also managed by Mr. Langford, has been affected about the same.

The Sullivan creamery opened April 15 with milk receipts of 15,000 pounds daily from 250 patrons. This business has been built up to 29,000 pounds of milk daily from 475 patrons. At the peak of production in May and June as much as 32,000 pounds of milk came in daily.

Fifteen trucks bring the milk from a 20-mile radius. The trucks go as far north as Bement, south to Strasburg, east to Hindsboro and west to Dalton City. Fifteen men are employed in the plant. The cheese output at present is being made especially for the eastern trade and goes to New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore.

At the Flora plant receipts are somewhat larger running around 37,000 pounds of milk daily while the peak production was 44,000 pounds.

Hunting Democracy's Weak Spots.

"You were double-crossed. The machine did you dirt. You did not get a fair and square deal."

"You oughta had a job. You've been a good party worker. Lotsa fellows have good jobs that never done nothing for the party. Are yuh gonna stand for that, huh?"

Excuse the lingo, but it conforms better to the subject we have in mind — party politics.

Some years ago we Democrats would enter a campaign by handing out this stuff to disgruntled Republicans. We did this in the hope that it would bring them into the polls to vote for Democratic candidates. Today the situation is reversed. Republicans are using this line of gabble.

In the first place, they are working on every Democrat who was unsuccessful in last April's primary. They would have it appear that there was vote swapping and trading and similar devilishness. They tell of dark and sinister meetings where some candidate got "done dirt."

Practically all of this emanates from our Republican friends. They are making some of it stick too though there may not be a vestige of truth in it.

If you'd want to start "swapping" or "trading" votes in Moultrie how would you go about it? You could not approach a half dozen voters before the cat would be out of the bag and the story of double-crossing heralded all over the county. That sort of stuff may be pulled in big cities, but Moultrie county voters are too intelligent to permit of such tactics.

Here is the lowdown on the primary. It was true in my case of all other candidates, no matter where located or what offices they aspired for. They lost through only one reason and one only — they failed to get enough votes.

Now about the disappointed job-seekers: Some have a just grievance, some have not. We have strenuously protested against the state administration "playing horse" with our Republican friends and ignoring deserving Democrats. This gives the impression that there are not enough well-qualified and efficient Democrats in the state to manage its affairs.

Naturally, not all aspirants for jobs could be accommodated. There were too many applicants and not enough jobs. The same held true under former Republican administrations. No matter what party may be in power, there will always be dissatisfied job-seekers.

If the dissatisfied ones leave the Democratic party and vote with the Republicans, how will they benefit themselves? The Republicans will give them nothing. They take care of their own. They can do better by staying within their within.

Our Republican friends are making a strong drive to win Democrats in the fall election. Their present tactics are the assault on the weak places in the ranks—defeated primary candidates and disappointed job seekers. They have temporarily at least, laid truth aside and are forging ahead under the old slogan that "All is fair in war."

Keeping Them Interested In Home.

Folks from California were visiting Moultrie relatives. Some matter of interest was discussed; said they, "We know about this. We read it in The Progress."

Such cases are not isolated. A farmer told us a few years ago that when his father came from Texas where he had lived a few years he knew many things about Moultrie county and his neighbors that the local man had overlooked or forgotten. "You see", said the man, "Father read his Progress very carefully every week."

We do not cite these instances to prove any excellence insofar as The Progress is concerned, but rather to show how desirable it is to keep the home-ties refreshed from week to week as a copy of the home-town paper goes into home of those who are away.

In that way they retain their interest in their home folks, in the neighbors and in their childhood friends. The paper is more than a "letter from home" for it contains a wider and more comprehensive outline of interesting happenings.

The Progress now goes to people in 37 states, who have home-ties here. But there are many more who would be delighted to hear from home each week via The Progress.

A year's subscription is a nice present. It reaches the folks in 52 new, weekly installments. Let us aid in keeping those who are away interested in our community and ourselves.

Sullivan's Traffic Problem.

We have written about Sullivan's dirt streets and their need of oiling. Of little avail! Somebody told the city council there'd be an injunction if plans were made to use available funds for that purpose. It takes so little to scare some people!

There is another street problem in Sullivan. It is the widening of uptown streets to accommodate an ever-increasing auto traffic. On band concert nights and Saturdays the uptown streets are badly crowded. All goes well, but should there be an uptown fire during these heavy traffic hours, it would be just too bad.

There is plenty of space available for widening these uptown streets. That space is now wasted. There has been much talk about the widening, but talk, without further action, widens no streets.

There is a wide concrete walk around the court house lawn. Very few people use it. Engineers figure that this walk could be lowered to street level at small cost for material. There was some suggestion that the government might furnish the labor. There this plan also seems to have gone to sleep.

It is to the interest of the merchants to push this street widening need. They will profit thereby. Their customers will find it a great convenience.

If all uptown streets were widened about twelve feet, within a radius of two blocks of the square, Sullivan would have a wonderful uptown, able to accommodate many more cars and considerably more traffic.

Why not abandon a do-nothing policy and really do something to permanently improve this old town.

Editorial Shorts

The editor and his wife are away this week. They went north, planning to spend a vacation — the first in three years — somewhere in the northern lakes region.

They have promised to come home with some new plans, new ideas. Getting away from business, furnishes a good way to get a good look at it. Laying aside the cares and the task of editing, selling advertising and doing the hundreds and one things that enter into a newspaper man's life, must be quite a relief.

We, the force, are getting out this week's paper — though we'll admit the boss did do some advance work on it.

The thing that worries the average man and his family is not taxes; it is not the pending mortgage foreclosure; it is not want for the things they really need. The worry is all nicely summed up in the phrase "Keeping up with the Joneses". That's where the rub comes in. If the mythical "Joneses" must do without things, you do not want them. The "Joneses" are the climbers in your set. They try to live a little better than they can afford; they drive a better car; they wear better clothes; they entertain more — and Oh, the bitter agony of the struggle to "keep up" with them. Man's wants are but few, but this matter of "putting on the dog" — that's where the grief originates. Mankind still has a lot of the spirit of his monkey ancestors — monkey sees, monkey does!

