

WEATHER

This November weather is just what you'd expect nice November weather to be. The days are hazy and a sun, which seems brighter than usual, drops low on the western horizon before afternoon is half spent.

The mornings are frosty enough to make you shiver and nights are cool enough to make a few extra covers real comfortable. There has been no rain lately. Bonfires of leaves send their stifling incense wafting o'er the evening air.

The thump thump in cornfields indicates that the farmers are busy picking bunnies and here and there a Grade No. 4 ear. The farmers feel none too kindly toward the chinch bugs which summered in their fields.

Wheatfields look good. The mommies and poppies of next year's chinchbug crop are moving into their winter quarters in the brush and trash alongside the roads.

Winter is coming. The birds have nearly all gone south and the road men are putting up snow fences. The trees have nearly all shed their leaves. A sight of rare beauty prevailed in Wyman Park this week where the grove of Kiefer pear trees were all dolled up in a shining dark red.

Wienie parties are going out of style. If football heroes have not yet conquered the hearts of their adored ones by deeds of dashing and bravery, their cases look hopeless.

Some of "the boys" have been following the dogs to field and shooting the quail. Others say they are "too old" and sit around town talking about their youthful deeds and hugging their shins. Here and there you see a less ambitious hunter drag home a bunny from which he separated life by means of a few leaden pellets.

Turkeys are fattening. Some farmers have home-killed pork. Eggs are rather high, although indications are that some of the hens that took off their clothing (via molt) early in the season are dressed again and back on the job. The strike is off.

Merchants are getting ready for Christmas. You'd hardly know the changed interior of Sam Hall's store. The Decatur and Mattoon stores are getting ready for their fall drive for Sullivan trade—and how they do advertise!

And here is an item of fall beauty, not generally appreciated, a chicken hawk sweeping gracefully over the cornfields, seeking a quail or bunny, or mayhap a field mouse for his dinner. The hawk is the most graceful bird of flight in this part of the country—am I right, Prof. Brumfield?

Don't let the contents of your automobile radiator freeze!

Chase Funeral Was Held Here Sunday

Walter Howard Chase, who passed away at his home in Madison, Wisconsin on Thursday morning of last week, was for many years one of Sullivan's outstanding business men.

By trade he was a carpenter. He came to this city as a young man to manage a lumber yard where the Alexander Lumber yards are now located. He owns that city block.

Later he got out of the lumber business and for many years was engaged in the coal business. During this time he took active part in city and community affairs. He was an active member of the Masonic and Odd Fellow lodges.

He was married to Lyda Baggett of this city. Two children were born to this union, Helen, now the wife of Dewey Clark of Chicago and Miss Ruth Chase, who lived with him in his declining years in Madison. Mrs. Chase died many years ago. There are two grand-children and two brothers surviving.

Several years ago Mr. Chase's health failed. His daughter Miss Ruth who was employed in Decatur gave up her position and took him back to Madison where they owned property and where the other Chase relatives live.

His health failed to improve through the chance of environment and his death was not unexpected.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at the McMullin funeral home Sunday afternoon. Rev. Hopper was in charge of the religious services. Sullivan Lodge 764 A. F. & A. M. presented their Masonic services in honor of the departed. A Commandery escort accompanied the remains to their last resting place.

The pall bearers were G. R. Fleming, Emery Creech, Raymond Bupp, Sam B. Hall, Denzil Dunscomb and Otto Frederick.

Lovington Man Gets Damages; For Pollution

Case Compromised Here Wednesday; No Bank Dividend Authorized by Court. Patterson Will Case Continued; Chancery Rulings.

Many Lovington people were here Wednesday morning, summoned as witnesses in the case of Frank Purdue against that village and the Lovington drainage district.

The case was settled by compromise before called for trial. Mr. Purdue owns a farm west of Lovington through which runs a drainage ditch. In recent years the ditch constituted a nuisance. The water became unfit for stock use and the ditch heralded its location by an odor that was in no way pleasant. Part of this condition was alleged to be due to sewage from a cheese factory operating in Lovington at the time. It was also contended that many residents used the open ditch as a sanitary sewer.

Since the cheese factory has moved, conditions have become better. The compromise provides that the city exercise due vigilance to prevent any further sanitary sewer outlets being drained into the ditch. The city and drainage district are to pay Mr. Purdue $2,000 for damages sustained.

M & F Bank Petition
There was no petition on file asking permission to pay a dividend to the M. & F. State bank depositors. It was learned that a petition of this kind presented in court before Judge Armstrong some months ago had not been disposed of. The Receiver asked and received permission to withdraw that petition. It is planned to present a new petition at an early date.

Receiver Gregory also presented a request for court approval of a compromise with C. A. Lane and wife on their indebtedness to the bank. The compromise provides that they assign to the bank Mr. Lane's interest in his mother's estate and Mrs. Lane's interest in her father's estate. The court approved the suggested compromise.

The suit to set aside the will of the late Rebecca Patterson which had been set for trial was continued to some future date.

In the Shipman vs. Shipman divorce case an appeal has been filed and granted appellants to play bond in sum of $250 within 30 days from date.

Chancey Cases
Judge Charles Y. Miller, who presided entitled the following orders in Chancery cases:

Maurice Graff and others vs. William Adkins Jr., etc., foreclosure—decree in sum of $21,221 and judgment against William Adkins Jr., Laura Adkins, W. O. Watts and Alva Watts.

The foreclosure case of Howard Arthur vs. Clorie Dawson was referred to the Master in Chancery. In the foreclosure case of Milklin Trust Co. vs. Frank Wacaser and others total judgment is $21,956.59. Twenty day equity is pro-

The Editor's Chair

No man hath seen God at any time. If we love one another, God dwelleth in us, and his love is perfected in us. I John 6-12

Govern thy lips as they were palace doors, the king within; tranquil and fair and courteous be all words which from that presence win. —Sir Edward Arnold

A Bible and a newspaper in every house, a good school in every district, — all studied and appreciated as they merit, — are the principal supports of virtue, morality, and civil liberty.—Franklin.

Autumn Leaves

This is the sacrifice that summer makes To winter — here on the ground a million leaves, Saffron and amber hued, that the wind rakes Into the gutters, scatters and retrieves. With these she impurposes the cold to spare The dormant beauty of her cherished trees— This is her one oblation and her prayer; Touch the irrevocable match to these.

Let the blue smoke upcurling veil this scene Too poignant in its mellow golden dress To bridge the brief transition from lush green To the austerity of leaflessness; Acustom nostrils to the bitter-sweet Of incense raised where seasons part and meet. —Fanny DeGroot Hastings.

The Democrats of Sullivan Precinct No. 2.

The official returns on the election in Champaign county last week show that E. E. Sturdyvin is only 55 votes ahead of Roger F. Little in their race for the Legislature. Earlier unofficial reports showed Mr. Sturdyvin elected by a safe majority.

There is some talk now that Mr. Little and his Republican friends may ask a recount.

If, however, Mr. Sturdyvin is elected by the small majority of 55 votes, we voters and workers in the 2nd precinct of Sullivan township claim the credit.

We will contend, and rightfully too, that Mr. Sturdyvin owes his election to the fact that our precinct committeeman, Carl A. Dick, The Progress Editor (defeated by Mr. Sturdyvin in the primary last April) and our loyal workers, brought in the votes which assured Mr. Sturdyvin a very substantial lead here over Mr. Little.

Moultrie county Democrats were not in love with Mr. Sturdyvin. He kicked over the apple cart of harmony last spring when he refused to get off the ticket and concede that this was Moultrie's time to name the Democratic legislative candidates.

Hugh M. Rigney of Moultrie county was on the ticket at the November election. His friends, losing sight of the value of electing two Democratic legislators, advised the voters to plump 3 votes for Mr. Rigney, instead of splitting and giving Mr. Rigney 1½ and Mr. Sturdyvin 1½. Committeemen and workers in many precincts went to bat for Mr. Rigney. They insisted that he be given 3 votes.

The party leaders in the Second precinct discouraged that idea. They were for a "Straight" Democratic ticket and instructed the workers to so inform the voters on election day. The request was heeded in voting on legislative candidates, as is shown by the following vote in Sullivan precincts: No. 1—Rigney 633, Sturdyvin 274; SECOND PRECINCT—Rigney 607, Sturdyvin 406; 3rd precinct—Rigney 758, Sturdyvin 253.

It would have been easy, indeed, to have switched 150 or more of the 2nd precinct votes to Mr. Rigney, which would have encompassed Mr. Sturdyvin's defeat and sent Roger F. Little back to the Legislature.

We do not like the idea of "plumping" 3 votes for any legislative candidate. It is undemocratic and unfair, although practiced quite generally in application of the silly system by which Illinois elects its legislators.

"Plumping" of votes was heartily discouraged by The Progress Editor (as a candidate) in last Spring's primary. It was encouraged, however, to the advantage of others in the race. Good fortune smiled upon us and we met defeat, although it did not appear so pleasant at the time the result was announced.

The Progress (excuse this humble publication for blowing its horn) has long and strenuously contended that this 24th district should send two Democrats to the Legislature. Finally the victory was won insofar as having two candidates. We then went to bat to elect the two men nominated. We hope that the efforts have met with success. And if, in the final showdown, E. E. Sturdyvin, adds one more to the number of Democratic votes in the Illinois Legislature, the facts are plain that the Democrats of the SECOND PRECINCT in Sullivan put him there.

The Merchants--The Progress--More Business.

"We see your paper. Several of our neighbors get it. The one thing that I can't understand about it, is why don't your Sullivan merchants use it to advertise in, more than they do?"

So said a merchant in a neighboring town recently. (Name upon application if you wish it).

He then proceeded to tell us how he started advertising some years ago. "My wife objected to the expense, but I believed in it. The first year showed no great results. I stuck to it. I have had an advertisement in the home paper every week. The second year it showed greater drawing power than the first. I would not be without it now."

This is the experience of advertisers everywhere. A local merchant who uses liberally of newspaper space tells the same story for his organization.

There are many lines here in Sullivan that could profitably use newspaper advertising space: for instance, the clothing merchants, the hardware stores, the lumber dealers, the bank — in fact every line of business that retails to the consumers, either in the way of merchandise or service.

The Progress has spent thousands of dollars in building up a live, responsive subscription list. It reaches into all parts of the trade area surrounding Sullivan. Thousands of people read it each week. (We will gladly show you our lists if you desire to see them.)

We have a large and elaborate advertising cut service, furnished without extra charge. The Progress ranks among foremost Illinois county seat weekly newspapers. The set-up is perfect. It remains only for the merchants to plan and use a persistent and intelligent advertising program to make of Sullivan a more progressive and more prosperous trading center.

The buyers of merchandise can help too, if they tell the merchants that they read their ads in The Progress. Advertising benefits the buyers as much as it does the sellers.

Democrats, Triumphant, Must Make Good.

Election day and the campaign preceding it are now a thing of the past.

As is usual, some people construe what happened, from their own selfish standpoint, rather than in the light of reason.

The Republican party is not dead. In fact, in our neighboring counties of Coles and Piatt, it showed wonderful vitality and elected all county officials.

In Illinois the party lacked leadership. Some of the old-timers tried to court the favor of the younger element. Carly Brooks represented the younger element on the ticket, while Mr. Blair and Mr. Stratton were representatives of the older type of Republicanism.

They had no constructive issue — no program. All that Brooks did was to deliver harangues on the Constitution. Here and there some fellow would break out in a heat of denunciation of the New Deal. They were floundering around, hoping to stir up enough discontent to cause the voters to approve them at the polls.

If the Illinois Republicans want to stage a come-back they will have to clean house. The people have lost all faith in the old-timers. The younger element in the party has as yet developed no leadership which appeals to those who are Republicans by birth and inclination.

The recent election was a hopeless and futile attempt to stage a come-back for the Illinois G. O. P. against great odds.

Democrats won because they were better organized. They had a powerful machine, firmly entrenched in office. This ruling party was well financed, well commanded.

In counties like Moultrie, where the Democratic committee worked harmoniously and efficiently, with an excellent ticket to support, victory was easy.

In Piatt county where factions had developed in the Democratic ranks, the Republicans organized, worked well together and snatched victory from the jaws of defeat.

The nation now is Democratic. The state is Democratic. The Democratic party is on trial. If it will suppress the grafters, schemers and political slysters in its own ranks, and give to the people a fair measure of honest, progressive and efficient government, the people will continue to support it as a governing party.

If however, the leadership gets into the hands of those who would use political power to rob and graft and exploit the great mass for the benefit of the few, it will be just too bad for the Democrats.

Our Republican friends will watch us closely. The people will keep close check on governmental affairs. Watch your step, Democratic party, or you will be checked out and thrown on the rubbish pile, where the remains of the old discredited G. O. P. machine now repose, while the younger Republicans are building a new party vehicle in which they propose to keep in the race.

Speech Can Be Silver

A New York advertising firm has offered an annual award of a silver cup for good radio announcing. The firm makes the award as a "modest protest against the stilted, hot-potato school" of broadcasting. Under the competent judges appointed, the best voice and the clearest articulation should surely win.

Now, if the campaign could only be extended to a far wider field! One would rejoice to see as entrants into the competition not a few public speakers, acquaintances who sometimes telephone from afar, grocery clerks who mumble desired information about the day's supplies, groups like the beavies of schoolgirls on the subway, who talk among themselves, or rather scream, ever louder and more raucously.

In London, not long since, Geo. Bernard Shaw addressed the students of the Bedford College for Women. The dramatist expressed his astonishment that young people who are proud of their vigor in tennis and other violent sports are so unathletic in their articulation of the English language as to deserve the epithet of "slovenly."

Always, among gentle folk, the gift of clean and agreeable speech has been valued. This is the ancient advice of a Toltec mother to her daughter, as quoted from the Spanish, by the historian Desire Charnay—

My beloved daughter, speak liberally; do not raise your voice too high, no speak very low, but in a moderate tone. Neither mince when you speak nor when you salute, nor talk through your nose; but let your words be proper and your voice gentle.

And in our times, President Eliot of Harvard University once said that if there is one test of education, it is the ability to use one's own language with exactness, freedom, and charm.

Though the future of farming looks more bright, it is not yet reflected in farm sales value. Some years ago there was a slogan among rural investors: "Buy land. It is the most substantial investment." Land values then became inflated. Land sold high. The investors soured on land deals. Despite all this, that same slogan is still true: "Buy land. It is the best investment" but it should be amended—"buy at actual worth and not on inflated values." Present sales prices do come near representing actual worth.

The government's house modernization plan is not making much headway here in Sullivan. There is plenty of money available, and plenty of work to be done. We need something to start it off.

Sunday School Lesson

by Rev. Charles E. Dunn

The Christian as Church Member Lesson for Nov. 18, Matt. 5:13-16 Golden Text: Ephesians 5:30.