While we are not advocates of public nudity, yet we suppose that main objections to unclothing the human race comes from the cotton growers, the wool growers and the makers of wearing apparel. Also, some folks are afraid that nudity might become the general style — and how embarrassing it would be to show their shapeless forms in public, unsupported by "foundation garments." We know of good people who'd look like up-ended featherbeds out for a stroll. Do not worry; nudity will not become general in this generation.

Any Democratic candidate who overlooks the possibility of defeat next fall, is foolish. Some will be beaten. Some deserve to be. All virtue is not Democratic nor is all wickedness Republican. Conditions are reversed this year: the Republicans will attack the administration and the Democrats will point with pride.

The height of something or other is the action of rich society women in posing for cigarette advertising. Men have been smoking cigarettes for a long time, why not let them do the posing and let the women permit use of their beautiful faces (for a price) to advertise certain articles very personal and intimately feminine? That would be real advertising. When women started smoking, something delightfully feminine passed out. Why do the dears stick so close to cigarettes, why not branch out into the cigar and pipe line? We expect to live to see the day when women will pose for their picture with a husky quid in their cheeks and will tell of the wonderful qualities of "chawin'" tobacco. Wotta world! But as long as the men do all these things, why deny the pleasure to the sweeter sex?

PROTECTION AGAINST RAIN

Chicago — Extraordinary precautions to protect the visiting public against rainy weather were announced July 10 by the general manager of A Century of Progress. He outlined detailed plans to become effective immediately, that will make it possible for anyone to visit or go home from the Fair in a driving rainstorm and not get a drop of water on him.

An elaborate chain of canopies is now under construction at a cost of several thousands of dollars, which will provide adequate cover for huge crowds at all points on the grounds. Service is being provided so that outside buses and taxis can deposit their passengers under canopies which will extend from the taxi and bus stations through the gates and into bus stations within the Fair grounds.

Mrs. Jones—"I understand that you got your divorce, Sally. Did you get any alimony from your husband?"

Laundress—"No, but he gave me a first class reference."

Sunday School Lesson

by Rev. Charles E. Dunn

Elijah Hears God's Voice Lesson for July 22nd. 1 Kings 19: 9-21.

Golden Text: 1 Samuel 3:9.

Our lesson tells of Elijah's recovery from despondency. First an angel commanded, "Arise, and eat." The worn out body of Elijah needed the refreshment of food. A square meal is a first rate means of banishing gloom. His appetite appeased, the prophet, like Moses, spent forty days and nights in solitary communion with God.

Then the Lord asked a searching question, "What doest thou here, Elijah?" There was important work for the prophet to accomplish. A discouraged man usually needs not less work but more. The prodigal son, in his degradation doubtless heard a query much like that hurled at Elijah. And he answered by going back to his old home, and getting to work. John Bright, famous English statesman, heard a similar inquiry as he mourned the loss of his beautiful young wife. It came to him in the appeal of Richard Cobden who urged him to give his life to the repeal of the unjust corn laws.

And now the divine voice spoke a third time. "Go forth," it said, "and stand upon the mount." How important it is to ascend to an elevation where one may see the broad horizons of God's providence! It was from a mountain that Moses looked into the Promised Land.

And when Elijah had ascended, an altogether extraordinary spectacle met his gaze. Magnificent displays of physical power greeted his astonished eyes. But God, much to the prophet's surprise, was not in the wind, or the earthquake, or the fire. He spoke, instead in a still small voice. And so Elijah learned that the Lord can speak softly, as well as loudly, peacefully, as well as in the storm.

Do we hear the dulcet tones of the divine appeal? Do we allow the Lord to enter the citadel of our affections on a wave of stillness? Listen to a great verse spoken by the psalmist, "Thy gentleness hath made me great."

The Old Stile-Block

H. S. Butler

Out in front of our house There is an old stile-block, It's made of solid concrete 'Tis hard as any rock.

It has the ring on top of it To tie the hitch-rein to, Many horses were tied there 'Way back when it was new

But still we keep the old stile-block It's used a different way, For many children that pass by Upon this stile-block play.

Sometimes, a passerby will pause And sit down on this block, It seems to be a resting place This piece of man-made rock.

Baby buggies often stop Near unto this big block And babe and mother both have fun Somehow, on this old rock.

So while the people use it While children on it play, I think we'll keep the stile-block Just were it is, 'twill stay.

Drought Relief To Illinois Farmers

In his report to Gov. Henry Horner, J. H. Lloyd, Drought Relief Administrator, shows that more than a half million dollars in drought relief already has been distributed throughout Illinois. This money is used in furnishing soy beans, cow peas, and other farm seeds and livestock feeds to needy farmers. In addition to the grants, loans are also being made to the farmers. Through the efficiency of Administrator Lloyd and his staff, in cooperation with the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission, twenty-four hour service is being given to applications for loans. More than half of this money, $286,743.50 was invested in soy bean seed. This was done because of the fact that the soy bean is the best prospect for an emergency hay crop. The twenty-four hour service means that for all approval applications received one day, warrants are mailed out to the counties the next day.

AN EDITOR'S ENEMIES

Good, honest men seldom ever get angry with an editor. They generally know that most editors care very little about money except just enough to keep a decent home. They know that editors are mostly of that particular type of damfool known as idealists, who want to see everybody treated fairly. The printer uses a pica rule, the editor the golden rule. They are hard-boiled at times but underneath as soft as a kitten.

They trample on people's toes sometimes—not just to hear them squeal—but because they have an honest conviction that those people are wrong. They seldom let personal feelings prompt an attack. The longer they stay with it, the more the editor's personal feelings are submerged and the public spirit arises.

The true journalist doesn't care much if he ruins a good customer if he feels that he has done something for the public. The common man is always his friend. Editors hate upity people who try to make a big show of themselves and snub ordinary people. They see life as it is, and as they would have it.

They get cussed more than a dozen other people and seldom give a darn. Persecution and criticism they have at every turn but they get accustomed to it.