The average layman does not take his religion very seriously. Church membership is often little more than a badge of respectability. It represents little appreciation of the Christian Society as a world brotherhood permeated with the spirit of the Cross. Too many Christians think of their church as a club of congenial folk safely distant from the firing line.

Much of the weakness of our church life is due to the absence of sturdy, intelligent laymen and laywomen willing to shoulder burdens instead of pressing them upon the frail body of the minister. Too often the poor clergyman is compelled to play a lone hand.

It goes without saying that Christians should attend public worship, not expecting always to be inspired, but eager, by their personal presence, to strengthen the cause of organized religion. John Adams felt that four institutions are indispensable to a people's liberty, the town, the church, the school and the militia.

In addition the Christian should enter into common worship with genuine heartiness. Many attend their church with no thought of the contribution they can make to the beauty and inspiration of the service. They go simply to be helped themselves, and are aggrieved if the minister has an off day. What a different atmosphere would be created if folk entered God's house not simply to be fed, but to feed!

Then the Christian should give generously of his means toward the support of his Master's work. How many of the laity are thoughtless and parsimonious in their stewardship? Seldom indeed do they sacrifice something they ardently desire in order to help their church. A good working rule is to give 10% of one's income to church. To do this requires careful planning, but it is rich in intangible reward.

True Stories In Movies

Patrons of the Grand Theatre the past week have seen two pictures that are wonderfully accurate in portraying the real life of the characters represented. In "Cleopatra" or "The Barrets of Wimpole Street" one could see what really happened in Rome or Alexandria two thousand years ago or in London in the last century.

Besides, the pictures represented two of the most famous love stories ever lived by real people. This fact made the pictures more thrilling to a student of History or Biography.

The two love stories differ in one most important particular: While both were genuine love romances, the love of the Roman soldier and the Greek woman who was queen of Egypt had an evil glamour about it and it finally resulted in the ruin of both participants. On the other hand the love of Robert Browning and Elizabeth Barrett was as nearly ideal as one can imagine. It rescued one from impending evil and strengthened the lives of both, contributing mightily to their happiness and literary fame.

Without their wonderful love Elizabeth Barrett could not have written those tender "Sonnets From The Portuguese" nor could Robert Browning sincerely have written "Every man hath two faces; one to meet the world with, the other to show a woman when he loves her."

Sentimental, of course, but the opinion of the man or woman who can scoff at such sentiment is not worth considering. He or she has a counterpart in the personality of Moulton Barrett.

A Day of 'Elevens'

"Armistice was declared at 11 o'clock on the 11th day of the 11th month" said Rev. Barnett in his sermon at the Christian church on Sunday morning.

"So now" he continued, "I will turn to the 11th verse of the 11th Chapter of the 11th Book of the Bible." He did, and read as follows: "Wherefore the Lord said unto Solomon, Forasmuch as this is done of thee, and thou has not kept my covenant and my statutes which I have commanded thee, I will surely rend the kingdom from thee, and will give it to thy servant."

This is taken from the First book of Kings and the warning it contained at that time might well be applied to the rulers of the world today.

A stranger and wife were passing through town the other day. He drove up Harrison street and circled the square. "This is a nice sort of town" he remarked. Then they happened to drive by the nuisance lot where stores dump and burn their rubbish. "Well, of all things!" exclaimed his wife, "just look at that, and you've been bragging about a nice clean town! Did you ever see a more unsightly mess in any uptown?"

It Is Best To Be Busy

H. S. Butler

I have not written lately For I have not had the time, I've really been so busy That I could not think in rhyme.

But at that I do feel better When I have a lot to do, I don't have the time to meditate

On things that make me blue

If I know what I am saying And I feel quite sure I do,

The people that are overworked, Are really very few.

The folks that are the happiest The ones that have real joy, Are always busy at a task Their work does not annoy.

There's too much being said these days

About limiting our work, No wonder lazy persons Are now inclined to shirk.

Our fathers that developed The farms and cities, too, Had a doggedness of purpose Not found in me and you.

And they didn't try to figure That six hours was a day, Nor they didn't hire an expert To teach them how to play.

Editorial Shorts

The Literary Digest guessed wrong before the election, when its polls showed that the New Deal was losing in popularity.

We saw a paper this morning, dated about 3 days before the recent election. Our eye fell on Mark Sullivan's article. Mr. Sullivan, in his great wisdom, set forth that in his opinion, the Democrats might gain a United States senator or two but they were sure to lose perhaps as many as 30 congressmen.

Mr. Sullivan is a bad guesser. As the national press agent of the G. O. P., he permits his hopes to becloud his vision and always sees things from the Republican angle.

That causes him to spread a lot of misinformation through his syndicated articles which misguided and gullible daily newspapers pay good money for.

The Democrats did not lose 30 congressmen as Mr. Sullivan so confidently predicted. They made a net gain of 13, thus showing that the predictor was just about 43 off. In the new Congress there will be 322 Democrats and 103 Republicans, with 10 otherwise affiliated.

Our guess, if we may be permitted to make one, is that Mark Sullivan knows very little about those things he writes about in so learned a way.

Not at all in a spirit of unkindness, let us congratulate the Republicans of this Congressional district, in losing the leadership of Charles Fletcher, through his recent defeat.

Now if the National Republican committee could be equally fortunate to get rid of its chairman, Henry Fletcher, they too would be in line for hearty congratulations. This has been a poor year for the Fletchers, politically.

This has been Home-coming week for some of our former Moultrie people. A sad home-coming.

Walter Chase, for many years one of Sullivan's most valued citizens, died in Madison, Wisconsin. His remains were brought home and laid to rest in Greenhill cemetery. His fellow Masons, with whom he had pleasant association during many years, honored a departed brother in the services which consigned his remains to the bosom of Mother Earth, covered with a mantle of beautiful flowers, later to be replaced with the greensward of his last resting place.

Walter Riggins now rests in the Bethany cemetery. For him too, it was a home-coming. He spent his years since leaving here in Indianapolis. His remains rest in Moultrie. His grave is among those of people whom he knew and loved.

These home-comings are natural. They are human. They are solemn occasions which point out to man the frailties of humanity, and how, after all the fretting and turmoil of life's weary way, the earth again claims its own, after the spirit has departed to that realm from whence it came to make of the body its habitation for that brief period, which we call life.

For the body it was a home-coming; for the spirit also.

A few days before the election Democrats in Kelayres, Pennsylvania decided to have a parade.

The community is generally overwhelming Republican and it took some nerve to be a Democrat, and much more to join in a Democratic parade.

One Republican politician lost his head in indignation when he learned of what the Democrats were up to and turned a machine gun on them. Several were killed.

Election day came. Did the Republicans approve of what had been done? They did not. They went to the polls and cast an almost solid Democratic vote.

Which proves that while some politicians may go crazy, the people do not go along.

"I have a neighbor" said the Allenville man, "who has a hen that has two hearts."

"Don't I know it?" snarled the Old Grouch, "she was my partner at bridge the other night."

"Sure and 'tis a shame" said the Irishman "the way the wimmen dress nowadays. Why I can get twenty-five pieces of underwear out of a single yard."

"Aw gwan, yer crazy" said his Scotch neighbor.

"Oh and am I?" queried Pat with a twinkle in his eye, "well cast your eye on the washline in Widder O'Brien's yard."

We do not claim that relief is mismanaged — but we will always contend that giving able-bodied men relief, without giving them a chance to work for it, is little short of crime. Give them the task of cleaning the highways and byways of weeds and brush. Then give the relief as payment.

(Dear Bob:) That one story you submitted is just a little too saucy for Brandy Sauce. Thanks just the same.

"Did you ever see the altar in our church?" the Christian Endeavor lad asked his sweetie from Lovington.

"No dearie" said she, "but lead me to it."

Editor Pauschert of Pana tells of an embarrassing moment for a young banker friends of his. He has just started working in the bank. One day a nice old lady came in and handed him a deposit, saying "This is the Aid money."

the wall; and all the wall was joined together unto the half thereof: for the people had a mind to work."

Nehemiah 4:6—"So built we God to rebuild the walls of Jerusalem during troublesome times. He was a God called man, for a God-given work, at a God-given time. He never could have rebuilt the walls except the people help, and the people could never help except they had a mind to work. Herein lies the secret of the revival of a great work. "The people had a mind to work." Jerusalem was the place that God dwelled amongst his people, and is a type of the New Jerusalem coming down from God out of heaven, and is typical of any community where the walls of faith and devotion have been torn down and destroyed by the enemies of God.

In every community God is calling Nehemiahs to rebuild the broken down walls, but the Nehemiahs can never rebuild the walls alone. The walls will never be rebuilt until the people get the vision, and are able by faith to look beyond the broken down walls and catch a glimpse of the rebuilt walls and the City of glory.

Our whole economic structure is fast breaking up, because our social and political life is so interwoven with its human systems. In the midst of these troubles, times God is calling for the rebuilding of the walls of our city of refuge.

Shop Now; Mail Early, Postal Advice

Postmaster Miller has received instructions from headquarters to encourage the idea of "Shop Now and Mail Early" so as to avoid the annual Christmas mail congestion. There will be no mail delivery on Christmas day. It will be to the advantage of the party who uses the mails to deliver Christmas packages to mail early. During the holiday season the volume of mail increases approximately 200 per cent. Wrap parcels securely. Use strong paper and heavy twine. Do not take any chances on things easily broken. Pack and wrap them safely.

Parcels containing perishable matter should be marked "Perishable." Be sure to have the address right and complete. Fully prepay postage. Ask the postal officials to be sure.

No parcel more than 100 inches in length or girth, nor to exceed 70 pounds in weight can be mailed.

Use Air Mail service for speed. 6c an ounce or for fraction thereon; pound rate is 96c. Rates to foreign countries are equally attractive.

While there is no general delivery service on Christmas day, there will be Special Delivery service. Be sure to put Special Delivery stamps on your parcels, if you want them handled that way.

Insure or register your valuable mail.

If in doubt as to what service the mails can give you, ask at the Post Office. See the postmaster or one of his assistants. Never guess on postal matters. Accurate information can be had for the asking.

Mr. and Mrs. Cletus Reeves and family of Decatur called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Myers Sunday.

High School News

Margy Lou Scheer

Here are our new opera stars: (even if they are child prodigies, they can sing). Mrs. Roney picked these girls from the choruses to mend her Girls Glee club: Helen Sona, Ann Reeser, Lucille Freese, Ruth Jenkins, Marguerite Clark, Celia Sears, Amanda Tichenor, Margaret Curry and Marion Miller.

The boys who "rated" are James Floyd, Floyd Freese, Dean McPheeters, Thomas Vice, Bill Robinson, Royal Freeman, Chrissie Nickolay, Onal Epperson, John Davis, Lawrence Filson, Jimmy Smith, Don Bolin and Loren Jenne.

The Glee clubs are starting to work on the Christmas cantata, "Chimes of the Holy Night" which will be given Sunday, Dec. 16th.

Our last football game until next year, is this Saturday. The game is a part of Monticello's homecoming celebration. Since it is their homecoming and our last game, both teams should be fighting their hardest to win. We haven't had a really successful season this year but there are still a lot of people who are loyal to dear old STHS and follow the team in the hope that our luck will change. We're still hoping.

The Bement game wasn't bad—a little cool but not bad. As usual the Sullivan Red Birds made more first downs than their opponents but the score ended 12 to 6 in Bement's favor. Jimmy McLaughlin was heard to remark that he hopes it will rain before next Saturday so the ground will be a little softer, I imagine it is rather hard landing.

Rah! Rah! Rah! Heap big pep meeting last Friday. Speeches were in order from Mr. Dennis, Mr. Scheer and Shirley Pifer. Shirley gave a cute sketch of "Hero Worship". The cheer leaders took charge of the assembly and we yelled.

Basketball seems to be the next on the list. For some reason our games will all be on Friday and Saturday, except the tournamnts.

- The Schedule:
- Dec. 7—Gays, there.
 - Dec. 8—Windsor, there.
 - Dec. 14—Lovington, there.
 - Dec. 15—Atwood, there.
 - Dec. 19-20-21 — Moultrie Co. tournament here.
 - Jan. 4—Arthur, there.
 - Jan. 5—Atwood, here.
 - Jan. 11—Shelbyville, here.
 - Jan. 12—Lovington, here.
 - Jan. 18—Bement, there.
 - Jan. 19—Newman, here.
 - Jan. 25—Open.
 - Jan. 30-Feb. 2 — Okaw Valley tournament.
 - Feb. 8—Shelbyville, there.
 - Feb. 9—Monticello, there.
 - Feb. 15—Arthur, here.
 - Feb. 16—Newman, there.
 - Feb. 22—Bement, here.
 - Feb. 23—Monticello, here.
 - March 1—Windsor, here.
 - Mar. 2—Open.
- This looks like a pretty nice schedule, don't you think?

According to Miss Deuringer the only thing wrong with Logan Hancock in the Junior play is that he would much rather make up his own lines than learn the ones in the book.

Tim Macauley, the detective in "Hold Everything" will be portrayed by Jack Matheson.

This idea of starting school early seems to give students dark circles under their eyes. We "done" it again Wednesday so we could go see the matinee of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" and the Homecoming pictures.

The Senior broadcast was really a broadcast. The star of evening was Dean McPheeters who, with his melodious voice, sang the inspiring song, Abdul el Bulbul Emir. It was a mouthful. The broadcast started at (supposedly) 8 a. m. with Harris Wood instructing the pump ladies to "bend down." Pat, Mike and Jerry (Bill Flannigan, Paul Rauch and Sherwood Howard) performed with a guitar, a fiddle and a harmonica. The audience almost held their breath when handsome young Sherwood imitated a train with his trusty harmonica.

The announcer, Ralph Yancy gave the market report (the market was way down), and then the one man band, starring Loren Jenne gave a baritone number.

What high school function would be complete without Eleanor Cummins, the mistress of song? So Eleanor did her part toward the Retrospect.

The great sports announcer Paf Flannigan (Dale Smith) gave a thrilling sports review and interviewed Lefty Grove (Omer Condo) right before our eyes.

Marion Pifer surprised us with a solo accompanied by Rhoda Belle Duncan.

I didn't know we had twins here. Maybe they aren't twins but they look alike, dress alike and are sisters, Mabel Ethel and Marcella Rose Martin—"daughters of Rubino" gave a violin duet.

Vanous Franklin seems to have many accomplishments. He gave an A-1 imitation of Amos and Andy.

Ruth Tabor really should be in grand opera. She gave an exhibition of her "vocal powers."

Did you ever see two people play the same pieces on two pianos at the same time? Rhoda Belle Duncan and Mary Emalyn Clark can and did.

If the Senior class goes to all that trouble, you should buy a Retrospect.

Button, button, who has the button, took a more serious turn last Thursday. It was watch watch, who has the watch. Some person who couldn't seem to control his hands, took Dick Moore's watch from the "cage" at school and the morning was devoted to searching students and desks. The watch wasn't found. Why can't people leave other's possessions alone?