As a rule they smoke, drink moderately, cuss mildly, like a fight, love good neighbors even if they are mill hands, hate sham and hypocrisy, have the fundamental principle of religion, defend honest men, despise indolence and pity ignorance.

There's always some half-wit politician sore at them but by the grace of the Good Lord, it seldom hurts them. Good men understand and believe in them. Only the two by fours ever get sore with them. —C. Spurgeon Dun in the Missouri Press News.

"Beg your pardon, but what is your name sir," asked Eddie the hotel clerk.

"Name" said the indignant guest, who had just signed the register, "don't you see my signature there?"

"Of course," answered Eddie, "That's what aroused my curiosity."—Adapted.

"Did you enjoy the show?" somebody asked Bill Courtright. "I sure did" said Bill, "It was the best show I ever slept through."

You can doubtless hear some "tall" chinchbug stories at this year's family reunions.

Miscellaneous Bouquet

I fell in love with little Rose Violet Narcissus. Had Ast-er to be my bride, and was kissing her Tur-lips, when old man Narcissus German Iris, spied us. He came like a Snap-Dragon grabbed a Butter-cup and hit me on the Verbenia, then he kicked me on the Pan-sies. I landed on the other side of the honeysuckle vine in a bunch of Larkspur. He said, "Begon-ia Poison-ivy and for get me not. My Verbenia looked like I was wearing a Cocks-comb and I felt like a Ragged Robin.

Little Rose came to me Wisteria, I told her I wasn't hurt much. She said, "don't Li-lac that." My bleeding-heart yearned for her all the more.

We left in my Car-nation at Four-o'clock, while Blue-bells rang and Cat-tails waved farewell in the Golden-glow of the Sun-flower, as they sang Daisies won't tell.

We were wedded in the morning-glow while the Dew-drops were still on the Star-flowers. We were presented with a Dan-de-lion as a wedding gift from Black-eyed Susan.

We dwelt in a Rose covered cottage at the foot of the mountain. My Sweetheart Rose kept the Batchelor-buttons sewed on my Dutchman's breeches with a Spanish needle, and served Lambs Tongue stew stirred with a Golden rod and sweet Sage tea.

We spent many happy hours in the Snow on the Mountain playing Snow-ball. Poppy Narcissus kept Mum, but never forgave us, but Rose said, "she would always love her Sweet-William, so we lived happily ever after." —A.L.V.

What is there about men's arms that cause them to hide them during the hot summer weather when the women expose theirs so liberally, coolly and freely? Are men more modest than women, or more foolish?

Do you former country boys remember the picnics of days long gone by? I do. There used to be one or two big picnics a year in my young life. We boys would save up spending money so as to have about four-bits or six-bits when the great events came along.

Working all week in the field, such a day was hailed as a day of relaxation and pleasure. Field attire consisted of overalls, shirt and shoes. On picnic days, no matter how hot it may have been, you put on underwear, often the "longie" type. Then you put on a starched shirt front was celluloid, and the shirt front was celluloid, and happy was the lad who could also sport a nifty celluloid tie.

The patent leather Sunday shoes were tight fitting and rubber garters tortured the limbs to keep up the socks. You usually had a few pins for use in case of emergency. A derby or straw hat topped off this picnic ensemble and a blue serge winter coat, the sleeves of which were usually a few inches too short, added dignity.

So equipped I was all ready to do my self justice at the picnic. The spending money had all been carefully apportioned beforehand — so much for pop, so much for ice cream, so much for the doll-rack, so much for cane ringing and a little extra for unforeseen contingencies. It was always advisable to steer clear from boys who's expect you to treat.

Those were the days! Hot dog and crackerjack! Then as man's estate dawned upon us, picnic finance required more careful consideration. Girls figured in it too and there was the admission of 50c to the ballroom floor.

Youth will be served. I know that I did (and so did you) get a greater kick out of these few isolated picnics than the average youth of today would get in a week at the world's fair or an airplane ride from New York to San Francisco. The matter of enjoyment is more or less a matter of mind. Make up your mind to be happy and no matter what the handicaps may be, you'll be happy or die in the attempt.

Turn backward, turn backward. Oh time in your flight and take me to a Turnverien or Saengerbund picnic once more for tonight!

Customer—"Have you any good pork?"

Walter—"Good pork? I've got some pork that will make better chicken salad than any real you can buy."—Adapted.

INSURANCE AGENTS HELD MEETING JULY 16
General agents of Country Life Insurance Co., representing Moultrie, Shelby, Clarke, Macon, Champaign, Piatt and Douglas Counties met at the Methodist church in Monticello on July 16th to discuss their problems and successes and also to hear Larry A. Williams, their manager General Agent Arthur V. Bryant with Mrs. Bryant, Willard Brown, and Farm Adviser J. L. Stormont were in attendance from this county. The general agents meet each month in one or other of the counties mentioned. They are planning a picnic in connection with their next meeting which will be held at Forrest park in Shelbyville August 20th. Harry Bonser of Shelby county will be the entertaining General Agent.

SOYBEAN GROWERS MEET JULY 17TH
A group of interested soy bean growers met at the Orlando hotel in Decatur July 17 to discuss plans for marketing the 1934 crop. Those attending from Moultrie were John G. Albright, J. W. Rauch, J. E. Righter, C. B. Shuman and J. L. Stormont.

F. B. BASE BALL TEAM
This year for the first time Moultrie County Farm Bureau has sponsored a Base Ball team. Games are being scheduled between Moultrie County and neighboring county Farm Bureaus. Last Saturday our local boys played Shelby county at Shelbyville. The Shelby team won by a wide margin. This coming Saturday, July 21, Moultrie county plays Coles at Charleston. Grant and Sentel composed the battery in last week's game.

4-H LEADERS MEETING
Arrangements have been made for a meeting of County 4-H club leaders on the evening of July 23 at the Farm Bureau office at 7:30. Mr. Randall, Assistant Club leader from the College of Agriculture University of Illinois will be present. Plans are being made to complete arrangements for the annual club show.

WHEAT PRODUCTION
Wheat producers of Moultrie County are being notified that on July 24th at 1:30 o'clock at the Farm Bureau office in Sullivan, there will be a meeting of the wheat producers of this county for the purpose of electing a representative of the Community to serve as a member of the Board of Directors of the Wheat Control Association of Moultrie, Coles, Douglas counties and as chairman of the Community Committee. Proceedings will be conducted in accordance with the rules and regulations of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. United States Dept. of Agriculture. Only those producers who have entered into wheat allotment contracts shall have the right to vote.

CORN, SORGHUM MAY BE GROWN ON AAA ACRES
Threat of a forage shortage for Moultrie county live-stock was lessened somewhat today with the announcement that all AAA corn and wheat contracted acres may now be used for the production of corn and grain sorghums for forage purposes. This involves approximately 15,000 acres of land in this county which has been retired from normal corn and wheat production by the 1060 Moultrie county AAA contract signers cooperating in the government's adjustment program.

Word of this latest AAA ruling received by Farm Adviser J. L. Stormont from the extension service of the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois, points out that this modification refers to corn and sorghum grown for forage purposes only. It was issued to offset the danger of a livestock feed shortage as a result of the drought and does not mean any relaxation of the fundamental purposes of the AAA program to adjust the production of the two basic surplus commodities—corn and wheat. No grain can be harvested from the crops grown on these contracted acres, and any attempt to do so will be considered a violation of the contract.

Originally, AAA regulations stipulated that the contracted acres could be used only for the planting of additional permanent pasture; for soil-improving and erosion preventing crops not to be harvested; for resting or fallowing land; for weed eradication, or for planting farm wood lots. When the spring drought made it apparent that there might be a shortage of forage crops, the rulings were modified to permit the growing of crops on the contracted acres for forage purposes, with the exception of corn and grain sorghums. Now this exception has been removed by this most recent modification.

No Man-Made Device Starts Or Stops Rain

Many suggestions for stopping the severe drought of 1934 have come in to the United States Weather Bureau the past few weeks. Just as many are received for stopping floods in times of excessive rainfall. In fact, a single cause, for example, the wide use of radio, is often advanced for both drought and flood. No device yet developed by man is of any practical value in starting or stopping rain, according to Dr. W. J. Humphreys of the Weather Bureau.

Nature's method of making rain Dr. Humphreys explains, is first to get an abundance of water into the atmosphere by evaporation from water surfaces, ice surfaces, growing vegetation, and damp soil and then to squeeze it out by lowering the temperature.

How Rain Forms
Ordinarily there is enough moisture in the air to provide at least a moderate rainfall whenever the machinery for its condensation in to raindrops is working right. This machinery calls for the proper distribution and movement of air masses differing in temperature and density. In other words, when a normal movement of atmospheric "highs" and "lows" is interrupted and a relatively stagnant atmospheric condition is established and persists for a long time, drought develops, notwithstanding the fact that there may be enough moisture in the air to produce rain.

Obviously, Dr. Humphreys points out, radio, which neither hastens nor retards evaporation and does not cool the air or in any way promote condensation of the moisture in the air, cannot be a factor in promoting or hindering rainfall.

Electrical devices, sprinkling the clouds with dry ice, starting large fires and setting of loud explosions among the other rain-making schemes suggested, either do not work or cost too much for practical use.

All of the electrical schemes investigated by the Weather Bureau Dr. Humphreys says, are utterly useless.

Sending cooling substances up into the clouds to cause rain, he adds, is about a century old. Even liquid air has been tried. This plan however is wrong in principle, and no rain has ever resulted from such practices.

The use of fire to produce rain was strongly advocated 80 or 90 years ago and this suggestion continues to bob up from time to time. This method, Dr. Humphreys says, is correct in principle, but the cost of a fire big enough to break a drought would be prohibitive.

STORM DAMAGE AT JACKSONVILLE HOSPITAL

Damage to the state hospital at Jacksonville, caused by the recent tornado is estimated at $50,000 by A. L. Bowen, director of the State Department of Public Welfare. Repairs will be made at once. Although the state hospital, comprising thirty buildings, bore the brunt of the wind and hail storm which struck the city, none of the 3,300 patients or members of the staff sustained any injuries. An irreplaceable loss was the complete destruction of the 100-acre park at the hospital. Virtually every tree on the grounds was blown down or split apart by the fury of the storm. Other main losses included destruction of the entire damage to the dairy barns. Sections of metal roofing from approximately twelve other buildings were stripped and hurled a block away by the wind. Several of the rooms in the main building which houses 1,000 patients, were flooded.

1935 LICENSE PLATES PEARL GRAY AND BLUE

Preparing for manufacture of 1935 Illinois auto license plates the state Department of Purchases and Supplies has issued a call for bids on 500 tons of steel and 6000 gallons of paints. Bids are receivable until July 20, when they will be opened at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, according to M. S. Bibb, state purchasing agent, who said that approximately $42,000 will be expended to buy the materials. Fabrication of the plates is scheduled to start early in September at Statesville prison. The 1935 licenses will have a background of pearl gray with ultra-marine blue numerals and letters.

REMOVAL OF PRODUCTS FROM TAXABLE LIST

Removal of certain products from the taxable list under the Illinois motor fuel law has been announced by K. L. Ames, Jr., director of finance, in a revision of a previously issued regulation defining materials subject to gasoline tax. The revision excludes denatured wood and ethyl alcohol, ether, turpentine, acetates and products containing such ingredients, unless they are sold for use as motor fuel or have been blended with other liquids for this purpose.

4-H CLUB NEWS

Hard luck was all in the day's work for Ralph Herber, a Lawrence County, South Dakota, club member. He took it as it came and made the most of it. It gave him many a hard jolt, but he always managed to come up smiling and hopeful.

Ralph started his club work with a pig, like many boys. He cared for it the very best he knew how and showed it at the county fair. He did not do so badly in this first show as he won seventh place in quite a large class of pigs. The next year he repeated the project and improved his winnings at the county fair, being awarded third place. That was doing well enough as the boy was still young. Then the third year he repeated the pig project and won second at the county fair. The pig made the best gain of the three he had fed.