It didn't take long. A budding romance began between Margaret Curry and Bob Jenne in geometry and there is no telling where it will end.

Whee—Again we get a vacation while the teachers have to go to school. Next Friday there is no school for the students but the poor teachers have to "carry on" at a teachers meeting.

Can you imagine: Bill Robinson not "after" someone?

Burl Jividen and Lorene Kingrey not together every time they get a chance?

Loeb, Sams and Scheer separated anytime before or after school?

Clovis Franklin with an empty car?

D. H. S. Reserves
Trace Panthers
Coach "Shorty" Galbreath's Panthers lost the closing game of the season to coach "Snook" White's D. H. S. Reserves. They used an unbalanced line with the center on the end and thus eligible to receive a pass which accounted for one of the touchdowns. The Reserves made all of their points via the aerial route. Bowman galloped 30 yards for one. During the final quarter Lynn Landers grabbed an aerial and traveled ten yards for a touchdown. Francis Gould performed very good for Lovington. At one time he traveled 50 yards around end but couldn't get to the goal line, and another time he run the end for forty yards.

Lovington closed the season with two victories, one from Charleston T. C. and the other from Hammond, two ties with St. Teresa and Arthur, and losing to Marion, Bethany, Cerro Gordo and Decatur Reserves. This was the last game for ten boys.

Of course, it was to have been expected.

A "Gridiron Flash" picture, glorifying the American football player. If you go to the Grand Friday night you'll see it and get some grand thrills. Eddie Quillan is the gridiron shiek and Betty Furness furnishes the heat and the heart-throbs like any sobby, softie sophomore lass. There is a good story about a penitentiary, etc., which enters into the plot, which Lucien Littlefield, Grant Mitchell and Edgar Kennedy help make presentable. Quillan's Irish mug, big eyes, big mouth and big smile will intrigue you. Furness is a kissable cutie and does she know it?

In the recent picture "Damsel" were supposed to be two comedy stars, Hugh Herbert and Joan Blondell. Together with Glenda Farrell, Robert Armstrong and Osgood Perkins they are now starred in Warner Bros. laff riot "Kansas City Princess." This play is full of gold-diggers, man hunters and a lot of gayety and giddiness.

Big Hearted Herbert
The Saturday feature picture will be different. Instead of the heroic, big-hatted, gun toting dude cowboys riding into the hearts of affectionate girls, you see a real actor, Guy Kibbee, starring in a play that is a riot of clean, wholesome fun. Warner Bros., producers, say it is the funniest picture of the year.

The kiddoes will want to see "Young Eagles" and the short stuff is also very good. It looks like a big week end.

"Happiness Ahead"
Sunday and Monday you'll see a new star. Josephine Hutchinson, who stars opposite Dick Powell in "Happiness Ahead." She has been knocking around in dancing, vaudeville and the stage, until she landed a film contract. See what you think of her performance.

Dick Powell, a singing idiot, with a happy smile is an Arkansas product—and can any good come out of Arkansas? Come and see him. Hear him. He's no razorback by any means. You'll like him. The play in which you'll see these folks is a glamorous romance with swiftly moving love plot. Also vaudeville, cartoon and news.

The Progress invites Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Wheeler to be its guests at one of the shows advertised this week.

Binnie Barnes Again
A sweet English gal, who's been butting into American made pictures, is Binnie Barnes and here comes "One Exciting Adventure" in which she carries the most important part. Her support, in the play, comes from Neil Hamilton, Paul Cavanaugh, Grant Mitchell and Ferdinand Gottschalk. "Diamonds lured her — men adored her — police pursued her!" And pray tell, are police men, or are they not? You'll like the extras on Bargain Night. Try to get in.

"Marie Galante"
All the poor girl wanted was a ticket back to her home-land. That is the theme on which this picture is built.

And what do you know about this? Another new star. First Manager Hays throws Guy Kibbee at you in a star role. Then he smacks you down with Josie Hutchinson; ropes you in with Texas Binnie Barnes and caps the climax by dishing up Ketti Gallian. And Ketti is said to be great stuff.

In the Wednesday and Thursday night picture you'll see Miss Gallian playing opposite "gloomy" Spencer Tracy while "happy and light-hearted" Ned Sparks is among those present. Your old buddy and college chum, Stepin Fetchit, also has a minor part.

Looking casually over the ravings of the press agents, we are led to believe that this is a very good picture.

There is one nice thing about new picture stars. It shows that the big bosses of the screen know that some of their Gable-Crosby-Crawford-May West stars are getting dim and apt to go into eclipse, so they trot out a new assortment to see how they will glimmer and how much of an attraction they will be at the box office. For that is where the success or the failure

Bement Spills Reds, 12-6 In Secret Battle

Bus Gentry Races 32 and 42 Yds. For Bement. Scores in Tilt. Moved Up from Saturday to Friday.

(By Jim Scott)

The scarcity of customers may have dampened Bement's scoring lust or again perhaps it only served to remove the Redskins inferiority complex, but be it what it may the somewhat seclusive scuffle out on Victory field last Friday revealed the locals at their best, but although they outplayed the Bementers they failed to outscore them and bogged down to their seventh reversal, 12 to 6.

Scheduled for Saturday afternoon, it was really a little sweetheart of a surprise party and if you missed it, brother, you have nothing on us. Spectators, it seems were not pledged to any vows of secrecy and through this frank, open policy a resume was available.

In all candor it may be said that the school suffered only small losses financially, for the Red observers are notoriously in their disregard of a loser.

Jenne Cut Down
Not unlike Notre Dame, Coach Dennis' machine is a well drilled unit with typical Irish luck—all bad.

Just as the final gun popped, Loren Jenne, from the Reds' 22-yard line, drove through to intercept a Bement lateral and then raced away for the tying touchdown. Over a clear field he sped, but his gait proved a bit too slow, and the Purple secondary rode up from the rear to deposit him on its own 35-yard marker.

The gains of Quarterback Bus Gentry, a certain All-Okav Valley selection, were restricted during the first half, but in the third quarter he began to leave his shackles and was soon over with the first Bement touchdown.

Can't Stop Gentry
The goal line surge of the Purple started on its own 45. Snubs Dare ripped outside left tackle for five yards and Gentry smacked through the same locality for nine. On the next play, Gentry charged through the line, cut back and twisted to the Sullivan 20. Here the Millikenmen were penalized 15 yards for holding. A line smash and an incompleated pass followed after which Gentry veered around his right end in a 32-yard touchdown sprint.

Dare was stopped on a plunge for point. Shortly after, in the final period, Gentry raised the enemy's margin to 12 to 0 when he came up with Robinson's lateral pass and successfully completed a 42-yard course to the goal. The visitors brought out the Illinois flea-flicker in their try for point, but none too adroit ball handling caused it to fail.

Dare's Daring Costly
The Redmen made the most of their final opportunity which came in the recovery of Marker's fumble on his own 37. Bill Robinson then electrified the gathering with a spectacular one-handed stab of Vandever's toss and was promptly brought down on the 20. McLaughlin twice drilled his bulk in to the Bement line, which yielded him nine yards.

Here Robinson suffered a Charley horse and was replaced by Schack, who, on the following play took Vandever's pass for a one yard gain. While the tacklers were unraveling themselves from his body, Dare poked his foot into Frank's anatomy, perhaps mindful of the misery the slender cage phenom will dish his quintet again this winter.

The officials penalized the offender by marching the ball down to the two-yard line, where Jimmy McLaughlin toted it over in his second attempt. Marion Pifer was dumped in his end-around specialty for extra point.

1935 AAA WHEAT INSPECTION WILL START THIS FALL

Moultrie County's second wheat compliance inspection will get under way on some 97 cooperative farms within a short time.

The AAA compliance inspection work to begin this fall will cover the 1935 crop seeded by the wheat contract signers as well as their contracted acres, and in many respects will be similar to the compliance check of the 1934 wheat crop made during the past summer, it is said.

There is likely to be sufficient open weather during the next month so that field supervisors will be able to measure the acres sown to wheat this fall as well as the contracted acres. This will tend to relieve the rush of compliance work next spring, when farmers are usually busiest. Then too, the checking of wheat acreage this fall will make it possible for signers whose second and third benefit checks have been held up, because of over-seeding last year, to become eligible for their benefit payments. Those who seeded too many acres to wheat last fall must reduce their seeding this fall sufficiently to offset the excess 1934 acreage, unless they have disposed of the extra wheat by mixing it with other grains for feed and have executed the necessary forms prescribed for this practice.

Officials also point out that by measuring the wheat acres this fall, signers who may have unintentionally exceeded their 1935 permitted acreage will learn of the error immediately and will have an opportunity to dispose of the extra wheat seeding by one of the approved methods before the final official check is made next spring.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

BY JIM SCOTT

The Sullivan Redskins, bruised and battered from one of their most disastrous grid seasons, will bring an end to it all this Saturday when Coach Clark Dennis bundles them up for a trip to Monticello, where they will serve as the other principal in the Sages' homecoming contest which begins at 3 p. m.

With each succeeding defeat a score of followers left the tribal camp, but a few of the fans, like D. Gale Carnine, are still with them and will no doubt be on hand for the finale.

S O S
A broken pelvic bone has ended the football career of Walter (Windy) Milburn, of Charleston Teachers' slender six-foot freshman end from Lovington.

Milburn is rather old as freshmen go, claiming 30 years, and is married and has children. After being graduated from Lovington high he played considerable football for a West coast Army eleven.

His father has been the Lovington high janitor for several decades.

S O S
Coach Bill Bishop's Shelbyville tossers are in their second week of preparation for the opening game, a Thanksgiving night affair with Pana.

Although Ed Garvin, the little begoggled forward, is the only returning regular from last year's five, another strong team is expected.

Bruce White, a husky lad, and Bob Atkinson, a speedy blond, both of whom saw much service last season, will serve as guards; Harry Newlin, the 6 feet 3 inch Stewardson transfer, will be at center; and Elgin Young will pair with Garvin at forward.

Newlin will likely execute the center jump and then swap positions with Atkinson.

Moultrie Farmers Get $939,900 In Loans

Farmers of Moultrie county have received $939,900 in land bank and commissioner's loans from May 12, 1933, the date of the passage of the Emergency Farm Mortgage Act to October 1, 1934, according to Walter L. Rust, president of the Federal Land Bank.

This sum of money the majority of which was used to refinance farmers' existing debts, represents two types of loans—land bank and commissioner's loans. The land bank loans are made on the security of first mortgages to an amount not to exceed 50 per cent of the normal value of the land and 20 per cent of the value of the buildings.

During the depression an extra burden of debt had accumulated which could not be reached by the ordinary first mortgage loan. Congress provided for the Land Bank Commissioner's loan to refinance this indebtedness. Commissioner's loans are made on first or second mortgages. The sum of the first and second mortgage may not exceed 75 per cent of the normal value of the farm based on its agricultural earning power.

"The loans have been made on the basis of the present production of the land and the prices farmers receive for their products during normal periods. In other words, an attempt has been made to refinance the debts of Moultrie County farmers on a basis that will permit good farmers to pay out," Mr. Rust stated.

"In addition to low interest rates—4 1/2 per cent at present on land bank loans and 5 per cent on commissioner's loans—farmers are given an opportunity of paying their debt over a series of years, ranging from 13 to 33 years. The loans are amortized. Payments on the principal are made each year plus interest on the unpaid balance," he continued.

"We are following a vigorous, but fair, collection policy, expecting farmers to make repayments that are within their capacity to meet," Mr. Rust said.

He pointed out that land bank loans are made in bonds of the Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation and in funds secured through sales of these bonds to private investors. Commissioner's loans are made by the Federal Land Bank as agent of the Land Bank Commissioner.

TRAIL'S END

By Agnes Louise Provost

FIFTEENTH INSTALLMENT

"Paula, don't be frightened! Don't scream. It is Nancy. I've come to warn you. Jim is here. Paula, don't you know me?"

"No, no, Nancy's dead! She's under the water—I see her all the time—and it washes over her eyes. Oh, God!"

She screamed again. The pounding horses were at the top of the slope, and Barry flung himself off and raced down, with Gage running heavily after him. A slim figure was backing away, turning, running, but Paula Gage was huddled in a terrified heap at the foot of a tree.

Barry bent over her and jerked his head up again. Nancy was just disappearing. She had looked at him, for one long, steady moment, and had turned her back on him. As though they were two hostile strangers. Knowledge crashed and clamored in his brain. He bent reluctantly over the huddled woman, but Gage was beside him now.

"John, Nancy's down there! She came out of the water! I can not go—I'm afraid! I only asked her to go away! I didn't mean her to die! And Jim—Jim—"

Overstrained emotions cracked Paula fainted.

"We'd better take her into the house," said Barry constrainedly. He wanted to go after Nancy. Those incredible revelations were clamoring in his head; they were accusing him. Now he saw Petry's long legs hastening toward them.

"Petry, help Mrs. Gage up to the house. I'll be back as soon as I can."

His nervous stride quickened to a run. Gage looked heavily after him.

Barry ran along the edge of the lake, his eyes darting anxiously. Toward the back of the house he swerved and caught sight of a fighting figure.

"Nancy, wait! Just for a minute!"

She paused in mid flight, looked back just once and went on again. The light figure vanished around the edge of an outbuilding. Long before he reached it Barry heard the scurry of hoofs and saw a piebald streak flash across an open space. Nancy was gone.

He took it standing, but his face whitened. Nancy had made it pretty plain that she didn't want to see him, just the set of her chin as she had flashed across the patch of light had been enough to tell him that. He set his jaw and went back to the house.

Back of him Jim Kennedy edged cautiously around toward the smaller corral, where two saddled horses, left to themselves, had wandered back to wait patiently.

In the house Barry found that Paula had regained consciousness. Petry had just edged out, and Gage was standing a little away from her.

"She's gone," said Barry briefly. "Was it—really Nancy?" Paula raised herself on one hand. "Is she alive? I didn't kill her? . . . I mean—I—" She broke off with a frightened whimper.

"We'll finish this—presently," was all the reply he gave her. He turned a heavy stare on Barry. "I'd like a few words with my wife in private."

"I'm staying. We'll finish it here. It's my business as well as yours. Nancy is my wife—and you can keep your spur and your damned money, but I want to know what you've all been doing to her."

Gage glared at him. "And what have you been doing to her? The girl I saw out there is Mrs. Gage's sister, who is supposed to have been drowned five months ago, and if she is your wife why isn't she in your house, instead of wandering around in the woods like a demented woman?"

Barry whitened. "I'm beginning to think that she has had enough to drive anybody insane. I've done my own share, and I'm paying for it. But the jam that we are in now is due to something that happened before I met her—it's due to you, or one of you . . . And that damned Kennedy—"

He bit it off suddenly, but Gage caught the name up.

"Kennedy! It always comes back to this Kennedy." He turned back to Paula.