Then the boy decided to branch out in his fourth year and he took on a baby beef in addition to his pig project. For months he gave his charges the best care he knew how and dreamed of the day when he would lead them into the arena. At the county fair he won fairly well on both pigs and steer, but when he took them to the state fair the baby beef wasn't even in the money. It was quite a blow but softened by the placings of his pigs.

The lad started his new livestock projects the following season with high hopes. After no more than average trouble with his animals, he had them finished for the county fair achievement day show and won well enough, but not enough to win the trip to the state fair he had hoped for. It went to another boy, but Ralph took it like a good sport that he was. Then it was discovered that the boy who qualified was too young and eventually, it went to Ralph. The livestock was shipped via truck and plenty of trouble was met with enroute, but it landed in time to show and at last Ralph won a first place with his entries. That was a bright day, and he forgot all his bad breaks of the years before.

HONEYBEE AS WILD AS EVER SAYS AG DEPT.

The honeybee is often spoken of as domesticated, but this is far from true. Although men and bees have been closely associated since the dawn of history, the honeybee is apparently as wild today as it was centuries ago.

Other wild animals have yielded to man's influence and, many of them are now as dependent upon man as man is upon them; but the bees in apiaries are as wild as their cousins in dense forests.

Bees taken from a bee tree and placed in a modern hive are as much at home there as though they were descended from generations of hive-raised bees. On the other hand, a swarm that has left a modern apiary and settled in a hollow tree fares as well in its new environment as did any of its ancestors in cave or forest. Bees are no more domesticated than are the bats in the barn or attic.

No Worldly Experience
Bee specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture explain this unchanging trait in bees by stating that the queen and the drone that mates with her—the only bees having the power of reproduction—have no contact with the outside world and therefore have no new experiences to pass along to their offspring. The worker bees, who are constantly subject to new conditions, have no offspring and no opportunity to pass on to future generations the benefits of their experiences.

A Bee's Love Life
Man has been able to control the mating of most plants and animals, but with bees this is impossible because the queen mates only on the wing, while high in the air. Attempts to control mating by confining queens and drones in hives or even in large greenhouses have failed.

In recent years bee specialists in the Department of Agriculture have been able to impregnate queen bees by the use of delicate instruments. It is expected that by this method or artificial insemination changes can be brought about in honeybees that will render them still more useful to man. Although bees have not been tamed, the modern beekeeper has adapted their activity to human needs by placing their hives where honey plants abound.

CANNING PROJECT BY MOULTRIE RELIEF COM.

Livingston project has already been approved and it is expected that the play ground supervisor will soon be selected. These projects were submitted at the request of mothers and other interested persons who feel that the parks would be much more useful for the children of the communities if there was some responsible person present during the day to have general supervision over play activities of the children. It is hoped that the adults will also participate in some of the activities.

Frank C. Newbould, chairman of the Moultrie County Emergency Relief committee has announced that the request for relief funds in Moultrie county for July was cut twenty per cent. There has been an unexpected and, in the opinion of the committee and workers, an unnecessary increase in the number of persons applying for relief during the past two months. The funds available are not adequate for this number, and it is believed that many of the persons applying are not so badly in need as they try to make it appear. From time to time it is discovered, that employment is not being fully reported, and the earnings are not spent for real necessities as planned with the worker. For this reason, all clients are receiving a letter telling them that if they are in need, they must re-apply at the relief office, and that many of them should now be able to get along with the help of their gardens and occasional labor.

Work relief, which has been paid in grocery orders only except for a small amount of special temporary drought work relief some time ago, is being practically discontinued during the entire season for need of farm labor, because relief activities are not intended to interfere with local labor conditions. Clients who re-apply are being told that they must submit a new sworn affidavit giving details regarding their circumstances, it must be in their own handwriting, and it must be checked by the case worker for accuracy before being notarized. All able bodied members of families applying for relief must be registered at the National Reemployment Service office, and must be willing to work when work is available in order to be eligible for unemployment relief. All cases will be interviewed by appointment in considerable detail regarding their circumstances, and the home, and references will be visited before more assistance can be given. This will not be a hardship, as federal surplus flour was recently distributed to all relief families, and during the past week smoked pork, canned roast beef, and potatoes are being distributed. In addition to these, most of the families have considerable garden produce now available from community or home gardens.

Eight Mistakes Cut Production Of Pullets

Urbana, July 20 — Eight common errors are largely responsible for the wormy, runty, non-laying pullets found among Illinois' 26 million farm chickens along about October of each year, says H. H. Alp, poultry extension specialist at the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.

During the summer months many farmers are not "egg conscious" and consequently neglect the care of the birds when they may need it the most. As a result of this neglect, the pullets are so stunted that they fail to produce the number of eggs that might ordinarily be expected of them. Pills and worm capsules administered as cure-alls seldom give satisfactory results in these cases, and the poultryman finds that efforts to remedy the mistakes are expensive, difficult and generally disappointing. Among the common mistakes listed by Alp are: Empty feeders, empty water troughs, dirty brooder houses without roosts, lice and mites in the brooder house, old contaminated range, outdoor feeders seldom moved, no clean shade provided and sick birds allowed to remain in the flock.

Probably the greatest error in Poultry management, as far as feeding is concerned, is failure to use the type of feeder most satisfactory for range conditions and growing pullets. The outdoor feeder should be larger than that used in the brooder house and so constructed that it will not only prevent waste and contamination of the feed, but will also keep the contents dry. For each brooder house there should be at least two good-sized feeders. Many poultrymen use one for the grain and the other for the mash. Failure to move the feed hoppers is also a common error. Unless the feeder is placed on a wire platform, the ground around it will soon become badly contaminated with poultry manure, and the chances of chickens picking up disease and parasites are increased greatly.

Like the feed, the water should be protected from contamination. Cleanliness around the drinking trough is extremely important. A good plan is to place the trough on a low, wire platform so that the birds can not scratch in the mud caused by spilled water. Furthermore, the troughs should be filled often and regularly so that there is always plenty of water for the birds at all times.

Indees Maul Rozenes, 12-0 In Wild Tilt

Your old cage favorite, Dale Rozene, and his half-speed ball, essayed another comeback here on Sunday afternoon which resulted in failure for both parties.

From the two-touchdown margin it will be noted that the extra kick was missed in both instances, but from the looks of my scorekeeper's book, the Rozenes didn't miss kicking anything which may have come their way in the field.

Elder a Bright Spot The Indees however held up their half of the performance, committing but two misplays, and showing in Dale (Bear) Elder a twirler whose ability is forever on the upswing.

And sparkling Frank Schack continued to glow at first, once getting back to the sack for an unassisted double play. Shortstop Drum from Hillsboro headed the offenses with singles on his last three appearances at bat.

Just to give you an idea of how the scoring was conducted, let's take a peek at the first. Shack, first up, lived on an infield faux pas and immediately set out for second. The catcher's throw sailed over the second baseman's head so Frank romped on to third.

Table with columns: Indees, Rozenes, AB, R, H. Lists players like Shack, Drum, Poland, Grote, Blue, Morrison, McDavid, Davis, Elder for both teams and their statistics.

Umpires—Slacker and Elder.

tripper which disturbed Sam's placidity. When the next hitter survived on an error, Mr. Chapel was in the throes of what Mr. Alexander Woolcott might call a fit of ugly passion and walked himself right off the mound.

J. Smith — we forgot to ask if his surname was James or Jasper — was brought in from rightfield, and he retired the side only after being punctured with three singles.

Neither team seemed to be wearing its slugging livery. Carter Stonecipher was the only athlete to collect more than one hit. He wasted a single in the third and then cracked another one baser in the ninth to drive in a superfluous run.

Blue Delivers! But the hitting palm will have to be turned over to Monte Blue. Last week we referred to the improvise Johnson, the plate umpire Monte" in view of his customary respect for the opposing pitcher. Monte pronounced it a poor application in the fourth, when he singled to drive in two runs.

Kinsel struck out at least one man in every inning except the eighth. He was off to a good start, retiring the first three men to face him in the first. Dennis walked with one down in the Bruce half, but was engulfed in a double play.

With one gone in the visitor's second Mathews scratched a hit off Kinsel's glove, but nothing came of it. Bruce succeeded in getting a runner to third in their half of the frame when Evans singled.

Monte Blue then supplied the final out by lining a torrid smash straight into the hands of the third baseman. Johnson Injured his chokes.

Evans caught one of Chapel's fast ones flush on his diaphragm in the third and was soon forced to relinquish center scoring Stonecipher.

The Monarch's inner defense crumbled in the fourth, when three errors helped Bruce off to a 3 to 0 lead. T. Abbott was safe on Mathews' fumble. D. Abbott doubled.

Brother Tanner halting at third. Evan's ground ball dipped under the second baseman's glove. T. Abbott scoring. Evans stole second and then both he and D. Abbott rode home on Blue's wallop to left.

Misenheimer survived on the shortstop's bobble. Chapel tossed out Kinsel, walked Stonecipher, and then Dennis stood poised watching his last two strikes curve over the pan.

Starks singled to right in the fifth only to see Kinsel go on to strike out the side. Another strike-out in the sixth turned back the dark-complexioned gentlemen after they had loaded the bases and tallied one, all after two were gone.

T. Smith started it with a hopper to deep short which Abbott scooped up, but there was no time for a play at first. Mathews followed with a ground ball between Dennis' legs, Smith moving to second.

Evans dropped Murray's high fly after a brief debate between himself and D. Abbott to determine who should make the catch. T. Smith came in on the play. Kinsel then relieved the situation by whiffing J. Smith.

Abbott Doubles Bruce accepted another unearned run in the seventh. After fanning Kinsel, Chapel passed Stonecipher. Dennis rapped to the third baseman and was out at first. Dutch Abbott thumped a double to center scoring Stonecipher.

The Sluggers added three more runs to their total in their final effort in the eighth. With one gone Appelt hammered a home run out along the left field foul line, and being slow afoot was barely able to arrive home ahead of the ball.

Blue lived on an error by T. Smith at short after which Mr. Chapel went off in a huff. Misenheimer welcomed his successor, J. Smith, with a single which got past the right fielder.

Blue scoring and Misenheimer pulling up at third. Mathews threw out Kinsel, but Stonecipher spanked another single scoring Misey. Dennis dropped a Texas leaguer to center and the inning closed with T. Abbott going out, shortstop to first.

Melvin Stricklan "The Poor Man's Mechanic" One Block west of Square on Jefferson street

The manager or a theatre is a town's showman. A newspaper man is his main contact with the public. It would be difficult to run a theatre in a town where there was no live newspaper.

Being a retailer as well as a showman, the theatre manager must "sense" what his patrons want. When he does this, his patronage will grow.

Sullivan has that kind of a showman. Mr. Hays grew up in the show business. He has been right down in Hollywood where pictures grow on the Hollywood trees. He is personally acquainted with many of the picture folks.

That makes him a good judge of pictures. His long contact with the theatre-going public makes him a good judge of what pictures the public wants.

The picture-going public is not a sensational, sex-viewing throng. It seeks entertainment. It is pretty decent. Bare skin and white meat is to them incidental.

If the blamed fools want to expose themselves for a price — shall the picture fan stop off at the box office and give the manager a bawling out? Hardly, for you know under some sort of "block" booking arrangement the showman is often forced to take pictures he really does not want.

The show-going public is rather fickle, at that. It does not seem to care how often or promiscuously its favorites marry — it does not object to lack of clothing — but let some fellow go too far, and it crucifies him. Do you remember Fatty Arbuckle. Fatty was involved in the death of a girl. That was rotten. It was not however this that drove Fatty out of pictures. Fatty was accused of being mean and onery to his parents.

That the people will not stand for. They want their villains to be loving and tender hearted to the grey-headed mother, no matter how vicious they may be otherwise.

Right now the public is after Mae West. They seem bent on driving her out of pictures. Mae was a great drawing card for a time, but all the reformers are after her now. The producer who put out a Mae West picture may be ruined or he may make a mint of money.