"You'd better tell us all of it," he said evenly. "What do you know about Jim Kennedy?"

"He was my husband. I'd divorced him a year before I met you."

"Go on," he said curtly.

"I was awfully young when I married him. We were poor and lived in a little town. He was there only a few days, and when he went I'd married him. And then I found out that he was just a gambler, and we began traveling all over the country and—I left him and got the divorce. I never saw him again until last May. And then I got a letter from him, from Tia Juana. He said the divorce wasn't legal—and I was so frightened, because that meant that I wasn't really married to you. But it wasn't true at all—I found it out later."

Gage's jaw muscles ridged visibly at the mention of the illegal divorce, but he went on implacably. "Which one of you met him at the beach bungalow, you or Nancy?"

"I—I met him. I'd sent a telegram to Nancy. I thought it would be better if she saw him—he always liked Nancy. But she didn't get the telegram in time. And I went down myself. I had some money for him. He'd said he'd tell you about the divorce—and I didn't dare let him do that! John—it was because I loved you so."

"And who—who shot Kennedy?"

"I did." It was a mere thread of sound. "I didn't mean to. I was afraid of him, because he was so angry with me. I took the gun with me to frighten him. And—he just laughed and tried to take it from me, and it went off."

A deep shudder ran over her. "He looked so queer, and Nancy came running down the beach and snatched the gun and told me to go back to the house. Ann I did. I didn't know what was happening until Nancy came back and told me that you had found her there and that you thought she was Jim's wife. And I begged her to go away, so that you couldn't question her any more, and it needn't ever come out that either of us had seen Jim that night, and if it did it wasn't murder, it was self-defense. I made her take the money that I'd brought for Jim—in case she went away—and she ran out. I heard the car start. And the next morning . . . they told me that she'd driven it over a cliff—down on the rocks—with the tide in."

Gage's mouth was a thin line, but he drove his hands down into his pockets and looked away from her.

"I suppose I'd better tell you the rest, as far as I know it. I'd been upstate on a business trip—drove myself—and found that I could get back late that night. I heard something that sounded like a shot, down toward the beach. I have a beach bungalow there, but the main house is back, up on the hill. I knew the bungalow was closed, but I caught sight of Nancy's roadster with nobody in it so I thought I'd better investigate. I reached the bungalow just in time to find Nancy leaning over some man on the ground, with a gun in her hand. I saw him try to lift himself and heard him give a nasty laugh and say! 'Just a little present from my loving wife!' and drop back again."

"It looked pretty bad. I shot a question or two at Nancy, but she just stared at me and looked down again at the man and said yes, he was her husband. Nobody else seemed to have heard the shot, so I told her that because she was Paula's sister I'd do what I could to hush it up, and I didn't want Paula in anyway mixed up in it." John Gage's strong face twitched. "She didn't say much, poor kid, but she looked sort of desperate, and she stayed until I had made sure the fellow was dead and then she marched away without a word."

"It looked like murder to me and all I was interested in just then was in getting the evidence as far away as possible. I got him into the back of my car and drove like the devil, and left him on the outskirts of a town miles away. I still thought he was dead. Anyway, when I got back home, Nancy was gone and the papers were full of the accident. They said it was the fog. I always thought it was suicide."

He paused and added gruffly. "She'd done some good bits on the stage. Working herself up. And she'd just landed a contract out in Hollywood, a pretty good one for a newcomer. She was to sign the contract the next day. Chucked it all up."

There was a shuddering sound from the couch. Paula looked dearly p and dropped again. Barry felt moved to a reluctant compassion.

He couldn't stand it any longer. He was going down to Trail's End.

A hovering shadow in the rear hall resolved itself into Petry. He looked nervous—for Petry.

"Thought you ought to know that somebody's been around here. There's a ditched car a piece down the road and one of the horses is gone, the big roan Mr. Gage was riding. I know the car license. It belongs to a fella who's been staying at the hotel in Marston. Kind of a daredevil lookin' bird, dark complected."

Kennedy! Barry felt a little chill at the thought of Nancy somewhere along the lonely road and this man with his dark grudge roaming loose.

There was a sound behind him. Gage had come back. There was an envelope in his hand. He had started to open it, but he put it back in his pocket.

"What's the matter?"

"Kennedy's around. He has just gone off with one of the trucks. Wrecked his car down the road. I'm starting for Trail's End. I'm going with you."

At the end of the passage leading to the kitchen Martha appeared. Her mouth was set primly, but her eyes had a snapping brightness.

"Ling says there's a kind of funny pounding going on in the garage. Who's out there, Boone?"

"My gosh!" Boone swallowed hastily. "I plumb forgot the lady! Miss Cleo—she rode in with me."

"What the devil is she doing in the garage?"

"Well you see, Barry, comin' back up the road I heard somebody scream and I just shot the car straight into the garage and bolted out to see if I could do anything and I plumb forgot everything else. I musta been so excited that I give the door a slam after me, and that bar drops awful easy. Get's kinda second nature to shut that door. Martha you let the lady out, won't you?"

"I guess I'd better, Boone."

The car roared down to Trail's End. There was no one there. Gage said little, but his deliberate gaze roamed curiously around this shabby little place where Paula's sister had come to hide. He read his letter looked grim over it.

At the end of an hour Barry was nervously tramping the floor. They started back again and met Petry on the way.

"I've been sounin' a little. Somebody rode pretty reckless for a ways. I found this, but whoever lost it was headin the other way. North."

It was a man's felt hat and the initials inside were J. M. K.

Why had Kennedy been riding away from him back to town, unless he had been following Nancy? And why had Nancy gone that way, when Trail's End lay in the opposite direction?

"If we follow him," Barry muttered, "we may find Nancy, or at least pick up her trail."

They could do little until daylight came. Barry fumed over lost time and occupied some of it by having Petry drive to Trail's End again and leave Martha there while he took Captain and followed the short cut. There was no sign of Nancy. Barry went back to wait for daylight.

"The roan's back. Kinda limps." "That means that Kennedy is on foot and probably lost." Barry moved impatient shoulders. "It's Nancy that I'm worried about. I'm going to take one more run down to Trail's End." Barry slid into the driver's seat.

The greying darkness reeled past them. They drew up at Trail's End. Martha came running out, her placid control shaken.

"Martha, is she here?"

Martha nodded jerkily. "She's here, and she's sick. She's out of her head. She came in an hour ago, staggerin' along besides Comet and bringin' t'sat man. How sic ever got him here, with his leg broken and her as sick as she is, I don't keow. Boone, you go straight for the doctor as fast as you can."

Barry strode in through the open door, with Gage and Martha at his heels. In the living room, on the built-in couch which he had made for Nancy, Jim Kennedy lay, his lips tight with pain. He looked form Barry to Gage, and a lip curled with a fair imitation of his reckless grin.

"Regular family party, isn't it? Well, I'm down, what are you going to do?"

"Yes, you're doin'," said Barry between his teeth, "and that's all that saves you from being thrashed clear off your feet. I'll talk to you later."

He went on, toward a partly

THAT'S HOLLYWOOD

by EMILE C. SCHNURMACHER

She was standing at the roadside with a briefcase under her arm as I slowed up the car east of Needles, Cal. Ordinarily I don't pick up hitch-hikers. She was young and blonde, that type of ash white blonde that runs thirteen to the dozen on the Hollywood boulevards. She was pretty too, in spite of the Mojave desert dust, and beary eyed sleepiness which subsequent conversation revealed had been acquired aboard a five ton truck.

"How far east are you going?" I asked.