When this is written — we have not seen advance sheets on next week's shows. We expect they'll be good. We hope that Manager Hays will not be compelled by the booking companies to show any of the prescribed films which the reformers say are bad. There is plenty of really good stuff. But Mr. Hays does not want to let the impression go out that he is running a goody-goody sort of place or the young people will give the theatre the go-by and road houses and night clubs will be booming.

You know this question of morals and behaviour is a peculiar thing. The old folks are always afraid of what the young people may do — because they remember the things which they did when they were young people.

We have read somewhere that in foreign lands they have some peculiar ideas as to what sort of people we Americans are. The most popular American films are the wild west kind. You'll find some humble people in Scotland who when they go to a show once a year see a Buck Jones wild west production. After enjoying it to the limit they'll go home and tell the family and all the relatives: "Hoot mon, and to think that Archie McCorvie and his familie can live in such a wild, hathen land."

Seeing is believing and millions of foreigners think that America is a land of wild horses, two-gun men, lost gold mines, heroines, villains, rocks and deserts over which roam unnumbered wild cattle. Or, if they happen to see a Mae West production, they'll pity the poor

American girls because they have so little to wear.

In Germany, where murdering the fellows who do not agree with you politically is a pastime of Hitler's henchmen, they would not permit the showing of Johnny Weissmueller's Tarzan because it was too brutal and Maureen O'Sullivan was minus a bathing suit in some of her graceful diving.

So pictures are like morals—more or less a matter of geography than of opinion. This is written as advance copy—we don't know what shows appear next week. See Col. Hays' adv. on page 8.

You may not agree with everything we've written this week. That's all right. We don't expect you to.

FINAL INSTALLMENT

Roddy ran down through the Morgan grounds, into the river meadow. Then he stood still a moment, thinking, his clenched hand in his chin. He remembered Major Lomax. Lomax! He started. The major was the man! He loved Nancy. He had always petted Nancy.

max, "he's got Haddon!" As he spoke, the banker came down the steps. "See here, Lomax," he said in an aside, "can't we fix this up? It's— it's deplorable! It's our duty as seconds, can't we stop that young firebrand?"

"I've got to see you, major, at once—alone!" he panted. The major closed the door deliberately. "Come in here. There's no one about — Angie's gone to bed."

The major set his black box on the sun-dial. "I reckon you've heard of the scandal?" he said in an undertone.

"Sit down, Rod. What's wrong? Out with it!"—he smiled grimly—"honest confession's good for the soul."

Haddon started violently. "My God! Is it that?"

"I haven't come to confess anything," said Roddy, with a dry throat, "I've come to ask you to do me a favor, the greatest favor! To be my second; I've challenged Richard Morgan to fight me tonight—out on his own lawn—to the death."

Roddy was stripping off his coat and waistcoat; his hands were firm now. The moonlight caught the red in his hair and showed it, clipped close from the nape of his neck. Richard watching him silently, was straighter and taller and stronger. The boy was right he ought to be shot—he would fire in the air.

"What?" "Morgan has insulted my sister with a secret marriage, he's dragged her name in the dirt, and I've challenged him to fight—now to-night!"

Roddy came down the steps; challenged and challenger took their weapons. Richard walked to his place and the moonlight shone full on him, a big man, big in body and soul. He had not uttered a word. Both Lomax and Haddon objected.

"A secret marriage? What the deuce d'you mean?" "What I say! He did it and basked out because—because I'm a rotter. He's ashamed to marry my sister. He's insulted Nancy Virginia. I've challenged him. He's accepted, he's got to fight!"

"Shift around—you're a shining mark!" they exclaimed in unison. Richard laughed dryly. "There's a saying that Death loves a shining mark. Rod, I believe we shake hands first."

"I'm damned if I do!" Rod said, shaking with passion, "I'll fight, time up, major?"

"God, you love him!" he gasped. His father, broken loose from Lomax now, had him by the arm, he wrenched the pistol from the boy's relaxed fingers. Roddy sagged over against him, while Nancy still faced him, her face as white as a star and her beautiful hair trembling about her shoulders. Roddy was dumb.

"It doesn't matter what I am. I am not here to answer questions!" Roddy replied fiercely. "You know my sister, I'm defending her honor, I'm ready to die for it. Will you stand by me, or won't you? That's the question."

Richard stood still, rooted to the spot, his face as white as his shirt, his eyes were on Nancy and hers were fixed on the distance where her father and brother had gone. Suddenly it came to her that they had gone and left her. Left her alone with the man she had married. She drew a quick breath, a wave of crimson rose slowly, it rose all over her quivering young body and rushed up to her white face. Her eyes sank and her hands shrank together. She was alone—left behind—and he was silent.

"I will!" "There was a moment of silence. 'I'm an old man," said the major, "this is illegal. Who's his second? The cartel should be properly delivered. You could fight tomorrow at sundown. He has the choice the weapons, the place and the hour."

"I'm proud of you." "Roddy was silent, his head sagged with his shoulders, his face burned. He knew now the price his sister had paid to keep him out of jail, and the iron entered into his soul. He had come, at last, to the beginning of repentance."

"It's all fixed—I won't wait until tomorrow!" Roddy's breath came in short gasps and his eyes blazed, "he'll have a second when we get there; he's chosen pistols; the time is now, the place, his own lawn—he'll die there or I will, please God, tonight!"

The father and son went slowly, and the other two, Lomax and Haddon melted quietly away toward the river meadow.

"Duelling pistols, Rod, I've had 'em years. Maybe they'll come in handy." Roddy nodded, his white face drawn. "I'll use anything he's got," he said shortly, "come, major. It's time—the moon's right!"

Richard stood still, rooted to the spot, his face as white as his shirt, his eyes were on Nancy and hers were fixed on the distance where her father and brother had gone. Suddenly it came to her that they had gone and left her. Left her alone with the man she had married. She drew a quick breath, a wave of crimson rose slowly, it rose all over her quivering young body and rushed up to her white face. Her eyes sank and her hands shrank together. She was alone—left behind—and he was silent.

"By gad," ejaculated Major Lomax, "he's got Haddon!"

The silence grew and grew. It seemed to her that it was killing her. She heard the drip of moisture from the quivering boughs of the trees; the faint fragrance of opening buds came to her, it was almost more than she could bear.

They took the short cut to the Morgan house. Two figures were standing on the steps. "By gad," ejaculated Major Lo-light broke. "Nancy! You don't mean that you—" his voice failed, it died in his throat. He caught her hands with a force that almost hurt them. Even his lips were wite.

"Nancy, I beg your pardon—I didn't know the things that were said—it's all my fault. It was up to me to protect you, I— I stopped and then, hoarsely: "God knows I wish you did mean it—I love you with all my soul!"

She lifted her head at that, and the moonlight found her face; slowly, almost reluctantly, she raised her eyes to his. He caught his breath. A great

U. S. SPENDING $5,362,000 DAILY IN RELIEF WORK

Washington, Apr. 28. The Roosevelt administration has been spending something like $5,362,000 a day, on the average, for relief.

Records of the Emergency Relief Administration show that approximately $1,350,000,000 has been turned into relief channels since the first "New Deal" relief appropriation on May 12, 1933.

The relief administration still has about $500,000,000 in its coffers.

The gentleman who looks after relief in Oakland was up from Charleston last week, interviewing all those who were seeking relief.

At one house he asked a lady if it wasn't true that her husband had been drunk several times here of late? She admitted that it was the truth, but said the two fellows who sold him the bootleg whiskey were both on the relief and she could see no reason why they shouldn't be helped.—Oakland Messenger.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

BY JIM SCOTT

Otto Kinsel, manager and owner of the Bruce Sluggers, is offering a special attraction at his park Sunday, which will see Forrest Misenheimer on the mound doing what he can with Ed Smith's Junior Mechanics, first hall champions of the Decatur City League.

In Joe Masters' the Mechanics have what is generally accepted as the best piece of pitching machinery in this sector. He was last summer a regular on the Springfield club until a bad injury brought about his withdrawal.

And the Mechanics have a supporting cast of athletes who are lulu in most any sport. For example there's Jimmy Johnson, the sprinter and golfer, and then there is Herb Wilson, a former Decatur high cage captain. In fact at least six of the boys were some kind of stars while attending D. H. S.

The young Sullivan Aces, with Bear Elder Jr., on the mound, continued their winning streak by nosing out Lovington, 7 to 6, here Sunday in a five-inning preliminary to Kozene's company's presentation of "A Comedy of Errors."

The Indies finished up their scoring in the second when a shower of base hits removed Pitcher Chuck Glancey from the picture. Then as a relief hurler, Gilbert Governor, delivered himself of a dazzling exhibition. All the Governor did was to fan the next two batters with the runways jammed, and carried on by blanking the Aces over the remainder of the distance.

Although bespectacled Johnny Broaca, the Yankee's young hurling sensation, was only this spring graduated from Yale university, he did not enter the big show without minor league experience.

Joe Wood, the old fire-baller now coaching at Yale, saw in Broaca the making of a great pitcher and tipped off the New York club which was at once sold on the youth.

Then one afternoon in 1933 Broaca turned up with a lame back and refused to bear Old Eli's colors against a semi-pro team. This stirred Smoky Joe's ire and Broaca not liking tone of his coach's voice, advised that he was joining the Yanks.

Colonel Ruppert's organization turned him over to Newark. That was last July, and before the close of the season Johnny had scored seven victories against three defeats. Last fall he returned to Yale and barred from athletics, he had more time for his studies and was graduated cum laude, or with honors if you like it that way.

Al Masek, Illinois No. 1 hurler this spring, is now elbowing for the Chicago Colonels and recently engaged in a tight duel with Joe Bartulis, another former Illini pitcher who is with the Wilcox Springs team. . . Bartulis was in the International league last summer. . . .

"Jocko" Conlan of the Chicago White Sox was born and reared within one mile of Comiskey park and had spent nine years in the fur-bearing nimals. Much of the land so drained has turned out to be practically useless for farming or for any other purpose. The money received from the sale of the new hunting stamp will be used to remedy these mistakes of the past by restoring some of this water land to the country's wild life and to purchase other marsh lands not yet destroyed.

Not all the money for this restoration program, the Bureau points out, will come from the pockets of the sportsmen, however for the President, recognizing that wildlife, like the forests, is a valuable national resource is planning to devote additional sums, to extending the sanctuary system. The stamp sale will probably provide funds ranging between $600,000 and $1,000,000 annually, according to estimates by the Biological Survey.

PASTURES OFTEN ROBBED
Pastures often are robbed to keep up the fertility of the plowed fields, according to "A Pasture Handbook", just published by the United States Department of Agriculture, which reminds again that with pastures "on soils of fair natural fertility, much can be expected from fertilizing."

Compared with those of other countries, pastures of the United States are, as a rule, low in productivity. This is due in part to the fact that they usually are located on the poorest parts of the farm.

But the handbook points out that while grazing by some stock leaves a great deal of manure on the soil, in the case of dairy farms the cattle spend much of the time in yards and stables. Then manure is likely to be returned to the cultivated fields.

First-class pasturage usually can be counted upon to produce meat and milk more cheaply and at a greater net income than any other feed or feeds.

INSECTS ENTER COUNTRY ON ANCIENT PAINTING

Some small wood-boring insects from Europe almost slipped into the United States with an old oil painting recently. A customs inspector at the Washington, D. C. post office discovered these undesirable immigrants just in time to keep them from establishing a new family of insects in this country.

When discovered, the foreign insects were busy boring into the block of wood on which the likeness of a saint had been painted, probably centuries ago, according to E. R. Sasser, in charge of foreign-plant quarantines in the U. S. Department of Agriculture. The ancient painting, with its dangerous insect colony, was turned over to the Department's plant quarantine inspection house. After being fumigated there the painting was sent on its way.

Improved conditions in Illinois' coal mining industry during 1933 are noted in the fifty-second annual coal report submitted to Gov. An increase of $4,199,000 tons in 1933 production, as against the preceding year, and the lowest fatality record since 1897 are mentioned in the report.