"All the way to Sylvia, Kansas." I thought that I had her catalogued pretty accurately and told her so "Beauty Contest Winner returning home because you couldn't get a break in the movies?"

"Just half right" she answered grimly. "I'm a beauty contest winner who is returning home because I threatened to be a success."

"Director get fresh? I ventured.

"Yes, but not in the way you mean," she said. "I was a pretty green kid when I came out to Hollywood six months ago. It was the old story. I had some pictures of myself to show as winner of a local beauty contest and some high school theatrical experience to talk about. I managed to see a director all right, one of the biggest in Hollywood. He was right from my own town. He was nice enough too, and made me realize that I'd need some lessons in dramatics and voice before he could find a part for me."

"I had a bit of money and managed to get a job as a waitress in the Blue Hat. I dropped right out of sight and put in all my spare time studying. I was going to take him by storm when I was ready."

"The day before yesterday he dropped in for lunch and saw me. He remembered me all right and called me over to his table.

"What has happened to you?" he asked.

"I told him all I had been doing and that I had planned to ask him for a screen test pretty soon."

"You look all right to me right now, he said. And your voice is swell. I've something in mind which I think will suit. Drop down to the studio this afternoon at 4 o'clock for a test on stage 3."

"You can bet I was on time at that studio."

"The director had left word with the gateman to let me go to stage 3. When I got there however he wasn't there. There weren't any lights or cameras either. Just a young man with glasses standing in front of a microphone."

"How about that test I am to take?" I asked.

"We'll give it to you right now," he said. "And I'll bet you'll be a wow too! This is probably the beginning of a real movie career for you!"

"But where are the lights, the cameras and everybody?" I asked in bewilderment.

"Not necessary at all!" he assured me. "All you have to do is stand in front of this microphone and this cable to it, running to the sound booth will record your voice."

"What'll I say, though?" I asked. "Do you want me to read some lines or recite something from Shakespeare, or what?"

"The young man with the eye-glasses looked at me in wonderment. "Didn't the director tell you?" he asked slowly, "that he's all set to sign you up. That you're a natural to play the voice of Mickey Mouse?"

open door. "Nancy!"

At the sound of voices outside a slim figure had stirred suddenly, pushing away the blanket which Martha had tucked around her. She struggled up, her bare feet found the floor and she swayed on them, talking in a husky whisper.

"Must get away! Hurry! I can't go back."

"Nancy, it's all right now! Everything is all right. It's Barry, darling. Please."

He caught her as she slipped down, but she fought him with surprising strength.

"You're not—Barry! Go away! Won't go back."

A capable hand thrust him aside. "There, it's all right, Miss Anne. It's just Martha. You know Martha, don't you? You get in bed now, and have a nice rest."

"Yes, know Martha." Resistance wilted, but she clung to Martha's sleeve. "Make him go away. He will tell Barry I'm here. Barry hates me. . . Never go back."

"You needn't do anything you don't want to. You just lie down." Martha coaxed and soothed. Barry drew back, white lipped, and the dark head on the pillow tossed and muttered.

"John! Mustn't let John see me. Paula screamed. . . Got to get home—get home—can't let him die."

Reds, Shelby Dropped From Bethany Card

Orange Takes Practice Tilt From Maroa in Preparation For Nono too Pretentious Schedule.

(By Jim Scott)

Bethany — After outscoring Maroa and its heralded George Waller, Jr., in a practice game at that place Tuesday, Coach Guy Cunningham's Bethany tossers are anxiously awaiting their inaugural which brings Blue Mound here a week from Tuesday for a Meridian conference clash.

A rather attractive schedule has been arranged with Sullivan and Shelbyville having been dropped from the list of last year's foes. Only eight home games are to be played, just two more than was the case in football and there will be only one in November, none in December and two in January.

Money Maker Dropped

The Sullivan game, for many years a bright spot on the local card, has been done away with because the two schools simply couldn't get together on their dates.

The North Central Association has intimated to nearly all schools that they curtail their schedules and abolish week night games. However Bethany was exempted from the cautioned group and it will continue to do some caging on Tuesday night, although to suit the fancy of the astute old NCA a few Saturday night tiffs have been booked.

Six contests are to be played with Cenosis conference schools but, although the yearly fees have been paid, Bethany will wait until next fall to enter the standings as a full-fledged member.

The Assumption Invitational meet has been changed to a Meridian conference tourney with all member schools competing.

The schedule follows:

- Home Games
- Nov. 27—Blue Mound.
- Jan. 22—Macon
- Jan. 26—Lovington
- Feb. 5—Mt. Zion
- Feb. 12—Hammond
- Feb. 15—Moweaqua
- Feb. 22—Illopolis
- March 1—Findlay
- Games Away
- Dec. 4—Hammond
- Dec. 7—Illopolis
- Dec. 11—Moweaqua
- Dec. 19-21—Moultrie Co. tourney
- Jan. 5—Lovington
- Jan. 9-12—Meridian tourney at Assumption
- Jan. 15—Findlay
- Jan. 25—Decatur Reserves
- Feb. 8—Macon
- Feb. 16—Decatur Reserves
- Feb. 19—Mt. Zion
- Feb. 26—Blue Mound
- Mar. 7-8-9—Dist. tourney.

Bethany News

at 11:45 p. m. Saturday when Marshall Whittaker, driving a new Ford V-8 missed a curve on route 132 at Dalton City, the car crashing into a stump and ricocheting from it through one side of a house just vacated by Melvin Travis and family, coming to a stop against a tree.

The automobile was demolished while the house, belonging to J. B. Lester, lost its porch and the sides of its northeast corner. In some miraculous manner Mr. Whittaker disentangled himself from the wreckage, disappeared only to return with a wrecker from his Lovington garage to collect the remnants of his car.

Occupants of the car said he was traveling about 75 miles an hour at the time of the accident.

Cries of the victims brought Dr. S. L. Stevens, his daughters, Wilma and Margaret and Webber Borchers and Art Thompson of Decatur who were visiting with the Stevens, to their rescue. With the aid of Paul Grounds, Pat Fogarty and Mr. Pasley, the wrecked car was lifted off four of the victims and they along with the other three, were then taken to Dr. Stevens' office.

Mr. Borchers, a son of Robert Borchers, former mayor of Decatur and himself an Illinois university graduate and prominent in civic affairs, proved a valuable aid to Dr. Stevens in treating the injured and the last one was discharged at 6:30 Sunday morning.

Dr. Stevens had promised the victims not to reveal their identity but he did say that those he treated were: a man, caught under the car, who received a double fracture to his left arm and severe cuts about the face and head; a boy, 9, who was thrown through the windshield and who had cuts and contusions on his face and chest; a man, 19, with one and one-half inch cuts on legs necessitating many stitches; a woman, 22, with fingers on left hand almost torn off and badly cut legs; a woman, 37, with contusions and cuts on left leg; a woman, 20, with palm of hand ripped out and severe contusion on head and chest.

UNEXPECTED COMPANY WAS WES SURPRISED?

Sunday a big 7-passenger car drove into the farm yard at the Wes Love place which is one mile north of Smoky Row, close to Bull-Nettle gulch. Mr. Love walked out, intending to welcome some visitors whom he was expecting.

Arrived at the car, he saw it was full of colored men. "Why-why?" stuttered Mr. Love in surprise "you boys are from Africa ain't you. I bet you're lost."

The men, who were from Springfield, admitted that they were off their road and inquired how to get back to the slab. Mr. Love gave them their directions and they were on their way. He is an old North Carolinian, and colored folks do not visit these mountaineers on purpose.
